Reduction in Prices. Improvement in Quality.

The Sunday-school Board
of the Southern Baptist Convention, owing to the increased and increasing patronage of the Sunday-schools of the South, has been enabled to

of its periodicals, while at the same time arranging to improve the quality of the work done on them. In contents, the Board claims that its periodicals are equal to the best. In mechanical execution, they feel that some improvements can be made. And these will be made. Our schools shall have neat, attractive, helpful periodicals, containing the best work of some of our most scholarly men.

Prices change with fourth quarter; improvements follow in January.

No other Sunday-school helps do or can bring the

of the Convention into touch with the Sunday-schools of the South. Dr. Ellis said, at the meeting of the Convention in Nashville, that in this Board and its work we had one of the greatest missionary agencies in our reach.

A New Jersey Miracle.

HELPLESS FOR YEARS WITH LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA AND RHEUMATISM. HIS CASE PRONOUNCED HOPELESS BY THE LEADING PHYSICIAN OF SUSSEX COUNTY.

(By Special Correspondence to the N. Y. Press.)

The busy little village of Branchville, N. J., has been the scene of a modern miracle. Chas. F. Struble, a well-known and prosperous farmer, living on Homestead Farm, in Frankford Township, a few miles from Branchville, is just now the chief subject of discussion throughout Sussex county.

The Press is always up to date in its news, both political or medical, and has procured the following from Mr. Struble's own lips:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism off and on for twenty years. I have tried all kinds of medicines and treatments. I have taken sulphur baths at Hamburg, N. J., Newton, N. J., and in New York City with a doctor who charged me $2.50 a bath each day. An English doctor treated me with a galvanic battery at Rockaway, Morris county, N. Y. I have tried many doctors. None of them did me any permanent good. I used all kinds of liniments I could hear of but without avail.

"About two years ago I was taken much worse and my doctor said I had locomotor ataxia of the spine, and that the chances were against me. After treating for a time, he finally gave me up and said he had done all he could for me.

"The cords of my limbs were drawn tight as the cords on a kettle drum, and I had such cramps in my limbs that I suffered terrible pain. My feet were cold all the time. I had to use a hot water bag and heated bricks to my feet, but even then I could not get any relief.

"Finally I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I commenced taking them on February 5th, 1893. I found in three days time that the cords in my legs began to 'let up,' my feet began to get warm, I began to eat and sleep well, and in one month I had gained six pounds. The numbness in my limbs began to leave me too, and to-day I feel like a new man, and cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am able to walk and do some work, and all this is after using only nine boxes of Pink Pills. I feel so grateful for my recovery that I am glad to let the public know what these pills have done for me."

In order to emphasize his story, Mr. Struble made the following affidavit:

Sworn and subscribed before me this thirteenth day of April, A. D., 1893.

IRA COSS, Justice of the Peace.

Justice Coss evidenced his interest and good feeling by the following certificate:

I hereby certify that all that Mr. Struble says regarding his rheumatic and other troubles I believe to be true and correct.

IRA COSS, Justice of the Peace.

On the farm with Mr. Struble live his two adult sisters. Miss Annie M. Struble made the following statement:

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have done wonderful things for my brother. He was in a helpless condition when I left him on January 12th last, and when I returned on March 25th, I found him cured. The most remarkable thing about the case," she continued, "is the curing of his lameness. Of course I wanted to know all about the causes of such a wonderful change, and I learned from him and my sister and others, that during my absence he had been using the Pink Pills, and that his recovery was attributed solely to them."

Miss Mary E. Struble said: "I saw my brother in all the stages of the disease. He began improving as soon as he began taking the Pink Pills. When my sister went away in January he was apparently at death's door and nobody seemed to have any hope for him. He certainly had little or none for himself, and he was very despondent in spite of all efforts to cheer him. He declared that he felt better as soon as he began taking the Pink Pills, and to one who, like myself, was attending him day by day, there could be no doubt that they and they alone were the cause of his improvement. Why all other things he had tried he had abandoned, for they had failed to do him the slightest good. What else could have put him on his feet again? We don't wonder at his enthusiasm for the Pink Pills."

George J. Bowman, the proprietor of the American Hotel at Branchville, said: "All that Mr. Struble says in reference to the Pink Pills I know to be true. In fact he can't say too much about them for they have undoubtedly saved his life."

At the Branchville drug store, chief clerk Henry Beemer, remarked, "I have no doubt that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured Mr. Struble." Joseph H. McDonald, the proprietor of the General Store of Branchville, and Postmaster Knox, expressed themselves in similar terms.

Pink Pills for many years previous to their general manufacture were used as a prescription. At first they were chiefly prescribed for impure blood and general weakness. Now they are found to be a never-failing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of La Grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and all diseases of the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc.

They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred, and the public is cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape), at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., or Brockville, Ont.

The Home Rule bill passed the English House of Commons on Sept. 2d by a majority of thirty-four votes, after being before the House for three months. On the same date it passed its first reading in the House of Lords, but it is highly probable that that body will prevent its enactment until the present Parliament is dissolved, and another general election can be held. It is stated that the bill is so hampered by amendments that but little advantage will result to Ireland in the event of its final passage.

On the 28th and 29th the Southern Seaboard States were visited by the severest wind and rain storms in half a century. The storm took its origin in the West Indies, came up the Atlantic and entered the continent at Savannah, Ga. Sweeping through the Carolinas, it progressed north through Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York, and re entered the Atlantic at the Gulf of St. Lawrence, whence it proceeded to Nova Scotia. In the northern States it was considerably more moderate. At Savannah fifty people were killed, and much property destroyed. At Charleston, S. C., over $1,000,000 damage was done, and many fatalities occurred. At Port Royal, S. C., one hundred people were killed. Many others were killed on the Sea Islands. The damage done to ocean craft was enormous, and crops were totally destroyed in many large districts. North Carolina was particularly fortunate, with the exception of the town of Kernersville. The fatalities are placed above seven hundred all told.

We invite the attention of young men and women and of our readers generally to the 20th annual commencement of Sadler's Bryant & Stratton College of Business, Stenography and Type-writing, which appears in this issue. This is one of Baltimore's representative institutions, and stands high in its special line of education. It has placed in desirable positions many of its students, and continues to do so, which is one of its valuable specialties.

A pamphlet is about to be issued by Rev. D. B. Dennison's Memorial Ode, extempore addresses, original hymns, &c., with the portrait of Isaac Backus, and two full-page illustrations of the Backus Homestead and Monument. Price, fifty cents, in aid of the proposed Backus Memorial church. Copies obtained of Rev. D. B. Ford, Hanover, Mass.

MARRIED.

FREDERICK—MORTON—On August 23d, 1893, at 9 o'clock p. m., in Lilesville Baptist church, by Rev. L. Johnson, Mr. Charles L. Frederick and Miss Lucy F. Morton, both of Lilesville, N. C.

MURCHISON—HAYES—On July 27th, 1893, at Gulf, N. C., by Rev. C. M. Murchison, assisted by Rev. Mr. Tom of the Presbyterian church, Miss Etta, daughter of Rev. D. C. Murchison, and Mr. I. R. Hayes of Kershaw, S. C.

DIED.

PHIPPS—Sister Mary A. Phipps died on the evening of May 24th, in the forty-fourth year of her age. A husband and five children, and brothers and sisters, and many friends mourn her loss. She was a consistent and highly-prized member of Brown's church. She was a good neighbor, a loving wife and mother, and a devoted Christian. We all miss her. PASTOR.

RODWELL—Deacon J. L. Rodwell of Brown's church, Warren county, died on June 11th, in the sixty-fifth year of his age. He was a good citizen, a kind and helpful neighbor, a sincere and earnest Christian, a staunch friend, and a loving and devoted husband and father. He is sadly missed by his family and his many friends, including his PASTOR.

WHITE—God saw proper on Aug. 29th, 1893, to call home Sister M. A. White. She was a consistent member of Judson Baptist church. She leaves husband, father and three brothers to mourn her loss, not as those that have no hope. May the Lord bless the bereaved husband and friends with the pleasure of meeting where parting will be felt and feared no more. T. E. H.

COBB—On the morning of August 24th our brother Ben J. Cobb was called to his reward. He was a man universally esteemed, of honesty unimpeachable and probity rare in its staunchness, of patience beautiful, and amidst heavy burdens uncomplaining. He was treasurer of the Wilson Baptist church at the time of his death. He leaves behind a wife—a loving lovely woman—and a son just coming into manhood. God's comfort and his peace be with them.

DYSPEPSIA

Remarkable Cures by Spring No. 1

Buffalo Lithia Water

Dr. P. A. Flournoy, Charlotte Court House, Va., says:—"My nervous system was shattered, my digestion difficult and painful, the stomach often rejecting the highest possible articles of food. I was greatly depressed in spirit, and had but little hope of any improvement in my condition. Upon a diet of tea and crackers, I visited the Buffalo Springs, and put myself upon the water of Spring No. 1. I was soon conscious of an increase of appetite and digestive power, and at the same time of a gradual, decided increase of nervous vigor. This improvement continued through a protracted stay at the Springs, and to such an extent that before leaving I was able to eat with impunity any article of food found upon the hotel table. I left the Springs fully restored, and returned home to enter upon the arduous duties of my profession."

The Professor of Anatomy and Materia Medica, at University of Virginia, Dr. Wm. B. Towles, at the time Resident Physician at Buffalo Lithia Springs, reports the following case: "Miss ——, aged sixteen, consulted me as to the use of the Buffalo Lithia Water; she was pale and emaciated, weighing but sixty-eight pounds. For several years she had suffered from a severe form of Dyspepsia with want of appetite, acid eructation, Nausea and Vomiting after eating, Headache, Constipation, Hypochondriasis, etc. For twelve months she had not experienced the Menstrual Flow. She was put upon the Water of Spring No. 1, and directions given as to her diet. During a stay of two months at the Springs her digestion was restored, there was entire disappearance of other distressing symptoms and a return of the Menstrual Flow. She gained largely in flesh and left the Springs in good health and soon afterwards weighed one hundred and eight pounds."

Nervous Prostration.

A Powerful and Permanent Nerve Tonic

Spring No. 2

Buffalo Lithia Water

Dr. M. H. Houston, Physician to Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va. (Extract from a communication in the "Virginia Medical Monthly.") Having had an opportunity of watching very closely the action of the Buffalo Lithia Water in numerous cases which have fallen under my observation, I am prepared to impute to it one quality at least to which, it strikes me, sufficient attention has not been heretofore directed. I allude especially to its power as a gentle excitant of the Nervous System and as a Powerful and Permanent Nerve Tonic. To this particular property I am disposed to attribute much of its efficacy in the relief of many chronic diseases. Other mineral waters, with exhilarating properties, are sparkling in their appearance, and their exciting qualities are due to the gases which are disengaged, and which are consequently evanescent in effect. The Buffalo Lithia Water is without such impregnation of gases, and its effects are much more permanent.

Dr. Goodrich A. Wilson, Somerset, N. C., Member Medical Society of North Carolina, says:—"Hundreds of young females attain the age of puberty without realizing the healthful performance of their great function. They become nervous, hysterical, chlorotic. Hundreds of young men attain the same age without developing into manhood. They become pale, feeble, hypochondriacal, and perhaps the end is phthisis or an insane asylum. In all such cases the best results may be anticipated from the use of Buffalo Lithia Water."

Shaded and Shading.

I found a fern in the leafy shade
Of a fatherly tree in a silent wood,
Where the dancing leaves and the sunshine played
In a checquered, innocent, merry mood.

It was a little and tender thing,
And could not stand in the sun alone,
So the good monarch had let it spring
In the cooling shade of his lofty throne.

And beneath the fern was a tiny flower,
A smaller growth and a weaker leaf;
And the sheltered fern, gave a sheltering dower,
A shadow received from its leafy chief.

I would seek the shadow of God's great wood,
His countless shadowing mercy trees;
And though but a fern, yet His heart is good,
And the weakly ones—o'ershadoweth these.

I cannot stand in the sun alone;
But beneath the shade of Life's holy tree,
Though only a fern my God will own,
And lovingly shelter and care for me.

And then, should a weaker flower seek
The little shade that my life can give,
I will try to remember that I am weak,
And give of the shadow that I receive.

—Rev. William Luff.

Tippo.

Tippo was full of mischief, yet he was a great pet when he behaved himself. As he had been presented to Mr. Harcourt by a beloved friend, his pranks were borne with more patience than would have been the case otherwise. One member of the family was an especial favorite with him: this was the baby, just six months old. He would climb up to the nursery window from the garden wall beneath, and, seating himself on the sill, would chatter to the little fellow by the hour, and Willie would clap his hands and crow with delight.

When Tippo had been good for several days, he was allowed to come into the room and play about while nurse held the baby on her lap.

The monkey was an affectionate creature, and his great ambition was to take the baby in his long, hairy arms and "cuddle" it as he had so often seen nurse do; but no one knew of this wish on Tippo's part, and, as he had behaved very well for some time, the nurse relaxed her vigilance, and so, one day when she had gone down stairs for something, leaving the baby asleep in his cradle, with the monkey rolled up in a brown ball on a chair beside him, Tippo seized upon the opportunity thus afforded him, and, lifting the sleeping child very quietly, carried him out of the window and up among the leafy branches of a tree close by.

Perhaps you can imagine the nurse's horror when, upon her return, she found the cradle empty and saw through the open window Tippo, seated on a swinging branch, rocking the child to and fro, pressing it tenderly to his breast, and even trying to sing a lullaby to it!

The little fellow was not a bit frightened, but lay cooing and smiling in the hairy embrace which enfolded him. When the nurse's screams had brought the entire family to the scene, Mrs. Harcourt was nearly crazed with fright, although her husband assured her that Tippo would not harm the child, because he loved it too well. By dint of much coaxing and some threats, the baby was at last secured, and Tippo was remanded to the stable, where he was kept a prisoner and became a great favorite with the grooms, who gave him the freedom of the stable yard, watching closely lest he should go beyond it.

But poor Tippo was yet to redeem his character, in which there was not a single taint of viciousness. One day a fire broke out in the rear of Mr. Harcourt's beautiful house, and had made tremendous headway before it was discovered. Then all was confusion and uproar; messengers were dispatched to the nearest village for a fire engine, while the excited servants flew hither and thither, too frightened to know what they were about. Mr. Harcourt, assisted by the butler and his wife, was trying to save a few of the most valuable articles, while the coachmen and grooms were leading the horses to a place of safety, when a piercing shriek rent the air:

"The baby! where is the baby?"

Sure enough, where was he? The nurse in her terror had run from the burning building, leaving the child asleep in his cradle. Now, when she had returned to her senses, smoke and flame were pouring out of the nursery windows, and the stairway was also enveloped in a fiery mantle. Mr. Harcourt, supporting his unconscious wife in his arms, offered a large reward to the one who should brave the fiery ordeal and save his precious child, but before an answer was given there was a loud shout from the assembled servants:

"Look up there!"

Ah, what a sight was that! Emerging from the scuttle hole on the roof, his hairy coat all ablaze, but clasping baby Willie close to his breast with on arm, while with the other he grasped a branch of the nearest tree, was Tippo! Gently he slid to the earth with his precious burden, and, tottering to his master, laid it at his feet. Then, with a look of intense suffering, he gazed up into Mr. Harcourt's face, as if in appeal for relief, gave two or three almost human cries, and stretched out his quivering limbs in death.

A beautiful new mansion now occupies the site of the old house. As the guests enter the grand hall their eyes are instantly attracted by a large monkey which stands upon a pedestal beneath a stained glass window. The figure, loving Tippo, stuffed with grass, and kept as a memorial of the day when he sacrificed his own life to save his master by the house.—The Morn-

Concerning Stains.

At this season of the year, napkins, tablecloths and often handkerchiefs and children's clothing are liable to be stained with fruit. There are also coffee, tea and wine stains, iron rust and mildew, which the housewife has to contend with. It is a good plan to keep a bottle of Javelle water handy and wet the stained articles with it before they are put into the wash. If this is done, the stains will be completely removed. But Javelle water is not always obtainable on short notice, and it is well to know its substitutes. Berry juice will fade out if washed in milk. Apple and peach stains will disappear if boiling water is poured steadily through the spots. Other fruit stains will generally disappear after similar treatment if they have not been "set" by careless washing.

When other things fail, rubbing the spots on both sides with soft soap and salt, or with a coating of yellow bar soap and starch mixed with cold water, has proved successful. Follow this treatment by spreading the articles out in the sun to bleach. If fine table linen is much coffee stained, dip the spots in a mixture made from the yelk of an egg, cold water and a few drops of wine. Tea stains are generally the most obstinate of all stains on table linen, but they will yield to the simple treatment of warm soap suds, containing a little ammonia. This treatment will also dispel wine stains. Mildew will disappear if the affected articles are soaked over night in buttermilk. Iron rust fades out readily after the spots have been rubbed with lemon juice and salt, and put in the sun to bleach. The grass stains which are liable to be found on children's clothing, often defy all ordinary treatment, but where they are not too deeply set, they can sometimes be overcome by dipping the spots in molasses until thoroughly soaked, then wash out the molasses in clear tepid water. Failing with this remedy, the next best thing is a solution of chloride of lime. This is made by putting four ounces of chloride of lime into a quart of water; after allowing it to settle, pour off the clear liquid and bottle for use. This is used in the same way as Javelle water; except that the articles to which this solution has been applied must be thoroughly rinsed in clear water before being put into soap suds.

We are very often annoyed by finding our clothes have been scorched while they were being ironed. The yellow stains caused by the too hot iron can be removed—if the fiber of the goods has not been destroyed—by washing in strong soap suds and without rinsing hang out in the sun. If this does not have the desired effect borax water will. Sometimes when our machines have been over oiled, and we are sewing on nice white goods, we suddenly discover an ugly black grease spot, this can be taken out if it is immediately wet with kerosene and washed out in clear cold water.—Mrs. W. L. Tabor, in Home and Farm.

A Foolish Custom.

There is a disagreeable custom in some families of continually referring to the mistakes and wrong-doings of the various members. A child does wrong, repents and is forgiven, but the parents talk of the matter for weeks afterwards, and even in the presence of guests. An older boy has been unsuccessful in a little business venture or in something he has tried to make. Brothers, sisters, and even father and mother take care that he shall not forget it, and although the allusions may be good-natured, they hurt and the effect upon the character is most unpleasant. A sensitive child draws back into his shell and becomes morbid, self-conscious and given to concealment. Another is made sullen, while discouragement is the evident effect upon a third. Surely an offense forgiven should be forgotten, or else the forgiveness is of little worth. And making fun of the mistakes of children seldom does any good. To be sure, they often do foolish and laughable things, but they do them in good faith and deserve no ridicule. A reproof once given should be left to do its work. Silence and the custom of ignoring past misdemeanors have worked wonders in the character and life of more than one child. —Congregationalist.

Coughs and Their Cure.

There are few disorders more teasing to the sufferer and to those about him than a cough, writes Elizabeth Robinson Scovil in the Ladies' Home Journal. A slight hacking cough is often a bad habit; when it is at all under the control of the will it should be sternly repressed. Sometimes the uvula, the pendulous part of the soft palate, at the back of the mouth, becomes relaxed, the point touches the tongue, producing a tickling sensation, which requires a cough to relieve it. A little dry tannic acid put in a quill and blown on the uvula will contract it, or half a teaspoonful of the powder mixed with two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stirred into half a glass of warm water and used as a gargle.

When a cold has been taken and there is cough with soreness of the chest, bed should be prescribed for fear of a severe attack of bronchitis. Soak the feet in a pail of hot water in which is dissolved three tablespoonfuls of mustard, and rub the chest with warm camphorated oil.

A Native.

The Farm as a Training School.

It remains true even to day that the farm is the chief and the best school for the training of capable men that exists in this country. It is otherwise in Europe, where one does not find a class corresponding to the independent American farmer. But with us the farmer is a superb trainer of boys. His lads are learning real things, while town boys too often are merely studying in books the pale reflection of things.

The farmer boy knows early about land and soils; about crops and their rotations; about the seasons and the weather and the signs of the sky. He grows up in familiar acquaintance with animals. He owns a dog, he has a favorite horse, he rides wild colts, he feeds the horned cattle. He helps in the planting and in the harvesting. He is unusually versed in wood lore and knows trees and plants, birds, squirrels, rabbits and ground hogs. He hunts with a gun and goes fishing. He develops superb health. He helps repair the fences. He learns about tools and masters the complexities of farm machinery. In short, the range of his practical knowledge becomes very great.—Review of Reviews.

DURING the present session of Congress the newspapers throughout the land have taken occasion to remind our representatives that this is no time for partisan tactics; President Cleveland devoted a paragraph to that declaration in his message; and it is said no Congressman has addressed the House on the subject of finance without calling attention to the same fact. It strikes us that they are all late in their declaration. Since the Constitution was established there has never been a time when partisan tactics were beneficial to the country. Congress was instituted to work in harmony and unity of interest for the people who must obey its mandates. It was not made to be placed in the hands of partisans who use it, not to serve the people, but to keep their party in power. The enactments which it sends forth should always be for the country's welfare, and not the party's. Though a representative should see certain defeat in case he advocated a measure which he deemed wise and beneficial to the country at large, he should support it as if it were worth a hundred thousand votes to him. A representative's personal interest, or his party's interest, are of but little weight in the scales against the common good. Above all, a representative should adhere to the promises that he has made and the provisions which he has defended on the campaign. In this he may not always be wise, but he is sure to be obeying the wishes of the people who elected him and acting honestly with his constituents; and in case of failure of his measures to bring those advantages which he has promised, and the people have accepted, there are none to blame save those who elected him. The day of platforms that are made, not to become statutes, but to fool the people, and the day of the demagogue who makes promises and accepts platforms to obtain office, is fast coming to an end, and we may well thank God for it.

WITHIN the past few months three well-equipped expeditions, one from the United States, one from England, and another from Germany, have set forth toward the arctic regions with the alleged purpose of adding to our knowledge of the region adjacent to the North Pole. They claim to make the expeditions in the name of Science, and neither the fearful sacrifices and terrible suffering which the parties must necessarily undergo, nor the fate of former arctic explorers, can deter their efforts in that almighty name. Science has become the great bugbear of the latter days of the nineteenth century, but we believe that in no instance has it been imposed upon more than in these arctic expeditions. Nothing can possibly result that is commensurate with the risk of human lives and the outlay of money that such expeditions involve. We have long since given up the hope of a new route around the globe in that direction, and none are so foolish as to dream of finding an inhabitable country in that latitude. No object that is worthy of consideration by rational beings confront them. They are risking human lives simply to gain what little notoriety foolish people may accord them, with the addition of the money that may revert to their pocket-books as the result of lectures on their explorations, which in no way can be of value to the people of this practical age. Yet such is the composition of our country that fools and wise men alike can always obtain honor, glory and a competence from others of the same class, if they but demonstrate their superior qualifications to the title.

A DISTINGUISHED writer recently declared that the history of the English House of Lords showed that it had never failed to pass or repeal a law which the English people had demanded through their representatives in the House of Commons. And in view of the fact that within the last quarter of a century the English people have been by no means modest in their demands, it seems that the Lords might be easily disposed of. At most they have only succeeded in delaying for a year or two every wise measure that has confronted them. As an instance of this, we have the present Home Rule bill, which has recently passed the Commons by a fair majority. It is now referred to the Lords, who, in all probability, will delay its final enactment for some months, perhaps years. But in the end it will become a law just as it passed the Commons. The Lords can only delay its passage until the people become clamorous in their demands, and then through fear that their useless occupation may be abolished by the will of the people, they will bow their august heads and sanction the bill. There was a time when it was claimed that the Lords represented the royal will, but in this day the royal will is not consulted in England, except in regard to the support of the family of the Queen. England has gradually followed America and France until today her royalty are no more than figure-heads, dependent for their existence on the love of their people for old forms and customs. England may never become a republic in name, but she can already boast of a representative government that is equally representative with that of the "greatest republic of modern times."

THE wonderful progress which agricultural science has made in our educational institutions within the past decade is a striking testimony to the growing utilitarianism of the age. It is not generally known, but it is a fact that we have in each State in the Union one or more institutions which instruct their students in agricultural science. Each of these schools is aided by the government from a great fund created to encourage such instruction—an evidence that our law-makers are not altogether blind to the fact that our prosperity depends on the agricultural class. While the government encourages the pursuit of study in agricultural science as most practical and useful, the pursuit of the classics is ignored as utterly useless, and is left to those who have the means and the time to pursue them. The good results of the agricultural colleges can hardly be over-estimated. The farmer cannot know too much, and while he may through long experience learn "lots that are not in the books" about his occupation, there are great advantages that will accrue from thoroughly systematizing his work. It is pleasing to contrast the European system that extorts millions of taxes from the people to make soldiers of the young men, with ours, which is to send forth thousands of bread-winners without the least taxation of our people.

Talks About Law—No. 16.

BY JUDGE R. W. WINSTON.

ENTICING SERVANTS.

The peace and good feeling of a neighborhood is often disturbed because one neighbor charges another with interfering with his laborers.

In some places, when a servant is discharged, he cannot get employment elsewhere without showing a certificate from the late employer. This rule applies in thickly-settled neighborhoods and in cities generally.

With us in the country, we have to do the best we can and rely on neighborly conduct. The ladies often say that if the men would take the matter of domestic servants in hand and would form a society agreeing to pay good wages to good servants and not to employ such as steal extensively and are indifferent, this perplexing problem would be solved. But I fear not. Good domestic service, like most good things in this life, is a growth. The new order of things has not yet had time to develop.

The statute protects us, however, against interference with our servants.

First, if any person shall entice, persuade and procure any servant to unlawfully leave his employer; or

Second, if any person shall knowingly and unlawfully harbor and detain from the service of his employer any servant who shall unlawfully leave the service of his employer,—in either case the person so offending may be fined one hundred dollars, or imprisoned six months in jail.

In Person county about the year 1870, two neighbors, Haskins and Royster by names, went to law because Haskins charged Royster with interfering with his servants, and before the suit ended, they say that it cost the defendant nearly his entire estate.

A year or two ago a Norfolk firm had an agent who went to Goldsboro and hired many of the servants of a rival machine factory, saying, at the time, that he intended to break the Goldsboro factory up.

Our court said, "The mischief which the enactment was intended to remedy was the interference of others with the servants, who had thus agreed to serve, by offering them inducements to depart, or with knowledge that they had so departed in disregard of their contract obligations, by receiving such with their service."

In 1889, in Lenoir county, one Moses Anderson was indicted for persuading Lloyd Anderson to leave the services of his employer. The employer swore that he had paid Lloyd for several months' labor in advance, which he did not get. But Moses contended that Lloyd was his son, that he did not agree to the contract of hiring, and that Lloyd was under age. Our court said that, under these circumstances, Moses was not guilty.

In Perquimans county, in 1883, one Daniel, the servant, was indicted for unlawfully leaving the service of his employer. It will be observed that there was no enticing or persuading in the case; Daniel simply left his employer in an unlawful manner. Our court said that Daniel was not guilty under the statute.

Since that time the Legislature have had under advisement the passage of an act to make it a misdemeanor for any servant to unlawfully and wilfully leave the service of his employer. Such a law exists in States to the south of us, I have heard. If our labor is often poor and provoking, let us take courage when we read of Russian anarchists and foreign Nihilists, and let us be patient and abiding, not quick to fly to dangers we know not of.

Some Protracted Meetings.

Have just closed with each of the following churches a five-day special effort with the following visible results:

Providence, Dr. R. R. Overby, pastor; fifteen added. At Pleasant Grove, same pastor; fourteen added. At Shiloh, Rev. P. S. C. Davis, pastor; thirty-six added. At Salem, sixteen added. At Sawyer's Creek, Dr. Overby, pastor; thirty added.

At some of these meetings, besides the pastors, the following brethren in the ministry rendered very effective aid by preaching, exhortation and personal work: Harrell, Williams, Wood, Woodson, Burfoot and Ferebee.

Thus the Lord has added to the saved over a hundred souls and strengthened Baptist lines not a little.

CALVIN S. BLACKWELL.

Elizabeth City, N. C.

Good News.

Dear Recorder:—All our churches are revived. Hardly one of them have failed in the county. There seems to be a general outpouring of God's blessed Spirit. Many are coming into the fold of God. Backslidden churches are being warmed up.

Our high-school at Hiawassee opened on Aug. 28th, 1893, with a prosperous indication for the year.

May our schools grow and churches enlarge until their power shall be felt and honored in every nook and corner of this fair fair land. Yours for Christ,

H. C. STANDRIDGE.

Talks on Medicine—No. 2.

FROM A RETIRED PHYSICIAN.

NURSING THE SICK.

Perhaps one of the most important duties rendered the sick is by the nurse. It is not everybody who can nurse. Nursing is an art which very few people have ever mastered. So much has this been realized, that much attention now is being given in our medical institutions and universities to training the nurse as well as the doctor. But there are very few of us who can get such training, and hence we must do the best we can under the circumstances.

A nurse should be one who is endowed with natural-born common sense and who has great sympathy for the suffering whether man or beast—one who can feel something of the aches and pains of the suffering. There is no estimating the amount of actual pain and sorrow such a person can help to ear away. But the nurse must not be one who is so sympathetic as that he or she is given to "whines." "Whiners" are not sympathizers in any sense. Usually those persons who do most whining along any line are the hardest-hearted of God's creation.

Don't, then, confound these two terms—sympathizers and whiners. The form of sympathy which is needed is that which partakes of gentleness, carefulness, tenderness and watchfulness. There is no end to the amount of trouble given doctors by improper nursing. He makes a proper diagnosis and builds up a treatment and leaves all in the hands of what we may regard as a competent nurse. But when he is gone, she, either because of her carelessness or because of her wisdom which is in most cases the wildest form of imagination, leaves off his directions and sometimes substitutes something else. The consequence is, as a matter of course, the patient grows worse, and the doctor is blamed. Let the nurse know his or her place. They are simply nurses. To them should be entrusted the care of the room—keep it clean, well aired, and in it a bunch of flowers (provided they are changed every day: never let them remain in a room long). The nurse must prepare the food, see its effect upon the patient, so as to inform the physician when he comes. And in fact a nurse must have the oversight when the doctor is away. And in a family when one or more is sick, always select some one person to be nurse. What's everybody's business is nobody's business is true of nursing the sick as well as in anything else.

FRIENDS AND CALLERS.

In this connection, also, it is well to put in a word concerning those who are the friends of the sick and who call occasionally to express their great regrets and kind words of sympathy with a friend or neighbor. Perhaps I would not vary far from the truth if I would say that this is the physician's biggest "nuisance." And not only so, but the greatest source of disturbance to the patient. Of course, everybody likes company when it is needed, or when it comes for the motive of doing good. But the great bulk of sick-visiting is nothing more than a duty rendered in the interest of the various forms of "nosing societies." There is no telling what will become of those eager ears if it were not for an occasional misfortune in the community. One-half of the callers upon the sick come for nothing but to get a bump of curiosity gratified, and the other half contains only about ten per cent. who know how to behave themselves when they call. I recall a case of a young man who had been in bed for three months with typhoid fever. Of course he was by this time in great prostration. Any little excitement will tend to give him heart failure and death. A friend called one day. He was one who should have known better. He had not been in long before he related a very sad story of a poor boy who lived in the community who was sitting up in bed just recuperating from fever, and suddenly his heart failed, and he fell over dead! And then to make the story complete, he said to the patient, "You'd better be careful, or you may go likewise." Well, it is useless to say that such a caller as this ought to be locked up until he learns some sense, and yet their name is legion.

One thing leaving this part of my present paper, is concerning an almost universal error committed by callers. "How are you to-day?" Have you ever been sick? If so, you don't need to have me talk about it. "How are you?" that means that about twenty times per day you must relate the same old story of how you feel. It is annoying and damaging to the sick. Don't do it. Ask somebody else about it.

PREACHERS IN THE SICK ROOM.

We might devote a whole conversation to this subject, but I will just suggest meekly that our preachers many times are the clumsiest folks in a sick room to be found anywhere. In the first place, they are ignorant as to propriety and the fitness of things. Indiscriminately they walk into a sick chamber and begin talking about "the certainty of death"; when if there is a thing the average sick man don't want to hear, it is that thing. Usually also the preacher thinks it will be a crime upon his dignified calling to wear any kind of an expression other than that which is indicative of the most profound solemnity. He drolls out his words, tells the number of sick in the town and how many deaths have occurred. Or it may be that instead of his being this kind of a man, he is boisterous, tells heavy yarns, talks about politics, &c. These are the extremes, but they fit too many of our preachers today. I believe there are thousands of instances in which even the best trained preachers along this line had best not talk about death or even offer an audible prayer. Ask the physician's advice. Talk with the family; find out what would best interest him and occasionally drop in a word about his spiritual condition. But as my time for conversation is limited, I must stop along this line. Perhaps at some future day we will talk upon "The Preacher in the Sick Room."

PATENT MEDICINES.

In closing this conversation with you, I want to impress upon you something of the nature of the "patent medicine business." It is an enormous business and in most cases an enormous fraud. Don't understand me to say that there are not some good patent medicines—good for some things. But take them as a whole, they are mere money-traps. Just think of the enormity of the pill business in this country—a thousand and one pills which differ largely in name, and in that alone. The fact is the pill craze is about the biggest craze of the age. I shall not forget sitting in a drug store one day, and a lady walked in. She had an awful expression of sorrow upon her face, but she was stout and strong looking. The young, polite druggist, with his hair roached up in front and looking wise, stepped up and said, "What do you wish, madam?" "I wish," said she, "to see some of your liver pills." He pulled down a box saying, "Here is Dr. Tutt's celebrated liver pill," &c. "No, sir, it don't act on my liver any more." "Well, here is the Indian Root pill," &c. "No, sir, it never acted at all on my liver." And so he continued until he had shown her all he had upon the shelf, but she could not be suited. Like Alexander, she had conquered the pill-world, and turned away sorrowing, because there was none else to conquer. The fact was her trouble was in her mind and not her liver, but she was ready to be "gulped" by any traveling quack. Such cases as these feed the bread-pill quacks of our country. If medicine is anything, it is a science. Get you a good physician to prescribe for you, follow his advice, place your trust in him, and if there is any hope for you, in the majority of cases you will be helped. Let alone patent nostrums, if the newspapers do puff them—remember they get good pay for that.

We will talk next upon some of the common diseases and their treatment.

Something for Nothing.

When a man obtains money, or goods, or anything else of value, promising to pay at some future time, when he knows that he will not be able to pay; or when he makes false statements concerning his ability or willingness to pay, this may be called "obtaining money or goods under false pretence." And the law can take hold of the man and force him to pay or suffer punishment.

There are hundreds, yea, thousands of persons, whose names are registered on church-books, who do this every year; nay, we go farther and say that a large proportion of these persons make accounts which they know they will not pay. But the law does not reach them, not because they are not guilty, but because they are not prosecuted. The larger proportion of indebtedness thus incurred arise from transactions with preachers, teachers and printers. There are hundreds of thousands of dollars due at this hour from church members to members of these three classes in North Carolina.

Covetousness is a far more wide-spread sin among the churches than drunkenness, horrible as the latter is.

Bro. Elias Dodson used to say that a man's pocket-book should always be baptized along with its owner.

By this sin the preacher loses confidence in his members and lives on short rations; the teacher works for nothing and finds himself; and the printer—well, I don't know how in the world he lives.

ZENDER.

Piny Grove Church.

Dear Recorder:—On Saturday, Aug. 19th, 1893, I began a meeting at the Piny Grove Baptist church of which I am pastor. The meeting lasted twelve days. Much interest was manifested, and we had a glorious revival of religion, which resulted in a general awakening and in twenty-eight professions of faith in Christ. On the 23d inst., thirteen of the twenty-eight professing conversion united with the church and were buried with Christ in baptism in the sparkling waters of the old Yadkin river.

Denominational lines were not drawn in this meeting, and all worked to the same end, the salvation of souls. To God be all the glory. Yours for the Master,

JOHN H. NELSON.

Patterson, Aug. 29, 1893.

Happiness is a sunbeam which may pass through a thousand bosoms without losing a particle of its original ray; nay, when it strikes on a kindred heart, like the converged light on a mirror, it reflects it back with double brightness. Happiness is not perfect till it is shared.—Porter.

THE LAST CALL.

As greatly as we dislike to mention the subject, circumstances are such that it is imperatively necessary that we make this last call on our delinquent friends to pay their dues. We dislike to see such calls and appeals in religious journals, and shall refrain from this method hereafter, but if our subscribers allow the present conditions to continue, it will not be long before we shall have to resort to other methods. Let every one who is behind in his or her subscription send us a part or all of the amount due as soon as they read this notice. If we knew how to make a call more urgent, we should surely do so. A paper—news, religious, or political—cannot exist without money, and cannot carry as many delinquents as we have at present. We must have some substantial assurance from our delinquents that they will pay us the full amount due in brighter times—that assurance can be best given by remitting a part of the amount due to-day. Don't pass this call by as you have passed other calls—it will only necessitate other methods. Don't wait a week—we need the money to-day. Don't send stamps—they are not legal tender.

MEN OF HEROIC MOULD.

It is difficult to decide how much the world, under God, is indebted to men of heroic mould. In the church, in the State, everywhere in the great battlefield of life, such men are needed. It is also a beautiful arrangement of the great Giver of all good that when such men are needed they are generally forthcoming. Great men were needed to lead the infant colonies of this country in their struggle for freedom, and they were found in such men as Washington, Jefferson, Adams, and their compatriots. Great men were needed in Church and State to lead Europe centuries ago in her crusade against Feudalism, Romanism, and other isms that had enslaved her people for ages, and these were found in such men as Cromwell, William the Silent, Gustavus Adolphus, Luther, John Knox, &c. Later on, great men were needed in America to liberate the people who had obtained civil liberty, from the tyranny of the Church Establishment, and they were found among our Baptist fathers, and to some extent among men of other creeds.

It was and is still true of men of this stamp that they are often in advance of the ages in which they live. They often hold theories concerning civil government that are considered the essence of folly and blindness; but time often vindicates the correctness of their foresight. Roger Williams enunciated religious opinions that have shaken our continent from centre to circumference. They were first violently opposed, but are now generally received. The world then, we repeat, is greatly indebted to men of heroic mould, and we may modestly claim that our principles as Baptists have occupied an important place in the religious progress of the nations.

It is quite common to hear people lamenting the push and vim of prominent men among us, and they imagine that it is much wiser to drift always with the current, and so live that all men may speak well of us. But Christ says, "Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you." It is the height of ambition, perhaps, in some good men so to live as to have all, saint and sinner, to praise them, and to avoid everything that may lay them open to criticism or censure. This is an ideal toward which some preachers of the gospel evidently aim. In their battle for the truth they seldom or never wound the enemies of religion, and they are always trying to pour the oil of comfort into the wounds that bolder spirits among those that preach make in the bodies or spirits of sinful men, not by carnal warfare, but by the honest words of truth.

Now the truth of it is, that men of this style do not accomplish much in reforming the world, or in making inroads in the kingdom of Satan. Such men may be useful, however, in their place. In the Christian warfare they may be greatly needed in the hospital and home service; but brave, true, heroic men, are always needed at the front, where the contest rages, and where victories are lost or won. In truth, we may safely conclude that the two classes of men are helpful to each other, and hence neither should not to regret the existence of the [illegible]. The quiet, easy brother ought not [illegible] down the work of the bolder soldier [illegible], and the latter should not despise his gentler brother. The Reformation in Europe, led by the bold and impetuous Luther, would not have succeeded so well, perhaps, but for the careful conservatism of the timid Melancthon.

A SUGGESTION OR SO.

There is no stereotyped plan to be followed in opening protracted meetings or in their after conduct. Time, places, circumstances, &c., may demand some variation of plans of work and order of exercises. It is quite common for our preachers to assert that the revival must commence with the people of God, and hence, it is usual for our pastors to commence a meeting by preaching several sermons to the members of the church. This is usually wise, but may not always be necessary, because a preacher may sometimes hold a meeting where there is no organized church, and then again, the church by proper effort may be revived before the meeting commences. If a pastor, however, thinks it best, either at the opening, or during the progress of a meeting, to preach one or more sermons to his members, he should use some care and discretion as to what kind of sermons he preaches. We have known bad impressions to be made by injudicious sermons on such occasions. For instance, the pastor, or visiting pastor who assists him, may, with a view of getting the church ready for a meeting, preach a scathing sermon or so to the membership, in which he discourses at length on the supposed or real inconsistencies or faults of the membership, in the very presence of the unconverted whom he hopes to reach later in the meeting. All the pastor may thus say by way of overhauling his members may be true, and they may deserve some very plain talk; but is he fortunate in the selection of the time and place to make it? What has he been doing all the year? Why not have special meetings and special sermons for the benefit of his members at other times and places? The mother may deem it necessary at times to spank the baby, but she does not go on the street to do it. We respectfully submit, therefore, that it is not the wisest plan for the pastor to severely arraign his church at the opening of a protracted meeting in the presence of the unconverted. He should be faithful to them during the year, and should fearlessly expose the sins and follies he knows exist among them, at suitable times and seasons. To do so at the time just mentioned may repel sinners from the idea of reforming their lives and uniting with God's people, because they naturally conclude that if those who have been trying for years to serve the Lord are such a halting, maimed set, as the pastor represents them to be, they have poor encouragement themselves to commence the Christian life.

Again we would suggest that it is not in the best taste for the visiting pastor or evangelist to arraign too severely the church at which he holds a meeting for their shortcomings and failures. By so doing, he either produces the impression that he has been privately informed by the pastor as to the foibles of his people, and is being pushed forward as a kind of cat's paw to do the work neglected by the pastor; or that he claims to have not even a mote in his own eye while he is busy removing beams from the eyes of his brethren. This habit of receiving large numbers of unconverted people into the churches so freely indulged in by some, and then declaiming freely against their sins in the presence of sinners out of the church, is doing the cause of Christ no little harm. The great remedy is to stop receiving such material into the churches.

"MOVEMENTS."

These last years of the nineteenth century are likely to go down in history remarkable for the great and unprecedented movements which are taking place among all people of all nations, creeds, beliefs, and affiliations to-day.

Not since the days of Luther and the Reformation have the churches experienced such internal commotions; and not in all history have general movements and interest been so widespread. There is not a church in all the land that cannot testify to this to a greater or less extent. Deep down in the bowels of Catholicism rankling disease and distrust is eating its way. Rome's great fall does not appear too far off. Among the Protestants, the Presbyterians have suffered most, but now all is quiet, though still unsettled, with them. Among Baptists and Methodists the commotion, while general, is only superficial, and we hope in most cases only temporary. "Wheels within wheels" have been formed until some of us scarcely know where we are at. The day of alphabetical societies is at the noon-tide of its glory. Its end will come, and we hope the passing will be as surprisingly swift as their rise. What will be the outcome of these "movements" no one can prophesy. So long as the church is larger than the "wheels" that are within it, the Baptists are safe, but we need be wary of "movements." The unrest of the people bodes no good to our future. Unrest that provokes investigation and sincere study should be welcomed, but that unrest which at present pervades the souls of hundreds of thousands of our young people is more than likely to place them under the influence of unsafe leaders and unwise counsel—is liable to lead them to a false god.

Let our people beware of "movements." Let our young people be content with the church, the Sunday-school, and the prayer meeting. There is room in these to exercise all the charity and righteousness of which man is capable. Let us beware of "movements" which, instead of enlightening our young people, destroy their well-defined ideas, and only add to their confusion, doubt and distrust.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

LIBERTY ASSOCIATION.

An interesting session of this body was held with the church in Kernersville last week. A few years ago it was not so much as thought of by any one that the Liberty Association would ever meet in Kernersville. A few brethren and sisters have been faithful and constant in their efforts to do this work. Now they have a splendid house and a most interesting and progressive congregation. Bro. Sheets, the pastor, is much loved by his people, and is doing a fine work here, as he is at his other churches.

Bro. James Smith was again elected moderator, and Bro. Sheets was again elected clerk.

The congregation was not large, though the churches were all represented. All objects of the Convention were discussed with interest, and the pledges of the churches were larger for all objects than heretofore. The mission work in the Association is in good condition, and the outlook most encouraging.

Bro. Bryan greatly delighted the Association with an account of his work in China, and we were sorry that he was called to Asheville by the sickness of his child. He will, however, soon join again in the meetings of the Associations.

Bro. Carrick made a very able and instructive speech on Foreign Missions. Dr. Durham says Bro. Carrick has more reserve force than any preacher in North Carolina. If more of our pastors would provide themselves with the amount of reading matter Bro. Carrick has, and then use it to as fine a purpose as he does, our discussions would be of much more interest, and could be done more largely by our local brethren.

The brethren were delighted to see Dr. Taylor, and hear him talk on the subject of education. We heard of several young men who will be at Wake Forest this year.

Many of us were placed under obligations to Brother and Sister B. A. Brown for their kind and bountiful hospitality. Bro. Sheets says the church at Kernersville owes its existence to the efforts which Sister Brown put forth for its completion.

Wednesday morning we leave at 8 o'clock and make our way to the

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN ASSOCIATION.

We found here by far the largest attendance we have ever seen at this Association. Bro. Spainhour and Bro. McGhennis were again elected moderator and clerk.

The discussions here were of unusual interest. Dr. Durham was at his best on State Missions, and the brethren know what that means.

The churches here are divided on the question of Foreign Missions, some supporting Bro. Blalock, who expects to go to China on what is termed the "Herring plan," while others support the Board as heretofore. Bro. Herring is here, and he and Bro. Blalock discussed the subject of Foreign Missions.

At the close of the discussion, Bro. Patton, in some remarks in reference to the two methods, brought out a discussion in which Bros. Durham and Herring discussed the two methods at some length. At the close of this, some of the churches pledged to the regular work, while others gave their support to the new method.

On Sunday there was an immense crowd present, which listened with great interest to a sermon preached in the grove by Dr. Durham. Bro. Blalock preached in the afternoon his "farewell" sermon before going to China in November.

Monday morning we are on our way to the

"THREE FORKS" ASSOCIATION,

which meets at Antioch, on the bank of the Watauga river, west of the Blue Ridge.

No such storm as we endured while passing over the mountains has ever been witnessed by the oldest men in this section of the State. The wind was furious beyond description. Trees, green and old, were falling in almost every direction, and the rain came down in torrents. And to add to our discomfort, our best looking horse decided to be very much like some church members, by stoutly refusing to pull any part of the cargo over the mountains. But after three of us and the driver had gotten out and walked, "Tom" decided to walk up while the other horse pulled the hack, and at the end of the third hour from the time we came to the foot of the mountain we were at the top, a distance of six miles. Here we are at the hospitable home of Bro. Absher, where we go in for repairs. Bro. E. J. Edwards, the representative of the Orphanage, stoutly insisted that we retrace our steps with all possible speed, abandoning the trip altogether, but finding he was in a hopeless minority, he yielded gracefully to the inevitable, and so Wednesday morning, after a drive of forty miles, we reached the beautiful river in plenty time to see the saints gather from all quarters of this the finest mountain section in North Carolina. They came by the thousand from out the mountain coves, from the valleys of the Wautauga river, and from Tennessee.

The organization had been completed the day previous by electing Bro. W. S. Farthing moderator, and Bro. Yonce clerk.

The Orphanage, periodicals, and a sermon by Rev. D. W. Herring, took the first part of the day. In the evening Foreign and State Missions were discussed. Brethren Herring, C. S. Farthing, J. F. Spainhour and Dr. Durham discussed Foreign Missions. By a majority vote the Association decided to give their contributions to the "Herring plan," but took no pledges up to the time we left the ground.

This is a fine body of brethren, kind and truly hospitable. We always look with pleasure to the meeting of this Association.

At Boone we found on this trip, as heretofore, the homes of brethren Coffey, Bryant and Spainhour ready to receive us. We imagine it would have been some pleasure to the historic Daniel Boone if he could only have known his old homestead would be held by men like these. And to the inexpressible joy of Bro. Edwards we turn our faces eastward. He goes home as fast as steam can carry him, while others of us must turn aside to meet the brethren of the South Yadkin now in session at Mocksville.

....The President says, "Who gives quickly, gives twice," and the editor says, "Who pays his dues promptly, does him and his paper a great service." See first column, this page.

....You may say a man is "a good man and full of the Holy Ghost," as was said of Barnabas, but this don't necessarily mean that he is a man of sound judgment about men or mission work.

....Paul, though an inspired apostle, never gave up his work among the heathen to return to the home churches in order to urge upon them the importance of new methods in missions.—C. Durham.

....Rev. Jun. W. Milliard, pastor at Buffalo Lick, Shelby county, Ky., had the aid of Rev. E. B. Hatcher of Norfolk, Va., in a recent revival, which resulted in twenty additions to the church.

....Rev. B. H. Matthews, who recently resigned the pastorate of the church at Smyrna, writes that he will enter Crozer Theological Seminary, Upland, Pa., the latter part of this month.

....The minutes of the Pilot Mountain Association have been published, and show the work well done by Bro. J. T. Valentine, clerk, and by the printers, the Stewart Printing House, Winston.

....Ten Associations have been held thus far, and the Corresponding Secretary has attended nine of them, and he reports all departments of the work in good condition and the brethren hopeful.

....Rev. W. R. Cullom has returned to the Louisville Seminary. During vacation he filled Bro. Lynch's pulpit at Danville, Ky., very acceptably. Bro. Lynch has returned from an extended vacation greatly improved.

....The apostle says, "Owe no man anything," and we believe it is good advice. We are ready to go on that basis as soon as our delinquent friends are; but we cannot abide by it as long as they disregard it.

....The Winston Republican says: "The nineteenth annual session of the North Carolina Baptist Educational and Missionary Convention will be held in the First Baptist church (colored) of Winston, Sept. 17th."

....The First Baptist church of Memphis, Tenn., has called Rev. E. A. Taylor of Utica, N. Y., to its pastorate, which was made vacant by the resignation of Dr. Willingham, our new Foreign Mission Secretary. It is thought that Bro. Taylor will accept.

....We have received a splendid letter from Bro. Sam J. Porter, our promising young missionary to Brazil, which we will put before our readers next week. We know his many friends over the State will always be glad to read his letters in the RECORDER.

....Rev. A. M. Simms, the new pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle of this city, desires us to assure the parents of young men and young ladies from a distance, who may attend our city educational institutions, that he will take pleasure in looking after and advising them.

....It is reported in the News Observer-Chronicle of this city that Rev. L. G. Broughton has resigned the pastorate of his Winston church. This is altogether unexpected to us, and we hope Bro. Broughton may remain in that field, to which he has been so useful.

....General Booth of the Salvation Army says "you cannot give a human jelly fish a backbone." Nor can you keep the jelly fish from denouncing backbone in the human vertebrates because it is so hard and unyielding.—Western Recorder.

....We were pleased to have a visit from Rev. C. J. F. Anderson of Sanford last week. Bro. Anderson, we regret to state, cannot return to Wake Forest this term on account of an affection of the eyes. He hopes to re enter after Christmas.

....Rev. C. A. Jenkins, the new pastor of the First Baptist church, arrived here from Oxford Saturday morning. There was a large congregation present, both Sunday morning and night, to hear his eloquent discourses.—Goldsboro Headlight, Sept. 7.

....Now is the time to order Sunday-school literature for the fourth quarter. Our Supply Store is owned by the Baptists of the State, and every dollar of its profits go into our State work. It is prepared to fill your orders at publishers prices for all kinds of Sunday supplies.

....Rev. T. S. Wright preached two excellent sermons at Deep Creek last Sunday. His next appointment will be his farewell sermon as pastor of Deep Creek church. We hate to give him up, though we hope that our loss will be his gain.—Wadesboro Messenger and Intelligencer.

....Rev. J. A. Speight and daughter are off on a pleasure trip to the World's Fair. A North Carolina editor who can afford to go to the Fair in such times must be congratulated. Bro. Speight has sold the Asheville Baptist to Waynesville parties, who will publish it in the future.

....In John 13: 26 it is said: "And when he had dipped the sop," or morsel, &c. Albert Barnes, the distinguished Presbyterian commentator, says: "The word dip, in the original, is that from which is derived the word baptize. It means here that Jesus would dip it," (the morsel) "into the sauce as we do a piece of bread." This is good Baptist doctrine.—J. A. S.

....Rev. E. F. Jones of Gastonia, whose untimely death by assassination in a California pulpit was telegraphed over the country several weeks since, is again in North Carolina, safe and sound, and filling his appointments in Gaston and Watauga counties. We trust he is no worse for the numerous good things that the obituary writers had to say of his passing.

....The statement that "Dr. Geo. B. Taylor recently baptized in Sicily five persons who were brought to the gospel by a Baptist commercial traveller," has the ring of romance. We often hear of many people "brought to the gospel" by commercial travellers, drummer-evangelists, &c., but it is very seldom that we hear of their baptism. Moreover a Baptist commercial-traveller-evangelist is something new to us.

....Our denomination will rejoice to learn that the attendance at Wake Forest College this session up to date is considerably better than last year. The boys are entering higher, seem more contented, and all are in better working order than in many years. It is highly probable that the number in attendance will reach one hundred eighty-five by the last of the week, and go beyond two hundred by the next term

....The Asheville Baptist comes to us this week greatly improved. Bro. Speight, who has conducted it so well, retires. He deserves credit for raising the Baptist to its present plane. Bro. Wharton, as editor, comes out on the right side (in our opinion) of the Board question in a way that shows the promise that is in him. We wish the efforts of Bro. Wharton and his associates abundant success.

....A recent Catholic writer contends that the Briggs-Presbyterian controversy arose because, unlike the Catholic church, the Presbyterians had no final and infallible authority like the Pope. Well, we would prefer the Briggs controversy several times repeated than the false authority and foolish infallibility claimed by the Pope, which settles many questions as far as outward appearances go, but which leaves them rankling in the hearts of the people—smothered, but burning.

....Here they go! B. Y. P. U., Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Y. P. S. C. E., C. C. C., W. C. T. U., I. O. G. T., E. L., W. M. U. o. t. S. B. C., W. B. M. U., W. M. A. S., B. B., and ever so many others. We beg that the organizers will not lose heart. The law of permutations and combinations will furnish ever so many additional arrangements of the alphabet, and when they have used up all these, let them introduce our old friend &, and myriads more are possible. —Religious Herald.

....Would it not be well for our Foreign Mission Board to let it be understood just how long the missionaries sent out are to remain in their fields, provided their health is good. It is a very nice arrangement to take a bridal trip across the Pacific ocean, but that is no way to save the heathen. Drs. Judson and Yates did their great work for the heathen with the heathen. These great and true missionaries gave the gospel to the heathen by remaining at their posts, and had faith in their brethren at home to do the wisest and best things.

....The Texas Baptist-Herald says: "We do not remember ever to have had a woman complain of having to pay her subscription, from the poorest washer-woman to the lady in her silks." There is something suggestive in this fact. As a rule, women are more ready to pay their debts than are men, and especially is it true that they complain less of the newspaper; they know that a paper cannot be published without money."—Baltimore Baptist. Our books testify to the truth of the above assertion.

....We have received from Bro. Chapell of China the "Proceedings of Meeting called in Consequence of the Sungpu Massacre," which occurred July 1st, 1893. Revs O. F. Wikholm and A. D. Johansson of the Swedish Mission Society were stoned and beaten to death on the streets of a Chinese city, and so far the Chinese authorities have not taken any action in the matter. The meeting consisted of about one hundred missionaries, who, after carefully considering the evidence, unanimously requested the consular body to take the matter in hand, and to initiate such steps as they consider necessary.

... In the North American Review for September appears a communication from the mayor of Aiken, S. C., in which he sharply criticises the dispensary system of his State. The article closes with the remarkable statement that there has not been an arrest for drunkenness in the town of Aiken since the law went into operation, which, in our opinion, tends largely toward destroying his preceding arguments against the present system. We want to see this system thoroughly and fairly tested before condemned, as only by tentative methods can this much vexed question be settled.

....A new science has arisen in the land—the science of sermon-making—and we fear we have not come to the end of the crimes that are committed in that name yet. The Religious Herald has this to say in concluding an editorial on the subject: "It is related of an old negro preacher (whether of the canebrake of Alabama we cannot say) that, when asked for a good rule to follow in preaching, said: '1. Splanify. 2. Argufy. 3. Put on the 'rousements.' And the question arises, Is not this brief method as scientifically correct, as simple, practical and effective, as the nine processes and ten principles which this treatise ('The Sermon Builder; or, Anderson's System of Sermon Structure') elaborately discusses."

....Rev. Frank Royall preached at the Baptist church last Sunday morning and night. His morning sermon was based on words of the Saviour's prayer, "The hour is come." The able young divine urged with force and tenderness that there is a crisis in the lives of churches, nations and individuals, and impressed the importance of choosing rightly. The crisis of missions has arrived, and God's people must decide whether they will take the world or not. We cannot give the many good points in the sermon. Mr. Royall held the closest attention of his congregation from beginning to end.—Webster's Weekly, Reidsville, Sept. 7. Whatever stand Bro. Royall may take on the mission question, we are assured that he is earnest and sincere.

Our Sunday-school Chautauqua.

When it was decided to hold a Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua at Mt. Vernon Springs, August 22d—27th, we realized that the time would conflict with engagements already made by many of our brethren, but no other dates more favorable could be agreed upon.

The movement was new—a venture, and we knew that many would prefer to wait and see what it meant. Coming on when it did some thought it a departure growing out of discontent with existing organization.

It was held in the midst of revival seasons already appointed. We did not have time to get special accommodations from the railroads and their schedules made it very difficult to get to our place of meeting.

And yet in spite of all these difficulties the first session of the North Carolina Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua was in every respect a great success. There were over fifty persons present from sections of the State away from the one in which we met. There were 120 representatives enrolled altogether.

From the beginning of our meetings on Tuesday, August 22d, the attendance upon every session was very good, most of the time every seat was filled in the large meeting house of Mt. Vernon Springs church, and a few times all who came could not be accommodated.

Never in all my life have I attended a meeting where the presence of the Holy Spirit was more manifest from first to last, and at our last service brethren and sisters shouted aloud in praising God.

Revs. W. H. H. Lawhon, O. T. Edwards and S. Gilmore of the Sandy Creek Association were present to aid and encourage in every way. Rev. Mr. Thom of the Presbyterian church, Mt. Vernon Springs, came to us on Friday morning, and he, with his people, entered heartily into all that could contribute to the work and our comfort.

Bro. O. T. Edwards, writing to me a few days ago, said: "I learn more and more that the people are captured with the Chautauqua. The crowd that will be there next year will be a surprise."

Two sessions were held each day, which were occupied with regular lesson study, discussion upon the ways of teaching, defective methods, &c., and in considering everything connected with Sunday-school work. Each night was given to some address, a sermon or song service. The music was especially helpful in all the meetings—"Sunny-side Songs" being the book used, and Prof. Theodore Wood, directing.

Rev. Baylus Cade and Dr. C. E. Taylor added very much to the interest of the meeting by their presence and counsel.

On Friday, during our meeting the citizens of the community held a mass meeting and expressed their great pleasure at our presence among them and with the work we were engaged in and very earnestly petitioned the Chautauqua to hold its session next year at Mt. Vernon Springs. They also raised sixty-four dollars and twenty-five cents to aid us in defraying the expenses of the meeting of this year.

The Chautauqua agreed to meet at the same place next year and at the same time, being Tuesday after the third Sunday in August. There were propositions made us from several places to hold our session next year, but we felt it best to return to this place so delightful and well adapted to our work.

Mt. Vernon Springs Hotel where visiting members were located cared for us in excellent manner and the proprietor Mr. J. H. Foust gave as much concern for the Chautauqua as any of us, and in many ways contributed to its success.

The people of the community expressed a willingness to entertain delegates as their guests, but we felt it was best to continue on the line started, each paying his or her board. The social feature of having the members together at the hotel is valuable. Indeed, one of the best of our services was held on the lawn at the hotel on Sunday night.

Looking back at the meeting, I feel profoundly thankful to God for its success, and I am sure all of us were greatly encouraged for its permanency. Next year I hope to see representatives from many, very many of our Sunday schools who were not with us this year, and so on year by year to meet in this summer school to study God's word and how to teach it.

Union Meeting—Centennial, &c

On Saturday before the fifth Sunday in July we had the Union Meeting of the South Yadkin Association with us at Fork church in Davie county, which was followed by a centennial celebration on Sunday of the one hundredth anniversary of the church's existence. While the Union Meeting was of much interest, there was nothing unusual in its proceedings. They always serve the purpose (with proper subjects for consideration) of awakening a deeper and greater interest in the Master's work.

But the great day was Sunday. Bro. J. T. Alderman read a most interesting historical sketch of the church, proving from the evidence gathered the identity of the church, and bringing out many interesting and valuable facts. Brother Alderman has shown quite an aptness for historical research and data.

Very interesting addresses were made by Jacob Stewart, Esq., of Mocksville, on "Baptist Progress and Growth." Rev. J. A. Speight spoke on the "Distinctive Principles of the Baptists." Rev. C. S. Cashwell talked on the "Future of Fork Church," which was followed by remarks from the writer. He tried to make the occasion profitable by raising one hundred dollars for the Orphanage, but in this we fell short, raising fifty-three dollars and a fraction.

On the third Sunday in this month we began a meeting of days, which lasted eight days, resulting in thirty two accessions by baptism and one restoration. I held the fort until Tuesday night, when Bro. J. T. Jenkins came to my assistance. Bro. Jenkins did some excellent preaching which I think has been of great good to the church. His forte seems to be that of evangelistic work, and he is now seriously considering the question of giving his whole time to it.

Fork church is well located and is in a position to do a vast amount of good. The whiskey traffic has been a source of much trouble to the church but I think a stronger feeling of opposition to it is manifesting itself than ever before. The church has made a good record this hard year and we hope to do better in the future.

From Rev. Dr. J. J. Hall in Norfolk, Va.

Dear Recorder:—The work is opening well in my new field, and God is with us. The congregations are so large that many persons could not get into the church last Sunday night. Some fifteen additions have already been received to the church. I baptized seven, and others are awaiting to follow their Saviour.

I find the brethren exceedingly kind. They have put the parsonage in splendid condition; and as you know I love a good home, this means something to us. Nor did they forget to give us a good house-warming as soon as we got in. I find them a most excellent people.

The brethren of North Carolina will always find a welcome at my home. I earnestly ask their prayers that the Lord may be with me in great power.

Missionary Day.

Dear Recorder:—Please let me say why I think our Sunday-schools and young people's societies should observe "Missionary Day."

(1) It is a good work. Paul's benediction was that the Lord would establish the Thessalonians in every good work. 2 Thes. 2: 17. So far as we can, we should help every good work in our Convention.

(2) Our Sunday-schools need more of the missionary spirit. The children of to-day will have to lead in mission work in the future. Let them be trained for efficient service. The Sunday-school is a good place to do this.

(3) Many of our schools need lifting out of ruts. The variation of such an exercise will be pleasing and helpful.

(4) The inspiration from the many schools engaged in this work will prove an uplift to the individual school.

(5) The offerings will help fill the Lord's treasury.

Dear superintendent, will you not see that your school observes the day. R. V. D.

Johnson County Items.

Had a good meeting at Princeton, N. C., from the second Sunday in August to the following Saturday. Four told the writer they "received" Christ as their Saviour, and one united with the Baptist church. Our promised ministerial help deceived us again. Public expectation was "wrought up and let down" and confidence in the writer's word somewhat shaken because the ministers and helpers announced by him to come did not put in their appearance. "All would not have deceived him, one out of two or three would have come." Well, if the good people said as much, we cou'd show our proof—but there comes in another difficulty—viz, the suspicious are not interested enough to call for the proof that these brethren promised to help us There is much being said in the county among Christians about "open communion," as if there is such a practice among evangelical denominations. Some of our Baptist brethren seem to be shaky on this subject, and think "all Christians ought to commune together." I wish to commend to the brethren J. T. Christian's books on "Close Communion" and "Immersion the act of Christian Baptism." These books will cost one dollar each, can be had from "The Supply Store," Raleigh, N. C., by sending the price to Rev. C. Durham, D. D. These books ought to be in every preacher's library and in every Baptist family—and other families too—if they would be better informed on the subjects of Baptism and communion. Send one dollar and get "close communion," allow Dr. Christian to show you that every evangelical denomination practices "restricted communion." This talk about open communion seems intended to create false sentiment and sympathy for those who rather need the truth on these subjects—baptism and communion.

From Bro. A. W. Crabtree.

Dear Recorder:—I commenced a meeting at Hopewell on Friday before the third Sunday in July, which lasted eleven days. Nine were baptized and one awaits baptism. Bro. David Snider of Union Association did most of the preaching, which was on doctrine. He left a fine impression on the minds of the people. The church was greatly revived, and several old troubles were settled.

The next six days I spent out in the woods at a mission station. I call it Austin's Level. It is two miles from Newel's Station between Charlotte and Harrisburg. I baptized three, and three others joined, and I think others will join when I go back there to baptize again. We will organize a church at this place in the near future.

The next seven days were spent at my mission field, Oak Grove, five miles north of Harrisburg. I have been on this field for fifteen months and have just baptized my first five. This is a hard field, but quite a number of Presbyterians were made to cry out and ask for the prayers of Baptists. We held this meeting out under a canvass. We have not got any house yet, but I think we will have in the near future. The prospects are good now for a large church. I learned just now that most all the lumber is on the ground for the church-house. I am begging money for flooring and weather-boarding and shingles. I would like for some of the brethren to send me a dollar to help us with the work at once, so that we can cover it in before winter.

I went from here to Cold Water and staid eight days. I baptized eleven, and one of the number was a deaf and dumb girl who went to school in Raleigh. Her name is Maggie Tucker. Bro. J. A. Hoyle from Malden and I began to write to her, and she confessed that she was a sinner, and we continued writing until she made a bright profession of faith in Christ, and joined the church. Bro. Hoyle asked her what was baptism, and she said immersion. He asked her how was Christ baptized, and she said by immersion. It was a good time at the water. I took hold of her to baptize her, but could not do so until I turned round and addressed the people. I think about a hundred shed tears when she went down under the water. None of us can be as careful as we should be. Let us be more careful in the future to look after the lost sheep of the house of Israel, because all this world of sinners are deaf and dumb. I will never forget the day that I baptized that deaf and dumb girl!

I next went to Arlington, where I staid nine days. I baptized fifteen, and three others joined. Brethren Johnson and Abernathy, who live at Matthews, did the preaching. They preached with the demonstration of the Holy Spirit and with power.

From Arlington I went to Chaney's Hill and staid with the brethren there a few days. While I was there seven joined the church, and others will join hereafter. I was taken sick with yellow jaundice, and I left the meeting and came home. I have been very sick for eight days. I am better now. I had been from home forty-six days when I was taken sick.

I have got two more meetings to hold yet. I go to one of them to-day. Pray for me in my work.

I remain yours in the work,
A. W. Crabtree.

P. S. Ten of the above number were Presbyterians. A. W. C.

Mitchell County Association.

Dear Recorder:—This body closed a pleasant, and, we trust, a profitable session at Big Meadow church on the 3d instant. The organization was effected by the election of Rev. S. M. Greene as Moderator, and J. W. Putnam, Clerk.

The session was well attended, and great interest manifested in the discussions upon the various reports of committees.

A number of visiting brethren accepted seats in the body, the most prominent being Bro. J. W. Robertson of the Yancey County Association, and Bro. J. L. Blalock, who is one of our county boys, and has now given himself to the Foreign Mission work. He takes hold of the hearts of our people, and I think that I see visibly the hand of the Master in this call of the brother to the foreign work, inasmuch as it will be the means of the better development of our people along that line of Christian work.

The question of dissolving our connection as a body with the Western Baptist Convention, and becoming a member of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina elicited from a number of the brethren some good speeches, which was unanimously decided in going to the State Convention. This action, we trust, is for the glory of the blessed Master and the good of many perishing souls.

Rev. L. H. Greene was elected Missionary to labor among the destitute in the bounds of this Association.

Thus closed a pleasant and harmonious session of the body. W. H. Ollis.
Spear, Sept. 5, 1893.

Our Finances.

The present financial condition, and outlook of the Home Mission Board is, in one view, decidedly encouraging and hopeful.

This time last year we owed in bank fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000), and had facing us a balance of $22,000 on the Havana House due 1st of December, and for which provision must be made.

To-day we do not owe a cent in bank, have borrowed nothing since May 1st, have no debt in Cuba and have paid our missionaries to the 1st of August. Our receipts for the month of July, despite "hard times" and some special difficulties, have been $7,023.21 as against $3,130.14 for the same period last year, $3,453.03 in 1891, $3,760.84 in 1890, and $1,937.73 in 1889.

And our aggregate receipts since the 1st of May last are $11,629.87, as against $4,447.80 for the same period last year, $6,848.50 in '91, $6,249.08 in '90, and $5,032.89 in 1889.

This exhibit is decidedly encouraging and makes our outlook very hopeful. We thank God, and thank the churches who have helped us to this result.

But we beg our friends not to make the mistake of supposing that the Home Mission Board needs no more money at present.—Home Field, Aug. '93.

The Gospel Mission.

Last week the Brushy Mountain Association pledged $248 to this Mission, and $9 to the Board at Richmond, Va.

Morganton church up to this year had been giving the Board about $10. This year it has raised already $100 for Bro. Blalock, and will raise next year not less than $150 for him.

Most all that will be given by the Catawba River Association will be to the Gospel Mission. While we work on the new plan, we pray God's blessings on the Richmond Board and all its work. Let us have less strife as to methods and more work to spread the gospel. R. L. Patton.

Notice.

The Eastern Baptist Association will meet in its fiftieth annual session on Tuesday after the first Sunday in October, 1893, with Johnson church, Duplin county. This church is situated three miles southeast of Warsaw. Persons coming by railroad will please notify me at Warsaw, and they will be met at the train.

W. H. Middleton.

West Chowan Association.

The West Chowan Association will meet with the Colerain Baptist church on Tuesday after the fourth Sunday in October, 1893. Brethren wishing to come down on the boat would do well to come down Monday night. Colerain is located on the Chowan river. There will be conveyances to take the brethren to town.

Take notice, all who fail to get here Monday night will be too late for the Association. The boat on Tuesday morning from Edenton will also be looked after.

The Dead Letter Room.

An interesting portion of the Dead Letter Office is the room in which an accumulation is made of those articles on which an insufficient amount of postage is paid, or which have been incompletely or wrongly addressed, writes Alice Graham McCollin in an interesting sketch of the presiding genius of the Dead Letter Office, in the September Ladies' Home Journal. It is a most heterogeneous collection, ranging in kind from skulls to confectionary, and in value from one cent to one thousand dollars. Sales of these are held annually, after every effort has been exhausted to find the owners the parcels become matters of public investment. Most of the packages contain articles of too small value to be sold separately, so parlces containing the contents of several packages are made up and sold at an average price of sixty cents each. The attempt is made to have the articles in each package worth that amount. The original wrappers are removed from the parcels, and new ones, on which is written a description of the contents, substituted. This description is also entered in the auctioneer's sales book, and from this description, not from a personal examination, the purchase is made. The sale is held in December, before the holiday season, and continues for about a week. The proceeds, like the money found in unclaimed letters, are delivered to the Third Assistant Postmaster General for deposit in the United States Treasury.

Weak stomach strengthened by Beecham's pills.

A sample set of the material prepared for the observance of "Bible Day" on the second Sunday of November has been received. While the music provided is easy of execution and simple, it is dignified and worthy of the occasion. Almost every piece is directly related to the Bible, and if properly sung, cannot fail to make an impression for good. The recitations are not numerous, but they have been carefully selected, some being written especially for this program. "How did we get the Bible" will be answered by teachers or older pupils in reply to questions by the superintendent Instead of the usual address there will be a colloquy between the superintendent and the pastor, with regard to the Bible work of the denomination, in which the essential facts are brought out. Taken altogether, this program will be found instructive, as well as agreeable, and its effects will be resultant in the after days, while the offerings made will do immediate good. A supply will be furnished free to those who will make a contribution for Bible work, on application to the Rev. Dr. C. C. Bitting, Bible Secretary, 1430 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Read the letters of brethren Bryan and Chappel to be found in this issue. We also have in type a letter from Brother Herring, which was crowded out, but will appear in the next issue.

The printing of several communications is necessarily deferred till next week owing to the want of space. These articles shall be inserted in the next Recorder.

Mr. George Vanderbilt is said to have purchased the Cameron property near Asheville for $75,000.

A. M. SIMMS, PASTOR RALEIGH BAPTIST TABERNACLE

A. M. Simms, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, Raleigh, N. C., is the son of Albert G. Simms of Culpeper, Va. His mother was Miss Salome Baptist Meredith of Mecklenburgh, Va.

At the age of seventeen he entered the late war, and was among the numb r who followed Lee to Appomattox

His education was mostly obtained under the instruction of his father, who was one of the distinguished educators of Virginia, but after the war he was favored with a part of two sessions in Richmond College.

From the College he went to West Virginia, where more than two years of his life were spent working in Charleston, Guyandotte and Huntington. The church in the latter place was organized by him.

When he left West Virginia in 1881 he started to Oregon, but having turned aside from St. Louis to see his sister in Arkansas, he gave up the trip to Oregon and spent two and a half years preaching and teaching in Howard county.

From that point he was called to Cleburne, Texas, where he spent five years and built up one of the best working churches in the State.

Nearly four years ago just as the Tabernacle church then invited him to her pastorate, the First church in Dallas persuaded him to come to their help in an hour of deep need and he did so, remaining there two and a half years and building one of the handsomest houses of worship in the South West. During his pastorate there he had the largest congregation in that growing city and made a host of friends among all classes and professions of people. He comes to us from McKinney, Tex., where he has been but little over a year, but has succeeded in getting his people to build the best arranged house in any town in the State, and where he had built up a splendid congregation.

Patee Park Baptist Church, St. Joseph, Mo.

It was the privilege of this scribe to worship with the saints of this church August 27th, on the occasion of the first occupancy of their new auditorium. The pastor preached the sermon, and reviewed the history of the church.

This church was organized February 9th, 1882, in the residence of W. T. Payne, with twenty members. Rev. E. S. Dulin, D. D., LL. D., was one of the number. It was then known as the South St. Joseph Baptist church. They bought from the Methodists a house of worship which stood on the corner of Twelfth and Renick Sts. Early in 1885 Dr. Dulin retired from the pastorate, and in April of the same year Rev. N. R. Pittman became his successor.

The State Board came to the rescue and supplemented his salary by appropriating $300. At the close of the year the church was self supporting, and no longer sought assistance at the hands of the Board. Bro. Pittman is an alumnus of Wake Forest College, North Carolina. His father, Rev. A. R. Pittman, has been pastor of a church in North Carolina for twenty-five years. His brother, Rev. A. McA. Pittman, is pastor in South Carolina.

When Bro. Pittman accepted the call to this work it was his purpose to build a large, commodious and convenient house for Christian work and the worship of God. This he has done; and it is well done. It fronts Patee Park Square, which is a lovely resort, with its playing fountains, overhanging trees, and beautiful flowers. The front of the building is unique, with more than forty stained glass windows, which, when lighted up, harmonize with the beauties of the Park. The building is 60 by 56 feet, and two stories high. The front looks like a four storied building. On the first floor there are seven rooms, including the lecture room, which will seat six hundred people. On this floor are class rooms, and the pastor's study. The main audience room above is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. The floor is inclined, and the pews are arranged in semi-circular fashion. The gallery is equally as well arranged. There are two open rooms or boxes on the right and left of the pulpit. The choir gallery is in the rear of and above the pulpit. The baptistry is immediately in the rear of the pulpit, and so elevated that the ordinance of baptism can be witnessed by a large audience.

The pastor is a man of rare taste. He has a large oil painting of a scene on the River Jordan gracing the back ground of the baptistry, and just in front of it a white dove is suspended. These lent a charm to the [illegible] which was administered at the close of the evening service. Now he is [illegible] river with rocky banks, [illegible] its waters into the baptistry [illegible] preacher. The scenes are good, as I viewed them by preaching at the evening service. A large amount of money has been paid out for the completion of this church, and there yet remains a debt of $9 000. The hardest part of the battle has been fought.

That queen among Christian women, the pastor's wife, has stood bravely by her husband, and he says, "Without her I could not have succeeded." Their tears and prayers have not been in vain. This church now occupies the vantage ground, and grander results will yet be realized.

[Students, teachers (male or female), clergymen, and others in need of change of employment should not fail to write to B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va. Their great success shows that they have got the true ideas about making money. They can show you how to employ odd hours profitably.

To Sunday-school Superintendents and Treasurers:

Send in your order for Sunday-school supplies for the fourth quarter early in September. Of course you are going to order from the Sunday-school Board of the Southern Baptist Convention—our Board.

Please do not send bank checks if you can possibly help it. They are not bankable at present. Send by post-office order, postal note, registered letter, or by Express. Try to get your orders in before the middle of the month. This will help us and you too.

Prices reduced. See advertisement last week and next. Yours truly, Matters in the Little River Association.

At the meeting of the Baptist State Convention in Raleigh last December, arrangements were made to raise North Carolina's part of the Centennial fund by apportioning the amount among the associations of the State. As soon as we were notified of the amount expected from our Association, we proceeded at once to raise and paid it to our Treasurer, Bro. J. D. Boushall, before the meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention last May. If all had done the same, the whole would have been raised, and there would have been no necessity of prolonging the time.

The only question with us in matters of this kind is whether we will undertake it or not. Our motto is, when we undertake a work for the Master, to perform it, let the sacrifice be what it may.

Our Association is almost entirely a mission field, and we are not ashamed of our work along this line. The State Mission Board has made small appropriations to brethren at two points, viz., Benson and Pine Forest churches. These are both doing well. At Benson where I am pastor, we held a meeting with good results for a week in August, and I go to help Bro. R. J. Bennett at Pine Forest next week, being the first week in September.

I have also held meetings at Lillington, Apex and New Hill, which I think did great good. At Lillington I was aided by Rev. R. J. Bennett. There were no additions to the church by baptism, but the church, which had been for some time in rather a cold state, was greatly revived. I regard it as one of the most successful meetings I have attended this year.

At New Hill I baptized six. At Apex we had eleven converts, and will baptize at our next meeting. Bro. I. T. Newton, pastor of the First church at Apex, began a meeting with said church the next day after we closed, which resulted in two additions by baptism.

May God's blessings attend the labors of his faithful servants.

J. M. HOLLEMAN.

A Woman's Woes.

I have been raised from such a depth of suffering and misery, I feel it my duty to testify to all sufferers the great benefits I have derived from the use of the Electropoise.

I had been seriously afflicted for several years, so much so that I had to "live on" drugs; my physician told me I could not live without them, so I continued medical treatment, but grew worse all the time.

Until last year my nervous system was a perfect wreck. I often had palpitation of the heart and frequent weak spells, constipation and most obstinate indigestion, could eat scarcely anything without causing me the most intense misery; I had headache nearly all the time, and worst of all sleeplessness and nervousness, which medicine would relieve only temporarily. So about a year ago in a fit of desperation I determined to stop all medicine and use the Electropoise. I feel that under a kind Providence, I owe my life to it. That organic heart trouble (as I thought) is no more, scarcely ever have headache, constipation entirely relieved, can eat anything I want and it does not hurt me, my sleep is sound and refreshing, and better still my nerves are so much improved that I do not feel like the same person.

I would honestly and cheerfully recommend the Electropoise to all suffering humanity, especially to weak females, as it builds up, strengthens and invigorates the entire system.

I would not be without one for any price because it has made "life worth living" for me when I was considered a helpless invalid.—(Miss) Kitty Parker, Goldsboro, N. C.

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

The Sunday-school Chautauqua.

Dear Recorder:—Unsolicited, I am going to write you some of the good things gathered by one present at the North Carolina Baptist Sunday-school Chautauqua.

If the use of the pronoun I is conspicuous, pardon it; but I feel quite distinguished in being one of the charter members of this grand and glorious body, whose motive is the spread of His word and better teaching of the same.

In company with a delightful party of friends, we boarded the train at Reidsville August 21st, and after a charming ride through fields of heavy waving corn and shaded dell and vale, we were soon at Mt. Vernon Springs, where we found pleasant rooms, most excellent fare, and some of the brethren already assembled. Later on a delegation arrived from Raleigh, among the number Bro. N. B. Broughton, who is a delegation in himself.

On Tuesday at 11 a. m. we met in the Mt. Vernon Baptist church, near by the springs, and the discussion of topics according to the program was entered upon. It would be impossible for me to enter fully into details, so I only touch here and there. I wish I could describe the feeling of each one present. I can not; words are futile. Unity and harmony walked hand in hand.

Dr. C. A. Rominger's talk on the aim of the Chautauqua set the ball in motion, and soon we were fully into the work. Such talks and timely suggestions I never heard before, and it seemed the very spirit of Christ was in each and every heart. Love was the key-note under whose influence eye answered eye, heart to heart, as we touched elbows in this great work for the Master. The music was an inspiration. Organ, piano, cornet, and Prof. Wood on the violin, combined such sweetness and melody only equalled by the music of heaven itself. I sat and thought if this is earthly, what will the heavenly be?

Teaching, and its various methods, were fully discussed and illustrated. Bro. M. A. Allen of Reidsville, in his own inimitable style, taught the primary class, holding almost spell-bound the children by his earnestness and eloquence. Not everybody can teach a primary class, but here was a brother who could, and did, to the satisfaction of the entire Chautauqua. Teaching in other advanced classes was also demonstrated, and other teachers gathered help and inspiration by those who loved the cause of the Master so well. Not a suggestion but that which was helpful did I hear while present in the sessions of this body. The delightful social feature was another enjoyable item, meeting face to face, and hand to hand other workers from all over the State, thrilled me with love and intensified my interest in those of whom I had heard of but never seen.

After the sessions each day might be seen groups here and there in delightful conversation; humor sometimes held sway, then again the hushed tone and tear-filled eye bespoke the theme of Christ and his love.

The Rev. Baylus Cade of Louisburg gave life and animation to the whole Chautauqua, and we created him then and there Canon Cade, because he was the shooting brother, and well did his shots tell. His wit and good humor flashed and scintillated until he was thoroughly electrical in his influence. His sermons were beautiful in thought and word, and intensely practical in application, and will live long in the hearts of those who were present.

Dr. L. G. Broughton of Winston gave us a magnificent sermon on "Personal Work." His words were fraught with a burning zeal for the salvation of souls, and coupled with his great earnestness of manner made an impression never to be forgotten.

Altogether, it was the greatest and best meeting I ever witnessed, because it was so thoroughly helpful and uplifting in its influence. Could you have seen the faces of the godly men and women with quivering lip and humble spirit declaring that henceforth God should be more faithfully served, and his kingdom advanced by their daily lives, as I did, you, too, would say it was good to be there.

Like Peter, James and John on the mount of transfiguration, I fain would have lingered on this delectable mountain, but away down in the valley there was work to do, devils to be cast out by the teaching to others the love of Jesus, little lambs to be led into his fold, and sheep to be fed on his word, and so I turn and go down the mountain side, praying I may be better fitted to do my Master's work, helped and encouraged by the clasp of the hand and sweet fellowship and brotherly love I received while at the dear gathering of Christ's disciples.

As I gain the valley, turning my eye to the western horizon, the setting sun throws its rays gilding tree, and flower with its golden halo, and in fancy there comes floating through its mellow radiance the cadence of his voice whispering "Go teach," and "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

R. T. Bryan on Systematic Giving.

We Baptists do not give in proportion to our numbers and wealth. Many give liberally, but others do nothing toward sending the gospel to the heathen. Some think that it is due to hard times and lack of money, but our people manage to secure fine horses and buggies, Sunday clothes, well supplied tables, and whatsoever they need or desire in spite of the hard times. The greatest reason why we do not do more is because we are not systematic in our giving.

The churches of the Yadkin Association resolved to try to raise a cent a month for each member for Foreign Missions. I promised to write an article for the RECORDER, showing how this plan could be easily carried out.

CAUTION.

1. Do not reckon up the whole amount for the year, get frightened, and say that it is far more than we have ever done, and we cannot do it. Simply do your best to raise each month an average of one cent a month for each member, and let that amount be whatever it may.

1. Some members of our churches give much more than a cent a month. Now this plan does not mean to make any one give less, nor to have all give the same. We ought to give according to our ability. All are not alike able to give. I fear that when the judgment-day comes, we will still have some Baptists who contribute nothing. Some will give only a half a cent a month. If the plan is to be successfully carried out, many must give more than a cent a month to make up for those who give less and for those who do nothing. I suggest that those who have been giving more than a cent a month, instead of decreasing, simply increase their contributions one cent for each month, and let what they have been giving go to make up deficiencies.

3. If the churches wait until just before the associations meet, and then multiply the number of members by twelve cents, and try to raise that amount, the plan will certainly fail.

Mark, that the resolution is not to raise twelve cents a year for each member of the churches, but one cent a month.

HOW TO MAKE THE PLAN A SUCCESS.

1. Let the pastor and deacons (whose business it is to attend to the finances of the church) select several suitable young men and women to assist the deacons in forming a collecting committee. Then give to each one a list containing his proportionate number of the church members, from whom he is to try (and succeed) to collect the average of one cent each month. Give to each one those members most conveniently situated to him and over whom he will have most influence.

2. Do not let the collecting committee, nor the members of the church, be uneasy about securing too much money. Better give too much than too little. God always gives us more than he promises.

3. Be sure to try to get every church-member to give something each month. Write to those who are away from home. The success of this plan will depend very largely upon getting every one to give something, and to give it monthly. It is easier to give one cent a month than to give five cents a year. Some one may say that our people for months at a time have no money at all, not even one cent, and therefore could not give monthly. This objection can be easily overcome by either one of two ways. When we have money, we ought to lay aside the Lord's portion, and be ready to give it when the time comes. In case any one has no money, let him give a pledge for the amount, and redeem his pledge or pledges when he gets money. Collect each month's proportion of the yearly amount in that month, either in cash or pledges.

4. If our pastors will preach at least one sermon a year on Scriptural giving, and urge our people to study the Bible on this subject, and also give them information as to the needs of the Lord's work, it would greatly assist in carrying out this plan. The collecting committee ought to be as well informed as possible in what the Bible teaches about giving and as to the needs of all mission work.

I am giving this plan for Foreign Missions, and hence urge the importance of taking, in addition to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, the Foreign Mission Journal. The Journal is the best source of information about Foreign Missions.

I suggest this plan for the prayerful consideration of all our churches which have not already adopted a better systematic plan.

Will the pastors of the churches, or some readers of the RECORDER, see that this article is read in all our churches at the next meetings.

REASONS FOR ADOPTING THIS PLAN.

1. It is Scriptural. See 1 Cor. 16: 2; 2 Cor. 9: 1—9.

2. It would thribble the contribution of our State for Foreign Missions, and our churches would raise this increased amount far easier than they now raise the small amount given.

3. The money is needed monthly. Because our churches do not contribute monthly, the Foreign Mission Board have to borrow a great deal of money and pay interest on it. Monthly contributions would save this interest.

In conclusion, let me say a word to my

BRETHREN IN THE MINISTRY.

Dear brethren, the amount our churches contribute depends largely upon you. Will you accept this suggestion from your brother in Christ. Give it prayerful consideration and an earnest trial in case you approve of it.

Difficulties are not always disasters. The mind is often strengthened by contact with obstruction.—Typographical Journal.

Subject for September: Italy.

"So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also." Missionaries, 3; native assistants, 27; stations, 59; churches, 17; membership, 347; baptisms, 72. Contributions, $559.56.

STUDY TOPICS.—Ancient and modern Italy contrasted. A corrupt Christianity, or paganized papacy, one cause of decline and fall. Educational systems. Education dissevered from morality. Need of church edifices and enlargement of work.

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

The People.

Victor Hugo says that no one who thinks can pronounce the name of Italy without inexpressible filial emotions, for she is the mother of genius and of nations; she has endowed the world and blessed mankind. None can deny that Italy has been peculiarly prolific of great men. Her soldiers, statesmen, orators, poets, philosophers, artists, musicians, teachers, and Christians, have challenged the admiration of the world. More than six hundred years ago, her great University of Bologna enrolled in one year ten thousand students from all parts of Europe. Her libraries are rich in the oldest printed books, showing that her people were quick to avail themselves of the advantages of the newly discovered art of printing. During the period of the Renaissance she was the prime mover and chief promoter of art and learning.

Nor is the Italy of to-day entirely unworthy of her past genius and glory. Her difficulties have been peculiarly great and discouraging; yet in spite of them all—internal strife and disunion, foreign invasion and oppression, and, worst of all, Romanism, fitly styled her "incurable cancer,"—modern Italy has come to the front, has taken her stand among the great powers of Europe, and daily gives evidence of the fact that life still bounds in her veins, and that her wisdom and genius departed not with the ancients.—Italy for Christ.

A Plea for Chapel Building.

The poor of Italy are very poor, and the chances are that most of them will find no change for the better till they walk the golden streets of the New Jerusalem. Who could object to giving them a little church house of their own, where they may worship God undisturbed, where their hearts may be cheered and strengthened for the peculiar trials that await them, and where their calling and election may each day become more sure and precious! Special contributions are greatly needed to enable us now and then to avail ourselves of an unusually favorable opportunity to buy. Several such chances have slipped away from us during the last few years because we had no chapel fund on hand.

Our Mission Work in Italy.

Our mission was begun in Italy in 1870 at the suggestion of Dr. Franklin Wilson of Baltimore. The first few years, marked by apparently rapid success, were followed by disaster. We learn as much from our failures as from our successes. The lessons learned from a former disaster makes our work seem slow, but it is sure. Our missionaries are: Rev. J. B. Taylor, D. D., Rev. J. H. Eager, D. D., Mrs. J. H. Eager and fourteen native Italians.—Rev. J. C. Davidson.

CONSUMPTION
SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and post office address.

The Fundamental Principle of Life Assurance is protection for the family. Unfortunately, however, the beneficiaries of life assurance are often deprived of the provision made for them, through the loss of the principal, by following bad advice regarding its investment.

Under the Tontine Installment Policy of

you are provided with an absolute safeguard against such misfortune, besides securing a much larger amount of insurance for the same amount of premiums paid in.

The Eighth Year on a Hard Field.

Dear Recorder:—I have been on this field this is the eighth year. In many respect this is the hardest field in the State. This is in the bounds of the old Kehukee Association. Elder C. B. Hassell, the leading minister of that denomination, lived and died in this town. Elder Sylvester Hassell, his son and one of the finest educated men in this State, lives here and preaches at old "Skewarkey," just one mile from town. Hon. James Edwin Moore, one of the most widely known and influential lawyers at the bar, also resides here. The Episcopal and Methodist churches are some seventy-five years old, and were using their influence long before the denomination I represent was ever known in this place. Though we are quite new here, yet our influence is felt considerably in this county. Even the past eight years have brought us more prominently before the people, and we now command their respect. During this time we have made some progress. Under the immediate pastorate of the writer, two excellent houses of worship have been built. Some 150 have been added by baptism and letter. A parsonage at Hamilton and the church there have been remodelled. The church here has built a baptistery, dressing rooms, and has been repaired and painted outside and inside as well as newly carpeted.

The contributions have largely increased, too. Seven years ago the church here gave the pastor fifty dollars; the last minister, four hundred dollars. Over twelve hundred dollars in cash have been sent the Orphanage, and all along the lines improvement has been going on.

But alas! Death has been here, too, and has taken away some of our most prominent ones. During my third year, R. B. Salsbury was called to his reward. Soon after Sister J. A. Whitley, and last year Sister Dennis Simmons, the founder of our church here, and the lovely wife of S. F. Williams, Sister Mamie Williams, were called away. This year, Bro. D. F. Davenport and Sister Estelle Doughtey have answered to the roll-call from above, while brethren Snow, Robertson, Parker, and many others have moved away. Others, whose names I have not time nor space to recall, have been called to duties elsewhere.

There are rumors that others, who will be missed as much as any of these, will soon enter upon other duties than those which now engage their attention. This will doubtless affect me in my work here, and I shall make arrangements to resign the work to other hands. I therefore state that should any church who can stand the "old-time preaching" and who can appreciate a plain, modest man, and who do not think a man forty five years of age is too old to do pastoral work, be in need of a pastor, it might be to their interest to communicate with the undersigned. GEO. J. DOWELL.

N. B. These brethren and sisters have been very kind to me, and I leave them without a single note of discord.

From Rev. L. N. Chappell in China

Dear Recorder:—I send you in pamphlet form an account of the Sung pu murder of Messrs. Witholm and Johansson. Please use such parts, or all of it, as may seem best to you, in order to get this matter before our brethren and sisters. To my mind this sad event teaches important lessons that all of us should not be slow to learn.

Since this meeting in Hankow the Swedish Consul, Mr. Bock, has gone to see these the magistrate and Tantoi; but accomplished nothing. An appeal made to the Tantoi by some friends of the deceased was laughed at. They no longer veil their unwillingness to protect missionaries in China, outside the limits of the few treaty ports in China. A significant fact appears in the refusal of the officials in Nanking to allow some missionaries to occupy an abandoned temple on a hill outside of the town as a temporary resort during the heat of summer, basing their refusal on their inability (?) to protect them outside the limits of treaty ports. This is the action of officials second in rank in the empire. What is the meaning of this, for these men are not foolish, nor jesting? Are all missionaries in the interior, likely to be recalled by command of the Chinese government? No one can answer this question at present.

What is the cause of this sudden change of front presented by the Chinese government? In reply we would call attention to the fact that the treaty rights existing in China have been obtained by force; and that it would be nothing strange if for good reasons (?) these privileges were withdrawn as soon as China dares do it. If attempted even, great harm may be done the cause of missions all over this empire. Again the time elapsing since the Geary bill was pronounced constitutional by the Supreme Court may suggest a reason, or occasion, if not a cause. Although Li-Hong Chang, Prime Minister of China has professed willingness to treat American citizens with kindness, to still regard treaty rights granted U. S. citizens, he may have intimated indirectly, though privately, that if injuries were done foreign citizens in China, this would likely be to all officials under him a good pretext for not protecting the lives and property of foreigners or grant indemnity for injuries done in riots, &c. This would be virtually permission given these agitators of foreign riots to begin their work again with the hope of protection. I should not be surprised if China should seek such a course of revenge.

And yet I believe God is planning an enlarged usefulness for mission work in China; [illegible] long we may, yet many barriers removed, and the gospel going into every [illegible] and every home of the Chinese people. There may be, however, a day of persecution [illegible] God's people, as the forerunner [illegible] God to make us ready to faithfully do, and suffer his will in every circumstance of life; and that now he shall make even the wrath of man to praise him, and become a help rather than a hindrance to his cause in China.

In the meantime let us press forward with inspiration and hopefulness; for the Lord is leading his host to sure and speedy conquest.

L. N. CHAPPELL.

The Late Rev. R. R. Day.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO HIS DEATH.

At the August meeting of the "Sunbeams," a missionary society composed mostly of the young people connected with the congregation of the Warren Plains Baptist church, the following resolutions relative to the death of Rev. R. R. Day, one of its most valuable members, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, first, That in the death of our much loved brother, we are not now able to understand why he who was so good, so consecrated, and whose future was so promising for usefulness, and whose devotion to the Lord's work in its varied fields was so marked should have been so suddenly taken from us.

Resolved, second, That while we do not understand this mysterious providence, we recognize the fact that God called him, and when he speaks, our hearts, however troubled, must be still and soothed to rest in the comforting assurance "He is too wise to err and too good to be unkind."

Resolved, third, That although comparatively a stranger, having been with us a short time, he had fully identified himself with our people, and we loved and valued him for his many noble traits of character, especially his social qualities broad and liberal charity and utter unselfishness.

Resolved, fourth, That our sympathies go out to the dear father and mother on whom this blow falls hardest, and commend them to him who ever tempers the wind to the shorn lamb and pray his Divine blessing and guidance on their declining years.

Resolved, fifth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our record book, and one sent to his parents, and one to each the BIBLICAL RECORDER and North Carolina Baptist for publication.

This and That.

At the late session of the Flat River Association a very pleasant and interesting discussion was drawn out by the report on Sabbath schools. There was a difference of opinion in regard to "Branch Sabbath-school." Some engaged in branch schools thought their work was disapproved of by others. One fact in regard to the matter failed to be mentioned in the discussion. It was this: No one objects to branch schools where they are needed, provided all the members of the church will work together in the church schools in the morning, and then go in the evening and do branch work. Bro. T. H. Street and wife of Roxboro work in this way, and there can be no objection to it. A branch school can only be objected to when it is run in a way to weaken and injure the church school.

Fault-finding and creating division in our denomination in regard to plans of work is greatly to be deplored. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Bro. R. T. Bryan, returned missionary from China, came to the Flat River Association almost an entire stranger. He went away known and loved by hundreds. He is one of the most interesting speakers on Chinese character and mission work among them to whom I have ever listened.

Temperance was discussed in a lengthy, spirited and interesting manner at the Flat River Association. All the speakers endorsed the report, which condemned as inconsistent and unchristian the conduct of those church members who visit bar-rooms.

Three young persons recently presented themselves to a Pedobaptist church for membership. The preacher asked them if they had been baptized. They answered, "We do not know." The preacher had to ask their parents in regard to the matter. If they had been baptized in infancy they would not have known it unless some one had have told them of it. Is this intelligent obedience to Christ? J. A. S.

Reduction in Prices. Improvement in Quality.
The Sunday-school Board
Of the Southern Baptist Convention, owing to the increased and increasing patronage of the Sunday-schools of the South, has been enabled to REDUCE THE PRICES
of its periodicals, while at the same time arranging to improve the quality of the work done on them. In contents, the Board claims that its periodicals are equal to the best. In mechanical execution, they feel that some improvements can be made. And these will be made. Our schools shall have neat, attractive, helpful periodicals, containing the best work of some of our most scholarly men.
Prices change with fourth quarter; improvements follow in January.
No other Sunday-school helps do or can bring the MISSIONARY INTERESTS
of the Convention into touch with the Sunday-schools of the South. Dr. Ellis said, at the meeting of the Convention in Nashville, that in this Board and its work we had one of the greatest missionary agencies in our reach.

Literary.

Women of Distinction. By L. A. Scruggs, A. M., M. D., Raleigh, N. C., with special contributions from other prominent representatives of the Negro race.

This book is elegantly bound, neatly printed, with a goodly number of illustrations, and is well worthy of its subject. Doctor Scruggs has endeavored to give an idea of what Afro-American womanhood might be by the example of many of its representatives in the past and present. He has added a valuable contribution to the growing and promising literature of the educated colored man of to day, and more than this, has created a monument to the womanhood of his race, which cannot but result in lasting good.

What Suggestions can be Offered for Making Secret Prayer a Great Reality. By the Rev. Henry Wright, M. A., late Hon. Secretary Church Missionary Society, London. New York: Wilbur B. Ketcham, 2 Cooper Union. Price, 15 cents.

The Treasury, says: "This booklet is the first in the Helpful Hour series that this enterprising publisher is issuing, each of which is designed to give counsel and suggestions to every Christian in regard to his spiritual life and work. This one is full of most excellent advice, based upon God's Word and upon the experience of one who has long lived in communion with God. Its suggestions are arranged under three heads —Preparations for Secret Prayer; The Act of Secret Prayer, Our Conduct After Secret Prayer. Every Christian could read these suggestions to advantage.

Centa—The Child Violinist. By Anne Kendrick Benedict. 12mo., 192 pp. Price, 90 cents. Philadelphia: American Baptist Publication Society, 1420 Chestnut St.

Few sights are calculated to more quickly arouse the sympathy of the beholders than that of young children thrown out into life and compelled to fight its battles, deprived of the care of father and mother. There are few sadder woods than "orphan." It is this fact in part which arouses the attention of the reader to Mrs. Benedict's story of "Centa," an attention, however, which is held and increased by the bright, interesting way in which the little story is told. From the time Centa arrives at the railroad station in C—— accompanied by her twin brother Fritz to the time when we lose sight of them in the happy home of their grandmother—she an educated young lady and he an entered student at Brown—the interest of the reader does not flag for a moment. Mrs. Benedict, the author, is the daughter of Dr. Kendrick, for so many years the professor of Greek in the University of Rochester. We hope that this will not be her last appearance as one of the writers of the Publication Society.

Christ's Acted Parables. A study of the Miracles. By N. S. Burton, D. D. 12mo. 256 pp. Price, $ 100. Philadelphia: American Baptist Publication Society, 1420 Chestnut Street.

The relation of the miracles of our Lord to his ministry has been subject to very great misapprehension. This has pertained to both the nature and function of miracles with consequent detriment to their legitimate influence. Some have regarded them as stumbling blocks, to be as far as possible removed, while others who would believe in them, have been sadly perplexed to know just what to do with them, at least, so far as their permanent value is concerned. Many who recognize their value in authenticating Jesus as divinely sent, have not so well known how to connect them with the service of his truth for all time. It is especially in the interest of this feature of miracles that Dr. Burton has written this work. He has conceived of the miracles of Christ as acted parables. The miracle, according to his thought, contains moral, spiritual truth no less then the parable. It is conveyed in a different way. It appeals to the eye. It so emphasized what had been otherwise conveyed to the ear. Thus Dr. Burton finds in the miracles just what we should expect to find with this conception of them, a progressive unfoldment of spiritual truth.

If you look at a dozen common lamp-chimneys, and then at Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass," you will see the differences—all but one—they break from heat; these don't; you can't see that.

Common glass is misty, milky, dusty; you can't see through it; Macbeth's is clear.

Tough, clear glass is worth fine work; and a perfect chimney of fine tough glass is worth a hundred such as you hear, pop, clash on the least provocation.

The Enterprise says that the dried fruit trade is a big thing in Newton now-a-days.

All the railroads of the State have voluntarily surrendered their exemption from taxation.

The recent heavy freshet in the Roanoke river did great damage to crops. Hundreds of acres of fine corn were destroyed.

Logan D. Terrell of Wake has been appointed Secretary to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, succeeding W. W. Hall, deceased.

Commissioner of Agriculture Robinson estimates the damage to crops in the State from the recent storm at twenty-five per cent.

The Kernersville News says that the total loss to property in that place produced by the recent cyclone will doubtless reach $15,000.

A number of persons are interested in a plan for the purchase and preservation of Raleigh's fort on Roanoke Island in North Carolina.

The bulletin of the State Board of Health says it is estimated that one thousand deaths per year occur in North Carolina from typhoid fever.

Hon. F. M. Simmons has been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue for the fourth district of North Carolina. His headquarters will be at Raleigh.

Near Trap Hill, Wilkes county, August 29th, Mrs. Hettie Holbrook was thrown from a wagon and run over, receiving injuries from which she died.

Mr. C. Alphonso Smith of Greensboro an A. M., of Davidson and Ph. D., of Johns Hopkins, has been unanimously elected to the Chair of English in the University of Louisiana.

Dr. Wm. J. Battle of Chapel Hill has resigned the position of assistant in the Latin department of the University of Chicago, and has been elected to the Chair of Greek in the University of Texas.

Charles Price, Esq., of Salisbury has been appointed division counsel for the receivers of the Richmond & Danville road in this State. Hon. David Schenck will be consulting counsel after October 1st.

Upon the back of a one dollar bill to hand the past week was written these words: "My all out of $100,000. Cards the cause." Across each end the words, "Beware of cards," appeared.—Winston Republican.

The Cherokee Indians in the Western part of this State number about 1,200. They own 73,000 acres of very fine land. Their new chief is Stillwell Sounooke, and it is said he cannot speak English at all.

On the 1st of this month work was temporarily suspended at the Egypt coal mine. This was done because of the financial panic, it being impossible to collect the amounts due for coal heretofore mined and sold, and not because there is any indication of the coal giving out.—Chatham Record.

We are gratified to report that General R. F. Hoke who owns a large tract of land on Brown Mountain, adjoining the lands of the Caldwell Lumber Company, and who has spent a portion of the summer prospecting on his property, has discovered a large bed of Kaolin.—Morganton Herald.

While holding teachers' institutes in Western North Carolina Prof. McIver learned that in two districts in the county of Cherokee people were taxing themselves to supplement the public school fund and thus have longer school terms. In no other county in the State is this done.

James Beattie, aged fourteen years, of Paw Creek, Mecklenburg county, died several days ago of blood poisoning, caused from a singular accident. About two months ago the boy fell upon a brass pin which went into his side to the head. The pin was pulled out, and shortly after inflammation set in and gradually blood-poisoning came on.

Mr. John G. Mason, aged about seventy years, of Pitt county, met death suddenly on the 21 inst. Mr. Mason was on his way home from Greenville, when his horse shied and threw him out of the buggy. He had been troubled with a sore on one of his legs for some time, and in the fall ruptured an artery near this sore from which he bled to death.

The Newbern Journal says during the storm at Nag's Head the scalp of a woman washed ashore and was found by one of the cottagers on the beach. The hair was about fifteen inches long, and clots of flesh were attached to the inside of the scalp, which appeared to be a fresh one. After this a diligent watch was kept for the body, but none came ashore.

A colored woman in Littleton, according to the Courier, recently attempted to poison a man she loved, because he intended to marry another woman. She arranged to poison the well where he got water, but she was fortunately detected and is now in the Warrenton jail. If she had carried out successfully her plan of putting poison in the well, it is probable that several persons would have suffered.

Durham is to have a factory for the manufacture of one, two and three pound sacks for fine salt. Hundreds of thousands of these sacks are used in western New York, Michigan and Kansas. It is said that heretofore the sacks have been made exclusively in New York and Pennsylvania. The Durham factory will probably begin operations in October, and it is thought will give employment to one hundred persons.

The Wilmington Messenger gives it as a positive and unmistakable fact that the salt spray driven from the ocean by the hurricane has killed leaves on the trees all the way to the city. The fact that from Wrightsville to Wilmington the leaves were withered only on the side of the tree from which the spray came shows that it was salt spray that did it. A half mile from Wrightsville the leaves were covered with salt crystals and salt crystals formed on window panes in Wilmington and also on eye-glasses.—Newbern Journal.

The United States Senate has been occupied for the past few days with speeches for and against the Wilson bill, which passed the House. It is said that the majority of the senators is for the bill, but the minority have resorted to obstruction methods. A vote will probably be taken the latter part of the week, when, it is thought, the bill will pass with an amendment favorable to silver legislation. The House of Representatives has, after considerable debate adopted the rules that are to govern that body during the present and next session. A motion to allow eulogies on dead congressmen to be delivered only on Sunday has been defeated; likewise a bill to deduct from the salary of representatives during absence from regular sessions, unless imperative, was killed. The committee on ways and means is dealing with the tariff question, which will come up for consideration as soon as possible. The general condition of the country is more favorable.

MARRIED.

VANN—GRAVES—On Sept. 6th, 1893, in Selma Baptist church, by Rev. O. C. Horton, Mr. John E. Vann of Winton, N. C., and Miss Leonie T. Graves of Selma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Graves.

DIED.

HINES—Mr. George W. Hines, of Cypress Creek township, Franklin county, N. C., was found dead in bed at his home on Tuesday morning, Sept. 5th, 1893. It is supposed he died of heart disease. He had been indisposed for a few days, but no cause existed for his family to suspect fatal results. He was about eighty years of age. Seven children and many grand-children, together with a large circle of friends survive to mourn their loss. He was a good citizen, an excellent neighbor, and genial and kind to all. He was possessed of a powerful physical manhood, but for some years, owing to the infirmities incident to old age, had devoted himself to the lighter duties of his farm. His death is much regretted.

J. H. A.

MATTHEWS—Bro. Thomas Matthews, for many years a prominent member of Mill's Creek Baptist church, Harnett county, of which he was also church clerk until his ill health compelled him to relinquish his duties, died Sept. 1st of paralysis. He was a true and faithful Christian, ever ready to respond to the needs of his church. He believed in cheerful giving, and especially in helping the poor. He sowed many good seed in heathen lands through Bro. Yates in years gone by.

Bro. Matthews was well-known in his community as a business man, and his presence will be greatly missed, especially in his native county, where he was deputy sheriff under Sheriff Johnson, and where he had been justice of the peace with the exception of three years, since the county was established. He was at one time a Harnett county commissioner, in which capacity he always endeavored to sustain his people's wishes. Through all, he never forgot his religious duties. He had been a subscriber to the RECORDER for many years. At the time of his death he was seventy-five years old. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn their loss.

News-Observer and Evening Visitor please copy. W. P. MATTHEWS.

CURLEE—Sunday evening, just as the last stroke of the church bell was heard, the pulse of our dear sister, Mary E. Curlee, beat for the last time, and as the sound of the bell died away in the distance, her soul winged its way to her final home. Sister Curlee's death was rather sudden. She was sick less than twenty-four hours ere God called her unto himself. She will be sadly missed by all her friends who have known her. We will miss her once familiar face in our congregation, where she so frequently came, and the writer remembers well how she has often helped him by her presence at the sanctuary. She will be missed most by those who knew and loved her best—her husband and children. Their hearts sorrow deepest and their household is the saddest of all. Indeed, a deep gloom has befallen them which only the light of God's eternal Son can dispel. We cannot say unto them, do not sorrow; but like the Apostle, we would say, sorrow not as those who hove no hope, for they buried her in the hope of the resurrection unto life. Sister Curlee was born Dec. 10th, 1854; married O. C. Curlee, Nov. 23d, 1871; died Aug. 20th, 1893. She was a consistent and faithful member of the Baptist church for nearly fifteen years, and always found her sweetest joy in doing her Master's will. As a mother she was tender, kind and true, and was a wife faithful in all things. Her funeral service took place from the Baptist church, Monday, Aug. 21st. A large host of friends, relatives and citizens attended, and we laid her body away to await the coming of him who is the resurrection and the life. We most earnestly commit her husband and children to the tender love of our Heavenly Father in their great bereavement. She sleeps, and we have every reason to believe she sleeps in Jesus, blessed sleep, from which none ever wake to weep.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, In the providence of God Bro. R. R. Day has been removed from the pastorate of New Bethel church, therefore Resolved 1. That in sorrow we mourn, asking the Comforter to help us to say "Thy will be done."

2. That his short pastorate with us we cherish in love, hoping to meet him beyond the river.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our church book, also one copy be sent the family of the deceased, and one sent the RECORDER for publication.

JUDSON WEATHERS,
T. L. BANKS,
D. B. BUFFALOE,
Committee.

The Pleasant Hill Baptist church has adopted this tribute to the memory of the late Rev. G. P. Moore:—

WHEREAS, Our wise and loving Father saw fit to call very suddenly from earth to heaven on July 23d, 1893, our much-beloved brother, Rev. G. P. Moore, therefore Resolved 1. That while we so sadly miss him, and it seems so hard to have to give him up so unexpectedly, yet we humbly submit to his will who doeth all things well.

2. That this church has lost a worthy, zealous member, the churches to whom he preached a faithful, untiring pastor, his family a kind, indulgent husband and father.

3. That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathies, praying that the Holy Spirit may comfort their sad hearts, and guide them all safely home at last, where sickness, sorrow and partings will come no more.

4. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the church, a copy sent to the family of the deceased, and also to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

A. S. GARNER,
ALFRED JOHNSON,
Committee.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Pittsboro Baptist church Sept. 3d, 1893, on the death of W. F. Foushee:—

Wm. F. Foushee was born in Chatham county, N. C., Feb. 14th, 1826, and died in Pittsboro, N. C., Aug. 25th, 1893, aged sixty-seven years, six months and eleven days, leaving a family consisting of seven daughters and one son, and a host of other relatives and friends. He was a member of Rock Spring Baptist church from 1874 to 1882, and of Pittsboro Baptist church from 1882 (the date of the re-organization of the church) till his death. He served as deacon and treasurer of both churches, and was treasurer of Sandy Creek Association for many years. He was elected Clerk of the Superior Court of Chatham county for twelve years continuously, and discharged the duties of the office for more than eight years besides. His most intimate friend and kinsman, who has been his companion from infancy, says of him: "He was as near perfect in my estimation as it is possible for human beings to be."

Resolved 1. That in the death of Bro. Foushee the church has lost one of its most devoted members, his family a kind and affectionate father, his neighbors a wise, unselfish and reliable counsellor, the poor a liberal benefactor, and the county a pure and patriotic citizen.

Resolved 2. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Pittsboro Baptist church, and that a copy of the same be sent to the family of the deceased, and forwarded to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and Chatham Record with request that they publish the same.

The Home Circle.

Now.

Look not to the Past for pleasure,
Nor yet to the Future turn;
For the Past has filled its measure—
Let it lie in Memory's urn.

Not the Past, nor yet the Future,
Can we mortals call our own:
Only ours the living Present—
Here alone we have our home.

Memory throws deceitful glamor
Backward o'er the path of Life—
Smoothing over the roughest places,
Cov'ring up the scenes of strife.

Little joys and little sorrows,
Woof and warp together wrought,
Make the texture of the fabric
That the past to us has brought.

Hope stands by with lifted finger,
Pointing to a future store—
Sweetly whispering, "That obtaining,
You'll be happy evermore."

Darling Hope but cheats our fancies—
Does us wrong in doing this;
Takes us from the living Present
To the Future for our bliss.

Thus we see not, sweetly nesting
'Round the path through which we tread,
Sweetest flowers of joy and gladness
Waiting but to crown our head.

Look not forward to the Future,
Look not backward to the Past;
Turn you to the living Present—
Find in this your joy at last.

—Longfellow.

In School Again.

Certain boys and girls are at this moment, perhaps, thinking of going back to school with somewhat of the same feeling with which a convict who has escaped and been recaptured thinks of being taken back through the prison door.

If these boys and girls were to be told that they had really been going to school all through their vacation, and were now about to enter upon a long period of agreeable entertainment, they would probably think that some sort of riddle were being propounded to them, or that a poor joke were being attempted at their expense.

And yet the first clause of the statement is certainly true in a broad sense of all boys and girls, and the second clause of it may easily be made true by any young person of average abilities.

In the formative part of life—and it should be so throughout life—no one ever ceases from learning. One cannot help learning. Perhaps what is learned may not be worth learning, and had better be left unlearned. But learn something one must; and a really good vacation is the one which has been employed in picking up some useful knowledge or accomplishment while recreating mind and body.

We go to school outside of the school-house, to our fellows and our elders. Many thousands of boys and girls have probably learned of others, during this vacation, to swim. Many others have learned to ride horseback, to drive, or they have improved their game of base ball or lawn-tennis.

These are all valuable bits of "schooling," and will be looked back upon, in maturity, as a really important phase of the person's education.

A wise man said he had learned most when he did not know that he was learning anything. But if he had known it, he might have learned just the same. The interest in a subject, stimulated by pleasure, was the real secret of his retaining what he learned; and a conscious interest is even more valuable than an unconscious one.

Since this educational play-spell called vacation is now passed, or very nearly so, for this year, the boy or girl with a "level head" will seek to impart something of the recreative spirit into the long work-spell before him. There are two reasons why he should do so.

The first reason is that he will have a much better time. The pupil who takes an optimistic view of his books gets along better with them, enjoys himself more, meets smiles and encouraging words from his teacher, instead of frowns and cutting remarks, and has more time and a better zest for his play, than the pupil who takes a pessimistic, disconsolate view of his books.

The second reason is that one learns more in this spirit, and remembers more of what he learns. Under the influence of an eager interest, the thing taught by the book or teacher makes a more sharp and lasting impression on the mind.

To many boys and girls this reason may seem to be of secondary importance; and yet it is certainly worth considering.

It is not always the fault of school-boys and girls that they hate their books, instead of liking them. Sometimes there is nothing amiable about a book. Sometimes a teacher totally fails to inspire or stimulate interest in a subject. But stupid books are not so many as they once were, and teachers are learning how to teach well.

To nine pupils out of ten it is possible to take the cheerful view of books which will make them cheerful instead of discouraging things, and render a school an agreeable period—though not, of course, one of more play than work.

Work has always been a proper part of "schooling," and probably always will be. The most light-hearted pupil can hardly hope ever to get out of that. But work is a necessary part of the life of the good American citizen, too, and so far from being a thing to be avoided, it is a good and enjoyable thing if not overdone.—Youth's Companion.

"Where's Mother?"

When the tired father returns at night from the office or shop, when the children come home from school, the first question is always—unless she stands in the very hall before their eyes—"Where's mother?" It is often said that the mother is the home. This question is one of the many proofs of the truth of this proverb. Unless the mother is in the house, the vital principle of the home seems to be lacking. She comes, and comfort, love and joy seems to enter with her. She goes, and there is a sort of breathless and uneasy waiting time until she comes back again.

To the true mother, the knowledge that she is thus indispensable to the loved ones should be one of the choicest possessions. It is only by cherishing the spirit which prompts the question, "Where's mother?" that she can properly instil into the hearts of her children that "passion for home" which one of our great writers has called the "first characteristic of manly natures." And yet not infrequently a tired mother will exclaim impatiently: "I wish that I could stir without having an outcry, 'Where's mother?'" To one who sets true value upon life and its duties and pleasures, such words come with an awful shock. Pearls seem to have been cast wastefully before the feet of such a woman.

But even if a mother hold most dear this precious tribute of love, how many are there who take pains to be at home when the children come? Or, if she must be absent, to leave word for them; or to tell them before they go in the morning or at noon that she expects to be gone when they return, with the reasons and regrets? It is only by mutual thoughtfulness in these so called trifles that the harmony of the home life can be preserved, and woe to her who does not appreciate them at their true value. It is impossible that the busy mother of a family, with shopping to do, calls to make, and meetings of various kinds to attend, should always be in when the children come home from school. It would show an undue regard for sentiment if she were to shut herself away from the outside life which every woman needs so much, and which she needs especially for the benefit of her family. But by following this rule, to tell the children in the morning, whenever she can, just where she is to be, and how soon she will be at home, she may keep alive and still foster, though she is absent, the sacred flame which she so highly prizes.

A lady was calling recently upon a friend, when a small boy came bounding in at the basement door about four o'clock in the afternoon, with the usual inquiry: "Where's mother?" "O, I remember, he added, immediately, "she said she was going to the mothers' meeting this afternoon. I wish she would hurry up and come back!"

"She didn't go," said the good natured Irish girl to whom he had been speaking; "she had word there wouldn't be any meeting."

"O, goody!" cried the urchin, leaping up the stairs two at a time, and bursting into the room where the ladies were sitting. His face was wreathed in smiles—but his shoes were muddy.

"O, Tommy!" exclaimed his mother, in a reproachful voice, as she pointed to the tracks which he had left behind him.

"Well, I was so glad you were home," he explained, as he saluted her visitor in boyish fashion, and imprinted a resounding kiss upon his mother's cheek. "I'm sorry about the mud, but here's my ball for you to sew up, and here's the geography you were going to cover; and may I go over to Will Smith's corner with my roller-skates?—there's such a daisy sidewalk over there!"

Verily, well may the mother forgive much in such a case. And blessed is she who can answer the children's question with a glad "Here I am!" and hear their sweet words of joy in her presence.—Congregationalist.

High Living,

if you keep at it, is apt to tell upon the liver. The things to prevent this are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Take one of these little Pellets for a corrective or general laxative—three for a cathartic. They're the smallest, easiest to take, pleasantest and most natural in the way they act. They do permanent good. Constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, sick or bilious headache, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or your money is returned.

The worse cases of Chronic Catarrh in the head yield to Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. So certain is it that its makers offer $500 reward for an incurable case.

Good Temper in Traveling.

We hear of a good many requisites for traveling in comfort, but none of them surpass good temper, especially in hot dusty weather. To be indifferent to the crying of cross and tired babies, to draw a shawl or a wrap over the shoulders when some fresh air fiend persists in sending a current of cold wind from an open window or equally to be patient when you want the window open and somebody else wants it shut, to be ready to accept delays without grumbling, and to be as sweet at a journey's end as at its beginning, this is to be indeed good-tempered.

If one travels easily, and is not made faint and ill by the rapid motion of the train, or seasick by the roll of the steamer, there is little credit in keeping amiable. But many women suffer fearfully from jolting and jarring. Their heads ache, their stomachs rebel, their nerves are on edge. It is nothing short of saintly to be pleasant in these circumstances; but some people achieve it, and they are held in pleasant memory by their fellow travelers.

A certain amount of philosophy is an armor of proof when one is on a journey. The thought that not you but the conductor and the captain and the engineer are responsible for the safety of the cars or boat should suffice to keep you from needless and useless fidgeting when there is a halt. Some people waste an immense amount of energy in trying to undertake what is not in their province. No amount of idle fuming will cool a heated journal or repair a break in the machinery, so it is well to keep one's self from friction, maintain one's composure, and trust in the kind care of Providence.

In every emergency, in every experience, the good tempered person has the advantage of the one who is cross and irritable. This is always true.—Harper's Bazar.

Delighted With It.

The Sunlight is the best paper of its kind for boys and girls we have ever known. It is so fascinating that we have never known children to be other than delighted with it. It brings sunlight to their little hearts and to many thousands of homes.

Your Minister's Wife.

Do not remind her every time you see her of her failure to attend this meeting, or that, writes A. J. Parry in the Ladies' Home Journal.

Do not allude more than is needful in her presence to the devotion and activity of your former pastor's wife, or of the wife of some other pastor in town.

Do not make her president of all your societies, or chairman of all your committees.

Do not forget that she is a woman, and a wife, and a mother, before she is an assistant pastor.

Do not forget that her time is not paid for.

PUT UP

—in glass vials, hermetically sealed, and always fresh—is the way Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come. When you take a pill it's an important point to have them small—provided they have equal strength and efficacy. You'll find what you want in these little liver pills of Dr. Pierce's. They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the huge old-fashioned pills. What you want when you're "all out of sorts"—grumpy, thick-headed and take a gloomy view of life, is these Pellets to clear up your system and start your liver into healthful action. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved, and cured. They're the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

NOW THAT the House of Representatives is making comparativly rather fair progress, it may not be inopportune to anticipate to a small extent the probable tariff legislation. In the first place, it might as well be impressed on the minds of the people that the party in power does not propose to effect free trade; and strange to say, although our generally accepted political economists affirm that anything that fetters commercial transactions is a menace to our welfare, the great majority of our people are so opposed to a direct tax system, that very few even dare champion the cause of absolute free trade. The Republican party fosters the policy of protection; the Democratic party believes in a tariff for revenue only. Between the two policies there is small difference, as a tariff that provides a respectable revenue will afford protection. And the difference finally depends on what class of articles is taxed. This is the question which is occupying the ways and means committee now. As for us, we don't care to what extent foreign luxuries are taxed, but we do want to see all necessary articles and raw material admitted free, and the tariff on all useful articles reduced to a minimum. If tariff laws founded on these lines should cause failures or reduce wages, the harm done would only be local, while its benefits would be general, and as long as the greatest good to the greatest number is the aim of all legislation, such possibilities have no bearing on the question.

AN HONEST Congressman recently made an effort to enforce such provisions as would compel those of his fellow representatives, who were in Congress apparently only to collect their salary, to regularly attend its sessions, or forfeit part of their pay. The motion was to deduct a certain amount from the salary of each Congressman who failed to render adequate excuse for his absence. It is a burning shame on our so-called lawmakers that the motion was defeated without deliberation or discussion by an overwhelming majority. The representatives seem to have reached that point of audacity that they ignore the fact that they are servants, and not masters, of the public. They do not seem to think that they have any well defined duties, or that their salary is a measure of their work. Only ten of the four hundred and forty-four representatives had the honest manhood to vote for the motion, and they were laughed to scorn by their lazy colleagues. No one would wish to deduct from the salary of a sick Congressman, but if any of them are absent to attend to private business, or for the purpose of loafing, they are not worthy of their trust or their salary. It is the duty of every Congressman to watch the interests of the people unceasingly, and when one fails to execute that duty, if he is honest, he will be willing to forfeit his pay. Congressmen haven't as much right to take holiday as factory hands. They should be taugh tthat they are the servants of the people, and that public opinion is their task-master, which holds the lash of the ballot ready to strike the first laggard, ready to relegate to private life and public disgrace the first mercenary who proves unworthy of and unfaithful to his trust. They are servants and not masters; else, our government is on a false foundation.

THERE are many young men to-day, forced to interrupt their college education for want of money, seeking to earn a living until brighter times may enable them to resume their studies. Their lot seems hard. They feel that they could command a far better position were their education more complete, and many of them, no doubt, are in despair. It is always to be regretted when a young man is forced to turn from his chosen course at college to some uncongenial calling on account of money troubles, and yet in a majority of cases it may prove greatly beneficial. A good hard struggle with stern realities for the young college student just before graduation is the next best thing to continuing his education, and in such times as these he should not be discouraged. They are lessons not to be found in a college curriculum that one must learn, and the sooner the better. He learns this year just what the graduate will have to learn in future years; and though his mind may become rusty in college studies, it will be all the brighter and stronger when at last he can feel that he has won his diploma by his own efforts. It may appear anomalous, but the names of thousands of our greatest men are indisputable evidence that it is the young man who early learned to struggle against great odds, and to fight an uphill fight, is the successful man after all. Let our struggling young men not be discouraged. Every difficulty that they overcome, every struggle that confronts them to-day, renders them all the stronger for future efforts, and makes their ultimate success more certain.

WE DO not feel that we are unduly optimistic in asserting that the active, healthy interest among all citizens of the United States which the present state of affairs has called forth, will be of vastly more worth to our future welfare than can be measured by our money losses. Never since our country became the great nation that it is, have the farmers and the wage-earners concerned themselves with public interests as they do to-day. Never have the people sought the "true inwardness" of our legislative departments of government as at present. The farmer has learned that his prosperity does not depend on his individual efforts, and he must know the cause in order that it may be removed. Naturally he may follow false lights at first, but in the end his interest and his investigations will make him a better citizen. A nation of educated and unbiased people, who know their needs and have the manhood to demand them, is as near a democracy as a government as great as ours can attain. This present campaign of education, induced by a general discontent, will do more towards effecting the permanent welfare than an hundred years of unbounded prosperity, which always fosters apathy; and political apathy in this day is as near slavery as the American citizen can approach. Let us learn; let us know what our true interests are; let us be above the senseless harangues of the demagogue; let us be above partisan ideas and sectional interests, and we may rest assured that we compose the true democracy, which is our ultimate end.

From Bro. Porter of Brazil.

Dear Recorder:—We left New York, July 1st, on the steamer "Maskelyne." Our voyage was made pleasant by the company of several fellow-passengers, whose kindness we still remember and for whom we cherish a strong friendship. Among the passengers were two young Brazilian gentlemen who have been attending school in the States, and who are now spending vacation at home. They gave us a great deal of information about the country, people, and customs of Brazil.

After losing sight of New York harbor, we saw no trace of land till Sunday morning, July 16th, when we caught sight of the Brazilian coast. I cannot express my feelings at seeing for the first time this great country before which there lies such a glorious future, were it not that her people are so firmly fettered by the chains of error and crime. Early on Monday morning we came in sight of Pernambuco, a city with a population of 120,000. At this place we have two missionaries, Bro. Enztminger and wife. We did not go ashore, nor even within the harbor, but remained outside while a small part of the cargo of our steamer was discharged into boats.

On the 20th we arrived at Bahia, which presents a fine appearance from the bay, but on going ashore we found the streets narrow, crowded and dirty, especially in the lower business part of the city. The upper city, which is reached by an elevator, is a little more airy, roomy and pleasant. Strange, new scenes greet us on every hand. Bahia has a population of 200,000, and is said to have 350 Catholic churches. Rev. R. E. Neighbour, the young brother who came out with us under appointment from our Mission Board, stops in this city to assist Bro. Z. C. Taylor, who has been laboring here for several years past.

At noon the next day we left Bahia and entered Rio harbor at noon the following Sunday, July 23d. Rio harbor is said to be the finest and most beautiful harbor in the world. The entrance is narrow, while the bay reaches far up into the land and is as smooth and calm as a mountain lake. In all my life I have never beheld a more beautiful and picturesque scene. More than a hundred ships are lying at anchor in the bay. The great metropolis of the Southern world with its population of 650,000 extends around the bay at a distance of twelve miles, numerous hills rise up abruptly in the very heart of the city, while in the near background, even in the suburbs, the great mountains clothed with tropical verdure to their very summits reach up nearly two thousand feet.

Brazil is to South America what our own country is to North America, and Rio de Janeiro bears the same relation to Brazil that New York, our largest city, and Washington, our capital, bear to the United States. Rio is the great door to the South American continent, and if South America is ever won for Christ, the work must be begun in Rio, because from this center flow numerous streams of influence which are destined to shape the progress and mould the character of the whole country. To an American entering the city for the first time, the people, language and customs appear so strange and different from what he is used to seeing, that he feels like he is in an entirely new world. The houses are built of stone, brick or clay, and covered with tiles, hence there is not much danger of destructive fires. Small mules, with their tails unsheared, and oxens with horns three or four feet long, are almost the only beasts of burden used, horses being used almost exclusively for drawing carriages. The street cars, which are drawn by mules, are crowded with people all the time. There are several electric car lines and some electric lights. The streets are very crooked and narrow and thronged with people of every description. During a walk of half an hour, one meets with representatives of every race and nationality under the sun. Rua do Ouvidor, which is the combined Rue Vivienne, Regent street, and Broadway of Rio, is neither very long nor broad, but the stores upon it are brilliant and in good taste. Horses, mules and vehicles of any kind are not allowed to pass through this street except for a short time in the early morning. It is so crowded with all kinds of people that one literally has to press his way through. There is no part of the city so attractive to the recently-landed foreigner as this street with its print-shops, feather-flower stores, and jewelry-establishments. The diamond, the topaz and emerald can here be purchased in any number, and are temptingly displayed behind rich plate-grass. The feather and insect flowers manufactured in Brazil are original and most beautiful.

Since arriving, I have preached twice to the little church in Nictheroy, just across the bay, while Bro. Ginsburg, the pastor, interpreted for me. As I spoke about the love of Jesus, and urged the Christians to be loyal to the Master, I saw the tears run down their cheeks, and after service they came forward and welcomed me into their midst. It means something to be a Christian in this place. Protestantism is not at all popular, and for one to declare himself a believer in Christ requires no small amount of courage and grace.

I think we shall like the mission work in Brazil, though it is by no means unattended with many trials, hardships, and sometimes persecutions. Mrs. Porter is very hopeful and courageous and looks forward with interest to the time when we can engage more fully in the work. She has been acting as organist for Bro. Taylor in the Rio church. We are studying the language and are getting so we can make ourselves understood. Next week we expect to move up to Juiz de Fora, a beautiful town of 20,000 inhabitants, situated among the mountains about two hundred miles from Rio.

In my next I will write about the religious condition of the people.

Much love to all the dear brethren and sisters in North Carolina, and especially to the dear good people of Wake Forest. God bless old Wake Forest College! She is like a city set upon a hill whose light is destined to shine in all parts of the world.

Brethren, pray for us and for Brazil.

Your brother in the Saviour,

SAMUEL J. PORTER

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Aug. 11, 1893.

Lustrous Christians.

BY REV. L. D. GEIGER, OCALA, FLA.

In Matt. 5: 14, the Saviour says of his disciples, "Ye are the light of the world."

Webster defines light as being "that agent in nature which dispels darkness and makes visible objects which were before invisible."

Light is one of the most beautiful and also one of the most useful of the natural agents. Think what life would be shrouded in perpetual night! It is no small honor, therefore, that the Saviour confers upon his disciples when he compares them to light. But let us inquire

1. In what sense may Christians be regarded as "the light of the world?" We answer: In only a secondary or subordinate sense. The Saviour declared of himself, "I am the light of the world;" and he is such, of course, in the most emphatic and superlative sense possible. The relation which the sun and the planets sustain to each other illustrate in this respect, we think, the relationship existing between Christ and his disciples. The sun is the great center of our solar system, and is surrounded by a large number of planets of unequal sizes, Mercury being, for instance, in round numbers, 3,000 miles in diameter and Jupiter 84,000. The sun is, therefore, the great luminary of the solar system, and the planets are the lesser lights.

So Jesus Christ, as the "Sun of Righteousness," is the great central luminary of the moral universe, and we are his stars. As stars, we are of greatly unequal magnitudes. Such men as Carey and Judson and Spurgeon are Jupiters, while we may be regarded as the Mercurys. But every true child of God, however small his diameter, is a star, and as such it is his province to shine.

2. Whence do Christians obtain their light? We answer: From Christ, the "Sun of Righteousness." Referring to our illustration again, the sun is not only the center of our solar system, but it is the source of all natural light. The planets around us look very bright, but they are perfectly dark bodies. They have no inherent light, but borrow their light from the sun. So we borrow our spiritual light from the "Sun of Righteousness." Inherently, we have no full and certain spiritual light. True, we have the light of an instinct which tells us that there is a God and that we are immortal beings, but it does not answer with any degree of certainty questions touching the being and attributes of God, or those touching the origin and destiny of man. Such questions as these can be answered only by the light of the revelation of Jesus Christ.

It is true, again, that we can see without any difficulty that man must have had a noble origin and must have an exalted destiny; the wonderful powers which belong to him prove this; but it is equally true that unaided reason cannot find out a certain answer to the above questions. Any man who knows anything of mechanics, even though he had never seen a lamp, would know, when looking at one for the first time, that it was made to give light. And yet the lamp has no inherent light. Left to itself it would never give light. And the same is true of man. He was evidently made to shine, so to speak; but he has no inherent light, and if left to himself could never do so. Let us remember and profit by the point made here, namely, that the only certain light we have respecting the most momentous questions which can be propounded is a borrowed light—borrowed from Jesus Christ, the "Sun of Righteousness."

3. How should Christians employ their light? We answer: They should reflect it to others. This is what the lamp does. It is what the stars do, also. And it is what Jesus Christ commands us to do. "Ye are the light of the world . . . . Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven." The emphasis here should be placed on the adverb "so." We should let our light "so shine." We should hold ourselves in such moral attitude before the world that our light will be reflected along man's pathway, and the way to the cross made plain and attractive, to the end that our Heavenly Father may be glorified. This we are to do in two ways. (1) By a correct faith or doctrine—one which will be a true reflection of the word of God. Many loose notions prevail on this subject. The religious faith of many is but a reflection of the faith of their parents, or of their church, or of their fancy. They seem to have no idea that the word of God is the only true and certain standard of faith. As between man and man, my neighbor has no right to dictate to me what I shall believe. So far as he is concerned, I may believe what I choose. But as between God and man, this is not the case. God has the right to dictate to man what he shall believe; and he has done so in the revelation which he has given of his Son. Man is under the most solemn obligation to receive this revelation and reflect it to others unmixed with the traditions of men; and a failure to do so will be fraught with the most terrible consequences. (2) By a holy life. I have emphasized the importance of orthodoxy of faith. Orthodoxy of life is no less important. The Bible not only teaches us what we shall believe, but also how we ought to live; and we are under as great obligation to receive the latter teaching as the former.

The professed Christian, not the Bible, is the world's hand book of religion. They do not look to the Bible to learn what religion is, but they judge of it as they see it exemplified in the lives of those who profess it. Therefore, if the professed Christian is not a true exponent of Christ's religion—if he does not reflect the true light of God's revelation—he makes enemies to Christ rather than friends for Christ. In other words, his light is a false light, an ignis fatuus, and he not only does not lead men to Christ, but he lures them to destruction.

Who has not heard of the wreckers—a class of men inhabiting the rock-bound coasts, and of some countries who, in time of storms, build great fires to lure benighted vessels on the rocks, with a view to plundering their cargoes? Something like these are they who, though professing to be God's stars, reflect, nevertheless, in doctrine or life, a light which comes not from the "Sun of Righteousness," but from the "Prince of darkness."

4. Some things which hinder shining. (1) The shining of a candle is often hindered by a bad wick. Sometimes some particle of foreign matter—as a crackling—gets into the wick, and the light is made flickering and uncertain.

In like manner, one or more particles of foreign matter—cracklings, so to speak—sometimes get in the wick of Christian character, and one's light is made to flicker. Among these we may mention a spirit of covetousness, of unforgiveness, and of censoriousness.

Let us try to eliminate these non conductors of light. Let us be steady going Christians. Let us not be like the century plant which blossoms out on very rare occasions and at very long intervals; but let us rather be like the geranium whose blooming is perennial. Let us not be flickering as the lightning bug, but steady as the stars.

(2) The shining of a lamp is often hindered by a smoked chimney. This may be compared to the spirit of indifference which affects so many church members. They profess to believe that the Sunday-school is a good institution, but they never go; that the mid-week prayer-meeting is essential, but they never go; that the Lord's day meetings for the public preaching of the word are important, and even essential, but they never attend unless it is perfectly convenient for them to do so. If any sort of excuse presents itself, they avail themselves of it and stay away.

Another thing to which the smoked chimney may be compared is a love of the amusements which are peculiar to the world.

Young people tell us that the Bible does not, in so many words, forbid such amusements as dancing, card-playing and theater-going. The spirit of these things, however, is forbidden. The command is, "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world." And we are warned, "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."

When a Christian becomes bewitched with the world, two things are the natural result: his spirituality is greatly paralyzed and his influence for good is greatly crippled.

We need Christians who not only shine steadily, but brightly; and we cannot do this unless we shun even the appearance of evil, and stay hard by the cross. When we, like Peter, follow Christ "afar off," we may expect to shine (?) about as he did at the palace of the high priest.

I remarked that some of us are very small stars; but let us remember that the large stars do not always shine the brightest, but those which are nearest the sun. The planet Neptune is more than twelve times as large as Mercury, and yet the latter, even to the naked eye, is a very brilliant star, while the former cannot be seen at all except by the aid of the most powerful telescopes. The reason is that Neptune is nearly seven hundred times further from the sun than Mercury is.

So, as God's stars, it is not great learning or great genius which will make us shine most brightly, but a constant nearness (in prayer, in Bible study, and in good works) to Jesus Christ, the "Sun of Righteousness." Such nearness is possible to the least of us; so the very least of us have it in our power to shine steadily and brightly, and thus bless the world with our light, and glorify "our Father who art in heaven."

A lady went in trouble to her pastor. She wished to know what more she could do to bring her husband to Christ. "I have talked to him, and urged him, and warned him, till I am worn out, and still he remains unconverted." "Talk less to your husband, and talk more to God about your husband," was the wise reply.—Western Recorder.

DICTATING TO THE PASTOR

It is very evident to any candid reader of the Bible that the pastor is invested with authority by the Great Head of the Church to act as the spiritual leader and guide of the church, or churches, over which the Holy Ghost has placed him. To do the work committed to him successfully, it is quite necessary for him to so exercise this authority as to control, to a great extent, the public worship of the sanctuary, the prayer meeting, the singing, and, in fact, the machinery of the church. For the same reason, his opinion should always have weight in matters of discipline and in the business features of church life and work. To fail to do these things is to delegate his authority to others, and this often means that he will lose their respect, and perhaps that of the whole church. The correctness of the above remarks is generally conceded by all thoughtful pastors, and by nearly all thoughtful church members. There are those, however, who, from one cause or another, are not so ready to concede such rights or authority to pastors, and in one way and another they show their unwillingness to do so. One of the most common plans adopted by those who pursue this course is to bring some direct or indirect pressure to bear upon the pastor that may force him to adopt their plans of work rather than his own.

For instance, some church choirs (or, at least their leaders,) may at times aspire to take the singing almost entirely out of the hands of the pastor, and reduce him to a mere figure head in simply announcing the hymns they have selected. It is never wise for choirs to ask for this right; and again, never wise for the pastor to grant it even if requested to do so. Singing is part of the worship of the sanctuary, and the pastor has no more right to delegate that part of the service entirely to others than he has to place the preaching of the word in the hands of others. It is sometimes the case that the pastor does not sing, or is not a good judge of music; but even in this case, if he is a man of fair energy and intelligence, he can soon ascertain what pieces his choir are most familiar with, and that they sing with most effect, and he can make his selections for any service from them. Of course he can at times give the choir larger liberty, and request them, either at the opening or closing of the service, to sing hymns of their own selection. This gives the choir an opportunity to air themselves, even to "show off" a little, if they are bent on doing it, and is the olive branch for the preservation of the peace and the "balance of power."

Again, local societies, in or out of the church, may at times attempt to dictate to the pastor, when he should close his church, or when and how he should preach on certain themes. There is quite a multiplication of societies now, both in and out of the churches. Some are opposed to them in toto; others are watching their drift before reaching a conclusion; others again pursue a conservative course, and while admitting the wisdom of some such organizations, especially in the churches and controlled by them, are opposed to their rapid and thoughtless multiplication. This latter position is the one occupied by the Recorder. Yet while occupying such position, we are not prepared to admit the right of such societies to dictate to our pastors as to their co-operation in any given "movement," or as to what themes they should discuss from their pulpits at stated times. The Christian Endeavor, the Y. M. C. A., the B. Y. P. U., &c., might become thoroughly convinced that the theme they discussed at the last society meeting, on which young Bro. A. made a thrilling speech, was a "living question" of vast proportions, and hence Bro. A., delegated or undelegated by his society, rushes to the pastor's study early in the week and requests or demands that the pastor preach on that theme the following Sabbath. The pastor may have already outlined a sermon or so for the ensuing Sabbath; he may be preaching a series of sermons to his church of a historical or doctrinal kind; he may be in the midst of a gracious meeting in which sinners are trembling under the word that they hear; but the society man cares for none of these things; souls may die and be lost, but the great question with him is "will this pastor heed the request of my society, and preach the preaching I want for him." If he does, he is a "fine fellow;" if not, he is illiberal, close, or perhaps [illegible]. In case the pastor has [illegible] to say no, the society people [illegible] to whisper it around, "Your pastor is behind the times," or "Your pastor is non progressive," or a "mossback," &c.

Some of this unwise work is actually done by some societies in our churches, and supposed to be controlled by them. Now let us say to all such societies, in or out of our churches, to be very careful about making suggestions to pastors about what themes they should preach on, and if any such are made, and the pastor does not comply at once, or if he discuss the matter in a more temperate tone than the society expects, or is accustomed to hear, do not criticise or find fault with the man. The Lord thought he had sense enough when he called him into the ministry to know how to preach, and to run a church, without your aid, much less your dictation.

ANOTHER POINT.

One peculiarity about the manner in which some pastors, assistant pastors, or evangelists, conduct protracted meetings, deserves special notice, and that is, they at times hold meetings in which very little co operation is asked of or expected from the church. In other words, these men so conduct their meetings that their plans are greatly emphasized, and their own individuality constantly brought to the front without asking the members of the church, especially after the meeting has fairly commenced, to take any other part than that of mere spectators. They are virtually asked to "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord," while the preacher, or evangelist, stretches forth the rod of his power. They seem to forget the command given to Israel, "Command the people to go forward."

The plan alluded to is, we think, quite unwise, and should be carefully guarded against. A congregation taught year after year to merely look on while the work progresses, and "large numbers" are brought into the church, will grow cold and listless, and when some other pastor strikes one thus trained, he has a terribly tough job to get them to do anything. He may ask them to promise in some way to even pray and work for the success of the meeting, and the chilling and scattering response he receives, is enough to knock all the spiritual enthusiasm out of him. The bulk of his people will sit and stare at him with unsympathetic faces which seem to say, "We know a better way than that." They have doubtless been taught a different way; but we are decidedly of the opinion that it is not a better one.

The remedy for this is to secure the services of men that will put the church to work; and if a church calls a pastor who believes in the active participation of church members in the exercises of the protracted or other meeting, by all means let the members respond promptly and kindly to his suggestions or to his requests. To fail to respond to a sensible request from your pastor is unfaithfulness to him, to your church, and we may say, to your God.

NEW MISSION METHODS.

For more than a year some of our people have been exercised about what has been termed new methods for doing Foreign Mission work in China. To those of our people who are young, or who are not acquainted with our denominational history, these ideas may be new, but the older brethren, and in fact others who have observed the history of our work for the past forty or fifty years, see nothing in the present agitation which has not already happened under the leadership of other brethren who have thought like these who are now among us. It was about forty years ago when Doctor Graves of Tennessee became greatly agitated on this same idea of mission methods as well as about other departures from our organized work, and after years of the most intense effort, in which he bent all the energies of his soul and great intellect, he found that his plans and schemes, about which he was so sanguine of success, came to nothing, and he himself practically severed from the organized work of the Southern Baptist Convention. Later, Dr. Crawford, then under the appointment of the Foreign Mission Board, felt impressed to try this new plan, and, as many of our brethren will remember, canvassed a large portion of the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention, trying with all his might to create favor and induce support for his peculiar views on this subject. The Convention, after hearing him and appointing a committee consisting of a member from each State, at the end of a year, in the wisdom and discretion which have always characterized this body, decided that Dr. Crawford's ideas for doing mission work in China were unwise and impractical, and so the matter was dismissed. Dr. Crawford, however, just as is common with men who take such positions, had great faith in the ultimate accomplishment of his designs, and for some years has been disconnected with the Foreign Mission Board.

And now the same ideas have been revived and their propagation only transferred to others, with the hope, as we believe, that new leaders—men who had no history in this matter—might inspire new confidence and at the same time might not call up so vividly what had occurred in the past. We might continue to pursue this idea, and show how other brethren have come to endorse this same position, and how futile have been their efforts to effect any practical results in doing mission work.

We wish to say here that, so far as we can see, there is nothing new in the present positions of brethren Herring and Bostick. Their theories are just as good and no better than were those of the brethren who have preceded them. Sometimes we hear it called the "Herring plan," then the "Herring-Bostick plan," and also the "Gospel Mission plan"; but after all, it might as well be traced to its legitimate ancestors and named accordingly.

So far as in our power lies, our people shall not be deceived, and those who are led away, shall go without excuse. We have no words of censure for any brother, in fact we are satisfied that the brethren who are agitating the churches on this subject, are good meaning brethren, and, just as in the case of others who have taken the same positions, we think they are godly, truly pious, and zealous in the Master's cause; but we just as fully believe they are wanting in judgment in this matter, and have failed to realize the close and inseparable connexion between faith in the Word of God and the employment of common sense, and the use of the means which a kind Father has placed around us.

We have not, at any time, been greatly alarmed at the appearance among us of this subject. In our judgment, its bounds were set, its history written even from the first. Our composure in the matter has not been disturbed because we did not see conflict between this and our organized work; but on the other hand, we have seen the most direct and destructive conflict from the very first, and we are fully persuaded that in proportion as this so-called new idea of doing Foreign Mission work shall gain strength, just in proportion will our present plans of work be hindered and confused. It cannot be otherwise. If the extent of the injury could stop with the set-back it will give to our Foreign Mission work, then it would be bad enough. But this is not the extent of the injury which we shall see. As soon as any of our churches shall adopt this "new plan," the first object of the pastors of such churches will be to show an advance in contributions to Foreign Missions, and we think the advance will come; but how will it come? Sooner or later this advance will be made at the expense of some or all of the other objects to which these churches have heretofore contributed. State Missions, notwithstanding its relation to the very origin and existence of these churches, will soon be of secondary consideration. Education, Home Missions—in fact, all the objects of our Convention will generally and certainly lose their places at our associations and other meetings of our people. And in a few years when these "new methods" shall come to nought, as come they will, and when they have taken their place along with other like ventures, we shall behold the sad spectacle of some of our churches with the very fountains of their growth dried up, and will in some cases a second time have to emerge from "Hardshellism" and start anew in Christian work.

This may be thought by some a gloomy view to express. It is. But if we have not failed to profit by the light of experience and failed to comprehend the teachings of God's Word, then these consequences will be seen to follow in the wake of the leadership of these teachers of new mission methods. But, say some, think of his unselfish consecration, the sublimity of his faith, and his boundless zeal! Surely a man thus endowed cannot fail. So far as we know, these same characteristics have not been wanting in the men who have heretofore advocated these same views. No one questions for a moment that these are indispensable qualities in the character of every true and efficient servant of God, whether he be on foreign fields or in the home land; yet for these jewels to shine with their greatest resplendency, they must be set in the domain of sound, practical judgment, and be bounded on all sides by the laws of sanctified common sense.

The favor which this move is receiving, is, if we are not mistaken, confined to sections where the churches have not been extensively developed, or where there are some local influences, some special attachments between the churches and the missionary who is to go to the foreign field. Here we wish to say that this investing in a certain individual is among the most objectionable features of this plan of work. It is especially contrary to Baptist principles and Baptist polity, to say nothing of its being out of harmony with the letter and spirit of the Bible.

Baptists have never followed men any further than they represented a well established principle: this has always been so and will of necessity continue. True, people are stirred and interested for a time by a man who is gifted in speech making, but unless they are grounded in the principles, and see and believe as does the speaker, what he says will, like the morning dew, soon pass away. And now in this particular matter, what success and favor has come to this new plan has come, we think, almost solely on account of the individuality of Bro. Herring himself. He is a man of force, a good speaker, and has tact in the presentation of his views. So wherever it is to his interest to talk low salaries and thus make sharp contrasts between his methods and those of the Board, he can do so with telling effect. Then where the audience does not attach so much importance to this feature of his plan, he finds no difficulty in adjusting himself to the demands of the situation, and with the skill of a painter's brush he can trace the similarity of his plan of work with the plan of the Board, shading off differences in such a delicate way, that it would require an expert to tell where the Board methods stop and where his begin. But while Bro. Herring represents his case well, how would it be with others who might want to go on the same plan, and who do not possess the powers in himself sufficient to bring a response from the people to whom he speaks?

But we have probably said enough for the present, the Lord is on the throne, and his purposes will in his own good time be fully accomplished. There is hardly any proposition either in religion or polity which does not enlist its followers. Some of our people are going off, but it is only for a short time: they will soon return. True, they will be some older, but then they will be some wiser, and, in all probability, stronger soldiers in the cause of the Master.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

THE SOUTH YADKIN ASSOCIATION

met with the church at Mocksville. Bro. Cashwell, the pastor, and all the brethren had made an earnest effort to have the largest meeting this body had ever had. A number of letters had been written to different brethren in the State, hoping by their presence to add interest to the meeting. But the rains came in time to keep away Bro. Holdman, the moderator, and a large number of delegates and visitors.

The Association was organized on Friday by electing Bro. Bridges moderator, and Bro. Tatum, who was present, was re elected secretary.

All the objects of the Association were discussed. Pledges for the different objects were not taken, owing to the number of churches not represented, but the South Yadkin, which is one of the best Associations in the State, will not, on this account, fall back in any department of the work.

Bro. C. C. Newton, returned missionary from Africa, was present, and the brethren listened to him speak on Foreign Missions with much interest. Many hoped to see brethren Bryan and Herring present, but both failed to be there.

Bro. Gwaltney was very much at home with the Mocksville brethren. Years ago this work was started by Bro. G., who built the church at this place. We found several young men here who are to be at Wake Forest soon. Bro. J. K. Fant was present, and preached an excellent sermon on Friday night.

The brethren are sorry to part with Bro. Cashwell, who has been with them for several years, and who has done a most excellent work in this section. I feel more or less sympathy for the man who shall succeed him in this work. Cashwell is a man of strong character, plenty of will force, physically he is an athlete, capable of and willing to endure any amount of hard work, and most of all he is a preacher of great power, and can out-sing a camp meeting.

This was my first opportunity to see the arbor built here for the Thomasville Orphanage. It is just the thing; seats comfortably fifteen hundred people, and a speaker talks with as much ease as if in a house. This property is now paid for. It is worth $1,000, and is the property of the Trustees of the Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville.

We were glad to meet Bro. Jacob Stewart, a graduate of Wake Forest College. He has a fine law practice at Mocksville, and is very useful and efficient in his church and Sunday-school.

Bro. J. N. Stallings was present, and made a speech on general education, making special mention of his own school at Low Gap, in Ashe county.

Maj. Clement is still in delicate health, but is as much as ever interested in the success of the cause in this section.

The meeting taken altogether was one of the most delightful we have ever attended. Our home was with Bro. Cashwell, and he and his excellent wife could not have done more to make our stay in the town pleasant and agreeable.

THE CALDWELL ASSOCIATION

met at the church at Granite Fall. Bro. I. W. Thomas was re elected moderator, and in the absence of Bro. J. V. McCall, the former secretary, Bro. J. E. Nelson was elected secretary.

We are sorry to learn that Bro. McCall is confined to his room with fever. We missed his presence at the Association. He is always there if possible for him to do so, and is always useful and progressive in the work.

In many respects I thought this the best session of the Caldwell Association I had ever attended. I received more subscribers for the Recorder than ever before. Bro. Edwards did well for the Orphanage. Dr. Durham made one of the best speeches I ever heard him make for State Missions, but the brethren are confused on the subject of mission methods in this Association. I do not know what the churches indicated they would try to do this year, but think there is a falling off from what was raised last year.

Bro. Herring was present and spoke at length on his plan for Foreign Mission work. The regular work was represented by Dr. Durham. On Saturday evening a resolution was offered by Rev. H. M. Croom committing the Association to the "Herring plan" of doing Foreign Mission work. The resolution was favored in speeches by brethren Herring, J. S. Gwaltney and Murchison. Brethren Isaac Oxford and Joe Powell, Jr., opposed the passage of the resolution. Very few voted on the question, but a majority of those voting favored the passage of the resolution. We regretted to see the division which the discussion seemed to make in the Association. Bro. Oxford, who is the oldest man in the Association, remarked that the Association had been shorn of half its strength by the discussion of this subject. We left on Saturday before the discussion of all the questions were over.

The brethren and citizens at Granite took good care of the Association. The Methodist Conference had been held here the week before, and yet there seemed to be an abundance of everything left.

I spent a portion of my time with Bro. Kiser, a prosperous young merchant in the village, and a portion I spent at the splendid country home of Bro. H. C. Mackey. He has the greatest abundance of wheat, corn, peas, potatoes, fat pigs, Jersey cows, &c., and is no happier than when his friends come to see him and enjoy his bountiful hospitality.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. J. W. Suttle, former pastor at Blacksburg, S. C., is now located at Shelby, N. C.

....Rev. Dr. G. W. Gardner of Mississippi has received a call to the church at Kissimmee, Fla.

....Rev. J. K. Fant of High Point was engaged in a meeting last week near Scotland Neck.

....Rev. J. H. Lamberth will resume his regular work at Greenville shortly. He has spent the summer in glorious revival work.

....Rev. Dr. John Mitchell, one of our most beloved brethren, has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist church at Franklinton.

....The Baptist congregation of Statesville are pleased with the preaching of their new pastor, Rev. G. H. Church, says the Landmark.

....Rev. J. T. Jenkins has returned to his pastorate in Wilmington, but will not remain, as he has evangelical engagements until November.

....The Frenchbroad, Yancey and Mitchell counties associations have decided to co-operate with the State Convention in their mission work.

....All our schools are now well on with their work, and we are pleased to learn that a majority of them have large attendances, considering the times.

....As a result of the recent meeting held by Dr. Cobb and other brethren at Benson, seven candidates have presented themselves for baptism, and others are expected.

....We publish this week some excellent reading from our missionary brethren, Herring and Porter, and will give our readers another letter from Bro. Bostick next issue.

....Sister Melissa Bennett, consort of Rev. D. K. Bennett, died in Hickory, N. C., on the 10th inst., aged sixty-two years. We sympathize with Bro. Bennett in his great loss.

....Rev. A. J. Taylor has been engaged in several good meetings in his part of the vineyard, and is meeting with success. We are glad to learn of the improvement in his health.

....Rev. J. E Hutson of Richmond, Va., conducted a meeting at Hebron church, Northampton county, last week. His recent meeting at Rich Square resulted in over thirty professions.

....The new Baptist church at Fairview, in the western part of the State, was dedicated on the 10th, Rev. J. L. White preaching the dedicatory sermon, so we learn from the Asheville Baptist.

....Rev. J. Q. Adams of the French Broad church, Asheville, has received a call to the pastorate of the church at Wadesboro, which he accepts. An exchange says that Bro. Adams' services are in great demand.

....The pulpit in Chase City, Va., made vacant by the resignation of Rev. C. A. Jenkins of Goldsboro, will be supplied on every second Sunday until the end of the year by Rev. J. S. Hardaway of Oxford.

....Bro. W. H. Sledge, who has been preaching at the tent and acting as a supply for our pastor (First church, Roanoke, Va.) has returned to Wake Forest College where he will resume his studies.—Roanoke Baptist Union.

....The Catholics have been holding a great congress at Chicago. Satolli and Corrigan and Ireland were there, and from the very solicitous manner in which they spoke of our welfare, one would have thought that our destiny was in their keeping.

....Dr. Broughton began a meeting in his church on Sunday last, with Bro. M. A. Adams of Monroe assisting him. We have heard it said, and we certainly hope its true, that Bro. Broughton's resignation will not go into effect for some years to come.

....Dr. H. M. Tupper, who has almost recovered from his recent illness, will leave Cottage City, N. J., Sept. 26th, and hopes to be able to resume his duties as President of Shaw University of this city shortly thereafter. We rejoice at the Doctor's convalescence.

....Rev. Ernest Cook has taken charge of the Central Baptist, at the request of the family of its former able editor, Rev. W. H. Williams. May the new editor-in-charge continue the paper in that same earnest Christian spirit which characterized Bro. Williams' efforts.

....Just at this time our people are more engrossed with things worldly than in a quarter of a century, and we want to remind them that the time does not come when one should forget his religion, and certainly it should be our greatest consolation in time of trouble and distress.

....The Tryon Street Baptist church, Charlotte, came near destruction on the 16th. A tinner on the roof of the church was careless, and the building caught on fire. The fire companies promptly responded, however, and in their zeal did consider able damage with water.

....We deeply regret to learn of the death of Rev. T. B. Justice's son of Rutherfordton. The young man was just entering his twenty-second year, and was a promising student of Wake Forest College last session. We extend our warmest sympathy to our brother and his family.

....Mrs. Janie P. Duggan has returned to North Carolina from her mission station at Guadalajara, Mexico, on account of ill health. The Foreign Mission Board has released her from active duties until she is completely restored. Her present address is Wake Forest. We hope for her an early recovery.

....We have received a neat pamphlet containing the Centennial Address by K. P. Battle of the University, and a description of the public exercises in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the city of Raleigh. The work is very interesting, and reflects credit on those who had it in charge.

....Rev. W. F. Watson, assisted by brethren Shields and Watkins, held a glorious meeting at the Roxboro church, of which Bro. Watson is pastor, last week. The Courier says: "All denominations are taking great interest in the meeting, and untold good must result from these united efforts."

....A good brother writes us for sample copies of the RECORDER and says: "I have now been a reader of the RECORDER for a long time, and cannot do without it, and I hope to see every Baptist in the State read it." The brother's hope will not be in vain, if other brethren would take hold of the matter as he has.

....Last week the corner stone of the new Second Baptist church of Petersburg was laid with imposing ceremonies. Rev. W. W. Landrum delivered the address of the occasion, which was pronounced an able effort. This church was organized in 1854 under the name of Byrne Street Baptist church, and Dr. Thomas E. Skinner of this city was its first pastor.

....The members of Bro. Broughton's church, Winston, gave him a handsome "pounding" recently. They are determined that Bro. Broughton's good work among them shall be continued. His members have recently organized a night school for poor people, and are doing good work among that class of children whose day time is occupied in earning a livelihood.

....Rev. C. S. Farriss, Mrs. Farriss and Carl Vernon Farriss, will leave to morrow for De Land, Fla., their home. The University in which Mr. Farriss holds the Chair of Greek, opens October 1st.—High Point Enterprise, Sept. 15. Bro. Farriss is well known to many of our readers, all of whom will be glad to hear of his continued success as professor and editor in the State of his adoption.

....Our attention has been called to the fact that only $211.30 is all that our people have paid in for our worn out preachers, and dependent widows. This is a sad commentary on the charity and religion of those who are able to spare means for this most worthy of objects. Let our pastors urge the matter from their pulpits, and let us all unite in providing for the aged servants of God, who are now bowed down.

....There are forty-seven Chinese temples in the United States, valued at $62,000, claiming 100,000 worshipers. Forty of these temples are in California, four in New York, two in Idaho, and one in Oregon.—Reformatory Record. Better stop some of our missionaries in California long enough to secure harmony. We ask how long it will take them to convert us.—Charity and Children. Well said, brother.

....An exchange asks us "what is meant by 'Sensationalism in the pulpit.'" Sensationalism consists in preaching for self, and depending on self; gospel in the pulpit consists in preaching Jesus Christ, and him crucified, and depending on his saving power. While it is difficult to recognise a sensationalist in every case, there is one thing certain, the sensationalist always knows whether he is guilty of sensationalism in the pulpit or not.

....It gives us pleasure to announce that Rev. N. R. Pittman, after a hard struggle of more than eight years for a large church building in St. Joseph, Mo., has reached victory. The Patee Park church, which has just been opened, is one of the largest and handsomest in the West. It is two stories high, with a gallery on the second floor, and the baptistery is in the main auditorium, in full view of every seat. The background of the baptistery is a large oil painting of the river Jordan. Bro. Pittman has toiled without ceasing for this building, and we know his many North Carolina friends will rejoice to learn that God has so richly blest his efforts, and answered the prayers of his people.

....A communication from Murfreesboro says that the Chowan Baptist Female Institute opens with ninety pupils, the number last year, and other pupils are coming within the next few days. We are glad to announce the good opening.

....Editor Lafferty of the Richmond Christian Advocate seems unbalanced on the negro question, or else he is a sensationalist of the purest stripe. His leading editorial in the last issue of the Advocate was on "The Gorilla as a Field Hand," and the editor dares to suggest that that animal may take the place of our negro farm hands. Such things may excite comment, but we can't see their connection with Methodism, or anything else that is worthy.

....The Rev. R. N. Price and the Rev. Dr. Reid, one editor of the Holston Methodist, the other editor of the Raleigh Advocate, have accepted chairs in colleges. Dr. Price says his election was in answer to prayer for some employment to get rations and raiment. It would seem conducting Conference papers does not contribute sufficient shekels to supply meat, bread and breeches.—Richmond Christian Advocate. These brethren were both wise and fortunate to secure new quarters before these times came upon us.

....The Parliament of Religions, so called, which meets in Chicago, is characterized by Dr. Herrick Johnson as "an invitation by Christian men to all false faiths to come here and present and publish and scatter abroad their abominable heresies under Christian sanction, with the openly avowed object of promoting a brotherhood of religions." It is very evident that Dr. Herrick Johnson, if he said that, has a level head, a thing we cannot say of all doctors of divinity, Baptist or Pedobaptist.—Christian Enquirer.

....The comments of the daily papers (on the Parliament of Religions) in Chicago show conclusively the idea that is going before the people. It is that this is the greatest movement in the world's history; that Christianity is to recognize all religions as one with it; that we are to have no more of this Bible exclusiveness; that Christians are to stop trying to save sinners, and to recognize the followers of heathen gods as one with themselves. No thrust has come so near the vitals of Christianity.—Journal and Messenger.

....What is to become of our churches in Texas? It appears that a majority of the strong men, in that State have concluded to quit the pastorate and enter the field as evangelists. If this craze continues, much more harm will befall the churches than dozens of assurance preachers can produce in decades. Call a halt brethren.—Christian Index. These are timely words. Our brethren of the "Lone Star" State seem possessed with a "craze" that reminds us of certain others that have risen to afflict the land for a time, and then fallen to nothing.

....Dr. J. Wm. Jones, our former Corresponding Secretary of our Home Mission Board, retired from the editorship of Our Home Field last week and will enter on his duties as Chaplain to the University of Virginia immediately. On retiring he says: "After six years of the hardest work of my life, during which I have seen the annual cash receipts of the Home Board increase from $38,388 04 to $106,989 58, with a corresponding increase of our "Co-operative" work, and an enlargement of our work all along the lines, I need scarcely say that I leave my position with many regrets, and only under a deep sense of duty."

....We are indebted to the clerk of the Liberty Association for the minutes of the sixtieth annual session of that body. The pamphlet is well bound and neatly printed, and its contents reflect credit on the Liberty Association. The following from the report on periodicals is pointed and timely: "It is to be regretted that our people do not take and read our denominational literature. We visit the houses of our brethren and find one or more political papers, but no religious paper. They say that they must know what is going on in the political world and Congress: and yet, know almost nothing about what is being done in the religious world. Let us, brethren, do more to put our denominational literature into all the families of our churches." We would be grateful if the clerks would kindly send us copies of all their associational minutes.

....We observe that the practice of selling sermons which has prevailed to some extent in the Established church in England, has a footing in this country. The ruling price, as advertised, is from $1.50 to $5.00, the advertisers pledging themselves not to sell the same sermon to any one within two hundred miles of the same place. We do not imagine that there is much of this contemptible business done on this side of the Atlantic. But years ago there was an establishment in Troy, New York, that offered to furnish graduating addresses for college students. The dishonesty of all such schemes can be seen at a glance. It is better to preach a poor sermon and have it full of your own personality. In preaching as in life, men need to be themselves.—Christian Secretary. We do not know of any instances of sermon selling, but in recent months have seen circulars that offered almost any kind of essays, addresses, &c., to students. We hope our brethren will take prompt steps to destroy such businesses by exposure, if they come before them.

Gethsemane Church.

Dear Recorder:—Our many friends who aided us in building our new mission church in Edgecombe county, Gethsemane, will be glad to hear of our good meeting. The Lord greatly blessed us. Twenty-four have been added by baptism. To the Lord be all the praise.

J. R. PAGE.

Whitaker's, Sept. 16, 1893.

The Board of Education.

This Board never felt the responsibility and pressure of its work resting so heavily upon it as now. There are thirty-four young men here to study for the ministry who are entirely dependent upon the Board for support, and the pledges made a year ago to this work for the most part have not been paid. By a careful examination of each one of these young men, we find that their remaining here depends upon the usual amount which has been given heretofore, viz, nine dollars each per month, and no one is adopted for a longer period than five months at a time.

We cannot possibly give them the needed help and enable them to go on with their work unless the pledges made be paid up, or the means had from other source. But to you, brethren, to whom we always looked, we must still look for the needed help. We all know how hard it is to raise money for anything now, but can we not all make an earnest, self-denying effort to meet our obligations to this work which Christ has so greatly blessed during all the history of the College? Can we afford to let this most important department of our educational work fall through? No feature of our educational system in North Carolina has done so much to build up our cause and given character to our denomination in the State as beneficiary education here at Wake Forest College. In every Association in the State, and in nearly every State in the Union, in China, Africa and in Brazil, these men who were aided by this Board are found advancing the cause of truth, and laboring to lift up and bless humanity and bring honor to our Master.

Brethren, can't we still trust in God and carry on this department of his work? Shall we not rise up in his strength and say to these young men whom we believe, and whom their churches believe, he has called to preach his gospel? He has called them, and they have responded, but they feel their want of preparation for work so responsible. They are poor and cannot command the means to help themselves. Shall they leave with their meagre preparation? The Education Board has not been so embarrassed since 1861 when under a heavy debt and the country plunging into a bloody war, it broke down and turned all its beneficiaries loose.

If all our friends to whom we have looked in the past will help us a little more, we can go on.

W. R GWALTNEY.

From Globe, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—Our dear Bro. Herring held a meeting with our church lasting six days. Bro. Herring was much used of our God in building up Christians in the precious truths of the Lord Jesus. We all feel that we are nearer our God. Bro. Herring insists on Christians entering upon a higher plain—living a life of trust in Christ, and being filled with the Holy Spirit and so be prepared to do the bidding of the blessed Master and enter into the fellowship of his sufferings and enjoy his sweet and consoling presence midst the many trials that attend our pilgrimage on this scene of suffering. Herring is a man thoroughly consecrated to the service of God and preaches the glorious gospel in simplicity, earnestness and power. He relies upon the Word and Spirit to regenerate the hearts of sinners. To know him is to love him. I have never known our people so overcome with weeping as when he bade us farewell.

Two professions during our meeting and trust many more will yet trust the blessed Saviour as the result of our meeting. Bro. Croom, who possesses much of the Master's Spirit, makes us a good pastor. Our church usually gives from twenty to forty dollars for Foreign Missions, but this year we will raise one hundred dollars for our missionary who goes out to China in connection with the gospel mission plan. Many churches that did not do but little; if anything through the Board, will give liberally to the gospel mission work. We think there should be no antagonism between the two plans, but all should feel free to work as the Spirit may direct. May we all as Christians lay ourselves upon the altar and dedicate our all to our God so that the world may be taken for Christ.

Globe Academy is prospering in the hands of B. B. Dougherty as Principal, who is a fine teacher. God bless the RECORDER.

Fraternally, F. P. MOORE.

From Rev. W. J. Hopkins.

Elder C. E. Gower of Lincolnton, N. C., assisted me in a week's meeting at Bethel church, Iredell county, commencing on the third Sunday in August.

Ten baptized, one more approved, and others confessed Christ.

Bro. Gower did some faithful and solid work and has endeared himself very much to our people at that point. It was a delight to me: first, to see souls led to Christ; next, to be with that dear Brother again after several years' separation.

The heavy rains was a main cause of closing the meeting, from which we drove to Mocksville to be present at the meeting of the South Yadkin Association, August 31st. We drove through heavy rain, forded swollen creeks, and waited on the way for the water to away from the bridges. But after all the hinderances it proved that they were not all afraid of water, a goodly attendance for such weather and on Friday organized by electing Bro. W. W. Bridges Moderator, and re-election of Bro. S. J. Tatum as Clerk. Having a very pleasant meeting, and of course a pleasant stay among the Davie people, who with Bro. Cashwell in the lead, made everyone feel at home and cared for us in magnificent style.

The Davie people have certainly secured a fine property at very reasonable expenditure for the annual orphan's picnic. That Tabernacle is a splendid structure, and useful in many ways.

The next session of this body will be held with Philadelphia church, Nash county, commencing on Thursday before the second Sunday in October at 11 a. m. This church is six miles north of Nashville, where parties coming on the train will be met.

We are making preparations for a large crowd, and we hope as many as can, will come. We will try to make your stay with us pleasant. We earnestly ask the prayers of all that the next session may not only be a business success, but a meeting of great spiritual power. I do hope all the churches will make an earnest effort to redeem their pledges. I again ask those expecting to come to send their names to Bro. C. P. Harper, Duke's, N. C. Please attend to this at once.

Meeting at a Public School-house.

Dear Recorder:—A very interesting protracted meeting is now in progress at a public school-house between here and Benson, which will result in the organization of another Baptist church. The meeting has been going on about a week under the preaching of brethren Campbell, Gibbs and Allen Betts. Several have made a profession, and yesterday and last night about twenty grown persons (some of them old people) asked for prayer. It is in a section that has been destitute of gospel preaching hitherto. I preached for them Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, and will return to help them this morning.

Eldorado Church.

Dear Recorder:—I am just home from a nine days' meeting, held with my church at Eldorado, N. C. Had a good meeting. I baptized five happy ladies in the Uwharrie river on Sunday, Sept. 10th, at 11 o'clock a. m., and I think that I will have the privilege of troubling the waters at my next meeting there.

The greatest obstacle in the way here is Hardshellism. It will be the means of great spiritual damage to many of our young people.

We had no ministerial help until the last service of the meeting when Rev. G. W. Henderson came in and preached once.

JOHN A. SUMMEY.

Hanneraville, Sept. 18, 1893.

From Rev. J. A. Hoyle.

Dear Recorder:—I have just closed a meeting of nine days with Macedonia church, Lincoln county. The Spirit of the Lord was with us from the beginning. On yesterday I baptized twenty seven happy converts. These were nearly all grown people, the youngest about fifteen years of age. Some of the best citizens in that community were among the number. Two more were received for baptism after we returned to the church. Five were received by letter, and one was restored, making thirty five additions to the church. The last night of the meeting about fifty asked that special prayer be offered for them.

The church was greatly revived. The whole country for miles around was moved as never before. Rev. T. Bright of Forest City, N. C., was with us four days and nights and preached the gospel with great power. Bro. Bright has endeared himself to our people, and they are anxious for him to come again.

I have been in revival meetings seven weeks, and came home yesterday to rest a few days.

May the Lord bless the RECORDER and all its readers. Fraternally,

J. A. HOYLE.

The Greatest Danger.

The editorial in the RECORDER of September 13th on "Movements" is timely, and worthy of serious consideration.

I believe that the greatest danger that threatens the church of Christ to day is not worldliness or infidelity, but these "Movements." Christ's institution, the church, can never be destroyed; but it may be weakened and greatly hindered in its blessed work of uplifting and saving fallen humanity. Time, attention, love, service, money, and influence are being drawn away from churches and given to these "Movements." The tendency is to multiply and exalt human societies, and to lower the importance of the church until the church is regarded by many as only one of the societies, and by some as not the most important. Efforts are being made to array these new "Movements" in religious apparel and present them to the people on Sundays and in churches.

I am old fogy enough to cling to the old gospel, and the old church, and the old church alone. I agree with you that the church, the Sunday-school and the prayer-meeting are all the organizations we need through which to do Christian and benevolent work. There is danger ahead. Beware!

From Madison.

Dear Recorder:—In July we had a meeting of days at Mt. Hermon church in the Pilot Mountain Association. Bro. J. H. Vernon was in the community and preached three good sermons for us. Bro. J. B. Richardson passed by and preached two sermons that were sound and soul-stirring. And Bro. A. L. Betts was with us three days and did some of his best preaching. As a result of the meeting, six were added to the church by experience.

We commenced a meeting at Providence in the Pilot Mountain Association the first Sunday in August, with Bro. C. C. Haymore to assist in the preaching. Bro. Haymore was at his best, and the blessing of God attended the preaching of his Word. At the close of the meeting I baptized twenty four.

The second Sunday in August we commenced a meeting at Sharon, assisted by Bro. H. A. Brown. Bro. Brown preached to the delight of everybody. We had a packed house all the time, and the Spirit of God was with us. Six united with the church. Others, doubtless, will join soon.

We have made wonderful improvement at this point. For several years I rode twelve miles after preaching in the morning, and preached in the evening at this place as a mission point, without any assistance from the Mission Board. Now we have a most excellent house, which we completed last year. The church is now self-sustaining, and I preach for them regularly on the first Sunday morning and Saturday before. We have just completed a good house of worship here at Madison. And this church gave more for missions this last Associational year than ever before in its history.

I have been on my present field twelve years, and during this time we have built five new churches. Our outlook for the future has never been so hopeful.

The first Sunday in October I will begin a meeting at Waughtown with Bro. Sheets; and the second Sunday in October I will be with Bro. Haymore at Red Bank. Let every one who reads this notice, offer a prayer to God for us at these two places.

Yours in the work,

W. H. WILSON.

Ordination Services.

At 8 p. m., on the evening of September 8th a presbytery consisting of Revs. T. W. Greer, R. E. White and G. T. Watkins met with Florence Avenue Baptist church, at the request of some, to set apart to the full gospel ministry, if the examination proved satisfactory, Rev. T. B. Hill. The presbytery organized by electing T. W. Greer, Chairman and G. T. Watkins, Secretary.

After a careful and satisfactory examination of the candidate it was unanimously decided to proceed with the ordination services which took place as follows: sermon, G. T. Watkins; prayer, T. W. Greer; charge, R. E. White. Benediction by candidate.

To Pastors and Churches of the Mt Zion Association.

This body will convene with the church in Burlington, October 17-19. It is very desirable that each church be represented. Brethren, see that this is done. We want you to come and see, for yourselves, the needs and prospects of this mission field.

The Committee of Arrangements have secured reduced railroad rates from all points between, and including, Raleigh and High Point.

Delegates, pastors and corresponding messengers are requested to send their names to Bro. A. H Rimmer, Chairman of Committee on Hospitality. Pastor, see that this be attended to.

"How I Became a Presbyterian."

"When a young man, I went to a town to live. As a stranger, I went first to the Methodist and Baptist churches. They let me remain a stranger. They gave me but little attention. I next went to the Presbyterian church. They gave me kind attention. They made me feel at home. I liked them, and for this reason I joined them."

1. According to this, human kindness and not Bible truth made him a Presbyterian.

2. Churches ought to be very attentive to all strangers. If they come to your church, be sure to speak to them and give them a hearty welcome. Never let one go away unnoticed.

"The Gospel Mission and Our Board."—Continued.

Others besides Dr. Harris charge us of the Gospel Mission with being opposed to schools. As the very name of our Mission indicates, we give ourselves to purely evangelizing—preaching the gospel publicly, privately, and in every way the Lord and his Apostles did it. This is what the Master commanded us to do, and Baptists have ever claimed to depend on this means for building up his kingdom. This is the first work, all admit, and if we as a Mission wish to confine ourselves to it, who can object? No, we are not opposed to schools. We, too, recognize what schools have done for our denomination in America, and look for them to do the same for it in China. But we, as far as our work goes, propose to let the schools have their place—let them come in the right order; let them follow in the wake of Christianity. We shall encourage the Chinese Christians to educate their children. The Chinese as heathen have educated their children, will they not as Christians do so? We do object to asking the churches to support schools, especially when they are not able to send out those who are called to preach. The gospel is such that all peoples may receive it as it is; they do not have to be educated before they can receive it. Yet I have heard a missionary pleading for schools on the ground that the language had thus to be made capable of conveying Christian thought. In the name of the Chinese language, I protest.

But we object to running schools, however "cheap" from our standpoint, with foreign money, because it fosters the idea with which the Chinese come to us to join our churches, that is, that they are to get material and present benefit from the "Jesus religion." They are not only going to get their children educated free of cost (sometimes board, clothing and all), but there is a job of work for some as teachers, &c. So much money has been put into the work in this and other ways, that the Chinese in these parts come to us feeling, "Now, if I join your religion, I bring your God under obligation to me; and you are God's financial agents with money a plenty; so you must give me a living. I'll preach for you, cook for you, teach for you—do anything, but you must give me a living by furnishing me a job in the church." This is just reversing the New Testament way of introducing the kingdom. These people should be taught by example and by precept that they are under obligation to God, to propagate the gospel rather than become a burden to it. Dr. Yates thought to do this. We must pull out from this subsidizing work "absolutely and forever," and not only leave the Chinaman no "claim" to help, but take away all "expectation" of help from the foreigner in connection with his joining the church.

Further, we are not opposed to a native ministry. But we object to paying them with foreign money, for the reasons given above. We realize the truth of what Dr. Harris says: "Chinese must eventually be converted, if converted at all, by Chinese." We are going to rely on a native ministry, and a native ministry that is more efficient, by being supported, if supported at all, by native Christians. When a native preacher is found to be paid by a foreigner, the heathen suspect him at once as having sold out to the foreigner, and very naturally they lose respect for him. He would better support himself and preach only once a week than to let this suspicion rest upon him. Alas, they have grounds for their suspicion. For men have been employed as preachers, until for some cause their pay was stopped, whereupon they quit preaching, and some have gone back to heathenism, showing they were never converted. We prefer that they have a chance to show they are called to preach, and preach from love of the truth. Besides, we may presume there will be some converts before there are any preachers. Well, we shall encourage them to support their preachers. Then it becomes evidence to the heathen that their Christianity is genuine and living. They can no longer taunt our preachers with the common saying, "You eat this (the foreigner's) rice, therefore you preach his doctrine." For the same reason we leave the Chinese to build their own churches. It convinces the heathen, and is to the Christians a means of grace. They have supported their heathen religions (priests, temples, offerings), will they not support the Christian religion when they are converted? They will, if we will only let them. Oh, that we could wait on the Lord!

Now, here, too, we are not saying that our Board should do just this in all their fields of work or even in China. Let them continue their schools and employ the native preachers, if they like. Let them make good the claim of their schools to the support of the Southern Baptists—Dr. Harris thinks they can—and go on; but let them raise school-money in the name of schools. But if we stamp upon our Mission the policy of self-support for the Chinese from the beginning to the end, let us do so. We are not afraid but that there will be a sufficient number of churches in the South to sustain us in it. By eliminating from our Gospel Mission, schools, employment of native ministry, &c., we have no general fund, and are thereby able to operate our other principle, that of each missionary receiving his own money straight from his churches over here. To have these schools, hired preachers, &c., would necessitate a general fund for distribution, and that would necessitate a board or a manager. We are hereby relieved of two temptations—the paymaster may be lord of the subordinates, and a public fund often goes freely.

Now, as to the Chinese dress, we do not claim a monopoly in this attempt to get nearer to the people. Some of the mission[illegible] of the Board wear the dress. We do regard it as necessary but helpful, and not so much the dress as the man in it [illegible]. Here, too, it must be borne in [illegible] this is to be the policy of a mis[illegible] for a certain field. It is simply begging the question to mention as an argument against this, that it is not practicable in other countries. Some think it is not needful in the ports even in China—certainly it is less needful there. But "some have tried the native dress and abandoned it as a failure!" some ask. I answer, while three or four have tried it and come out of it, five hundred have tried it and stay in it, continue to wear it and rejoice in its helpfulness—viz, the China Inland Mission, with a few exceptions, the English Baptists, many of the English Methodists, and all the Catholics (we may learn some lessons from them even). As to the native houses, the same may be said. In the fields we have chosen, North and West China, we may live in the native houses with impunity. This could not be said of South China.

Bro. Harris mentions what the Board pays their missionaries. I wish he had been a little more explicit, and then it would not have been necessary for me to say anything on this point. But I want the difference in the two departments of Foreign Mission work to be clearly understood. He says: "We undertake to furnish comfortable support and name fifty dollars a month as a general rule, with deviation, more or less, for good and sufficient reasons." Not long ago when a pastor asked the Secretary what it would cost for his church to support a missionary through the Board, the answer was, "We pay our missionaries six hundred dollars a year." This I will not say was a misrepresentation, but the people do not get all the information they want out of it and Dr. Harris' statement. This is the salary of a single missionary, while he gets his house-rent, teacher of the language and traveling expenses besides. But when we think of the missionary's pay, we are apt to compare it with that of the pastor. Preachers usually marry, especially missionaries, for in addition to their own propensity, the Board advises them to do so. The Board has only one single male missionary in China. So it will be more appropriate to speak of married missionaries on this point. Take a case, that of Bro. Bryan. I feel free to instance his because I have heard him in public say there were two churches in Kentucky "supporting" him. Some of the papers have said the same. Now, these two churches are paying the Board annually six hundred dollars and designating it for Bro. Bryan, while he draws from the Board annually for him and his wife twelve hundred dollars, for his four children four hundred dollars, making for his private use sixteen hundred dollars. Then his house is furnished him. It would rent for three hundred dollars a year. Then his teacher of the language is about seventy five dollars, and his traveling expenses, say fifty dollars. Thus he costs the denomination $2 025. Nor is that all. It is only eighty eight per cent. of it; for it costs at least twelve per cent. to raise the money the Board disburses. If $2,025 is then eighty-eight per cent., then $2,300 is what he really costs the denomination. "But that is counting two missionaries, himself and his wife!" Well, halve it, then; we still have $1,150. Now, certainly, those two churches must foot that bill if they are said to support him in the same sense as the "Gospel Mission" speaks of "support." Now in the "Gospel Mission" we are asking for three hundred dollars as a salary for a single missionary and one hundred and fifty dollars for mission work, house-rent, traveling, and teacher of the language. These would be doubled, except perhaps the teacher's and traveling expenses, for a man and his wife. We also ask for the one hundred dollars allowance for children, hoping to keep it for their education. It may not be amiss to say that while the Board has nothing to do with the appointment of the missionary's wife and does not hold her responsible so that she may style herself, as some do, "the wife of a missionary," the "Gospel Mission" wishes to establish it as a fact that every wife is a missionary, and, as such, looks to churches for support.

Now, in giving the above figures for our Mission, it should be understood that the amount is not fixed—there is nobody to fix it. But we hope to establish that rate by common consent. Of the ten who are identified with it, none are asking for more. We know we can live comfortably on this amount where we are going—it is no longer an experiment. We do not say that other missionaries elsewhere, even in China, can or ought.

Let me say here again that we do not claim a monopoly of this spirit of economy. Some of the Board's missionaries are trying a reduced salary. I know of one who does it by paying these mission expenses out of her salary.

But some argue against a small salary by saying a man must have money to become an example to the converts in liberality. I answer, the best example of liberality ever given was that of the widow who possessed only two mites. Again, they say we must have money to exercise ourselves in charity to show the natives we love them. Now, Jesus showed the people he loved them by his personal attention, and that to the salvation of their souls. "But there are so many poor and needy ones?" Yes, but if we undertake to relieve all the beggars in China, we shall not only exhaust our mission treasury, but the treasury of the United States.

Pastors, if this enterprise commends itself to your churches, and they want to work this way, encourage them to do so, for the sake of their own development and for the sake of the heathen. The indications are that they will give a great deal more. I hope to give facts about our work along as they appear through the papers that have kindly opened their columns to us. Without keeping up the discussion, we will just give our reports as we have always done. I shall be glad to hear from any church that wants to work this way, and if they cannot take stock in one of the four going this fall, there are young men and young ladies getting ready to go soon and may need help to prepare. I could put them in correspondence with some of these. But better still, perhaps, pray God to raise you up a missionary.

A Change Desired.

Dear Recorder:—Will you allow a few words from one who has kept his peace while the air has been full of battle? I have a definite purpose in this. The Convention will soon be here. And I wish to put in now my protest against continuing the present policy of the State Board. It can be changed at the Convention. I am not bringing charges against anybody. I am simply wanting a readjustment of method. I believe in the brethren that constitute the Board—in their ability, their integrity, their Christianity. But it seems to me that a change of policy is demanded.

I think that the missionaries are unjustly treated—not designedly, but of necessity under the present policy. A missionary is a man subject to all the necessities of other men. Nor does God interpose in his special case to direct his finances. And here is my purpose. Let him be paid the stipulated price at the stipulated time. It is not an increase of salary that I am advocating, but certainty of payment at definite times. It may seem impossible to do this. But justice to the missionary demands that it be done. Not any of the missionaries get too much. Most of them get not enough to live on comfortably. And it is killing to have to wait for this little so long and so indefinitely. It hurts one's influence, his efficiency, his spirituality, his health. It especially makes it impossible for him to manage his finances in a safe and sound way. In all things financial, he is uncertain and at a loss to know what or how to do. If he is to have one hundred dollars, let him have it at the definite time contracted for, then he can know what to depend on and can govern himself accordingly. It does not seem to me justice, to say nothing of Christian equity, to force a man to live as some that I know have had to live during the last year. If there can not be some arrangement effected by which money can be secured at the time to pay the amounts due the missionaries, then let the work be so readjusted that the missionaries shall not be left standing under a death strain till some indefinite time and uncertain relief. It seems to me that not only the missionaries, but the cause also, would be helped if a definite and sound policy financially could be inaugurated, making it possible for the Board to make contracts with missionaries, and then keep those contracts. Let not our great work be hindered and soiled by bad business, bad justice, bad morality. Cannot the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina remedy this evil? It is not the echo of a dream. It is a stern fact that demands adjustment. And we do injustice to ourselves, our missionaries, and our cause by letting it continue thus. Shall it continue thus? Or will the Convention adjust this matter? Fraternally,

ARTISTIC

Dress Making.

We respectfully beg to state that we have added and opened on Sept. 18th a Dress Making Department. This department has been thoroughly organized after months of careful preparation, and after having at great expense secured the very best talent to be had in their respective capacities, thus guaranteeing perfect equipment, not being excelled in artistic merit by the dress making establishments of any of the northern cities

Our lines of high class dress goods, comprising the newest Silks, Velvets and Dress Woolens are now on sale, and is the richest collection we have ever brought out.

We ask the attention of the ladies of North Carolina to this new feature of our business, assuring them that at moderate prices garments and costumes can be furnished here at home that will have the chic and style of French-made dresses.

Specialties: Bridal trousseaus and mourning outfits. Samples sent and estimates given.

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

My Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—I desire to give a few lines from my meetings:

BUIE'S CREEK, HARNETT COUNTY.

Here they have had no pastor during this year. Elder Allen Betts began the meeting on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in July. I came on Monday. Bro. Betts left Thursday. The meeting closed on Sunday, and I baptized ten. Two were restored, and the church and community were greatly revived.

SPRING BRANCH, SAMPSON COUNTY.

Bro. I. T. Newton began with the first of the meeting (Saturday) and left us on Thursday. He did most of the preaching while he was present, and did it well. The people in this section always appreciate his labors. He was their pastor before he went to college. The meeting closed on Sunday. Thirteen were baptized and one was restored. The effects of this meeting will be felt for a long time.

HOLLY SPRINGS, WAKE COUNTY.

While I was closing up my meeting at Spring Branch, Rev. O. Churchill was carrying on my meetings at the above named place, I reaching there on Tuesday. Bro. Churchill helped us during the entire meeting and did some most excellent preaching. It was a joy to me to labor with the faithful, aged servant of the Lord under whose preaching twenty-one years ago I was convicted of sin. I have never seen a church or Christians do better work than was done here. On Sunday I baptized twenty-four. It was a great revival of Christians. There are many things concerning this and my other meetings that I would like to say, but time forbids.

FRIENDSHIP, HARNETT COUNTY.

When I arrived here on Monday after leaving Holly Springs, I found Elders W. G. King and Allen Betts carrying on the meeting. Both rendered good service during the meeting, Bro. King doing most of the preaching, and did it so well that the people will ever be glad to welcome him among them. I did not know he could preach the gospel with so much power. Five were baptized at the close of the meeting, and the greatest work was among the members of the church.

HECTOR'S CREEK, HARNETT COUNTY.

There are but few people in this community but that are members of the church, and the church is in a good spiritual condition. Bro. Churchill helped me in a meeting here for a few days. There were no accessions. This was my first pastorate, and the church has now extended me its seventh annual call.

Although the times are hard, I think the spiritual condition of my churches is better than usual. Fraternally,

J. A. CAMPBELL.

P. S. Our school (Buie's Creek Academy) is the best we have ever had for a fall term. We now number eighty one, with a larger per cent. of boarders than ever before. Prospects are encouraging for a larger patronage.

J. A. C.

Poe's, Sept. 6th, 1893.

For Dyspepsia,
Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. F. H. Welty, Hamilton, Va., says: "I have tried it frequently, and always with the most satisfactory results. Nothing is equal to it for treatment of dyspepsia and the various complications resulting from disorders originating in the stomach. I consider it invaluable."

Prejudice.

There is, perhaps, no feeling that influences human nature that is more belittling than prejudice. It dries up a human soul to about the size of a mustard seed. It blinds the mental eye so that it can't see but one side of a question, and not clearly even that side. It perverts the will so that it determines not to see the other side. It shuts itself up in its own little shell, and thinks it knows it all, and regards anybody who believes differently as a fool and a sinner. This littleness is constantly seen in religion and politics, and many other things—people who have resolved not to read or hear anything that presents a different view from theirs. A person recently said: "I want to hear a Baptist preach the doctrines of his church."

A true man loves the truth. He will be in constant search for it. He will be glad to have the light turned on from both sides—from all sides—that he may see clearly what is truth. He certainly will want to know Bible truth; because by that his standing with God for time and eternity will be effected. All who can rise above the littleness of prejudice will want to hear both sides. "Prove all things, and hold fast to that which is good."

"Society."

The emptiest thing in the world is what is technically called "society." As things go in this country, the only conditions of entrance which it imposes are that the applicant should have a purse big enough to stand the expense of its sinful frivolities, and a mind little enough to be satisfied with its puerile amusements. For high breeding, intellectual cultivation, noble character, it makes no demands. In its poisonous atmosphere, Christian faith at once sickens and dies; and under the thin veneering of its artificial good manners, there is often found a moral rottenness that would disgrace a Hottentot and amaze a Sioux Indian.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Meetings and Baptisms.

Dear Recorder:—We had an interesting revival of religion at Ansonville the first and second weeks in August. The pastor was aided by Bro. W. H. Davis, a Wake Forest student, the first week, and Rev. C. H. Martin the second week. Both of these brethren are zealous and gifted.

The writer baptized four into the fellowship of Ansonville Baptist church at the close of the meeting.

And at the same time, Rev. J. P. Boyd baptized eight in the Great Pee Dee, the result of a meeting held with the Norwood Baptist church by Bro. W. H. Davis.

The writer began a meeting at Palmerville on the fourth Sunday in August, where Prof. E. F. Eddins' school is situated, who is doing a good work for the cause of education and religion. At the close of the meeting three young men of his school united with the church.

May the Lord be praised for his goodness.

G. O. WILHOIT.

Ansonville, Sept. 7, 1893.

It is a great thing for a young man to get out a little and come in contact with other people and see how they live. B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., are giving many young men a chance to do this, and at the same time put money in bank rapidly. Try them and see.

Petty Trials.

Many a Christian, weary and worn, is tempted to ask, Why does God appoint for me a lot in life that is as full of petty cares and trials as a neglected field is of briars and thorns? If he should send upon me some great affliction, I could rally all my strength, courage and faith to bear it. But these daily, hourly annoyances are like gnats and mosquitoes, so small and yet so many that they exhaust my patience and drive me to despair. But did you never think that you are being shaped and polished for the skies, and that the work of the sculptor is slow—a little chiseling at a time and all the time? Dr. Talmage says:

"I go into a sculptor's studio and see him shaping a statue. He has a chisel in one hand and a mallet in the other, and he gives a very gentle stroke—click, click, click. I say: 'Why don't you strike harder?' 'Oh,' he replies, 'that would shatter the statue.' So he works on, slowly, little by little, and the features come out, and everybody who enters the studio is charmed. God has our souls under process of development, and it is the little annoyances and vexations of life that are chiseling our characters for the skies."

Paul says; "Our light affliction, which is but for a moment [and he might have added comes every moment], worketh out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." We cannot all be conspicuous martyrs, but we can all be faithful unto death, and then receive the crown of life.—C. E. B., in Journal and Messenger.

Read for Personal Profit.

Do not read the Bible for others, for class or congregation, but for yourself. Bring all its rays to a focus on your own heart. While you are reading, often ask that some verse or verses may start out from the printed page as God's message to yourself. And never close the book until you feel that you are carrying away your portion of meat from that hand which satisfieth the desire of every living thing. It is well sometimes to stop reading and seriously ask: "What does the Holy Spirit mean me to learn by this? What bearing should this have on my life? How can I work this into the fabric of my character?

Above all, turn from the printed page to prayer. If a cluster of heavenly fruit hangs within reach, gather it. If a promise lies upon the page as a blank check, cash it. If a prayer is recorded, appropriate it, and launch it as a feathered arrow from the bow of your desire. If an example of holiness gleams before you, ask God to do as much for you. If a truth is revealed in all its intrinsic splendor, entreat that its brilliance may ever irradiate the hemisphere of yourself like a star. Entwine the climbing creepers of holy desire about the lattice work of Scripture. So shall you come to say with the psalmist: "Oh, how love I thy law; it is my meditation all the day."—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Take It Up and Do It.

If ever you find yourself where you have so many things pressing upon you that you hardly know how to begin, let me tell you a secret: Take hold of the first one that comes to hand, and you will find the rest all fall into file and follow after like a company of well-drilled soldiers. You have often heard the anecdote of the man who was asked how he had accomplished so much in this life. "My father taught me," was the reply, "when I had anything to do, to go and do it." There is the secret—the word now.—Selected.

A good brother who recently offered a prayer at a prayer-meeting started to make a reference to Noah, but got a little flustered and forgot the name of the patriarch. After hemming and hawing for a few moments he turned to a neighbor and asked in a loud whisper, "Who was it built the ark?"—The Christian Register.

Subject for September: Italy.

"So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also." Missionaries, 3; native assistants, 27; stations, 59; churches, 17; membership, 347; baptisms, 72. Contributions, $559.56.

STUDY TOPICS.—Ancient and modern Italy contrasted. A corrupt Christianity, or paganized papacy, one cause of decline and fall. Educational systems. Education dissevered from morality. Need of church edifices and enlargement of work.

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Italian Catechism for W. M. S.

QUESTION.—Who was the first Baptist Missionary in Italy?

ANSWER.—The Apostle Paul.

Q.—When did Southern Baptists begin?

A.—In 1850 the Board was invited to found a mission; in 1869 the subject was again considered; in 1870 a missionary was sent, Dr. W. N. Cote, who had been Y. M. C. A. Secretary in France with authority to appoint two assistants.

Q.—When was the first baptizing?

A.—Dr. John A. Broadus wrote from Rome in 1871: "Last evening five men were baptized (in a bath house, the Tiber being very swift, very muddy, and popularly regarded as very unhealthy), and this morning three more."

Q.—When was the first church formed?

A.—On Jan. 30, 1871, with sixteen members. Baptists were the first evangelists to enter Rome and this was the first non-Catholic church.

Q.—When was the first ordination?

A.—Signor Gioja was baptized in the Tiber March 21, 1872, and the following Sunday was ordained; the presbytery consisted of Revs. W. N. Cote, M. T. Yates of China, and George W. Anderson of the American Baptist Publication Society.

Q.—When was the Baptist Chapel built at Rome?

A.—It was dedicated November, 1878, and cost $34,821.94.

Q.—Who is now the principal Baptist missionary at Rome?

A.—Rev. Dr. Geo. B. Taylor, who went there in July, 1872.

Q.—When was Enrico Paschetto baptized?

A.—In August, 1878, by Dr. Taylor, and soon after became pastor at Milan.

Q.—Who is the most prominent convert?

A.—Count Oswald Papengouth of Russia, and connected by marriage with a noble English family.

Q.—When was Signor Bellondi baptized?

A.—The night of June 3, 1871.

Q.—When was the Via Theatro della Valle bought for a mission house?

A.—On March 17, 1877, for 129,000 Lire ($25,000). It is on one of the great thoroughfares, two hundred yards from the University of Rome. The improvements cost $5,000 additional to the purchase price.

Q.—When was Torre Pellice Chapel set apart for worship?

A.—On June 10 and 11, 1881.

Q.—When did Mrs Geo. B. Taylor die?

A.—On March 7, 1888. Dr. J. H. Eager writes the following of this estimable woman: "I can truly say that Mrs. Taylor was a martyr to the work in Italy, and it will never be known till the great day what burdens she bore."

Q.—When did Rev. Dr. J. H. Eager and wife go to Italy?

A.—In 1880.

Q—When was the Apostolic Baptist Union formed in Italy?

A.—In March, 1884.

Q.—Is the mission expense large in Italy?

A.—"We spend less I think per station than any Board in Italy."—G. B. Taylor.

Q.—What is the great need in Italian missions?

A.—"Money for chapels. 1. To save the Board heavy rents. 2. To save us from the tender mercies of Catholic landlords. 3. To insure us comfortable and respectable quarters. 4. To make our enemies and our friends feel that we have come to stay."—Geo. B. Taylor.

Q.—Who are the workers in Italy?

A.—Rome, Geo. B. Taylor, 52 Via Giulio Romano, Sig. Paschette; Florence, J. H. Eager and Mrs. Eager, Oricellari, 16 bis, Sig. Bellondi; Milan, Nicholas Papengouth; Venice and Mestre, Signor Barbisani; Bolongna, Signor Colombo; Modena and Cannes, Signor Ferraris; Carpi, Signor Mattei; Barletta, Signor Basile; Bari, Signor Volpi; Naples, Signor Fasulo; Boscoreale, Signor Martinelli; Torre Pellice, Signor Malan; Miglionico, Signor Piccinni; Cagliari, Sardinia, Signor Arbanasich; Domus Vovas, Sardinia Signor Cossus; Iglesias, Sardinia, Signor Fortonese.—Baptist Basket.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

Can this disease be cured? Most physicians say No—I say, Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 30 years study and experiment I have found the remedy.—Epilepsy is cured by it; cured, not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of to-day. Valuable work on the subject, and large bottle of the remedy—sent free for trial. Mention Post-Office and Express address.

PINY GROVE CHURCH.

Bro. T. M. Baldwin is pastor of this church. I had the pleasure of being with him in a few days' meeting here. The gospel was the power of God and had its own good effect on the members of the church and those who were not. From what I heard, saw and felt, there must have been some good done during the meeting.

DOVER CHURCH.

Bro. James Jordan is pastor of this church. I was with him the two last days of a week's meeting. It was delightful to stand on the bank of the beautiful stream and see this aged man of God baptize three sisters and three brothers. Bro. Webb had been with Bro. Jordan in the meeting and preached the gospel in its own sweetness and power.

FLINT HILL CHURCH.

Bro. K. C. Horner is pastor of this church. I helped him in a few days' meeting here. The Spirit of the Lord was with the people, and much good was done in all the directions of a gracious revival. I heard more, better and abler prayers during this meeting than I ever heard before in my life. A number of we brethren at the recess hour went to the woods for special prayer service. We had several young men with us who were concerned about their soul's salvation, and while the rain was falling we were on our knees in prayer for their conversion; and God in his goodness heard and answered our prayers and saved one of the young men.

ARBOR AT THE GRAVEYARD.

I have just closed a four-days' meeting at this place. Bro. H. W. Graham did most of the preaching, and he faithfully did it under the power and influence of the Spirit. Much good resulted. A spiritual influence has gone out from the meeting that will be lasting.

All these places are in Moore county, and when my mind goes back to the past I remember that thirty three years ago I commenced to preach the gospel in this my native county, and it moves me with grateful emotions to my Heavenly Father. I am glad to be with the people whom I tenderly love. God be praised for what he has done.

I am now on the way to Bethel church to help Pastor H. W. Graham in a meeting. This church is in Harnett county.

An Appeal for Help.

To our Baptist brethren, sisters and friends—On Monday morning, August 28, a fearful cyclone struck our town and did much damage to property. One life was lost and a few persons injured. The lowest estimated loss has been placed at $15,000. In the track of this destruction was our new brick house of worship, which was laid in ruins. The estimated loss on the house is about $2,000. But it is thought that we can save nearly or quite $500 if we can rebuild at once. This, it is thought, can be done by utilizing the present foundation, the floor, (which is in good condition now) and the galleries besides some of the material.

On the same foundation, we propose building a neat wooden structure. The building committee are making arrangements to go to work at once. The church has a membership of fifty-seven, mostly poor in this world's goods, yet they are, as a whole, doing to the extent of their ability and will do it. Some outside of our own flock have done nobly. We were made sad indeed by this mysterious providence, yet we are not despondent; we believe that God will make it all work together for the good of his people and the glory of his name. We are now out of doors only as others befriend us. We can't build such a house as the cause demands without outside help. This comes appealing to your sympathy. Help us to rebuild and trust the Lord. We are receiving encouragement from nearly every one approached. Will you fail us—won't your church respond as liberally as possible? Bro. Chas. A. G. Thomas of Greensboro was the first to respond with sympathy and—a donation; others have followed. "Even as ye would that men should do unto you," &c. Ask the Lord to direct you. Try to do something at once. We need it now.

Send all contributions to Bro. B. A. Brown, Secretary and Treasurer of Building Committee, Kernersville, N. C.

MEMBERS OF KERNERSVILLE BAPTIST CHURCH.
HENRY SHEETS, Pastor.

Letter from Missouri.

You have heard of the death of Rev. W. H. Williams, D. D., editor and proprietor of the Central Baptist of St. Louis, Missouri has been a difficult field for the pastor. Missouri has been a superlatively difficult field for the Baptist editor. Missouri is between two seas where Paul got wrecked. Here the North and the South meet. Here the East and the West meet. Here is the battle field for sectional prejudices. Here is the arena for all religious and social isms. Here a pastor must have neither a daft head nor rickety legs. Here a Baptist editor must have wisdom that cometh from above. Dr. Williams was successful. About ten years ago he took charge of the paper. It has grown in power and usefulness steadily.

Dr. Williams was pastor at Tuscaloosa, Ala. He was pastor at Charlottesville, Va., when he was called to the editorial chair in St. Louis. He married Miss Silcox of Charleston, S. C. He was pastor in Charleston, S. C. Dr. J. B. Jeter used to say, "If I could be a little boy again, I would like to have Mrs. Williams for my mother."

While waiting for a train at Alexandria, [illegible] died suddenly. It was heart disease. He was talking with brethren. They were trying to part away the time. It was [illegible] depot. Dr. [illegible] dropped his head on his breast as if [illegible] sleep. Mrs. W. G. Brown caught him in his arms to keep him from falling, and Dr. Williams was dead.

He has been one of the best friends I ever had. His death bereaves me unspeakably. I don't know what to do. When I came to Missouri a decade ago, Dr. Williams opened his home and his heart to me. More than six years ago he called me to his office and asked me to be an associate editor of the Central Baptist. Without interruption and without an unpleasant word or feeling I have been his servant for Jesus' sake a half dozen years. In his office, in his home, in my St. Joseph home, in Patee Park pulpit, I have known him, prayed with him. He lived in such close fellowship with Jesus that it was easy for him to die. He went to sleep very restfully, very sweetly.

In Chicago I met A. C. Dixon and H. M. Wharton who are working with D. L. Moody. Mr. Moody's plan comprises meetings here and there in Chicago. He has brought together the strongest preachers in the world. His meetings meet a demand in every thoughtful Christian who visits the big Fair. God's people ought to do something in keeping with the manifestations of progress and enterprise so abundant at the World's Columbian Exposition. One is satisfied some what when he turns into one of the many meetings under the management of D. L. Moody.

Craven County Mission—A New Church Organized.

I came upon this work the first of this year. It is a new mission field, sustained by the Newbern Baptist church. I am the first missionary they employed for this work. I had to organize the work after I came on the field. There was not a Baptist church nor a Baptist house of worship on the field. On July 12th, 1893, we laid the foundation for a Baptist church at Core Creek station on the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, eighteen miles from Newbern and nine miles from any other Baptist church.

On Aug. 26th, Rev. A. L. Stough of the Kinston Baptist church preached the first sermon in our new and the only Baptist house of worship on my field. On August 29th, we organized the Core Creek Baptist church with seven members.

Bro. Stough was called home to conduct a funeral service, but I continued the meeting for eight days, which resulted in ten or twelve conversions and five additions to our church, making a membership of twelve in all. I think others will join soon.

We have expended about $250 on our house. We have just gotten it so we can hold services in it now. We owe $75 on it, and will have to expend at least $100 more to make it comfortable for the winter.

The people around this point are poor, besides the whole community is just emerging from a long seige of typhoid fever, which has produced great impoverishment. They have done what they could, especially the few who are of our faith.

The Newbern Baptist church has been very liberal in its contribution to this special work, besides the taking of the responsibility of sustaining a missionary for all of his time.

Now that we have got thus far on this work, we greatly need assistance in completing it. There are several brethren located near the hub of the great Baptist wheel of North Carolina who have promised me one dollar for every Baptist church I would build. Brethren, I greatly need your dollar for this little struggling band, and more if you can spare it. How many churches will take one collection for this object? Send your money to the undersigned and it will be acknowledged in the RECORDER.

Ami's Chapel.

This church had a delightful meeting in August. Rev. R. Van Deventer of Henderson came to the pastor's aid on Tuesday. For five days he preached the old gospel with earnestness and power. It is difficult for the brethren to remember his hard name, but they will never forget him as a brother beloved in the Lord.

Nine were received for baptism. Eight were baptized. One was sick. I have rarely seen a meeting so helpful to Christians, both old and young.

Prejudice AND Suffering.

Prejudice and Progress are deadly foes; one is cold, sarcastic, inert, ignorant. The other represents action, energy, adaptability, versatility, genius. Be progressive; prejudice is the child of precedent. Progress is the manhood of invention. Be manly. The ELECTROPOISE is the most progressive of all modern systems of treatment of disease. Progressive, because it has picked from the tangled skein of Nature's laws the golden thread of health and woven a fabric of treatment, sure, safe, expeditious and efficient. Be skeptical but just; your skepticism is not proof against convincing facts. Write. A postage stamp pays the bills.

Our TREATMENT DEPARTMENT is in charge of a physician and surgeon. Skilled assistance is at your door, and professional advice at your disposal. Don't let prejudice make you continue to suffer. Be progressive and be cured.

Progress AND Cure.

ATLANTIC ELECTROPOISE CO., Washington, D. C.

From East Durham, N. C.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Doubtless it will be of some interest to the readers of the RECORDER to hear that the Lord is so wonderfully blessing his people along the lines. The fourth Sunday in July we began a series of meetings with Green Level church, resulting in about forty professions of faith. The meeting lasted eight days and at its close we baptized thirty-one and restored some who gave evidence of restored joy. The influence of the work will be felt in that community for years to come. Rev. W. S. Olive and Bro. J. E. Yates, a young ministerial student at Wake Forest, did good preaching for us at this place and greatly endeared themselves to the people.

The third Sunday in August we began a series of meetings with Cary Baptist church and were aided at this point by Rev. J. E. White who expounded the gospel with power and clearness. A bright future awaits this brother and the people will not be slow, we trust, to open the way for his highest development and usefulness. Everybody was edified and spiritually strengthened who heard him preach. The meeting at Cary continued for two weeks and the Lord poured out his Spirit upon us without measure. One of the signs of a good meeting was first manifested by the settlement of all difficulties between neighbors and church members. We think every tomahawk was buried and we have never seen such universal enjoyment of the Christian religion. The crowds were unusually large and although we were hindered from meeting several times on account of the storms, the interest did not abate to the end. About forty confessions were made, most of whom were grown, settled men and women. Sixteen additions to the church has followed so far, eleven being baptized at the close of the services. All our meetings have been quiet but characterized by unwonted spiritual power.

We held a meeting at East Durham last spring which resulted in twenty-four baptisms. During this year up to date we have added about fifty members to this church. We will begin special services here again on Sunday the 17th inst., Rev. W. C. Tyree of the First church will aid us. May the work continue to prosper for Christ's sake.

C. W. BLANCHARD.

A Wise Method.

No parent or Sunday-school teacher can do a wiser thing than to put that sparkling paper Our Little Ones into the hands of the smallest children. It wins the child to the study of the Bible and to God. It cannot be too highly endorsed.

Let all who desire conveyance from the railroad send on their names at once. G. L. FINCH.

"Honesty is the best policy." Nobody contradicts it. Your dealer can get lamp-chimneys that almost never break from heat, or those that break continually. Which does he get? Which do you get?

Macbeth's "pearl top" and "pearl glass" are tough against heat; not one in a hundred breaks in use. The glass is clear as well as tough. They are accurate, uniform.

DIED.

STALLINGS—Died suddenly at her father's home in Perquimans county, N. C., on Sept. 2d, 1893, Cora Lee Stallings, aged five years and two months. "It is well with the child." May God pity and comfort the parents, and by this providence draw them closer to himself. J. B. FEREBEE.

LEE—Died at the home of her parents, near Malcom, N. C., Aug. 19th, 1893, Annie J. Lee, aged twenty years, wife of Willie T. Lee of Wilson, and daughter of Deacon John H. Nicholson of Gardner's church.

Beautiful in person and in character, gentle, winning and affectionate in disposition, she was the pride of the family, the favorite of the community, and the idol of her young husband. Her dying words were a quotation from 1 Cor. 15: 55–57, and a farewell request to each member of the family to meet her in heaven. N. B. COBB.

JERNEGAN—Departed this life at his home in Duplin county, July 19th, 1893, Bro. Calvin Jernegan, in the seventy-third year of his age. He had been afflicted for more than twenty years, but did not complain under the chastening rod of affliction, but endured all his troubles with Christian patience, being resigned to the will of his Heavenly Father, and through all his suffering he quietly waited for the call to go to that land where sorrow is unknown.

Bro. Jernegan was baptized about twenty-five years ago and received into the fellowship of the Bear Marsh Baptist church. He leaves an aged wife and two grandchildren to mourn their loss, but they have the comfort of knowing that the change is for the best, for "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." W. L. B.

TISDALE—Arthur W. Tisdale, son of brother and sister J. M. Tisdale, was born Oct. 10th, 1880, and died in Selma, Johnston county, N. C., Sept. 5th, 1893, aged about thirteen years.

Arthur gave his heart to Jesus and united with Selma Baptist church about one year ago, since which time his life has exhibited marks of a child of God. He made a bright profession, lived very consistently for one so young, and died like a Christian—what more could be desired. He never missed a service at his church if in town and well enough to attend. During his last illness he asked his father if his monthly obligation to the pastor's salary and other church expenses had been paid for the month just expired. On being answered in the affirmative, he gave an expression of pleasure and became quiet. "He was a youth of easy approach and affable manners, which won for him the highest esteem of all who knew him," is about the way many have expressed themselves since Arthur has been called away. May he who said "comfort one another with these words," speak to the hearts of the parents and sister bereft by this death. O. C. HORTON.

Selma, N. C., Sept. 8, 1893.

DOUGHTY—Estelle, beloved daughter of Charles and Mary E. Doughty, was born March 14th, 1876, and died of typhoid fever August 26th, 1893, aged eighteen years and twelve days.

She was bright and popular among all her acquaintances, and had desired to take a full course at Murfreesboro, but was compelled to return home the second year because of feeble health. She had taught one session near her home and was contemplating teaching again when she was called to go up higher. Two years ago she gave her heart to Christ and was baptized into the fellowship of Hamilton Baptist church. Since then she has let her light shine for her Saviour. Strange coincidence that her birth, connection with the church, baptism and burial should have all taken place on Sunday.

This young lady's death was a shock to all, especially her mother, brother and sister, of whom she was very fond. Her life was short, but she lived well. She did much for self-improvement and was rewarded for her pains by loved ones at home and admiring friends. From the church militant she has gone to the church triumphant, leaving many sorrowing hearts behind. G. J. D.

COFFEY—Died at her home in Boone, June 24th, 1893, of cancerous tumor, Mrs. Carrie L. Coffey, wife of W. C. Coffey, and mother of E. S. Coffey of the Wake Forest class of 1890, and T. F. Coffey, who also spent some time at Wake Forest.

Mrs. Coffey was a daughter of H. Curtis, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Wilkes county. She was nearly fifty years old at the time of her death. She had been an active member of the Baptist church, and a constant reader of the RECORDER for about thirty years. She died as only those who have lived in active discharge of Christian duty can. She was perfectly rational and supremely happy in death. When she was notified that she was dying she seemed pleased with the information, and spent some three hours in pleading with her friends to meet her in heaven. Such a plea as it has never been my privilege to listen to.

Mrs. Coffey presided over Coffey's Hotel for many years, and her hospitality will be remembered and her death bemoaned by many a guest of that popular house.

She was a consecrated Christian, a devoted wife, an affectionate mother, a faithful friend and a good neighbor. She will be greatly missed for many a day. A FRIEND.

NORRIS—Samuel Norris died in Wake county on Sept. 5th, 1893, suddenly at his dinner, joyfully in hope of eternal bliss. He was born March 3d, 1814, and was educated at Wake Forest College in its primeval days, under the management of Samuel Waite, during the years of 1836 and 1837, after which he engaged in teaching in western Wake county until 1840, when he married Delia Olive of Chatham, a sister of Rev. Johnson Olive, who was much loved by the Baptists of Wake county. The union was one of blended joy and happiness, they having lived together fifty-three years.

Samuel Norris was unpretentious, frank and courteous in manner to all, generous and kind to the poor and afflicted, hospitable to all alike, the poor as well as the affluent. He lived and died within one mile of his birthplace, being the last living son of Needham Norris, leaving behind him his youngest sister, Mrs. Jane Betts, aged seventy years, his wife aged seventy-five years, and an only son, H. W. Norris, well known in Wake county. He lived an example worthy of emulation. He lived that he might be a blessing to his day and generation, giving instruction and training to many whose hairs are frosted with time, ever honoring God in his daily walk and conversation. The deceased often spoke with pride of his alma mater, Wake Forest College, and the elevated training the young men received under its wise leadership, and the continued progress of the school, that it had risen from small surroundings and scanty accommodations to wondrous structures in architect and scientific appliances worthy the age we live in, and in training the young to lofty aspirations and instilling light and knowledge to all who partake of its benefits. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

JONES—Death has no respect of persons. On Sept. ——, the angel visitor came to the home of our much-beloved brother, John P. Jones, and took from him the idol of his life, his noble wife, Vonie. The large crowd present at the funeral services and the many tears that were shed told that she was much beloved by all who knew her. She was mild and gentle and upright in conversation, good to the poor, and always ready to visit the sick, not from a sense of duty, but from a big, sympathetic heart. The funeral exercises were conducted by the writer. The task was a melancholy one, owing to the close friendship felt for her, having known her from boyhood and had learned to love her with much devotion. Her life is an example to those who knew her, and her death was a victorious triumph. We extend a heart felt sympathy to her husband, her mother and eight children. May God bind up the broken hearts and cheer the drooping spirits. We hang our harps on the weeping willow, while she has tuned hers with the heavenly orchestra. She was a member of the Olive Branch Baptist church for more than twenty years, and her record there is in pure white. Thus we conclude that with the church triumphant she has a seat with many honors. T. B. HILL.

Blue Wing, N. C.

STONE—Mrs. Mary A. Stone, wife of Mr. Mark P. Stone near Cary, N. C., passed away on Sunday night, Sept. 10th, 1893, about nine o'clock. She was in her sixty-second year, and had been a member of the church for more than forty years. She was a member of Ephesus church at her death. We do not hesitate to hold up her life as that of a model Christian. She loved her church and was self-denying for its support. She evinced the character of a true and devoted companion, always making sunshine in her home and cheering the heart of her partner in life. She was a motherly mother, and it is said by her neighbors that she ruled her household without exception by that potent agent, the rod of love. A servant to the wants of her house, pouring out her life for the comfort of others, she died, as might be expected, triumphant in the hope of her reward. Such lives and such deaths are commendable examples for imitation and living witnesses of the worth of Christianity. Mrs. Stone was the mother of seven children, three of whom are now living to feel and mourn her departure. These, with her husband, a number of grand children and a host of friends that her true life had made, are saddened by her loss to them, but are made glad in their hope of the resurrection. The funeral took place Tuesday evening at Morrisville, conducted by the writer.

Tributes of Respect.

On Friday, the 25th of August, 1893, after an illness of four weeks, our friend and Sunday-school class-mate, Willie A. Sheppard, died of typhoid fever, aged eighteen years. She was the daughter of Mrs. Willie Ann and the late Mr. John S. Sheppard. She connected herself with the Cashie Baptist church and Sunday school at a very early age and was a consistent and upright member. She was kind and gentle to all who knew her, was the pet of the household and the baby of the family.

WHEREAS, Our heavenly Father has seen fit to remove our friend and sister from earth to heaven:

Resolved first, That we bow in humble submission to his holy will.

Second, That we have met with a great loss in the church, Sunday-school and whole community, and that our loss is her eternal gain.

Third, That these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family with our sympathy, published in the BIBLICAL RECORDER and Windsor Ledger, and spread upon the minutes of our church and Sunday-school.

God Give us Men!

God give us men! A time like this demands
Great hearts, strong minds, true faith and willing hands.
Men who the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor, men who will not lie;
For while the rabble, with their thumb-worn creeds,
Their large professions and their little deeds,
Wrangle in selfish strife—lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps.
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Comfortable Words.

I sometimes hold it half a sin
To put in words the grief I feel;
For words, like Nature, half reveal
And half conceal the Soul within.

But for the unquiet heart and brain,
A use in measured language lies;
The sad mechanic exercise,
Like dull narcotics, numbing pain.

In words, like weeds, I'll wrap me o'er,
Like coarsest clothes against the cold:
But that large grief which these enfold
Is given in outline and no more.
—Alfred Tennyson.

Good Words for Boys.

Be gentle, boys. It is high praise to have it said of you: "He is as gentle as a woman to his mother." It is out of fashion to suppose if you ignore mother and make a little sister cry whenever she comes near you, that people will think you belong to the upper stratum of society.

Be manly, boys. A frank, straightforward manner always gains friends. If you have committed a fault, step forward and confess it. Never do anything which afterward may cause a blush of shame to come to your face.

Be courteous, boys. It is just as easy to acquire a genteel, courteous manner, as an ungracious, don't care style; and it will help you through life. Other things being equal, the boy who knows the use of "I beg your pardon," and "I thank you," will be chosen for a position, three to one, in preference to a boy to whom such sentences are strangers.

Be prompt, boys. Business men do not like tardiness. They realize that time is valuable. Five minutes every morning amounts to half an hour at the end of the week.

Be thorough, boys. Black the heels as well as the toes of your shoes, and be sure that they both shine. Pull out the roots of the weeds in the flower beds. Don't break them off and leave them to spring up again when the first shower comes. Understand your lesson. Don't think that all that is necessary is to get through a recitation and receive a good mark.—The Sunlight.

Keeping a Wife Young.

A certain amount of social life is absolutely necessary to all of us—to the old as well as to the young, writes Edward W. Bok in a pertinent article on man's inability to see things as others see them, in the Ladies' Home Journal. A woman never grows so old that she ceases to enjoy the company of others, and generally the older she grows the more she enjoys it. It is always a pity to see a man fall into a state which he explains by saying: "Oh, we're getting old, and don't care for so much variety in our lives." In the pure unselfishness of his soul he always speaks of "us" and "we," as if it naturally follows that because he is getting antiquated his wife must keep pace with him in his decline. Men all too often make their wives too old. It is a greater credit to a husband to keep his wife young than to make her grow old. His actions and his habits necessarily influence those of his wife. Let him keep in touch with the world, and both he and his wife will be the better and the younger for it. I like to see a man proud of his wife because she keeps young. Old age is beautiful and has its advantages, but a man makes a great mistake when he rushes a woman unnecessarily toward it. And he does it most perfectly when he deprives her of those enjoyments which every man should give his wife. No economy is so false, so hollow and so misguided as that which seeks to withhold one pleasure from the life of a good woman, a true wife or a loving mother. The best home a man can give a woman becomes "poky," as one woman I know expresses it, if she is asked to live in it three hundred and sixty-five days out of every year. The good Lord knows that woman's life in this world is hard enough. She travels a path of endurance and suffering, to which man, be he ever so heavily afflicted, is an entire stranger. It was given to man to make that path as pleasant, as easy and as bright as possible. Every dollar which a man spends for the happiness of the woman of his home will come back to him in double, yea, in four-fold measure.

Mothers, and especially nursing mothers, need the strengthening support and help that comes with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It lessens the pains and burdens of child-bearing, insures healthy, vigorous offspring, and promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment on the part of the mother. It is an invigorating tonic, made especially for women, perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system, as it regulates and promotes all the natural functions and never conflicts with them.

The "Prescription" builds up, strengthens and cures. In all the chronic weaknesses and disorders that afflict women, it is guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded.

Rapid Breathing as a Remedy.

About fifteen years ago Major General Drayson of the British army often suffered, especially at night, from a severe pain in the region of the heart. He believed he was doomed to die soon of heart disease. About that time certain of his experiences in the mountains of India led him to think that his heart pain might be due to insufficient oxygenation of the blood. He therefore tried to relieve it by breathing rapidly—at the rate of about forty breaths a minute. In a few seconds the pain ceased and did not return again that night.

After that, he says, he always resorted to the same expedient, and invariably with success. As time went on the pain became not only less frequent, but less severe, and now if there is the slightest indication of it, rapid breathing prevents its arrival at maturity.

He thereupon brings forward many instances in support of his belief that some of the advantages of moderate exercise are to be gained by simply breathing rapidly. Rapid breathing is an effect of exercise, and this is beneficial because the rapid breathing gives the blood plenty of oxygen.

Invalids and others who cannot take exercise can obtain some of its good effects by deliberately passing much pure air through the lungs. Rapid breathing is particularly helpful in cases of sleeplessness and restlessness.

The air must of course be pure, else rapid breathing can have no good effect. Hundreds of thousands attribute disease to themselves when nothing is wrong except their habit of breathing air impure from tobacco smoke, gas burning, or simply from a lack of ventilation.

Impure air makes impure blood and impure flesh. Thus those who consume such air fall quickly into and before disease. They cannot endure an open window or door because they feel cold, this sense of coldness being in many cases simply a symptom that the blood has been vitiated by the breathing of poisonous air.

To breathe air laden with human exhalations is not a whit more sensible, as General Drayson observes, than to drink liquid sewage for a beverage.—Youth's Companion.

Stop and Think.

The trouble with a good many people is that they do not stop and think. Life is so full that there does not seem to be time for it. There are so many things to take up our attention that is difficult for us to get space for even a few minutes of real earnest thought. So we go plunging down the rapid stream of time, giving ourselves to the current which sweeps us along until at last we reach the ocean of eternity with no adequate preparation for its solemn realities. How different many lives would be, how much more would be accomplished, and how much happier the end, if people would only take time now and then to stop and think!

Surely there is abundant reason why we should do so. Every one ought certainly to give earnest heed to the great facts of life. Is it not strange that so few comparatively take time to ask themselves what they are here in this world for; what risks they have to run; what duties to perform; what is their present condition in the sight of God, and what their everlasting destiny is to be? Alas! how many wrecks strew the shores of human life from failure in this regard. "Oh," says the poor fellow, who lies with broken health waiting for death, "If I had only stopped to think I would not be here to day!" "Oh," cries the pinched and starving woman, who but a few years since was a bright and promising girl, "had I only stopped to think, how different would be my condition!" We cannot doubt that in the world of woe there are countless multitudes who sent themselves there because they would not stop and think. Young friends, stop and think. —Our Young People.

The Power of Love.

The following story is from a recent English work entitled "Blessed be Drudgery," by Wm. C. Gannett:

"In a pottery factory here, there is a workman who had one small invalid child at home. He wrought at his trade with exemplary fidelity, being always in the shop with the opening of the day. He managed, however, to bear each evening to the bedside of his 'wee lad,' as he called him, a flower, a bit of ribbon, or a fragment of crimson glass—indeed, anything that would lie out on the white counterpane and give color to the room. He was a quiet, unsentimental man, but never went home a night without something that would make the wan face light up with joy at his return. He never said to a living soul that he loved that boy so much. Still he went on patiently loving him, and by and by he moved that whole shop into positively real but unconscious fellowship with him. The workmen made curious little jars and cups, and painted diminutive pictures down their sides before they stuck them in the corners of the kiln at burning-time. One brought some fruit in the bulge of his apron, and another engravings in a rude scrap book. Not one of them whispered a word, but they put them in the old man's hat, where he found them; he understood all about it.

"And believe it or not, cynics, as you will, but it is a fact that the entire pottery full of men, of rather course fibre by nature, grew quiet as the months drifted, becoming gentle and kind; and some dropped swearing as the weary look on the patient fellow-worker's face told them beyond mistake that the inevitable shadow was drawing nearer. Every day some one did a piece of work for him and put it on a sanded bank to dry, so that he could come later and go earlier. So when the bell tolled, and the little coffin came out of the lonely door, right round the corner, out of sight, there stood a hundred stalwart workingmen from the pottery, with their clean clothes on, most of whom gave half a day's time for the privilege of taking part in the simple procession, and following to the grave that small burden of a child which probably not one had ever seen."

Fatal.

Clifford Harrison, the English reader, has his own ideas of the "total depravity of inanimate things." He says it is usually fatal to introduce an effective pause into a recitation, for something is sure to mar it. He adds plaintively:

"If I am reciting in a hall where there is a striking clock, or past which a train runs, with a shriek and roar, I know that striking clock and shrieking train will make themselves heard at a moment when it is most important for me to have unbroken silence.

I once wrote some verses for recitation, into which I was so injudicious as to put a sudden exclamation:

'Listen! What is that?'

I might have known what would happen. Clocks chimed, doors slammed, special trains screamed, old gentlemen coughed, some one was seized with an irrepressible sneeze, dogs came from distant parts on purpose to bark, candle shades fell off, a waiter dropped a tray and teacups, a baby cried, and a deaf old lady was heard to say to her neighbor:

'Would half a cucumber be of any use?'

I learned bitter wisdom, and cut the passage out."—Youth's Companion.

A BAD WRECK

—of the constitution may follow in the track of a disordered system, due to impure blood or inactive liver. Don't run the risk! The proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery take all the chances. They make a straightforward offer to return your money if their remedy fails to benefit or cure in all disorders and affections due to impure blood or inactive liver. The germs of disease circulate through the blood; the liver is the filter which permits the germs to enter or not. The liver active, and the blood pure, and you escape disease.

When you're run down, debilitated, weak, and your weight below a healthy standard, you regain health, strength, and wholesome flesh, by using the "Discovery." It builds up the body faster than nauseating Cod liver oils or emulsions.

There wouldn't be any cases of Chronic Catarrh if everyone used Dr. Sage's Remedy. There's $500 reward for an incurable case.

IT IS a very prevalent belief that those Congressmen who are in favor of the "Wilson Repeal Bill" are opposed to free silver coinage, and there appear good reasons for this error, for it is an error, when one reads the speeches of the Congressmen and the press comments thereon. Yet, we believe if the question were put directly to each of the members, not ten per cent. of them would declare for a gold standard. The difference in the attitude of those members who were elected on the same platform, and who heretofore have always been known to work together under the same banner, is caused by their difference of opinion as to how the free coinage of silver on a parity with gold may be attained. This difference of opinion as to methods of procedure has placed a Democratic President in a Republican attitude, has estranged him from the party that elected him, and at the present time threatens the annihilation of that party, so heartily endorsed by the great body of the people last November. What will be done cannot be predicted, but we feel no hesitancy in saying that the party in power had better unite for the common end—free silver on a parity with gold—else, it will never gain another victory. It does seem to us that a difference in methods should not cause such a great waste of time. A decided majority is obviously and confessedly in favor of free silver coinage on a parity with gold, and yet the disagreement as to means of attaining that end is so great that no favorable measure can be effected. We are glad that the country has shown that it was above legislation in this instance in recovering its wonted steadiness as it has in the last few weeks; if it hadn't been able to recover from the panic without the aid of legislation, we do not know, nor do we care to imagine, where our business interests would be by this time. Let Congress act. Let it move, even if the motion is to adjourn.

GROVER CLEVELAND will probably be the last President for many years to come to be re-elected. The evils of a second administration have been strikingly demonstrated since his late inauguration. His numerous arbitrary acts in the past few months cannot be accounted for by asserting that he has always been a man of great independence of spirit, of individual power, of undaunted convictions, &c. We will give him credit for these qualities; but there is a difference—a remarkable difference—in the actions of Cleveland the inexperienced President, and the President to-day. It is natural—no more than could be expected of an ambitious mortal; and most of us are of that nature. In his first administration Cleveland was desirous of securing a second election, and he acted accordingly. Never was a President more careful not to offend his adherents. He chose a cabinet that was representative, and which strengthened him in various States; he distributed his patronage in a manner that showed his appreciation of doubtful localities. He catered to the party that elected him, whenever possible; and, though defeated once for the Presidency, he gained two renominations, and was finally restored to power. Now mark the difference: He has surrounded himself with a personal cabinet, regard having been paid neither to power, party, nor popularity. He has given posts of honor to men of the opposing party, and is very slow in reinstating his adherents. He opposes the South and West on the financial question, and appears in favor of a gold standard, without suggesting that his ultimate aim is free silver on a parity with gold, though his friends claim that as his policy. He insults the voters of the West by his efforts to postpone the enforcement of the "Geary Act," and he antagonizes the South by opposing action in the Federal Election matter. Heretofore he has always catered to these sections, and his present attitude toward them has astounded his party. Surely there is a difference between Cleveland, the candidate for re election, whose every aim was to please democracy, and Cleveland re-elected, his political ambition satiated, who longs for fame as the "man above his party," too great for the age in which he lived. It is all very well; we like to see a man above his party—it is an ideal state—but it grieves us to see a President above the party promises on which he was elected, without explanation or apparent excuse.

THE discovery, settlement, and consequent growth of this country, has had a greater influence on the civilized world than any other event, or series of events, since the Christian era. Old systems have been rehabilitated and reformed, monarchies have been limited and abolished, and the whole world breathes a freer atmosphere as direct results of our unprecedented progress and the enormous growth of our institutions. Not the least of the great changes that have been effected is that of our contemplation of the Future, rather than the Past. Four hundred years ago, with the revival of learning, all intelligence was directed to retrospection upon the Greek and Roman civilizations, until Europe almost forgot that there was a future for human society. Everything was contemplated in the classical after-glow reflected from the departing brilliancy of Rome and Greece. To-day we have turned from antiquity, and are gazing vainly into the future. Never before has a single generation seen a great nation spring into being, or a whole continent rise from comparative barbarism to our present hopeful level. No wonder that a people who have witnessed and taken part in this remarkable result should strain their eyes forward and breathlessly ask, "What next?" Prediction is the hobby of the age. A newspaper is not popular unless it predicts political events. And yet it is all vain. We make a grave mistake in encouraging prophecy, for the simple reason that one man can predict as well as another, and none have certain knowledge. It were far better to learn the facts, and construct your own future, and pay no regard to prophetic newspapers. In nine cases out of ten they fail of their predictions, and yet their readers continue to read and believe them. We should study the present, and leave the future to another generation. To live in the future tense is as deprecable as to live in the past; neither can be productive of good, and both warp the capabilities of the present.

Talks About Law—No. 17.

BY JUDGE R. W. WINSTON.

CRIMINAL TRESPASS.

Every trespass on land is not a crime, of course. We have civil trespasses, and we have criminal trespasses.

It is the boast of the law that it gives a remedy for every wrong. So if a man goes on another's land and tramples his grass, or injures crops or fruit even by accident, he may be sued and damages recovered.

It is not of this kind of trespass that we propose to write at present; but of such trespasses as are violations of the statute law of the State, to wit, criminal trespass. Of these there are two kinds: First, wilful trespass, and second, forcible trespass.

The difference between them is this: Wilful trespass is committed without force and in the absence of the owner of the land generally. Forcible trespass is high-handed and occurs despite the owner's presence and against his forbidding. The latter is, hence, of course, the graver of the two offences.

Let us consider wilful trespass for a moment. A man has a body of land, on which he forbids any one hunting. Now, if some sportsman goes on the land after being thus forbidden to kill game, or for any other purpose, he is guilty of wilful trespass. Simply posting the land would not give the party notice unless he saw the poster.

Bear in mind that one is answerable for all actual damage he does on the land, notice or no notice. But to fix him with crime, he must have notice to keep off. This offence is the creature of statute. It did not exist at common law, and by this we mean for such a length of time that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Our courts have said that it was enacted into law to protect land owners against squatters and careless persons. It has no application to a person who goes on the land in good faith under a claim of right. Nor can it be used to try the title to land. It will be seen that it is a very useful little statute in its place. It tends to preserve the peace. If a man does not wish another ever to put foot on his premises again, and so notifies him, and that other even presses the naked soil with his foot thereafter without license from the owner, he is acting in the teeth of this law. So much for wilful trespass.

Now about forcible trespass. It is the high-handed invasion of the property of another, he being present forbidding. And a thing to be borne in mind is that title is not drawn into question. Indeed, a man may be, and often is, convicted for forcible trespass not only on land to which he has title, but on land which he has the legal right then to occupy. How is this?

Suppose that a land-owner rents his land for 1893 to a tenant, the tenant to give up the land Dec. 1, 1893. The first of December, 1893, comes. Landlord goes to land and demands possession: tenant will not get out; Landlord forcibly puts him and his in the big road. This is forcible trespass.

Title is not drawn into question. On this head the only question is, who is in the actual possession of the land? Do not let us get the matter confused. The landlord has his legal remedy, short, simple and inexpensive. Let him complain to the nearest justice of the peace, and the justice will have an officer remove the tenant.

If the party in possession is a bare trespasser, a squatter, one who did not rightfully enter into possession, he may be removed from the land with force. But this is the only instance in which a man can take the law into his own hands and remove another from his land. For example: if, while a man were absent from home temporarily, some person were to take possession of his residence or land, when the rightful owner came back, he could use such force as was necessary to remove the intruder.

It will now appear why the landlord could not remove his last year's tenant by force. Because the tenant entered the land rightfully under a contract. And if the law permitted men who dispute about the title to land to remove each other therefrom, there would be no end to strife. For every man thinks he is right in respect of his real estate holdings. Some years ago a rowdy fellow came along the public road and, when in front of a dwelling, began to curse and create disorder. The owner of the dwelling ordered the man to go away. To this the reply came that he would not, as he had as much right to the road as anybody. He was tried and convicted for forcible trespass. The court said that he had as much right to the public road as any one, so long as he behaved himself; but that, for the purpose of this trial, the land-owner was in possession of the road fronting his land.

From all the authorities on this subject, it is safe to conclude that force ought not to be used to put another off any land unless that other is a mere intruder. If he is there by contract, written or unwritten, he cannot be forcibly ejected, even after his right to remain has ended under said contract. This is a very wholesome law. If it were otherwise, discord and confusion would ensue. Because each man would seek to right his own fancied or real wrong.

It often happens that those are the best people whose characters have been the most injured by slanderers, as we usually find that to be the sweetest fruit which the birds have been constantly picking at.—Selected.

Some Items from North China.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—During April and May, after my wife was well enough for me to leave home, I went to seven or eight different villages from ten to thirty miles distant from Tung Chow, and spent some days at each, visiting many other villages from these centers, and preaching on the streets, in the inns, on the farms, by the roadside, or anywhere that I could find or make an opportunity. I think I see a decided increase of interest, even in the two years that I have been engaging in this kind of work. I feel that the reaping time is coming on when the seeds sown here for thirty years—sown in tears, amid the most discouraging circumstances—will bring forth abundant fruit to God's glory. Many of the sowers will already have gone to their reward—perhaps none who have done much scattering of the seeds will remain to see the ripened sheaves gathered in on earth, but the sowers and reapers shall enter together with joy into the everlasting kingdom on high, and ascribe all the praise and honor unto him "who hath loved us and given himself for us."

In all the places which I visited this spring I found willing hearers, and some whom I believe to be near the kingdom of God. It was a real joy to talk to such about the only Saviour from sin, even when great effort was required to try to clear the mind of radically wrong notions. I fell into conversation one day with an old country farmer seventy-six years old who seemed really to be working for salvation. He had a distinct realization of his sinfulness, and that to have it forgiven required some kind of good deeds. So he was constantly engaged in fixing up bad places in the road near the village, expecting thus to gain favor with the gods. There is no public arrangement in this part of China to repair roads, and he who voluntarily does it is counted a "hying haoti," (a performer of good deeds.) I tried with all my powers to show this poor old man that all this could never benefit his soul, and that Jesus could and would save him if he would but trust him and him only. This idea of gaining favor with the gods by such deeds is very common here—so common that very many think that the object of all our work here as missionaries is to gain merit personally with the gods. But few can see any other meaning in any of our charities than this. While at this same village, where I met this old man, I was going one day to another village a mile away and was overtaken by a bright boy of thirteen. He said, "Where are you going?" I replied, "To that village yonder." "What are you going for?" "To tell the people about the true God and the Saviour of the world." I said, "Where are you going?" "I am going to that village also." "What for?" "To buy some eggs." Then we chatted along for the mile. Everywhere we go we find many people, especially school boys, who are anxious to receive our books. I had been led from many things I had seen, and from conversations with experienced Chinese Christians, to fear that these books given away were often not read, but simply taken to make fun of us, or to carry home to use for scrubbing rags, or to make shoe soles. So I had decided not to give away books in this promiscuous way. At this village swarms of boys came begging for books, and I refused to give them, but agreed to sell them at a nominal price. I sold a dozen or more to these boys, and I found that this boy had bought one. He said, "Teacher, this idea of selling your books to us is a good one. Formerly the missionaries gave them to us freely, and we put no value on them—not even on the character. Now when we pay for them we value them, take them home, or to the school room, and read them, and our teachers examine them." I put him down as a reasoner.

A very respectable old teacher in the same village invited me into his school house for a talk, and has insisted on my going in once since, as I was just passing through.

At another village, where Dr. Crawford and I were together, several were much interested. I felt specially drawn towards one man of sixty-five, who said to us, "I am just the same as in hell—is there any way to escape?" On our last night we had a room full of men and boys. I suggested that Dr. Crawford, now seventy-one, would perhaps meet them no more till at the judgment bar of God, where they must render account for all the truth he had preached to them. This touched the old man, Dr. C., and he took the hymn, "I am a pilgrim and stranger," &c., which has been translated into Chinese, and enlarged eloquently on its thought for nearly an hour. The people listened with apparent intense interest.

The other workers here and at Hwaughim and Pingtu were equally encouraged in their work in the villages during the spring. We all confidently believe that the next few years will certainly see many souls gathered in from this field that for years has not yielded much visible result.

It is very hot here now—hotter than any other summer since I came to China, but we are all pretty well. I was at Pingtu the first of July, and found the Leagues and our sister Fannie Knight well and happy. They may all come here for awhile during this month and September.

Dr. J. B. Hartwell will perhaps be in Hwaughim next week. In the early spring, and till the news came from the Convention, it seemed likely to us here that the Board would give up Shantung Province, and so we felt that if they gave it up we should not. Now that the Board is sending other workers here, the Crawfords, Leagues and ourselves will probably go further west as soon as arrangements can be made. We are not yet apprised of the Board's plans. The Convention reports intimate that the old stations will be left by them to us and they seek new ones, but the workers here of both parties do not think this will be done. Our B. I. M. workers will perhaps be compelled to stop here or at Pingtu for some time to come before we can rent and repair houses. This is some times a very difficult thing to do in a new place in China. The center of our operations will perhaps be some cities lying about sixty miles southwest of Pingtu, into which no foreigner has yet gone to live. There is a considerable region there comparatively untouched by missionary work. This is still an unsettled matter. We are crying unto the Lord for his guidance as we settle these important questions. Wherever we go and whoever shall take up the work here, we shall pray for God's richest blessings to abide upon this field so long and so faithfully worked.

I trust that it goes well with the dear brethren in the Old North State, and that you, Bro. Bailey, are fully recovered from your long attack. The blessings of the Lord abide upon all the brethren and sisters.

The Religious Condition of the People of Brasil.

Dear Recorder:—In my last letter I promised to speak of the religious condition of the Brazilian people, but even mention of the thought gives me pain. "Like priest, like people" is an adage which contains a great deal of truth so far as Brazil is concerned. Without any exception, the Catholic priests of this country are the most corrupt set of men that I have ever seen. Purity of character among them is utterly unknown, while honesty and integrity is little taken into account. A few days ago I heard a priest conversing with one of our young native Christian workers. During the conversation the priest said that he did not believe in the Bible—that he himself had as much right to make a Bible as did the Apostles, that he did not believe Christ was the Saviour of the world, but nothing more than a man. Upon being asked what he did believe, he replied that he hardly knew what he believed, and that he doubted very much the existence of a God. We asked him if he did not claim to be a priest of God and a believer in God's religion. His reply was, "My only religion is money and good eating." This same man is considered the best and most learned and consecrated priest in the whole State of Minas. He is a fair specimen of the religious teachers of the Brazilian people. No wonder that the people are wicked and sensuous infidels. The majority of them have no religion. They believe nothing. No moral restraint is placed upon their passions, but but they yield to every form of lust and sin. Were I to refer to the crimes openly committed and tolerated here every day, it would render this paper unfit for publication. But even in the midst of all this sin there are a few who seem to be sincere and observe with apparently great solemnity all the rites and formality of the Catholic church. To day is the feast of Mary, the mother of Jesus. Go to any of the churches here in the city and you will see them thronged with people of all classes. They enter the church, kiss the image of Mary, make their contributions, and then go out to join the feasting crowds. All the stores and shops are closed to day in honor of the holy Virgin. As one sees the crowds doing homage to the image, he cannot help from feeling that this is outright idolatry.

The Sabbath is not observed as a holy day. Balls, theatres, circuses and pleasure-trips occupy the whole day. Shooting matches, horse-races and gambling are engaged in by the men and boys. On every street corner there are stands from which thousands of lottery tickets are sold daily. The marks of crime can be seen on every hand. The average Brazilian's ambition is to get money at any risk, and the majority of them will make almost any sacrifice to attain this end.

But after all I believe that laziness is one of the greatest sins of this people. Nobody seems to be in a hurry. Procrastination on the part of those apparently concerned is the greatest discouraging feature to the missionary. But in the face of all this sin and opposition we have reason to be encouraged. In our little church here there are some of the brightest Christians I have ever seen. They prove to me what the gospel of Christ is able to do. The blood of Jesus can even wash away the sins of the poor Brazilian. The gospel is the only hope of this country and of the whole continent of South America. The many political revolutions and social upheavals of these South American countries can be traced to the corrupt character of the people. The gospel must be preached to these millions. The tyrannical and cruel chains of sin must be broken and liberty given to these captives. Oh! how my heart is burdened for the salvation of these souls about me. Polluted Roman Catholicism is rapidly decaying and the pure gospel of Christ is slowly but surely taking its place. Time will be required for the change to take place, and the work done here for many years to come will be principally seed-sowing. But this is a fertile soil in which to sow the seed with the hope that the harvest will come bye and bye.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN.

We hear a great deal in these days about the Fatherhood of God, but not as much as we ought to hear about the brotherhood of men. It is to be noticed that in the ten commandments given by God to Moses on Mt. Sinai that part of those commands were devoted to teaching men their duty one to another. Later on when Christ gave us a summary of the law he taught us to love God supremely, and our neighbor as ourselves; stating that on these two commandments hung the law and the prophets. Of course a great deal of trouble results from men's failure to love God as they should, and no little results from their failure to love their fellow men as they should. No little disturbance exists in our own fair land from this source. Vast accumulation of wealth in the hands of a few, to the evident impoverishment of the many, is rather a new state of things among American people.

Now and then we read of the refreshing fact that men of large means are willing so to divide their profits among those under their employ as to give them the opportunity of acquiring a comfortable living for themselves and their families. This might easily be the rule; but it is rather the exception. The fact that this has been done repeatedly by large manufacturers, and other owners of large interests in this and in other lands, is proof that it can be done. It is quite evident that many of those who have large bodies of men and women employed for various kind of work are Christian men, (or, at least, claim to be), and it does not speak well for them or their religion for them to grow wealthier every year whilst their employees are often scarcely able to live, much less accumulate anything for sickness or for old age. Men in such positions, if they claim to be Christians, often seem to forget that it is in their power to do much good for the cause of Christ by so treating those under their employ as to commend the religion they profess. Let them read again and again the manner in which Boaz greeted his harvest hands as they were reaping his fields near Bethlehem of Judea. How many employers thus greet those who are laboring for them? How many of them have the piety of this ancient Israelite?

It is evident that some Christian men, who are situated as above indicated, have a poor conception of what Christ meant when he said, "All things, therefore, whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Ah, how much happier a world we would have if even all Christians would in their business life put this divine rule strictly into practice! It will not do to try to dodge the force of these words by saying that the command to love our neighbor as ourselves was a part of the old Mosaic law; and, as Christ reproduced that command in the words just quoted, he does not expect us literally to obey it. This is dodging and begging the question at the same time. The words quoted are a part of the New Testament, and are just as binding as any other part of it. We repeat, then, what a happy world we would have if even Christian men would remember this command and put it into practice!

There is a brotherhood of man; but how slow some men are to recognize it. How the rich grind the poor! How relentless business men often are when they have others in their power! When one sees how persistently even Christian men often contend for the last dollar and the last cent in these stringent times in renting property, selling goods, &c., it is indeed enough to disgust those that make no pretensions to religion, with their Christian profession, and possibly to shake their faith in religion itself. Ah, this undue haste to get rich, and this unholy greed for gain, how it mars the beauty and symmetry of the character of many about us!

One great remedy for all this is for Christian men not only to recognize divine authority, the fatherhood of God, but also the brotherhood of man. Of course God is pleased with our loyalty and devotion to him; but we can better show such by treating our fellow men as we should. The plan pursued by some wealthy men in accumulating colossal fortunes often by the oppression of the poor, and then trying to ease their consciences by giving largely to benevolent institutions, is not to be commended as benevolence or wisdom. Of course we ought to give largely to aid such institutions; but gifts wrung from the bony [illegible] are not accept-

CONSECRATED COMMON SENSE.

Common sense is a rarer thing than many people suppose. There are those who think that simply because a man is what is called a good man, he is almost infallible in judgment, and hardly liable to make any mistakes. Now the truth of it is, a man may be quite a good man, and yet not at all free from mistakes and errors. True wisdom and true common sense are gifts of God, and like other good gifts, come from above and not from below. There are some men that have but little common sense when they are converted, and they are so constituted that they do not possess as much as they need after their conversion. An inspired man says, "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not." Now, we believe that the wisdom here spoken of includes common sense, and we are satisfied that some good men are deficient in this wisdom simply because they have not asked it. Before and after their conversion they think they are pretty well stocked with that commodity, and as they do not trouble themselves to ask God to supply them with it, they may go all their days without it

One of the most common ways in which men show their want of common sense is the intensity with which they cherish and nurse their personal likes and dislikes. Having formed quite a favorable opinion of some measure or plan, they refuse to modify their views, even when some one else completely shatters their idols by fair logic. Having formed again an adverse opinion of certain things, or even of men, they refuse to change their opinions, even when the logic of events demonstrates their folly, or when God in his providence brings some Daniel to judgment.

There are those who are slow to recognize merit in others; and even when some heroic soul fills a breach that they could not occupy, they are ready to cry, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Let us pray God to give us more religion, and, withal, more consecrated common sense; and let every reader of this be duly impressed with the fact that he himself may actually need it.

THE PARLIAMENT OF "RELIGIONS."

The city of Chicago is well-known to the world as a city of enormous and unprecedented growth, of wonderful energy, and great "fakes." Her people are notorious for "working up" enterprises, and creating great "booms" out of nothing. These accomplishments have been brought out in strong relief by the World's Fair. No other city than Chicago could have given us the wonderful exposition which is now in progress under her auspices, and which has excited the admiration of the world. But "she stooped to conquer"; her fake ideas pervade the entire conduct of the Fair. Anything to draw a crowd and increase gate receipts, or anything to secure free advertising, has been resorted to without regard to further consequences. We believe that in no instance have the Fair authorities hit upon a more fortunate scheme, so far as drawing and advertising purposes are concerned, than in that of the "Parliament of Religions," so called, which had no object in itself, and which up to date is absolutely without evidence or promise of results. Its purpose—or, rather, the purpose of the Board of Directors of the Fair—was to attract attention and secure free advertising from the religious press. Absolutely no religious aim has characterized the inauguration or conduct of the Parliament. It is all a colossal sham, a farce, a mockery. Yet its name, and possibly other unspeakable inducements, obtained the presence of distinguished doctors of divinity, exalted ministers and learned theologians of almost every creed and belief. At the same time, others, and abler and more pious men refused to sanction what appeared to them a shameless sacrilege. There were good men connected with the Parliament, but it is only charity to say that they were there blindly and thoughtlessly.

How could we expect good results of such an aggregation? Neither plans, nor ideas, nor theories of Christian union, or soul saving were discussed. It was simply an arrangement whereby each representative could rise before what appeared to his tender imagination mighty and weighty and learned throngs, and laud his own belief, and then sit down and hear beliefs directly contrary to his, lauded in the same terms. It was, for the most part, a universal bragging match. The prophets of Jehovah and the priests of Baal were indeed come together, but with an entirely different purpose and under far less auspicious circumstances than on the occasion when the Almighty sent forth the living fires from heaven to bear witness to his omnipotence. This last meeting was of mortals only, each of whom claimed to represent a true God; but none of them dared make a test, but were content to praise and hear praise, whether from idol worshippers or the true ambassadors of God.

We imagine it must have been a sad spectacle when the well dressed and lore practiced heathen compared his god with Jehovah; when the priest of Brahma exalted an idol above Jesus; when the Mahometan placed his false prophet and the Koran above our Book of books. We do not see how a Christian could abide such an occasion, and when we reflect on the hypocrisy and duplicity of the representatives of those false faiths, we think even the Catholics would have turned away in disgust.

The educated heathen stood before the Parliament and recited the praise of his god, and told of the fortunate condition of his people until we would have thought that we needed missionaries of his sect among us; but he concealed the cry of the babe sacrificed to the crocodile, and muffled the sound of the car of Juggernaut, and the screams of the widow on the funeral pile, and hid from sight the deep degradation of the 800,000,000 of heathen souls of the Orient. No, these were not mentioned, but they are still seen, felt and heard. But their cries will never be answered by such a Parliament; for it had no higher aim than that its members should have opportunity to "indulge in competitive laudation of their respective religions," and, incidentally, just a little self exaltation.

The so called Parliament is a discredit to the common-sense and Christianity of the century; a shameless imposition on the people; a set back to the cause of Christ, and a sacrilege of the name of Jesus.

REV. J. C. ROCKWELL DEAD.

We learn with deep regret of the seemingly untimely death of Rev. J. C. Rockwell, pastor of the Baptist church at Newport, Tenn. Bro. Rockwell was only twenty-five years old, but even in the short time that he had adorned the ministry his efforts were characterized by an earnestness and sincerity that marked him as a promising man of God He had been unwell during the summer, but he was not seriously ill until the latter part of August, when he was taken with typhoid fever, which resulted in his death on the 14th inst.

He is gone from among us, but the example of his life is left to speak for his silent voice. We extend our tenderest sympathy to the bereaved wife, and commend his vacant pastorate to the care of God, who doeth all things well.

It is announced that Bro. E. E. Hilliard has retired from the Scotland Neck Democrat temporarily, to do some special work for Wake Forest College. The Democrat will be edited for the time by Bro. W. C. Allen.

Brother Hilliard commenced work last week in the western part of the State as general agent for and representative of Wake Forest College. He will meet the brethren at the Associations and present the claims of the College. We believe the authorities have been wise and fortunate in their selection of Bro. Hilliard for this work. The energy, ability and success which has heretofore characterized his efforts in the school room and editor's chair, are full of promise for the successful execution of his new duties. Wake Forest deserves the heartiest support of our people, and we hope all may be enabled to hear Bro. Hilliard set forth her claims, and respond to his appeals in her behalf.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Rev. D. K. Bennett has removed from Hickory to Charlotte.

....Rev. Thos. Dixon, Jr., was again in the State on a lecturing trip last week.

....Rev. S. F. Conrad is trying to get up an excursion to Chicago, to start Sept. 28th.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon will begin a series of meetings at Wake Forest College on Tuesday next.

....Rev. C. S. Cashwell preached his farewell sermon as pastor of the Mocksville church last Sunday.

....Rev. J. A. Howard is in Alabama assisting in revival meetings at Montgomery and Carrollton.—Reidsville Review.

....Rev. C. A. Jenkins of Goldsboro was recently made happy by his flock, which gave him an "old-time" pounding.

....One of Bro. Whites' (of Asheville) best members—a sister—wrote us recently that her pastor "was simply glorious."

....Mrs. Dr. T. D. Crawford of Florida, one of our most beloved sisters, is in Raleigh, the guest of Mrs. Thos. H. Briggs.

....Rev. W. H. Strickland has returned from a vacation spent at his old home Decatur, Ga., to his work at Madison, Fla.

....Dr. Cobb and Dr. Jno. Mitchell held a good meeting at Gardners, Warren county, recently. There were several additions to the church.

....Rev. S. W. Hall writes from Thomasville that his work is prospering. He received two members at the last conference meeting of his church.

....One new church was received into Three Forks Association, one into the Ashe and Alleghany Association, and one into the Brushy Mountain Association.

....Rev. J. Q. Adams preached his first sermon as pastor of the Wadesboro church last Sunday. Bro. Adams recently declined a call to the pastorate at Aiken, S. C.

....Our esteemed Bro. Rev. Robert W. Barrett of Curriersville, writes: "Can't do without the Recorder—it does me more good every week than a good sermon.

....Rev. Jasper Howell, Jr., pastor of the Jonesboro (Tenn.) Baptist church writes that his work is moving along finely, congregations large, and outlook promising.

....We note with pleasure that the Christian Index of Atlanta has recently purchased a new and excellent outfit, and its recent issues present a most agreeable appearance.

....Rev. J. R. Jones, pastor of the Yanceyville church, received four candidates into the fellowship of his church on the 17th. He writes that there are others to come soon.

....Bro. Broughton writes from Winston that so far the meeting in his church is a glorious one, and that Bro. M. A. Adams, who is assisting him, is deeply interesting his hearers.

....Rev. Dr. J. A. Speight and daughter have returned from their trip to the World's Fair. We hope the Doctor's health will be shortly restored, and that he may enter the active work again.

....Deacon John Armstrong of Columbia, S. C., a former resident of Raleigh, called to see us on Monday. Bro. Armstrong is spending a few days recreating among his many friends in this city.

....Rev. A. W. Burfoot has declined further care of the Ballard's Bridge church, near Edenton, and Rev. C. B. Williams, one of our most promising young pastors, has been called to succeed him.

....Dr. J. W. Carter baptized two candidates into the fellowship of the First Baptist church of this city on Sunday night last. In the morning after the sermon, a collection was taken for Home Missions.

....Rev. A. R. Pittman and Rev. R. A. Hedgpeth conducted a good meeting at Union church, Gray's Creek, N. C., recently. The church was greatly revived, many sinners awakened, and ten were added by baptism

....We were glad to see Bro. J. J. Pasour on his return to Wake Forest College, where he completes his course this year. Brother Pasour passed his vacation in very successful revival work in the western part of the State

....The August meeting at the colored Baptist church here closed last week, and as a result of said meeting, the pastor on Sunday morning last baptized about forty-four persons in the river.—Louisburg Times, Sept. 22

....Rev. R. A. Hedgpeth has changed his address from Fair Bluff to Leesville, Robeson county. He is now devoting his whole time to ministerial work, having stopped teaching in order to serve his churches.

...We wish to express our gratitude to those who have responded to our "Last Call," of two weeks since. These brethren and sisters deserve our thanks for the kind encouragement. There are still others, on whom we are waiting.

....It is stated that the Scriptures have been printed in 354 languages and dialects, and that they are now circulated among nearly all the nations of the earth. Slowly but surely the prophecy of the New Testament is being fulfilled.

....Rev. D. W. Herring is not devoting all his time to lecturing and speaking on his methods. He has held many good revivals since his return, and has done good service for the Lord. He began a series of meetings at Gastonia on the 24th.

....The Jefferson Baptist church, established and for several years aided by the Board of Missions, has become self sustaining, and will no longer ask for aid. Jefferson is the county seat of Ashe, and is in the Ashe and Alleghany Association.

....Bro. E. K. Proctor, Jr., writes: "We have had the most remarkable religious meetings this year I have ever known in Robeson county." He says that he hears of but little division in the Robeson Association in regard to our methods of work.

....We desire to thank many of our subscribers for the very many kind words that they have to say of the Recorder. Such words are always encouraging, and we greatly appreciate them, and shall endeavor to make the paper more and more worthy of their support.

....We give our readers some interesting matter this week from the pens of Brethren Bostick and Porter, our missionaries to China and Brazil, respectively. Bro. Bostick writes of his work, and Bro. Porter writes of the opportunities for work, for which he is preparing.

....Rev. Jno. W. Davis of Patten, Thomas county, Ga., writes that he is now serving three churces in that State, having lately received a call to two of them. He is pleased with his new situation, and says he is surrounded by a noble people, among whom he hopes to remain for life.

...."Baptists have been Calvinists these eighteen hundred years," says our brother of the Western Recorder. No, no; not Calvinists, but Baptists. There were Baptists fifteen centuries before John Calvin was born. The Waldenses were the first Protestants, and the Waldenses were essentially Baptists. Calvin simply adopted and taught some of the Baptist doctrines. He also taught and did many things that no Baptist can ever approve.—Christian Index.

....Sister E. M. Yates writes from Chicago that she has been quite ill in that city recently, but has recovered sufficiently to "see the sights." She returned to New York the latter part of last week. We hope Sister Yates will hurry back to North Carolina before she leaves us again.

....The Kernersville Baptist church is in great need of aid to rebuild their house of worship recently blown down by a cyclone. I know of no church more worthy of aid. If you can do so, please send something, at once, to Bro. B. A. Brown, Kernersville, N. C., to aid this work.—C. Durham.

....Rev. C. A. G. Thomas, pastor of the West Washington Street church, Greensboro, will be glad to render any service possible to the young ladies of Baptist families coming to the Normal and Industrial School. Parents desiring to put their girls under Bro. Thomas' care, should write him.

....We respectfully call the attention of all our pastors to the "open letter" in this issue from Bro. Willingham, our new Secretary. Brethren, your co operation in this cause is absolutely necessary to success, and you should not hesitate to lend your efforts to this very important branch of the Lord's work.

....Wake Forest College had enrolled 175 students on Saturday, the 23d, and they were still slowly coming in. This is an excellent showing, and compares well with the same date last year. With the average improvement in attendance during the spring term the total number of students will easily surpass last year's enrollment.

....Bro. P. W. Johnson, who represented us at the Sandy Creek Association, was greatly pleased with the treatment he received of the brethren and sisters of that district. We are under obligations to our subscribers and to Bro. Johnson for the handsome list of renewals received. We will have a report of the proceedings in our next issue.

...."It has been decided to change the meeting of the Robeson Association from Maxton, and it will be held either at Ashepole or Big Branch. These are strong churches and are situated in very thickly settled parts of the county, and either will give the Association a splendid entertainment," writes our brother, E. K. Proctor, Jr.

....Among the speakers at the Parliament of "Religions" the following are the only prominent Baptists: Prof. Geo. S. Goodspeed of Chicago University; Dr. Moxom; Dr. Geo. Dana Boardman; Prof. C. R. Henderson and Prof. C. W. Wilkenson of Chicago University and Dr. Lorimer. We are glad that the Baptists are so conspicuous by their absence, and congratulate ourselves that the Southern brethren are not represented at all.

....President Hobgood, who was in our office last week on his way to the King's Mountain Association, reports that the attendance of students at Oxford Female Seminary, while not so large as last fall by eight or ten, is very gratifying. Since the opening day up to the present the school has steadily increased, and more are yet expected. In all probability, from present indications the number by January 15th, 1894, will be larger than ever before.

....The most pleasant news comes from Park Avenue Church, Rev. J. J. Hall, D. D., pastor. An hour before preaching time it is impossible to get a seat in his church. There is nothing to do it seems but to build something to accommodate the people, and to build it now. There were several accessions to the membership on yesterday.—Norfolk cor. Baltimore Baptist. We rejoice that Bro. Hall has met with such a hearty welcome in his new pastorate.

....We understand that the Baptist churches recently supplied by Rev. J. H. Lewellyn have been added to other charges. Rev. W. H. Beamer will hereafter fill the pulpit at Westfield, Rev. C. C. Haymore at Shiloh, and Prof. J. E. Green at Booneville. The Pilot Mountain church has not yet been supplied. Rev. Mr. Lewellyn, we understand, will return to his former home near Dobson, he having been compelled by ill health and age to give up the work.—Yadkin Valley News.

....The Baptist Association of Pickens county, held at Philadelphia church, a few miles south of Jasper, Ga., has recently closed a most remarkable annual session which will be recorded on historical pages. In its proceedings it condemned Sunday-schools, colleges, and progress of every kind.—Hendersonville Times. What is the matter with our Georgia brethren? If the above report is true, which we hope it is not, there is sore need for several missionaries in Pickens county.

....It will be gratifying news to our readers in this vicinity to learn of the good fortune of one of Oxford's talented young men, Walter P. Stradley, the son of Rev. J. A. Stradley.—Oxford Ledger. Young Brother Stradley, who has recently received the appointment of Immigration Inspector at San Francisco, took the valedictory at Wake Forest College a few years ago, and since that time has been practicing law in the West. He is a young man of unusual promise, and we are glad to note his success in his adopted State.

....There are two reasons why the Crawford-Herring-League methods do not commend themselves to us, and will not, we are sure, be accepted by our people. The first is that the mission from which these brethren come has been the least prosperous in China. By their fruits ye shall know them. The other is that the adoption of these methods would destroy the Southern Baptist Convention and make it impossible for our churches to co-operate in any organized and systematic fashion for the prosecution of mission work. There are yet other reasons, but these are sufficient.—Religious Herald.

....Rev. M. A. Jenkins, pastor of the church at Biltmore, near Asheville, has been compelled to leave Wake Forest College on account of his health. The Asheville Baptist announces that Bro. Jenkins will become its travelling agent and correspondent as soon as his health permits.

...."What a fearfully large proportion of the so-called saloons are held by Catholics, and what a fearfully large proportion who lose in them their souls are children of the church." The foregoing words were proclaimed in eloquent tones before the leading Catholics of the world at the recent "Catholic World's Fair Congress," and the speaker was Archbishop Ireland, the most active of the Catholic enemies to our public schools. Really, we are surprised; we didn't dream that a Catholic archbishop could be so honest in a matter which so vitally concerns his church.

....The following communication in the High Point Enterprise is very complimentary of Rev. R. W. Weaver, a recent Wake Forest A. M. graduate: "The two sermons preached in the Baptist church by Bro. Rufus Weaver last Sunday call to memory the great power of his able and talented grandfather, Amos Weaver, well known in this and adjoining counties, and while listening to him I thought that the mantle of his grandfather had fallen on him. We hope that he may live to wield the sword of the Spirit (the word) as effectually as the old soldier of the cross."

....Major E. Calvin Williams, only son of our venerable and beloved brother, Rev. Dr. John W. M. Williams, died at New London, Conn., on September 6th. Mr. Williams was a lawyer of distinction and a faithful member of the First church in Baltimore. His wife and three children survive him. To these and to his honored father we send assurance of our Christian sympathy. May heaven smile upon them in this dark hour!—Religious Herald. Maj. Williams was a brother of Mrs. J. W. Gore of Chapel Hill. We join the Herald in sympathy to the family.

....From a letter recently received we learn the good news that "Robeson Institute" of Lumberton has 112 pupils, and a good prospect for at least 125 by the middle of next month. The people of that community seem to appreciate the efforts of the trustees, and the benevolence of our lamented Bro. Melke, and are giving this institution their best support. The school has succeeded so far beyond expectations, that it will be necessary to enlarge the building and elect an additional teacher in January next. The trustees and the faculty deserve especial credit for the excellent manner in which they have organized and conducted this institution.

....The following from the Gastonia Gazette is re assuring: "Rev. E. F. Jones, the pastor of the Baptist church, arrived last Saturday clothed and in his right mind, with never a bullet hole through him nor so much as a hair of his head hurt. He preached Sunday morning and night two very interesting sermons and had excellent congregations." We will state for the benefit of our readers that many of our exchanges had it announced that Bro. Jones had been shot down in a California pulpit. The RECORDER had prepared an elaborate report of the affair, but fortunately an investigation proved the information groundless in time to save us from the fate of many of our brethren of the press.

....Rev. N. S. Jones writes under date of 18th: "I am glad to report that all things are working favorably for us in this field. I had the pleasure of baptizing four in Salisbury last night. Only a short while ago I baptized two others,—not the result of any special meeting, but the quiet working of the Lord. I want to hold a meeting with my church this fall. I spent five days with Bro. Cashwell at Eatons, Davie county, only a short time ago, in a meeting which resulted in thirty-five professions and twenty-five additions. I am with Bro. Carrick at Jersey this week." We are glad to get such good news from Bro. Jones and hope to see him in his native county soon.

....The following very kind words from the Gastonia Gazette are highly appreciated, and we can reciprocate that seldom an issue of Bro. Marshall's paper comes without bringing us interesting and important news of our denomination in his community: "There is a very unusual hitch in affairs when the BIBLICAL RECORDER is not giving its readers something valuable and helpful, and something, too, that no other religious paper furnishes. Its "Talks on Law," some of which this paper copied, are now followed up by some "Talks on Medicine" by a retired physician of this State, and these talks are good medicine themselves. The talk on "Nursing the Sick" is copied by us this week, and we invite all our readers to profit by reading it, and we especially invite them to read and enjoy the part devoted to 'Friends and Callers.'"

Meeting at Rich Square.

Dear Recorder:—We had a meeting of six days at Rich Square, Bertie county, closing on the 8th. Brother J. E. Hutson did the preaching, and got very near the hearts of the people by his simple presentation of the truth and his pointed appeals. It was a time of refreshing, and the Lord was manifestly present with us.

As a result, I baptized thirty, several backsliders were restored, and one was received by letter. The majority of those baptized were taught and trained in our own Sunday-school, "showing," as one of our most earnest workers said, "the importance of cultivating our own plant-bed." To God be the glory. Well may we pray with the psalmist, "Render unto me the joy of thy salvation, and uphold me with thy free Spirit. Then will I teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

Roxobel, Sept. 19, 1893.

Death of Rev. J. C. Rockwell.

The fourteenth of September was a sad day for the Baptists of Newport. After twenty six days of burning fever our beloved young pastor, Rev. J. C. Rockwell, passed from time to eternity. His recovery had been despaired of several days, but he clung to life with remarkable tenacity. The death of no other man has ever cast such gloom over this community. The people, without regard to denomination, loved him, and he died without an enemy. His remains were taken to Morristown and interred in the new Baptist cemetery. Rev. S. E. Jones conducted the funeral services, and several other ministers of various denominations paid tribute to the life and character of Bro. Rockwell.

Bro. Rockwell was a native North Carolinian, and had been in this State only about four years, but had become thoroughly identified with Baptist interests in East Tennessee. The Baptists of this State have sustained a loss that cannot be repaired. J. C. Rockwell was no ordinary man. While he was greatly beloved as a Christian minister, and admired as a young man of brilliant promise, it was only those with whom he was intimately associated that recognized his real strength and ability. He undoubtedly possessed many of the elements of true greatness. Born in 1868, he was less than twenty-six years old at the time of his death. Yet we can truly say that his life was not short, for it is deeds, not years, that make life long. As a boy he was wonderfully precocious, and at the age of seventeen was a mature man in stature and intellect. When only a little boy he commenced to compose poetry, and before he was twenty years old his poetic productions appeared in the columns of many leading papers all over the country. For a short time he edited a paper himself. Like other Southern men of literary tastes and inclinations, he was greatly interested in everything that looked toward the development of a distinctively Southern literature. But his labors as a minister of the gospel necessarily drew him aside from literary pursuits. He commenced to preach at the age of eighteen, and soon had charge of four country churches. He spent one session in the Seminary at Louisville, but was forced by failing health to discontinue his studies. He was pastor of the church at Waynesville, N. C., for awhile when he accepted a call from the Baptists of Morristown, Tenn. At the expiration of two years his shattered nerves again compelled him to resign his pastorate. After a short rest he accepted a call to the Newport church for half his time. He had labored faithfully among our people for two years—long enough to gain their love and reverence and make it hard to give him up. His life was one continuous struggle with the ills of the flesh. His active intellect and unbounded energy were too much for his frail constitution. It seems that from his very boyhood his every plan and undertaking was thwarted by a failure of health. This was hard for a man of his ambition and purpose in life, but believing it the will of God, he was submissive and never complained. As a man, there were none more pure and kind and gentle. As a preacher, none more fearlessly and uncompromisingly preached the whole gospel. His life of hard work and suffering, of manly Christian patience and purity is the best sermon that mortal man could preach. "No life can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife, and all life not be purer and stronger thereby."

When we think of the sorrow of his noble wife, and the helpless innocence of his little children, when we consider the good he might have accomplished in the world, it is difficult for the human heart to suppress a murmur at the mysterious dealings of providence. But God knows best; and how appropriate in this connection are the words of Bro. Rockwell himself, written years ago upon the occasion of his brother's death:

Nay, question not, God knoweth best,
We should not murmur when we weep.
His feet were weary, let him rest,
"God giveth his beloved sleep."

Aye, it is hard, but God is just,
And well we know his ways are wise;
And some day from the dreamless dust
Our fondest hopes again will rise.

We can but trust, and trusting wait,
And waiting will not be in vain;
Some day we'll read the book of fate,
And God will make his purpose plain.

Johnston County Items.

Have just learned some results of two good meetings held at Clyde's Chapel and White Oak, respectively. These meetings began on the third Sunday in August and continued until Tuesday after the fourth Lord's day; but we did not baptize until last Sunday, September 17th. Eleven were added to Clyde's Chapel, and nine to White Oak. Rev. C. W. Scarborough of Murfreesboro and Dr. N. B. Cobb of Raleigh aided in these meetings. The people were delighted with their preaching and they will likely linger long in the memory and affection of all who heard them. It delights a pastor's heart to have the privilege of listening to such brethren for a week. We feel grateful to the Lord and the brethren for all we received.

Some current thought and pictures strike us with force, and draw out a word or two of comment.

"Paul never asked God to raise his pay or send him to an easier place." Some stingy person got off that squib, because the author did not know all Paul asked of God. Let him tell us how he knows that Paul never made such a request of the Lord, and if the authority is good, we will believe.

Here is a cartoon in the Ram's Horn of September 16th, illustrating the relation between pastor and people. The pastor is under the house of worship—bearing it along on his back and shoulders, while the members are standing off to one side with hands stuck down deep in empty pockets and cigars in their mouths, admiring how much one poor preacher can carry, and not break down! They manifest no disposition to aid him, and appear to think that the Lord converted and called them into the church to oversee the pastor! On the other hand, there are many people who think the preacher has nothing to do; so there is a division among our people as to the preacher's work.

"Well, well, well," said one we used to know, "when the preacher gets so he can fatten on wind pudding (sweet words) or do more for God under the abuse and criticism of those who ought to help him in his work, we shall be gone, my brother, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest forever." My brother's remarks have come to me "over and over," as I have encountered the different views of the preacher's task. But times are getting better, and the signs are favorable for still brighter days—and more success for the the truth as it is in Jesus.

Let us Have More Academies.

The so called "colleges," "collegiate institutes" and "seminaries" seem to be losing their popularity with presidents, principals and superintendents. For nearly a generation they have been thoroughly tested in North Carolina, and have failed in two particulars:

First. They have not yielded a decent support to their superintendents; for the assistant teachers have carried off the bulk of the proceeds—leaving the principals the "odds and ends" and bad debts.

Second. They have made promises to the public which they did not keep. In the very nature of things, very often, they could not keep these promises. They proposed to teach too much—and, sometimes, classes were formed in subjects of which the teachers knew very little. And, very frequently, students passing through these institutions had an idea that the real colleges and universities could teach them no more, and entered life thus half prepared. This has been a prolific cause of the non-attendance at the bona fide colleges of very many students.

But we think that these schools have had their day. There seems to be now a tide setting in the direction of simple preparatory schools—with curricula that carry the student no further than the threshold of the college proper and the university. We sincerely hope that this conjecture of ours may prove true.

Let us bring back the old academy, clarum et venerabile nomen—and let us, teachers of "secondary" schools, stick to our true duties and leave the highest institutions of learning to do their work. This will be gratefully acceptable to the University, Trinity, Wake Forest and Davidson; for they will then be able to rid themselves of that bete noire, the "preparatory class."

RICH. H. LEWIS

Kinston, N. C.

From Our New Corresponding Secretary.

AN OPEN LETTER TO EVERY PASTOR IN NORTH CAROLINA OF THE SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION—PLEASE SEND YOUR ANSWER.

Dear Brother:—In entering upon the duties of Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, I bid you cordial greeting in our new relationship and ask for your hearty co-operation.

To properly prosecute the work of the Board we need funds coming in regularly every month all through the year. The drafts are coming in constantly from the missionaries, our laborers on the field. Many of the churches have been accustomed to delay their contributions until spring, causing heavy expense to our work in accrued interest on borrowed money. We are already several thousand dollars in debt, and drafts are coming in which must be met.

Besides this we have several missionaries in this country anxious to get to their fields of labor. Some of these have been home from sickness or to rest; others are new missionaries under appointment. Trusting in the churches, the Board has instructed some of these to prepare to leave soon. This will make a heavy expense for traveling, which must be met.

Now, my brother, representing as you do one of our pastorates, I want your aid and co-operation.

1st. Can we depend on you to present this matter to your church within the next thirty or sixty days, as you think best, and send us a collection?

2d. Will you see that this important subject of Foreign Missions, and the necessity of immediate and regular systematic effort for the Lord's work is pushed forward in your Association?

3d. Has your church any subscribers to the Foreign Mission Journal, and, whether so or not, will you secure us some active brother or sister who will get us a number of new subscribers, thus getting your church in closer touch with this work?

The work is great. I trust I will have your full co-operation. Pray God's blessing on the missionaries and wisdom for the Board and Secretary. Yours fraternally,

R. J. WILLINGHAM, Cor. Sec.

South Fork Association.

The time of meeting is Thursday, October 19th, not 26th. The fourth Sunday is Oct. 22d this year. Bruington is on the Carolina Central Railroad, about twenty miles west of Charlotte. W. A. GRAHAM, Mod.

God commands us to give, not according to our feelings, but according to our ability. If all church-members would adopt this rule the Lord's treasury would never lack for funds.—Central Baptist.

Appeal of the Home Mission Board for S. S. Missionary Day.

Both the Foreign and the Home Mission Boards of the Southern Baptist Convention have united in a request that all the Sunday-schools of the South will observe one Sunday in the year—Sunday, October 15th—as a day for the collection of money for missions, the amount thus collected to be equally divided between the Boards, unless other division is preferred by the donors.

The Boards have requested the Woman's Missionary Union, located in Baltimore, to undertake the work of giving information, furnishing literature, and enlisting the Sunday-schools in this good work. They have prepared a suitable program with pyramid mite boxes, which will be distributed to the schools asking for them, in which collection may be gathered.

Through Sunday-school Missionary Day the Home Mission Board appeals to the Sunday-schools of the South to aid it in the great work committed to its care by the Southern Baptist Convention.

Half the twenty millions of our Southern population look to the Baptists for their religious instruction. Of the ten millions to whom we are expected to give the word of life, only about two and a half millions are members of our churches. Seven and a half millions give us no evidence of being Christians. There is no hope of Christianizing the world unless America be Christianized.

The work of the Home Mission Board is scattered over the entire South. It has 375 missionaries located in Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virgina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and the island of Cuba. In Louisiana alone there are twenty-one counties having 250,000 people who are destitute of the gospel. In Cuba there are a million and a half.

Church building is a part of our Board. Of the white Baptist churches in the South about one out of six have no houses of worship. Without houses there can be no efficient Sunday-schools, and the churches can effect but little religious good among the people about them. It will require an average assistance of $200 to enable them to build even plain houses in which to worship God.

You see how greatly we need money for this work. We estimate that it will cost not less than $75,000 to aid our 375 missionaries. We now have applications aggregating more than $60,000 to aid in building houses of worship where they are needed.

But we are urged to appoint other missionaries in places where many are living and dying without the gospel, and we will have many more applications to help in building houses of worship. Two hundred thousand dollars will not enable us to do all the work we will be asked to do, and that we would do, if we had the money to do it. Last year, though it was Centennial year, we received only about half that amount.

Our last report shows that our missionaries organized 412 Sunday schools, and that in the last ten years they have organized about 3,000 schools, where perhaps 120,000 children are taught the Word of Life. But there are thousands of other children whom we have not yet been able to reach, who should be gathered in Sunday schools.

An inviting opportunity is now opened through Sunday school Missionary Day to every Sunday-school superintendent and teacher, to do a work for the Master and for the world that will live when they have gone, and that will follow them to their reward. If each school will help—and we feel sure all can—we shall be enabled to reach out towards these unreached thousands, and make of them burning and shining lights guiding wandering feet to the Rock of their salvation. Let every body help.

I. T. TICHENOR, Cor. Sec.

Meetings at Oak Ridge, Shiloh and Bethel.

Dear Recorder:—It affords me pleasure to report my meetings.

OAK RIDGE, CAMDEN COUNTY.

Our meeting began here the fifth Sunday in July, running through that week. The result was fifteen added to the church. Revs. C. B. Williams and G. N. Bray were with me and did good work for the Master.

SHILOH, CAMDEN COUNTY.

As has been their custom for years, they started their meeting the first Sunday in August, holding it a week. Dr. C. S. Blackwell did the preaching up to Friday night. Rev. C. B. Williams preached Saturday and Sunday. During our meeting Revs. J. B. Harrell, C. J. Woodson, J. B. Ferebee, G. N. Bray, Charlie Graves, Sim Overton and P. H. Williams were present and took part in the meeting, doing good service for the Master. Thirty-six were added that week to the church. One month after, we had meetings from the first Sunday night in September to Thursday night following, (nights only). Dr. R. R. Overby was with us one night. As a result of this meeting twenty-eight more were added, making in all sixty-four additions to the church. The last meeting was the best I was ever permitted to attend.

BETHEL, NORFOLK COUNTY, VA.

The meeting commenced here the third Sunday in August, closing on Saturday following. I had no ministerial aid. The brethren who promised to help me were sick. We had nine additions to the church.

To God be all the glory, honor and praise.

Shiloh, N. C. P. S. C. DAVIS.

In ordering goods, or in making inquiry concerning anything advertised in this paper, you will confer a favor by mentioning the fact that you saw the advertisement in the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

From Rev. C. W. Matthews.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—The last RECORDER found me in bed with one of the hardest agues I ever had. I heard a pastor say once that he would like to have just one to know how they felt. If he could have had the one I had to-day, it would have sufficiently satisfied him for all his life-time.

I had the pleasure of visiting and preaching for the saints at Ramoth Gilead church, Chowan Association, last night. It was a treat indeed to meet and shake hands with the Morgans, Warrens, Jones's, Edneys, and a host of others of this grand old church. It is a large and elegant church-building. It is wonderful to see how the young and the old rally around the grand old church. They treated us right nobly. We expect to visit these dear brethren and sisters again in October, the fourth Sunday at 11 o'clock. Bro. Stallings of Colnjock is supplying the pulpit for the present.

We heard many good things said about their former pastor, Rev. J. Blount Harrell. It is very likely that the Chowan Association will meet with this church in May, 1895.

Let me thank you for some recent editorials in the RECORDER. You have no idea how much they help one of the Lord's lonely toilers like myself.

Affectionately, C. W. MATTHEWS.

Gertie, Va., Sept. 21, 1893.

Who is the Editor of "Charity and Children?"

No name appears at its masthead. Josiah Jones is announced as "Foreman." Is Josiah Jones the responsible editor? The editor is generally held responsible for statements in the editorial columns, although he may disclaim such responsibility for communications. Will the General Manager or the Board of Trustees who have exclusive jurisdiction in the matter answer the question? Or, rather, will they cause to be printed in the paper the name of the editor so that there will be no further need of the question being repeated.

In the second column, on the second page of the issue of Charity and Children of September 15th, 1893, after inserting an extract from a letter to the N. C. Baptist from its agent, writing of his visit to Mocksville in attendance upon the meeting of the South Yadkin Association, in which an allusion is made to the arbor built for the benefit of the Orphanage at Thomasville, the following appears editorially:

"The people have a right to know that up to this time all the money raised has been used in paying for the arbor and the land; but some of the Davie Baptists are liberal in their contributions made direct to the Orphanage."

I pronounce the above a misrepresentation of facts.

This is not the first time an insinuation of the above character has appeared in that paper, but never so broad before. I desire to say that surely the General Manager is not a party to the statement because no one knows better than he that it is a misrepresentation; and surely the Board of Trustees and their officers did not cause the paragraph to be penned, because (if they have done their duty) they know that it is a misrepresentation.

I would have pursued a different and less public course if it had been the first time the insinuation had been made, and if I had known its author. After an answer to the question, I will have a statement to make which "the people have a right to know."

Meeting at East Durham.

Our revival here opened last Sunday. Great interest is manifested by all who attend. The people throng us in such multitudes that many do not find accommodation in our auditorium. Brother Tyree is doing some good preaching, and the power of the Holy Ghost attends it. We hope for great strength to be added to the Lord's Zion at this place before these meetings shall close.

Infant Baptism.

A COMPROMISE PROPOSED.

It is very evident that the Baptists can never be reconciled to infant baptism with their views of the nature and design of the ordinance of baptism. They believe that repentance and faith precede that ordinance, which make it believers' baptism. The reasons for this conviction rest upon a multitude of Scripture evidence. The great command in Matt. 28: 19, 20, requires discipleship before baptism (see Canterbury Revision), and also Mark 16: 16 shows preaching and faith precede baptism. In Acts 2: 38, Peter says, "repent and be baptized." In Acts, eighth chapter, we see they believed before baptism, also in Acts 8: 12, Philip demanded faith before baptism.

Quotations can be greatly multiplied to show repentance and faith as preceding baptism.

Infant baptism is a constant menace to Christian union, and is a fruitful source of strife and debate. Now it seems to me that there is a very plain way by which this troublesome question can be compromised and put out of the way, and cease to be a barrier to Christian harmony and union. Could not those who practice this ordinance accomplish all they really desire by offering their children to God by the imposition of hands and prayer? This was what Joseph did who brought his children to Jacob, and this seems very manifestly to have been the desire of those parents who brought their children to Jesus. The record so declares that they brought them to Jesus that he might put his hands on them and pray. See Matt. 19: 13. Now, no Baptist would object to a performance of this character, and give it his support. It would have the weight of Scripture precedent and example, and besides it would do no violence to any principle of loyalty to Jesus and his Word.

But no Baptist who is loyal to the Bible can have any patience with any baptism, which some of its supporters openly declare is without any Scripture precedent or authority.

Dr. A. T. Bledsoe, editor of Southern Methodist Quarterly Review, wrote: "With all our searching we have been unable to find in the New Testament a single expressed declaration or word in favor of infant baptism. We justify the rite, therefore, solely on the ground of logical inference, and not on any express word of Christ and his Apostles. This may, perhaps, be deemed by some of our readers a strange position for a Pedobaptist. It is by no means, however, a singular opinion. Hundreds of learned Pedobaptists have come to the same conclusion. Especially since the New Testament has been subjected to a closer, more conscientious and more candid exegesis than was formerly practiced by controversialists."

The North British Review says: "Scripture knows nothing of the baptism of infants. There is absolutely not a single trace of it to be found in the New Testament."

Dr. Leonard Woods, a distinguished Presbyterian, says: "It is a plain case that there is no express precept respecting infant baptism in our sacred writings. The proof that it is a divine institution must be made out in some other way."

Professor Moses Stuart, a learned Presbyterian, says: "Commands or plain and certain examples in the New Testament I do not find."

Neander says that "It cannot possibly be proved that infant baptism was practiced in the apostolic age."

But it is needless to multiply quotations, as a multitude of witnesses of eminent Pedobaptists can be produced to show that it is without Scriptural authority.

Why not, then, abandon a practice which is doing so much to alienate and divide the Christian world? Let all pious Pedobaptists, who want to offer their children to God, cease to pervert the ordinance of baptism, and, instead thereof, offer their children to God by the imposition of hands and prayer to God. I am willing to abandon everything which is unscriptural for the sake of unity and peace in the rank of Christians. Christian unity can never be attained except in truth. The abandonment of infant baptism will be a long stride towards peace and fraternity.

S. F. CONRAD.

Winston, Sept. 12, 1893.

In every community there is a number of men whose whole time is not occupied, such as teachers, ministers, farmers' sons and others. To these classes especially we would say, if you wish to make several hundred dollars during the next few months, write at once to B. F. Johnson & Co., of Richmond, Va., and they will show you how to do it.

Write to Your Boy.

Across the way from my house is a bare little room at the top of a house. Turkey-red curtains are stirred by the breeze; a large table in the centre of the room, splashed with ink, and chipped and carved by restless fingers, is heaped with new school-books. The books have been pushed aside, however, and a sheet of letter-paper lies in full sight, with the date written, and below, "My Dear Mother." That is all, but the writing of those three words has sent the scribe to fall on his face upon his bed, and his stealthy sobs sound through the room.

The boy, or man whichever he may be, is homesick, that is all. But, Oh! what a woful sickness it is. Have you ever felt it?

Presently, he hears the train whistle and he springs from the bed, dabbles his hands in the washbowl, (perhaps he has not learned to keep it quite so clean as you did the one in his room at home) and tries to scrub away the traces of tears with the towel.

Then he hurries off to the postoffice and [illegible] listens for the roll-call of students [illegible] have been so fortunate as to receive [illegible]. His name is not called, and after [illegible] behind the others, to make sure [illegible] postmaster has made no mistake, he [illegible] to his boarding-house supper, with little appetite. He turns over his books idly, at night, and the eyes that would have been keen and bright if they had read loving words from you to-night, grow dull and listless, and an aching heart takes all interest from the study of the first Latin declension, and the mystical German alphabet.

He is homesick and only sleep can deaden the pangs of that sickness. Even then, his dreams are like the mirage, which the desert-worn traveller sees before him, raising false hopes of cool shade and trickling water.

Write to your boy. Perhaps you are not accustomed to write letters, and think that one every month or two is all that will be needed; or, there is one art in letter writing which you have not yet acquired; your hand may be stiff; the pen and ink may be bad, or perhaps they are "over at the store;" you are busy all day and tired at night. Suppose all this to be true,—why, my little four-year old sits at my feet and prints "I love you, dear Sis," two or three times a week with a lead pencil, to slip into the envelopes that go to our daughter at boarding school, five hundred miles away! And "Sis" never tires of those words. If you have time for nothing else, write once a week, but with your own hand, "My dear boy, I love you. God bless you." If you do not do even this, you do not realize the importance of forging well the links that bind your son to his home.

The first weeks away from you are the hardest; afterward, he will become somewhat easier in his mind and more weaned from home. If he needed more visible proof of your love and thought for him then, when his heart was tenderest and filled with loving memories of home and of you, how much more he will need it now, when surrounded by temptation, such as he did not know at home!

The loving weekly letter will turn his thoughts from the fascinations of new friendships to pure memories of home; he will feel more like attending the prayer-meeting service after reading your words of counsel; he will be reminded of the Sunday-school lesson, which you and he studied together on Saturday nights at home; perhaps he will even be not ashamed to kneel before going to bed to ask for God's blessing upon his life and upon you.

Write to him. He will have a sunnier, happier time at school and in the office, for your letters.

Just a word or two about your letters. Above all, let them be regular, reaching your absent lad on a stated day, if possible; of course if you feel like throwing in an extra at any time, so much the better. I have not yet forgotten the sweetness of the thought on arising from my college bed: 'This is home-letter day!"

Do not write less often than once a week. One gets behind in home affairs after a week's ignorance of what goes on. Tell him about Bell's new dress, and about how the "wine saps" are keeping for winter use; tell him that your pastor inquired for him last "meeting Sunday," and what his Sunday school teacher said about missing him from the class.

Perhaps you think he will not be interested in such items of news, now that he is studying psychology and trigonometry. Try him and see, and if he is not, tell it all the same.

If he does not answer, write your letter regularly, just as if he did, and do not fill yours with complaints of his not writing. Let him see that you love him, and therefore always wish to hear from him.

I know a youth whose lip trembles when I speak to him of home. I know another who announced at the tea-table, when some one remarked upon his recovered appetite: "My medicine came through the mail all right, to-night, and I am a well man."

Mr. Thos. E. Lewis.

For years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion and tried all sorts of medicine for relief. About two years ago I had an unusually severe attack coupled with catarrh of the stomach. I was given up to die. I bought an Electropoise, and within a week I was at my office attending to my duties; and rapidly improved, gained in a few months twenty-five pounds, and am in better health to day than I have been for the past twenty-five years.

About two weeks ago I had a severe attack of sciatica. Could not lie down. Suffered severely. I applied the Electropoise, and on the following morning awoke relieved; continued treatment for a day or two, and have not had one particle of pain since. I believe in it and would not for many times its cost be without it. I used it for croup on one of my children with instant success. If people would use according to directions, I believe it will do everything claimed.

THOS. E. LEWIS.

Self-Competition the Best.

It is often said that competition is the life of trade. But if there is one thing better than the competition of man with man, it is that of a man with himself. It is a man's striving to outdo himself, to overtop even his old ideals in his new performances. It is the difference between a race against time and a race against another individual. Time never can be beaten, but the racer can beat himself. There is no limit to the probabilities of one's power to excel himself. But so long as a man has only to keep a little ahead of his neighbor, he has a dull spur wherewith to prick the sides of his intent. If that neighbor sticks fast, that is the end of the competition; after that, both stick fast. On the other hand, when a man feels the necessity of bringing his future deeds into competition with his own past, there is no limit to the possibilities of life with him.—Sunday-school Times.

The Lord's Mercies.

However quiet your life may have been, I am sure there has been much in it that tenderly illustrated the Lord's providence, the Lord's deliverance, the Lord's upholding and sustaining you. You have been, perhaps, in poverty, and just when the barrel of meal was empty, then were you supplied. You have gone, perhaps, through fire and water, but in it all God's help has been very wonderful. Perhaps you are like the Welsh woman who said that the Ebenezers which she had set up at the places where God had helped her were so thick that they made a wall from the very spot she began with Christ to that she had reached. Is it so with you? Then tell how God has led you, fed you, and brought you out of all your troubles.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Attractive for Children.

If teachers in our Sunday schools need a very attractive and instructive little pamphlet for the children just beginning to read well, we would recommend the Primary Quarterly of the American Baptist Publication Society. The fact that eight hundred and eighty thousand copies of the Primary had to be published last year to meet the demands of the Sunday-schools of America fully establishes its popularity.

Mr. Bennett is a bright and well-preserved old gentleman; but to his little granddaughter, Mabel, he seems very old indeed. She had been sitting on his knee and looking at him seriously for some moments one day, when she said: "Grandpa, were you in the ark?" Why, no, my dear!" gasped her astonished grandparent. Mabel's eyes grew large and round with astonishment. "Then why weren't you drowned?" she asked.—Youth's Companion.

A New Feature.

ARTISTIC

Dress Making.

We respectfully beg to state that we have added and opened on Sept. 18th a Dress Making Department. This department has been thoroughly organized after months of careful preparation, and after having at great expense secured the very best talent to be had in their respective capacities, thus guaranteeing perfect equipment, not being excelled in artistic merit by the dress making establishments of any of the northern cities

Our lines of high class dress goods, comprising the newest Silks, Velvets and Dress Woolens are now on sale, and is the richest collection we have ever brought out.

We ask the attention of the ladies of North Carolina to this new feature of our business, assuring them that at moderate prices garments and costumes can be furnished here at home that will have the chic and style of French-made dresses.

Specialties: Bridal trouseaus and mourning outfits. Samples sent and estimates given.

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

Strictures on Some of the Recorder Personals.

Dear Recorder:—We notice, under the head of "Personals and Other Items," in the RECORDER of Sept. 13th, 1893, two or three paragraphs which we desire to speak of briefly, if you will allow us:

No. 1.—"Barnabas, from the day he departed from Paul, so far as the record goes, was a failure—sinks out of sight—did nothing.—C. Durham."

The proper version of which, as I understand, is as follows: "Herring, from the day he departed from Durham, so far as the record goes, was a failure—sinks out of sight—did nothing."

No. 2.—"You may say a man is 'a good man and full of the Holy Ghost,' as was said of Barnabas, but this don't necessarily mean that he is 'a man of sound judgment about men or mission work.'"

As we understand this, it amounts to saying that Herring is not "a man of sound judgment about men or mission work."

No. 3.—"Paul, though an inspired apostle, never gave up his work among the heathen to return to the home churches to urge upon them the importance of new methods in missions.—C. Durham."

Which being interpreted, as we understand it, "that if Herring was an 'inspired apostle,' he would not give up his work," &c.

Now we can't see where any good is to result from these attacks on Bro. Herring and his "method." We don't admire this shooting around the house with a "crooked gun."

Some of the associations, many of the churches, and a host of individual Baptists of North Carolina are soul and body with Bro. Herring in this movement.

I see from the report from Brushy Mountain Association that the churches are divided on this question. While it appears that Three Forks Association, by a majority vote, decided to give their contribution to the "Herring Plan." If these be brethren, to say nothing of the many others, it seems to us that "Herring chose Bostick and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God," and lo! in this case Bro. Herring takes Paul's comfort, and Bro. Durham is left in the shoes of Barnabas.

But we cannot agree with Bro. Durham in his strictures upon Barnabas, the eloquent, an apostle of Jesus. The owner of a homestead in the fertile isle of Cyprus, he sold it, and laid the money at the feet of the apostles—"a good man full of the Holy Ghost and faith," under whose ministry "much people were added to the Lord,' who for ten long years shared the persecutions and perils with St. Paul—I say we take a more charitable view of his separation from Paul. We believe the hand of the Lord was in the work, and that he saw proper to divide the labor of these two apostles to the Gentiles. Perhaps Barnabas returned home to Cyprus to become Secretary to the Foreign Mission Board. If Barnabas and Herring are failures as foreign missionaries, the church would do well to pray for more failures.

Bro. Durham will never break down nor retard this movement by insinuations and forced comparisons. It is a great question to be met by the great Baptist denomination—not only a question of thought, but a question of prayer—not simply a question of dollars—but a question of great spiritual import.

"Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do concerning these men; for before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as obeyed him, were scattered and brought to nought. After this man rose up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed. And now I say unto you, refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought; but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God."

Yours truly and fraternally,
W. C. DOUGLASS.

Carthage, Sept. 15, 1893.

In the foregoing Bro. Douglass takes the liberty of interpreting the Scriptures, and drawing inferences from Bro. Durham's statements to suit himself. This is the land of liberty and we have nothing whatever to do with other people's ways of thinking, interpreting or inferring. Whether Bro. Douglass thinks the quotations referred to applicable or inapplicable to Bro. Herring, is none of our business. Still we have the Scriptures, and to those not wilfully blind, they are very plain in their teachings. But the matter of interpreting them is altogether a matter of choice and occasion with certain people, some of whom can draw more inferences from them than we believe the Lord ever intended, while others can only see their own ideas. We gave the statements referred to for the consideration of the people, and gave them as simply as possible. The interpretation and the application can be made by any one who wants to. As for us, we think they are in a measure applicable to the Herring movement, still as we remarked above, we have nothing whatever to do with other people's thoughts, interpretations, or inferences, and we don't propose to in this instance.—EDITOR.

To the Young Soldier of the Cross.

The word soldier is very expressive in itself. It indicates to our minds some one prepared to fight; and to be a soldier in a true sense, we must be prepared to fight. We may know the military discipline perfect. But that will not make us a soldier. To be a soldier we must equip ourselves with the weapons necessary for war. And to accomplish any amount of good we will have to join some army or company. Just so it is with a soldier of the cross. If we would be a true soldier in God's army we must equip ourselves with the weapons necessary with which to fight the enemy and join his army, the church. If it is important for us to equip ourselves to be a soldier of war, how much more important is it for us to equip ourselves to be a soldier of the cross. There are many weapons that we may use with which to fight in war, and some are very powerful. But they are not as powerful as the weapons we have the privilege to use in God's army. Nay, they are not to be compared. Then, my young fellow-soldiers, if we are soldiers of the cross of Christ, join in God's army, and let us take his weapon and use it for his glory,—the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. Eph. 6: 17. We would not go to war and join our fellow soldiers and captain without a weapon to use. Then, why do we go to our churches and Sunday-schools and join with our fellow-soldiers in Christ, Sunday-school superintendents and pastor, without our weapon, the sword of the Spirit, the Holy Bible. Is it that we do not think that we will need it. If so, we are wrong; for we need it at all times. Or is it that we think our leader, our earthly captain, will defend us by his sword? If so, we are wrong. God has chosen him to be our leader, and through him he speaks to us how to go—and he dare not turn to defend us or lend us his sword less the enemy slay him. He has a place to fill; so have we. Every tub must stand on its own bottom. Where do we stand, my fellow-soldiers? Where is our weapon? What are we fighting with? Lets take our stand by the road-side or on the street corner, and look at the so called soldiers for Christ as they pass by on their way to meet together to fight the enemy of the soul. How many do we see with his weapon in his hand, or under his arm? Is it that we live such lives before our fellow-man, whom we daily come in contact with, that we are ashamed for him to see us with our Bible on our way to church. If this is why we do not carry our weapon, the Bible, let us stop and think, my fellow-soldiers, and remember God is to be our judge in that great and final judgment day. If we were soldiers as we should be, and carry our weapon (the Bible) with us to and from our churches, what powerful sermons we would preach for Christ, and oh the good we might do in this way. Then let us avail ourselves of such opportunities that we may accomplish much for our Master's kingdom. Then, again, if we were a soldier of war we would not disobey our captain, neither would we do anything which would wound his feelings. We would be ashamed to offer him such service as we know he would not accept. Then, my fellow soldiers, we who claim to be soldiers of the cross, fighting in the great and mighty army of Christ Jesus, our Great Captain, let us beware the kind of service we render to him, lest he will say unto us in that great and final judgment day "Depart from me, I never knew you."

Alexander the Great did not conquer the world by himself. It was by every soldier in his army doing his work, and having his weapon and using it. Just so it is with God's army battling with the world to-day. Our pastor, our earthly captain, cannot conquer the world for Christ alone. If it is ever conquered it must be by each and every individual soldier doing his or her part. So, then, my fellow-soldiers of the cross, cut loose from the things that bind us to this earth, for they are perishable, and take a bold stand for Christ, having our loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness, and our feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; and take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God, and press forward toward the mark of high calling, ever looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, and be a true soldier, that we may help conquer the world for Christ.

Catholicism and Protestantism in Italy.

The Catholic church, with the pope at its head, has been in Italy for more than a thousand years. This is a long, long time that its priests have had to teach and help the people. Have they done it? One may not certainly say what Italy would have been without Catholicism, but this is true, that in 1870, in a population of 30,000,000, three-quarters of the people could neither read nor write. In Rome, with a population of 216,000, one half could neither read nor write.

Has Protestantism helped them? Yes, directly and indirectly. In 1848 not an evangelical minister of the gospel could be found in all Italy, and until Victor Emanuel's occupation, in 1870, to preach evangelical religion meant imprisonment, if not death. Now there are more than 300 Christian ministers and over 10,000 Christians. In that time, in Rome alone, have been established 65 schools with 30,000 pupils and 550 teachers.

In Naples the good work is going on. In 1870 two-thirds of the people had no visible means of support. Church steps, orange boxes, and fish baskets served as beds for hundreds; 130,000 people lived in cellars and caves, and the only record of boys and girls born in these quarters was obtained when they appeared as criminals before the courts. In the last ten years asylums have been built for orphans, and over 500 girls in these industrial schools for boys, where they are taught bootmaking, wood carving, printing, cameo, lava, and brass work. In the March report of 1892 it was stated that 559 boys were in the schools at that date, 104 had found positions as skilled laborers.

A kindergarten school is in operation in Naples, where poor girls taken from the street are housed, fed, and educated. Side by side with these, are paying classes of the well to-do, who are taught to find pleasure in bringing clothing and providing for the wants of their poor companions. This Froebel establishment serves also as a training school for teachers of this system. Thus some Italian youths are kept bright, happy, and active, while they learn to be industrious and useful.

Till 1884, the poor of Naples were buried like beasts. Their only cemetery was a lot with 365 excavations covered with a stone lid, lifted by means of a ring. The following system prevailed: All who died in one day were dumped indiscriminately into hole No. 1, some nude, others slightly clothed. The stone top was then put in place, not to be removed for a year. Those dying the following day were dropped into hole No. 2, and so on for each of the 365 days in the year. Not until 1883 was this method abandoned and a more humane system inaugurated.—Kind Words.

Rev. J. H. Eager writes: "My experience of late has convinced me that there are thousands of persons scattered all over Italy, and who entertain most kindly feelings for evangelicals and for the truth we preach. This year, the Bible has had a defender in the Italian Parliament and in the University of Rome. He claims that the study and practice of the Bible is the strongest basis for national character, and the only hope for reform in the church. May God raise up more men in high places to talk in the same way. The leaven is at work." Experience in Italy has likewise proved that tracts often prepare the way for the Bible. Our colporteurs and evangelists have distributed more than twenty thousand tracts, and sold a good many Testaments, gospels, and small evangelical books.

Centenary Missionary Addresses. Delivered at Missionary Conferences and elsewhere, under the auspices of the American Baptist Missionary Union, in the years 1892 and 1893. 12mo, 228 pp. Price, $1.00. Philadelphia: American Baptist Publication Society, 1420 Chestnut Street.

The names of Drs. Broadus, Moxom, Gordon, Moss, Strong, Robins, and Hovey, names of those whom our denomination delights to honor, are among those appearing in this book and their utterances are worthy of them and the cause on behalf of which they speak. It will be noticed by the reader that in the order in which the papers are arranged a progress of thought appears. The volume is neat in its appearance, cheap in price, historic in its occasion, noteworthy in its contributors, and most valuable in its contents. Its appearance fittingly rounds out the centennial celebration, and it ought to be found in the hands of all our Baptist people.

The New Era; or The Coming Kingdom. By Rev. Josiah Strong, D. D. (The Baker & Taylor Co., New York. Library edition, $1.50; plain cloth, 75 cts.; paper, 35 cts.

The many thousands who are acquainted with Dr. Strong's former work—"Our Country"—will read this, his latest effort on modern problems, with great interest. The author has entered the realm of prophecy from a solid basis of fact in a way that is at once interesting, striking and convincing. He pictures no dream of fancy, but confines himself to the probable, and we could almost say, the certain future of society. His inferences from past history, his treatment of present conditions, and his outline of the great work of the "New Era," in which the church of God is to play so vital a part, constitute a most excellent guide for the modern Christian socialist, as well as the student of social politics. The book is well written, and contains nothing of that florid or exaggerated nature so common in works of like character. It bears a lesson that we cannot learn too early. Every page is of value to mankind, for though prophetic, it is so moderately so, and its inferences are so naturally and logically drawn that we cannot doubt their truth.

The gospel of Christ pervades Dr. Strong's efforts; he sees in that gospel, and in the working of the church according to that gospel the future welfare of man, and the final perfection of our social condition. Such a book is a monument to our age, and is worthy of a place in the library of everyone who is interested in past, present and future problems of church, State and the masses.

"Our Country," by the same author, has proved to be one of the most popular works of the day, but we shall not be surprised to see "The New Era" meet with even greater success.

Correction—Revival at Gardner's Church.

Please correct the statement in the "Personals" of last RECORDER that as a result of the recent meeting held by me and other brethren at Benson, seven candidates have presented themselves for baptism. I was not in the meeting at Benson, and preached there only once after the meeting was over. The meeting I aided in was at a school house near Benson. I do not wish to claim the honor which is due to other brethren.

We are now having a glorious revival at Gardner's church in Warren county. I have never seen the church so thoroughly awakened—cold and lukewarm Christians asking their brethren to pray that they may have the joy of salvation restored to them and penitents of all ages asking for prayer. The meeting began last Sunday. Dr. John Mitchell of Franklinton came to my aid on Monday afternoon. Up to Thursday afternoon ten had made a credible profession of religion, and about twenty others asked for prayer. We have had some excellent meetings at Gardner's before, but this excels them all. The church has for some time been keeping up two Sunday schools and a regular prayer-meeting. God be praised for his goodness.

I go next week to Manly.

N. B. COBB.

Churchill, Sept. 22, 1893.

P. S.—Our meeting closed on Saturday. Sixteen have been received for baptism and others will probably follow. Dr. John Mitchell preached four sermons for us which were greatly appreciated and his fireside talks about the Holy Land were very interesting to all who had the privilege of entertaining him. We tried to get him to give us a lecture; but he is the one brother who has traveled through Palestine, Egypt and Syria, who refuses to accept invitations to lecture on what he saw in the old country. It was a rare treat to have him with me.

God's Disciplinary Dealing.

I remember visiting a saw mill several years ago and watching the sharp saw as it cut through a long, crooked, knotty log until from it came a square and beautifully-finished piece of timber. Owing to the crooks the piece of timber was much smaller in its dimensions than the log from which it came.

In this same connection, I have been made to think of myself. How crooked and knotty has been the course of my life! Sometimes I have thought that if it were shaped up by the saw of God's Word, there would be left scarcely enough to make a square.

How often has my will been exactly opposite to what appeared to me to be God's will, and how painful to my natural and selfish inclinations when God's sharp-toothed saw lopped off the knots and straightened up the crooks! As the square piece of timber is much less than the tree from which it came, so may our lives, in the sight of the world, be smaller and our spheres of action narrower after having been hewn down by God's Word; but after all he is the great and wise builder who knows how to bring us into shape, so that we may best fill our places in the great structure which he has planned out to complete. Our daily prayer should be that our wills may run parallel with the will of God and not perpendicular to his will. Lord, teach us all to say from our hearts, "Thy will be done."

Good Meetings.

Dear Recorder:—I have recently held a glorious meeting at Seven Springs. The most of the preaching was done by Dr. J. D. Hufham, and he preaches as few men can. His sermons were full of love and tenderness and brim full of gospel truth. Fourteen were added to the little membership there, and our cause is now established in that community. Rev. A. L. Stough of Kinston was with us for a short time and preached two good sermons for us.

I have also held good meetings at Union, Falling Creek and Mt. Calvary. Rev. J. T. Albritton aided me at Union, Rev. A. G. Willcox at Falling Creek, and Rev. A. L. Stough at Mt. Calvary. These brethren did good preaching and won the hearts of the people.

Let me say again that the Atlantic Association meets at Seven Springs on Tuesday, Oct. 10th. Those coming by rail will be met at La Grange if they will send their names to Bro. W. R. Simmons, Seven Springs, N. C. Yours in Christ, Bethel.

This church is in the southeastern part of Harnett county, and has for its pastor Rev. H. W. Graham. A week's meeting has just been held here. Rev. K. C. Horner and the writer did the preaching, and the Word preached was owned and blessed of the Lord. Eight persons made a profession of faith in Christ, and at the close of the meeting all of the eight united with the church and were baptized. Bro. Horner was the immerser.

It was truly pleasant to be in a meeting with the good people of Bethel church, and the friendly reception and kind treatment during our stay will ever be gratefully remembered. I have been made a better man and the more prepared to do my work as a preacher of the gospel by having been with such a kind and friendly people.

The church is not large in membership, and the congregation is rather small, but it is a delightful task to preach to them. The preacher feels the influence of the prayers of the people while he is preaching.

It was the opinion of some of the brethren that the meeting was one of the best, if not the best meeting ever held with the church during its history. The Lord be praised for the good work done.

I am now helping in a meeting at Swann's Station, Moore county.

W. A. PARRETT.

Sept. 19, 1893.

To the Pastors and Churches of the Yadkin Association.

Dear Brethren:—Let us all remember that at the meeting at Little Richmond, the Association appointed an Executive Committee, which was requested to meet with the church at East Bend on Friday before the fifth Sunday in October, and that the churches were asked to send three delegates from each to constitute, with the ministers, deacons and Sunday school superintendents in the Association, a Union Meeting, which, with the Executive Committee, will take measures for the promotion of the objects of the Baptist State Convention.

It is very desirable that every church be fully represented, and that every minister, deacon and Sunday-school superintendent be present, not only for the above named purpose, but also for the consideration and adoption of such plans as may result in more efficient work for the development of our churches and for the establishment of gospel churches in those portions of our own bounds now destitute of Baptist preaching.

Our Association, if we all will go to work and come up "to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty," may become one of the leading associations of the State. A giant asleep is the undersigned. Let us awake him out of sleep! Let every one who loves the Lord and his cause encourage and help! May the Holy Spirit influence all to do the Lord's work!

Yours fraternally, YADKIN.

A Church Organized.

We began a protracted meeting at this place on the last Sunday in August, and on the first of this month organized a Missionary Baptist church, to which the writer was called to the pastorate for one year.

Rev. W. T. Jones did most of the preaching in our meeting. He presented the truth with earnestness and simplicity. He is a man of backbone in advocating Zion's cause. Several professions were made and seven united with the church. Last Sunday (10th) the writer baptized five.

This is a promising field. It has been sadly neglected in the past. In fact much of this section is being neglected now. Is it possible that the Baptists of North Carolina are ignoring the fact that many precious souls are absolutely starving for the gospel as the Baptists hold it, in some sections of the eastern counties? The people need to be thoroughly indoctrinated with New Testament principles. Lord, hasten the day when the Baptists shall enter the destitute sections of our beloved State and take them for God.

I will write more in regard to this matter sometime in the near future.

Was Given up to Die
Mr. Thomas E. Lewis of Tarboro had been a great sufferer with Indigestion, and an unusually severe attack of it, coupled with catarrh of stomach, brought him to the condition where he was given up to die by those in attendance. Fortunately for him, however, he concluded that the means that had cured so many of his friends was at least worth a trial. Accordingly He Bought and used an Electropoise. The result of this sensible move is fully told in Mr. Lewis' letter, which is reprinted in another part of this paper. By reading it you will learn among other things that his HEALTH IS BETTER TO-DAY THAN FOR 25 YEARS.

Eastern Association.

The next session of the Eastern Baptist Association will meet with Johnson's church near Warsaw on the W. & W. R. R., on Tuesday, Oct. 3d, 1893.

To preach the stated sermons: Introductory sermon, by Rev. J. T. Jenkins; Rev. J. D. Newton, alternate. Missionary sermon, by Rev. J. T. Albritton; Rev. S. D. Swaim, alternate.

I have made application to the C. F. & Y. V., the W. N. & N. and the W. & W. Railroads to give reduced rates to those who wish to come by rail to the Association.

A full representation of all its churches is earnestly requested. If any church-clerk desires a blank-letter for the Association, I will furnish it to him at the Association.

OLIVER BLACKBURN, Clerk.

P. S. The above requests have been granted by the railroads.

Portsmouth Association

Dear Bro. Batley:—I am glad to report to the dear old BIBLICAL RECORDER that the meeting of the Portsmouth Association during last week at Tucker Swamp church was a great success. I have heard some say (one an old deacon of Mill Swamp church) that it was the best session they ever knew. It was my first attendance on this great body of Baptists, but as six of our pastors are natives or recent pastors of North Carolina, I did not feel much like a stranger.

Ex-Judge Eure, now of Norfolk, Va., but native of Gates county, N. C., was chosen moderator of the Association.

I am now at Mill Swamp Baptist church in a protracted meeting. We have ended the work of the second day with encouraging prospects. Bro. C. J. Jones, the new pastor, is moving off well it seems, and pastor and people are working harmoniously. Bro. Jones has much to encourage him. Surely no pastor could have more acts of appreciation from his people. O how that pantry is remembered.

The Mill Swamp church is the oldest in the Portsmouth Association. It is a mother of churches, and is one of the oldest churches in the State of Virginia. It has now about three hundred and fifty members.

A Good Meeting.

On the 5th of September, according to previous appointment, a meeting was begun at Ballard's Bridge church, Chowan county, which closed on the 10th. Our pastor, Rev. A. W. Burfoot, because of sickness in his family, was prevented from attending except on the afternoon of the second day. The only ministerial help secured for the occasion was that of Rev. C. B. Williams of Winton, who came on the second day and remained until the close of the fourth, doing all the preaching while with us.

Bro. Williams entirely captured the hearts of the vast congregations that waited on his ministry during his three days of labor among us. His clear expositions of the gospel will not soon be forgotten by our people.

On Saturday and Sunday, the two last days of the meeting, Bro. J. F. Riddick, a ministerial student, who expects soon to enter the preparatory school of Rev. J. A. Beam at Bethel Hill, and Bro. R. S. Monds, formerly of our own church, but now of Richmond, Va., also a ministerial student, conducted the services with much credit to themselves and satisfaction to their hearers. All the people of the community feel great interest in these two young brethren whose native talent and energy of purpose commend them to the confidence of all hearers. Especially are our people interested in Bro. Monds, being one of us so to speak, and we have learned to regard him favorably for his strict adherence to his profession of faith in Christ.

The visible results of the meeting, as now seen, are the profession of faith and reception for baptism of thirty-one young people. We think we have reason to believe that impressions have been made which will result in great good for time to come.

Fraternally, A. A. PARRISH.

Edenton, Sept. 18, 1893.

From Florence Baptist Church Virgilina, Va.

Dear Recorder:—On Friday night, September 8th, a large crowd assembled to witness the ordination service of our much beloved and worthy Brother T. B. Hill. In September, 1890, the church here, believing that the Lord called our brother into the ministry, gave him license to exercise his ability in the Lord's work.

Since that time he has been a consistent member, and we have watched him very closely, both as to his religious and literary ability to preach the gospel. He has very satisfactorily shown to us by his life and works that he was worthy of ordination, and the church by a unanimous rising vote upon the part of both brethren and sisters, requested Rev. G. T. Watkins of Roxboro, N. C., Rev. R. E. White of Danville, Va., and our worthy pastor to ordain Bro. Hill in the ministry.

The sermon was preached by Rev. G. T. Watkins. His sermon was a most excellent one, preached from Ecclesiastes 9: 12. His points were both clear and concise. He forcibly impressed those that heard him that "a Christian should always do with his might what his hand found to do." Bro. Watkins is a noble young man and is destined to be one of North Carolina's greatest men. May God bless him wherever he goes. The charge delivered by Rev. R. E. White was very earnest. He very forcibly impressed, first, the great necessity of self-reliance and individuality; second, energy and enthusiasm in the ministry; third, faithfulness. This was indeed the most impressive part of his charge. He showed beyond doubt, that the whole secret of success depended upon faithfulness in the discharge of duty. The prayer offered by the pastor was very earnest and fervent. The scene was very solemn and impressive. Bro. Hill leaves in a few days for Wake Forest where he expects to pursue his education until he is fully prepared from a literary view for the ministry. We heartily recommend Bro. Hill to the affections and confidence of any with whom he is thrown. And to the churches that he has the care of, do we sincerely request that they hold up his hands in the work, and give him a hearty co-operation. May the Lord bless both him and his churches.

An appalling tragedy was enacted at Roanoke, Va., on the 20th. A negro named Smith assaulted an aged white woman, having enticed her into an out-of-the-way place, took all the money she had, and then beat her until he thought she was dead. The woman revived, reported the affair to the police, and the negro was arrested just as he was leaving town. After being identified by the woman, he was committed to jail, which a mob surrounded with the intention of lynching him. The militia were called out to protect the jail and preserve the law, but the mob could not be dispersed with threats, and continued their attempts to batter down a rear door of the building, which resulted in an order to the militia to fire on the lynching party. In the fusilade which followed, eight good citizens of Roanoke were killed outright, and fifteen wounded, of whom five will die. The mayor has been driven from the town by the indignant people, and the negro Smith, the cause of all the bloodshed, has been hung, and his body burnt to ashes. At one time it was thought that additional troops from Richmond would be necessary. But at present order is restored, and the authorities are preparing to take proper action in the matter.

President Cleveland has appointed William B. Hornblower, a prominent insurance company lawyer, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, to succeed Justice Blatchford, deceased. CROOK—Alexander B. Crook was born in Davidson county, N. C., October 3d, 1827, and died of heart disease at his home near Cameron, N. C., July 11th, 1893, in his sixty-sixth year. His remains were buried at Crain's Creek church, the funeral services being conducted by the writer, White Hill Lodge also joining in the services with Masonic honors.

For a number of years Bro. Crook lived in Montgomery county, then moved to Moore county, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a good man, quiet and unassuming in his ways, loved by all, not having an enemy so far as is known. Before his death he said he "had nothing to dread, only leaving his wife and children on the cold charities of this world." He leaves a wife, one daughter, and two little sons, to mourn their loss. He rests from his labors.

The Dreamer.

I am tired of planning and toiling,
In the crowded hives of men;
Heart-weary of building and spoiling,
And spoiling and building again.
And I long for the dear old river,
Where I dreamed my youth away;
For a dreamer lives forever,
And a toiler dies in a day.

I am sick of the showy seeming
Of a life that is half a lie;
Of the faces lined with scheming
In the throng that hurries by.
From the sleepless thoughts' endeavor
I would go where the children play;
For a dreamer lives forever,
And a thinker dies in a day.

I can feel no pride, but pity
For the burdens the rich endure;
There is nothing sweet in the city
But the patient lives of the poor,
Oh, the little hands too skilful,
And the child-mind choked with weeds!
The daughter's heart grown wilful,
And the father's heart that bleeds!

No, no! from the street's rude bustle,
From trophies of mart and stage,
I would fly to the woods' low rustle
And the meadows' kindly page.
Let me dream as of old by the river,
And be loved for the dream alway;
For a dreamer lives forever,
And a toiler dies in a day.

—By John Boyle O'Reilly.

Imprisoned in a Clock-Face.

One of the glories of the ancient church of St. Martin's was its fine clock. It was the boast of old Hans Scheller that during the whole forty years in which he had been custodian of the church, the clock had never stopped or gone wrong; and nothing could convince him that it was not the finest clock in the world.

The only thing which troubled Hans was the fear lest his inquisitive little son Kaspar, who was always in some mischief or other, should, in one of his boyish pranks, injure the mechanism of this wonderful timepiece. No wonder, therefore, that, when one morning he was about to start for town to do some marketing, Hans took care first of all to lock the door of the church tower and put the key in his pocket.

"No harm can happen now," he muttered; "and in any case, I shall be back before he gets out of school."

But, as ill luck would have it, the teacher was called away by some business that afternoon, and the boys got out of school more than an hour earlier than usual. Kaspar, finding his father gone, went straight to the door of the clock tower, and looked rather blank on discovering that it was locked. But he was not to be easily stopped when he had once made up his mind. Getting out upon the roof, and crawling along a cornice, where only a cat or a school boy could have found footing, he crept through an air hole right into the clock-room.

For some time he was as happy as a child in a toy shop, running from one marvel to another, till at length he discovered another hole, and thrusting his head through it, found himself looking down upon the market place, through the face of the clock itself. But when he tried to withdraw his head again, it would not come.

It was a queer scrape to be in, and Kaspar was more inclined to laugh than be frightened; but suddenly a thought struck him, which scared him in earnest; his neck was in the track of the minute hand, which, when it reached him, must inevitably tear his head off!

Poor Kaspar! It was too late now to wish that he had left the clock alone. He tried to scream for help; but, with his neck in that cramped position, the cry that he gave was scarcely louder than the chirp of a sparrow. He struggled desperately to writhe himself back through the hole, but a piece of woodwork had slipped down on the back of his neck and held him like a vise.

On came the destroyer, nearer and nearer still, marking off with its measured tick his few remaining moments of life. And all the while the sun was shining gayly, the tiny flags were fluttering on the booths of the market-place, and the merry voices of his school-fellows who were playing in the market place came faintly to his ears, while he hung there helpless, with death stealing upon him inch by inch.

His head grew dizzy, the measured beat of the ticking sounded like the roll of a muffled drum, while the coming hand of the clock looked like a monstrous arm outstretched to seize him, and the carved faces on the spouts seemed to grin and gibber at him in mockery. And still the terrible hand crept onward, nearer, nearer, nearer!

"What can that thing in the clock-face be?" said a tourist below, pointing his spy-glass upward. "Why, I declare, it looks like a boy's head!"

"A boy's head," cried a gray-headed watch-maker beside him, one of Hans Scheller's especial friends, snatched hastily at the glass as he spoke. "Why, good gracious! its little Kaspar. He'll be killed, he'll be killed!" And he rushed toward the church, shouting like a madman.

The alarm spread like wildfire; and before Klugmann, the watch-maker, had got half way up the stairs leading to the tower, more than a score of excited men were scampering at his heels. But at the top stairs they were suddenly brought to a standstill by the locked door.

"It is locked!" cried Klugmann, in tones of horror; "and Hans must have taken the key with him, for it isn't here."

"Never mind the key!" roared a brawny smith behind him. "Pick up that beam, comrades and run it against the lock. All together, now!"

[illegible] went the door, in rushed the crowd; [illegible] now senseless from sheer fright, [illegible] out of his strange prison just [illegible] of the minute-hand actually [illegible] neck.

A Queenly Head

can never rest on a body frail from disease any more than the lovely lily can grow in the sterile soil. When consumption fastens its hold upon a victim, the whole physical structure commences its decay. At such a period, before the disease is too far advanced, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will arrest and cure it. So certain is this, that an offer is made to refund the money paid for it when a failure can be found under the condition of a fair trial.

An Intemperate Woman.

She was a member of the church, and belonged to an excellent family. Indeed, she was highly respected herself, yet, she was a victim of that monster, intemperance. It occurred in this way:

She was a wife, and a mother of several children, among them one bright little boy about six years old. She lived very near her pastor, who also had a son about six years old. These little fellows were very fond of playing together, and spent much time playing in the home of the pastor. As most little boys of that age, they were at times pretty noisy.

One evening the pastor's wife, being not well and very nervous, said to her little boy: "Son, you and Z—— must not play in the hall this evening; I can not stand it." He did not fully understand his mother, and went down and met his little friend at the door, and said: "I can not play with you this evening." "Why?" was the reply. "Because mamma does not want me to." Little Z—— went home at once and reported that the pastor's son said his mamma did not want him to play with him.

Well, very soon little Z——'s older sister came over to the pastor's home to inquire what bad thing little Z—— had done. "Why?" said the surprised wife of the pastor. "Well, your son told Z—— that you did not want your child to play with Z—— any more." The little fellow was called in and asked what he told Z——. He answered candidly, and said to his mother: "I told him you did not want me to play with him." His mother explained to Z——'s sister the circumstances—what she said, and how her son came to misunderstand her; and concluded by making the little fellow go over and explain to little Z——'s mother his mistake.

You say, of course, that was the last of it. Oh, no! the end is not yet in sight. Little Z——'s mother forbade him ever to go to the pastor's house any more. The children have stopped going to Sunday-school. No member of the family attends preaching at their mother's church.

Now, is it not a very intemperate judgment to accuse a good Christian woman of falsehood, just because a little six year-old boy failed to understand a request?

If Z——'s mother did not believe that her neighbor and pastor's wife was insincere and telling a falsehood when she promptly and fully and amicably explained the mistake, why did she stop Z—— from going to see his little playmate? You say, has not she a right to keep her son at home? No! not when she so does it as to say to her family, "Your pastor's wife told a falsehood." She is, therefore, very intemperate in her judgment.

But the price she is paying to satisfy her revengeful spirit, is excessively intemperate. 1. She is training her children to cherish the spirit of revenge. 2. She has deprived them of whatever good the pastor and his wife might have done them. 3. She robs them of the blessings of the sanctuary. 4. She is inflicting a wound upon the church of Christ, which he loved and bought with his own blood. She will make herself unhappy, run the risk of destroying the souls of her children, and dishonor the house of God—all to spite a neighbor, because her little boy, six years old, made a mistake! Is not that fearful intemperance? Is a man any more guilty when he is intemperate in the use of liquor, than a woman is when she is so very intemperate in indulging her temper? Are the consequences any worse? "Let your moderation be known unto all men." —Southwestern Presbyterian.

Partners.

A sturdy little figure it was, trudging bravely by with a pail of water. So many times it had passed our gate that morning that curiosity prompted to further acquaintance.

"You are very busy little girl to day!"

"Yes'm." The round face under the broad hat was turned toward us. It was freckled, flushed and perspiring, but cheery withal. "Yes'm; it takes a heap of water to do a washing."

"And do you bring it all from the brook down there?"

"O, we have it in the cistern mostly, only it's been such a dry time lately."

"And there is nobody else to carry the water?"

"Nobody but mother an' she's washin'."

"Well, you are a good girl to help her."

It was not a well considered compliment, and the little water carrier evidently did not consider it one at all; for there was a look of surprise in her gray eyes and an almost indignant tone in her voice as she answered: "Why, of course I help her. I always help her do things all the time; she hasn't anybody else. Mother'n me's pardners."

We looked after her as she picked up her pail and walked on, bending under the load a little, but resolute and with no thought of complaining or shirking. A stout, old-fashioned, homely little body she was, but we called her mother a rich and happy woman. —Exchange.

Little Annoyances.

Flies get into the ointment. A too hot fire burns the cake in the oven. A heavy rain falls when we want to go on a picnic. We reach the train a minute too late, and see it moving down the track. How miserable these little annoyances! How frequent we meet them! And how do we receive them? Often with peevish complaint. We think of them as wholly bad, and as simply hindrances to our pleasure. But hold! Are they not part of the providence of God? We believe it. The thorn on the rose of life is placed there for our good. It is a part of our discipline. If we take these annoyances in the proper spirit they will cultivate our self-control, strengthen our patience, and ripen our character. If our wills were not sometimes opposed, and if things did not occasionally turn out contrary to our hopes, we would become selfish and conceited. All these things are really helps, and the person who learns to look upon them so has learned one of the valuable secrets of life. —Our Young People.

THE appalling tragedy at Roanoke, Va., which resulted in the slaughter of twelve human beings, deplorable as it is, bears an important lesson to the American people, of which they can not take advantage too soon. It should have been learned two thousand years ago, when it would not have cost so much. "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword," were the words of our Master at the beginning of the centuries, as true to day as they were when first they fell from his divine lips. How much blood has been shed by the disregard, or the wilful ignorance, of that one precept will never be known. Through the ages, since that first tragedy in which brother destroyed brother, men have shown a disregard for divine law, and a contempt for human life, that plainly proclaims that the world is far from perfection, and is likely to remain so for ages yet to come. We have had divine law almost from the beginning, and we have had human law, confessedly often poorly executed, since man first attempted a higher civilization. Both have been disregarded time and again; both were disregarded in the recent Roanoke tragedy; and those who disregarded them—the negro brute and the lawless mob alike—have suffered the consequences. The pity is that innocent spectators of the terrible scene suffered as the guilty brute out of whose inhuman devilishness sprung the direful affair. But they, like the spectator and coat bearer of old, were not guiltless, though we would be the last person on earth to say that they deserved the terrible fate which befell them. But mobs and mob-law are to be avoided by all good people; and neither passive curiosity, active sympathy, nor indignant passion, should lead one to resort to such means; for once mingled with a lawless herd, our life is accounted no more than theirs. We have laws that were enacted for the protection of the law-abiding, and when those for whom these laws were made turn them from their proper channels, their only safeguard is destroyed, and anarchy in its worst form hovers over the people. And we feel confident in asserting that all people would prefer weak and poorly executed law to that dread condition when each citizen holds his life in his hands—a veritable reign of terror.

WE HAVE read with unusual interest a recent editorial in the Religious Herald which reminds us that in searching out and abusing the "long haired, wild eyed cranks," called anarchists, that we have overlooked a class that is far more dangerous to the existence of the institutions of our government, but who appear as the main-stays of our national life, who pose as philanthropists, and public-spirited citizens. In our opinion the remarks of the Herald are true to the letter, and our people cannot be made aware of them too soon. It says:—

"The thoughtful observer will discover more peril to human liberty in the class who occupy the other extreme of the social scale than in those who are at the bottom. All history is insignificant if it does not uniformly teach that the influences which have contributed most largely to the oppression of the masses, which have most seriously retarded the progress of human freedom and most stubbornly resisted the contention for equal political rights, have come from the privileged, the titled and the wealthy classes. The sodden and coatless anarchist is a nuisance, but he is an easily abatable nuisance. If he throws a bomb he can be quickly secured and outraged public opinion will see that he speedily gets his just deserts. But that other communist, who, clad in purple and fine linen, controls in large degree the fortunes of myraids of human beings, who, combining the power of practically unlimited wealth with a greed utterly pitiless and insatiate, can pull down one and set up another, cannot be dealt with quite so summarily."

We do not hold that it is a crime to be rich; but we do claim that the temptation to crime, and the power to be dangerously criminal, is with the rich rather than the poor; and history teaches that they have yielded to that temptation many times in the history of mankind. To gain wealth honestly, and to use it worthily, is noble. But there is a rich class that "cares nothing for the shrieks of the dying or the silence of death;" and they are more dangerous to our welfare than can be possible with blatant bomb throwers.

THE influence of our modern Christian civilization on the Eastern empires is admirably shown in the recent accomplishments of Americans in Japan. One hundred years ago Japan was as far removed from civilizing influences as if it were on another planet. Her people groped in the most intense intellectual darkness. There were then in force laws to the effect that no ship or native of Japan should quit the country under penalty of death; that Japanese returning from a foreign country should be put to death; that nothing was to be purchased from foreigners; and that the recipient of a foreign letter should suffer death. To-day there is a new civilization in Japan; and nothing remains of its former condition "except the natural scenery." And now the nation aspires to leadership among its fellows. Missionaries find a more congenial field here than elsewhere in the Orient, because the government has learned to value their worth. In recent years the "Doshisha Mission Hospital and Training School" has been established under the supervision of a worthy American, Dr. J. C. Berry, and an able corps of assistants, under whose work the great possibilities of that once hopeless nation are fast developing. This school has graduated over thirty native doctors and nurses, whose influence on the country has not fallen far short of the marvelous. They are an effective aid to missionary work as disciples of a new Christian civilization, and the vast benefits that have resulted from their school and hospital cannot be estimated. Japan is already in advance of the remainder of the Orient, and we hope to see the day when she can claim a place in civilization second to none. Her natural situation is most fortunate, her climate all that could be asked; and her only fault is the intellectual darkness, business lethargy, resultant from centuries of non-communication with enlightened nations. Now that her gates are open, there is no reason why she should not rise to her destined station among the nations of the earth.

Talks on Medicine—No. 3.

FROM A RETIRED PHYSICIAN.

STIMULANTS.

Perhaps there is no subject that has engaged more thought of late than the use of stimulants. It has been discussed from all of its standpoints by the wisest and best of men. Books have been written, lectures delivered, and schools have been required to teach the proper use of the various stimulants which are so popularly used to day. So in talking about family medicine, we find it not out of place to spend our time for this conversation upon this important theme. And in doing so, we shall not be expected to deal with the moral aspect of the question, but with its physical bearing. And by stimulants in this conversation, we are not to include all the forms of medical stimulants, but shall speak largely of those in common use, viz, spirituous or fermented liquors.

THEIR PLACE.

I am not one of those so cranky as to deny that stimulants have a place in the treatment of disease. I know that there are physycians who take the extreme ground that spirituous liquors have no place in medicine. Something else, they say, will answer just as well; and hence, in their practice, they deny the patient the use of them at all. There are also some temperance fanatics who decry their use, and will refuse to allow them to be used in their families, and refuse to use them themselves. Such a wild, crazy fanaticism must only react, and can possibly accomplish no good at all either for the sick or for the temperance cause for which they are such zealous advocates. Spirituous liquors are medicines; and the man who would doubt this would shut his eyes to results and his mind to facts. 'Tis true that men—and thinking men, at that—have been so prejudiced against spirituous liquors that they refuse facts which may be in their favor. No physician void of prejudice and fanaticism can doubt that around the bedside these remedies in their various forms have done wonders in his hands in bridging over death-chasms and prolonging life. Take, for example, the treatment of typhoid fever—who to day would deny whiskey, brandy or wine a place in its treatment? And yet, there are certain temperance organizations which forbid in their pledges even a physician's prescribing them even in such extreme cases of necessity! In my own practice—which was largely in a typhoid district—I tried for a time to treat my patients in conformity with my rigid temperance views, and my work was largely a failure until I had realized that common sense and cranky fanaticism were two things, and that life was more important than the perpetuation of certain wild-cat hobbies which I had been trying to ride. Hence, I changed my method of treatment and also my opinions of those matters. And while dealing with this subject in order that I may impress you with the matter as I feel it, I will give you the words of one of the greatest practitioners upon this continent, as I heard them in class-room:

"The treatment of typhoid fever may be summed up in the following: whiskey, opium, cold water and milk."

The greatest stress was upon the whiskey. No man can afford to be an extremest in matters of life and death. Extremists may have their places, but not in dealing with the sick. A mistake at the critical moment may mean death. The fact is, it is not in this way that temperance reform is to come. No man can hope to convince men to agree upon a proposition which is based upon an absurdity, a falsehood. Whiskey per se is not an evil. True, it has caused untold misery and suffering, but in itself it is not an evil. It only becomes an evil in its inexpedient use. Strychnine is a much more powerful poison than alcohol, and yet it is not an evil. It will cause death, but per se it is not an evil. It is a drug, a medicine. No physician refuses to use it; no fanatic refuses to take it when properly prescribed. O, we hear the temperance reformers talk about one drop of alcohol's turning the stomach upside down and playing havoc with its normal functions. But it is all bosh, and no sane man can hope to succeed upon such a premise. What we want to accomplish is to convince the world that it is a poisonous drug, and, as such, should be taken from the open saloon and put in the care of the drug shops, and such legal regulations placed around it as we have thrown around strychnine, and place a heavy penalty upon a man who dispenses it for other than medical purposes as we would punish a man for selling strychnine or other such poisons.

HOW IT IS ABUSED.

Now I am aware that there is danger in the application of this principle which I lay down—dangerous, in that this wonderful therapeutic agent may be sadly abused. Some doctors have a plan, either from habit, ignorance or indifference of prescribing alcoholic stimulants for everything regardless of the needs or idiosyncrasies of the patient. I once heard of an old physician who never wasted any medicine. When a patient was discharged as well, he would gather up all the medicines left, take them home, put them in a bottle and label them "cure all." Once he was asked what he did with his "cure all," and he replied by saying, "When I get a man and I don't know what is the matter with him, I give him a bottle of my 'cure all,' and most generally he gets well." Some physicians are that way about prescribing whiskey. It is their "cure all," and when they get to their "road's end," they fall in on whiskey. It generally suits the patient, and the doctor is relieved as he thinks of great trouble. Now, it is useless to say that such a course is dangerous, and the man who would be so careless should be regarded as the highest type of a fraud, and yet there are plenty of just such doctors.

I once knew a man who had once been fond of his dram—was a drunkard. But he had long since quit and was a good member of the church. For years he never drank a drop. He was finally taken with measles, and while recuperating, his doctor persuaded him to take a little whiskey as a tonic. He did not want to do so, but the doctor insisted. It was not long before the old fires were burning in that man's stomach, and he found the habit fastened upon him again, and while under the influence of drink was killed. O, it was a sad sight as I looked upon him! But his condition was not so sad as the doctor who had prescribed it in a reckless manner

But what shall be the rule to follow? As I see the matter, there are two: first, let no patient prescribe for himself so deadly a poison. It is too dangerous. Humanity is too weak. It may give us an appetite which is beyond control. Second, if a patient contemplates the need of such stimulants, let him go to an honest, competent physician (not an old soaker himself), and let him see whether or not such a course is needed, and if so, to what extent. If these two rules are carefully and honestly observed, in most cases the difficulty will be removed. It will serve to make the doctors more careful in prescribing.

STIMULANTS IN CHILDREN.

This is a subject which should call for consideration. There is really too much carelessness and thoughtlessness in this matter. Some mothers think nothing of giving the little babe every time he cries out at night a bit of whiskey and flag-root tea. The flag-root is not objectionable, but in the interest of your child and in the interest of his soul, don't be guilty of this dangerous habit. It is wonderful how soon habits are formed. There is no telling—we know that the child begins early in life to cultivate tastes; and besides, the law of inheritance has a vast deal to do with a child along this line. How often these things are but the breezes which simply fan into a blaze the spark of latent appetite which lies dormant in the child. O, parents! I can't plead with you too much or with too much earnestness in this matter. Be careful how you tamper with your children lest you destroy their bodies and send their souls to hell. I might say something to you just upon this point concerning that dangerous and sinful practice of some of our parents (good parents at that, members of the churches,) of putting wines and brandy in cakes, using them upon their tables, &c. But I leave this for you to think out for yourself.

OPIATES AND OTHER NARCOTICS.

Before concluding this conversation with you, I wish to say something concerning the use of opiates and other narcotics. There is a great and growing practice to day among our people, growing out of our rapid life, to resort to such drugs to make us sleep when we are tired and sleepless. People think it nothing strange to take now a dose of bromide or chloral or sulfonal when they can't sleep; and sometimes, if there is a slight pain, they resort to even stronger drugs and take opium in some form. This plan is fraught with great danger. The person resorting to it will sooner or later find himself or herself overcome by an enemy which can not be controlled. Better a thousand times die of sleeplessness than die of some of these remedies. While upon this point I want to say that the plan of taking antipyrine, antikamina, phenacetine, &c., for every little ache or pain, is one which should receive a sudden condemnation from any thinking man or woman in the world. It is positively dangerous. Leave these drugs alone; suffer a while. The pain will be relieved of itself after a while without them, and your nervous system spared the depression which so often follows such a course.

In a Missionary Home.

This morning I stepped in to see Dr. Graves a moment in his temporary home in Macao. It was just after breakfast, and the household were just assembling for prayers in Chinese. There were parts of several families met under one roof for a few days of rest and recuperation during the heated term. Besides several members of our mission in Canton, there were present also Rev. George Campbell and his sister of the Northern Baptist Mission at Swatow. Besides the missionaries, there were present several Chinese employed in various capacities as teachers, cooks and the like by these several families and individuals. On invitation, I remained to take part in the worship. First, we sang, "Every day, every hour" in Chinese, Miss White playing the organ. Then we read in the Epistle to the Ephesians, each reading his verse in turn, except the Chinese woman. Women in China very rarely know how to read unless they have been taught in Christian schools. Bro. Campbell and his sister and their cook had the same characters as the rest of us; but, as they speak a different dialect, they called these characters quite different names, so that the rest of us could scarcely understand any of it. After the reading, Dr. Graves commented a few minutes on the passage read, and then called on the cook to lead the prayer.

It has seemed to me that this incident would rarely find a parallel in Christian households in America. So many fail to have family worship. Of those who do meet for worship, some fail to call in the servants. But how rare a thing it would be for an American pastor to ask one of his servants to lead the prayer at family worship. But here it is not at all a rare thing. Our cook is not a Christian, and so we never call on him, but I have frequently heard the cook pray and preach, too. Chinese cooks are usually men. Bro. Simmons had a cook last year who could preach an excellent sermon and did so on every opportunity.

OUR NATIVE PREACHERS.

Several of the men whom the Lord has called out of heathenism into the light of the gospel of Jesus Christ, have been called to preach that gospel and are now in the active ministry. Some of these whom I have come to know are worthy of mention.

Bro. Fung King Him is the pastor of the church in Canton and is supported by the church. In his boyhood he was employed in the home of one of the missionaries and in this way became acquainted with the gospel. He is a good man, an earnest, acceptable preacher and a faithful pastor. Under his pastoral care, the church seems to be growing in numbers and in efficiency.

Bro. Li Tsai Leung is a young man, but one of the most promising of the preachers. He lives in rooms adjoining the city chapel, and his work is to have the chapel opened every day for preaching to the heathen and to preach himself whenever there is need. Besides being a good preacher, he is an excellent business man. He is clerk and treasurer of the Canton church, and keeps the books and the finances in excellent condition. The native Christians are building an academy in Canton, and this brother is chairman and business manager of the board of trustees. This brother was raised in a Christian family, being the son of Deacon Li, for many years the main stay of the Canton church.

Bro. Fung Wut Mau is pastor of the church at Shin Hing. A part of his support is raised by the church, and so he gives part of his time to pastoral work. He also does much missionary work, preaching to the heathen almost every day. He has been to America several times, and was for some time pastor of a church in Portland, Oregon. He has recently been invited by the Home Mission Society to take charge of work among the Chinese in Brooklyn, N. Y., and is disposed to accept. His place will be hard to fill. In his boyhood he was a servant in the family of one of the missionaries, and when he applied for baptism, some of the Chinese Christians feared he was too dull to understand the plan of salvation. But he is now one of our brightest men, a clear and forcible preacher and a zealous worker. He speaks English.

In my last I wrote of the recent death of Bro. Tso Fot Suen, pastor of the church at Tsing Uen, and of Bro. Au Yeung Hong, in charge of the work at Tsung Fa.

Bro. Cheung Yuk Peng is a jolly, fat Chinaman, who enjoys a hearty laugh, and gets much pleasure out of life. He travels as evangelist, in the Scriptural sense of the word. He goes up and down among the towns and villages, everywhere telling the story of the Cross. Though not a first-class sermonizer, he is admirably fitted for the work he does, and has been very successful, many having received from him their first knowledge of the gospel. He was converted in middle life and has been preaching ten or twelve years.

There are several other preachers who give all their time to the work. Most of them travel to and fro among the people, preaching and selling books, and using all available means to make known the good news.

I ought not to omit to mention Bro. Chau Kam Shing, who has nominal connection with the Mission, but is supported by one of the churches in Brooklyn, N. Y. He is not a popular preacher, but is one of the most pious and consecrated workers. He is especially gifted in bringing men who are "almost persuaded" to make a decision for Christ. He has probably baptized more people than any other man about Canton, except the pastor of the Canton church. He is now very feeble, threatened with consumption, and we fear that his work is almost ended.

Besides these who preach regularly, there are many others who preach occasionally. Some who are employed to teach the language to new missionaries, often go out and preach when they are not fully occupied with teaching. One of these is a very popular and striking preacher. My teacher is a promising young man, who feels called to preach, and preaches quite frequently.

There are, also, physicians, and school-teachers, and merchants, and cooks, who can and do preach acceptably, sometimes to the heathen in the week, sometimes to Christians on Sunday. These do not feel called to give their whole time to preaching, but make their support from their [illegible] and preach when they have opportunity.

CHURCH LEADERS.

Not long since we had some occasion to discuss briefly this subject; but the matter is one of such importance that it demands further notice from time to time. It is often the case that those who write or speak about places or communities where the Baptist cause is weak use such expressions as these, "Oh for some one to lead our people there!" or "A judicious leader is sadly needed there; where is the man for the place?" etc. So far as pastors are concerned, it is expected that where they preach and where they work they will act as spiritual guides and leaders of the people; but this article has special reference to our talented and consecrated laymen who either aspire to be leaders in church life and work or are pushed forward by their brethren to such positions.

Some of our readers may be surprised that we should virtually admit that some of our talented and consecrated laymen should aspire to be leaders among their brethren; but we do not think we put it too strongly when we thus state it. It is altogether possible that some good and talented men should at times have such aspirations. We must confess, however, that it is rather a questionable matter to decide whether such men should cherish such aspirations. Generally speaking, it is decidedly best for our gifted brethren to wait until they are pushed into places of leadership by their brethren. In religious work, especially, the office or the place should seek the man, and not the man the place. There are many reasons why this is best, and the strongest is that any one can work with a clearer conscience, more grace and efficiency, in some place of trust, if he knows he is there, not after his own seeking, but by the voluntary choice of others.

But even when brethren are thus pushed forward by the pressure that comes from their brethren, they ought to be very careful how they fill the place of leader in church work. The methods of the trickster, or the political quack, are in shockingly bad taste when used in such work. And the spirit that should actuate the leader is strikingly put by the Saviour in the words, "But it shall not be so among you; but whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant; even as the Son of Man came, not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." The man who cannot see in these words a rebuke of that spirit that often actuates the political, or even religious boss, that flourishes in some localities, is unfit to be a religious leader among the people.

The true secret, then, we think of one filling successfully the place of religious leader, if it be necessary for such to exist among our people, is for one to learn the art of leading without seeming to lead, and further the spirit that Christ would instil in our minds and hearts in the passage quoted. The spirit is utterly at war with the disposition of some who are so self-willed as to attempt to rule or ruin in church matters. It is sometimes the case that for a long period of time some brother is the recognized leader of the church with which he is connected; and in this case there is great danger that he should actually attempt to rule the church in such a way as to run the church in all things according to his will. If now and then there is a brother who is bold enough to differ from him, he is in some way "hushed up," and things move on as usual. This in plain English is an unfortunate state for any church to occupy, because sooner or later it will result in trouble. Sooner or later, on some question, the leader will find himself with the minority of the church, because the church will become so weary of this rather tame submission to the will of one man that a majority will unite against him and oppose some plan that is dear to him. According to Baptist polity, the only way to run a Baptist church peacefully and successfully is to let the majority rule. So if the brother who has long been a leader, if not the leader, in church affairs, finds himself with the minority on any question, let him learn how to submit gracefully to the will of the majority. If he learn to do that, thus acknowledging the fallibility of his own judgment, [illegible] that Christ has [illegible] of his churches (see [illegible] more clearly demonstrates [illegible] and that he is not dis[illegible] the obedience his brethren [illegible] upon him.

[illegible] part of our subject, let us guard those who are recognized as church leaders among us against attempting to control the pastor, as well as the church of which they are members. The pastor is recognized by the Great Head of the Church as the religious leader and guide of the church, and his authority extends over all alike. And let us call attention further to the fact that when one has long been a recognized leader among his people he is in great danger of supposing, or presuming to say, that because he desires a certain measure adopted, or thinks that a certain thing is so, therefore the church desires or thinks it. No one, especially in church matters, has any right to speak for others unless he is sure that what he says meets their approval.

This thing of leadership among church members is something that requires tact, good judgment, real piety, a great deal of patience, and grace enough sometimes gracefully to accept defeat, if in the minority.

ASSURANCE.

It seems that our brethren in some parts, notably in the great State of Texas, are very much exercised on the doctrine of Assurance. It seems to us without any special "reading up," or consulting authorities on this subject, that common sense and Scripture have both long since defined the status of this doctrine. It is a little remarkable that some of the strongest and fiercest controversies in the religious world have sprung up in connection with Scripture passages, or Scripture doctrines, that are so plain that an unsophisticated Bible reader would wonder how any controversy could exist concerning them. Of this class is the doctrine of Assurance. There are some Scripture tests by which a man may know that he is a child of God, "By this shall ye know that you have passed from death unto life, because ye love the brethren," and "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirits that we are children of God." Christ says in another place, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another."

Judging by the bitterness that the controversy on the doctrine of Assurance has assumed in our sister State, one can but be struck with the fact that the spirit exhibited, especially by some who are so noisy about the improved doctrine of Assurance, is quite contrary to that spirit of love by which Christ says we ourselves and those about us may know that we have passed from death unto life, and hence, his disciples. There is another Scripture passage that people who seem to be almost crazed on Assurance would do well to heed in the midst of their bitter discussions, and that is, "If any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of his."

Our own opinion on this subject is, that each converted man has sufficient assurance of his acceptance with God to cheer and comfort him in his battle against sin; and sometimes before Christ's veterans reach his presence they may have such implicit faith in him and his promises, as to reach that state of assurance that David had reached when he wrote, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

ASHE AND ALLEGHANY ASSOCIATION.

This Association met with the Apple Grove church in the extreme northwestern portion of Ashe county near the Virginia line. Brother Fields, the former Moderator, was kept away by the high waters, as was the entire representation from the churches in Alleghany.

Bro. T. M. Duncan was elected Moderator, and Bro. H. A. Eller was re-elected Clerk.

The crowd was the largest we have ever seen at any meeting of this body. The church could only accommodate a small proportion of the people who seem to come from all directions.

This was the first church we had ever seen located on the top of a mountain. This was done, however, to accommodate the people living in the two valleys below. Two beautiful streams of clear, cold water flow on either side of the church, and the eye would not soon tire beholding the lovely mountain scenery which surrounded the church on all sides.

After having travelled some sixty miles in a hack over the roughest road anybody ever saw, we felt we were not only entitled to all the subscribers we could get, but also to a full share of everything around us whether it be pure bracing mountain air, cold and sparkling water from the crystal streams, which flow down the mountain sides, or whether it be things that satisfy human appetite, such as fine mountain beef fattened on purpose for the visiting brethren, or chickens just the right age and size to take part in the proceedings, the finest milk, the most delicious honey, potatoes, and "pot pies."

All of these and more besides we found awaiting our coming. Arriving at Bro. J. W. Tucker's home on Friday night, we at once proceeded to take such things in the quantities that suited the taste and storage capacity of each and all concerned.

We walked to the church next morning while our vehicle is sent to the shop to be mended. A trip over the mountains would not be complete if we did not break something.

Temperance, Home and Foreign Missions had been disposed of before we arrived; so Periodicals, State Missions and the Orphanage were discussed on Saturday. I heard nothing of "mission methods." This was a relief to one who has heard this subject for the last month from two to three times a week. It is always a pleasure to see an Association, though it may not do so much, close with the brethren—united in the work, in a spirit of love and brotherly affection. This has not been the case at any place where "mission methods" have been discussed.

From year to year there is progress among the churches in this Association. True, we might wish to see greater progress than is to be seen, yet we will be thankful for any signs of progress at all; and by pressing on in the direction of educating, cultivating and unifying our people, we shall at no very distant day see a condition of things far different from what it is now. Men like Tucker, Graybeal, Eller, Goodman, and a number of others were not made for nothing. Any one of these men, and others I might mention, with proper encouragement and earnest and aggressive leadership on the part of their pastors, would do more than many entire churches are now doing.

KING'S MOUNTAIN ASSOCIATION.

This is one of the best Associations in the State, containing about four thousand members. This year it met with the church at Boiling Springs, the best section in Cleveland county. The people are thickly settled, and seem to be unusually prosperous. The dwellings are nice and comfortable, the farms are well cultivated, and in the main productive. A good school has been carried on in the neighborhood regularly for a number of years, and the good influence it has exerted is plainly seen. A large number of young men have gone from this section to college. Some of them are now here, and in various stations are exercising a good influence on the community. Some have gone to other States, and are holding stations of honor and usefulness in their new homes.

The Association was organized by electing Maj. H. F. Schenck moderator, and Bro. Lovelace clerk. These brethren have held these positions for several years, and the unanimity with which they were retained was sufficient evidence of the high appreciation of the brethren of the Association.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. J. L. Sproles of Shelby. His subject, "Sanctification," was treated in a very clear, pointed and positive manner, and contained no comfort for the crowd of "cranks" who recently infected this section preaching perfect and instantaneous sanctification. How long are good people to be harrassed and confused by such fools and frauds?

A large number of correspondents and visitors were present, and the moderator knows so well how to make such feel pleasant and at home. Dr. Pritchard added special interest to the meeting. Dr. Durham said he had never heard him preach so well as he did on Friday. We were looking after other brethren, and so failed to hear him. We did hear, however, a very excellent speech he made on periodicals. There were an unusual number of good sermons and speeches during the session. Dr. Durham preached on Sunday on the "Sufferings of Christ and the Glory that Followed," and up to this writing I have never heard a sermon of such power. He preached in the open air to three or four thousand people, and three times the number could have heard every word from first to last.

Brethren Herring and Bryan each made a strong speech on the methods of mission work in China. From all I could hear the "new method" has not gained any strength in the Association since last year. In this I only state the impression made on me. The moderator ruled, and wisely, too, we think, that there would be no account taken of this work in the minutes of the Association.

Prof. Hobgood of the Oxford Female Seminary, and Bro. Hilliard, agent of Wake Forest College, were given Friday night to discuss the subject of general education. They did their work well, and we shall hope for good results to the institutions which they represent, as well as to the cause of education generally.

No man goes to the Associations whom the brethren are more delighted to see and hear than Bro. Mills. His speech on this occasion was of unusual interest, and the Association gave him a good collection for the Orphanage.

I spent the time in the splendid home of Bro. J. Y. Hamrick and his father. It was a real pleasure to meet for the first time in years a number of old friends and school mates.

The next session of the Association meets in Shelby.

And now after a day or two of rest I find myself in company with Dr. Durham and Bro. Hilliard at the home of Bro. C. B. Justice, making for the GREEN RIVER ASSOCIATION.

This is the third time I have attended this body. How time does pass away! Brother Justice meets us with the same hearty welcome which we have always found in him and his household. Only a few days ago he buried a son, who was last year a student at Wake Forest, full of promise and upon whose head many hoped would fall the mantle of his honored father.

This Association convened with Mountain Creek church, a new and elegant house just completed. Dr. Landrum and Bro. Rucker were again elected Moderator and Clerk. The introductory sermon was preached by Dr. Landrum at 11 o'clock on Thursday, and but for the fact that the Doctor promised to furnish the manuscript for publication in the RECORDER, we should attempt at least an analysis of the subject for the benefit of our readers.

This was one of the very best sessions we have yet seen of this Association. There is no division of any sort. All the churches were represented. The different objects were discussed with much interest. Periodicals, Education, and State and Foreign Missions had been disposed of up to Friday evening, the time at which we were compelled to leave. The report on Foreign Missions was discussed by brethren Gower, Justice and Durham.

Bro. Hilliard is getting well into his work and is making a vigorous effort for the College, both in his speeches and privately among the young men.

Bro. M. H. Justice read a good report on education and made one of the best speeches we have heard on the subject.

We desire to thank brethren Denton, Justice and others for the interest shown in the RECORDER.

Bro. Mills is here to speak for the Orphanage, and to morrow promises to be a good day.

....Rev. J. A. Speight, late of the Asheville Baptist, has decided to make his home in Norfolk, Va. He was in Raleigh on Friday last and called to see us.

....Rev. C. B. Williams has entered upon his work as principal of the Winton Academy. Bro. Williams is a graduate of Wake Forest College of the class of '92.

....Rev. W. H. Edwards of Wake Forest has received very flattering calls from Mt. Gilead and Merry Oaks churches of Chatham county to serve them another year.

....Our Baptist friends are delighted with their new pastor, Rev. J. Q. Adams. Mr. Adams preached two splendid sermons—his first here—last Sunday.—Wadesboro Messenger, Sept. 28.

....Peace Institute of this city, one of the first schools for young ladies in the South, has had a most successful opening. Prof. Dinwiddie and his able corps of assistants are to be congratulated.

....E. F. Aydlett, Esq., a prominent lawyer in eastern North Carolina, and a leading member of Elizabeth City church, in attendance upon the session of the Supreme Court, called to see us last week.

....There are people who pray, "Thy kingdom come," who do not even take a religious paper.—Ram's Horn. Ah! but it costs something to take a religious paper—say the enormous amount of four cents a week—while it costs nothing to say "Thy kingdom come."—Western Recorder.

....We are requested to announce that delegates to the Raleigh Association, which meets with Mount Moriah church, October 26—28, will be met at Auburn, the nearest station, with conveyances.

....Prof. W. L. Carmichael of Franklin county passed through Raleigh last Thursday on his way to Brevard, where he takes charge of the high school at that place. Miss Hattie Creech of this city will assist him.

....Rev. Mr. Anderson has been advised by his physician to give up his studies at Wake Forest this fall as his eyes have been strained and need a rest. His many friends wish for him a speedy recovery.—Sanford Express.

....Rev. Oscar Haywood of Morristown, Tenn., has accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Huntsville, Ala. The announcement that he had accepted the call to the French Broad of Asheville was a mistake.

....Rev. Dr. J. J. Hall, late pastor of the Tabernacle church, Raleigh, but now of the Park Avenue Church of Norfolk, Va., was in the city last week. He is looking unusually well, and reports his church in a prosperous condition.

....Services in memory of the late Dr. Wm. Harrison Williams were held at the Baptist church of Charlottesville, Va., Thursday evening last. Several of the most distinguished preachers of the denomination were present and made addresses.

....There was an interesting and successful meeting at Mt. Tabor Baptist church last week. Rev. T. G. Wood, the pastor, tells us that twenty-four were received into the church by baptism and four by restoration.—Murfreesboro Index, Sept. 29.

....All persons expecting to attend the Association to be held with the Morven Baptist church, embracing the fourth Sunday in October, are requested to send in their names to Bro. J. E. Moore, Morven, N. C., chairman of the committee on hospitality.

....We will publish in our next issue the sermon preached by Dr. Carter of the First church of this city on "The Determination to be Rich and its Perils." No sermon preached in this community for years has attracted more attention or been more heartily commended.

....Prof. J. B. Carlyle of Wake Forest College has consented to become regular Wake Forest correspondent to the RECORDER. Bro. Carlyle is too well known to our readers to need any introduction at our hands. We feel assured that his letters will add much to the interest of the RECORDER.

....Rev. S. H. Harrington, pastor of the Baptist church at Murphy, died suddenly on his way to Franklin last week, where he was going to raise money for his church. He was taken with a sudden pain in his throat, and had to stop at the home of a friend where his wife was sent for, and who reached his bedside just before he expired.

....Rev. W. F. Watson, pastor of the church at Roxboro, baptized five converts on the 24th ult., the result of a recent meeting. We learn from the Courier that efforts are being made to induce Bro. Watson to accept a call to Norfolk, and that this is not at all relished by our brethren of the Roxboro church.

... Rev. C. S. Cashwell and family left on last Monday morning for Hickory, Mr. Cashwell's new charge. The best wishes of our people go with them. Mr. Cashwell has done some very faithful and earnest work during the five years that he has been pastor of the church in this place.—Mocksville Times, Sept. 29.

....The revival at Lawrence Cross Roads last week held by Rev. S. F. Bristoe, assisted by Rev. J. B. Boone, resulted in fourteen being connected with the church up to Friday evening. The meeting is continued this week. Rev. J. B. Boone commenced a protracted meeting in the Baptist church here Sunday. He is assisted by Rev. Mr. Williams of Seaboard.—Windsor Ledger, Sept. 26.

....The Seminary opened on Monday. Dr. Whitsitt addressed the students Monday night at Broadway church. Prospects are flattering. Quite a number of students have come already. The following brethren from North Carolina are already here: Millard, Corpening, Cullom, J. I. Kendrick, B. G. Kendrick, Cross, Bridges, and myself.—Walter M. Gilmore.

....Rev. Eldridge B. Hatcher, who has been chosen pastor of the First church, Norfolk, Va., was ordained as a minister of the gospel before a large audience in the Grace Street Church, Richmond, Va., on Thursday evening last. Dr. Pritchard of Charlotte preached the ordination sermon, and an address was made by Dr. A. E. Owen of Portsmouth. Bro. Hatcher is the eldest son of Dr. W. E. Hatcher.

....Dr. J. W. Carter in a sermon at the First Baptist church, Raleigh, Sunday night, Oct. 1st, 1893, said: "If I were called on to act with others in the examination and ordination of a young man to the gospel ministry, and it should be found out that he was a lazy man, I should regard it as a reason sufficient to influence the presbytery not to ordain him. No lazy man should be welcomed into the ministry."

....Dr. N. B. Cobb baptized a promising young man at Pittsboro last Sunday in the new baptistry which the church has built and paid for since his last appointment. He preached on Saturday night to a large congregation at Bynum's Factory, five miles from Pittsboro, by invitation of the Messrs. Bynum, who kindly suspended work in the factory that the operatives might attend. The managers of these cotton mills are Methodists. They take deep interest in the spiritual and temporal welfare of their operatives, and hence have no fears of strikes and combines.

....Rev. J. J. L. Sherwood has received a call to the pastorate of the church at Boone, N. C.

....We had a very good meeting at Sandy Level this week. Will close there to-morrow, (Oct. 1st.) Eight applied this evening (Sept. 30th) for baptism and membership. —J. F. MacDuffie, East Durham, N. C.

....Rev. L. G. Broughton writes as follows in regard to the recent meeting held at his church: "Our meeting at Broad Street was a gracious one. Fifty persons professed faith. Eight have joined the church. Several more will join to-night. Bro. Adams did good preaching. He held large crowds all the time. His Bible readings were specially helpful. All in all our church was never more blessed."

....Rev. J. F. MacDuffie of East Durham writes: "We began a meeting at Sandy Level on Sept. 24th with very hopeful prospects. We are expecting very great things of the Lord there. Our dear Bro. Tyree is doing some of his best preaching here. The meeting I suppose continues on. The results up to date seem to be very encouraging. I never heard the gospel presented more simple and pointed."

....Rev. Mr. Blalock preached his farewell sermon to the Baptist brethren at Newton on Sunday. Tuesday he took his departure for the Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. Mr. Blalock is an earnest and most capable minister for one of his years.—Press and Carolinian, Sept 28. Bro. Blalock worked faithfully during his vacation in trying to raise funds to finish the Baptist church at Newton.

....Rev. J. F. Morris, pastor, desires to inform our readers that the South Fork Association will meet on the 19th and continue to the 21st of October, instead of 26th to 28th as stated in the RECORDER. We thank our brother for the correction. Bruington church, with which the Association meets, is at Stanley Creek, on the C. C. R. R. Representatives of the different interests expecting to attend this meeting will please send their names to Rev. J. F. Morris.

....We take great pleasure in presenting our readers with an excellent article from Rev. G. W. Greene of China this week. Our readers will be glad to know that he and his family are getting on splendidly. We are under obligations to our missionary brethren for the many good letters that we have received from them lately. They are always welcomed by us. Our readers may not be aware of it, but it is our candid opinion that the RECORDER publishes more and better missionary letters than any other Baptist weekly in the South.

....We were pleased to see Rev. W. H. Edwards in our office last week. Bro. Edwards baptized seven candidates into the fellowship of the Mt. Gilead church on Sept. 24th, as a result of a meeting recently held in that church, in which Rev. W. Carey Newton of Wake Forest and Rev. W. M. Sorrell of Cary did good work as his assistants. There were fifteen professions, and the church was greatly revived and is now in a vigorous condition. Bro. Edwards will hold a meeting with Rock Springs church, Franklin county, beginning the first Sunday in October.

....The Norfolk Landmark of September 28th says: "The Rev. R. E. Chambers, who has been supplying the First Baptist church during the last four months, closed his engagement Sunday night and left yesterday morning for Louisville, Ky., where he will prosecute his studies at the Baptist Seminary, after which he proposes to go as a missionary to China. The Rev. E. B. Hatcher, the pastor elect, will take charge next Sunday. At 3:30 p. m. on that day a welcome or recognition service will be held, and will be participated in by several ministers of this city and Portsmouth."

....The New York Evening Post, commenting upon the "rule" of the Parliament of Religions that nothing should be said by any speaker to injure the sensibilities of any other, says: "It is impossible to imagine John Knox toning down his views in any presence, least of all that of theological opponents." The same is true of all earnest men on fire with zeal for the glory of God from Paul to Spurgeon.—Western Recorder. The comic paper, Puck, gave the delegates the best advice. It was, "Gentlemen, call your meeting to order, endorse it, and then adjourn." It was a big farce and a failure.

....Here is one specimen of the grand unity achieved by the Parliament of Religions: "Chicago, Sept. 30.—The attendance upon the Parliament of Religions this morning showed something of a falling off, many of the delegates having gone to Jackson Park in advance of the religious demonstration this afternoon, when a representative of each faith of the world, beginning with the most ancient, sounded the Liberty Bell in the name of peace, unity and liberty of all religions, and at the same time repeated a silent prayer of their respective divinities, asking blessings on the bell." Just think of Christian and pagan prayers being mingled in this fashion. If Elijah had only possessed the wisdom of some Christian teachers in this age he would have joined altars with the priests of Baal. Naaman certainly lacked enlightenment or he would never have thought he needed pardon for such a broadminded act as going into the house of Rimmon and making obeisance to the idol.—Christian Enquirer.

State Missions—Facts to Date.

The facts in our State Mission work ought to stir every pastor and every church and lover of this work in our Convention. What shall be done? Every one who sees the importance of this work should come at once to its aid. It underlies all our work. It should not be neglected.

Now is the time for every church to do its best for this department. It is only two months to the Convention. What is done must be done rapidly. The Board will need for State Missions, during these two months, ten thousand dollars, and it ought to have every dollar of this amount before the Convention meets in Elizabeth City.

Here are the facts for the past four years. Our Treasurer had, up to October 1st of each year given below, raised for State Missions the following amounts:

Oct. 1, 1890,	for State Missions,	$5,752.10
Oct. 1, 1891,	" " "	6,210.72
Oct. 1, 1892,	" " "	6,135.70
Oct. 1, 1893,	" " "	4,589.72

But I shall need the active and hearty co-operation of each and every pastor, church, and lover of this work in our Convention. The facts above speak for themselves. They show how badly I shall need your aid—the aid of every one in this work. I look to you, brethren, and know how gladly and liberally you have aided in the past in this department.

C. DURHAM.

Cameron's Grove.

This church is in Moore county and is near Swann's Station, one of the depots on the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad. The church is small in numbers and quite weak in wealth. Most of the people in the village and the country around are members of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches.

Bro. W. C. West held a meeting of days in the depot building at Swann's Station, and out of that meeting Cameron's Grove church was constituted; and though the church has never grown into a large and wealthy one, it has been noted for the many gracious revivals had during its history. I have been in four of its protracted meetings. In one of these meetings forty-nine persons made a profession of faith in Christ, and in another, forty-eight. The last of the four meetings has just closed; and though there were not as many professions we have had a good spiritual meeting.

Bro. K. C. Horner did the preaching at the night services, and he did it well. The writer did the preaching at the day services. Three persons professed faith in Christ, two of whom were baptized into the fellowship of the church by Bro. H. W. Graham. Large congregations came out to the night services, and quite a number stood up, and by that they asked the prayers of God's people in their behalf. Cameron's Grove church has some excellent sisters and brothers in her membership. On account of certain things, the church has not prospered as it might have done. The Lord be praised for the blessings bestowed during the meeting just closed.

I am now helping Bro. H. W. Graham in a meeting at Long school-house in Harnett county.

Meetings at Harriss's Chapel and Elm Grove.

Dear Recorder:—As the people like to hear from the good work of the Lord, I will state that I commenced a meeting at Harriss's Chapel on the second Saturday in July, which lasted eight days. A young brother by the name of G. E. Spruill helped me. We had twenty-eight conversions, seventeen have been baptized, and others await the ordinance.

I commenced a meeting at Elm Grove, Nash county, on Saturday before the first Sunday in August. I had some help from Bro. Spruill and Bro. Overby. We had forty-seven converts, thirty-three have been baptized, three were restored, and five await baptism. This meeting went on for twelve days.

I feel very thankful to the Lord for his good and kind blessings to my churches. I hope and pray that they will keep on in the straight and narrow way that leads to life everlasting, and not turn away and go down to eternal woe and misery.

M. R. PERNELL.
Franklinton, Sept. 23, 1893.

Mt. Hermon Church.

I have just closed a most glorious revival of religion at Mt. Hermon church in the Raleigh Association. We say revival on account of the good, we believe, has been accomplished. When we took charge of the church the first of this year, I found it in a very poor condition spiritually. Prejudice and ill-feeling existed. Now peace, love and harmony prevail. The result of the meeting is twenty-nine converts, twenty-two baptisms and one restoration. Others are expected to follow soon.

Bro. J. F. MacDuffie was with us two days, Bro. David Edwards one day, and Bro. W. Y. Chappell six days.

The meeting continued eight days. The church and community have been benefited. We believe God will always bless his word whenever it is preached in sincerity.

At the close of the meeting, the church and congregation presented the pastor with a handsome suit of clothes, for which he returns his most heartfelt thanks, praying that God's richest blessings may ever rest upon those dear people.

The Sandy Creek Association.

We take the following report from the Chatham Record of September 28th:—

The one hundred and thirty fifth annual session of the venerable Sandy Creek Association was held with the church at Moon's Chapel, in the western part of this county, beginning on last Thursday and ending on Sunday. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. L. R. Dixon and Rev. O. T. Edwards was re-elected moderator and W. C. Douglass was re-elected clerk. There was quite a full attendance of preachers and delegates, every church in the Association, except three, being represented. Two new churches were admitted, one called the Deep River church at Enterprise Factory, and the other Piny Grove church in Moore county, making the total number forty-eight churches now belonging to this Association. Among the distinguished visitors present were Hon. John C. Scarborough, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the Rev. C. C. Newton, a missionary to Africa, who made several very interesting addresses. The reports from the different churches were of an encouraging character and showed a continuous growth that was very gratifying.

On Sunday morning a Sunday-school mass meeting was held, which was very largely attended, and at which several able and instructive addresses were delivered.

The next session of the Association will be held with Love's Creek church, about two miles east of Siler City, and the introductory sermon will be preached by Rev. W. H. H. Lawhon.

Meeting at Manly.

I know you will rejoice to hear that God is greatly blessing us at Manly. Eighteen persons professed religion here yesterday, the third day of the meeting, among them a husband and wife, two sons of Bro. W. C. Petty, and the only son of Bro. C. C. Yates. Last night there were twenty five penitents, seventeen of whom found a hope before they left the church. Rejoice with me.

N. B. COBB.

LATER.

Meeting at Manly closed Friday night. Twenty-eight persons made a public profession of faith. On the last day we collected as a thank-offering $6 75 for Aged Ministers' Relief Board. You know this church is one of the smallest in the Sandy Creek Association. On the first day we collected over $3 00 for ministerial education.

I leave to-day for Pittsboro.

The "Physical Culture Craze" Condemned.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—By request I forward the following as the sentiment of the Sandy Creek Association, as expressed at her last session, and ask its publication in the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

Yours fraternally, W. D. WATSON.
Rives' Chapel, Sept. 26, 1893.

"'Your committee in the strongest terms condemn the 'physical culture craze' which has been imported from the North and seems to have taken possession of most of our universities and colleges. We believe in athletic sports as long as the sole object to be attained is the development of the muscles of our young men; but we condemn inter-collegiate contests for the mastery in foot ball, base-ball, &c. We believe such to be a waste of time; that they subject young men to temptations innumerable: we believe that such things are condemned in the gospel of Christ, and are of the emulations and strife said to be 'the works of the flesh,' and as such prohibited in Galatians, 5th chapter, 19th, 20th and 26th verses; and we call upon the Trustees of Wake Forest College, without delay, to put a stop to these vain and uncalled-for contests, emulations and strife."

Mississippi Letter.

During the writer's Seminary course, he formed many pleasant acquaintances from the "Old North State," and, so far as he now remembers, every "Tar-heel" was a solid and substantial fellow. A noble young man, one of the most brilliant in the Seminary at the time, on account of feeble health and while suffering from mental aberration committed suicide, universally lamented. This young man was from Wilmington. The names of Underwood, Brunt, Conrad, G. W. Green, the lamented Westcott and others now come to mind as I see the bright face of the RECORDER before me.

A few years since I had a senior deacon who was a native of your State. He had been deacon and clerk of the church for fifty years and during that time had missed but one communion season and one conference meeting of the church. On one occasion a matter came before the church as to the employment of an evangelist, for special meetings, who was entirely unknown to us, and the time a very unpropitious season. Deacon Roach insisted that he should at once be secured because "nothing shoddy ever came from North Carolina."

Your face also reminds me of editorial days of the past when every week I ran hurriedly through your columns, with many other exchanges, to gather news for my columns. I cordially and warmly greet you and welcome you again after some years of separation.

We have a truant Mississippian somewhere in your State, at Waynesville, I believe—Rev. George Wharton—upon whom some of your churches have an off eye. He may be invited to return to his native heath, especially as we are just now suffering from the emigration of some of our good men. Although doing a fine work at Waynesville, Wharton ought to be back in his native State.

We are trying to make ourselves felt in the educational work of the State. Besides the work of Mississippi College at Clinton, which has a Baptist faculty and a board of trustees, elected by the Baptist Convention, there are a number of female colleges which are in the hands of Baptist educators. Hillman College at Clinton is under the able administration of Dr. Walter Hillman and his accomplished wife, Mrs. Adelia M. Hillman, and with magnificent equipments has done a fine educational work for thirty years. Stone Female College is a newly established institution in the city of Meridian and began its first session this fall. Rev. L. M. Stone, a life-long educator, is the able and scholarly president. Lea Female College is a well established institution located at Summitt, under the presidency of Dr. C. H. Otken. Blue Mountain Female College, at Blue Mountain, is among the most solid institutions of its kind in the State and flourishes under the administration of Dr. W. T. Lowrey. Shuqualak Female College, at Shuqualak, is presided over by Rev. H. M. Long, for years one of the editors of the Baptist Record. Worthington Institute, at Carrollton, is doing a fine work under the presidency of Dr. Z. T. Leavell.

Mississippi College had a fine opening, one hundred and thirty boys matriculating on the first day. The female colleges have all opened well despite the financial pressure which everywhere prevails.

The State Agricultural College at Starkville has for its President the distinguished and scholarly Gen. S. D. Lee, who administers its affairs admirably. Gen. Lee is a deacon in the Starkville Baptist church. He is highly esteemed and could be Governor of the State at any time he should allow himself to be nominated.

The President of the State Industrial College for girls, located at Columbus, is a staunch Baptist. This school is said to be the most thorough for girls south of the Ohio river.

So far from the possibility of the statement that Baptists in Mississippi are "ignorant," it can easily be seen that they are in the fore-front and are leaders in education.

But we do have many ignorant Baptists, for we have many of the people in our ranks. There has been a most abundant ingathering of new members from the by-ways, hedges, and piny woods. A scanning of the reports of meetings among our churches this summer makes me quite safe in saying that at least a thousand baptisms have been the result of these services. Many have not been reported. Comparing our white membership with the white population, I find that every sixth white person in the State will tell you that he is a Baptist.

But my enthusiasm cools when I find that our contributions for religious work are so small in proportion to numbers. In this line, however, there is improvement.

CALAMUS.

Delightful Meeting at Mt. Tabor Church.

Dear Recorder:—We have just closed a delightful meeting with the church at Mt. Tabor. Twenty-four were added by baptism, and four by restoration.

Rev. C. W. Scarboro did the preaching—rather the Holy Ghost spake through him, and it was the old gospel, God's power unto salvation.

The church is much revived, and has a mind to work. We thank God and take courage.

THOS. G. WOOD.
Murfreesboro, Sept. 26, 1893.

An Open Letter to the Pastors and Churches of the Robeson Association.

Dear Brethren:—The Maxton church in regular conference appointed the undersigned committee to prepare and publish this letter of Christian greeting, urging the several churches of this Association to send a full delegation to the approaching session, which convenes with the Maxton church, Oct. 31st, 1893.

We extend to all a Christian welcome to our hearts and homes. Come, dear brethren, and the Lord of hosts come with you and give us a prosperous session that shall abundantly enlarge the borders of his glorious kingdom.

Swift Creek Union.

This Union meets with Turkey Branch, October 27th, at 11 o'clock. Introduction service by J. R. Pace.

The following queries will be opened:

1st. What can we do to promote more Christian love in our churches?

2nd. What can be done with members who pay nothing to church expenses?

3rd. If sprinkling is baptism, why did our Saviour go to Jordan to be baptized?

4th. Did Judas commune at the Lord's supper?

5th. How should Christians keep the Sabbath?

6th. Was the wine used at the Lord's supper fermented or unfermented?

7th. What makes me a Baptist?

8th. Can Baptists be consistent and teach Pedobaptist literature in Pedobaptist Sunday-schools?

W. J. HARDEE, Clerk.

Among the oldest hardware houses of the South is that of Julius Lewis & Co., of this city. They have been in the business since 1865, and have more capital invested in their business than any house of the kind we know of in the State. It will pay you to refer to their new advertisement in this issue. It is needless to say they keep thoroughly up with the times, and we can commend them for their fair dealing and strict attention to all business sent them.

Literary.

The second edition of The Cosmopolitan for September brought the total edition up to 211,000 copies, without doubt the largest edition of any magazine in the world for that month. It remained for The Cosmopolitan to have the World's Fair treated in a single number by twelve different writers. As the exposition of 1893 must remain one of the leading events in the history of the United States, the most distinguished men were asked to prepare this magazine volume, which is destined to become valuable as one of the most perfect descriptions of the World's Fair. Among the number of those who contribute are our only ex-president, Walter Besant, the most distinguished of the English literary men who visited the exposition, and a host of others. Besides the usual fiction, including a story by Mark Twain, entitled, "Is He Living or is He Dead," and the regular departments, The Cosmopolitan contains nearly one hundred illustrations devoted to the World's Fair, including eleven full pages. It is pronounced one of the most remarkable of the publications yet issued regarding the Fair. It is a completely illustrated guide or souvenir, as one prefers to call it, by the most famous writers of the day, put before the reader at the price of 12½ cents.

Outing for October is full of seasonable, healthful, outdoor sport and pastime. The illustrations are numerous and beautiful. The contents are as follows: "Sketching Among the Sioux;" "Miss Gwynne's Burglar," by Violet E. Mitchell; "An Adirondack Idyl," by Charles Nott, Jr.; "Boars and Boar Hunting," by Dr. G. A. Stockwell; "Antæus," by Frank M. Bicknell; "A Mixed Bag," by Ed. W. Sandys; "Ouananiche Fishing," by Eugene McCarthy; "A Week in the Wildcat," by E. Pauline Johnson; "A Class-Day Madonna," by Jno. Corbin; "Lenz's World Tour Awheel;" "A Century Ride," by Grace E. Denison; "A Deer-Hunt in Old Virginia," by Alex. Hunter; "The Great Football Match," by James B. Kerr; "The National Guard of Pennsylvania," by Capt. C. A. Booth, and the usual editorials, records, etc.

The Century Company has bought well nigh the complete literary "out-put" of Mark Twain during his year of residence abroad, and both The Century and St. Nicholas will have serial stories by this popular humorist among the attractions of the new year. For The Century he has written a novel which is said to abound with humorous and dramatic incident, and in some chapters to be a revelation of tragic power. Its plot includes a most ingenious employment of science in the detection of crime.

For the boy and girl readers of St. Nicholas he has written "Tom Sawyer Abroad," being the adventures of Tom Sawyer, accompanied by Huckleberry Finn and the negro "Jim," in the Eastern Hemisphere,—which is not reached in the ordinary way, but accidentally, as it were, and in a flying-machine.

Scribner's Magazine for October has a notable list of contributors, including W. D. Howells, Robert Louis Stevenson, Joel Chandler Harris, H. C. Bunner, Harold Frederic, and Will H. Low. The contribution of Mr. Howells is a remarkable one. Under the title, "The Man of Letters as a Man of Business," he discusses with perfect frankness the whole relation of literature to business, especially the relations of the writer with the editor and the publisher. It is a striking presentation of those things about which the public is so often misinformed. The number is finely illustrated, the work of an unusual number of the best American and foreign artists.

The Review of Reviews for October is an excellent number. Besides the regular departments, which are well filled as usual, there are a number of special articles. Among them we notice, "The Irrigation Idea and its Coming Congress," by William E. Smythe; "The Renaissance of the Historical Pilgrimage," by Lyman P. Powell; "The Revival of the Pilgrimage in England," by W. T. Stead; and a character sketch of Mr. Walter Besant, the novelist, by John Underhill. There are numerous illustrations. $3 50 a year; 25 cents a number. Address, The Review of Reviews, 13 Astor Place, New York City.

"The Dangerous Years"

Mr. James Payn, the famous novelist, says: "In the average modern pulpit it is 'the young man' who is perpetually being held up; the dangers which beset the third decade of human existence are set forth with wearisome iteration. It is like the mauvais pas in our Alpine ascent, and, once across it, our guides assure us all will be straight sailing. . . . A sermon to men of forty-five is one we never hear of. But business defalcations and breaches of trust are notoriously, in the main, the works of maturity, and domestic catastrophes are also more numerous during this period. The influence of the wife is often dependent on her personal attractions, and when these have fled, there are none of the safeguards for the husband which surround the youth in the advice and warnings of parents and friends. After forty there are few men over whom any one can claim to exercise a moral authority or have power to enforce it. Moreover, in maturity they are possessed of pecuniary resources denied to them in earlier years. It is also the period of cynicism, 'when the seamy side of things is revealed, and hopes deceived and promises broken have brought bitterness to the spirit.'"

We suppose there are few who would dissent from this, but it remains true that the tree is bent as the twig is inclined. The best protection against evil doing between forty and fifty is the cultivation of correct habits and fidelity to high ideals between twenty and thirty.—The Watchman.

The Test of Strength.

The every-day detail inseparable from the administration of a household, large or small, makes the sum total of its mistress' happiness. To neglect or overlook the smallest detail for one day means double care, or increase of friction, for the days that follow. It is the omission of the pinch of salt that spoils the dinner. It is care of the trifling things, the small essentials, that marks the difference between a well organized and a disorganized home.

Women frequently rebel at this, and feel that their lives are limited by the petty and insignificant details to which the mind of a housekeeper, though she be a college graduate, must give attention. Yet it is the care and nicety of attention with which details are met that makes the difference between well-applied intelligence and ignorance, or its equivalent, indifference, in any home. It is difficult for a woman, whose knowledge of the countless details in a business office is limited, to realize that the same pettiness of detail is part of the daily life of every business man, and his ability to attend to the details perfectly—which means in order and without producing friction—or to train others to attend to them in the same spirit, marks the difference between the successful and the unsuccessful man. There is no petty annoyance in housekeeping that does not have its counterpart in any business, and it has the same nerve-racking power.

Strength is shown in our ability to meet, not the great trials of life, but the petty annoyances that make up each day's experience.—Christian Union.

A New Awakening.

The States of the South are waking up to the importance of organizing Bible and colportage boards. These must become a dead letter unless they have a means of supply. That means is furnished by the American Baptist Publication Society. Its publications are seeking outlets through just such channels as the State Boards, for distributing the Bible and denominational literature.

Thimbles.

Did you ever take the trouble to look up the history of the curious, little bell-shaped, indented piece of metal you wear on your finger when sewing, and which you are contented to call your "thimble?" It is a Dutch invention and was taken to England in 1693 by one John Lofting. Its name was derived from the words thumb and bell, being for a long time worn on that member and called the thumbel; only within the last one hundred and fifty years has the word "evolunted" into thimble. All records say that the thimble was first worn on the thumb, but we can scarcely conceive how it would be of much use there. Formerly it was made of brass and iron only, but of late years steel, silver, gold, horn, celluloid, and even pearl and glass have been used in its manufacture. A thimble owned by the queen consort of Siam is shaped like a lotus of solid gold, thickly studded with diamonds, which are so arranged as to form the lady's name and the date of her birth and marriage. Queen Victoria has a very valuable gold and diamond set thimble, upon which are engraved many historical scenes from English history.—Selected.

Just think of it! $140.53 made in one week by an agent representing B. F. Johnson & Co. of Richmond, Va., and they have had many more parties travelling for them who did equally well, some a good deal better. If you need employment, it would be a good thing to sit down and write them a line at once.

The Hand-Grasp Method.

This hand-grasp method of attracting and holding men is applicable in both mission and church-work, city and country. The warmest of a cordial hand-grasp will do more than anything else to draw love-starved [illegible] a meeting. A hearty hand greeting [illegible] the pastor at the door will clinch [illegible] way the gospel-nail driven [illegible] the pulpit. For the busy city [illegible] visit, it affords a valu[illegible] to meet his people, man to [illegible]—Christian Intelligencer.

Darkness at Noon.

The sayings of little children may often point a lesson to children of a larger growth, for in face of many a problem of time and eternity, the most learned are but as little ones, dimly understanding, and often mistaken in judgment. One stormy day the atmosphere grew dark and gloomy while some little occupants of the nursery were taking their early dinner, and, after regarding the state of affairs in bewilderment and some impatience, a small boy settled the case by exclaiming, "Mother, we'd better all go to bed. God has made a mistake." A smile went around the table at the child's notion that the Almighty had sent the night before its time, but, after all, have none of us now and then come to as foolish a conclusion respecting the dealings of our Lord? Things have gone all wrong in our opinion, and the arrangements we mentally decided to be best, have been suddenly and sadly frustrated. In the midst of noonday sunshine, storm and darkness have veiled our sky, and our hearts are inclined to murmur, "God has made a mistake." To the child's remark the elders would say decisively, "God never can make mistakes," but let us believe this as well as say it. Let us remember the years gone by, when through the changing days, the hand of our God has led us on by the right way, when his appointments have proved better than our fears, our hopes, our prayers; and let us be very certain that however dark may be the shadows, however bewildering the surrounding circumstances, the Lord is guiding us with his eye upon us in love and remembrance, and the hereafter will bear glorious witness that even through the darkness he abides "too wise to err, too good to be unkind."—Selected.

Letter Writing.

Business letters should be short and to the point, writes Elizabeth Robinson Scovil in a helpful article on "The Art of Letter-Writing" in the Ladies Home Journal. In ordering articles, state as nearly as possible exactly what is wanted. If the price is known, mention it, and write the amount required clearly. It is trying to receive a gross when one intended to purchase a single thing or vice versa.

Friendly letters should be full of details, telling all the interesting little facts one friend would ask another if they could sit down, side by side, to talk. Bits of news that seem very trivial to the sender are often welcomed with joy by the recipient. Do not grudge a little time and pains to keep those nearest and dearest to you in touch with your daily life, even though you are widely separated.

E. Nulty of St. Paul, Minn., writes: "Was confined to bed three weeks, doctors could do no good; Japanese Pile Cure entirely cured me." Sold by Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh, N. C.

The Gambler's Balance Sheet.

You will gain, like Eve in eating the forbidden fruit, the knowledge of evil, and of evil only.

You will gain lewd, base and wicked companions, whose very presence is a curse.

You will gain the sad experience of being cheated, duped and robbed by those who laugh at you as a "green one," and who would take your life as readily as your purse.

You will gain habits of idleness and dissipation. You will get a dislike to work and business. The innocent enjoyments of life will appear to you flat and stale. You will crave the excitement of the gambling-saloon.

You will gain poverty. You will not be content to earn money honestly by work; and any that you may have will be greedily devoured by heartless "sharks."

You will gain distress of body and anguish of mind. You will be reduced to bankruptcy of character, of estate, of hopes, and of prospects. Beggary and want will stare you in the face. Remorse will eat you up.

You will lose all feeling. Nothing so hardens the heart as the vice of gambling. A young man in New York, not many years ago, played cards on his brother's coffin. While our Redeemer was dying for our sins, soldiers were gambling for his clothes at the foot of the cross.

You will lose your self-respect. You will become in your own estimation a villain.

You will lose your happiness. A bad conscience will banish peace from your breast.

You will lose your soul.

Gained—knowledge of evil, base companions, sad experience, idle habits, poverty, distress of body, anguish of mind.

Lost—Time, money, feeling, self-respect, happiness, soul.

Balance—eternal misery.—Tract.

Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh, N. C., recommends Johnson's Magnetic Oil, the great family pain-killer, internal and external.

Is a Nest-Egg Necessary?

It is impossible to tell without knowing what passes in the mind of the hen when she is considering nest making. The "theory" of the nest-egg is certainly plausible. It is believed that the nest looks more attractive to biddy and seems more homelike if there is a nest-egg in it. If she has been in the habit of visiting that nest-box daily, the fact of there being an egg (or the counterfeit of one) there when she comes expecting to lay another egg makes her think the nest a safe place, while the absence of an egg (or a counterfeit) may suggest a visit from enemies of some kind, says the editor of Farm Poultry, who uses nest-eggs. He has a china one in each box all the time.

Mornings—Beecham's pills with a drink of water.

A Lesson in Honesty.

It is said on good authority that in a certain penitentiary in the country a convict, whose crime was stealing, is compelled to labor at cutting out pieces of pasteboard which are put between the outer and inner soles of shoes which are to be sold as made of solid leather. Which fact naturally suggests to the Listener of the Transcript the following question: "If a penitentiary is a house where prisoners are given correction with a view to their reform, what lesson in honesty can this man receive from his daily participation in a dishonest act, by which somebody is systematically plundering the public?"—The Congregationalist.

"Every man according to his ability." Not every man according to his mood and fancy, but every man according to his ability. Not every man according to other people's giving, or other people's ability, but every man according to his ability. How well cared for the poor brethren would be, if this were the recognized standard of giving in the church to-day!—H. C. Trumbull.

Nor prayer is made by man alone,
The Holy Spirit pleads;
And Jesus, on the eternal throne,
For sinners intercedes.
O thou, by whom we come to God,
The Life, the Truth, the Way,
The path of prayer thyself hast trod:
Lord, teach us how to pray.
—James Montgomery.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

Can this disease be cured? Most physicians say No—I say, Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 30 years study and experiment I have found the remedy.—Epilepsy is cured by it; cured, not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of to-day. Valuable work on the subject, and large bottle of the remedy—sent free for trial. Mention Post-Office and Express address.

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

Subject for October: Missions in Southern States.

STATE MISSIONS.—"If any man provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he is worse than an infidel." Missionaries, 307, working among native population in cities, country, mountains and frontier, among colored people, Germans, French, Mexicans and Swedes.

STUDY TOPICS.—Religious destitution of many portions of the South. Growing necessity for work among the foreign population. Demand for missionaries in the trans-Mississippi region. Opportunities for work among the colored people. Rapid increase of our denomination in the South.

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

A Visit to the Indian Territory, and Some Things About Our Work There.

For many years I have desired to visit the Indian Territory, not so much to see the country—for I had gotten a pretty good view of these beautiful prairies in passing on the cars several times in going to and returning from Texas—but to see something of what has been done to civilize and christianize these sons of the forest, these fierce warriors of other days.

Well! an earnest letter from Bro. Wm. McComb, and one from Bro. Compere begging that the Home Board should have a representative at the meeting of the Muscogee, Seminole, and Wichita Association, settled the matter, and I laid aside other important duties, and made the long journey with comparative ease and comfort by the Georgia Pacific, the Birmingham and Memphis, and the Memphis and Kansas City Railways to Fort Scott, and thence down the M. K. & T. to Eufaula in the Indian Territory.

Reaching this point at noon on Tuesday the 15th of August, I found comfortable quarters at the hotel which is kept by Mrs. Harrod, the widow of Dr. Buckner's interpreter, during many years of his labors among the Creeks, and this good Presbyterian sister showed us every courtesy, and insisted upon not charging preachers anything, especially when on their way to an Association. We soon had a call from brethren Wm. McComb and Gov. Perryman, and arrangements were promptly made to transport Bro. E. L. Compere, Superintendent of Missions for the General Association of Western Arkansas and Indian Territory, Prof. J. W. Conger, President of Ouchita College, Ark., and myself to the camp ten miles from Eufaula, at Tuskegee church, where the meeting was held. Ex-Gov. Perryman, once a popular chief of the Creeks and now their Superintendent of Public Education, drove me out in his comfortable buggy behind a pair of nice ponies, and it was a very delightful drive over the beautiful prairie, enlivened by pleasant converse with this intelligent Christian gentleman about his country and his people. I may say at once that during my stay in the Territory I saw no tomahawks, no wigwams, no whisky, no drunkenness, and no lawlessness of any kind. [The nearest I came to anything of the sort was that one day at the camp as I was taking a walk up the road a man rode up, and, telling me that he was on the trail of a horse thief, asked me if I had seen or heard of a man trying to sell horses.] The people generally (both whites and Indians) whom I saw seemed to be living comfortably, and to be orderly, well-behaved citizens.

But I will not go into many details about the country or the people lest I be guilty of the folly of those correspondents who have dashed through the South, seen the country through the window of a palace car, and the people at the finest hotels of a few leading cities, and then undertaken to tell "all about the South and its people." I shall not undertake to tell all about the Indian Territory and its people, but only a few things which I saw, or which I have gotten from entirely reliable sources.

The Association was really a combination of Association and Camp Meeting. The body is composed of thirty-seven churches in the Creek, Seminole and Wichita nations, each one of which is entitled to as many as twenty delegates, though the churches rarely have full delegations, except those in the vicinity of the church where the meeting is held. The seven contiguous churches unite in entertaining the body, and they provide with lavish hospitality, not only for the delegates, but for all comers as well.

They had in a wide circle around their nice church house (which, by the way, the Tuskegee church built themselves) a large number of arbors made of timber frames, heavily thatched with new hay, that made a covering which would turn rain fairly well, and was a perfect protection against the sun, and a number of tents and plank shelters. In the center, near the church, was the large arbor under which the meetings were held. These camps were well provided with cooking stoves and utensils, long tables, nice table ware, and comfortable chairs and benches. And in order that our brethren in the States may see how well these Indian brethren entertain their guests, I give the following bill of fare for a dinner I had so far as I can remember it: Roast beef, barbecued shoat, chicken served in several styles, tomatoes, corn, potatoes, and other vegetables, coffee, iced tea, corn bread, and hot rolls, pudding, as nice apple pie as I ever ate, and nice rich milk, with ice to put in it, and a plenty of ice water.

Everything was well cooked and nicely served. As for sleeping accommodations, the "visiting brethren" were put in a nice cabin with comfortable beds (regular bedsteads), and I have rarely been more comfortable or slept more sweetly at such meetings in the States.

But I wish to speak more particularly of the meeting itself. The churches send up good, old-fashioned orthodox, Baptist church letters, which are all read, and listened to with deep interest. The proceedings were, of course, conducted in Creek, but we found intelligent and willing interpreters among the brethren, and were soon able to "catch on," and to keep the general run of things.

Rev. Wm. McComb was selected moderator, and if he does not always conduct matters like Mell, he seems to be very popular, and preserves remarkably good order. Indeed I did not notice a single case of disorder during the meeting. The habit of applauding speakers, which Dr. Mell justly pronounced "exceedingly disorderly," does not seem to have reached our Indian brethren at all.

They take their time, and the details of mere routine business occupy a good deal of their attention. They meet Wednesday morning and continue in session until Sunday night, or rather Monday morning, for they are accustomed to protract their meeting the whole of Sunday night, and adjourn sine die at sunrise Monday morning.

That they go there for business may be seen from the following programme: At 4 o'clock a. m. prayer meeting; at 6:30 breakfast; at 8 Association meets; at 11 preaching; at 1 dinner; at 2 Association meets; at 4 preaching; at 6 supper; at 8 preaching.

The sisters had their own meetings during the hours the Association was in session, but all assembled at the large arbor during the hours for preaching.

The subjects of Missions, Education, etc., were referred to committees for reports, which elicited earnest discussion when presented.

Among the "visiting brethren" were Rev. E. L. Compere of Dallas, Ark., President J. W. Conger of Ouchita College, Ark., Rev. J. H. Milburn of the Baptist Standard, Rev. Mr. Treadwell, South McAlister, Professors Bacone and Brown of the Indian University, Muscogee, and J. Wm. Jones of the Home Mission Board Southern Baptist Convention.

Among the native preachers were Rev. John Jumper, so widely known as Chief of the Seminoles, and colonel of a regiment of his people whom he bravely led in the Confederate army—Rev. Wesley Smith, who is said to be one of the best preachers among the Indians—Rev. John McIntosh, whom I heard preach in Creek a sermon that greatly stirred the people and deeply moved me, although I could not understand a single word he spoke—and his brother, Rev. Wm. McIntosh, who has been an exceedingly useful man among his people, and who knew personally Joseph Islands, and heard in his boyhood the interesting story of his conversion and the bitter persecutions which he suffered at the hands of the then heathen Creeks—Rev. Wm. McComb who has, as missionary of our Board, preached so widely and so acceptably among his people, and who is affectionately called "Billy" McComb by them—Brother Colbert, who spent one year at the Seminary at Louisville, seems to be a student, and has been for some years engaged in a translation of the New Testament into Creek—Brother McNivin, who was educated at our Levering School, who seems to be a young man of fine promise, and whom some of us are very anxious to see thoroughly educated, especially after hearing his introductory sermon before the Association—Rev. J. A. Alexander, who preached the "doctrinal" sermon, and is said to be a man of wide popularity and influence—Rev. Wm. Conner, our efficient missionary to the wild tribes, and others whose names have escaped me.

Among other prominent delegates were ex Gov. Perryman, so long the popular chief of the Creeks, and now their able and efficient superintendent of education, who has so judiciously organized their system of public schools, and erected beautiful school buildings all over the nation, buildings which, if the one I saw at Eufaula be a fair specimen, would do credit to any of the States—Gov. Brown, the present chief of the Seminoles, who is a man of native ability and fine education, and seems to exert a wide influence in the Territory—and Capt. Grayson of Eufaula, who has been a most successful business man, speaks pure English, and is an admirable interpreter, and one whom a stranger would not take to be an Indian, although he is "a native here, and to the manner born."

If this Territory is ever carved into a State, or States—to which, by the way, the Indians generally are bitterly opposed—I predict that these distinguished Baptist laymen will be heard from in the halls of Congress at Washington.

I was very much impressed with the good order and deep attention of the congregations to the preaching. When one of their own men was speaking in their native tongue there would be not only the sharp attention and intelligent, responsive gleam of the countenance, but the emphatic "amen!" and other expressions of approval.

I preached for them twice through an interpreter—an "interrupter," as Bro. W. D. Powell appropriately calls him—and was struck with the fact that they listened attentively to my English and to the interpreter when he rendered into their own tongue, and I had a shrewd suspicion that Bro. Wm. McComb and Gov. Brown, who interpreted for me, both produced in Creek better sermons than I was able to make in English.

The Indians have a habit of giving visitors new names in their own language, suggested by some circumstance connected with what they may do or say. When Dr. J. W. M. Williams of Baltimore was in the Territory some years ago and preached through an interpreter, he said, "I feel like a tied bird," and at once the Indians gave him the Creek name meaning "The tied eagle."

When I was preaching the other night a wind storm came up which threatened to break up our service. Some of the congregation did leave, but as I went right on without alluding to the storm, or stopping for it, one of the brethren gave me the name "Hotulke Mi-Ko" "King of the Wind" or "King of the Wind Clans," and they called me by that name afterwards. I told some of them that I was afraid that if that got out among my friends they would say that the name was given me because I was such a constant talker, or so "long winded," but they said that it was meant as a high compliment as the "Wind Clans" were composed of their truest, steadiest, and most reliable young braves who were always first in the chase and foremost in war.

But, perhaps, the most interesting occasion of the meeting was the reception of the Chief of the Wichitas—"Nostaway," or "Short Foot,"—who accompanied the delegates from the Wichita churches, and who, though not a professed Christian himself, came to beg the Association to send missionaries to preach the gospel to his people.

He was dressed in the full costume of his tribe, and had so savage an appearance that one would hesitate to meet him alone on the plains.

He spoke in his native tongue, which the Creeks and Seminoles could not understand any better than we could. His interpreter, E. Frank Everatt, rendered his speech into English, and Capt. Grayson then rendered it into Creek. The flashing eye, violent gesticulation, and emphatic tones of the old chief showed that he was very much in earnest.

He said that he had come three hundred miles across the prairie to attend this meeting, and represent the needs of his people. He wanted more preachers sent them. He did not want white missionaries, for his people did not understand the ways of the white man, and the white man did not understand their ways. He had nothing against the white man—he owed him a debt of gratitude for educating his young men, especially his interpreter—but he preferred as his missionary a full blooded Indian like Mr. Wm. Conner, who was a good man and a good missionary, and was greatly loved by his people because of the good work he was doing among them.

It was a very touching scene to see that old chief of a fierce tribe pleading with these converted Indians to send more missionaries to his people.

"What hath God wrought!" was my inward exclamation as I contemplated the scene and reviewed our work among these people.

I do not know how I can better give, in brief compass, a sketch of the work of our Board in the Indian Territory than to quote from our last report, written by Dr. Tichenor's graphic pen:

"The unsettled political condition of the tribes in the Indian Territory to which our work is confined, the heavy influx of white people, the rapid increase of the English language, that being the language taught in all their schools, renders our mission work there more and more like missions among our frontier population.

"The work of evangelization among them has been remarkably successful. There are within the territory fifteen associations, 189 ordained ministers, 66 Sunday-schools with 3,600 teachers and pupils, 207 churches and 12,961 baptized believers out of a population of about 180,000. Of this population about 60,000 are Indians, and the remainder white people or negroes.

"What they need most is development in Christian activities and in the arts of civilized life. Their school fund, which is larger per capita than that of any State in the Union, if properly administered, will tend largely to this result. The Board has appointed Brother Conner missionary to the wild tribes located in the western part of the Territory. About thirty missionaries are at work within this Territory and Oklahoma. The work done for these Indians by the Baptists of the South in the last forty years is one of the most remarkable in the history of missions. When they were carried beyond the Mississippi they had acquired scarcely the rudiments of civilization. As a consequence of their forced removal they were hostile to the white man, and especially to the white man's religion. The Creek Nation evinced this hostility by refusing to allow missionaries within its borders, and making it a crime to be punished by the judges, to worship the white man's God.

"The story of the suffering of that first band of believers among them, led by Joseph Islands, is one of the most thrilling connected with the history of modern missions. The love of Christ as exemplified in the lives of the missionaries and their converts broke down their hostility and repealed their laws against Christianity. Men like Slover among the Cherokees, Moffett and Smedley among the Choctaws, Potts and Buckner among the Creeks, gave their lives to the work. They were aided by many of their converts who followed their example, and the divine blessing in unwonted power rested upon their labors. Churches sprang up, schools were established, and civilization followed in the high-way opened by the gospel.

"Notwithstanding the war which desolated their land, swept away their homes and houses of worship, destroyed their property and uprooted their nascent civilization, leaving them at the close little else than their forests and their prairies, they gathered back about the debris of their ruined country and have rebuilded their churches and their homes, remodelled their tribal government into republics, have opened farms, clothed their prairies with thriving herds, builded towns, established schools, and are to-day prepared, if they so desired, to take their place in this Union of States. The world has listened with thrilling interest to the story of the power and progress of Christianity in the Sandwich Islands, where, in three quarters of a century, a nation has been brought from savagery into Christian civilization.

"We put the triumph of Christianity among the Indians by its side, and do not hesitate to say that the result of the forty years among them equals, if it does not exceed that done in the seventy-five years among the dwellers on the islands of the Pacific. Yet the one is the admiration of the world, while the other is scarcely noted. One was done at that distance which lends enchantment to the view. The other, alas! was done at our doors mainly by our Home Mission Board."

The American Baptist Home Mission Society has been for some years doing a good work in the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, and Indian University at Muscogee and several academies sustained by the Society are doing a noble work, and sending out wide reaching influences.

I came away more fully convinced than ever before that our Board ought to enlarge its work in the Indian Territory, and that the churches ought to afford us the means of speedily doing so.

The report on Missions recommended that the Association ask the Home Board to increase its work within their bounds, and that all of the churches be called on for contributions to help in support of this work.

In speaking to the report I especially commended this feature, and said: "Whether the old heathen maxim, 'The gods help those who help themselves,' is true or not, it is certainly true that Mission Boards help those who help themselves." Some of the contributions sent up from the Indian churches this year were liberal—e. g., Greenleaf church sent up nearly fifty dollars, and with proper training all of the churches of this Association will soon become self-sustaining, and will contribute liberally towards sending the gospel to the wild tribes.

I was obliged to leave Friday evening, but the meeting was to have continued all day Saturday and Sunday, or rather, according to their custom, all night Sunday, and adjourn at sunrise on Monday.

When President Conger and myself were about to leave, they arose and sang with a will the old song, "Say, brothers, will you meet me?" and the last one of the large congregation present pressed forward and gave us the parting hand.

By the way, I forgot to say that the singing of these Indian brethren was very sweet and inspiring. They have a Creek hymn-book which contains the old hymns, but they rarely use the books, as all seem to know the hymns, and everybody sings "with the spirit and the understanding," and the woods ring with sweetest melody.

I thanked God that I had enjoyed the privilege of mingling for a season with our Indian brethren, and came away with a profound impression of the grand work that has been already accomplished, and with a deep conviction that the Indian Territory and Oklahoma present to-day a magnificent field for most hopeful missionary work.—J. Wm. Jones, Indian Territory, Aug. 19, 1893, in Home Field.

Chauncey Depew makes a good point in the following. It would be well for the country if more men would take a similar view: "To many, success is a million of dollars. But every man who owns a home, and has secured an income by which he can live in it, no matter how frugally, that man is already a success. The only rule I can give for gaining success, is to stick, dig and save."—The Baptist.

Thousands and tens of thousands have gone through the evidence which attests the resurrection of Christ, piece by piece, as carefully as ever a judge summed up on the most important cause. I have myself done it many times over, not to persuade others, but to satisfy myself. I have been used for many years to study the history of other times, and to examine and weigh the evidence of those who have written about them, and I know of no fact in the history of mankind which is proved by better and fitter evidence of every kind.—Dr. Arnold of Rugby.

To the Churches of the Raleigh Baptist Association.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:—The next annual session of our Association meets with Mt. Moriah church, near Auburn, on the North Carolina Railroad, on Thursday, October 26th, 1893. It is earnestly hoped that every church in the Association will be represented with a good delegation. Let us pray for the presence and power of the Holy Ghost to be upon the body and all its deliberations.

The past year has been a very trying one to our missionaries and to the prosecution of the work committed to them, for we have not only been unable to extend the work as was desired, but have been compelled to embarrass the missionaries by failing to pay them as their needs required.

But the blessing of the Lord has rested upon the labors of His servants; and from every mission point and from every established church the good news has been heard of the outpouring of the Spirit. A house of worship has been built at one of the mission stations, and during a protracted meeting in August a number of souls professed faith in Christ, and now there is an organized Baptist church of nineteen members. The work at this point was begun in an old storehouse once used as a bar room? God be praised that the power of the gospel hath destroyed the works of darkness, and where sin did abound grace doth much more abound.

During the past year we have aided in sustaining regular preaching at Princeton, where they now have a good house of worship; at Pine Level, Sardis, Four Oaks, Avery's Mill, Hood's School-house, Blackman's Cross Roads, where a church has been built, and at Rocky Ridge Academy. These points have been served by Elders F. H. Poston, O. C. Horton and W. C. Nowell. These brethren have faithfully labored, in season and out of season, not only at these points, but wherever they have been able to collect the people together—in private houses, in school-houses, and in the open air. In encouraging prospects and fruitful indications the outlook was never brighter for our Association to cover all the destitution, formerly so broad and difficult to reach.

It remains for the churches to sustain this work, and we come to you, therefore, in the name of the Lord, and ask that you send a liberal contribution for Associational Missions by your messengers to our coming session, and that you instruct them to take no backward step for the year before us.

The following pledges were taken for Associational Missions at our last session. Let these pledges be fully met, and, if possible, increased: Apex, $15; Bethany, $3; Bethesda, $10; Bethlehem, $5; Carter's Chapel, $5; Cary, $20; Clayton, $25; Collins' Grove, $5; Ephesus, $10; Fayetteville Street, $30; Four Oaks, $5; Garner, $10; Good Hope, $3; Green Level, $25; Hepzibah, $15; Holly Springs, $25; Inwood, $5; Johnston Antioch, $5; Kinney's Creek, $5; Lee's Chapel, $5; Morrisville, $20; Mt. Moriah, $25; New Bethel, $10; Pine Level, $5; Pleasant Grove, $10; Princeton, $5; Raleigh Baptist Tabernacle, $100; Salem, $10; Sardis, $5; Selma, $50; Shiloh, $15; Smithfield, $50; Swift Creek, $5; White Oak, $10.

The following churches did not pledge a given sum, but the delegates promised that their churches would respond as liberally as possible, and send their contributions to the Association: Baptist Center, Corinth, Mt. Hermon, Reedy Creek, Whitestone, Leesville, Mt. Olivet, Samaria, Wilson's Mills, Clyde's Chapel, Live Oak, Mt. Zion and Shady Grove.

It is hoped that there will not be a blank in all the table of churches, but that we shall find all have come fully up to their part in this work of furnishing the gospel to the destitute sections in our own bounds.

Permit us to suggest that a thorough canvass of all the members of the church be made, so that all may have an opportunity to give something to the various objects, and that each member be asked to give to Associational Missions, Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Ministerial Education, and the Orphanage. We believe if the work of soliciting is done thoroughly and faithfully that we shall see great results.

May the blessing of the Lord rest upon the churches, and His Spirit fill our hearts.

On the great need of better Sabbath observance by its professed friends. Jesus taught with special emphasis that many of both clergy and laity will not get to heaven. (Matt. 7: 21, 23.)

Anything breaking in secular thought, reading, conversation, work, travel, amusement, etc., may yet be found to be the point where professed Christians left the way. Worse still, their example in these things also lead others to ruin.

Not being heavy on the hands of the church so much Christian work on that day as their own spiritual health demands.

The Philadelphia Sabbath Association (1224 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.) offers a first prize of seventy dollars and a second prize of thirty dollars for the best essays on the above not exceeding one thousand words.

All essays to be sent in by January 1, 1894, and accompanied by the writer's name and address in a sealed envelope.

Joe Jordan, a white man, has been arrested at Laurinburg, charged with burning the Methodist church there a few weeks ago. A man named Barefoot, also white, was subsequently arrested as an accomplice. Both men were jailed.

MARRIED.

WALTERS—WINNINGHAM—On September 26th, 1893, at the residence of Mr. J. H. Winningham, Burlington, N. C., by Rev. John C. Hocutt, Mr. Frank A. Walters and Miss Bettie Winningham.

DIED.

BROOKS—Mrs. Mary E. Brooks, wife of Chas. H. Brooks, was born October 29th, 1859, and died at her home in Beaufort, N. C., Aug. 31st, 1893. At the age of eighteen she was baptized into the fellowship of the Beaufort Baptist church, and remained an exemplary member until her death. She left a husband and four children. J. D. MOORE.

LASHLEY—Mrs. Lydia Lashley, on the 17th of September, 1893, departed this life, aged seventy-four years and seventeen days. She leaves an only daughter, her husband and several children having gone before her. She professed faith in Christ in 1837 and joined the church at Shady Grove where she held her membership all her life. She was always ready to help the poor and gave liberally of her means to spread the gospel throughout the world.

"Weep not that her toils are o'er,
Weep not that her race is run,
God grant we may rest as calmly,
When our work, like hers, is done.
'Till then we yield with gladness
Our mother to him to keep,
And rejoice in the sweet assurance,
"He giveth his loved ones sleep."

R. J. BENNETT.

JONES—Death is no respector of persons, but claims for his own the aged and the young, the godly and the ungodly alike.

Sister Ellen Jones departed this life at her temporary home in Union, July 25th, 1893, in the fifty-seventh year of her age.

When thirteen years old she gave herself to Christ, and was to her death, a period of forty-three years, an active and consistent member of Mt. Tabor church. Thoroughly identifying herself with all church work, she loved her missionary society especially, and though her voice will be silent in its meetings henceforth, her name will remain on its membership roll.

Sister Jones was a great sufferer for many years. Frail of body—a victim of that fell destroyer, consumption—she was nevertheless bright and cheerful always, refusing to take her bed until a few months before the end. So sunshiny and hopeful was her life that, invalid though she was, she was a comfort and an inspiration to all about her.

Her energy was boundless and surprising. Twice married and twice a widow she knew what sorrow was. Raising her children largely without a father's help, she knew what trouble meant, and yet through it all her faith never faltered. There was no complaining beneath the chastening rod, but peaceful resignation, and patient, even cheerful, submission to the Father's will.

A few weeks before her death the old homestead was destroyed by fire. This was a sore trial and heavy loss, but like her other troubles only seemed to deepen her trust in Jesus and bring out the pure gold of her character. She died as only those who have loved, trusted and served Christ, can die. PASTOR.

JUSTICE—Amid the various duties and labors that make up this life, with all its pleasures and joys, we see and feel enough of pain and care to prevent us being wedded to this world. Perhaps no one who has tried the realities of the Christian life but has, at times, at least, said in his heart with the poet:

"I would not live alway, I ask not to stay,
Where storm after storm rises dark over the way."

An unconverted man cannot understand this; in fact, it is a wonder to the most confiding and expecting of his own children, how he can mingle our tears and our joys, how he can inspire our most triumphant anticipations, while our heads humbly bow before him, and our hearts bleed under his chastening hand. We have had quite an experience of this kind recently in the death of T. B. Justice, Jr., son of Rev. C. B. Justice, and grandson of the late Rev. T. B. (Uncle Butler) Justice.

Thomas was from infancy a bright, clear-headed boy, and his life was as free from reproach as any one we ever knew at this age. Naturally reserved in his manners, and retired in his habits, he was not, perhaps, tempted to engage in wild frivolities and rude sports so common among boys. Born of pious parents, surrounded with religious influences from his childhood, the subject of many prayers, and obedient to the divine call, he was converted and joined the Rutherfordton Baptist church, of which his father was pastor, when he was about ten years old, and has been an exemplary member of the same to the day of his death. He was a studious boy, and always stood well in his classes in school. He won the first medal given in Capt. Bell's Military Institute at this place. At Wake Forest College, in 1893, he entered the Freshman class. His reports show that he stood well in his classes there—in deportment, perfect. He was fully expecting to be at this time a member of the Sophomore class of the same school if the Father had not called him home. He had expressed a conviction that he was called of God to preach the gospel, and his friends were expecting to see him some day an ornament to his church and to his profession. But he who doeth all things well hath ordered otherwise. We humbly bow to him and say, "Thy will, not ours, be done."

Thomas Butler Justice was born Nov. 11th, 1871, and died Sept. 11th, 1893, aged twenty-one years and ten months. His sickness, which lasted about three weeks, was not considered dangerous, but just as we thought him relieved, a complication of diseases developed, and he was soon beyond our reach. He is gone, but we will see him again. Our kind Heavenly Father has graciously given his parents and the family such resignation as that to impress afresh upon the community the sublime realities of our precious religion. The call of Thomas to his reward has evidently been a benediction to this community.

Peace be with us till we meet again.

M. H. HOYLE.

Between Life And Death.

A SINGULAR STORY OF A DETROIT MOULDER—A TERRIBLE BATTLE WHICH LASTED MONTHS—ONE OF THE REMARKABLE INCIDENTS BORDERING ON THE ROMANTIC.

(From the Detroit Free Press.)

Thomas Hagen was seated in a comfortable rocking chair at his cosy home, 1289 Russell Street, yesterday morning, when a visitor was announced. The gentleman arose and greeted the new comer with the grace of a diplomat, and as he opened up a conversation it was evident that Mr. Hagen was a person of more than ordinary intelligence. To his visitor the remarkable changes and peculiar career of this man was a source of much interest. The wonderful transformation in his appearance within the past two years is itself worthy of the study of a scientist. Mr. Hagen, a couple of years ago, was so weak and emaciated that to day he does not seem the same individual. Rheumatism was the cause of his terrible suffering.

He is a Detroiter by birth, having first seen the light of day in this city thirty-six years ago. When quite a boy he was apprenticed to the moulder's trade, and ever since he has followed this avocation. He is quite a prominent member of the local Stove-moulder's Union, and can be found nearly every Saturday night in attendance at the meeting of the order. About two years ago Mr. Hagen became seriously affected with rheumatism, the result of working in draughts of cold air.

"The shooting pains of rheumatism are actually, I believe, the most horrible penalties that can be inflicted on mankind. I can not begin to tell you of the agony I suffered. I had a thorough experience in the art of torture, and no matter what I used to ease the pain, it seemed as though I was doomed to greater suffering. I had a number of friends who took great interest in my case, and recommended numerous remedies, which I tried without avail. Nothing seemed to do me any good. I was under the care of several well known Detroit physicians, but their services were absolutely without favorable results. I was bedridden. Why, I could not move from one chair to another without assistance. Some days I would feel a little brighter than others.

"But presently another attack of that cruel rheumatism would strike me leaving me a veritably wreck on the barren shores of humanity.

"By accident I read two years ago a Canadian paper containing a remarkable story of a miracle at Hamilton, Ont. It was that of a man who was tortured almost to death by rheumatism. He was induced to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He was immediately cured. I doubted the truth of the matter at first, but thought I would try it. I had my people hunt all over town, but they could not find the pills at any of the drug stores. The only place they were then sold at was over in Windsor. Well, my relatives went over there and purchased a few boxes. Great Christopher! but my mind goes back in ecstasy to the change which immediately came over me after using the Pink Pills. I began to improve, and in a few weeks rheumatic pains left me, and in a short time I was able to be out and around. From that time I have been at work.

"It was not long after I secured the pills over at Windsor that I found they were for sale here in Detroit, at Brown & Co.'s, corner of Woodward and Congress, Michell's and Bassett & L'Hommedieu's Woodward avenue. I purchased them for fifty cents per box. I guess you can buy them now at almost every drug store in Detroit.

"I have recommended the Pink Pills to several of my friends around town, and although their cases were similar to mine, they have all been cured. There is nothing on the face of God's earth equal to them for rheumatism and other diseases. Until my dying day I will praise the pills for being the cause of my present happy contented condition."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not a patent medicine in the sense in which that term is usually understood, but are a scientific preparation successfully used in general practice for many years before being offered to the public generally. They contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale or sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature.

These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Brockville, Ont., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trake mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50. Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in bulk, or by the dozen or hundred, and any dealer who offers a substitute in this form is trying to defraud you and should be avoided. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company from either address. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

The State pensions this year will amount to $100,000.

Loss over and above insurance between one and two thousand dollars.

Mr. Alexander Stamper of Concord, while in Salisbury one night recently, was decoyed into an unfrequented place and there knocked down and robbed of a purse containing fifty-two dollars. The participants in the robbery were Walter Hess and two other young men. Hess was arrested and is in jail. The others escaped.

Work has progressed at a remarkably rapid rate on the State Deaf and Dumb School building in Morganton. The brick work on the main building, with the exception of the central clock tower, is about all completed, and the contractors are making good headway in putting on the slate roof. The main building will be all covered and closed in before cold weather.—Morganton Herald.

The Morganton Herald states that the Waldensian colonists are successfully operating a steam saw mill on their Burke county lands, and have recently purchased a shingle machine. On their ten thousand acre tract of land, there are fully seven thousand acres of virgin forest, with much white and yellow pine, oak and poplar timber. They expect to be heavy shippers of lumber from their station at Valdese, eight miles east of Morganton.

The Jonesboro Herald quotes Mr. S. A. Henszey, president of the Egypt Coal Mines, Chatham county, as saying: "The coal outlook at our mines is better than ever before. We have nearly completed and will have in use within sixty days a hoisting engine with a capacity of 1,000 tons in ten hours. The quality and quantity of the coal improve as we go down. The depth of the mine now is 800 feet. Competent mining engineers, after long and careful examination, say that we have 12,000,000 tons of coal. That is based on present openings and the specific gravity of coal, as furnished by State Chemist Battle."

The State Fair will be held at Raleigh, October 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th. Senator Vance expects to be present and make an address on the opening day, October 17. On the same day there will be a game of foot ball between the Wake Forest College and Trinity College teams. Besides a "Wild West" show and an Indian village, it is announced that there will be a museum of North Carolina's wild animals, a cylorama of the battle of Gettysburg, &c., &c. The Second Regiment band of Wilmington has been engaged to make music during the week. Several prominent State agriculturists have promised to make special exhibitions.

Many anarchists have been arrested in Vienna, and at Bruenns, the capital of Moravia, sixty-eight members of a secret society were recently captured. These arrests have revealed the existence of an extensive anarchist plot.

A million dollar fire occurred in St. Joseph, Mo., on the 25th ult. The stub of a lighted cigarette is said to have caused the conflagration.

Twenty-eight miners were drowned in the Mansfield mine near Crystal Falls, Mich., on the night of September 28th. They were working directly under the bed of the Michigamme river, when it broke through the roof of the mine.

Prof. J. Parris D. Steele of Illinois, died at the Providence infirmary in Mobile, Ala., on the 26th ult., aged sixty-five years. Prof. Steele was an agricultural author of national distinction, and for twenty-four years was agricultural editor of the Mobile Register.

At Barcelona, Spain, on the 23d ult., an anarchist attempted to kill Captain General Martinez de Campos and his entire staff by throwing a dynamite bomb. Gen. Campos, was slightly wounded, one member of the guard was killed and several others injured. Several arrests have been made.

At Calamity, Pa., on the night of September 24th, a Mrs. Reese was shot and killed by an anarchist for disclosing some of the secrets of the anarchists. It is reported that they had laid plans to go to Canada where they were to engage in an attempt to blow the Government buildings up. The murderer is in jail.

The one hundredth anniversary of the laying of the corner-stone of the Capitol at Washington was celebrated on Sept. 18th. President Cleveland presided and made an address. Other speakers followed, the principal one being Mr. William Wirt Henry of Virginia, a grand-son of Patrick Henry of Revolutionary renown.

The late ex-Secretary Hamilton Fish left several public bequests, one of them being $50,000 to Columbia College. The late Frederick L. Ames, on the other hand, whose estate is estimated to be worth $30,000,000, left no public bequest, although it is thought that his family may eventually make some liberal gifts to educational and other objects in his name.—Watchman.

Wilkinson's Warehouse.
OXFORD, N. C.

We desire to announce to the readers of the RECORDER that we are now ready for new tobacco. We have the largest corps of buyers of any market in the State, who buy largely on speculation and who hold orders in almost unlimited quantities for the leading manufacturers of the United States and foreign countries. These buyers authorize me to say to you all, bring on your tobacco, and they will pay you full prices for all desirable grades.

During my six years in the warehouse business, my trade has grown until now Wilkinson's Warehouse is noted throughout the Carolinas and Virginia for its high prices and good treatment. I have scores of patrons in far-off sections whom I have never seen, but they continue from year to year to ship me tobacco, and also induce their friends and neighbors to ship. One new shipper from a neighborhood often causes many others to ship. I want every tobacco grower who reads this to consider it a letter written to him personally.

Remember I run my own sales. I buy largely of all grades. I never stop bidding on a lot of tobacco until it has gone to its full value.

Don't pack your tobacco soft enough to cause it to lose its color.

We have cheap freight rates on all the railroads. We will have your tobacco nicely graded and tied up at a cost of 75 to 90 cents per 100. Write to us so we may keep you posted. Ship us some good tobacco at once and we will try to make you good sales.

Our Granville county friends will please remember that this is written to you as well as those of distant counties.

Yours to serve,
W. I. WILKINSON, Proprietor.

Union Meeting.

The fourth section of the Tar River Union Meeting will meet with the Baptist church at Mt. Hebron, Franklin county, N. C., on Saturday before the fifth Sunday in October, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

The following queries will be discussed:

1. What shall be done with a member that refuses to commune?
2. Will believing and being baptized save a man without further effort on his part?
3. Is it right to let politics come in the church? and, if not, why do they do it?

On Sunday morning there will be a Sunday-school mass meeting. COM.

Increased Appetite
is one of the first good effects felt by users of Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites. Good appetite begets good health.

Scott's Emulsion
is a fat-food that provides its own tonic. Instead of a tax upon appetite and digestion it is a wonderful help to both.

Scott's Emulsion arrests the progress of Consumption, Bronchitis, Scrofula, and other wasting diseases by raising a barrier of healthy flesh, strength and nerve.

A New Feature.

ARTISTIC
Dress Making.

We respectfully beg to state that we have added and opened on Sept. 18th a Dress Making Department. This department has been thoroughly organized after months of careful preparation, and after having at great expense secured the very best talent to be had in their respective capacities, thus guaranteeing perfect equipment, not being excelled in artistic merit by the dress making establishments of any of the northern cities

Our lines of high class dress goods, comprising the newest Silks, Velvets and Dress Woolens are now on sale, and is the richest collection we have ever brought out.

We ask the attention of the ladies of North Carolina to this new feature of our business, assuring them that at moderate prices garments and costumes can be furnished here at home that will have the grace and style of French-made dresses.

Specialties: Bridal trousseaux and wedding outfits. Samples sent and [illegible] given.

The Little Prayer.

The fire upon the hearth is low,
And there is stillness everywhere;
Like troubled spirits here and there
The firelight shadows flutter go,
And as the shadows round me creep,
A childish treble breaks the gloom,
And softly from a further room
Comes: "Now I lay me down to sleep."

And, somehow, with that little prayer
And that sweet treble in my ears,
My thoughts go back to distant years,
And linger with a dear one there;
And as I hear the child's amen,
My mother's faith comes back to me—
Crouched at her side I seem to be,
And mother holds my hand again.

Oh, for an hour in that dear place!
Oh, for the peace of that dear time!
Oh, for that childish trust sublime!
Oh, for a glimpse of mother's face!
Yet, as the shadows round me creep,
I do not seem to be alone—
Sweet magic of that trembling tone,
And, "Now I lay me down to sleep!"

By Eugene Field.

Do Your Best.

It is always a hopeful sign in any young person when he keeps constantly before him the purpose to do his best in everything which he undertakes. He may be poor in worldly means; his parentage may be very humble; his surroundings may be very uninviting; his natural endowments may be meagre; his early facilities for an education may be very limited; yet, if he resolutely determines to do his very best with all of the opportunities at his command, he will be quite likely to make a splendid success in life. Of course, he must expect discouragements. They form a part of the discipline of every life. They are frequently the precursor of noble achievements. The man who meets with no discouragements in his way is one who has no serious difficulties to encounter; and he who is not confronted with obstinate difficulties of some kind misses opportunities to show himself a man and a growing man. If Demosthenes had not met with rugged difficulties in his way, if he had not found gross impediments stalking in his path, it is more than probable that he would not have finally become the master orator of the age. Discouragements he doubtless had, but he met them with the supreme resolve that they should not conquer him,—he would conquer them and make them the servants of his success.

He did his best, and this meant the overthrow of every obtrusive obstacle, the mastery of every difficulty, the conquest of every impediment, the defeat of every discouragement. It meant the willingness to pay the legitimate price for a success which would be worth what it cost. It always pays one to do his best in any line of honorable endeavor. The reward comes in the consciousness of having done duty in a thorough manner, in the satisfaction of having made progress beyond previous accomplishments, in the realization of personal development and in the joy of having done good to others. Such an experience is unknown to him who does not habitually engage his best efforts in any line of service in which he may lawfully and righteously exert his powers. It is impossible that he who puts a slack hand to work and is a time-server should feel the thrill of satisfaction which comes through the consciousness of having done one's best in some sphere of honest labor. He knows nothing of that high joy which enriches and rewards that man who has bent every energy in the discharge of a duty which laid its reasonable claims upon him. He may have failed to perform that duty as completely as he desired to; there may be some sense of regret that he could not have done better, and yet the fact that he did his best furnishes a satisfaction and a joy which sweetly and surely repay him for his earnest, intense efforts. He realizes that it is far more creditable to him to have done his best, even if he seemed to make a failure, than it would have been had he performed the work in an aimless, perfunctory and slovenly manner.

The church and the world need the services of those who are eager to do their best in various spheres of labor,—in such spheres as they are qualified to act, or by best efforts, may qualify themselves to act. As to the church, they are needed in the prayer meetings, for they ought to pray there as best they can; in the conference meeting they should speak to the best of their ability: in the Sunday school they should, as teachers, do their very best, and as scholars they ought to put best interest in the lessons. Each school should strive to be the best in the neighborhood or in the town, and this means that each teacher and each scholar should feel that only as they individually seek to do their best will they as a school attain conspicuous advancement. And every pastor, should be content with nothing short of doing his best, in the whole round of duty. Slovenly sermonizing is to be vigorously condemned and an indifferent delivery should not be tolerated. And every writer for the press both secular and religious, should make strenuous endeavor to do the best possible work. It is those who do their best that come to the front and receive best rewards.—Christian Secretary.

Candy-Making and Candy-Eating.

"I am told," said a cynical gentleman, "that confectionery is made, put up and handled entirely by girls and women, but I do not believe it. From what I know of women, I infer that if the preparation of confectionery were completely in their hands, none of it would ever reach the public. It would all be eaten up." This cynical person, like most cynics in their judgment, ignored an important characteristic of human nature. It is this, that liberty is often one of the best means of regulation.

In most establishments where confectionery is manufactured, the female employes, when they begin their services, are told to eat as much candy as they like. Their employers even show a solicitous interest that they shall consume as much as possible.

"You are doing very well," said a superintendent in a candy-making shop to a girl who had been in his employ for a day or two, "except in one respect—you don't eat candy enough. Unless you can eat more we shall have no confidence in you."

Thus encouraged, the girl ate a great quantity of various sorts of confectionery the next day—and never wished to eat any more as long as she lived.

This is the secret of the free permission. A new employee, set down in the presence of so much sweetness, and free to help herself, consumes too much for her palate and digestion; disgust follows satiety, and from that time forward the candy-maker is content to let her confections pass through her hands without tasting them.

In Russia, where repression rather than freedom is the order of the day, a different practice, and apparently a cruel one, prevails in the confectionery establishments. The girls employed there are never permitted to taste the candies; and in order that they shall not do so secretly, a sort of moral muzzle is put on them.

They are made to sing incessantly, when at work, a song specially composed for the purpose. Any young woman who interrupts her singing for an instant is at once under suspicion, and is watched.

Of course the employees, in such circumstances, are continually tempted to eat the candy, and their torture is made the more like that of Tantalus by the words of their song itself, which are in praise of the sweetness and deliciousness of the candy they are handling.

They learn to sing on ceaselessly and indifferently, but it is said by those who have been much in these Russian candy-shops that the girls' utterance occasionally becomes singularly thick.—Youth's Companion.

The Model for Good Women.

What an obstinate, curious set we women are, to be sure. We do not like to be called strong minded because the frivolous ones among us regard that state of mental being as incompatible with style, and yet we would resent very vigorously the assertion made by any one that we were weak minded. Of course we would, yet what do we want? Is there any half way term suggestive of just that correct balance that we are anxious to acquire?

Perhaps no word aptly fills the bill, but the state can be acquired, and it will repay us for any little sacrifices we may be compelled to make or real work that must be undergone to reach it. No man admires a woman whose intellectuality makes her forget all about the most becoming arrangement of her hair, nor does he fancy the extremist who regards books as of secondary importance to personal beauty and whose every remark is punctured by the comma, semicolons and periods of self praise, fashion comment and inane small talk.

There is a happy medium that combines wit and wisdom with womanly grace that does not air its superiority and that is not above a desire to please by both mental and personal attractiveness. That is the type to copy. Become less of extremists, ye great world of women, and your lives will be longer, your homes happier and your souls more tranquil in the serenity of a combination of strength and weakness, self reliance and dependency, that makes you far more winning than if you are given over entirely to one side or the other.—Philadelphia Times.

A Sedentary Occupation,
plenty of sitting down and not much exercise, ought to have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to go with it. They absolutely and permanently cure constipation. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet is a corrective, a regulator, a gentle laxative. They're the smallest, the easiest to take, and most natural remedy—no reaction afterward. Sick headache, bilious headache, indigestion, bilious attacks, and all stomach and bowel derangements are prevented, relieved and cured.

A "COLD IN THE HEAD" is quickly cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. So is catarrhal headache, and every trouble caused by Catarrh. So is catarrh itself. The proprietors offer $500 for any case which they cannot cure.

Where the Secret Lies.

Few families realize that they hold their guests at their mercy; they almost never remember that when the visit is ended they are decidedly at the mercy of the guests. The truth of the first statement is obvious, for the comfort and happiness of the guest depends upon the host—and the host in this case is no individual of the family, but the family taken collectively. The force of the second statement may not at first be apparent, but its truth will be recognized when we remember that we have furnished the departed friend material for several hours of conversation. The happenings of the visit and the impressions of the family will be minutely rehearsed; and it is in this latter particular that the second truth applies. We should, therefore, see that the impressions are not against us.

Under the admirably appropriate title of "Family Co-operation," a writer in a recent number of Harper's Bazar speaks interestingly on the same subject. Two families are compared in these words: "A lady returned from a long and pleasant visit wrote to one of her late entertainers: 'Each of you singly has some special charm. United you are irresistible.' Another lady returning from a visit to another family who knew all the members and circumstances of the latter family, remarked to an intimate friend: 'Each one of the Blanks taken separately has good and even charming qualities, but taken together they are dreadful! I shall never visit there again.' The difference between the two families lay in the fact that whereas the members of the first all worked unitedly to make their guest's visit a pleasant one, those of the other worked for the same end conflictingly." Here is the real secret of successful entertaining. The co-operation of the family in that, as in all affairs of the home, will produce the best results. If we are to be at the mercy of our guests, surely it is for our interest to make them carry away the best possible impressions; and only by undivided, unselfish efforts toward a common end can this result be accomplished.—C. E. Cook, in Boston Budget.

BEAUTIFUL SLEEP—is an expression used for sound sleep. Nothing is so gratifying to the nerves, heart, and head, as perfect sleep—a companion of good digestion and a healthy liver. A tired digestion fails to assimilate, or take care of, the food we eat. Something bracing or invigorating is needed for the liver, stomach, and intestines.

This is where you will find Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do the most good. They are tiny, sugar-coated pills, scarcely larger than mustard seed, made of concentrated botanical extracts. These "Pellets" are easily dissolved in the stomach and absorbed into the blood, stimulating a flow of bile from the liver, and arousing to activity all the glandular secretions. Thus they act in nature's own way.

They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money refunded, in all Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Constipation, Dizziness, and Indigestion.

When you have Catarrh, use the sure remedy—Dr. Sage's. $500 for an incurable case.

IN THIS comparatively enlightened age it is difficult to imagine how men can be so blind to the baneful effects of war, and especially of civil war, as to be enticed or forced to engage in the practice of it for anything short of human life and liberty. And yet the traditional war cloud, although only of the size of the proverbial man's hand, has never disappeared from Europe's political sky. The people of that continent have not been in a state of perfect ease and security for a quarter of a century, though they have grown accustomed to suspense, and have learned to listen to the tramp of soldiery, and to hearken to the call of their rulers for additional army taxes, until their business interests are little affected. Three of the mightiest nations of the earth are threatened daily with a contest, the like of which has never been seen. France, Germany and Russia maintain the most enormous armies that have been mustered since the days of Xerxes, and in equipment, training and skill, their equals cannot be found in history. Should the armies of the two former nations meet, a loss of life would result, which neither of them could replace in a century,—and for what? Most probably to secure two small districts, Alsace and Lorraine, by name, that could be purchased with half the money that has been wrung out of the bone and sinew of the subjects of France and Germany to sustain these great armies. Such a spectacle—such uncalled for and unnecessary marshalling of forces, and maintenance of armies at the expense and oppression of the people—is a shame upon our boasted civilization, and a disgrace to a world in which Christ once lived, and which is to day abundantly supplied with the blessed record of his life and the divine precepts which fell from his lips. The greed of France, Germany and Russia is costing these nations far more than can possibly be gained, and if continued, will cost them their existence as monarchies.

IF OUR readers were careful in their perusal of a recent missionary letter in the RECORDER from Brazil, they should not be doubtful as to the cause of the incessant rebellions that have characterized that country for the last five years. The letter said that the country was Roman Catholic in religion, and absolutely fiendish in the daily practices of its people. The most awful crimes are committed among them daily, but the priests have nothing to say to the contrary, because what little conscience they have tells them "the pot shouldn't call the kettle black." The priests are no better than the people. Neither have religion other than that which revels in lust and despises honest manhood. Such has been the history of all countries over which the Catholics have had absolute jurisdiction. Their religion has never been known to elevate man or to honor God. There is no reason why the Brazilians should not be quite the equals of the people of the United States, otherwise than the fact that they are descendants of the Catholic settlers, and that their lives are controlled by the influence of the priests of that church. "Like priests, like people." It is an old saying, but it is as true to day of Brazil as it has been through the centuries

ALTHOUGH the past summer has been far more than usually severe to business interests, and has chronicled an enormous number of deaths from storms, railway accidents, and crimes, we yet have reason to thank God that we have been spared the terrible epidemics of cholera and yellow fever, which have so seriously threatened us during the last two summers. At the present writing our coasts are absolutely free from the former dread disease, while the number of its victims is increasing abroad, and the latter has gained an insecure foothold in only one of our small Southern towns. And as the winter months are not favorable to the existence of either of these scourges, we may rest assured that no important loss of life will result from them this year. Much of the credit for this happy consummation of the threatened invasion is due to our excellent system of quarantine and the watchfulness of our health officers. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and cleanliness is the only preventative of these most fatal diseases. By this means we may always escape a wide-spread epidemic, and no one will deny that cleanliness should be among our first duties, whether an epidemic is threatened or not; for it is as necessary to the good health and prosperity of our cities as well as of the individual citizen.

THE alarming increase of crime, and especially that of suicide, in our larger cities during the past few years, has excited the interest and investigation of the scientists and statisticians, and they have brought forth some curious information. The causes of suicide are varied, and cannot be defined. One man takes his life on account of intense grief, another because of a toothache; one may be bankrupt, disgraced and ruined, and another throws his life away on account of disappointment in some careless girl. But these are not the great causes. They may be the apparent causes, but underneath them lies the secret. It is the life we lead. Statistics show conclusively that the more civilized a nation is, the greater is the number of suicides within its limits. To the African it is a new idea; while to the Germans, the most learned and progressive of people, it is a more common occurrence than to any other nation on the globe. Learning and knowledge and inventions make life crowded, increase our necessities, and make them harder to obtain. To day we live and see and think as much in a day as our grandfathers did in a week. Our struggles for existence against an ever-increasing tide of fellow-strugglers would kill a less hardy race, before life was fairly begun. The young man of to day must study and work unceasingly, or be engulfed in the tide; he has no time for reflection; his life must be one of ceaseless action. Scorning the well-beaten paths of his father to success, he consumes in an hour the oil of the lamp which should have burned throughout the night. And yet it is a necessity. Others will work if he doesn't, and his existence will be comparatively more burdensome than theirs. He must learn, he must struggle; although if his body is weak, or his nerves unstrung, he is liable to fall in the beginning by his own hand; he thinks it better than to be trampled under the pitiless foot of the world throughout his life. It is hard. We live too fast; but the times demand it. The fittest will survive, but in the struggle many a noble man must fall, because his health will not sustain him.

The Determination to be Rich and its Perils.

BY REV. J. W. CARTER, D. D.

"But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness."—1 Tim. 6: 9, 10, 11.

To be rich is a solemn responsibility. Hundreds of millions of men and women, who desire wealth and perhaps mourn because it does not come to them, have no thought of the enormous responsibility which it would bring. They think of the comforts they might secure, of the display they might make, of the pleasures they might enjoy, of the good time they might have, of the power they might wield, and of the various things which they might do. But no thought of the vast responsibility which wealth would impose ever enters into their minds. But the fact is that wealth carries with it a tremendous responsibility. God watches every dollar that we possess or control. We must give account to him for the use to which we put it. It is likely that most of us have quite as much as it is best for us to be responsible for.

To desire to be rich is a great temptation. When a person is possessed by a gnawing and restless desire for wealth, it is certain that he will be tempted to do many things which will be unlawful, or immoral, or inhuman, or unmanly, or unchristianlike. If we would escape bitter temptations, we must not give ourselves up to the burning desire to possess wealth.

To determine to be rich is a fearful peril. The man who resolves that, whatever else he may be, he will be rich, exposes himself to great dangers. He is in danger of hardening his heart, of damaging his soul, of blighting his life, of wrecking and wasting his manhood, of selling himself to the devil for a trifle, and sending himself to perdition.

Our text is God's warning against the too ardent desire to be rich: "They that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition, for the love of money is the root of all evil, which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." We are taught that many perils arise from the determination to be rich and from the love of money. Let us glance at some of them:

1. There is covetousness. But what is covetousness? The root meaning of the word is "have more." A man who always wants more is covetous. Those who want more when they haven't enough, want more when they have enough, want more when they have more than enough, are covetous. Those whose craving for more is so great that they rob God and humanity that they may have more, are surely covetous.

Scripture teaches that covetousness is a dangerous and deadly sin. In Luke 12: 15, Jesus said: "Take heed and beware of covetousness"—beware of it, for it is a dangerous thing. He also said: "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." It would be a great blessing if all the people of our country, the young and the old, the rich and the poor, would understand that the value, the success and the happiness of life do not depend upon wealth. A man may be poor, and yet his life may be wide and deep, full and high, true and pure, noble and Christ-like, or he may be rich, and yet his life may be narrow and shallow, debased and vile.

Our Lord also gave his disciples a parable to illustrate the nature of covetousness. He said, "The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully." Finally, his harvests were greater than his barns. His crops were so large that he had no room to store them away. Then he had a rare chance to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, and to contribute largely to the Lord's kingdom; but he did nothing of the kind. He said: "This will I do: I will pull down my barns and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods." It is not said that that man was a thief or a gambler. There is no record that he was a coarse, vile man. It is not even stated that he was dishonest. He was simply a selfish and grasping rich man. If he was living now, perhaps he might be a member of one of our churches. But the Lord said, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?" Christ added, "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God." Every man who lays up treasures for himself and is not rich toward God is like that godless and doomed rich man.

Covetousness is a growing sin. Its nature is to expand, develop, and become more absorbing and fascinating. The worst of it is that the man who is its slave may not be conscious of the growth of his greatest sin. As wealth increases, benevolence should also increase. We should contribute to Christian objects in proportion to our ability. But is it not a fact that some Christians who are now rich, do not give as much in proportion to what they have, as they gave when they were poor? We have seen men who, when they were in moderate circumstances, were earnest workers for Christ; but when wealth came, they withdrew from the activities of the church, and were worth less to the kingdom of Christ than when they had less money. A pastor in his note-book has left a record of a woman who, during much of her life, was poor. But she was a devoted Christian, and always had an offering to every good cause. A friend who once called upon her for a contribution to a worthy object was startled when she gave him a guinea. He told her that it was too much, but she said that the Lord had been good to her and the contribution was no larger than she ought to make. Not long afterwards a large legacy came to her. Then she was rich; but from that time her benevolence began to decline. After some years the friend who was surprised when she gave him a guinea for a good object, called upon her for another contribution to the same object; and she surprised him again by giving only a shilling. He kindly reminded her that when she was poor she gave a guinea, but now when she was rich she gave only a shilling. "Ah," said she, "the trouble is all with my heart. When I had a shilling purse, I had a guinea heart; but now when I have a guinea purse, I have only a shilling heart!" Is it not true that in many an instance the heart grows smaller as the purse grows larger? The Christian who allows himself to become covetous, errs from the faith, and in the end pierces himself through with many sorrows.

We are taught that covetousness is idolatry, and that every covetous person is an idolater. He is a worshipper of mammon instead of God. He is as truly an idolater as if he were a heathen bowing down to an image of gold or sliver, of wood or ivory. In I Cor. 6: 9, 10, we find that the covetous man is classed with idolaters, adulterers, thieves, drunkards, revilers and extortioners, and are told that he cannot inherit the kingdom of God. One of the great dangers with which the love of wealth threatens us is covetousness.

2. Another peril which arises from the love of money, and the determination to be rich, is selfishness. It is one of the commonest sins in the world. It is inherent in human nature. We meet it everywhere. It is a sin against which we should watch and pray all the time. But those who determine to be rich do not resist selfishness. It is natural for them to seek wealth without regard to the rights of others. They have an exaggerated idea of their own interests and too low an opinion of the interests of others. Their great desire is to be rich, whatever may be the effect upon themselves. They throw themselves into the widening and deepening stream of selfishness, and float onward and downward toward ruin. God hates selfishness. How various are the methods by which he reproves it! When reverses come to us, or when we meet with disappointment, or sustain losses, we may hear the voice of God in the events of life warning us against the deadly evil of selfishness. Often the same event which brings loss to me conveys benefit to others. The same rain which spoils one man's hay makes the potatoes of his neighbor. The same rise in the river which floods the lowlands and ruins your crop opens a way to the market for the lumber and coal of others. Does not God by his dealings with us speak to us and say, "Do not be selfish? Others have rights as well as yourself, and are entitled to room in the world as well as yourself."

It seems to me that the most striking trait in the character of Napoleon Bonaparte was his colossal selfishness. His genius was great and dazzling, but his selfishness was greater still. Perhaps he was not naturally cruel, but he would perpetrate extreme cruelty to gratify his desires. He would trample upon kingdoms and outrage the hearts and lives of millions to accomplish his plans. Surely God rebuked him. In his fatal Russian campaign he led a great army of half a million men into Russia, but he came out with only a hand full. When scores of thousands of his brave soldiers were lying stiff and frozen on Russian highways, or in dreary Russian forests; and when scores of thousands of others were languishing in Russian prisons, was not Napoleon taught that if he did not regard the welfare of others, God did? even the feeblest are precious in his sight.

3. We now come to another evil which springs from the determination to be rich and the love of money: it is haughtiness. When men value wealth too highly, when they attach too much importance to it, the possession of it produces elation and inflation. Because they have money, they assert themselves in ridiculous and disagreeable ways. They assume a swaggering superiority and are disposed to think that they are made of a finer quality of clay than that of which others are composed. Probably they are overbearing and domineering. They look with contempt on the struggling poor, and are ready to think that it is a reproach to a man or woman to work for a living. In all this they display a pitiful weakness and commit a grievous sin. Perhaps you ask what class of church-members are most troublesome. I will try to answer the question. In my judgment the most troublesome of all members of the church are those who have some money and no religion. If they have wealth and piety, it is all right. If the grace of God keeps them humble and spiritual minded, we may thank him that they are rich. Their wealth will not be a curse to them, and will be a blessing to others. But if they have money without piety, they will probably be rude and overbearing. They may think that they have a right to rule the church for their own gratification without regard to the glory of God. Sometimes they seem to think that the pastor is their menial; that he must cater to them; that if he exhibits any manliness or independence, it is an insult to them; and that they have a right to discharge him as they would a cook from their kitchen. I can say for myself that I have never suffered from this affliction; but better men than I am have had to endure it.

4. Another peril which comes from the love of money and the determination to be rich is the temptation to dishonesty. When men decide that they will be rich, they are surely tempted to be dishonest, and there is fearful danger that they will surrender to the temptation. Often they practice falsehood. They declare that what they have to sell is worth more than it really is, and insist that what they wish to buy is worth less than its fair value. They want to buy all that they purchase for less than its worth, and desire to sell all that they have to sell for more than its value. Their object is to make money at both ends. Frequently they resort to trickery and fraud and in many instances they introduce and practice gambling methods. Dealing in futures is simply a form of gambling, but how common it is in our country! It would be impossible to number the lies that are told in business, or the dishonest deeds that are committed; but every one of these lies and every dishonest act is prompted by the inordinate love of wealth. "They that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition."

5. But there is still another peril which springs from the determination to be rich. It is the passion for wild speculation. Multitudes of men are not content to win wealth gradually as their fathers did. Their object is to pass from poverty to wealth at a single bound. It seems to them that the methods by which many a fortune has been honestly acquired, are too painful and tedious. They rush eagerly into all kinds of speculations. Many of them give themselves up to the work of manufacturing and nursing booms. They strain their ingenuity to invent new methods of cheating others and getting gain for themselves. But all this unhealthy excitement leads to disaster and ruin. The laws of trade are as fixed and immutable as the laws which govern the flowing and ebbing of the tide; and when we violate the laws of honorable exchange and business, the penalty must be paid. The speculation, the over-trading, the extravagance, and the general financial recklessness, disturb values, unsettle prices, derange business, create distrust and cause panic and disaster. I do not deny that bad legislation and other legal causes may produce financial depression; but in my judgment, the moral causes to which I have referred are far more potent in producing depression than the other causes about which so much is said. Different men have different explanations of the panic through which we are now passing. Some say that it is caused by the high tariff. Others say that it is caused by the wide-spread fear that the tariff will be reduced. Others say that the cause is found in over-abundance of silver. Others say that we find the true cause in the failure of our government to establish free coinage of silver. Others say that the Sherman silver law has done it all. Still others say that the panic is caused by our banking system. But I give it as my opinion that the most potential of all causes of financial crash and ruin are the recklessness and wild speculation which have been so prevalent in this country. Within a little more than half a century our country has been visited by four great panics, besides a number of smaller panics. In 1837 there was a period of wide-spread financial ruin. It distressed the people severely for some time. It came when the tariff was low, when we had all State banks and no National banks, and when there was unrestricted coinage of gold and silver. Twenty years afterwards, in 1857, there was another great national panic, when nearly all of the banks of the country suspended payment, and the cry of distress was loud and bitter. That panic also came when the tariff was very low, when we had all State banks and no National banks, and when there was unrestricted coinage of gold and silver. Sixteen years later, in 1873, there was another financial crash. We had "Black Friday," followed by a long succession of disasters. Depression and suffering were almost universal. But that panic came when the tariff was high, when we had all National and no State banks, and when silver had just been demonetized. Now when twenty years more have passed away we have another of these periodical financial convulsions. Again, the country is visited by a season of general distress; and the present panic comes when the tariff is high, when we have all National and no State banks, and when we have large but limited coinage of silver. Surely the history of the country proves that financial prosperity is not secured and maintained merely by tariff regulations or banking systems, or conditions of silver coinage. But each one of the four great panics that I have mentioned was preceded by a period of wholesale recklessness and gambling. When extravagance prevails, when the mass of the people live beyond their income, when speculators plunge recklessly into [illegible] ventures, when thousands of men are in business on borrowed capital; and when [illegible] everybody is in debt, the condition [illegible] cial panic exists, and it is only a [illegible] time when it will come. People [illegible] financial system which will [illegible] speculate, and gamble, and [illegible]

THE RAINY DAY.

This expression with many is synonymous with a gloomy day. It depends very much upon one's surroundings, the circumstances in which he is placed, and the frame of mind in which he finds himself, whether the rainy day is regarded a blessing or a misfortune. The rainy day is an educator. It has its blessings as well as its drawbacks. Let us notice some lessons it may teach:—

If often reminds us forcibly of the value of time and the worth of lost opportunities. The man who has let many bright sunny days pass without properly using them, is forcibly reminded of the folly of neglecting the proper use of his opportunities by the coming of the rainy day. If he attempts work on such a day that could easily have been done some other day, he is soon forcibly reminded by his bodily discomfort that Solomon was right when he wrote, "There is a time for all things," and some of his pungent sayings about the slothful man. The man who generally frets most on the rainy day, and deplores his enforced inaction, is apt to be the man who has not properly used the days when action was not only possible, but a duty. We should all be reminded by this that it is as the old proverb has it, wise to "make hay while the sun shines." The same idea is repeated, with a deeper meaning, in the language of Scripture, work "while it is day; the night cometh, when no man can work." There is no lesson we would more earnestly try to impress upon the minds of our younger readers than this: Try to realize the value of time, of youth, vigor, and strength, and withal the preciousness of present opportunities. In our youth we are sowing what we shall reap by and by. How important that young men or women give themselves to the Lord in the days of their youth. Does your pathway, young man, while walking the ways of sin, seem bright?—the rainy day is coming when that pathway will be dark, and you shall wander through the mist and the tempest. If you continue in that way you will not only wander through the mist and the tempest, but the shadows about you will grow thicker and deeper, because you will have no hope or faith to sustain you. Turn from that way. The happiest people are Christians, whether they are young or old.

Again, the rainy day is a forcible reminder of the necessity of that wisdom which makes provision for the future. Christ's words, "Therefore take no (anxious) thought about your life, what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink," was addressed to Christian people, and applies more to the temporal wants of his disciples. He often impresses Bible readers, saint and sinner, with the importance of making provision for the future of their souls; "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven," &c.; "Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh;" the parable of the "unjust steward," and many other passages in his Holy Word, forcibly remind us of the importance of being ready at any time for our summons from this state to that which awaits us.

The farmer who has his farm matters in good shape, his farming implements under cover, his stock comfortably housed, can enjoy the rainy day. So the man who has made peace with God, through faith in Christ, is prepared for the rainy day of sorrow, of affliction, or disappointment. He is prepared to be laid aside, if it is the Master's will, from the active duties of life, and sit patiently in the gloaming of life's day, waiting for the call of the Master to come up higher. Happy is the man who can face the future without fear!

Again, the rainy day may be an unmitigated blessing. When the earth has long been parched by the sun; when vegetation is drying up; when fountains and streams are failing; how man and beast cry to God for the life-giving water! So when we have wrought faithfully in the vineyard of the Lord, when from one cause or another we rest for awhile; we are conscious that such seasons are unmixed blessings to us. These are seasons when we have sweet communion with God. We have time to think of mercies past, and examine our faith and hope for the future. These are seasons when we can burnish and repair our spiritual armor, so when the conflict is renewed we are found truer and doughtier than before. As the earth is refreshed for many days after the rainy day, so the Christian is strengthened for days and for years to come by seasons of close communion with his God.

The rainy day is coming in the lives of all of us; but as we have before intimated, it depends upon how that day finds us as to whether we will enjoy it. "Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning," said Christ to his disciples, and this attitude certainly implies work, and readiness for his coming. We should be up and doing, redeeming our time, and using our opportunities wisely; and whatever the future may have in store for us, whether our rainy day be long or short, we can find exceeding comfort in the hope that we shall be among those of whom the Lord spoke when he said, "They shall be mine in that day when I come to make up my jewels."

THE VISITING PREACHER.

Such is the name given to the pastor, or the evangelist, who comes to a church or community to assist the pastor in a protracted meeting, and at times for other purposes. The visiting or assistant preacher is a useful man. We need him; he is very useful to our pastors. Some of our best and most consecrated preachers often render such service. Many of them are wise and discreet brethren, and they work with the pastor finely, and the meeting is often a success. But it is not always so. The visiting brother not only has faults, like other men, but they sometimes come to the front, and the meeting is seriously crippled, and the pastor worried and troubled not a little. One most common reason why it is so, results from the fact that the visiting brother wants to run everything, church, pastor, community, and all. If the visiting brother is a distinguished evangelist, and has made protracted meetings his study, the pastor of course can give him, if he thinks best, almost entire control of everything. We doubt the wisdom of this; but if it is done, do let the evangelist show such regard for pastoral and church authority as not to abuse the power temporarily committed to him. But it is often the case that the assistant preacher is only another pastor. In this case, it is in exceeding bad taste for him to claim, or attempt to exercise, too much authority. Usually it is best for the pastor to tell his assistant just what he wants him to do in the meeting, and what he (the pastor) expects to do. When the pastor mentions his plans of work, by all means let the visiting pastor comply strictly with them. If he thinks he can improve them, let him always confer with the pastor in private, and thus allow suggestions and modifications to come from him.

Now, in plain English, the visiting preacher sometimes pursues quite a different course from this. He soundly lectures the church for their supposed or real want of preparation for the meeting. He has the stoves taken out, windows altered, carpet taken up, additional lights, pulpit lowered, sexton overhauled, etc., etc. All these strange and unauthorized doings reflect on no one so much as the pastor, and all real enjoyment of the meeting on his part is crippled by the antics of his assistant.

Another cause is, that the visiting pastor from the very beginning of the meeting may give way to the temptation to covet his brother's pastorate. Now don't hold up your hands in holy horror, for some of you have been guilty of this very conduct. If so, never repeat it. Would you go into the home of your brother pastor and plot against the peace and happiness of his family? You have about the same right to go to his aid in a meeting and use your opportunity to loosen his hold upon the love of his people, and lessen his hope of successful work among them. "Go and sin no more."

GOLD, GREED AND GOVERNMENT.

Money was once used solely as a medium of exchange, and was sought and valued only as such. The farmer calculated on the number of bushels of grain that the ripening harvest would yield and the amount of live stock that roamed over his pastures, rather than the price they would bring, or their money value. If he needed anything that he couldn't produce, or if his stock of provisions were short of anything, he exchanged his products for it. There were no "money crops" then. They were times of peaceful, happy, content. Mortgages were not known. Legislation and politics had little influence on business affairs, and were resorted to only in event of war. Each man's worth was measured by natural methods—a man was what he made himself; his products returned their true value, and dishonesty never paid. As long as the land wasn't threatened by invading armies, the citizen had no need of a central government. He was independent.

But population increased, and greed attacked the race. Ambition for power found a place among the formerly contented and prosperous. Men were not content to live according to their work; they sought to get rich suddenly, and they knew that imposition and dishonesty were their only means. A central government became necessary to protect the peaceful citizen from his brother. A thousand statutes became necessary. And it was the devil that made them necessary; it was the devil that made a strong, central, organized government necessary, and he showed the necessity before five people inhabited the earth. Covetousness, greed of gold, and ambition for power are his most active instruments to-day, and were it not for the one, central government could be dispensed with. Were men honest, or were the great majority honest, and content with their share of the world's goods, and satisfied to use no more than each creates, there would be little use for a strong government, and mortgages would be unknown.

Increase in amount and diversity of products along with the increase of the earth's population, has made our necessities so many, that the old system of barter and exchange would be impracticable, but there are none who will claim that there would be need of our present intricate financial system. These never will be necessary—not even to protect us from the dishonest, whom, it seems to us, they favor now.

Would to God that the rising generation could be made to realize that the power and glory of this existence are fleeting, and never satisfying; that there is only one path that leads to true and lasting happiness, and that is in the service of the Lord. If they could learn that the life of the millionaire is no happier than that of the poorest laborer, and that it all is but a state of preparation for an eternal existence of unbounded joy, or unceasing sorrow, just as each may choose, the world would be almost perfect. But we may never hope to see it until the devil is chained, and his influence over mankind is destroyed. As long as he is free to lead men to false glory, and fleeting, dangerous power, a system of government will be necessary to protect the innocent and deserving and the godly from the grasping greed of human fiends, inspired by his promises. That is why government is necessary.

But another phase presents itself. The greed of gold and the ambition for power may become so widespread that those whom government protects us against may take charge of the government. This is a woful probability to day. Were it not for the selfishness and the individual greed that overcomes each, thereby creating animosity and discord among themselves, we would be in that state to-day. We are already in the midst of a period in which the vast majority of men are seeking wealth and power to the disregard of all else. And only the will and the Spirit of Almighty God can save them from a direful fate. Their greed is for money, for money brings power. Men have made it powerful, and now their life is wrapped up in it. It must be dethroned, or the true God will curse the world. Money must be relegated to its primitive and only worthy and practical use—as a means of exchange. Men must cease to worship it, else our future is imperiled, both here and hereafter. Christians should look to God, and pray him to deliver them from the false idol. The world will be little better than the infernal regions as long as money measures worth; for the most worthless ofttimes have the most money. God saw fit to afflict wandering Israel with a fatal scourge because she worshipped a golden calf; to day he can and will afflict us far more terribly for worshiping the dollar. But one course can avert the threatened vengeance, and that is to turn our eyes upon God's Holy Word, and to do his will.

Greed of gold is the crying evil of the age. The man who coined the expression, "Almighty Dollar," only voiced the popular blasphemy.

We know that our age is so far advanced in its error that restitution to peace and tranquility seems almost hopeless; we know that our legislative halls are hardly acquainted with the Bible; we know that the people are trying to save themselves from the scourge of God by their own weak efforts, rather than trust in the omnipotence of God, as did the followers of Moses in the wilderness; but we feel that the day will come when men shall be made to know the vanity of their ways. Until then, money will rule the world, the poor will become poorer, the rich richer, and the pits of hell more crowded.

It was once said that the voice of the people was the voice of God; for the past few years it has been little more than the echo of the lies of soulless demagogues; and it has been as variable in its cries as the winds.

But the earth will never be entirely bad. The good and the faithful and the true may have ever so insignificant a part in the conduct of public affairs, but they and their works shall never be wiped from the earth. There is hope as long as the Christian religion has one true and fearless apostle, as long as there is one among men who will follow Christ. No words are truer than these:—

"O earth, so full of dreary noises!
O men, with wailing in your voices!
O delved Gold, the wailers heap!
O strife, O curse, that o'er it fall!
God strikes a silence through you all,
And 'giveth his beloved sleep.'"

He writes that his stay in Iowa was pleasant. Six were added to the church. The West is a good field for earnest workers for Christ.

....We take the following from the Richmond Dispatch of October 3d: "Sunday was Rev. W. L. Wright's second anniversary as pastor of Leigh Street Baptist church, and his sermons were appropriate to the occasion. In reviewing the church's work, he said that it had sent out fifteen ministers, and raised about $200,000 for religious purposes. The church has 1,000 members, and is in excellent condition."

....It will interest the friends of Rev. G. W. Gardner and wife (a daughter of Mr. R. G. Kendrick of this county), to know of his change of residence, he having resigned his charge in Oxford, Miss., as pastor of the Baptist church, to assume the pastorate of the church in Kissimee, Fla. In speaking of this departure of Dr. and Mrs. Gardner, the Oxford Eagle speaks of the latter as a "refined, cultured lady," and deplores greatly the departure of herself and husband.—Charlotte Observer.

....Rev. Hight C. Moore, formerly pastor of the Morehead City Baptist church, but now at the Theological Seminary at Rochester, N. Y., is engaged in the work of compiling the meritorious poetry of North Carolina singers. He states in a letter in this paper to-day that his work is ready for the printers, and if he can secure five hundred advance subscribers, he can begin publication. The Observer hopes he will secure them, and looks forward with pleasure to the appearance of this volume.—Charlotte Observer.

....Rev. A. D. Hunter writes from Carrsville, Va., under date of October 5th, as follows: "When I wrote you last I was at the old Mill Swamp church in a protracted meeting. This church was organized in 1774. The meeting resulted in great good. Last week I was with Central Hill church, a child of the other church, but a growing one. More than thirty claimed a hope in Christ. Forty-five or fifty will unite with the two churches from these meetings. Rev. Chas. J. Jones is pastor of these churches, and he and his people seem to be working together for the glory of God and the salvation of souls."

....C. T. Sampson of North Adams, Mass., a rich shoe manufacturer and importer of Chinese labor, died some time since, but the contents of his will has just been made public. The American Baptist Home Mission Society gets $100,000, and the American Baptist Mission Union $100,000. The Berean Baptist church and the Judson Memorial get all but $30,000 from the sale of a house in Washington valued at $50,000. The Berean church also gets $50,000 additional. The rest of his estate, valued at $500,000, goes to the American Baptist Missionary Union.

....We thank Rev. C. G. Jones, Sr., of Spray, N. C., for the following in commendation of some editorial work on our first page: "I have voted for every Democratic candidate that has been before the people for President during the last forty-six years; therefore you will please allow me to thank you for the pieces on the first page of the last RECORDER—the first in regard to Congressmen, and the other in reference to Grover Cleveland. I have long thought it strange that religious newspapers didn't speak out and let the people know the facts in reference to political demagogues."

....From the New York Examiner of the 5th we extract the following, which is very much in line with what we have written in regard to the same matter: "Pastor Dixon does not think highly of the Religious Congress—he had several other names for it—"Ecclesiastical menagerie," "religious plaisance," "theological monkey show"—and the monkeys with the most fantastic dress received most attention. Two women kissed the Shinto priest. The only sentiments that brought down the house were those that exalted heathenism above Christianity. The only speaker who was hissed was Mahomet Alexander Webb, when he advocated polygamy. The Mormons were barred out, but Mormonism was heaven itself compared with some of the religions represented. He decided after being there an hour that the devil presided over all and in all. The devil was never so happy as when employing good men to further his ends."

....Rev. B. G. Covington, a native of Richmond county, this State, died suddenly at his home in Florence, S. C., on Sept. 30th. Brother Covington was educated at Wake Forest College and the Theological Seminary at Louisville. He was in the ministry for more than thirty years, and had been pastor of many churches in North and South Carolina. The Courier of Greenville pays the following well deserved tribute to his memory: "He was full of love, but he was also loyal to the truth. He loved the great Baptist gatherings, the annual meetings of his brethren, fellow-helpers to the truth, and has now after years of toil, of seed sowing and reaping, gone up to join the general assembly of first-born ones above. He will be missed by the Baptists of the Welsh Neck and the Florence Associations. He will be missed in the State. But our sovereign Lord does not ask us whom we can best spare; he takes whom he pleases to be with himself, and we must submit. God bless the bereaved companion who weeps at his grave. The solace of Christian hope be hers in these lonely hours."

Letter from Rev. C A. Woodson.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—As you perhaps know, I have recently accepted a call from some churches in Campbell county, Va., and that necessitated my removal from Durham, N. C., to my native State. Something over eleven years ago, I went from Virginia to your State, and remained in it so long, that I felt very much at home among your people. But no one can blame the Virginian, nor the native of any other State, for returning to the old heath, when the providence of God opens the way. It is the part of candor to confess that during my sojourn in North Carolina, I became greatly attached to her people, and to the great Baptist brotherhood, whom I often met in their religious convocations. The ties that bound me to the old State had become strong, and it cost me no light struggle to sever them; but the Lord is our Shepherd, and will lead us in the right way if we follow the promptings of his Spirit, and the openings of his providence.

THE RECORDER,

which visited, and will continue to visit my home, was a stay and comfort to me all through my years of labor among your people. The genial editor (and I guess you know him) by long and efficient labor, and by his staunch undeviating support of all worthy denominational enterprises, has obtained a hold upon the affections of his brethren, and purchased for himself a popularity which he richly deserves. I know him well enough, however, to be admonished right here, that I had better not say much more in this line, or this communication may find its way to the waste-basket, instead of to the columns of the paper that has honored this scribe in the past by publishing a good many of the "effusions" of his pen. This naturally leads me to speak of

of your State, of which for several years I had the honor of being Corresponding Secretary, and about the work of which I often sent communications for your columns. In the providence of God, I bore some humble part in the origin of the Board, and in prosecution of the work committed to its care. At the last Board meeting, held just before I left Durham, I tendered my resignation as Corresponding Secretary, and Col. W. A. Albright was selected by the Board to fill the place. He is well qualified for the work, and I bespeak for him that hearty sympathy and cordial co-operation from the brethren that will cheer him in its performance. Rev. W. C. Tyree is now President of the Board; so the notice of our Board, as it appears in the RECORDER, needs some adjustment. Of course I remain a member of the Board until the meeting of the next State Convention. May God bless this work and bring it very near the hearts of the Baptists of North Carolina; and, I must add, may the blessing of the Master rest upon the RECORDER, and its editor, and make them even stronger factors in promoting denominational work through the years to come.

OUR HOME

at present is in the pleasant little town of Brookneal, Va. We think of abiding here for a year or so; but if the Lord so direct we expect to carry out our original plan of locating at Lynchburg, Va., a city that is dear to me, and which is also convenient to my churches. I have four good churches. They are composed of people, some of whom I knew in the days of my childhood and youth, and of course I find great pleasure in preaching to them.

A PLEASANT EXPERIENCE.

Though preaching in town during a good part of my ministry it is quite pleasant in some respects to have again a country pastorate. I have baptised thirteen since coming to my present work. A few Sundays ago I preached, after the regular morning service at one of my churches, at the home of an old man, who had been a hardened sinner for long years. At the close of the sermon I had the great joy of seeing him and his aged wife profess their faith in Christ, and I baptized them in a beautiful stream near their home during my last visit.

Only to day I received a letter from a prominent physician, who lives near one of my churches, and who has recently been bereaved by the death of his only child, a beautiful and accomplished daughter, stating that he has decided to give himself to the Lord and to his service. The doctor is a relative of mine. In the days of my early life, and his, I attended a school taught by him for several sessions. By the striking mutations of God's providence, the pupil in this case, has become the teacher, and great joy fills my heart at the thought of leading that man into the waters of baptism. These things are written, not to boast of my own work, but to tell what the Lord is doing through me an unworthy instrument, and for the reading of those who were grieved with me when the sad hour of parting between us so recently came. May God bless them, and reward them for their sympathy and interest in me and in mine, during the years of my labor among them.

Some Recent Work Within the Atlantic Association.

The destitution in the bounds of the Atlantic Baptist Association, as far as Baptist preaching is concerned, remains very nearly as bad as it was ten years ago. At this writing there is only one Baptist preacher in Lenoir county. And our pastor at Kinston, Rev. A. L. Stough is in frequent request away from home.

Besides assisting in two protracted meetings in Kinston during the summer—one, a union meeting with our Methodist brethren, and the other at the Baptist church with Bro. Taylor of Warrenton, he has worked as follows: "Constituted a church at Core Creek station on A. & N. C. R. R., followed by a meeting of days; held a meeting at Antioch, Pitt county, without assistance, pastor Carroll being sick; assisted pastor Finch in protracted meeting at Whitehall; assisted same pastor at Dudley. Commenced a meeting at Trenton, Jones county, October 2d.

His meeting at Parrott's school house, four miles from Kinston, resulted in a number of conversions. Very much interest was manifested, and the whole community have become interested. This has increased to such an extent that they have determined to build a church. One brother has donated the land and lumber enough for the house. Mechanics, not members of the church, have promised to build the house, free of charge. A lady member of the Kinston church will give fifty dollars. A beautiful place for the church house has been selected.

At all of the places above mentioned, large congregations assembled and gave quiet attention to the preaching. There seems to be a wide field in this section now and the harvest white for the reapers. Come over into Macedonia and help us.

The Atlantic Association meets on Tuesday, October 10th, at Whitehall, commonly known as Seven Springs—accessible from the railroad points at Goldsboro and La Grange by vehicles. R. H. LEWIS.

State Mission Work at Benson, Little River Association.

Four years ago I began work as a missionary at this place in the very heart of a strong anti-missionary sentiment. I found a little band of humble Christians which had previously been organized into a church, then numbering sixteen, mostly females, worshiping in an unfinished building in the suburbs of the town, with a debt of $270 on the building, which they were unable to pay. I found some good brethren in the Association who joined me in paying off this debt the first year. I also baptized into this church the first year eleven converts.

In the early part of the second year, while we were making arrangements to finish the house, the Lord sent a storm of wind and blew the building down. We then secured a more eligible lot near the center of the town, and by the kind help of brethren and friends we built a good house, which was completed, paid for and dedicated the same year.

The beginning of the third year found us comfortably situated in our new building, with a much larger congregation. During this year we baptized nineteen, and received several by letter.

The fourth year we filled our house with people and baptized five, among them some of the most influential and best citizens of the town.

The church now has sixty two members and a flourishing Sunday-school, and will try to support their pastor next year without help from the Board, which has so kindly helped them in the past.

I leave this church in a healthy and prosperous condition; and having completed the mission work here, I felt it my duty to resign as pastor. The church has called Rev. A. N. Campbell for next year.

A homeopathic medical college has been opened in Louisville, Ky., the first in the South. Women are admitted to the classes.

Wake Forest Letter.

The enrollment of students up to date is 176. This is an increase of six over the enrollment of the same date last session. Several other students are expected soon. Virginia, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, New York and Pennsylvania are represented. One comes from Lagos, Africa. Fifty four counties of North Carolina are represented. Of these Wake leads with thirty-one. Moore, Granville, Cleveland, Robeson and Chatham come next, the lowest number of anyone of these counties being six.

The new students have entered remarkably well. Their entrance examinations show that Wake Forest's "feeders" are doing admirable work. The marked increase in the number, efficiency and prosperity of our academies is a just cause for rejoicing.

The general deportment of the student body is excellent. Nothing approaching the semblance of hazing has been seen. There is a wholesome and widespread enthusiasm among the students. All seem to want to make this the best and brightest year in all the history of the College.

Prof. C. E. Brewer has been re-elected Superintendent of the Sunday-school. This is a strong factor in the accomplishment of the work of Wake Forest as a Christian college. The students generally attend it and take special interest in its exercises. The professors, who during the week teach the students the value of science and the beauties of literature, gather the same boys into their lecture-rooms on the Sabbath and try to lead them to the knowledge of divine truth.

The "Wake Forest Missionary Society" had its first meeting on Oct. 1st. Professor Lanneau was elected President for the ensuing year. From this Society have gone forth influences to be felt in most of the countries of heathendom. Greene, Bostick, Herring, Britton, Tatum, Chappell, Newton and Porter, as well as other brethren who are soon to start to the foreign field, have received a strong stimulus, and some of their first impressions, from its meetings and discussions. God has signally blessed and honored its work in the past, and we feel encouraged to attempt greater things in the future.

We were much pleased to see on the "Hill" during the past week Rev. J. H. Lamberth of Greenville. The dozen years that have passed since his student days ended, have only strengthened his hold upon the hearts of our people and his genial face is always welcomed.

Pres. Taylor receives most gratifying reports of the work being done by Mr. E. E. Hilliard, the general agent of the College. The Baptist host of the State are rallying to the support of their College.

Our faithful pastor returned last Saturday from Carthage, where he had been aiding in a meeting, and preached on Sunday with his usual earnestness and power. C.

Tearers-Down of Churches.

The church is the most sacred of all institutions. It is the only institution of which it can be said that Christ "loved it, and gave himself for it." It is the only institution which is called, "The church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." It must be, therefore, an unspeakably precious and sacred thing.

It is the duty of every Christian to pray for it, love it, support it, and build it up. It is a grievous sin to harm it, bring it into contempt, weaken it, or tear it down. There are many in the churches that weaken and hurt the influence of the church in the world. Unfruitful Christians, slothful Christians, worldly-minded Christians, niggardly Christians, inconsistent Christians, bar-room Christians, ball room Christians, all these are a source of weakness to the church. They so neutralize the influence of the church upon the world that the church is weakened and injured. But there are sometimes found in churches those who may be characterized as the tearers down of churches, and it is of them that I would specially speak.

I. Fussy members. Members that are always in a fuss with some one. Members that can never be reconciled when once they have a disagreement, whose hearts are full forever of bitterness and malice. "The poison of asps is under their tongues." If you give such a wide berth, they complain of your coldness; if you seek to approach them, you tread on their toes. There is no getting along with them. A church with a man of this kind in it, is wofully afflicted. To me it is passing strange that churches will so long endure the torture such a member can inflict. It is plainly the duty of the church to rid itself of this cancer.

II. Unruly members. Sometimes churches are afflicted with unruly members. Members that go counter to the expressed will and mind of the church. The church takes action on a case of discipline; by a large majority it decides upon a course of action. This action is not agreeable to the brother with the unruly spirit. He therefore begins his onslaught on the church; he raises a faction; he threatens to take his letter; he hangs around the church and criticises and complains—to the great injury of the church. It would be a blessed thing for the church if this sort of member would take a letter and go to Siberia and dwell there.

Or the church calls a pastor, but did not call the man of his choice. Alas for the pastor! Here is a veritable "thorn in his side." He can see all the pastor's defects, and some even that he never had, for this sort of member is blear-eyed. The spiritual dearth is due to the pastor, so this brother says, and the only way to have spiritual prosperity is to get rid of the pastor. At last he ceases coming to church, or takes a back seat, or grows cold to everything pertaining to the interest of the church. Brethren, go to him and say, "Brother, what ails you? why don't you come out, and help us?" He replies, "I will do so, if you will get rid of the pastor!" The brethren are perplexed; they don't know what to do. For a long time this sore has been running and will not yield to treatment. So they come sadly to the pastor, and say, "Pastor we do not know what to do. It seems that the only way for us to secure peace is for you to resign."

"Secure peace!" What kind of peace? The peace which comes by turning off a faithful pastor and retaining a wicked and unruly man?

The churches do not realize that for a man to rebel against the action of the church necessitates the church to cut him off. See Matt. 18: 17. "But if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican." These fussy, contentious, and unruly members tear down faster than the workers can build up. They are truly the tearers down of churches. They have no piety, and are not worth anything to the church, except as examples of what Christians ought not to be.

Let no church yield to men of this spirit.

J. S. HARDAWAY.

From Glencoe.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Last January I began preaching at Glencoe, a factory town three and one-half miles from Burlington. This is a mission station under the supervision of the Executive Committee of the Mt. Zion Association. From the beginning of my labors there, the Lord has been blessing our efforts. In July, we (Bro. Hocutt and I) held a meeting of nine days during which the Lord blessed us wonderfully. There were forty-five or fifty professions of conversion. As we have no organization there, thirty one of these were baptized into the fellowship of Burlington church. We expect to organize a church within a month or two.

The first Sunday in May we organized a Sunday-school with Bro. I. H. Dunlap as Superintendent. Of all the Sunday-schools I have ever seen, this is the best. In the afternoon of the first Sunday in this month we had a Children's Day service under the leadership of our Superintendent. I have never seen it surpassed. This was not simply an entertainment, but a real religious service, as shown by the Spirit's presence.

In addition to the above, there is a prayer-meeting held regularly once each week—some weeks, they have prayer-meeting nearly every night. As the result of these, there have been several conversions—the work of grace continues.

We have many efficient workers in this band, but Bro. Dunlap is the recognized leader. He is developing into a strong worker. Fraternally,

ALVIS ANDREWS.

From Rev. R. A. Moore.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I think more than two years have elapsed since I have dropped you a line. Now I am fifty-four years old, and weigh about two hundred pounds, and in fine health.

I have just entered upon the eleventh month of this Associational year, and my statistics show the following: miles travelled, 2,801; family visits made, 425; sermons preached, 108; prayer-meetings held, 24. I have had good meetings in all my churches, and marked improvements are obvious in my five congregations.

I was aided in my protracted meetings by three Wake Forest brethren, viz, I. O. Gough, Ed. Pittman, and J. R. Moore—one at a time. All did good work for the Master.

Robeson will boom notwithstanding hard times. Eight new church houses!—a magnificent showing in the line of new churches. She has some academies of which we are proud; then the Robeson Institute is just grand, with her splendid corps of teachers and about 125 students. She has quite a number of young preachers and many of old ones. Then, too, we have more new roads, new resident houses, new ditches, new farms, &c., than any county I know of, not to have any large towns or cities; also, more newspapers, railroads, &c.

I will be glad to see you at our new Association, to be held at thrifty Maxton. Be sure to see us at the "Climax."—Red Springs I mean.

Yours, R. A. MOORE.

Johnston County Items.

Thanks for your recent words of appreciation, and request for other items for the RECORDER. I would muzzle my zeal with prudence and note what I may have the time to pencil for your columns.

Have conducted two meetings since my last items—one at Pine Level and one at Wilson's Mills. Had seven professions of hope in Christ at Pine Level, and four gave their names to the Missionary Baptist church. Some object to the use of the term "Missionary Baptist," but they do not live in or around Pine Level. There are three kinds of Baptists in this little village—Anti-Mission, Free-will, and Missionary—and we must have a distinguishing term.

At Wilson's Mills the divisions are four—"all Baptists," of course, "and but a very little difference"; yet we must say "Primitive, Free-will, Disciple, and Missionary." We are not divided on the form of baptism, but on many other things we are quite a distance apart. The members of Wilson's Mills church seem not to be over anxious for an increase of membership. They would have only those who have been regenerated come in. Some talk as if it is more difficult to get an unconverted member out of fellowship than it is to get him in—and such cause trouble during their stay in the church. We are glad to find some churches careful about who enters, because numerical strength may not be moral strength.

We are aware that this is the enlightened and advanced nineteenth century, and now and again we are jogged with the need of liberal views and an easy Christianity; but we are becoming more and more indisposed to be "illiberally liberal." We have not caught up by this modern "Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man." We gladly admit ourselves the offspring of God, as we derive our natural being from him; but spiritual sonship goes deeper than that. Nicodemus had his natural being from God also, and yet Jesus said to him, "Ye must be born again." We are glad that some of our brethren still remember and believe these words of Jesus. We expect two or three additions to Wilson's Mills church at her next appointment. O. C. HORTON.

Meetings in Three Counties.

Dear Recorder:—I have spent most of the summer in protracted meetings in Gaston, Lincoln and Mecklenburg counties. Most of the time was spent with churches under the pastoral care of Rev J. F. Morris and W. J. Wyatt. These brethren labored earnestly and faithfully, and much of the success is attributable to their earnest work.

Bro. Morris and I held a meeting in a destitute section in Mecklenburg county, which resulted in the organization of a Baptist church, which now numbers upward of twenty members. There is much destitution in Mecklenburg county for Baptists, which should be looked after now. This is one of the best counties in the State, and I am satisfied judicious effort would not be in vain.

Bro. Morris lost a leg last February, but he is preaching regularly, and his churches are doing well under his leadership.

Baptists seem to be on the up grade in this section. There were about seventy baptisms in the meetings in which I took part.

Fraternally, D. W. THOMASON.

and rush recklessly into debt, and yet enjoy continued prosperity are seeking the impossible, and will never get what they desire. But if the mass of our people would be industrious, economical, prudent and careful, they might almost bid defiance to hard times.

Now I hope that I have already suggested some lessons which we may learn from the prevailing panic; but I want to mention others:

1. We are reminded of our ingratitude. Ours is a wonderfully favored country. God has blessed us above all the peoples of the earth. Surely our hearts should go up to him in ceaseless, joyous thanksgiving. But we have been ungrateful. Ever since I can remember, the cry of hard times has been heard in the country. From my early boyhood down to the present hour, people have talked hard times. There are two occasions when the old, old story of hard times is very loud, very pathetic, and almost unanimous. One is, when an appeal is made in behalf of benevolence. When we are called upon to contribute to a charitable object, it is easy to tell what the effect will be. Many will lengthen their faces, drop their voices down to lugubrious tones, and talk touchingly about the scarcity of money and the difficulty of getting currency.

Another occasion when they talk hard times is, when they are expected to pay their honest debts. But when it comes to their pleasures, we hear but little about hard times. Frequently drinking men talk hard times when they have to pay for food and clothing for their families, but not when they buy liquor for themselves. Many tobacco users are eloquent upon the subject of hard times whenever they buy the necessaries of life, but not when they purchase their favorite weed. And when the circus comes, the cry of hard times is drowned. The very poorest find money to pay the price of admission. Indeed, it sometimes seems that the poorer the people are, the more certain it is that they will be in the circus. Yes, we have talked hard times all our lives; now we have the reality.

Æsop, in one of his fables, records the falsehood of a mischievous shepherd boy. He often cried "Wolf! wolf!! wolf!!!" when there was no wolf. At first the neighbors believed him, and when they heard the cry of "Wolf!", they hurried forth from their homes to save their flocks. But when they had been deceived a number of times, they lost confidence in the truthfulness of the boy. His cry of "Wolf!" ceased to excite alarm. Finally, the wolves d d come and attack the sheep. Then the boy ran and shouted "Wolf! wolf!! wolf!!!", but nobody came, and the flocks were destroyed. We have cried "Wolf! wolf!! wolf!!!" when there was no wolf; but now the wolf has come. We complained of hard times when times were good; now our ingratitude is punished.

2. The innocent suffer with the guilty. It is so in all great national disasters. When the flood came and drowned the old, corrupt antediluvian world, little children who were guilty of no conscious sin perished with their wicked parents. When doomed Sodom went up in smoke and flame and went down in ashes and embers, babes in their cradles perished along with their godless fathers and mothers. Now, in this time of financial havoc and ruin, the innocent suffer perhaps as severely as the guilty. Many who have been reckless not only fail themselves, but they drag down the wise and prudent along with themselves. We are so linked together that often we either stand or fall together. The fact that our blunders and follies will damage and destroy others should restrain us from practices that are evil or dangerous.

3. We are also reminded of the uncertainty of earthly things. The Psalmist long ago said, "If riches increase, set not thy heart upon them." It has often been said that riches take unto themselves wings and fly away. If our possessions are all earthly, they will surely perish. The time will come when we will lose them forever. It may be that they will leave us even while we are striving to cling to them; but if they remain with us we will surely leave them. And when we are taken from the present life, how poor we will be if our treasure is all in this world! We will go into eternity as moral bankrupts and paupers—I might almost say that we will have to depend upon the charity of the devil for the hard privilege of living and suffering with him in perdition. Let us heed the warning of our Saviour who said, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."

Finally: The time in which we live should impress us with the importance of securing the treasures which will not fade away. "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth." If Christ is in us "the hope of glory," he will abide with us while we live, and will share our trials and distresses with us. And when we die we will go to live with him forever, and will enjoy the praises and glories of heaven and eternity.

In past years financial distress and suffering and spiritual prosperity have more than once been closely connected. This was especially true in 1857 and '58. The terrible panic which left recollections that still linger in the minds of some came in 1857, and was followed by a period of uncommon interest. The great revival of 1858 began in the City of New York. It spread all over [illegible], and the North, and the South, and [illegible]. It was a great wave of salvation [illegible] rolled from ocean to ocean. Amid [illegible] and reverses, which were so [illegible] and which left so much of wreck [illegible] behind them, the Spirit of God [illegible] the thoughts and hearts of [illegible] things. When the glo[illegible] scores and perhaps hun[illegible] dreds of thousands of persons had professed faith in Christ, and almost every church on the continent was stronger.

God grant that the harassing experience through which millions of our people are now passing, may be used to teach them the lessons of faith and love, and enrich them with the wealth which will endure forever.

Lift Up.

Dr. J. L. M. Curry is said to have repeated throughout the South the declaration, "If we do not lift the negro up, he will pull us down." It is the aim of the American Baptist Publication Society to Christianize him, just as it is the aim of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention to give the gospel to Africa.

My First Association.

Dear Recorder:—As I had been to one Sunday-school Chautauqua, I wanted to go to an Association. Early Friday morning, Sept. 22d, we were up bright and early for our trip. My brother and I could not eat any breakfast so anxious were we to go to the Association. Our means of conveyance was a covered wagon—the first time I ever was in one, and it was quite a treat. When we reached there it was nearly dinner time, and my ride and not eating breakfast made me feel like I wanted my dinner. The church was crowded, but they made room for us right near the pulpit, and a stranger made room on the front bench by him for me. I was right where I wanted to be—so I could hear all.

I soon found the Association was a relative of our Chautauqua, speaking in the same way, but not exactly the same questions. They talked about a great many things I did not understand; but they did speak of one thing that made my heart ache.

Rev. O. T. Edwards was one of the leaders and went in, as he always does, with all his soul, into the spirit of the occasion.

Saturday was a lovely day, and soon quite a crowd gathered. Mr. Gwaltney came from the College. He had preached for us at the Springs, and I made myself known to him. He knows how to get money for his business at Wake Forest. After a short talk, he told them what he wanted. He put a hat on the table, and told the people to sing, "O, how I love Jesus." About the first man who went to the hat was a man with one foot, and I think he gave one dollar. I thought if that man with one foot could give one dollar, those who have two feet should have given two dollars. I was wishing very much I had some to put in, but knew it was hard times at home. As I was sitting some little distance from mamma, I felt the touch of her hand. She had a little money for me; so I hurried to the hat with my little mite, and felt proud of it.

The RECORDER was in great demand.

On Saturday night they got up the question of distilling. I thought that was the most important thing they had talked about. I have been made to believe by my mamma for a man to get drunk was just as low a thing as he could do; but when they said it were members of the church that were having the stuff made from their fruit, it made me think, well how much better off are little girls with such papas than I am with no papa? God forbid that such should be allowed in our good land.

I did not enjoy myself so well on Sunday; the crowd was too large. I think a great many went there to have a good time—the way they acted sitting about in buggies and collecting in groups. If that is the way a big crowd does, I for one don't want a big crowd at our Chautauqua next year, as it is thought there will be. Give me the crowd we had this year if you please and as many more as want to come of the same kind. They gave Mt. Vernon and its surroundings the praise of good behavior. We don't want anybody to come to the next Chautauqua that will not add to our credit.

I had the pleasure of meeting many who said they were glad to meet me, and wished to hear from me very often through the RECORDER.

"He's a good hand and makes good wages, but he has started out in a bad way, drinking and throwing away his money." It is strange to find some people who can do well deliberately throw themselves away. The chances of those who drink are narrowing as time goes by. The railroads employ only sober men and other large employers of labor are falling in line.

Sometimes in passing through a crowd we see a face that attracts us by its sweetness of expression. Perhaps it is an old face, crowned with gray hair, yet love, joy, and peace shine out of every dot and crinkle in it. But whether old or young, when we see that unmistakable soul-light in a face, we know the heart behind it is pure, the life good . . . To keep the mind occupied with good, pure, useful and beautiful thoughts precludes the possibility of thinking about, and thus being tempted by, anything sinful, low or gross. It is because Paul knew this that he says so earnestly: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report . . . think on these things." In the well-formed habit of thinking pure thoughts lies the secret of being pure in heart.—N. Y. Observer.

Would it not teach girls self reliance as well as self-respect, not only to give them an allowance suitable to their station, but to require them to live within it? A knowledge of how to manage in matters of living and business ought to be possessed by every woman; and there is no better time to acquire this knowledge than in her girlhood days. "Just as the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined."

CONSUMPTION
SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and post office address.

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

Notes and Comments.

The Alabama Baptist, in commenting upon the opinion that it is a good thing for any community to have a thoughtful and highly educated man to do the speculative thinking, which often precedes and produces the most intensely practical results, gives the following instances which are decidedly in point:—

"'Kepler's laws,' for example, were once guesses; but when the dream became a reality, by mathematical demonstration, the dreamer won the proud title of 'legislator of the skies.'

Newton's splendid demonstrations began in hypothesis: they are now science, accepted and acted upon by every astronomer. Jenner guessed at vaccination before anybody was ever vaccinated. Harvey dreamt of the circulation of the blood, before any one could prove it. Columbus imagined a new continent, and Leverrier and Adams a new planet, before any human being in Europe had seen either. Indeed, what we call 'the progress of science' is mainly the realization of somebody's dreams."

In an article on "The Noiseless Saviour," the Baptist Courier has these paragraphs:—

"The conception of Christ's work took shape in the divine mind. It was not an expedient, resorted to in an emergency. Many of man's greatest works are the offspring of emergencies. The necessity is the mother of the invention. Even Luther and Wesley were largely the creatures of the circumstances of their times. But in God's work there are no emergencies. Everything is provided for. Does Lucifer rebel in heaven? He finds a hell provided for his reception.

In devising the scheme of redemption, God was so quiet that even the angels in heaven did not find out what he was doing. Peter says, 'Which things the angels desire to look into.' See 1 Peter 1: 12.

The work was quiet in its execution. Perfectly performed feats are accomplished quietly, and with apparent ease. 'The blessed sun sends down his rays of light and life and joy more quietly than the sleeping infant breathes.' The marvellous power of gravitation binds the sweet influences of Pleiades, and forges bands for Orion, but we hear no stroke of hammer in Nature's great workshop. Gray's Elegy, which reads so smoothly, is said to have been quietly growing in the poet's mind for fourteen years."

And these thoughts seem to be especially applicable to the fast, furious, fussy methods of not a little of our modern "evangelistic" work.

To the Christian Standard, Cincinnati, we are indebted for the following thrust:—

"A Western evangelist was once conducting a protracted meeting in one of the towns of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky. In one of his sermons he was particularly insistent in urging the brethren and sisters to look up and bring in the scattered Baptists of the city; and he pretty severely castigated the church members for neglecting this important duty. At the close of the sermon, one of the Baptist pastors of the city arose, and spoke as follows: "I want to answer Brother H——. There is another side to this question, and I wish to present that side: Don't be so hard to find. I am a pretty old hunter. I've hunted partridges, and hares, and squirrels, and possums, and coons, and grouse, and ducks, and wild turkeys, and foxes and deer; but the coldest trail that ever I tried to run was that of a scattered Baptist!' Yes; and now and then it happens that the hunt becomes less pleasant as one gets closer to the game. A man who had been on a grizzly bear hunt once said that he 'enjoyed it mightily till the trail got too warm!' It is hoped that others besides 'scattered Baptists' will take the hint."

The following paragraph might well occupy a place in "The Ups and Downs of a Preacher's Life:"—

"Some time ago I received a letter in an unknown handwriting. Upon opening it, I found that it was from a good sister who was unmarried and of uncertain age. The letter was eight pages long; and the writer said that she had 'written it in pencil while sitting on a log in the woods.' The chirography presented strong 'internal evidence' of the correctness of her statement. I had not time to read this epistle through at a sitting, but worked through it piecemeal, and by easy stages. The purport of it was that I was invited by the Woman's Mission Society of —— church (ten miles away in the country) to deliver a missionary address on the —th of August; and that a conveyance would be sent for me at the appointed time, if I accepted the invitation. I did accept. The day came, but no conveyance. Not wishing to disappoint an audience, I took a seat in the buggy of a dentist who was going to the place, and kindly offered to carry me. There was a very large congregation at the church, and they listened admirably. After closing my address, I announced to the congregation that I was anxious to return home the next morning, and added, 'If any one here is going to town tomorrow I shall be glad to have a seat with him.' Nobody said a word. The next day —one of the hottest I ever felt—I set out for home by the safest and most independent method of conveyance known to man—that is to say, afoot. After walking about two miles, I was terribly thirsty, and stopped at a house to ask for some water. The proprietor was a man of about my own size. He cheerfully brought a fresh bucket of water from the spring. I drank, and was greatly refreshed. I was wearing a new black coat, protected by a linen duster. Seeing a wardrobe in the room, I asked my host if he would not hang up my black coat in his wardrobe, and send it to me by the next opportunity, as I found it very oppressive on that sultry day. He consented at once; and I left my coat with him. I have never seen that coat since. The occupant of the house soon removed to parts unknown, and I have never seen nor heard of him since."

A correspondent gives the following reminiscence of an old preacher whose name was for two generations a household word among Southern Baptists:—

"When William F. Broaddus was pastor in Fredericksburg, and the town was occupied by Federal troops, not a few of the Federal officers now and then attended the Baptist church. Dr. Broaddus shrewdly suspected that they were there to exercise what they would have called a 'wholesome restraint upon the utterances of the rebel preacher.' His heart, however, was strongly with the Confederate cause, and he was not altogether pleased with what he regarded as military espionage upon his pulpit work. One Sunday he prayed thus: 'Oh, Lord! wherever the weak are contending for a just cause against the strong, do thou put down the oppressor and uphold the right.' After the service a Federal officer approached him and said: 'Dr. Broaddus, this cannot be allowed to continue. You have been publicly praying for the success of the rebellion.' Dr. Broaddus gravely replied: 'Why, I did not say a word about the rebellion.' 'No,' said the officer, 'you did not use the word rebellion, but what did you mean by all that about 'the weak contending for the right against the strong?'' 'Well,' replied Dr. Broaddus, 'I was talking to the Lord, and I've no doubt he knew what I meant.'"

The materials for a good life of Wm. F. Broaddus must be pretty copious, though they are of a most perishable character. Who is the right man to collect and sift them, and put them into the shape of a readable biography? In a few years the opportunity will be gone.

It is really funny to see the Boston Herald posing as an authority on religious matters, and even as a mentor of the preachers. Here is a specimen in which the editor shows his favors with an impartiality that is quite refreshing:—

"The defect in the popular preaching today is in its optimism, its insistence upon presenting only one side of life, and that the side which corresponds with our aspirations and cannot be reached on account of the limitations of evil and failure in which our life is set. The liberal preaching of the day is not so helpful as one would think that it ought to be, because it constantly ignores the facts of life. It entertains the imagination or the feelings, and discuss subjects of interest on their moral side, but it does not tell the whole truth to men about themselves, and it does not awaken the conscience and impress upon congregations a strong sense of what they lack in order to become the children of God. We are in the stream of tendency toward a religious optimism which goes to the extreme of ignoring vital truths in religion which our forefathers presented with such terrible reality that they forgot to assert and maintain the fatherhood of God, which is very largely the burden of the preaching of to day. The appeal to the conscience and to the inward spiritual experience is too often lacking. On the other hand, the conservative preachers of the day, not liking to press home upon the conscience the old-fashioned statements of the terrors of the Lord, and not feeling that the popular optimism enables them to reach the conscience, are casting about to see what they can do. They feel, and they feel rightly, that, unless the fact of retribution for sin is taught, not only as it exists in practical life, but as it is related to the purpose of the incarnation and the whole work of the Christ, something vital is neglected in spiritual work. It is not quite clear how they are meeting this issue, but it is the issue to be met if Sunday sermons are to be anything more than agreeable moral essays."

A correspondent recalls the following story, which many readers will apply to some recent controversies on an exciting question:—

"Apropos to the extreme difficulty in persuading the sisters to pray in public, we recall the story of Dr. Sam Johnson. He was once persuaded to go to hear a famous singing woman of the day. She had a voice of marvellous 'compass,' that is to say, she could squeal louder than anybody. When she was at the top of her bent, a connoisseur, who sat near Johnson, leaned toward him and said, in low tones: 'That is an extremely difficult feat, sir.' 'Yes,' roared 'the Great Bear;' 'I wish it were impossible!'"

Yes; old Samuel was rough at times; but he had sense and character. It would be interesting to know what he would have said if he had heard the holy hornpipes that are now sung in many of our Sunday-schools.

Woman's Missionary Department.

President Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, Miss Fannie E. Heck, Raleigh, N. C.; Secretary, Mrs. J. A. Briggs, Raleigh, N. C.

Subject for October: Missions in Southern States.

State Missions.—"If any man provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he is worse than an infidel." Missionaries, 307, working among native population in cities, country, mountains and frontier, among colored people, Germans, French, Mexicans and Swedes.

Study Topics.—Religious destitution of many portions of the South. Growing necessity for work among the foreign population. Demand for missionaries in the trans-Mississippi region. Opportunities for work among the colored people. Rapid increase of our denomination in the South.

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

Letter from Africa to Miss Armstrong.

Miss Armstrong:—Dear Sister in Christ: I am really glad if my last letter was of any use whatever. I never thought of its being published, or being read beyond yourself; much less had I thought of the results growing out of it through you and the note in the Foreign Mission Journal. First, the $25.00 for our chapel; then the Sunday-school helps—neither have come yet, but I presume will in due time. Then a number of bundles of papers and magazines have come to us from various persons, and some one is having the Missionary Review sent to me. My request for reading matter did not have reference to regular publications, but to passing pamphlets, such as Centennial printed matter. We are probably quite as well able to subscribe for regular periodicals as most of our pastors at home, and far better than many I know of, for we are well taken care of so far as money will do it. But I appreciate these things, for it shows that Africa is not forgotten. When I read your letter, and every mail brought evidences of interest in our work, I could but shed tears of joy. A dear brother in Arkansas, my State, wrote me a nice letter, sent me a large bundle of papers and magazines, and offered to send Mrs. Smith the Ladies' Home Journal. Do you not think that we have a ray of sunshine now and then?

Lately I sent you a postoffice order for £1. 1s., which I thought would net you about $5.00. I thought it would do the church here more good to send it to you than for them to use it here on their chapel. On account of sickness and that of my wife and child, I was not able to push this fund. Every time I asked them, the Christians did something, though it was small. They always do anything I ask them to do, except to take personal responsibility in any of the church affairs. On the whole, considering their number, strength and surroundings, I think they do better than most churches at home. I fear our missionaries often expect too much, and they complain when there is no real good ground for it. We have not begun our chapel yet, because the chiefs refuse to give us a place to build; but we will keep on begging them, and ask God to make them willing.

Our old chapel roof (of grass) was so worn out as to let the rain in in small torrents, and the walls, of mud, would soon have been ruined; and the frame work of poles was so dilapidated that we could not mend it, so we had to take it off and make it new. The frame work is of bamboo and China tree poles tied together with vines and fibres (with the exception of five wooden pins and ten nails), and heavy grass stalks, like corn stalks tied cross ways of the rafters, and the grass is tied to these. We have it nearly finished, but we ran short of grass to-day, so it will take a day or two to get more. When we get a new chapel I will use this for a school house.

My school teacher, who was but a boy, I have sent to Lagos to school, and have employed another who is doing well. Besides his school work and visiting among the parents of the children, he goes with me to open air meetings on Sundays, and holds one himself on Friday evenings. I have a native man who can read, but not write, to assist me in open air meetings and to visit among the heathen, or to do any other work I may find for him. I pay him eight shillings ($1.92) a month; I shall probably pay him a little more after awhile. He is a very good street preacher, and a great help to me in the use of this difficult language, for though he cannot speak English, he helps me to make the people understand me. His name is "Ebo" (short e and o), which is the word for sacrifices. We have four mission children, two girls, Alake and Assronke, and two boys, Also and Oyerindo, whom we are supporting. Their food costs about twenty five cents a week each, and their clothes a few dollars a year. There are two bright children whom we wanted to rescue from pawn slavery very much, and take into the mission; but we could not get the native money, and they would not take ours. The holders want to keep the children but cannot, if the money (native) is tendered them.

We have had no converts lately, and I see little prospect of any; but it is the Lord's work. I must thank you for your kind interest in us and our work. It renews my courage. My wife, child and myself are enjoying very good health now. Pray for our work.

Your brother in Christ,

C. E. Smith.

Sunday-school Missionary Day.

John Ruskin says: "If you do not wish for Christ's kingdom, don't pray for it. But if you do, you must do more than pray for it—you must work for it." Do we believe that Sunday-school Missionary Day will be an all round aid to missions, helping to usher in the kingdom by interesting the rising generation in the world's evangelization? Do we believe that interest in missions should be expressed in gifts that flow from sacrifice and effort? Do we know that "the kingdom" is in need of this interest and these gifts? If these things are so, then every Southern Baptist woman who loves missions and who longs to see our young people loving them too, will work for Sunday-school Missionary Day.

Every one familiar with any department of work—temporal or spiritual, both follow the same law—knows that no work does itself. It is worth exactly the effort which is put into it. By effort here is meant prayer, thought and active endeavor. The day generally assigned—though other day may be appointed—is October 15th, for celebration of the Missionary Day in the Sunday schools of the South. Let each of us work diligently to make the occasion a success. We can influence the superintendent to observe it, in the first place; we can talk to everybody, young and old alike, till an enthusiasm is created for it and full attendance secured; we can make sure that the program is in competent hands in its diligent preparation; we can assist in making the place of assembly attractive and delightful by the beautiful decorations of fall leaves and flowers, which the divine lover of the beautiful has so lavishly scattered abroad at this season; we can each take a mite box pyramid and encourage the young people by our example to do the same; above all we can then pray that our Father, who is in heaven, will permit his "kingdom to come."

If 700,000 of us Southern Baptist women did as above indicated, would Sunday school Missionary Day be a success in its fullest meaning? Let each one of us answer our part of the question, and an individual blessing will be ours. Let us influence every one else to do the same, and a wave of blessing will overspread our land "till there shall not be room to receive it."—Alice Armstrong.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

A Woman's Sleep.

A physician who is a specialist in nervous diseases says that women should sleep at least nine hours at night and one hour in the daytime. A woman will plead that she hasn't time to lie down for a few minutes in the daytime; and she will infringe upon the hours of the night, which should be given to sound, healthy, needed sleep, in order to finish some piece of work which could as well be completed on the morrow. She will rush and hurry all day long; and then, when the household is hushed in slumber at night, she will sit up to read the daily paper, thinking she will not have to pay for the time she is stealing from the health-giving sleep that comes before midnight.—Watchman.

Union Association.

Dear Recorder:—This Association meets in just about one month from now with the Monroe church. Of course, we are glad to have it meet with us, and a hearty welcome awaits all who come. We are expecting a good many of the brethren from a distance—among them Dr. C. E. Taylor, Prof. W. L. Poteat, Bro. J. H. Mills, and the RECORDER representative. We are anxious that this shall be the best session of the Association in its history. Come, brethren, and help us make it the best ever held in this part of the State.

Our work here is moving along as good as could be expected. During all the hard times we have surely and steadily moved forward to greater things for the Lord. I baptize occasionally, and conversions occur nearly every Sunday evening. We are now making some much-needed improvements on our house. It will not be very long before we will have Sunday-school rooms. Our church is enthusiastic over their work as every other work for the Lord. We are now raising our pledges. I am sorry we waited so late. I assure you they will be paid earlier next year. We could scarcely do otherwise than wait this year, but they will be paid.

I have enjoyed holding several meetings this summer. They were all precious, but the largest ingathering was at Winston with Bro. Broughton's church. This is a magnificent field, and a large amount of good is now being done on it. It will be detrimental to the work for Bro. Broughton to leave now. I trust he will not do so.

There have been near two hundred professions of faith in Christ in the meetings I have worked in, and about one hundred and forty have joined Baptist churches while some thirty others have joined other denominations, leaving thirty without any church relationship, so far as I know. I praise God for allowing me to preach this wonderful gospel.

God bless you in your work. With kindest regards, I am fraternally,

M. A. ADAMS.

Beulah Union.

Delegates from the churches composing the Beulah Association, with the pastors of churches in the same, will meet with the Yanceyville church on Friday before the fifth Sunday in October, in order to organize the Beulah Union Meeting.

11 a. m.—Introductory sermon by Rev. W. F. Watson.

12 m.—Organization.

2 p. m.—What are the essentials to the success of the Union Meeting? Opened by Rev. J. R. Jones.

3 p. m.—What are the duties of the churches of this Association to the Board of Ministerial Relief? Opened by Rev J. K. Howell.

Saturday 9 a. m.—Devotional exercises.

9:30 a. m.—What are the essentials to the success of a good Sunday-school in every Baptist church? Opened by Rev. W. F. Watson.

10:30 a. m.—What is the duty of the churches to the Board of Ministerial Education? Opened by Chas. A. G. Thomas.

11:30 a. m.—The importance of a prayer-meeting in every church. Opened by F. P. Tucker.

2 p. m.—What is the best plan to secure systematic giving in every Baptist church? Opened by George W. White.

3 p. m.—What is the duty of the churches to the Orphanage? Opened by Rev. J. K. Howell.

The pastors who can are expected to remain over Sunday. Preaching every night and Sunday at 11 a. m.

A full meeting of the Executive Committee is desired in order to map out a plan of work for this year.

All Sunday-school workers are cordially invited, and superintendents are urged to attend.

Lebanon and Ruhama Churches.

Dear Recorder:—I commenced a meeting with Lebanon church, Catawba county, on the 19th of September, and continued six days and nights. Nine were baptized, received three for baptism at the next meeting, restored two, and received one by letter, making fifteen additions to the church. This was the greatest revival the church has been blessed with for many years. The congregation was so large the brethren arranged for preaching out in the grove, as the house would not hold the people.

At the close of the meeting, several from other denominations said they would be ready to join and follow Christ in baptism at our next meeting.

From here I went to the Ruhama church and remained one week. Brethren Kennedy and Whisnant from Maiden were with us a few days. Bro. Bright of Forest City, N. C., was with us five days. These brethren did good work.

At the close of the meeting I baptized twenty-four converts, and received two more for baptism, restored six, making thirty-two additions to the church.

This was a gracious meeting. The church was greatly revived. On the last night of the meeting thirty or forty persons asked that special prayer be offered for them. Among the converts baptized were German Reform, Methodists and Lutherans. The outlook for Baptists in this section was never so encouraging as it is now. Brethren, let us turn on the light.

Bro. Bailey, can't you come to the South Fork Association, and let the old Landmarkers who never attend the State Convention shake your hand once more? It would do them good.

We are looking forward to the meeting of our Association with much hope, and I know Brother Morriss, the pastor of Bruington church, will have everything in order.

Fraternally, J. A. HOYLE.

Yeopim Union Meeting.

The Yeopim Union expects to meet with the church at Yeopim on Friday before the fifth Sunday in October. Elder W. B. Waff to preach the introductory sermon, Elder W. P. Jordan, alternate; Elder J. E. White the missionary sermon, Elder C. J. Woodson, alternate.

The following queries will be discussed:

1st. How can we develop Christian liberality? To Lycurgus Hofler and W. P. Jordan.

2d. Are we missionary in spirit, or only in name? W. B. Felton and J. E. White.

3d. How is the Christian Sabbath observed, and how should it be observed? (Continued from last meeting.) J. H. Parker and C. J. Woodson.

JOS. T. WAFF, Clerk.

Meeting at Pleasant Plains Church.

Dear Recorder:—Allow me space for the following account of our meeting at Pleasant Plains church during the last week of September.

Rev. G. W. Hill, the pastor, was assisted by Rev. A. H. Porter and Rev. E. W. Wooten. Bro. Porter preached the first two days and Bro. Wooten the remainder of the time.

Our church and community have been greatly blessed. There were forty-one additions to the church—thirty-one baptized, four restored, two wandering Baptists taken in, and four others await baptism. Seldom have I seen such a time for rejoicing. We have taken a step forward, and we hope to continue steadfast to the end. To the Lord be all praise for his goodness.

How to Get to the Pee Dee Association at Morven.

Those who go on C. C. Road, east of the Pee Dee River, would do well to take the C. S. & N. Road at Hamlet and go by Cheraw, and thence to Morven. The mid-day trains on the C. C. Road make close connection with the C. S. & N. at Hamlet, and Atlantic Coast Line at Cheraw. Going by this route, delegates will arrive at Morven at 9:30 p. m. To go via Wadesboro, it will be necessary to lie over there from 3 p. m. or 1:30 at night until 5 next morning. The connection at Hamlet is with the day train. Those who go on the night-train would do better to go on to Wadesboro. The railroad fare is about the same by either route.

Alexander Association.

This body met with Behlehem church, Alexander county, Thursday before the first Sunday in October. The annual sermon was preached by Bro. J. P. Gwaltney. The sermon was good. The Association was organized by re electing Brethren W. E. White, Moderator and T. A. Hudson, Clerk. J. C. Bell was chosen Treasurer, and J. B. Pool, Historian.

The session was highly spiritual, harmonious and interesting from first to last.

Bro. Edwards of the Orphanage was the only visiting brother from abroad. While his cash collection for the orphans was small, I hope he did well for Charity and Children. Many of the churches will, at an early day, send boxes to the Orphanage.

The Association unanimously adopted the "Gospel Mission" plan, and will contribute to Bro. W. E. Crocker, who will go to China in November. This plan commends itself to many of us in this part of the State. I feel that if God has called Bro. Herring and others to do Foreign Mission work in this way, that he has also called a people somewhere to help in the work. The plan may prove a failure, and will and ought, if the Lord is not in it, but do let us try it. Please let us alone, and let all of us work in this way that wish to, and all others that wish to, let them work through the Board. It is no use to try to kill out this plan now. It has taken too deep a hold on the hearts of many.

This Association is blessed with a number of as good and consecrated preachers as are to be found anywhere, and one will rarely find an Association where there are so many excellent singers among the preachers as in this. I have never visited an Association where preachers seem to understand and love each other better than in this. They are truly yokefellows, helping each other in every way they can. Some of them meet together one day in each week to pray and study the Bible.

Bro. J. A. White is doing well with the Taylorsville Collegiate Institute. He has taken deep hold on the people of the town and county. He has been open only six weeks this fall and has an enrollment of one hundred, with a bright prospect for many others. He has an excellent corps of teachers, Bro. White is the pastor of the Taylorsville church with some country churches. All speak of him as a good preacher.

The next session of the Association will be held with Mt. Olive church.

Fraternally, I. W. THOMAS.

Silver Run Church Organized.

On the 2nd of this month a presbytery, composed of Rev. J. H. Austin, Rev. J. W. Griffin, Chairman, and Bro. J. A. Markes, met under an arbor five miles southeast of Hoffman and organized a church—Silver Run.

Eight joined by letter, and at least a dozen more will come in soon.

The articles of faith and the covenant were unanimously adopted.

This small new church will apply for admission into the Pee Dee Association, which convenes at Morven, October 19–21.

The church is organized in a very important field, and I hope the State Board will help sustain the Baptist banner until they complete the building.

I write this by request.

Sincerely, I. S. BOYLES.

DIED.

LANG—Entered into rest August 7th, Mrs. J. E. Lang, nee Marsh, in the forty-fifth year of her age, after a lingering illness of several weeks. Sister Lang had been a faithful and valuable member of the Baptist church for twenty-nine years—always a cheerful and hopeful Christian. She was a faithful wife, an affectionate mother and a kind neighbor. She leaves a husband, five children and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn her departure. C.

KIRBY—On Sept. 1st, 1893, God's finger laden with death touched our dear sister B. A. Kirby, (wife of Osborne Kirby, deceased), near Riggsbee's Store, N. C., in the eighty-third year of her age, and she fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. She professed faith in Christ in the year 1853. Since that time she has lived a consistent member of Lystra Baptist church. She leaves two sons, four daughters, a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was a good mother, kind and true. To know her was to love her. She was at her best in her home. But the sweet voice of mother is forever hushed on earth. The old home will never be the same again. Her body was laid to rest in the family burying grounds, where loving hands covered her grave with rarest flowers. God pity, comfort, and keep the sorrowing ones.

A FRIEND.

HENRY—It was my sad duty on last Sunday morning to bury Miss Lela Henry of Lilesville. She was in her twentieth year when she died. She was the first person it was my happy privilege to baptize. A little more than four years ago she professed religion, and, in company with others, followed her Lord in baptism. Ever since that time I have watched with peculiar pleasure her growth in grace. She was a very earnest worker in every department of church work, and will be greatly missed, especially in the Woman's Mission Society, of which she was the efficient Secretary. The widowed mother has the sympathy of the entire community in this sad bereavement. Within the last five years a husband and five children have been taken from her by the ruthless hand of death. Surely God has called on her to pass through deep waters, but his grace sustains her. PASTOR.

Rockingham, Oct. 7, 1893.

JONES—The subject of this obituary is William Frances Jones, who was born in Franklin county, N. C., November 16th, 1851. He came to Coaldale, W. Va., in June, 1890, and died May 23d, 1893, of inflammatory rheumatism, after an illness of ten days, and was interred in the cemetery at Bramwell, W. Va. He was a son of Grey Jackson and Elizabeth Jones. He was married March 18th, 1883, to Mary Alice White, daughter of Rev. W. M. and Delilah White. The deceased leaves a wife and two small children to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and father. Under the honors of the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities he was interred, which said "to earth we his body commit and to God his soul commend."

JONES—Sister Elizabeth A. Jones died Aug. 24th, 1893, aged sixty-six years, four months and twenty-seven days. About 1854, Sister Jones professed a hope in Christ and united with the Yanceyville Baptist church. On coming to this community, she, with her husband and son, promptly united with the Ruffin Baptist church. She lived a consistent Christian life and had a partial reward in a triumphant Christian death, just before which, with full possession of her mental faculties, she called each member of the family to her bedside; and with words of cheer and comfort suited to each and coupled with assurance of her own salvation, she exhorted them all to meet her in heaven. Her parting with her only unconverted child, John, was specially affecting, and illustrated her unwavering faith. When in reply to her request to meet her "up yonder," he said, "I will try," summoning all her fast-ebbing physical strength, she said with all the emphasis of which she was capable, "You must not only try, but you must do it." After the parting interview with relatives and friends, she listened attentively to the reading of a selection of precious promises from the Bible, and then, relapsing into unconsciousness, passed quietly away. Thus, both in life and death she bore the highest possible testimony to the reality of the Christian religion, and a future existence of happiness in heaven. She leaves an aged husband, seven children, and many relatives to mourn their loss, but they "sorrow not as those who have no hope." F. P. T.

Tributes of Respect.

We, your committee appointed at our August meeting, submit the following report:

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father hath seen fit to remove from the labors and toils of this world of care and sorrow to that rest prepared for the people of God, on Sunday, July 23d, 1893, in the sixty-seventh year of his age, and the eighteenth year of his gospel ministry, our beloved brother and pastor, Rev. George P. Moore; therefore be it Resolved 1. That we bow in humble submission to his holy will.

Resolved 2. That in the death of Bro. Moore the cause of Christ on earth has lost an earnest, zealous and conscientious advocate; and that this church has suffered an almost irreparable loss, he having served her faithfully the entire eighteen years of his ministry, not only by counsel, admonitions, tender reproofs, warnings, &c., but with his purse as well, having largely assisted in rebuilding our present house of worship; and he was ever ready to every good word and work. But we are consoled by the belief that our loss is his eternal gain.

Resolved 3. That we tender his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathies, and invoke for them the guidance and protecting care of him our brother loved so well and served so faithfully.

Resolved 4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our brother; also that we request the BIBLICAL RECORDER and Chatham Record to publish the same, and that they be recorded in our church book.

ROSA G. CRAIN,
Committee.

Approved by the church at Rock Springs, Chatham county, in conference, September 23d, 1893. JAS. W. GILLIAM, C. C.

The following resolutions of sympathy and respect have been adopted by the Ruffin Baptist church:

WHEREAS, An all-wise and indulgent Heavenly Father has seen fit to call from her earthly home to the home above, our sister, Elizabeth A. Jones, beloved wife of our brother, J. M. Jones.

Resolved, first, That through her death, the Ruffin Baptist church has lost a consistent member, the husband a kind and faithful wife, the children a true and loving mother.

Resolved, second, That as a church, we assure the bereaved family of our heartfelt sympathy, and point them to the promises of "Him who doeth all things well," as the only source of true comfort.

Resolved, third, That these resolutions be spread upon the record of this church, and a copy sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

A New Feature.

ARTISTIC

Dress Making.

We respectfully beg to state that we have added and opened on Sept. 18th a Dress Making Department. This department has been thoroughly organized after months of careful preparation, and after having at great expense secured the very best talent to be had in their respective capacities, thus guaranteeing perfect equipment, not being excelled in artistic merit by the dress making establishments of any of the northern cities

Our lines of high class dress goods, comprising the newest Silks, Velvets and Dress Woolens are now on sale, and is the richest collection we have ever brought out.

We ask the attention of the ladies of North Carolina to this new feature of our business, assuring them that at moderate prices garments and costumes can be furnished here at home that will have the chic and style of French-made dresses.

Specialties: Bridal trousseaus and mourning outfits. Samples sent and estimates given.

A Hymn for Harvest.

Now to Thee, gracious Lord of the Seasons
Be honor and glory and praise,
That again in the joy of the harvest
Our jubilant anthem we raise.

Though many the fears that beset us,
Though faith waxes feeble and cold,
Thy bow, with its promise unbroken,
Glitters still as it glittered of old.

Though weary we grow in our watching
The weeks of the drought as they pass,
When the earth is as iron beneath us,
And the heaven above us as brass,

Yet the showers come back in their season;
Once more in the land there is seen
The brook brimming over with crystal,
The grass as the emeral green.

Though troubled the spirit within us,
When the mist upon valley and plain
Lies thick, and the clouds in their armies
Return again after the rain;

Yet the sun cometh forth as a giant,
And after the tempest the morn
Is cloudless and fair, and the color
Grows golden and rich on the corn.

For seed-time and harvest we thank Thee;
Our fears as the shadows have fled;
Thou hast given his seed to the sower,
Thou hast given the eater his bread.
—Alfred Church, in The Spectator.

Aunt Rachel's Treatment.

Crash! An ominous sound came from the kitchen as I was sitting for a quiet talk with my friend, Mrs. Morrison. We had just been enjoying a well prepared dinner at her table, and the two or three gentlemen guests had gone.

"Something's broken," I said.

"It sounds like it," she replied.

I expected her to get up, and run nervously to the kitchen, but she quietly continued the conversation. A moment after there appeared at the door a Swedish servant with a most woe begone look on her face, and a tear on either cheek. I could not forbear an exclamation of dismay at perceiving that in her hand she held the fragments of my friend's largest meat dish, belonging to her fine dinner set.

"Broken?" asked Mrs. Morrison, looking at it as she might have looked at the wreck of a kitchen bowl. "You might have selected something else to break, seems to me, Lena," she added, with a little shake of the head, but still with a smile.

"It slipped right out of my hands," said the girl in great distress.

"Oh, don't stop to fret over it, Lena. You don't break many dishes. No, it's no use to save the pieces. It can't be mended."

"Well, Ruth!" I exclaimed, as Lena, greatly comforted, took her departure. "Pope must surely have known some ancestress of yours when he wrote:

'And mistress of herself when china fal'n.'

Any one would think to see how coolly you take the ruin of that handsome dish that you con'd have a new set, any day, if you want it."

"Which is very far from being the case, as you know," said my friend, soberly. "I am afraid I can not match the dish, and if I can, I can scarcely afford the money for it just now."

"But you do not seem to mind the accident at all," I persisted, quite unable to understand her equanimity.

"Oh, yes, I do—after a fashion," she went on very deliberately. "That set was a present from dear old Aunt Rachel, and I am sorry to see any piece of it broken. But if you are wondering because I do not fret over what can't be helped, I can only assure you, Eleanor, that I cannot afford to. It is bad enough to lose the dish without that."

"Any one will admit that fretting is of no use," I said. But you are about the only woman I have ever seen who really lived up to the idea."

"I didn't begin that way," replied Ruth, settling back into her chair with a thoughtful expression on her pleasant face. "I was very much given to fretting over small annoyances when I was a good deal younger. It was that same dear old Aunt Rachel, who cured me by vigorous treatment."

"I should like her recipe, if you can give it to me."

"Oh, it is only the same old one you may hear or read any day of your life: 'Don't fret; it is thankless, rebellious, and utterly useless, never does a bit of good, and always does harm,' with plenty more such plain truths. I think it must have been the sturdy administration which affected me. When we were first married, Fred and I began housekeeping in our pretty little house with everything nice about it, and were as happy as young people usually are. But my habit of worrying over trifles began putting little blots here and there on the smooth surface of our lives. A broken dish, a stained tablecloth, a poorly ironed article, the flies, the dust, the soot, any petty annoyance, would bring a cloud over me which shut out the brightness all about me. I could see that Fred was hurt and fretted by it.

"Well, real trouble came at last. Our baby was sick for weeks and weeks, and we thought he never would get well. How I looked back on the days which had been blessed, and I wondered how I had ever been able to find trouble in trifles! As I prayed that the shadow of death might not so early darken our home, I believed I should never again allow myself to be moved by small troubles. I did not have an opportunity to test my resolution very soon; for as baby recovered I became ill. For many a day I lay far beyond all resolving for the future; almost, indeed, beyond all hope of any future so far as this world is concerned. The [illegible] passed before I won my way back to life, and began to take up its cares [illegible] for one.

"I held well to my good resolution as I rejoiced in being able to oversee the housecleaning, until I came to the parlor carpet. The room had been shut up for months, and had not been properly aired and swept, and the moths had made fearful ravages all around the edges of the carpet. You'll be astonished to hear, Eleanor, that all my equanimity broke down at the sight of it."

"No," I said, sympathizingly, "I don't wonder at all. I've known women who would be fairly sick over such a thing."

"It was a beautiful carpet, and I had been very proud of it. I did not find that anything else had suffered from neglect through my illness; but forgot all the other pleasant facts in view of this distressing one. Even when the baby crept over it, crowing in delight at the bright flowers, and trying to pick them with his chubby little hands, I forgot how much I would have given, not so very long ago, to hear a merry note from him. Well, just as I was at the very culmination of my 'pet,' Aunt Rachel's kindly face beamed upon me for a week's visit.

"'Thankful to see thee so well, dear,' was her greeting. 'The Lord has been good to thee. Not that I don't mean that he would have been good if thee hadn't got well.'

"'Yes I'm very well now, thank you, Aunt Rachel,' I said, after the first inquiries were over. 'Well enough, you see, having got past my great troubles, to settle down to small worries: Look here—isn't this enough to turn the soul of a housekeeper sick?'

"'It is a pity,' she remarked, viewing the mischief.

"'Of course some things had to be neglected while I was sick,' I continued, petulantly: 'but I never dreamed about such a thing as this.'

"She looked at me with her quiet eyes, always so full, I used to think, of the very peace of heaven.

"'Surely, Ruth, thee isn't going to make the matter worse by vexing thy immortal soul over a mishap?'

"Oh, it's very well for you to talk that way, Aunt Rachel,' I replied. 'But I can't afford a new carpet just now.'

"'Thee doesn't need one. The bad places don't show much.'

"'But I shall always know they are there, and it will take away all my peace of mind.'

"The eyes looked straighter into mine as she talked on, something like this: 'Thy peace is worth little, to thee or to any one else, if it can be so easily broken. Ruth Harvey, thee is starting out in life; beware that thy disposition to fret thyself about small things does not prove a curse to thee and thine. Every thought of discontent about matters beyond thy control is not only a sin against the God who orders for thee, but a sin against thy own soul, and an added weight to every annoyance. If cherished, such thoughts become a pest of stinging serpents in thy breast. Thee will be peevish, complaining and fault finding. Thee will be a terror to thy husband and children.'

"Yes," continued Mrs. Morrison, "she said all that, and more. She said: 'Is one thread of that carpet woven into thy real peace of mind? Can it, or other small things, really concern thy welfare, or that of those dear to thee, either for this world or the next?'"

"I never heard it quite so strongly before" I said thoughtfully, as my friend paused. "And if I hadn't seen you, I should have said it was very good talk indeed, but that no woman could live up to it."

"I had a week of it, you see," said Mrs. Morrison. "When Aunt Rachel went away, one of the last things she said to me was: 'I want thee to bear in mind what I said, dear—that every fretful thought thee wastes on small accidents is only so much added to their burden.'

"I think I took it well to heart, for I concluded, Eleanor, that life's burdens are heavy enough without any such addition. And I will tell you one thing I have observed," she added with a laugh, "I do believe that four-fifths of the women that fret, do it because they think it a solemn duty."

"Nonsense!" I exclaimed.

"They do," she persisted. "You notice the next woman you meet to whom some mishap occurs. See if a great part of her worrying is not because she thinks she is expected to worry, and that it might be taken ill of her if she didn't."

I wonder if Mrs. Morrison is right!—Sydney Dayre, in the Congregationalist.

The Weakest Spot

in your whole system, perhaps, is the liver. If that doesn't do its work of purifying the blood, more troubles come from it than you can remember.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts upon this weak spot as nothing else can. It rouses it up to healthy, natural action. By thoroughly purifying the blood, it reaches, builds up, and invigorates every part of the system.

For all diseases that depend on the liver or the blood—dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness; every form of scrofula, even consumption (or lung scrofula) in its earlier stages; and the most stubborn skin and scalp diseases, the "Discovery" is the only remedy so unfailing and effective that it can be guaranteed.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

Fair weather followers are always to be found, but the heart that clings in the dark hour, the voice that trembles in genuine sympathy, the hand that clasps yours in a grasp cordial and warm when others shun or upbraid, he it is to whom you should give the heartiest welcome, treat most royally and love the best.—Selected.

"It is the biggest thing I ever struck." What? Why, the business advertised in another column by B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va. If you are open to an engagement, write them. They can show you a good thing.

What a President Costs.

There is a general idea that the President's salary of $50,000 a year is all that he receives and that, when compared with the salaries paid the sovereigns of Europe, this sum is not enough. This is a mistake. In addition to his salary, the President receives $39,064 to pay the salaries of his clerks and subordinates. His private secretary has $3,250, his assistant secretary, $2,250; the stenographer gets $1,800; each of five messengers, $2,200; the steward, $1,800; each of two door keepers $1,200; while others are paid in proportion down to the man who takes care of the fires who receives $864. In addition, $8,000 are allowed for incidentals, such as stationary and carpets, $12,500, for repairs and refurnishing; $2,500 for fuel, $4,000 for the green-house and $15,000 for the stable, gas and other incidentals. In all the President and his house cost the country over $125,000.—Selected.

Walnut Trees.

A man in this State recently sold one walnut tree for $500. At this rate what would an acre of good size walnut trees bring? Suppose our farmers, who have an abundance of land to spare, would plant a few acres in walnut trees and let them grow. They need no cultivation. All you have to do is to plant them and they will take care of themselves. But says one, I would be dead and gone before they would get large enough to be worth anything. Well, suppose you are, your children would be living and they would reap the benefit. This timber is becoming very scarce and by the time your trees got big enough for market, it will be worth much more than it is now, and would be a fortune to your children. It would simply be laying up money for your children, and that is what you are trying to do.—Warrenton (N. C.) Record.

CHILDREN WHO SUFFER

from scrofulous, skin or scalp diseases, ought to be given Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for purifying the blood. For children who are puny, pale or weak, the "Discovery" is a tonic which builds up both flesh and strength. What is said of it for children applies equally to adults. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, rouses every organ into natural action, and brings back health and strength. In recovering from "grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, and other wasting diseases, it speedily and surely invigorates and builds up the whole system.

For all diseases caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, as Dyspepsia and Biliousness, if it doesn't benefit or cure in every case, the money is returned.

OF LATE the people have awakened from a political and educational lethargy, during which their rights have been seriously encroached upon. To-day their cry for light and for knowledge can be heard over all the land. They feel that their power is slipping from them, and their attempts to regain it are as the struggles of a drowning man. What was the cause of this sudden awakening may never be known; we hardly knew when it came, so gradual and gentle it was. But now how strong and blatant! And in many cases how blind and confused! We are glad that the citizens of this country have been aroused to an interest in political affairs. Nothing could be a greater surety of our future welfare. But we fear they are in many cases over-shooting the mark. Great revolutions seldom take place in a day, and in this instance we believe that the desired result will be attained only after years of endeavor. Education must precede success. The people must have knowledge before they can act wisely. We know that ten men read the newspapers to day where only one read them five years ago. This is one step. It will lead to concerted movement, guided by wisdom, which will some day restore the farmer and the wage earner to their merited power. But they have a great deal to learn. They cannot learn too much, any more than the world can become too good; and the more they learn the better mankind will be. Our system of government has many great deficiences to be remedied; and we sincerely believe that the lasting remedy lies, not primarily in the ballot box, as many suppose, but in the faithful education of ourselves and our children. We have often heard these truths and slept over them. Let the people awake to the necessity of self culture, and let us make ourselves worthy of our free institutions, and strengthen and perpetuate them by intelligence of our ballot, (our secondary remedy), and the virtue of our motives. Then will we have the true Republic which God Almighty intended we should raise up as an example to the nations of the world.

WHEN 25,000,000 American people placed before the authorities their petition that the World's Fair might be closed on Sundays, and when the dallying of our courts rendered that petition powerless, the great body of the people showed that God's day should be preserved whether by mandate of the law or not. They placed themselves before the world as God fearing beings, and demonstrated in no uncertain way that there was to them a law far more binding and far more just than could be formulated by earthly legislators. It was a grand declaration of America for God and God's day, and a manifestation of regard for his holy law above all other law. But in many cases it was only a manifestation. Our Sunday is far from being the day of rest and devotion that the Almighty intended it should be when he commanded us to "remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." How many Christians forget the Sabbath behind their morning papers! How many defile it by contemplation of things temporal! The petition looked well, but there are thousands of other ways of breaking the Sabbath than having expositions on Sunday. If it was wrong for man to see the fair on God's day, surely it is wrong for him to read the world's carnival of crime and sin in the Sunday papers. If it breaks God's holy law to contemplate his wondrous blessings on Sunday, surely it is not preserving it when we indulge in gossip and all sorts of conversation into which a thought of God never enters. The American people made a creditable appearance on paper, but how far from living up to their petition are they in their homes! We have started right; now let us keep the Sabbath as holy as our great petition has lead the world to believe that we keep it.

"PUBLIC office is a public trust" was the loud proclamation a few years ago of one who to day has converted the high trust recently reposed in him into a medium of expressing personal will. The President no longer voices the opinion of the people. He may be right in his bold stand; he may KNOW far better than we. Still we prefer the will of the people as the law of the land rather the opinion of a few politicians. The President has too much power. Although his is an executive office, he has a great influence of the legislative department of government, which is directly contrary to the principles of a republican form of government. In the past few years these departments of government—the executive and legislative—have become dangerously confused, and the formerly separate and distinct provinces of each seem hopelessly confounded.

The Governor of a State is its executive officer, and in our State, and no doubt in a majority of the others, it does not require a particularly strong man to become Governor, or to execute the duties of that office. The executive of our commonwealth has little or no influence over legislation, and we believe that to a certain extent this should be the case with the Chief Executive of the United States. Shameful to say the reason for the difference lies in the fact that governors have but little patronage to distribute! This is the main reason, but there are others. There was a time when well-known leaders among men were chosen governors. To day it is anybody's office, and scarcely any significance attaches to the actions of its occupant. It doesn't call for a leader now; all that is wanted is a man, and the "machine" does the rest. And who the man will be does not depend either on worth, ability or availability; it is simply a matter of chance. Sometimes it is the man with the funds, but we are glad that our State, though seriously threatened in the past and the future, has not suffered this degradation. Our people may well guard against such an event; for he who buys an office will as quickly sell it. It was once the opinion that the office of Governor of North Carolina required a great man. To-day his duties can be done by a phonograph, if we make an exception of the appointment of successors to deceased officers. And a phonograph could equally well execute this duty if it had the power of recognizing its campaign friends who were needy.

There is a remarkable difference between the comparative influence of a Governor and a President, and we prefer the state of "innocuous desuetude" of the former to the open defiance of the latter. Between the two, however, there is a golden mean. The office of Governor should be elevated to a respectable position, and the patronage of the President should be limited to an extent that would abolish the occupation of the patronage-agent Congressmen and Senators, and destroy forever the power of political machines. The offices of Governor and President are executive only, and to that object they should always be confined; they are executors of the law, and not, in any case, law-makers.

The Young Man in the World, or Wandering in Sin.

SERMON NUMBER TWO, IN THE SERIES OF REV. L. G. BROUGHTON ON "SCENES IN THE LIFE OF AN ANCIENT DUDE."

"And not many days after the younger son gathered all together and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance in riotous living." Luke 15: 13.

In our last we left our young hero starting in life. The ship of youth and young manhood was going down. At present we take him stepping out upon life's proud ocean. We watch him as he wanders in sin.

Unfortunately for poor, sin depraved man this life is so crowded with sin that go where you will and you are confronted with its tempting hand. And man being by nature a creature of sin, in his unregenerate state he cannot help engaging in its folly. Moulded in a mould which fits nothing but sin, he would not help it if he could. Regeneration, fortunately for him, breaks up and destroys this sin-mould—recasts it in the foundry of God's love and infinite mercy, so that it henceforth is suited to truth and righteousness.

Now with this unchanged heart and life, our young man of to night ventured out in life. It was a very unwise and dangerous step to make, for upon life's sea there are so many breakers, so many storm clouds to encounter, that no one is safe who is not prepared to fasten his anchor beneath the immovable rock Christ Jesus.

But his launching was grand and glorious at least from the standpoint of the "good-time hunters." Doubtless you have watched some proud ship just getting ready for a trip across the waters. You were impressed with her grandeur and bright promises. Her rigging was in handsome trim. Her timbers are stout and strong. Her flag was flapping in the gentle summer breezes. Her sails were new and bright. Her keel has never experienced a single storm. Her captain struts with arrogant pride. O, how grandly, how proudly she splits the rolling waves and hurls them up on either side like mountain ranges in the far-off distance. But times are not always so hopeful. She encounters a storm. Her strong timbers reel and crack. Her sails split in fragments. Her captain grows sick and heartless, and finally after a hard-fought night succeeds in pulling his vessel into an unfriendly shore, wrecked and ruined.

This was our young prodigal. It was all smiles that morning when he proudly stepped out from the old home and entered upon life for himself. The sky of hope was never so clear to him. The sun of promise never shone so brightly. He had his money with which he was going to have a good time. He had his freedom which he had so long craved. To him this was a grand start, an envious beginning. But alas, alas! how sad the end! Soon the storm of temptation and sin is raging. He is being swayed to and fro. Like the handsome rigging upon the proud vessel, his youthful expectations are split in tatters. The gaily-rigged boat of self-security and self-appreciation is shattered into fragments of ruin, and he lies upon the shores of life wrecked and ruined forever.

Now, young man, this was but the inevitable fruits of sin. You may go on in it for a time, but without a change this will be your doom. You are satisfied of this. Your observation teaches you that it is true. And yet there are doubtless young men here to-night who will go away and continue in its downward course and wake up finally when it is too late to a realization of its consequences. I wonder why this is true? Surely it cannot be that you are naturally so much depraved as not to desire to stop in this deadly course. I do not believe boys are so mean as that. May it not be due to the fact that you have failed to realize the nature of sin? So in my discourse to you to-night I shall try, if possible, to bring you to a realization of this thing in us we call sin.

WHAT IS SIN?

God's Word gives us but one definition of sin: "Sin is the transgression of the law." The law of God is the life of the soul; therefore sin is the destroyer of soul-life. It is a cancer which eats up and destroys the soul's prospect for immortal glory, and wrecks and ruins life. This is an awful charge and yet true—

First. In its insidiousness. Dr. D. Hays Agnew, than whom there has not lived upon this continent, in my judgment, a greater surgeon, says, in speaking of insidious diseases: "Of all the insidious diseases known to man, this we call cancer is the worst. We never know how, when or where it is going to make its attack upon the body. Whether in some of the less hurtful ways, upon the surface, and submit for treatment, or whether in its ravaging thirst for human life, it will lay its dirty hand upon some internal organ and prove death." To those who have had any experience along this line, these words are recognized as the words of a wise man. The man who has in his blood the germ of cancer may never feel secure. Sooner or later it will assert itself upon him.

But not more insidious in its attack upon the physical man is the germ of cancer, than is the germ of sin to the spiritual man. Beginning as it does as but a small floating organism, so to speak, it courses itself through the various avenues of life in search for the proper time and place, and when it has found them it sends its dirty, slimy roots and rootlets into the vital principle of life, and soon claims its victim.

PETER DEGRAAF, THE CONDEMNED CRIMINAL.

O, the insidiousness of sin! How it undermines and destroys bright hopes and good prospects! How it steals the innocent babe from its mother's breast, leads him on through the years of his development, promising bright things, but in the end placing him upon the hangman's gallows!

At present our city is a blaze over the trial and conviction of Peter Degraaf, the murderer of Ellen Smith, so the jury said. He stands now behind the prison bars. The twenty-first day of October he must pay the penalty of his crime by swinging upon the scaffold. I need not go into the details of his life, it is too well known by you of Winston. Suffice it for me to say that at one time he lay an innocent babe upon a loving mother's breast. But he had the germ of sin in his breast: it manifested itself in the form of a licentious character, and you know the sad results. Hear his words to his brother, as brought out upon the witness stand, "Let whiskey, bad women and pistols alone." O, young men of Winston! take warning. This is a mighty enemy with which you are contending.

But you say, "It will never get me." O, no, certainly not. Whoever thought that it would master them? Did you ever know of one who expected it to be their ruin? "Never get me." Ah! young man, you don't know your doom. I know it is all smiles now; but listen: the day will not always be so bright. The sky will not always be so clear. The germ of sin will show itself and you its fruits must reap. Sampson, when he fondly lay his head in the lap of Delilah, never dreamed of its consequences. David, when he first looked upon the beautiful form of the wife of Uriah, never thought that it would lead on and on until he became an adulterer and a murderer; and yet David had much more power of resistance than you have to-night.

NO DANGER, NO DANGER.

But you say "No danger, no danger in me." You are told about these things, but they make no impression upon you. There is "no danger" (?) to you. Your bold self-satisfaction and determination remind me of an incident which occurred in a London theater. A snake-charmer gave an exhibition. He had the stage decked with flowers and shrubbery till it resembled a flower garden. In this garden was a large anaconda snake, with which the performer would play as if it were a frolicsome, harmless kitten. He would appear on the stage, and when the applause that greeted him had ceased, he would tell the people not to be uneasy, as the snake was tame, so that there was no danger in handling it. At one of these exhibitions the anaconda tried to entwine itself around its keeper's body. With a mighty effort the keeper succeeded in unwinding the coils of the serpent and dashed it to the floor. Some of the spectators begged him to cease—implored him not to fondle with the dangerous monster; but he told them only to be quiet—that there was no danger, and that those weak-kneed, chicken-hearted people who were always afraid, should shut up or leave the building.

At that point the snake raised its head again, though its tail was motionless. The performer returned to it; but as he did so, the huge monster suddenly began to entwine itself around the man's body. The performer again attempted to free himself, shouting, meanwhile, "Keep quiet, keep quiet, there is no danger—no danger whatever!" But hardly had the words escaped his lips ere another sound was heard—a loud, wild, horrible cry of pain, succeeded by the noise of cracking bones and the weird death-rattle of the strangling victim of his own temerity.

Oh! young men, go on if you will in the enjoyment of the so-called pleasures of sin. You will feel its cold and merciless coils some of these days fastening themselves around you. It will be too late, then, to throw off those evil habits which you have been forming all through the passing years.

Second. In its loathsomeness. Not only is sin like unto cancer in the insidious manner of its attack, but also in the exceeding loathsomeness of its nature. The other day I visited a poor woman suffering with a facial cancer. What a pitiable sight to behold! I shall not attempt to describe it—I would not if I could. I have too much regard for your sensitive nerves. In agony of pain she was awaiting her final summons. I have also visited the great cancer hospital of New York City, the greatest institution of its kind in the world. Hundreds of poor sufferers are there, and despite the great care taken with them, yet the strongest-nerved man, as he stands there and beholds them, will quiver and shake. But this thing in us we call sin is none the less loathsome in its nature than is this disease. Can you imagine a sight more to be shunned than that of a young man who has been overcome by sinful habits to the extent that he has lost his manhood and now lives in the gutters, in the dens of infamy or in the prisons? "Don't go near him for the world" was said the other day by a good mother to her little boy who came in and told her of a young man who had staggered up the steps and was asking for a piece of bread. What was the matter? Ah, the poor boy was loathsome. He had come out of a good home, had a godly father and mother, had at one time a good prospect for life; but he had fell in with a bad crowd and had contracted the habit of drink until now he was a walking devil. Mothers are afraid to trust their children in his presence while he eat a morsel of bread.

SOCIAL ROTTENNESS.

And it makes no difference at all how well you carry yourself in what is known as society. You may move in the very highest circles so called. Your persons may be adorned with the most costly apparel. Indeed you may be the leader in all the social events in your sphere, yet with the germ of sin unatoned for by Christ, you are a man of putrefaction and decay. And all that is needed to bring to light this sad fact is time and opportunity. Only a few months ago a passenger-train with several passengers down into a broad, deep stream out west. An investigation was held and the cause was found to exist in the construction of the beam. During its moulding a bit of air by some means found its way into the center of the shaft, and a cavity was the result. The outside looked well. No sign of a flaw was observed, but finally, when under the pressure of a heavy burden it asserted itself, the shaft gave away and the great bridge with a mighty crash came to the ground. So are hidden flaws in the beam of life. That character, young man, may be put off upon the public as sound for a while. You may polish the outside. You may run upon family history and blood. But let me impress you with this truth: all that you need to be a wreck is the proper kind of opportunity. That faulty spot, that unpardoned sin in your heart, will assert itself sooner or later. O, young men of Winston, be wise, wait not for the test. Flee from sin as you would flee from the deadliest python.

ITS DESTRUCTION TO LIFE.

Third, sin is like the cancer in its destruction to soul life. Thus far we have been considering sin largely with reference to its blightening effects in this life. We have seen its insidiousness, its loathsomeness, and now we come to deal with the most important point in our study—its destruction to soul life. It would be bad enough if sin in its greed only touched this life—bad enough if it only robbed us of our bright prospects and our social position; but it will not, it can not stop there. Like the insect that begins at the outside of the tree and is not content until he has penetrated the heart, or the panther, not content with simply mutilating and destroying the body, but must, in his thirst for human blood, go deeper and cut out the heart, the fountain of life, so is sin. It is not content with destroying life, but must go further and fasten its mighty, iron grasp upon the heart-center of life and eat up and destroy its prospects for immortal glory.

LOST! LOST!!

O, that I could fire you with this thought to-night—the final culmination of all sin, when it must end at last. Will you listen to me to night, unsaved men? Wanderer in sin, will you not stop in your heedless march, and let ring in your ears for a moment the significance of this truth?

Some years ago a man was benighted in a mining region. He lost his way. The darkness was dense, the dangers were thick. The next step might precipitate him down some awful shaft, some gloomy pit, and dash him bruised and shapeless upon its floor. He knew his peril, and he stopped, stood still, and began to cry, "Lost! lost!! lost!!!" A collager heard the sound, and, grasping a lantern, hurried forth to answer the cry, "Lost! lost!! lost!!!" The lost man saw in the distance the glimmer of his light: it came nearer until, as its rays flashed through the surrounding mist, he found that he stood upon the very verge of death itself! Another step would have plunged him down a tremendous shaft a crushed and mangled corpse! One step! one step!! O, think of it! so close to death and eternity! Young men, you are lost to-night, wandering about in sin. O, for some divine light to come into our midst and shine away the mist and show you the possible danger which lies out before you. Stop! stop!! See the awful pit out of whose mouth comes the groans of agony of the lost souls of hell. Stop in your wanderings lest another step will plunge you in despair. O, see the light which God has given you through Jesus the son. Come unto him and be saved to-night

The Devil is not concerned about the young man who is engaged in no good work, even though he is not engaged in an evil work. The seed are sowing, they will come up in due time. His Satanic Majesty has a sure chance at the young man who does not seek the companionship of good people, who does not read good books, who does nothing to add to the happiness of others. The successful man, the happy man, the man who does not serve Satan, is the man who lives a positive and not a negative life. He not only does not do certain things, but he does certain others. So many young men say to me, "Why, I don't do anything bad." The question is, "Are you doing anything really good?"—Boy's Own Paper, England.

The Biblical Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1893.

REV. C. T. BAILEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

DANCING.

The editor of a religious paper, like the pastor, is under the necessity of discussing this subject from time to time. Those who are in the habit of reading the RECORDER know full well that on this subject the paper has given no uncertain sound. Every now and then there seems to be a kind of epidemic in the line of this amusement, and those who condemn it are under the necessity of disciplining those who violate the well-known regulations of our churches on this, and other amusements like it. We do not purpose in this article to go over the beaten track taken by those who oppose dancing. We wish to show here why it is so difficult, as we understand it, for Baptist and other churches that oppose dancing, to prevent their younger members especially from indulging in it.

1. One evident reason is that dancing is considered a fine art, an elegant accomplishment, &c. It is the high opinion entertained of the thing, and the social and intellectual standing of many who indulge in dancing that gives it so much respectability, and cause many of our cultured young men and women to long for indulgence in it. Those who have studied Satan's methods can but notice how often he attempts to accomplish his purposes by enlisting in his favor the wealthy, the noble, the sensual of this world. The old argument, the old unholy pressure, are found in the words, "Have any of the rulers believed on him."

Is dancing a fine art? Is it an elegant accomplishment? Many of a certain class and certain style of raising would answer unhesitatingly—yes! But where is the proof? Do people that dance have finer feelings; are they more cultured than those that do not? Experience and observation do not prove it. Are people that dance more graceful than those that do not? Some of the most graceful persons we ever met did not know how to dance. And what does gracefulness of body amount to without mind and soul to back it? It would be well for our preachers, then, in their warfare against this sin, to take advantage of the fact that the modern dance especially is so open to objection, and is accompanied by so many evils, that the question may well be asked, "Is dancing reputable; can people with a clean moral record engage in it?" Prove that dancing—and it can be proven—smacks of the baguio as strongly as it does of fine art (?) and you have an argument of no little potency, and one that will sometimes stop the wayward and the thoughtless when nothing else will.

2. Another evident reason is that there are some Christian denominations that openly encourage dancing, and their church members are often ring-leaders in private and public dancing. It is not necessary here to "call names," but the attitude of one or two of the leading denominations of Christians in this and other countries on this subject is well known. Now when a Baptist church is disciplining a member for dancing, how it blunts the force of the church's remonstrance for the person to say, "I did nothing more than other church members present." If the threat is made to exclude from the fellowship of the church if the indulgence is persisted in, how strong the temptation to reply, "Do as you please; if you exclude me, I know where I can go," &c. And as a matter of fact, very often those who are thus dealt with do go where they can dance to their heart's content. Are such churches helpful to others, and are they working together to build up Christ's kingdom? Let the brother who is so exceedingly liberal that he is not at all disturbed by the existence of so many religious sects, answer!

One aggravating fact about this thing of dancing is that some denominations that pose before the world as being bitterly opposed to dancing, have not the courage to enforce obedience to their regulations bearing on this sin. Ah, to what a nauseating extent is policy carried, even in religious things! Would not our brethren of some other denominations show more consistency to come out openly and allow dancing among their members, or else have the courage to enforce their views concerning it; that is, if they have any to enforce. The Baptist brotherhood are in earnest when they say to all professed Christians to help [illegible] down this sin among the people.

[illegible] another cause is that here and there [illegible]ding Baptist church, more usually [illegible] day, will at least wink at dancing [illegible] members. Reasonable mothers [illegible] whose children have intimate [illegible] dancing people of other so-called fashionable denominations will intercede with pastors and deacons to let the "dear boys and girls" enjoy themselves, etc. Well, the people of Sodom and Gomorrah were enjoying themselves when fire fell from heaven on them; and Herod was enjoying himself when he swore that he would give Salome what she might ask! Sometimes the pastor of such churches lacks backbone himself, and from one cause or another the church becomes committed to the plan of allowing dancing. We are glad to say but few of our churches will thus allow it; and may the day hasten when all of them, without an exception, will vigorously stop it.

4. A fourth cause is found in the fact that dancing is allowed at quite a number of the leading female colleges or seminaries of our country, and we are sorry to say at a few that are usually classed among Baptist colleges. The principals and teachers that have charge of these schools excuse themselves by claiming that the dancing is private, is indulged in for exercise, &c., &c. Yet the fact remains that if a girl is taught dancing, or allowed to dance at a seminary, college, or boarding school, she acquires such a taste for it that she will go home and dance, sometimes pastor, deacons, and church "to the contrary notwithstanding." This thing should be stopped in our female schools, let the reasons for allowing it be what they may. Sin is sin, and it cannot be made anything else, by white-washing it and labeling it with the stamp of piety or respectability.

TEMPER.

One of the most common faults of some good men and women is too much temper. Temper is a good thing if it is properly controlled, but quite a bad thing if not controlled. We are inclined to think it is the besetting sin of a good many Christians. Paul in Hebrews exhorts Christians to lay aside every weight, and the sin which easily besets them, and to run with patience the race set before them. It would be well for us to examine ourselves to see whether this is our besetting sin. If it is, we must fight it as we do any other sin, only that we must contend against it with special earnestness; because, being our weakest point, Satan will attack us there most frequently.

Men are often disposed to excuse themselves for yielding to this sin by saying they "cannot help it; it is their nature; they belong to a mettled stock," &c. All of this may be true, but forms no excuse for yielding to this sin. It is natural for men to commit many other sins besides yielding to an impetuous temper, but any amateur in religion knows that does not justify a man for yielding to them.

This is a sin to which prominent and influential Christians are specially liable, especially when they have been honored with prominent offices or places by their brethren, or when they are regarded as religious leaders among them. For long periods of time they are listened to deferentially by their brethren, and the plans they propose bearing on their special work may be so uniformly adopted that they are in danger of supposing they have the right to speak ex cathedra, and are often exceedingly worried when some brother, especially one "to fame unknown," crosses them, or criticises their methods. Let the brother of high degree not only condescend to the brother of low degree, but cultivate that sweetness of disposition that will allow him the same liberty that he claims for himself without becoming angry. That disposition is really implied in the Bible command just alluded to.

"LET US HAVE MORE ACADEMIES."

In a recent issue of the RECORDER, one of our prominent educators, Dr. R. H. Lewis of Kinston, who modestly includes himself among the representatives of our "secondary" schools, set forth in a short but striking communication some of the best thoughts on a certain phase of the educational question that we have seen in a long time. The fact that the writer is a former president of a minor college made his statements more worthy of notice.

Under the above caption, Dr. Lewis stated that our numerous "colleges, collegiate institutes, seminaries," &c., after a thorough test of almost a generation of existence, seem to be losing their popularity, and that they had failed in two particulars, viz., to yield a decent support to those who had them in charge, and to accomplish what they and their sponsors had promised. The writer struck the keynote when he said: "Very frequently students passing through these institutions had an idea that the real colleges and universities could teach them no more, and entered life thus half-prepared. This has been a prolific cause of the non attendance at the bona fide colleges of very many students."

Our State, and the South, is to-day afflicted with a great number of institutions, which their superintendents choose to call colleges, that are hardly worthy of the name of academies. The fact is, many Northern academies, and not a few in the South, are far more thorough, and far more useful to all purposes, than a majority of our so-called "colleges."

We can see these institutions on every hand. They are not the result of brains, experience, or higher educational motives, but are usually second-class academies that have changed their names in order to attract students from a distance. They may have lost their prestige as college preparatory academies, and are trying to regain it under new and high-sounding names.

Such institutions are dangerous to the student, the professor, and the worthy institutions, and should be relegated to their proper sphere as quickly as possible. Our educational system will never be complete until a college diploma is a certificate of a certain amount of learning and a guarantee of both character and ability. The so-called "college" is inimical to these aims.

More than this, it misleads the aspiring student who, lured by a low expense and a "first-class college education," enters one of these institutions, and completes his prescribed course in about three years, under the delusion that he has a college education, when he is as far from it as is the ordinary scholar of the seventh grade of a city free-school.

Such institutions never pay the superintendent, who may chose to call himself the "President," or the "Chairman of the Faculty," a respectable salary, and for this reason we may always expect to find a very ordinary man—probably a young A. B. graduate of some good institution—at their head.

We are glad that the writer of the communication before mentioned thinks these schools have had their day, and that the tide is now "setting in the direction of simple preparatory schools—with curricula that carry the student no further than the threshold of the college proper and the university." Such as these are needed all over the State to-day.

Let us return to the true and tried "old academies." They were the mainstays of education when we were a school boy, and to this day we prefer them to the third class college—a college only in name. That the preparatory academy is needed greatly is witnessed by the noxious preparatory departments—connected or disconnected, but always used—that are attached to our four leading institutions to-day.

Let us have more academies and less mushroom "colleges." With the latter our true and worthy institutions are sadly crippled, students are half-educated, and their teachers are badly paid; while with the former there will be a large number of students who will come better prepared to our bona fide colleges, where they will receive a better education; and we dare say, the academic and the college professor will be far better paid for their labors.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

EASTERN ASSOCIATION.

This Association met with Johnson's church two miles from Warsaw. The attendance was unusually large notwithstanding the weather was anything but pleasant. Much of the interest of the session was in the discussion of Foreign Missions. This is the home Association of both Bros. Bryan and Herring, and the brethren in this section aside from the interest they feel in the general subject of Foreign Missions, feel a strong personal interest in both of these brethren. They were evidently at their best, and made strong speeches, Bro. Bryan for the Board and our organized plans of work, while Bro. Herring advocated the new departure which he proposes to carry on in China. Bro. W. E. Crocker was present and announced at the close of the discussion that he expected to go out with Bro. Herring.

This section promises to be one of the most prosperous in the State, besides being a good corn and cotton section, strawberries, asparagus and peaches are grown for market with fine success. The people seem cheerful and hopeful, and there is not so much talk of hard times as we hear in some other sections of the State.

The churches lacked about two hundred dollars of raising the amount necessary to pay off the missionaries of the Association, this was promptly provided for and the usual amount will be expended in this work next year. Bro. Bryan preached the missionary sermon Friday at 11 o'clock. We were not permitted to hear this sermon but we state it on the authority of Dr. J. L. Carroll that it was a very excellent sermon, Bro. Carroll deals in such himself and is consequently a most satisfactory witness.

Brother Hilliard of Wake Forest College, Presidents Brewer and Hobgood of Murfreesboro and Oxford, and Bro. Stringfield, agent of the Baptist Female University, Raleigh, were present and made good the opportunity of speaking for these institutions. Dr. J. L. Carroll also made one of his best and most forcible appeals for general education and especially for Wake Forest College.

Bro. Stewart, the Moderator, is well up on parliamentary law, enforces it strictly, and requires the observance of the best order, but does it with such fine spirit that his close oversight becomes a sort of inspiration to both speaker and hearer.

Bro. Bilbro, pastor of the church at which the Association met, and his brethren deserve the highest praise for the magnificent provision which they made for the entertainment of the Association.

I am sure I never saw so many preachers. Bro. Blackburn, the Secretary, told me that there were thirty present on Friday. And this did not include Bro. L. R. Carroll, who by the way, is one of the very best in the Association. We take occasion to thank him and other brethren for the aid which they gave us in getting subscribers for the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

This was our first opportunity of being at the Eastern Association, but the acquaintance we made in this section twenty years ago had fully prepared us to look for just the kind, generous hospitality we received on every hand. And now in the name of a host of travelling brethren, the RECORDER thanks brethren Brown, Middleton and Carroll for the enjoyment we had in their splendid home at Warsaw during the session.

TAR RIVER ASSOCIATION.

This body met with Philadelphia church, near Nashville, in Nash county. This is a fine farming section. Driving from Rocky Mount to the church, I was agreeably surprised to see on either side the very finest farming land, and also to see it is well cultivated and producing fine crops. We met quite a number of wagons and carts on their way to Rocky Mount to sell tobacco, and noted with pleasure the fine fields of cotton and corn all the way from Rocky Mount to Philadelphia. It matters little to many of our people whether Congress shall pass the repeal bill or adjourn; they have plenty of the necessaries for next year, and we hope as the years go by they may continue to work on this line of making their own supplies, and thus becoming more and more independent of the things which they cannot control.

We found on Friday a large crowd at the church enjoying the meeting, just as the Tar River brethren always do.

Brethren Bowers and Wilcox were re-elected moderator and clerk of the Association by acclamation.

Bro. Hufham was among the first we saw after getting on the ground. He had all the zeal and hope for the progress of the Association which he has felt for many years.

Associational Missions has been the prime work of this Association for years. Great progress has been made on this line of work, as was shown by the reports of the different missionaries who have labored in the Association during the past year.

We hardly feel that we so much as got a sight of Bro. VanDeventer who is always zealous for the interest of our Foreign Mission work, and never fails to make a good speech on this subject.

The brethren from one end of the State to the other will be glad to hear that Dick Vann is almost well again, and is now at his post preaching to his brethren as few men can do.

Many brethren enquire about Dr. Taylor, and in his absence they listen with much interest to Bro. Hilliard, who is making a splendid effort for Wake Forest College.

Bro. O. L. Stringfield made an excellent speech in the interest of the Baptist Female University. The institution is evidently on rising ground, and Bro. Stringfield is making a vigorous effort to secure the erection of the building at once.

Presidents Brewer and Hobgood were present, and here, as elsewhere, made vigorous efforts in the interest of their splendid institutions of learning.

We were sorry to have to leave before the discussion on Home Missions, which was to be led by Dick Vann, and the Sunday-school mass meeting conducted by Bro. N. L. Shaw of Warrenton.

The crowd was large, and the Association was handsomely entertained by the brethren and good citizens of the neighborhood.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....We were glad to see Bro. E. W. Timberlake of Louisburg in our office last week.

....Rev. J. L. Sherwood aided Rev. H. M. Croom in a meeting at the Yadkin church, Caldwell county, last week.

....Rev. Oscar Haywood of Morristown, Tenn., accepts the call of the First church of Huntsville, Ala.—Asheville Baptist.

....Rev. J. H. Lamberth has returned from an extended evangelistic tour in Virginia, and will resume his work as pastor at Greenville.

....Rev. J. H. Lewellyn, formerly of Pilot Mountain, N. C., desires us to announce that he should be addressed hereafter at Dobson, N. C.

....We were glad to see Rev. F. H. Poston in city recently. Bro. Poston was on his way to Lumberton where he is now engaged in a meeting.

....We gratefully acknowledge receipt of an invitation to attend the President's reception at the State University on "University Day," October 12.

....We regret to learn of the death of Rev. A. B. Williams of Goldsboro, which occurred on the 12th. Bro. Williams was ninety years of age, and had for a long time been one of the leaders among the colored race.

....Rev. W. V. Savage had the assistance of Rev. J. E. White of Edenton in a good meeting at his pastorate at Columbia last week.

....Rev. Geo. J. Dowell was welcomed into his new pastorate, the Second church of Durham, on the 8th, with appropriate ceremonies.

....We are glad to announce that Rev. J. H. Edwards, who has been quite sick, is recovering, and was able to fill his Fayetteville pulpit last Sunday.

....Rev. I. W. Thomas is attending the Western Convention at Asheville this week. We return thanks to Bro. Thomas for favors and kind words of last week.

....Rev. B. P. Robertson, pastor of Gaffney Baptist church, Greenville, S. C., has our thanks for a concise little pamphlet, "Distinctive Baptist Principles."

....We regret to learn of the illness of Bro. J. V. McCall, sheriff of Caldwell county, and one of the pillars of the church at Lenoir. We hope for him a speedy recovery.

....Rev. W. W. Hedrick, aged sixty five years, of the Virginia Methodist Conference, died on the 10th inst., from injuries received by being thrown from a buggy while on his circuit.

....We are requested to announce that for important reasons the meeting of the Warren Union is changed from the fifth Sunday in October, to Friday before the second Sunday in November.

....Rev. G. T. Watkins was engaged in a series of meetings at Antioch, Person county, last week. We are glad to learn that much interest was manifested, and that many were converted.

....We regret to learn that Bro. Blanchard has recently been prevented from occupying his pulpit in the Third church, Durham, on account of sickness. He is recovering now, however, we are glad to state.

....A brother writes that the Sandy Run Association closed its fourth annual meeting after a most satisfactory session. The Association did as much for the different objects as last year, and did more for Home Missions.

....Rev. D. S. Swaim and Miss Winona Leonard were married at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. S. Leonard, in Wilmington, on the 10th inst., Rev. J. T. Jenkins officiating. We extend our congratulations.

....We were pleased with visits from Bro. W. A. Ferrell of Wake Forest, and Bro. G. R. Bagwell of Garner, last week. Bro. Ferrell occupied the pulpit of the Fayetteville Street Baptist church of this city on Sunday last.

....Rev. R. T. Bryan was in our office last week, and we were glad to see him looking so well and cheerful. We learn with pleasure that Bro. Bryan intends making Raleigh his headquarters during his stay in this country, and we extend him a cordial welcome to our city.

....On last Sunday the ordination services of the newly elected assistant Episcopal Bishop of North Carolina, Rev. J. B. Cheshire, took place at Calvary church, Tarboro. Bishop Lyman and many other prominent preachers and laymen of that denomination took part in the ceremony.

....The Asheville Baptist has been fortunate in securing Rev. Chas. H. Durham, a young and promising graduate of Wake Forest College, as their travelling agent and correspondent. We know Bro. Durham to be a minister of great earnestness, energy and worth, and predict for him success in all his endeavors.

....Prof. Stephen B. McIntyre of the Louisburg Male Academy, and Miss Minta Allen, one of Wake Forest's most popular daughters, were married at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. T. D. Watson on the 12th inst., Pastor W. R. Gwaltney officiating. We extend to the couple our hearty congratulations.

....A press dispatch from Savannah, dated October 14th, says: "Later advices from Brunswick to the Morning News state that T. E. Waff, represented in earlier dispatches as being critically ill, has since died." Mr. Waff is a son of Bro. J. T. Waff of Reynoldson, N. C. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

....Old Dr. John Todd used to say: "Religion has a hard time of it; in the country they sleep it to death, and in the cities they kill it with silks and satins and ice cream." But Dr. Todd knew nothing of the alphabet societies, processions, badges and military drill in many churches to day. What would he have said, had he known!—Western Recorder.

....We thank an esteemed brother for the following, with which renewals for two were enclosed: "I cannot afford to be behind with my RECORDER. When I read a paper I want to feel that it is paid for. I have especially enjoyed the first page. Judge Winston's plain talks on law, the pieces from the retired physician, and your secular talks, are all excellent."

....Rev. A. R. Pittman of Rennert, Robeson county, writes: "Many of your readers will no doubt rejoice to know that the Lord has blessed this quarter of the moral vineyard with a gracious revival. Rev. Wm. Hursey from Georgia came to the assistance of his brother, Rev. J. A. Hursey, the pastor, on the 29d ult., and continued the meeting in this place until the 5th inst. The Holy Spirit was demonstrated in great power from the beginning of the meeting, and continued with convicting, converting and saving power to the close. Christians were greatly edified; nineteen converts were baptized, and eight others connected with the church by restoration or letter. The gospel was preached with great power and simplicity, and we all realize that the Lord did great things for us whereof we are glad."

....The Reidsville Review says: "Rev. J. A. Howard has been holding night services at Cobbtown school house, between here and Wentworth, this week. Bro. Howard returned from the South and filled the pulpit at the Main Street Baptist church Sunday. He conducted very successful revival meetings at Tallpoosa, Ga., and Jasper, Ala., while absent."

....We regret to learn that Rev. G. L. Finch, pastor of the Second Baptist church has tendered his resignation to take effect November 1st, after which he will be pastor of the church at Biltmore, near Asheville. Mr. Finch's feeble health caused him to make that change.—Goldsboro Headlight. We hope that the change of locality may effect a speedy restoration of Bro. Finch's health.

...."One way to kill a church: to make it a present of an endowment big enough to suffocate the energy of its members," says the Christian Register, and the Cumberland Presbyterian adds: "One way to give a church new life is to get it to undertake some enterprise great enough to tax to the utmost the energies and liberality of all its members. It is bad for a congregation to get into easy circumstances."—Watchman.

....In a letter to the Religious Herald Dr. Geo. B. Taylor writes: "Tidings of baptisms come to me from Cannes, Venice, Portici and Naples. At Portici severe opposition, even persecution, was encountered from the clericals till the authorities, obedient to public sentiment, gave the leaders to understand that the thing must stop." We know our readers will be glad to hear such good news of the progress of our Italian mission.

....Rev. W. F. Watson has resigned the pastorate of the church at Roxboro to accept a call to the Spurgeon Memorial church of Norfolk, Va. His departure will be a loss to the denomination in the State. While we regret to see our promising brethren leave us, we are always glad to know that their merit is appreciated, and their field of usefulness broadened. We pray God's abundant blessing on Bro. Watson in his new field.

....We were glad to see Rev. B. H. Matthews, late pastor of the church at Smyrna, on his way to Crozer Theological Seminary, where he will enter the Junior class, in order to finish his ministerial education. Bro. Matthews reports good news of the Smyrna saints, and says he enjoyed his pastorate among them greatly. Rev. E. C. Bobbitt, a Wake Forest student, succeeds Bro. Matthews as pastor at Smyrna. We hope for him God's richest blessings.

....Rev. Geo. A. Sowell, who graduated at Wake Forest two years ago, writes from Crozer Theological Seminary that that institution has opened with flattering prospects. Brethren J. Paul Spence and J. S. B. Overton of Elizabeth City, entered recently. We thank Bro. Sowell for the following kind words about the RECORDER: "To a Wake Forest man the RECORDER is indispensible. Wherever he may wander, the weekly perusal of the dear old home paper keeps him in close touch and sympathy with the Baptists of North Carolina."

....Rev. M. L. Kesler has decided to remove to Red Springs, and has accepted a call to Lumber Bridge for the day he has been preaching here. The breaking up of the shops has greatly weakened the Baptist church, and Mr. Kesler feels that he could be more useful in a larger field. We greatly regret to give him up. In addition to his power in the pulpit, which is very marked, he is one of the most highly esteemed and public spirited citizens of Laurinburg.—Laurinburg Exchange.

....Rev. J. B. Ferebee writes: "We had a meeting at Woodville, Perquimans county, beginning the second Sunday in September and lasting one week. Rev. R. R. Overby did the preaching. The people were delighted with his preaching, his simple presentation of truth, and pointed appeals will be long remembered. It was a time of refreshing, and the Lord was with us. As a result I baptized fourteen, and we hope that the seeds sown may bring yet other harvests. To God be the glory."

....We regret to learn of the unfortunate circumstances which at present surround Rev. J. O. Alderman. He recently lost his mother, who died August 19th of typhoid fever, and now is called on to wait at the bedside of a brother ill with the same disease. On this account Bro. Alderman could not attend the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus Association. We deeply sympathize with Bro. Alderman, and commend him to that God whom he claims as his "good and wise father."

....Dr. P. S. Henson comes out in the Chicago papers expressing his grief that Prof. Drummond is engaged in a series of lectures in the University of Chicago in favor of the doctrine of evolution; trying to prove men came from monkeys, etc. Dr. Henson does not relish the idea of having such teaching in an institution claiming to be Baptist.—Recorder. Its anything to draw a crowd these days. It is said that Prof. Drummond and the University of Chicago have the advertisements of these lectures in the street cars of Chicago along with announcements of other World's Fair specialties, viz: theatres, saloons, shooting-galleries, &c.

....Dr. L. G. Broughton, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Broad Street church of Winston, has accepted a call to the charge of the Calvary Baptist church of Roanoke, Va. We regret to see this young and promising minister leave our State, where his labors have been so abundantly blessed, and hope for him God's guidance in his new field. Dr. Broughton, though quite young, has achieved much as a worker for the Lord, and gives every promise of a life of great usefulness to God and man. His resignation must be a severe blow to the Broad Street members, and while sympathising with them, we extend our congratulations to the Roanoke church.

....We desire to remind our readers that the RECORDER is the organ of their denomination, through which it is expected they will express their sentiments. If you have any news that you think will be of interest to the denomination, the RECORDER will always be glad to publish it. We want short, pithy, interesting communications from all over the State each week. They will bring the RECORDER nearer the people, make it more interesting, and magnify its usefulness as the organ of the Convention.

....It is now less than two months before our State Convention meets, and we want to urge upon the churches to be fully and ably represented at this Convention. We want it to be the greatest meeting in North Carolina Baptist history, and to this end we must have good delegates, and plenty of them in the body. While the situation of the meeting is rather far east for our western brethren, there is work to be done, and important questions to be settled that well-deserve their time and attention. Let our churches begin to prepare now, and let every one who can, be at Elizabeth City by December 7th.

....We are glad to publish this deserved tribute to our country churches and their pastors, taken from the Alabama Baptist: Says Dr. J. L. M. Curry: "Large and wealthy churches are centres of influence and power; but what would Christianity be without the numerous unheralded local churches, where the gospel is preached in sincerity and truth and in the power and demonstration of the Spirit? Great and renowned men are valuable; but it is the thousand quiet and more obscure workers who help forward humanity and all good causes." The country preacher may sometimes feel that he is doing a small work but it is a work "on ages telling," if only it is a work faithfully performed according to the opportunity given.

Seven Facts.

1. It is a fact that twenty six Associations in our Convention have been held and there are fifteen more to be held before November 15th, 1893.

2. It is a fact that the Treasurer, up to August 1st, 1893, had received for State Missions $380 more than he received up to August 1st, 1892, for the same object.

3. It is a fact that two things have, since August 1st, 1893, greatly hindered the contributions of the churches to all the objects of our organized work—the financial stringency and the kind of discussions thrust upon our people in the papers, in tracts, and before the Associations on "mission methods"—collaterals.

4. It is a fact that the Treasurer, up to October 15th, 1893, had received for State Missions $6,765.53, for Foreign Missions (not including the Centennial fund) $7,014 12, and for Home Missions (not including the Centennial fund) $2,399.41; and, up to October 15th, 1893, he has received for State Missions $4,741.31, for Foreign Missions $4,650.49, and for Home Missions $1,985 59.

5. It is a fact that these facts show a falling off in contributions, up to the 15th of October, 1893, compared with the contributions to the same date of 1892 for State Missions $2,024 19, for Foreign Missions, $2,353 63, and for Home Missions $403 82—total falling off for these three objects, $4,781 64.

6. It is a fact that while, for Foreign and Home Missions, our churches may, during the winter and spring, before May 1st, 1894, the close of the present fiscal year of the Southern Baptist Convention, come up to the amounts given for these objects the previous year, yet for State Missions there can be no such extension of time, for the annual report of J. D. Boushall, Treasurer, for the present fiscal year of our Baptist State Convention will be closed on December 1st, 1893, and whatever, therefore, is counted in this year's State Mission work must reach him on or before that day.

7. It is a fact that the above facts show that every pastor, church and individual member in our churches, ought to know these facts and ought to do, as speedily as possible, what they can to help State Missions; for it is only forty-four days—December 1st—till the report of the Treasurer must be closed, and all amounts counted in this year's work must be in hand by that date.

C. DURHAM.

From the S. B. T. Seminary.

Dear Recorder:—It always thrills the soul of a true Baptist with joy to receive glad tidings from any department of our denominational work. Week after week the news has gone to your readers of the glorious work of grace going on not only in our own State, but in other States as well. Within the last four weeks they have heard of the encouraging news that despite the "financial stringency" of which we hear so much, the instructors in our schools and colleges are again greeted with a goodly number of young men and women who have a real thirst for knowledge. We all rejoice to hear of the encouraging opening at Wake Forest, though it is not so large as some of us had hoped. Truly we have no inferior college, as some of us realize more fully in coming in contact with men from other colleges.

Next to our schools in our own State ought to come (and we are constrained to believe it does) our Seminary here at Louisville, at which the writer has the honor to become a matriculate for the first time.

Two weeks ago when this scribe reached the city, New York Hall was the abode of only a few students who remained here during the summer. A week later, on his return from Chicago, all was bustle and stir; the doors of New York Hall had been thrown wide open, and within its walls were to be found nearly two hundred young preachers gathered from all parts of our country and a few from foreign countries.

The Seminary was formally opened at 10 o'clock Monday, Oct. 2nd, by the venerable President, Dr. Broadus.

The annual lecture was delivered Monday night in Broadway Baptist church by Dr. W. H. Whitsitt, whose subject was "Baptist Sects of America." On the rostrum, besides the faculty and the Baptist pastors of the city, were to be seen several prominent men of other denominations, including some of the faculty of the Pres. Seminary recently established here.

About 180 students matriculated the first day, and we can safely say that there are two hundred here now. This is an increase of thirty for the same time last year. There is an increase from several of the States, but we are sorry to say that the North Carolina delegation is not so large as last year. Up to date we are only thirteen strong, ten of whom are Wake Forest men and all graduates except one. If there is any brother in the State halting between two opinions, we urge him to decide and come at once to this the best Seminary in America. Brethren J. I. Kendrick, Millard, Gilmore, Cullom, Corpening and Thompson spent the summer in Kentucky—some preaching to churches near here, and others were in charge of mission Sunday-schools in the city.

The Pres. Seminary, of which mention was made above, was formally opened on Thursday night, Oct. 5th. The exercises consisted of short addresses by members of the faculty on topics relating to the Seminary. On the rostrum were to be seen the faces of our Drs. Broadus, Whitsitt and Robertson. The plan upon which it is established is what is known as the "University Plan." Some of us are inclined to believe that the success of this plan, as seen here, had its influence on our Pres. brethren. Indeed the speaker modestly admitted it in his tribute to our Seminary as being the first to adopt this plan. But we are not surprised, for they know a good thing when they see it. We are told it opened with thirty students. More at another time.

Greensboro Notes.

We have had a very fine meeting. Broughton has preached eloquently and powerfully, and there have been about twenty five professions. We had the circus (Pawnee Bill's Wild West) to show in front of the church. We had to stretch ropes to keep the crowds off our church steps, but we determined to hold our services at 3:30 and 7:30 p. m. At the afternoon service we had 249 present, three times as many as at any day service except the children's service on Saturday. At night there were 500 present, and seven professions. The music and shooting disturbed us some, but not enough to distract the attention. The church service was triumphant over the devil's show. It was a test case with us, and the Christian people of Greensboro stood firm for the services of God. The church and community have been benefitted very much by the faithful work of Bro. Broughton. Last Sunday I preached for him in Winston. His people are very sad over his departure. His place will be most difficult to fill. It also gave us pleasure to spend several hours with Bro. Brown. He is not well now, but hopes to begin a meeting very soon with Bro. C. A. Jenkins to help him.

May the Lord bless the RECORDER and its editor. Cordially,

CHAS. A. G. THOMAS.

From Rev. A. W. Crabtree

Dear Recorder:—I baptized four at Arlington on the second Sunday in September, and two others have joined.

At Austin's Level on Tuesday after the second Sunday in September, I baptized three, and one other joined. We have no house at this place. We want to organize a church here just after our Association in Charlotte.

At Chaney's Hill on Thursday after the third Sunday, I baptized ten, one of whom was eighty-three years of age. She was the oldest person I ever baptized. Let us be more careful and pull the old people away from hell. I have been called to Chaney's Hill and have accepted.

Oak Grove, my mission field, has her house up, but not finished. I will preach my first time in it on the fifth Sunday in this month. We need twenty dollars on it very bad. Come to our aid, brethren.

Yours truly, A. W. CRABTREE.
Arlington, Oct. 7, 1893.

The Congress of Religions.

Dear Recorder:—I know not who originated and directed the parliament of religions recently held in Chicago; neither can I tell what will be the results of it. But I beg to differ with my good brother, A. C. Dixon of Brooklyn, when he says, "The devil presided over all and in all," or when he says, "The only sentiments that brought down the house were those that exalted heathenism above Christianity."

In the public gatherings of all kinds I have seen, never have I seen the many thousands so brought down or so wrought up as Dr. Lorimer's great speech on the closing day of the congress. Neither in twenty-five years of reading and studying Baptist principles have I read or heard such an exposition of our basil principles as he then and there presented to the assembled thousands of all creeds; and I venture to say, never have the religionists of this world had presented to them before in any assembly our Bible doctrines so fully and so concisely as he did. I would his address could be published in all our papers, and then in pamphlet form.

Yours, J. B. RICHARDSON.
High Point, Oct. 11, 1893.

In ordering goods, or in making inquiry concerning anything advertised in this paper, you will confer a favor by mentioning the fact that you saw the advertisement in the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

Wake Forest Letter.

THE LITERARY SOCIETIES

The Euzelian and Philomathesian Literary Societies are very justly the pride of Wake Forest. The value and importance of their work cannot be over-estimated. Their reputation is known and their influence felt wherever the sons of the College are found. Unhampered by the hurtful influence of secret fraternities so destructive to society enthusiasm in other institutions, they furnish to the student an inviting field for the cultivation and exercise of his powers in debate, declamation and composition. They hold meetings every Friday night and Saturday morning. At the Friday night meeting there is a debate. The queries discussed are connected with the moral, social and political questions of the day as well as with matters of history and literature. These debates are sometimes continued for several hours and frequently call forth exhibitions of wit, sarcasm and oratory that would do honor to older persons than mere College boys.

The Saturday morning meetings are for the delivery of declamations, reading of original essays and the transaction of general business. Critics, selected from the advanced students, carefully note and criticise every error in the debater, declaimer or essayist. The strictest decorum is preserved. A gentleman of wide observation and experience remarked in the presence of the writer sometime ago, that he had often seen Wake Forest men presiding over deliberative bodies under circumstances of peculiar difficulty, but he had never seen one in any way confused or discomfited. This must be regarded as a very high compliment to the training given by our Societies. The friends of the College and especially old students will be glad to learn that the present outlook of the Societies is exceedingly hopeful. Old and new members alike are entering into their work with interest and enthusiasm. A large number are already in the race for the medals given to those who make the greatest improvement in debate. The Library and Reading Room are thronged every day with embryo orators in eager search for books and magazines bearing upon the questions to be discussed.

THE SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.

Under the wise and enthusiastic leadership of Prof. Poteat, this Society was organized three years ago to promote interest in the progress of science and to encourage original investigation. Members of the Faculty and persons who are now, or have been, students of the College are admitted to its membership. Its career has been a very successful one. At each of its monthly meetings a paper on some scientific subject is read and discussed. The first meeting of the present session, held on Tuesday night the 10th inst., was open to the public and was addressed by Prof. Lanneau on "The Recent Uses of Electricity as Illustrated at the World's Fair." Prof. Lanneau, at all times a clear and interesting speaker, was at his best on this occasion. In vivid colors he painted the magic scenes witnessed in a twenty four hours' sojourn in Switzerland produced by the wonderful power of electricity, described its adaptability to the uses of domestic and industrial life, and closed by showing that, while steam may not be driven from the field in the industrial arts by this new and powerful rival, it will certainly have to yield much of its present prestige and popularity.

OTHER ITEMS

There is not a single case of sickness in the College.

Pastor Gwaltney is in Charlotte attending the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus Association.

The Wake Forest Student for October will be issued in a few days. Every friend of the College ought to subscribe for it. C.

Literary.

How the Gardens Grew. By Sarah M. Williamson. 12mo, 178 pp. Price, 90 cents. Philadelphia: American Baptist Publication Society, 1420 Chestnut Street.

The gardens of this story are not those of the kitchen or the lawn, but of human hearts and lives. Hence we do not deal with vegetables and flowers, and the weeds that spoil them, but with generous deeds, and lofty aspirations, and Christly consecration, and with their debasing opposites, which oftentimes chill and slay them. Our gardens then are Laura Macy and Nan Dallas, and Clyde Desmond and John Dale, and the other well-drawn characters of the book.

How the lofty struggled with the low, the plants with the weeds in these and in the fields on which they were put, and how the former won the victory in the end, as it will do everywhere, is very well told.

The style of the story is bright and vivid, without being at all low. It gives evidence of reading and thought on the part of the author, and to many of its readers the incidents and scenes drawn from Californian life will be doubtless entirely new. We heartily commend the volume to Sunday-schools, and especially to the maturer young people to whose series the publishers have added it.

A Lie Never Justifiable. A study in ethics. By H. Clay Trumbull. 12mo, pp. xii, 237. Philadelphia: John D. Wattles & Co. Bound in fine cloth, gilt top. Price, $1.

The book is writen in the crisp, straightforward style of one who is seeking to clear up real difficulties, and bring great principles into the light.

Lafayette College Commencement Addresses, 1893, containing the baccalaureate sermon, "What Shall I do With Jesus," delivered before the late graduating class of Lafayette College by Rev. John R. Davis, D. D., of New York City; and the alumni address, "Medicine as a Career for Educated Men" by Wm. W. Keen, M. D., LL. D., of Philadelphia. These addresses are published neatly in pamphlet form, and are very creditable efforts.

The North Carolina University Magazine, No. 1, Volume XIII, has been received. This number of the Magazine makes a new era in the progress of Southern college journalism. Bound neatly between new and tastily designed cover-pages, and printed and finished in an admirable manner, it cannot but present a very attractive appearance to the Magazine reader.

Of its table of contents for the present issue we note as of special interest "The Ancient Greek and Modern Elizabethan Drama Compared" and "Some Experiences at a German University." The latter is the first of a promising series of articles from various famous institutions. It may be of interest to our readers to know that this Magazine has a larger circulation than any similar publication in the United States, and that its present high position is due to the enterprise and energy of Prof. Collier Cobb.

From Boonville, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—I have just closed a nine-days meeting at Deep Creek church. The Lord was with us and blessed the Word preached to the conviction and conversion of twenty-five persons. I baptized seventeen into the fellowship of the church, and restored one, making in all eighteen. The church was greatly revived and built up in the faith of the gospel. Revs. W. G. Brown, S. S. May and T. C. Myers did most of the preaching for me.

Two weeks prior to this meeting I held a nine-days meeting at Fairbush church, which resulted in the conversion of thirty-eight souls. Thirty five related their experience to the church, and at the close of the meeting I baptized thirty-three into the fellowship of the church, and two were restored.

These two churches held prayer-meetings for some time before the protracted services began. They prayed for their children and neighbors, and the Lord heard and answered in the conversion of a large number of those prayed for. I would request all pastors to see that all their churches hold weekly prayer-meetings and pray the Lord to give them their children and neighbors to go with them to heaven. The Lord says, "Ask, and it shall be given you."

The fifth Sunday in this month and the third Sunday in November I expect, if the Lord will, to hold a two-weeks meeting with each of my other two churches. I ask the prayers of the RECORDER readers that I may have success at these two churches

God bless the RECORDER. My wife says she is lost without it.

J. J. ANGELL, Pastor.
Boonville, Sept. 30, 1893.

Windsor Church.

Dear Recorder:—I closed a meeting of two weeks' duration with the church in this place on Sunday, 8th inst. There were eight additions to the church—seven by baptism and one by restoration.

Rev. H. T. Williams of Seaboard was with us eight days, and labored very faithfully and efficiently both in the pulpit and out of it. His earnest appeals to Christians to live devoted lives, and to endeavor continually to do as the Lord would have them do, it is to be hoped, will bring forth fruit with many of our church-members. Our congregations were large from the beginning to the end, and we hope to gather still more fruit from the meeting.

J. B. BOONE.
Windsor, Oct. 10, 1893.

A correspondent, signing "J. D.," sends us the following account of a singular accident: "Berguine Gibson of Tyrrell county, near Columbia, went in company with a neighbor, up near the head of Scuppernong river on the evening of September 29, intending to engage in a 'bear drive' the next morning. He stopped at his father-in-law's to spend the night. When he drove into the yard, he was met by his father-in-law and others, and after shaking hands with the [illegible] hands with another old friend on the left, when his gun slipped through the slats in the foot of his road cart striking the hammers and firing both loads into his left side just below his heart. Death came instantly. He was in the prime of life, and leaves a bereaved wife but no children."

Mission Methods—The Crucial Test.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—As proof of the position taken in a recent issue of the RECORDER in an editorial on "New Mission Methods," I send you the total contributions for all objects of a prominent church of this State for the last five years with contributions each year for State Missions, Foreign Missions, Home Missions, Ministerial Education and Orphanage, leading objects of the Baptist State Convention:

Years.	Total for all objects.	State Missions.	Foreign Missions.	Home Missions.	Ministerial Education.	Orphanage.	Total for five leading objects.
1889	$1,595.00	$75.00	$ 75.00	$10.00	$ 50.00	$140.00	$350.00
1890	2,082.00	75.00	75.00	50.00	75.00	125.00	400.00
1891	2,609.26	75.00	75.00	25.00	122.75	105.00	402.75
1892	2,018.24	60.00	100.00	75.00	248.85	91.00	569.85
1893	2,717.27	53.00	415.14	82.00	22.25	55 00	627.39

These figures taken from the minutes of the Association show:

1st. Progressive growth in the "grace of giving" on the part of the church referred to.

2nd. That for the three years 1889, 1890 and 1891, the liberality of the church was shared almost equally by the five leading objects of the Convention, showing all around interest in all departments of work.

3rd. That for the last two years during which the church has been under the influence of new mission methods, Foreign Missions overshadowed everything except Home Missions with the consequent result of largely increased contributions to two objects and considerable loss to three other objects, showing partiality to two departments of work at the expense of three which must tend to one-sided development of the church.

4th. That a considerable number of churches in the State operating on the plan, and adhering strictly to the policy of this church, would send the department of Foreign Missions on a big boom, but would at the same time cripple disastrously for a time, with probable permanent injury three other departments of work—State Missions, Ministerial Education and the Orphanage.

I am aware that the above figures for 1892 show an apparent gain to three objects and a small loss to two, but the gain to Ministerial Education is apparent and not real, as the amount given that year for that object was this year reported under the head of Foreign Missions, and if for Foreign Missions in one instance, it was the same in the other. In either case there was a loss to the Board of Ministerial Education at Wake Forest. Legitimate development of this church ought to show a gain instead of a loss to the three objects named.

I submit to the supporters of the "Gospel Mission" that the crucial test of their movement does not consist in showing, here and there, largely increased contributions to Foreign Missions; but that along with these must come symmetrical development of the churches in the departments of home work, and finally they must give us some results in the foreign field. Their theories are not so bad, but having challenged old methods, we ask a practical demonstration on these three lines. If the effect of the new departure on the churches is to strike down three essential departments of home work, Baptists ought to pause before taking the step. If it means new life to these departments with a new era in Foreign Mission work, the sooner we have the demonstration the better. In the mean time, it seems to me the attitude of most Baptists should be that of expectancy—this in view of the fact that a sufficient number have already enlisted to make the experiment.

Let us stand by the different Boards and usual methods of work till the "better way" gets beyond the domain of theory. I say this in view of the fact that the same ratio of losses on the part of a number of strong and influential churches to State Missions, Ministerial Education and the Orphanage as shown by this church for the past two years would go far to cripple, if not to wreck, one or all of these fundamental departments of home work. I base this latter statement on the ground that the year recently closed was a very hard one with the Orphanage, that the demands are increasing at that institution which calls for increased, rather than lessened contributions; that it is not now known what will be the outcome for State Missions this year, and that the Board of Ministerial Education is represented to be in the greatest embarrassment since the war.

Indeed, it is an open question as to whether or not the discussion, intemperate on some occasions, of mission methods before churches and associations by overshadowing home departments of work has not already contributed the largest share to the embarrassment felt by these objects at present and [illegible] in the future. As the controversy [illegible] and must be settled, not by an appeal to the arbitrament of the sword but [illegible] of cold facts, I submit the foregoing [illegible] spirit of Christian criticism. [illegible] society, liberality and spirit of the church are "known and [illegible] and may be imitated with profit by churches which stickle for time-honored methods of work, and do nothing. The only question is as to whether or not their zeal for the "Gospel Mission" is "according to knowledge." I grant that with them this is not an "open question"; but the progressive element of the church having voluntarily assumed the responsibility of making a practical test of the "Gospel Mission" methods, I take it they will not object to the statement of any legitimate conclusion drawn from the effect of their position. Let us look to the facts on either side with our hearts open to conviction by the truth, and all will be well in the end.

FRIEND OF THE BOARDS.

A Decision Wanted.

The Baptist denomination never had a better chance for making a great advance movement than it now enjoys. Its greatest engine of power is the printing press. This the great denominational organization, the American Baptist Publication Society, is using with wonderful effect. Whether it shall succeed or not, must depend upon the decision of the denomination in this country to use it.

Colgate University.

The college year is upon us, and the new year's work at Colgate has begun in good earnest. Indeed if the opening is any indication of what the year is to be, nothing but the very best for young men awaits the students of Colgate, for it is a rare thing that the beginning of the college year witnesses a warmer Christian spirit of good fellowship or a more earnest spirit of work among students than is here. We expect such a spirit in a school like this, being Christian as well as Baptist, and having under its tuition more than two hundred students from all parts of the world, studying to be ministers of Christ. The truth is, young men—looking for a college atmosphere saturated so strongly with a clean Christian spirit as to be a protection against bad habits, even those into which students are most likely to fall or indulge, such as chewing, smoking and drinking—cannot afford to overlook Colgate University which has never lost sight of this spirit, since in 1813, under the name of "The School at Hamilton," her first term was opened with one teacher and one student in a hired upper room.

Who can measure the untold good the University has done for the Baptists and for the world since that unpretentious beginning!—having sent out to foreign fields, as she has, 115 missionaries, and to the churches in the various parts of this country 2,000 successful pastors—until now, when the number of students present are about 400, among whom are fifty men pledged to the foreign field, and to whom the Society of Education gives $15,000 yearly in scholarships, besides the sixty-four scholarships and twenty-seven prizes offered by the University.

The one hundred new men, who have entered since the opening on the 14th of September, recognize the advantages they enjoy and are a strong addition to the number of old students, being even more than was expected on account of the stringency in money matters, which, however, has not apparently effected the entrance of new men to the University for the beginning classes are larger than last year, the Freshman class of the college alone having fifteen more men than the same class last year. This increase of number is due to the strong efforts which Dean Andrews and other members of the Faculty have been making for the University during the vacation, to the large distribution of catalogues and better system of advertising during the past year, and to the improvements on the campus, under the direction of Dr. Taylor of the Department of Mathematics. By the way, the Doctor's Calculus has been adopted for use in more than seventy colleges in this country. While the large number of students in these institutions are "doing" the Calculus, we would fain wish that they might catch much of the good Doctor's spirit and enthusiasm for Mathematics.

The new Gymnasium, the corner-stone of which was laid last commencement, is nearing completion. The building is constructed of Hamilton stone, trimmed in Lake Superior brown stone, and is 81 by 94 feet on the ground and 50 feet above to the roof. When completed, it will contain ample accommodations for 400 students. The system of sewage on the campus was completed during the summer. Much grading besides was done and various repairs on the old buildings. Mr. J. B. Colgate, President of the University corporation, meant what he said when he announced that they intended to make this one of the prettiest in the State.

During the summer, Dean Andrews did much travelling and work for the University. Prof. Brigham delivered a course of lectures on Geology at the Colorado Springs Summer School. He visited the mining camps of the State and brought back with him a fine collection of ores, ornamental and building stones. Prof. Smith went down to Philadelphia and delivered lectures before the American Society for University Extension on the Philosophical Thought of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries. Prof. Nichols spent some time securing apparatus for his department of Physics.

CHANGES IN THE FACULTY.

The death of Dr. Harvey leaves the Chair of Pastoral Theology vacant. The good Doctor's successor will be appointed soon. Dr. Burnham has been elected Dean of the Divinity School. Dr. Clark takes this year for a vacation which he is spending at Colorado Springs for the health of himself and wife. This leaves the Chair of Theology vacant while he is away. In the College, Dr. John Green, formerly principal of Colgate Academy, takes charge of the department of Latin, to which he was appointed last year. Prof. R. W. Thomas is at the head of the new department of Rhetoric and Oratory. Prof. Chas. H. Thurber is now principal of the Academy and Professor of Pedagogy in the College.

These men are all well known to the most of Colgate alumni, for they are all prominent in matters of education, and much has been said about them since their appointment last year. One thing, however, is worth noting, and that is Prof. Thurber is assistant to the editor in-chief of the new edition of a Cyclopedia which has an editorial staff of nearly forty prominent specialists.

Some Measures of Greatness.

Steal a chicken, and you are a thief; steal $1,000 from your employer, and you are an embezzler; steal $5,000 from the Government, and you are a defaulter; rob your competitor on the Stock Exchange of $10,000, and you are a financier; rob him of $100,000 to $500,000, and you are a wizard or a Napoleon of finance; wreck a railroad and gather it in, and you are a "magnate"; wreck a great railroad system, and you are a "railroad king"; conduct a "negotiation" by which a strong nation plunders a weak nation of thousands upon thousands of square miles of territory and makes the weak nation pay millions of money indemnity for the wrong it has suffered, and you are a diplomat. EPILEPSY OR FITS

Can this disease be cured? Most physicians say No—I say, Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 30 years study and experiment I have found the remedy.—Epilepsy is cured by it; cured, not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of to-day. Valuable work on the subject, and large bottle of the remedy—sent free for trial. Mention Post-Office and Express address.

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

Letter from Brazil.

"Left at Athens alone," were the words of Paul as he walked through the crowded streets of that great city; alone in the midst of the thronging multitudes; alone, yet surrounded by wealth and culture; alone, while on every hand he could meet with the most learned men anywhere to be found; alone because their wisdom and learning were of this world; alone, too, was Paul in telling the story of the cross; alone in coming to a throne of grace and their pouring out before God the contents of his troubled heart,—and yet he was not alone because the omnipresent God was with him to comfort and help him. Sometimes as I think of the thronging millions here in Brazil who know not God, and at the same time remember how few are those who declare his name, I feel like saying as Paul did, "Left in Brazil alone." Just as we arrived in Brazil five of our missionaries—Rev. J. L. Downing and wife, Rev. E. H. Soper and wife, and Miss Sallie Johnson—were compelled to leave the field on account of failure of health. Viewed from a worldly standpoint the outlook is discouraging, but yet it will not do to give up Brazil. The blessed gospel of Christ must be told to these people. Charles Helmick, a young missionary to Africa, said while dying, "Though every step be over the grave of a missionary, the command of our Lord, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature,' must be obeyed." He who gave the command knew beforehand the difficulties that would have to be encountered. Did I say that we sometimes experienced a sense of loneliness? Not that, because the same one who said "Go into all the world and preach the gospel," also said, "And lo, I am with you all the days." How sweet it is to know that Jesus is with us.

We are now at Juitz de Fora, a beautiful inland town, situated among the mountains, with a population of about 22,000. It is probably the most rapidly growing town in Brazil, and is fast becoming an important and central point. We have a small church here. There are only seven members, but they are all faithful and active. Brother Jeronymo, our young native preacher, is preaching here now while I am learning the language. Last night he preached to a comparatively large crowd. His subject was, "The Crucifixion of our Lord." The work in this place is very encouraging, and if the crowds who come to hear the word continue to increase, we will soon be compelled to open up a larger hall.

Leprosy, a disease almost entirely unknown in the United States, is prevalent here. The most pitiful sight that I have ever beheld are the poor lepers who live outside the city, but are allowed to come up into the streets to beg. Some of them have their hands entirely eaten off, others are quite lame in the feet, and others have lost their ears. How my heart was moved with sympathy as I threw to one of them some pieces of money from my window in the hotel! How I longed to tell him about Jesus, who, while on earth, could cure even the vile leper! Poor men, must they live such miserable lives in this world without the least hope of a happier life in the world to come! Oh, how I wish it were possible for me to tell them about the saving power of Jesus.

The people here, as a rule, are idolaters, that is, they are an image worshipping people. There are numbers of shops where these images are made and sold. The name of Christ is not at all new among the people, but they know nothing of him as a living Saviour. Mary is worshipped while Christ holds only a place in common with the many saints; and even when Christ is spoken of at all he is referred to as a dead Christ, and all the images of him represent him as dead or dying. There is a tendency for worshippers to become, in some degree, like the object worshipped. Let us see what is the natural and final result of image-worship, and when we say image-worship we make no distinction between the idolatry of pagans and the worship of the so-called images of Christ, because they are identically the same. God is infinitely great and good, and perfect in all his attributes, and as none other than such a being is worthy of the worship of man before whom is placed the possibility of becoming perfect also at some period of his existence, so we are commanded to worship God. Now we read that man was made in the image of God; carefully note, however, that it is man made in God's image, not God in man's image. The painting is the image of the landscape, but the landscape is not the image of the painting; for there is much in the landscape that has nothing corresponding to it in the painting; just so there is much in the character of God which finds not the least counterpart in man, the soiled image of that character. But idolatry or image-worship perversely makes God in the image of man. Even if idolatry were the worshipping of a man, real or ideal, it would fall as far short of true worship as the poor, blighted and imperfect character of man falls below the exalted and infinitely pure and perfect character of God; but idolatry does not stop at man-worship, but makes an image of man (who is the imperfect image of God) and gives to this image of man the name of God and the reverence which belongs alone to God. We clearly see that the logical conclusion is that idolatry, or image-worship of whatever form, is the worshipping of the image of an image. We return to the statement above made that there is a tendency for worshippers to become like the object worshipped. Now if the worship of God, the original character after which man was made, has an elevating and sanctifying influence upon the human soul, then the worship of an image, whether it be called by the name of saint, Mary, or Christ himself, tends in the same proportion to degrade and make sensual those who worship it. Far better that men worship nothing than to worship a dead image, when the worshipping of this image will tend to deaden the worshippers. In Brazil the results of this long continued image worship are visible on every hand. The spiritual sensibilities of the people are entirely blunted, and they have become sensual in the extreme. Romish priests in vain tell us that these images are symbols to aid in comprehending the immaterial and spiritual. The carnal mindedness and materialism which are to-day ruining the social and political life of the Brazilian people, (not to speak of the spiritual life), are without the least doubt the partial fruits of this sensual image-worship.

Brethren, pray for us, that we may do our whole duty in trying to lead these benighted people to know and accept Christ.

What Answer Should I Give!

What answer should I give to the question, "What is the faith once delivered to the saints?"

I am living down here in hearing of the surf as it madly lashes the long-beaten shores of the old Palmetto State, and sometimes when the billows are very much disturbed by heavy winds, and their angry roar and mad dashing are more than usually severe, I am reminded of the state of the religious world.

Now it does seem to me that the true mission of that blessed grace which our dear Saviour Jesus Christ has wrought out for us, and which he so graciously bestows upon the conditions of repentance for our sins, and faith in him, which will naturally be followed by obedience to his commands, would lead all who thus believe to see, and in most respects act, alike. That is, I have thought, believed and taught that all such would contend in most respects for the same thing. How is it, then, that we are ostracized, called churchy, and "stuck up," accused of being stiff, one-sided, and self-righteous, when we attempt to teach and enforce what Christ taught and commanded and the apostles enforced and practiced? If we must go hand in glove with all the isms of the day because men like them, (not to say believe them), and if in order to have a place among respectable Christians we are driven to the necessity of an infinite number of changes to suit the times, customs and people among whom we live, then I ask for what shall we contend? Shall we contend for the faith once delivered to the saints? or for the faiths now contended for by men? If I can have a well-defined "thus saith the Lord" for what I believe, then I am not ashamed nor afraid of all the opposition that may come. Why not stand firm upon our principles as Baptists? Why allow any alteration or amendments, or any little new thing to intrude? Surely we are no wiser, no better able to formulate a system for man's salvation, than were those who lived in apostolic times. Then, what use has the church for the aid and co operation of societies outside of its jurisdiction? We want men saved, and to this end we have always contended that by a belief in and conformity to "the faith once delivered to the saints," they are surely saved. And we further contend that the distinctive principles held by the Baptists as the church are correct, and is "the faith once delivered to the saints."

Now if I am mistaken, I would be glad for some of the good brethren to instruct me. And I will further state that I deprecate confederations with any except upon Bible terms.

Your humble brother,

D. N. GORE.

Not on the Committee.

Every kind of human action expresses itself nowadays through some sort of constitution and by-laws. I believe in organization, but I believe in something else. We may have more machinery than we have power. We are afraid to do anything unless we are on a committee. Here is a man, he did not pass a singing book last Sunday to the stranger who was in his own pew or in the one next to him, because he was not on the book committee. He did not speak to him, or invite him to come again, because he was not on the speaking committee or the invitation committee. He took no part in the meeting to-night; he is not in to-night's section; does not support the pastor, or missions, or Sabbath-school, or evangelistic work, or prayer-meeting; he is not on these special committees, or if he were on any of them, it was last year.—Kittredge Wheeler.

"When a young man engages in a course of dissipation, it is not uncommon to hear the remark: "Oh, never mind, he is only sowing his wild oats; he will settle down by and by." One of the invariable laws of the moral, as well as the physical world is that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." If a man sows wild oats, he will reap wild oats, and the crop will turn out a most expensive one. He will reap his crop in loss of moral purity, loss of self respect, loss of health, loss of reputation, and at some time in after life, at some critical point in his career, the sins of his youth will rise up and turn the scales against him. Young man, don't sow any wild oats."—Baptist Examiner.

Six Reasons for Becoming a Christian To-day.

1. Because of Christ's loving invitation. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matt. 11: 28.

2. Because Satan is a hard master. "The wages of sin is death." Romans 6: 23.

3. Because life is uncertain. "Boast not thyself of to-morrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth." Prov. 27: 1.

4. Because the Spirit may leave you. "My Spirit shall not always strive with man." Genesis 6: 3.

5. Because coming to Christ will bring real happiness. "Whoso trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." Prov. 16: 20.

6. Because mercy is offered only to-day. "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation." 2 Cor. 6: 2.—F. A. E., in The Standard.

Sayings from Spurgeon.

When a man is going down, don't increase his trouble; when everybody is blaming him, do not swell the chorus of censure.

Answer all who slander you, and you will have a vocation for life. Prosecute every slanderer, and you will need a court to yourself.

It would do many an employer good to live for a week on the small wages he pays his men on Saturday.

There are no chance shots. An overruling Providence arranges even the hurly-burly of battle. The arrow which pierces between the joints of the harness bears a message from God.

Never tell anybody an unpalatable truth when it can answer no good purpose. This sort of unnecessary candor is sometimes prompted by a mere looseness of tongue. If you have a taste for sharp repartee, restrain it. It is better to lose a jest than a friend—to miss an opportunity of saying a "good thing" than to make an enemy.—Ex.

Most people who go wrong know what road they are on and where it leads. They don't lack sense so much as they lack purpose. It is our business to offer them motive power. Just one thing can save them—a new birth—a new life—the grace of God in the heart.—L. C. Randolph.

Despondency is not a state of humility. On the contrary, it is the vexation and despair of a cowardly pride; nothing is worse. Whether we stumble or whether we fall we must only think of rising again and going on in our course.—Fenelon.

Who has a greater combat than he that laboreth to overcome himself? This ought to be our endeavor, to conquer ourselves and to make a further growth in holiness.—Thomas a Kempis.

A Need.

As Mr. Moody said in Chicago, "Our great need is a personal interview with God."

We have genius, eloquence, learning, sagacity, wealth and organization; but what are all these without heart loyalty to Jesus Christ? Instead of being separated to God, many in the church live in open, shameless, conformity with the world. (Jas. 4: 4; Rom. 12: 1, 2; 2 Cor. 6: 16–18.)

Some men and women who are the salt of our city population, are not known in the public prints, but they are known in these back alleys and slums. Their kingdom comes, not with observation, but where it comes there comes the saving power of the gospel. Jesus sits no longer weeping over against the cities. He has shattered the tomb door, and is in the midst of the cities saving men.—A. T. Pierson.

Subject for October: Missions in Southern States.

STATE MISSIONS.—"If any man provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he is worse than an infidel." Missionaries, 307, working among native population in cities, country, mountains and frontier, among colored people, Germans, French, Mexicans and Swedes.

STUDY TOPICS.—Religious destitution of many portions of the South. Growing necessity for work among the foreign population. Demand for missionaries in the trans-Mississippi region. Opportunities for work among the colored people. Rapid increase of our denomination in the South.

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Missions in Southern States.

WHAT A FIELD FOR WORK.

It reaches from Maryland to Texas, from Missouri to Florida. Where can you find a richer soil, a nobler people, a grander field for Christian enterprise?

OUR SOUTHERN CITIES.

Two of our largest cities, Baltimore and New Orleans, are the strongholds of Romanism in Amerida, and should receive special attention, for they are small now compared with what they will be in a few years. The time, indeed, is not distant, when the small towns of the South will have grown into large cities. This is an age of city building. "The world is moving to town," and there is no reason to believe that the South will be an exception to the rule. A recent newspaper caricature represented a man with a four-horse plow carefully running a furrow. "Is this your farm?" asked a traveler. "Farm!" replied the plowman, "This is a city, and the place where you now stand is the corner of Commerce and Emporium streets." This caricature on Southern progress was suggested by fact. Cities are growing in some places as if by magic, and in these growing cities is the place to put men and money. Every one of them is to be an heart center, receiving and sending out its pure and vicious blood. We all agree that it is easier to impress a growing child than a mature man. Let us of the South take for Christ our growing cities while they are young, before the evil days shall come, when the Devil, Infidelity, Liquor and Romanism have taken possession.

THE COLORED PEOPLE.

They are to a large extent evangelized. Most of them belong to some church. If there is an infidel among them, we have never heard of it. Loyal to the government, none of them are anarchists. Liberal to a fault, they give to their church collections more in proportion to their means than the whites. To a large extent Baptists, many of them baptized before the war into the church of their owners, they appeal most strongly to us for help. What they need is training and development. Among their ministers are not a few with zeal according to knowledge, but it must be confessed that the most of them, especially in the rural districts, are ignorant and incapable of instructing their flocks. All honor to our brethren of the North for the men and money they have given to establish and support colleges for the training of their ministry. But our appeal now is to the white churches and ministers of the South. We can do more for them than can be done by schools and colleges. Visit their churches and preach to them frequently. Organize Sunday-schools on Sunday afternoons among the children of the village and farm neighborhood. Introduce among them the best Christian literature. Make them feel that they have a friend who seeks not theirs, but them; not their votes for a favorite candidate, but their influence for a pure religion. —A. C. Dixon.

We live in a new and exceptional age. America is another name for opportunity. Our whole history appears like the last effort of the divine providence in behalf of the human race.—Emerson.

$7.00 FOR A Double Breast-

From Rev. A. W Burfoot.

Dear Recorder:—The good Lord has wonderfully blessed me in my work with my church this year. Our first meeting began at Ballard's Bridge on Tuesday after the first Sunday in September and lasted through the week. Sickness in my family prevented my being there except one evening. Revs. C. B. Williams, J. T. Riddick and Riley Monds were there and did noble work for the Lord. Thirty-one were added.

We began at Bethel the next week, and I had the help of Rev. J. F. Tuttle. The Lord seemed greatly to bless his people. Brother Tuttle did his best preaching and there were added twenty-one to the church.

The next week Revs. Josiah Elliott and J. T. Riddick helped me at Macedonia church and twenty-one were added here.

I feel grateful to the Lord for his abundant blessings. A. W. BURFOOT.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Western Union of the Eastern Association.

The Western Union of the Eastern Association will meet with the Baptist church in Clinton, Sampson county, on Friday before the fifth Sunday in October, 1893. Introductory sermon by Rev. W. L. Bilbro.

TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION.

1. The interdependence of churches, or what is the Scriptural relation of one Baptist church to another and to associations and conventions? By Rev. J. T. Albritton.

2. Ministerial education. By Bro. W. B. Stewart. A. F. ROBINSON, Clerk.

October 9, 1893.

SOUTHERN UNION, EASTERN ASSOCIATION.

This Union will meet with the Bethlehem church, Pender county, on Friday before the fifth Sunday in October, 1893. Introductory sermon to be preached by Rev. M. C. Walton.

The following are the queries for discussion:

1. What does making a sacrifice for the sake of Christ involve? Speakers—Rev. W. B. Oliver, Bro. H. A. Bland.

2. Who is my neighbor, and what is my duty towards him? Speakers—Rev. M. C. Walton, Bro. G. W. Corbett.

3. May I know that I am a Christian, or only hope so? Speakers—Revs. F. T. Wooten and S. D. Swaim.

4. Does the world get better or worse? Speakers—Rev. R. E. Peele, Bro. J. T. Bland. SECRETARY.

P. S.—Those coming by rail or steamer will be met if they will notify Bro. W. C. Keith, Clerk of Bethlehem church, at Keith P. O., N. C.

The Eastern and the Atlantic.

Having attended the late sessions of both the above Associations, I find myself indulging in some reflections which I propose to write down for the readers of the RECORDER.

The Eastern Association met with Johnson's church Oct. 3d to 5th, 1893. This old church, now worshipping in a new, beautiful house, was organized by Elder Francis Oliver soon after he entered the pastorate of Bear Marsh church, Duplin county, May 17th, 1792. Johnson's was first called Nahunga, and their place of worship was near Cooper's Mill, about five miles north of Kenansville.

The writer had been appointed to preach the missionary sermon, but he thought it far better that Rev. R. T. Bryan, returned missionary from China, and great grandson of Francis Oliver, should preach, which, after much entreaty, he consented to do.

The Foreign Mission Board and its methods have been subjected to much adverse criticism within the territory of the Eastern Association, and the consequences are deplorable. I must say, with due deference to brethren who have expressed themselves otherwise, that discussion, instead of being harmless, has been very hurtful to the organized work of the denomination. True, could we have had R. T. Bryan all along to present and defend the organized work of the Board in the able manner in which he did it at the recent session of the old Eastern, greater good than evil might have come out of the discussion of mission methods.

In the year 1817, or more than seventy-six years ago, North Carolina Baptists gave over $1,500 to foreign missions through the old Triennial Convention. We gave more that year than any other State in the Union, Massachusetts excepted. About that time [illegible] began their adverse criticisms of [illegible] methods, destroying confidence in [illegible] and wisdom of those entrusted [illegible] mission work. In consequence [illegible] contributions from our State rapidly diminished, and many of the [illegible] antagonized the work perished. Having the lamp of experience to guide us, greater will be our sin and punishment if we throw ourselves in the way of the great work that God has signally blessed and sanctioned through a century of prayerful effort to give the gospel to the world.

Let not the Lord's people be led by the jack o'-the-lanterns of new methods into the marshes of black disappointment and dismal failure, whither so many have been led before by unwise and impulsive brethren.

I admit that Conventions, Boards, &c., are extra-scriptural. So also is the so-called church group plan of missions. It cannot be proved that any church or church group of apostolic times ever sent out a missionary with the specific and primary object of converting the heathen, or became responsible for his support. True, Paul went into heathen lands preaching the gospel first to Jews and then to Gentiles. While in Europe preaching the gospel he was aided by brethren on the field, but I can find no proof that any home church ever sent him over there, or gave him a cent after he got there. God sent him there from Troas, without the intervention of any church.

While Boards and Conventions are extra-scriptural, I don't believe they are anti-scriptural, but rather they are the outcome of the best thought of our wisest and best men, or the result of practical, common sense consecrated to God's service. If we are wrong in our organized work, then Carey, Judson, Boardman, Yates, and their fellow-missionaries were all wrong, and deserved to wear a fool's cap to their graves.

At the Atlantic Association, which met with Seven Springs church October 10th to 12th, 1893, brethren came together with no divided counsels. At one place, with one accord, we had the tokens of the divine presence and blessing. This young body numbers about thirty-two churches, ten or twelve of which are weak mission stations. Yet, hard as are the times, the finance committee reported over $600 sent up for the objects of the Association.

Brethren Caddell, Durham, Hancock, Hobgood, Brewer, Peterson, Hilliard, Edwards, Mills, and other visitors whose names I cannot now recall, were there, and most of them made excellent speeches.

No Association has a better executive board than the Atlantic has, and no board has a better chairman than Brother J. C. Whitty of Newbern.

We had good sermons and speeches from brethren Jenkins, Jones, Ford, Rivenbark, Whitty, and other home brethren I cannot now recall.

We parted as we had met—with the blessing of God. May it abide upon us!

A Good Cow.

Inquiries are occasionally received as to what constitutes a good dairy cow. If more farmers gave this matter attention it would be better for their pocket books. A good cow is simply a good cow. The weight, color, breed, pedigree—these things govern her cost rather than her worth. A blocky, beefy, square built cow is a good one—to sell, and so is her steer calf. If this steer calf must enter into your calculations, then be controlled by that fact. If you don't care for steer calves but do care for good cows, then cut entirely loose from steer doctrines. Farmers have been making a bad mistake. They look first for a good big, nice cow; they should look first for a good big yield of milk. A good dairy cow is one which gives good milk and gives a quantity of it. That is the whole dairy catechism, unless to this we add that the best cow is the one which makes the most butter fat from a given quantity of feed. The scales and the Babcock test are the umpires, and it is nonsense longer to go counter to their decision. Get down to simple principles. If butter or cheese is what you want, don't be led aside by any steer calf sophistry. If steer calves are what you want, raise them and do the best you can with the cows which give them to you. You have complicated your business by combining beef and butter and few there be that don't run against "hard times" in following that road.—Orange Judd Farmer.

A sermon in four words on the vanity of earthly possessions: "Shrouds have no pockets."—Ex.

Seaside Sermons.

"Seaside Sermons," written by the recent Morehead City pastor, is a booklet of 54 pages, and contains seven discourses on the following subjects: (1) Abuse of the Tongue, (2) Sabbath Desecration, (3) Irreverence, (4) Profanity, (5) The Saloon, the City, the Church, (6) The Holly and the Christ, (7) Samson. These sermons were published in compliance with the wishes of those who heard them. It is hoped that in this form they may exert a more permanent influence and be more widely appreciated.

Press Comments.

Newbern Journal: "Seven excellent and practical sermons suited to the affairs of every day life. . . . A valuable little book." Lenoir Topic: "Interesting and taking sermons. . . . A literary treat." Gastonia Gazette: "The sermons are well constructed and tersely expressed. The language is remarkable for its picturesque figures, striking phrases, and often for its blade-like sharpness." Charity and Children: "Short and very pleasant. . . . They will be sure to make you better."

It is desired to sell in lots the few hundred copies on hand. Hence the following offers: 25 copies for $3 50; 50 copies for $6.75; 75 copies for $9.75; 100 copies for $12 50; all postage or express charges prepaid. THE STANDARD GEM ROLLER ORGAN.
IS THE WONDER OF THE AGE.

PLAYS OVER 600 PIECES. SO SIMPLE A CHILD CAN PLAY IT. YOU CAN GET IT FREE!

Our Gem Roller Organ now stands unparalleled in the history of Automatic musical instruments. It is as near to ideal of a perfect home instrument as it is possible to make it. Requiring no knowledge of music, any one can play the most elaborate and difficult pieces, such as Sacred Music, Waltzes, Schottische Polkas, Quadrilles, Medleys, Horapipes, &c. It is a perfect accompaniment for singing. It will save its cost in one evening in furnishing music at a dance. Its reeds are full size, and furnish as much volume as an ordinary Organ.

It uses rollers the same as a music box, and it can never wear out. Finished in the very best of style and workmanship it is a home beautifier in every sense. Just think of it! A full reed organ, playing 600 pieces, for use in Churches and Sunday Schools. Now is the time to adorn your home with this beautiful instrument. This offer is made to introduce our paper and organs into different parts of the country, and is open to reliable persons of either sex, who will promise to show them to our advantage.

A Few of the Tunes the Organ Plays:

Sacred—Sweet Bye-and-Bye; Nearer, My God, to Thee; I Need Thee Every Hour; Onward, Christian Soldiers; Hold The Fort; Almost Persuaded; Where is My Boy To-night? Bringing in the Sheaves; Precious Name, Pierce's Hymn, Federal Street, Rock of Ages, Old Hundred, Beulah Land, God Be With You, Happy Day, Gathering Home; Jesus, Lover of My Soul; He Leadeth Me; Abide with Me; Shall We Gather at the River.

In Wilmington last week, a young man calling himself W. G. Lewis, swindled a jeweler out of a $65 gold watch and two dollars in cash, by passing on him a bogus draft for $67. He escaped.

The Charlotte Observer announces that it is authorized to deny the statement that three students were expelled from Davidson College for hazing. It says they were suspended, and have since been reinstated.

A two story brick store and a frame dwelling in the eastern suburbs of Raleigh were burned on the 11th inst. By an accident the driver of the hook and ladder truck was badly hurt, and a valuable horse severely injured.

The three-masted schooner M. E. Morris, Capt. Jas. Smith, from Charleston to Richmond, Va., with a cargo of phosphate rock, went ashore Friday last, nine miles west of Southport, N. C. The vessel is a total loss; the crew were saved.

Two very rich veins of ore have lately been struck in the famous old Portis mine. Capital in the hands of competent men who have learned mining by practice, not theory, would soon transform the upper part of Nash and the surrounding portions of Franklin, Warren and Halifax into one of the most prosperous mining camps in America.—Rocky Mount Argonaut.

Mr. James B. Cheely, a freight conductor on the Western North Carolina Railroad, was caught between two cars of his train while attempting to make a coupling at Old Fort, on Saturday night week, and so badly injured that he died soon after.

There are now seventy two colored and 162 white pupils in the State institutions for deaf-mutes and blind at Raleigh. Of these 142 are deaf-mutes and ninty-two blind. Next year room will be made for 150 more white blind as all the white deaf-mutes will then be at Morganton.

A correspondent of the Wilmington Star, writing from Burgaw, Pender county, says he planted seven-eighths of an acre in corn last April and from that small portion of ground gathered sixty-five bushels of corn, one thousand pounds of fodder and one thousand pounds of hay.

Mrs. Larkin Estes, aged seventy-five years, living on John's river, Caldwell county, was recently found dead on the bank of a branch near her home. She left home with the intention of going to a neighbor's house, but wandered from the road into the woods, and it is supposed died from exposure as it was raining all the day.

Zeb Brown, a young farmer living three miles north of Asheville, shot and killed "Went" Laughter, a neighbor, on the 9th inst. The trouble was caused, it is said, by Laughter's intimacy with Brown's wife. After the shooting Mrs. Brown made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide. Her husband escaped.

Recently, Joseph L. Cornelius, a Harvard divinity student, stricken with temporary insanity caused by typhoid fever, thrust his head into a burning furnace at the Massachusetts General Hospital, dying soon afterward. Mr. Cornelius was about twenty-five years old, a native of Davidson township, Iredell county, N. C.

Col. W. E. Ardrey, assayer in charge of the mint in this city, says that the business has lately shown a notable increase. This increase of the mint business is significant of renewed activity among the gold miners of this section of North and South Carolina, and shows that our mines continue to produce the yellow metal.—Charlotte News.

A great deal of sorghum syrup, of very fine quality, is being made by Burke county farmers this year. Very little molasses or syrup is imported into this section now, the home supply being abundant and much cheaper and better than that purchased outside the State, and which at one time was so largely imported by the merchants.—Morganton Herald.

Sam Neely, a young negro boy, was convicted of burglary at Gaston court week before last, and sentenced to be hanged the first Friday in December. Neely entered by night the home of Mr. William Allen near Begonia, the occupants being asleep. Mr. Allen awoke and the negro shot him in the head and fled. Allen was in a critical condition for weeks but finally recovered.

In Beaufort county, twelve miles from Washington, Saturday night week, Emanuel Slade, colored, went to a house where his wife was staying, she having left him three weeks before, and requested her to return home. Upon her refusal he struck her a blow with an axe on the back of the neck nearly severing the head from the body. Officers are searching for the murderer.

The railroad commission has received the annual report of the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad for its fiscal year. Last October a two per cent. dividend was paid—the first. It amounted to $5,000 more than the interest on the four per cent. bonds issued by the State in exchange for the original issue of construction bonds. The road will this month declare another dividend of two per cent.—Raleigh cor. Charlotte Observer.

A recent issue of the Charlotte News says: Gold mining circles have been excited for some weeks past over the reported rich finds at the Surface Hill mine in Clear Creek township, and they have cause to be, for the find grows richer each day. There is no fake about it, for the gold is there to show for itself. Out of three pans of ore yesterday, $560 in gold was secured. Nothing like it has ever before been struck in this county.

In Wilmington last Thursday, Willie Hewlet, a youth about nineteen years of age, met with a very serious accident in a machine shop. While grinding a chisel on an emery-wheel, the stone suddenly broke while revolving at a very rapid rate, the parts flying from the axle, one fragment hitting the boy on the head partly scalping him, and fracturing the skull. An operation was performed and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

In the Federal court at Greensboro week before last, Graham Sykes of Chapel Hill was tried on two counts—first, for buying and selling untaxed whiskey, and second, for retailing whiskey without license. He was found guilty on both counts and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment in the Albany penitentiary and to pay a fine of one hundred dollars. For years Sykes had been almost openly selling whiskey to the students and others at Chapel Hill.

The storm of Friday last did considerable damage in this State, particularly in sections of country near Wilmington. The schooner Enchantress was wrecked about two miles south of the city. The damage to rice plantations was severe. At Southport all property on the river-front was more or less damaged. The custom-house building was washed away. The brick foundation of Oak Island lighthouse was undermined and the house settled down in the sand. Pavilions and cottages at Ocean View were swept away or greatly damaged. Near Clinton a tree was blown down upon the house of Mr. John Lane, killing two of his children and injuring a third. It is estimated that the total loss to property in the Wilmington section will reach $150,000.

Because of the withdrawal of several railway and steamship companies from the Southern Railroad and Steamship Association, it is thought that the Association will go to pieces and a general cut in freight rates occur.

J. S. McCaleb who conducted banks in Uniontown and Connellsville, Pa., has failed. His assets amount to about $75,000 while the liabilities will reach $173,000. Italian coke workers who had deposits in the banks, threatened to kill McCaleb.

Mrs. Mary Hoff of Rahway, N. J., aged seventy-five years, had succeeded in saving five hundred dollars in bills, which she kept in an old bureau drawer. Recently she discovered that mice had chewed up all the bills and made a nest of them.

Thirty-two new cases of yellow fever, and two deaths were reported at Brunswick, Ga., on Saturday the 14th inst. Thus far twenty-one deaths have occurred. Seventeen cases had been reported at Jesup, Ga., up to the the 14th, two of which proved fatal.

Another fatal riot has occurred in a suburb of Hamburg, Germany, growing out of the attempts of sanitary officers to enforce the regulations for the prevention of the spread of cholera. A policemen and a health-officer were kicked and beaten to death.

The American Yacht Vigilant has won three races out of five of the International races between England and America for the America's cup, and thus the United States retains the yachting championship of the world. The defeated English yacht was the Valkyrie.

Another West Indian storm swept over the South Atlantic coast last week. Considerable damage was done in Florida, and nineteen people were killed in and around Georgetown, S. C. While not as violent as the two preceding storms, it did very serious damage to unharvested crops; oranges in Florida, and cotton in other States suffering most.

The Postmaster General has offered a standing reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of any person who shall rob the mail while being conveyed in a mail car; $500 for any person who shall rob the mail while passing over star routes and $250 for any one who shall attempt to rob the mails in transit. This reward is to stand during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

The unconditional repealers in the United States Senate utterly failed in carrying out their design of holding the Senate in continuous session until some definite action was taken. One silver advocate held the floor fourteen hours, and many others showed great powers of endurance. It is thought now that a compromise measure will be effected. We hope it will not be another "cowardly makeshift."

The revolution in Brazil is still raging, with the tide of battle favoring Mello, the revolutionary commander, who controls the Brazilian navy, and is at the port of Rio de Janerio with his forces. Foreign residents in the country are under the protection of their respective governments, and the United States has sent additional war-ships to protect her interests. It is thought that the revolution will culminate victoriously for Mello in another week.

Brigadier-General Jos. C. Breckinridge, Inspector-General of the United States Army, has made a report to the Secretary of War, indicating a condition of affairs prevailing in regard to our coast defences officially characterized as "disgraceful." It is shown that almost the entire southern coast on the Atlantic seaboard is absolutely unprotected and at the mercy of a foreign foe. —Washington Cor. N. Y. Herald.

The Red Cross Society has officially accepted and assumed control of the relief of the Sea Island sufferers, tendered some time ago by the government and committees of South Carolina. A telegram states that this fact "implies the housing, feeding, clothing and nursing of thirty thousand people for eight months, with no aid from the government, and no fund but the direct charity of the American people. Our headquarters' address is Beaufort, S. C."

You can buy a chimney to fit your lamp that will last till some accident happens to it.

Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass" is that chimney.

You can have it—your dealer will get it—if you insist on it. He may tell you it costs him three times as much as some others. That is true. He may say they are just as good. Don't you believe it—they may be better for him; he may like the breaking.

JOYNER—The two twin-children of D. F. Joyner of Concord, N. C., died of diphtheria, the one Oct. 2nd, and the other Oct. 5th, 1893. They were twin-boys not a year old. J. O. A.

SMITH—Mrs. Maggie Smith of Concord, N. C., on Aug. 21, 1893, departed this life at the age of thirty-one years. To the last she was fully conscious, and she died full of resignation and hope. While her dear ones were shedding tears around her, she told them she had shed all her tears—she had no tears to shed. A husband and two small children are left to mourn their loss. J. O. ALDERMAN.

McKENZIE—At her residence in Florence county, S. C., on Tuesday, Oct. 10th, 1893, Mrs. Rebecca Ann McKenzie, in the fifty-fifth year of her age. Mrs. McKenzie was born in Richmond county, N. C., and, when quite young, united with the Baptist church at Spring Hill and was baptized by Rev. John Monroe. About twenty-four years ago she married Mr. William McKenzie, a native of Scotland, but who settled in South Carolina. Several years ago Mr. McKenzie died, and now the mother leaves three orphans to make their way through the world without a mother's help and care. Mrs. McKenzie was a highly cultivated woman. She was also a most motherly woman, and combined in marked measure all the queenly graces of the best and purest of her sex. Above all she was a bright and beautiful Christian and served her Master all her life with singular devotion. She was always a loyal Baptist and her children have followed her within the folds of the church she loved. The writer feels, with many others, a personal bereavement in her death. J.

A New Feature.

ARTISTIC Dress Making.

We respectfully beg to state that we have added and opened on Sept. 18th a Dress Making Department. This department has been thoroughly organized after months of careful preparation, and after having at great expense secured the very best talent to be had in their respective capacities, thus guaranteeing perfect equipment, not being excelled in artistic merit by the dress making establishments of any of the northern cities

Our lines of high class dress goods, comprising the newest Silks, Velvets and Dress Woolens are now on sale, and is the richest collection we have ever brought out.

We ask the attention of the ladies of North Carolina to this new feature of our business, assuring them that at moderate prices garments and costumes can be furnished here at home that will have the chic and style of French-made dresses.

Specialties: Bridal trousseaus and [illegible] outfits. Samples sent and [illegible] given.

Let me die when the sun goes down—
In the twilight of my sorrow,
'Tis not worth watching through the night
To live in the to-morrow.

Let me die when the roses fall—
Forgotten but unforgetting—
That live and bloom in the summer day
And die when the sun is setting.

Let me die when the song is sung,
And is hushed the voice of laughter—
When broken heart and zither strings
Make music no more after.

Let me die when the tide goes out
Its crystal sands forsaking.
And let me die when my dream of love
Is over with my waking.

Value of a Good Name.

People do not always recognize that besides those who have a good or a bad name, respectively, there are a great many who have, so to speak, no name at all. Good names and bad names are acquired, and very many people do nothing to distinguish themselves as good or bad. A bad name may be acquired very quickly and sometimes undeservedly, but a good name is only earned by long years of upright conduct. It is this in part which gives it value, for in gaining it habits are established which help to preserve it. A good name is reckoned as of value chiefly because it promotes the business interests of its possessor. The man who has a good name is accorded credit according to his known means, and can borrow without collateral. As the saying goes, his word is as good as his bond. But he enjoys other advantages. He is respected and trusted, his word is accepted as truth. It is far different with the man of bad name. He has no credit. Men do not care to deal with him even when he offers his bond and gives collateral security. They are afraid of some trick whereby they may be cheated. He is neither respected nor trusted, and his word is always doubted. Between these two classes there is a third, the members of which are without a name. They are neither trusted like those who have a good name nor distrusted like those who have a bad name. They may get credit if they give security; they may be believed if their story is supported by evidence, or is not improbable; but they enjoy no such advantages as the trusted man with a good name. Many of the members of this intermediary class are in a transitional stage. They are establishing, but have not yet established, a reputation. If they should prove through long years to be trustworthy and honest, they will be rewarded with a good name; if they should discredit themselves by dishonesty or lying they will acquire a bad name. The man who knows himself to be trustworthy, but has not yet established a reputation, sometimes chafes under the cold distrust of the world, which has not yet taken his measure; but it is useless to fret about it. The good name cannot be forced; it is developed by natural processes. Apart from moral considerations, which would lead to such conduct as insures a good name, the young man who desires to attain success should guard his reputation jealously and seek to lift himself out of the class without a name to the one above it. He can do this only in one way, and that is by being scrupulously exact, honest and truthful. He should also guard against carelessness and neglect of engagements, obligations or duties, for the world measures a man in various ways, and if it finds him tardy in fulfilling engagements and careless in the performance of duties, it will suspect that he may carry these bad habits into his business dealings. It is not enough, therefore, to be honest in business affairs. One must be honest in all things, great and small—scrupulously exact, punctual in meeting engagements, considerate of other people. It is the men who observe all these duties who slowly build up for themselves a good name, leaving behind them some who may be equally honest so far as the mere payment of debts may be concerned. The man who worthily enjoys a good name does not stand upon the letter of his bond, like Shylock; he is a just man and pays a debt just as cheerfully, if only equity requires its payment, as he would pay one that could be collected by law. Extending the range of obligations beyond those in which money is concerned, it may be said that the man of good name is one who respects equity as well as law, while the man of doubtful reputation or no name is one whose honesty is felt to be dependent upon the legal hold one may have upon him. A good name cannot be bought in the market place—it must be earned, and when it has been acquired it becomes, as Cassio says, the immortal part of one's self.—Baltimore Sun.

The woman who works, and is tired, will find a special help in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system. It promotes all the natural functions, and builds up, strengthens, regulates, and cures. For women approaching confinement, nursing mothers, and every weak, run-down, delicate woman, it is an invigorating, supporting tonic that's peculiarly adopted to their needs.

But it's more than that, too. It's the only guaranteed remedy for all the functional disturbances, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of womanhood. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, nervous sensations, internal inflammation, and kindred ailments, if it ever fails to benefit, you have your money back.

Fall Plowing for Spring Crops.

Whenever the corn cutting and wheat sowing are finished fall plowing should begin. So far as the character of the land will admit all the fields intended to be planted to spring crops can be plowed to advantage in the fall, and the earlier the work can be done the better.

Use all reasonable care to turn all the trash under, so that there will be plenty of time for it to rot thoroughly before spring. In the fall is the best time to deepen the plowing, as the action of frost, rain, snow and sunshine tends to make available the latent plant food in the soil. Usually it is not best to deepen the plowing too much at any one time, especially in the spring or fall, just before a crop is to be planted. While there is more or less plant food in the subsoil, it needs exposure to the action of the elements to make it available. If the deepening is done in the fall for spring planting several inches of subsoil can be turned up with profit. Deep stirring of the soil not only supplies a larger quanity of plant food, but lessens the risks of loss in dry weather.

Plow deep and thoroughly. If the soil is left rough, especially when plowing is deeper than ever before, more benefit will be derived through the winter from exposure.

Good furrows should be provided to carry off the surplus water as rapidly as possible taking care to arrange so as to avoid damage by washing.

In addition to the benefit from exposing the soil to the action of the elements, fall plowing affords a much better opportunity of getting the spring seeding and planting done in better season. Not only is there a considerable saving of time, but the land plowed in the fall will be in a condition to work much earlier than if left unplowed. With most spring crops earliness is quite an item and every advantage should be taken to get them planted as early as the condition of the soil will admit.

The plowing requires more than any other operation connected with the planting, and if it is done in the fall will help materially in getting the seeding or planting done in the spring in good season.—The Republic.

Courtesy to Brothers.

Not all sisters realize what powers for good they may be in the lives of their brothers. They also forget, or ignore the fact that courtesy is as much a brother's due, as to any other young man.

An incident which came to my notice will serve as an illustration. A brother and sister, both students of a university, received invitations to a party, and the brother offered himself as his sister's escort. Later, she received a like offer from a young gentleman whose company was both acceptable to herself and considered desirable by her young friends. She declined, saying "she had a previous engagement." The matter chanced to come up in family conversation, not in presence of her brother, and instead of regretting her engagement to him, she said, "I like to go with Charles, I always have a good time!"

It is pleasant to be able to add, that when the young gentleman saw, on the evening of the party, for whom his invitation was declined, he honored her for her courtesy to her brother; but took care a second time to be earlier in his invitation. How many sisters would have considered a like engagement to a brother one that could not be broken, or at least excused?

A sister's influence may be second only to a mother's, in individual cases not even second. Sometimes common interests, congenial tastes, similar pursuits, make it possible for her to be first.

The best mother, of necessity has lost something of her early enthusiasm, forgotten a party of her early ambitions, hopes, and fears. The daughter, because of her youth, may be an invaluable assistant to her mother. She may enlighten the mother's understanding, as to the needs of the son and brother. Together they may plan measures for his good, which neither could plan nor execute alone. Brothers of such sisters, in after years, will not only in the words of the wise man, "Rise up, and call their mothers blessed," but their sisters also. Girls, do you covet the blessing? Then go and do likewise.—Alice Hamilton Rich, in Our Young People.

What a Young Man Did.

A college graduate had hardly received his diploma before he was compelled to face poverty and family disgrace. His father, who had been reputed to be wealthy, was an embezzler and a fugitive from justice. His mother and sisters were entirely dependent upon his modest earnings in a broker's office.

He had planned taking an advanced course of professional study in architecture. His ideal occupation had to be abandoned. He was in love with a charming girl, but ceased to visit her since marriage was out of the question. An opportunity for a year's travel in Europe at a friends expense was given up.

Year after year he maintained a hard, bitter struggle to make a living at uncongenial employment for his mother and sisters, to support his father abroad and to overcome prejudice caused by the family disgrace. He became a successful business man, but was prematurely gray at forty. His life was haunted by the ghosts of his youthful hopes.

Such lives do not furnish material for exciting stories. They are dull and prosaic, but are nevertheless heroic. To give up all that is dear to youth and to be loyal to family obligations sometimes is a crowning triumph of unselfishness.—Youth's Companion.

Impaired digestion cured by Beecham's pills.

A Child's Just Claim.

A good paper or a good book in the home is like the constant presence of a choice spirit among the children. It elevates the tone of the home, it sets the key higher, it makes the introduction of evil more difficult. There ought to be a wholesome literature, a religious literature, in all these home circles. It is an inherited right of the little ones, as much as the right to have clean food. It would be better for them to live and die without ability to read, than that they should learn and love to read only the vile productions which corrupt and destroy them.—Central Baptist.

HEALTHY EXERCISE —fresh air and proper food, help to keep a woman in good condition. It's insufficient for some, weakened or borne down as they are by the ailments and irregularities peculiar to their sex.

They're easily helped, though; there's a remedy in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—that will build up and cure every enfeebled woman. It's the prescription of a physician; has been tested in thousands of cases, and never found wanting.

The only risk that's taken is that of the manufacturers who promise to refund the money if no benefit is experienced.

This "Prescription" reaches the origin of the trouble. Dizziness, fainting spells, and nervous disorders, such as sleeplessness, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, depend upon the irregularities and displacements of the special structures—the "Favorite Prescription" cures by regulating and correcting these functions and organic changes.

Dr. Sage's Remedy positively cures Catarrh.

WE FEEL safe in stating that North Carolina has less to show for her great resources than any other district on earth. It has been repeated time and again that our agricultural and mineral wealth and our climatic conditions in many cases surpass, and in all, compare favorably with those of any other land; and now that our exhibits in the mineral and forestry departments at the Columbian Exposition have been awarded medals, there is no reason for further doubt of the fact. More than this, our agricultural exhibit at the Exposition is surpassed in excellence and variety by none. No one can claim that our people are unworthy; for, in fact, their hospitality and gentility have few equals anywhere. That they are energetic and thrifty is witnessed by their wonderful recovery from the effects of the late war; and that they are law-abiding cannot be denied. Still our State is comparatively poor in the number of its citizens, the extent of its utilized resources, and in the amount of its business transactions.

Blest as we are with productive soil, congenial climate, and untouched mineral resources that would support hundreds of thousands of the street-wanderers and menial servants of more populous localities, we are far poorer than other States with hardly a third of our wealth. It does not excuse us to say that we lack population, for it is no more than natural that a desirable locality should be populous. There are thousands of worthy people already in our borders who could better their circumstances if they would take advantage of those resources which are within their power to develop; and if they were developed, it would not be many years before others from less fortunate States would be glad to join us. "Heaven helps those who help themselves" is a motto that might well guide our people in their present condition. Our State is destined to a glorious future, but her destiny must be wrought by those of her inhabitants who have lived and are now living within her borders. Others will come, but their coming will be at the invitation of her true sons who do not hesitate to expend their energy and invest their wealth in her glorious promise.

TO THE student of modern politics, as he contemplates the action of our law-makers, the Constitution, in former years reputed one of the greatest documents ever produced by human beings, hardly appears to be the great and infallible instrument that our fathers deemed it. Scarcely a bill is introduced but that the cry of "unconstitutional" is raised; and a great fight is often made on the claim. Now it appears to us that the Constitution should be plain enough in all points to be understood by a school boy; and we cannot understand how "grave and reverend" Senators can misunderstand it. Yet the fact is our leading men even now dispute the constitutionality of the National Banking Act, which has been in force quite two decades. The war was caused by a similar dispute.

But recently a weakness of the Constitution, or rather of laws auxiliary to the Constitution, has been made apparent to the whole country. Not ten days ago the minority of Senators overruled the majority, and now, without allowing the merits of the silver question to bias us, it does seem that such procedure is dangerous to our welfare. This is a government by the majority, and if we allow the Senate to be ruled by a minority, how long will it be before the country will be in the same position? Or to view it in another light: The Democratic party has a majority of representatives in the Senate, yet under the rulings in the present session of Congress we can expect to see the Republican minority exert as much influence on legislation as the Democrats. This is a condition, and not a theory. The matter faces us to-day, and when the question of the tariff arises we may see how disagreeable it is, although the present tendency of affairs is, to a large extent, agreeable to our people. The Senate should be governed by well-constructed parliamentary rules, and for one, we think that the "previous question" ruling, as set forth in Mell's Parliamentary Practice, should be allowed; else we may expect to see the action of the Senate delayed on every question, as it has been for the past three months, and a final compromise of all bills favorable to the minority, secured.

THE amendment to the Chinese Exclusion Bill, which has recently received the sanction of the lower house of our National legislature, does not affect the original bill in any material respect, and merely gives the Chinese six more months in which to comply with its requirements. We may expect to see this bill enforced, despite the threats of the Chinese government; and it is our candid opinion that no true American citizen can oppose its enforcement after a thorough consideration of the bill.

If necessary, our government can protect our interests in China, but we have no fears of this necessity arising. The bill is as favorable to the legitimate resident Chinamen as it is to the American public; in fact, it seems to us that the bill might have been written for the especial purpose of protecting those Chinamen who were lawfully residents of the United States. There is no ground for the charge that the bill is onerous or degrading, and we hope that the resident Chinese and the Chinese government may be made to see that their interests depend on the preservation of the provisions of this Act; and that, in case they do not choose to abide by them, the United States government may rise in its power and majesty and enforce the law, on the inviolability of which the future of our land depends.

WE HAVE heard it reported recently that certain of our National legislators were opposing the administration in the present finance discussion for personal reasons; that is, they opposed the President's wishes, not because they thought he was wrong, but to vent their spite on him for not giving them as much patronage as they had expected. Such men cannot be relied on; they stand in the same position as the representatives who vote with the administration in order to gain its patronage. Neither of these classes of legislators are above the ordinary "boodle" alderman.

We need men in Congress who have opinions, and who will stick to them, whether the President favors their recommendation or not; and the man who will change his vote to spite the President is no better than he who is bought with patronage, and both are unworthy of their trusts.

Board or No Board.

AN EXHAUSTIVE DISCUSSION OF AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.

My attention has been called to Bro. Herring's propositions, as recorded on page 44 of the proceedings of the Southern Baptist Convention. I love and esteem Bro. Herring very much, but cannot help feeling that his judgment is greatly at fault. His plan would practically do away with the Foreign Mission Board altogether, as it would leave nothing for them to do. I, on the contrary, am persuaded that we need the Board for the effective prosecution of the mission work. Whether we look at the home work of the Board or its work in foreign lands, it is needed in order that our mission work may be carried on in the most economical and efficient manner.

I.—HOME WORK FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS.

1. Transmission of funds. The mere transmission of money to foreign lands, the only function which Bro. Herring would allow the Board, is the least important of their duties. Any Bank could do this, and probably at a less cost (if they did not charge too high a commission), as the rent of the boardroom, salaries, &c., would not have to come out of it. But it is the apportionment of funds to the various fields that demands the judgment and wisdom of the Board; it is meeting unexpected demands upon their credit, caused by sudden exigencies on the mission field, or securing the endorsement of their notes, owing to the failure of the churches to send up their subscriptions in time, that give them anxiety.

If the Southern Baptist churches are to have efficient missions in various lands, I do not see how the work can be accomplished without a board. Partisan and guerilla warfare may vex the enemy, but to accomplish a permanent conquest a well-ordered plan is needful.

2. Missionary intelligence. The Centennial effort was termed an educational campaign. One great want of our churches is missionary intelligence. Those who are already contributing for missions must know how their money is spent, and those who have not begun to give, must become interested in the Lord's work among the heathen. How is this work to be done except through missionary literature? The Foreign Mission Journal and the leaflets and tracts from the Women's Mission Room have already been the means, in God's hands of cultivating intelligent giving among our people. They have been the instruments of enkindling and keeping warm the missionary spirit among the young, and of cultivating systematic and regular beneficence. No paper issued by a single church or association could give the varied and wide information that our general publications do. Without some central bureau of intelligence our churches would soon be wofully behind those of other denominations.

3. The plan of separate missions has been a failure. Of late years brethren Baldwin and Powell have gone forth with a noble spirit of consecration and enthusiasm; but what has been the issue of their enterprise? The very spirit of abandon and faith (?) which proves so attractive to many earnest-hearted believers and creates so much enthusiasm, often proves of less value in the field than the staying qualities. The Romans are said to have chosen their centurions, not on account of their dash and daring, but for their never being panic stricken or taken at unawares. Most of those who most earnestly supported these self-denying men now feel that it is wiser to send out men of sober judgment and to trust a board to select them. A long siege is needed to undermine false systems of religion; the work cannot be accomplished by an unsupported cavalry charge.

The Goshen Association undertook the support of Bro. Cabiness, and the Big Hatchie Association that of Bro. Crawford. It is well that it is in connection with the Board; for in both cases, I believe, the support of these brethren finally fell upon the Board. Churches becoming responsible for a man's support under the Board is a good plan, but I fear that, if they acted entirely independently of the Board, there would be much waste of power. The ancient Egyptians, and of late modern European engineers, have opened artificial lakes as storage reservoirs for the waters of the Nile, and have thus largely increased the area of cultivation in that land. Thus a board acts as an equalizer, and, by collecting money from many sources, averages the supply to each field and makes it possible to do steady, progressive work. Spasmodic work accomplishes but little. Years of seed sowing often precede the joy of the harvest in heathen lands.

Bad crops in the country or a disastrous fire in a city may so cripple the resources of a single church, or even a group of churches, as to make it almost impossible for them to meet their responsibilities with regard to a work in a distant land. The same principle of the equalizing of burdens that proves useful in insurance companies and beneficial associations holds good with regard to the earlier stages of Christian work, both at home and abroad.

4. The experience and judgment of a board are useful in selecting men for the field. Almost every board has to reject as many applicants for appointment as it accepts. Years of experience teach men the physical and moral make up that are best for particular fields. Individual churches may be better judges of a man's piety, but they cannot judge so well of his fitness for a special field. If they will certify the Board as to their confidence in his piety and consecration, the Board can be the better judges of many other qualifications. I have known of instances where a board has sent out missionaries against their own judgment, owing to pressure from the churches, and these men have proved failures. It may be poor health, it may be love of change, it may be disappointment at home; but after spending a year or two on the field they have had to return.

5. To conduct our foreign work by means of individual churches would be to work differently here from what experience has proved to be the most efficient method in other departments of Christian effort. If the motto for Foreign Missions should be "Churches to the front," and everything else is unscriptural, the same principle applies to Home Missions and State Missions and Seminaries. Each church should send a man to work among the Indians, or the Negroes, or the frontier settlements of our own land, or the destitute portions of our own State, or should get its own pastor to train any young man who wished to study for the ministry. Why should the foreign field be an exception? The moment a group of churches or an association attempts to do any joint work, they must commit it to a single man or a committee, and then we have a secretary or a board, though it may be under another name. Some strong city churches may be able to send a man to a foreign field and sustain him in his work there, but the great mass of our churches would be cut off from all privilege and responsibility of helping in the conversion of the heathen. This would be a great calamity for the cause. It would undermine any effort to develop the resources of our churches by cultivating systematic beneficence. It would deprive the great mass of our membership of the opportunity of giving, except for local objects, and would be doing despite to God's poor ones in order that a few rich churches might conduct mission work in a way to please themselves. It may be well for some men, who have the means, to go out as self supporting, independent missionaries, and for some church, which has the means, to send out one of its own members as its representative among the heathen; but the great majority of preachers and of churches cannot do the work in that way. Nor would it be best for the continuity or efficiency of the work or the growth in liberality of the churches at home that it should be so. A wealthy preacher may preach for nothing, or a wealthy layman may build a church at his own expense; but such things do not tend for the good of the cause on the whole, but only serve to stunt the liberality of the members of the church.

6. A board tends to secure the missionaries stated and equal salaries. It may be said that the other plan tends to throw the missionary more directly on God for the supply of his daily wants. It may be so. But the same rule should apply at home. If it is best for pastors and professors in our colleges to have a regular salary, it is quite as important that a man removed from his friends, with no one but God to whom to look, should have a stated support. It is well known that many churches are neglectful with regard to paying the salaries promised to pastors. If this be the case with those whose needs are daily before the eyes of their people, how would it be with missionaries out of sight, whose wants would be known only through letters asking for remittances? The minister at home has his remedy. If the church fails to fulfil its promise and give him a living support, he can resign and seek work elsewhere; but a missionary, if he wished to resign, would have to secure the means of paying his passage home before he could take the first step.

Then, there would not "be an equality" as to salaries. A man with a large family might get no more than one with none. All would depend on the church who supported him. At home a man's salary is dependent to a great extent on his ability as a preacher, his efficiency as a pastor, his tactfulness, or his gaining the affection of those to whom he ministers; in the foreign field much would depend on his own representation of his work or his needs.

7. To abolish the Board would tend to narrow the interest and sympathies of a church to a single field. The church which supports a missionary in Mexico would be doing nothing for the heathen, and the churches which sent a man to Africa would be giving no help to our brethren laboring in papal lands. This seems to me to be different from Paul's doctrine as to the solidarity and fellowship of all believers. Individuals in the church who felt called of the Spirit to help the cause elsewhere would be deprived of the opportunity; whereas now there is perfect liberty in giving. Any one who wishes may specify the field to which his contribution is to go, but the mass of our members will give to the Lord's cause in all destitute fields.

II.—THE WORK ABROAD.

If a board is of service for the advancement of the Foreign Mission work at home, it is equally useful in securing the efficiency of the work on the field.

1. It tends to secure continuity and permanence in the work. The work of planting Christianity in a foreign land is not a mere transient one. Paul compares it to cultivating a field—"Ye are God's husbandry;" to building a house—"God's building." Some persons have an idea that all that is needed to preach the gospel is to bear a testimony. I knew a man who called himself an independent missionary, who learned simply to repeat the Creed and the Lord's prayer, and went about the villages selling books and repeating these sentences, persuading himself that he had offered the gospel to the Chinese, and if it was rejected it was at their peril. Others go to the other extreme and think that to preach the gospel means to open a school; that there is no hope for the present generation, but that the young are our only hope. These are both mistakes. Announcing the gospel message and bearing an earnest, intelligent testimony to God's grace in Christ Jesus is indeed our primary duty; but it does not embrace the whole commission: training the young is a duty, but attention should be paid especially to the children of our converts. Planting the gospel includes a series of duties.

"Testifying the gospel of the grace of God" to the heathen is the chief work of a missionary, but, if God gives him converts, they must be taught. When the second generation come on, they must not be neglected. The objection to a single church being responsible for a station is that, if their missionary breaks down or goes home, there is no one to take up the work. A missionary, after many disappointments, succeeds in renting a dwelling and leasing and fitting up a chapel in some town; after four or five years his health fails, or after eight or ten years he returns home. What is to become of the advantage gained? Can the church support two men, so that the young man can be learning the language and preparing to take up the work? If not, then there must be a time when there is no leader. A church at home without a pastor for two or three years is apt to retrograde; much more, one among the heathen. If, however, a man comes out in time, he has to spend two or three years in learning the language; if not, the older missionary has to give up his vantage ground, or hand over his work to a missionary, perhaps, of some other denomination. No one but his own church is responsible for the station. His nearest neighbor, supported by another single church, could not forsake his own field to look after that of the man who is going home. If he has gathered a strong native church, they might look after themselves; but if not, what is to become of the few believers—mere babes in Christ? The missionary is morally and legally responsible for the rent until the lease expires; will the home church go on paying it when the house is unoccupied? There are many such practical difficulties. I am convinced that a thoroughly independent localized work cannot be carried on, except with great loss of labor and waste of the Lord's money.

2. Independent mission work may tend to lead men to send too roseate accounts of their work. I do not mean that men would purposely deceive. But it is but human nature for a man to speak hopefully of a work in which he is personally interested, and which he carries on in his own way, without any checks or balances. Some men are very visionary and deal largely "in futures." They picture things less as they are than as they expect them to be. Others are very imaginative, and see present things in a rosy light—very differently from what they are viewed by men of larger experience and more sober judgment. When the interest in the work and the means forthcoming to carry on the work are entirely dependent on the letters of one man or woman, the temptation will be to present everything in as encouraging a light as possible. Instances have occurred, to my own knowledge, where enthusiastic persons, with a vivid power of description, have secured large sums of money for some special branch of work, or some fruitless scheme altogether disproportionate to their real value. The sober, plodding man, cautious and matter-of-fact in his statement, is placed at a great disadvantage, compared with his more vivacious compeer, though he may be really accomplishing a more enduring work. In a mission, a man's (or a woman's) plans must be approved by his brethren on the field before the board will take them up. The home churches too often call for thrilling adventures and interesting incidents. These frequently depend much on a man's temperament, on his recklessness or want of tact. Then, too, novelty has much to do in keeping up interest. When everything is new and the missionary is without experience, it is easy to write entertaining descriptions of the manners and customs of the people. In four or five years, however, the theme is exhausted, and the facts themselves do not strike the missionary. It will then be a difficult task for him to keep up an interest in his field, unless there be a great spiritual ingathering. I remember once of hearing a man complain that the churches which had promised to support him failed to forward the means. Visiting among these churches, I heard the complaint that the missionary failed to write and keep up the interest of the people in his work. I fear this would not prove a solitary instance, if many men were sustained by individual churches independently of a board. For a few years all may go well, but a testing time will come.

3. Avoiding friction on the mission field. It is a sad fact that there is sometimes friction between those who are working for the common Master. It happens sometimes that many city pastors can testify, between pastors at home. A man joins one church when a neighboring pastor thinks rather belongs to his territory.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

Every right-thinking man will admit that it is right for the State to provide deaf and dumb asylums, insane asylums, &c., for the unfortunate within her borders. It is also now generally admitted that it is so important that the masses of our people may have a common school education, that the State acts wisely in supporting a system of common schools for the benefit of her people.

To what extent the State should go beyond these fundamental plans, and provide other institutions supposed to be needed, including those for the higher business and intellectual training of our young men and women, involves questions on which our wisest scholars and legislators differ. Confining ourselves now to the consideration of the higher culture of our young men and women, it seems to us that we are far on the way to solve any questions involved in it by asking this question: Is it necessary or just that the State should provide by taxation for the higher education of her young men and women?

A common school education is of course quite useful to any one; but is a higher education necessary to make one a useful and safe citizen? Does not education beyond a certain degree, especially when it is only secular, such as the State usually gives, often enable those who receive it to be shrewder rascals than they would be without it? But it may be replied, that because some abuse their power, is no argument against the State placing such power in the hands of those that use it wisely. We admit the force of this reasoning, and yet we entertain some honest doubts about the State providing this higher education, when the religious culture of those who receive it is more or less neglected, and when real religious culture cannot be given by the State without union with the church; a state of things subversive of our National Constitution, and destructive to the principles of religious liberty. If there were no denominational colleges in the State, or if those existing were utterly inefficient, the State would certainly have a right, we suppose, to make such provision, that some of her citizens at least could acquire something beyond a common school education. But in deciding a question of this kind, it seems to us that the State ought to act according to business and common sense principles, just as individuals ought: they propose certain measures in the face of certain facts.

If the State proposes to inaugurate a plan for the higher education of her people, several questions at once occur; (1) Is such education unprovided for in her borders? (2) Will general higher education be better secured by her plan than by those already operating? (3) Has she the right to come into competition with schools built up at the expense of her own citizens, which by their number and efficiency reach the masses of her people more effectually than she can by one or two schools so located as to secure only a limited patronage. Important questions arise here. We invite the views of our thinking men, and especially our college presidents, professors, and educators generally. We are willing to give both sides a hearing. We invite correspondence from brethren of any denomination on this subject. We are open to conviction. We are seeking light on some questions raised by this subject. With the present light before us, we incline to the opinion that if the State makes any provision for the higher education of her people it should be strictly on the university plan in the proper conception of that term. We do not mean the university extension plan, but such further intellectual and business training of her people as could not be secured in schools already existing, and of such a high standard as would never bring the State into ruinous competition with the schools already established by the self-denial and sacrifices of her own people.

FOR THE first time in quite a while, we have not had more matter than the RECORDER columns could hold. We suppose the brethren are too busy to write, or that news is scarce. Remember we are always glad to publish communications that are newsy, interesting, and not too long. If our subscribers wish to express their opinions on subjects that are within the denomination, the RECORDER will be glad to publish them. The RECORDER is to be anything it must be progressive. Its aim is to assist the [illegible] carrying out the command, [illegible] read, write and send unto the

THE LESSONS OF THE STORM.

We are always in the presence of God and God's omnipotence. We see him in the warmth of the sun and the blackness of night. We feel his power as we behold the flowers of the field, and the barren waste of the desert. Like the savage, who knew nothing of his gracious love, or of our Saviour, we see him in the clouds, and hear him in the wind. He is omnipresent and omnipotent. The earth is his, and the fulness thereof. He is accountable for all, even to the fall of the sparrow.

All this being so, it is difficult for us to understand his works; and especially is this true when we contemplate those results that we know to have come directly from his divine hand, which are contrary to our will, and irreconcilable to our belief in his goodness, as far as mortal eyes can see.

Such is the case with the recent death-dealing and devastating storms that have visited our Southern coasts. Nothing within human knowledge can reasonably account for the destruction of those thousands of people, many of them God-fearing and innocent, and the hardship and deprivation that must necessarily afflict thousands of others. Surely it was no visitation of God's vengeance as in the fall of Sodom and Gomorrah; else, a more iniquitous locality would have been afflicted, and the innocent, as in those times, would have been spared.

It does not account for these things to say "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform;" for in his almighty power and wisdom God could have made this lesson far more forcible, without injuring a hair of the head of any human being. He does move in a mysterious way; his actions surpass human understanding in the depth of their wisdom, in the power of their execution, and in the grandeur of their motives, and it shows a pious, God-fearing and Christian spirit to abide his works with faith, hope and resignation. And these are among the more important lessons of the storm. We know his power, for we see it daily; we recognize the mystery of his works in all our actions, but how often do we fail to recognize his goodness amid it all, and to abide in faith in his wisdom, and resignation to his will! The storm teaches us many other lessons, but none so important as these. It teaches us who are not afflicted to thank God for his personal goodness. It teaches us that this is a world of uncertainty, of woe and death, and that there is a power above before which both the just and the unjust must bow. It teaches us to do what we can, before the night comes, with those blessings which he has bestowed upon us to relieve those who are less fortunate. But above all these it teaches us to abide in faith, hope and resignation in his works—faith in his final goodness, recognition of our own weakness, and reliance on him for blessings; trust in him for deliverance out of all dangers and difficulties, and hope that the world may be truly his; resignation to our present ills until the day shall come when the mystery of mysteries shall appear to the saints as an open book. Until then, let us abide his doings; let us pray for his final blessings, and let us work to make the earth his kingdom indeed and in truth.

IT is noticeable that those papers which were boldest in their promises of the good results of the late Parliament of Religions, are now glad to compromise with remarks like the following:

"When the results come to be weighed, it will be found that the Parliament of Religions was neither so bad as its enemies have imagined, nor so good as its friends have believed."

We thank God that most of our people were too strong in the faith and too sensible to be misled by a "fake" and a deception that was so obvious from the beginning.

THIS is said to be the most progressive of eras, and we believe that the World's Fair is an undisputed testimony to this statement. What man cannot do, is now the question of dispute. In former years such developments would have been considered inimical to the Christian religion; in Roger Williams' day, Edison would have been ostracised as an evil spirit. But we are glad that, now that the test is upon us, the Christian religion shows itself fully capable of keeping pace with the marvellous progress of the times. The cause of Christ, and the agencies for the furtherance of that cause, improve with the years. In some instances we have gone too fast and gotten off the track, and to day our progress is surrounded by menacing influences, but we feel confident that the same heroic efforts that have rescued the cause in other years will restore it now, and that there is the guidance of a divine hand over it all that assures us that there is no occasion for fear. Among many others, the recently inaugurated chapel car service, in which the gospel is preached aboard the cars in a great many destitute sections, is a striking evidence of the progress of gospel agencies.

Such disputes as that which is at present afflicting the South, and particularly North Carolina, in regard to mission methods, are anything but beneficial or salutary to the general cause. As a rule, discussion does good by promoting interest, and bringing out interesting facts, and the present series of debates might have had a final good effect but for the sad fact that they have been carried too far. In our opinion, it is time to cease disputing and arguing, and airing of schemes, plans and theories. Let us have a practical demonstration of the "New Method," and by its results let it stand or fall. We are ready to witness the trial with impartial eyes, and feel confident that the same is true of all our conservative brethren. We have enough of talk; now for the test.

A NEW liquor law applicable to the District of Columbia, over which Congress has jurisdiction, will go into effect November 1st. Among other wise provisions of this law is a clause that prohibits the issuing of a bar room license to any place located within four hundred feet of a church or school house. The liquor dealers have made a great fight against this enactment, but up to date have utterly failed to have their way with legislation. Even at this late day they haven't given up the contest, and, it is said, they are urging with some degree of success that in case the law is enforced many hotels and clubs situated in proximity to churches and schools would be compelled to give up their saloon attachments.

The present Congress is not too popular just now, but if they bend the knee to the bar keepers in this instance they may expect to fall before the righteous wrath of their constituents at the end of their terms. It may be inconvenient to some of the Congressmen who are club men, and it may ruin some great hotels, but they are nothing when compared with the iniquitous influences of the saloons. We sincerely hope that the law will be enforced, and that those hotels and clubs which come within its jurisdiction, and which depend on their liquor trade for existence, will be utterly destroyed.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

ATLANTIC ASSOCIATION.

Only a few years ago, Bro. G. L. Finch and about a half dozen brethren and sisters who lived near Seven Springs decided to build here a Baptist church. They have now a neat comfortable house of worship which we would judge cost seven or eight hundred dollars. All of this had been paid off except about one hundred dollars, and we were glad to see that the Association paid in cash and subscriptions most of this amount. The brethren there have made a faithful effort, and richly deserve all the help and encouragement they received outside of their own little congregation. I have never seen people who seemed to appreciate more the meeting of the brethren with them than did these brethren and friends at Seven Springs. Altogether, it was one of the most delightful sessions we have had anywhere. The body is small in numbers, but the plans of work and the contributions are much larger than many Associations twice the size of this one. The Newbern church alone employs a missionary in Craven county at a salary of $400.00, and in addition contributes largely to all other objects of the Convention.

Associational missions were ably discussed by brethren Whitty, Vernon, Ward, Rose, and others, and in this connection Dr. Durham spoke on State Missions.

The Association directed Bro. Whitty to visit as many of the churches as possible during the year, and to secure as much money as he might be able outside of the regular pledges of the churches. Brother Whitty has heretofore been doing work of this sort at his own expense, and now the Association proposes to defray his expenses while he shall do this work.

Bro. C. A. Jenkens, who has recently taken charge of the church at Goldsboro, was not a stranger to many of the brethren in the Association, having labored in this section of the State in his early years in the ministry; and the hearty welcome which the brethren felt at his coming among them ought to greatly encourage and strengthen him for his work.

Bro. Stough was present with his usual amount of sunshine and good cheer. He is hopeful in his work, and greatly delighted with the Kinston brethren.

We noted with pleasure that Bro. H. B. Duffy of Newbern was in much better health than when we last saw him.

Bro. Mills, after making a good talk in the interest of the Orphanage, received the best and most substantial evidence of the sympathy of the Association. Bro. Whitty, who has this matter on his heart, took the collection.

Brethren Hobgood, Brewer and Hilliard spoke on general education, while Bro. Ford spoke specially on ministerial education.

Bro. Albritton, the moderator, was in fine spirits. His good sense, with his genial, kind disposition, makes him a most acceptable officer.

There are no divisions or interruptions in regard to the work of the Association. Each pastor seems to be doing what he can to advance the work on his field, so that the end of each year may see the cause growing not only in numbers, but in greater efficiency of the individual members.

We leave Thursday morning for the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus, feeling under special obligations to brother and sister Simmons, who so kindly cared for us in their splendid home, which was opened to a large number who attended this delightful meeting of the Atlantic Association.

MECKLENBURG AND CABARRUS ASSOCIATION.

Leaving the Atlantic Thursday morning, we reached Charlotte at 12 o'clock Thursday night. The weather was very unfavorable. The wind blew and the rain poured down all day Friday. This kept away many who would have been present had the weather been favorable.

Bro. C. Gresham of the Second church was made moderator, and Bro. I. W. Durham was elected secretary.

Bro. Austin and the brethren in his church had made a very earnest effort to have a large attendance of the Association, and under different circumstances it no doubt would have been a large gathering for the size of this body. The proceedings were, however, very interesting. The speeches struck me as being unusually good.

Dr. Pritchard and Bro. Matheney spoke early Friday morning on Foreign Missions, and notwithstanding the small number present, they each spoke with his usual vigor and earnestness.

Then came the Orphanage, and Bro. Edwards made one of his best efforts on this subject, and got, we think, a first-class collection.

We did not hear Bro. Stringfield's speech for the Baptist Female University, but we heard many speak of it as an excellent effort, and we are sure from all we heard he made some valuable friends to this enterprise.

Bro. Gwaltney met with fine success for the Board of Education, not only in raising a good sum of money for present needs, but in interesting permanently some brethren in this work who have assumed the support for this year of several of the young preachers now on the Board. Bro. Gwaltney has done hard and faithful work, and he, as well as the interest he represents, deserves the most liberal support from the denomination.

Several brethren made speeches on the subject of periodicals. Bro. Austin always shows special interest in this, and made a very strong and earnest speech on this subject, as also did Dr. Pritchard.

At night State Missions was discussed by Dr. Durham in his usual interesting way. The churches, we think, will not fall short of their last year's work.

There is no division on the question of missions or anything else, and where this is the case we can confidently expect to see the churches grow in numbers and in work from year to year.

The brethren did the handsome thing in the entertainment of the Association. I spent a portion of the time with my old friend, Bro. Austin, and a portion with Bro. Gresham, at whose hotel you get the finest meal between New York and New Orleans.

....We regret to announce the sad news that New Hope Baptist church near Whiteville, Columbus county, was blown down by the storm on the 18th. We hope with the aid of the Lord this church may be replaced before many days.

....We were very glad to see Rev. N. S. Jones of Salisbury in our office last week. Bro. Jones is among the leaders of the younger generation of our State preachers, and we are happy to know that his church is moving forward in the cause.

....We were pleased to see Rev. T. B. Hill of Wake Forest College in our office last week. Bro. Hill reports his church at Fairport, Granville county, as in flourishing condition, having recently made considerable internal improvements.

....Five Associations—Mt. Zion, South Fork, Pee Dee, South River and Cape Fear,—were held last week. Bro. Durham attended the three named first, and reports large attendance, good speeches, and good sessions. We have not heard from the other two.

....A good brother informs us that there are ten vacant pastorates in the Flat River Association. This is not a good sign. Let the churches get together and choose some good men to lead them. We have plenty of ministers in the State who are in need of just such fields.

....We return thanks to Mr. Allen E. Warren, junior partner of the Riverside nurseries, Greenville, N. C., for a splendid basket of the New James grape, which was among the finest and best flavored specimens that we have seen. This nursery had a splendid exhibit at the State Fair of their fruit and ornamental trees, grape vines and green-house plants.

....Revs. J. A. Beam and W. F. Watson were engaged in a meeting at Bethel Hill near Roxboro last week. Bro. Watson's resignation of the pastorate of the Roxboro church goes into effect on the 27th, and he enters the work at Norfolk the first of next month.

....I have dabbled a little in a good many books, but my library has for many years got smaller and smaller till now it is down to two books—God's books, yes, God's book, the Bible, and the book of my own experience—my heart.—Dr. J. W. M. Williams, at Mt. Zion Association.

....Rev. A. B. Caudle writes from Monroe: "The Baptist cause is still looking up in these parts, while other sects seem to be declining." Bro. Caudle's work will be round about Waxhaw after this month; preaching twice a month at Waxhaw, once at Mt. Harmony, and once in the district northwest of Waxhaw.

....Rev. J. A. Stradley writes: "From the second Sunday in October the meeting at Stovall Baptist church was protracted five days. The Lord was with us. For four days Rev. J. S. Hardaway of Oxford so preached as to greatly aid, profit and please both pastor and people. Ten members were added to the church, and several prodigals came back to the Father.

....We have received a copy of the first number of the new pictorial lesson help, entitled "Two Years with Jesus," edited by Miss Dimock, and published by the American Baptist Publication Society. The quarterly is well edited, arranged and illustrated, and will prove a valuable "help" in the primary departments of our Sunday-schools.

....We deeply regret that owing to a misunderstanding the RECORDER was not represented at the Little River Association last week. If some brother who attended the Association will send a report of its proceedings we will be very grateful to him. We hope those of our subscribers who intended to pay up at this meeting will send by mail as soon as they can.

....In a recent address on "Journalism" Mr. Chas. A. Dana of the N. Y. Sun, held that the new "Schools of Journalism," recently added to many colleges would be failures, and gave utterance to the following, with which we entirely agree; viz.: "The colleges are rather branching out too much, until they are inclined to take the whole universe into their curriculum and to teach things which do not exactly belong there."

....A brother writes: "The people in my charge are Hardshell Methodists in the Baptist ranks, and all they care for is to get together and sing and shout and go home and be quiet until next time. They won't take denominational papers, and they do nothing for missions." This is a libel on the Hardshell Methodists, and we don't believe they merit it. Our brother strikes the keynote of the whole matter when he says they won't take denominational papers. That is just the matter.

....Rev. J. A. Howard has resigned the pastorate of the church at Reidsville, and we regret to learn will leave the State for Tallapoosa, Ga., to take charge of a church in that city, Nov. 1st. The Review says of Bro. Howard: "Mr. Howard is a man of strong parts—both in intellect and character. Reidsville has had many gifted pulpit orators and earnest gospel workers, but none whose sermons were swept by a broader wash of thought than those of Rev. Mr. Howard. Such men of all-around intellectuality as he are needed here, and we regret his loss to the town."

....We are very glad to publish the following from Rev. W. C. Tyree of Durham: "We had a delightful meeting in Burlington. It was thought by many the best session the Mt. Zion ever held. Every one of the thirty-nine churches were represented but one. We raised all of the $1,000 expected of us for the Centennial Fund, and $1.44 besides. The claims of the RECORDER were forcibly presented by several brethren, &c. We expect to begin a meeting here at the First church next Sunday, and I wish to ask the prayers of God's people in our behalf. May God bless the RECORDER."

....The High Point Baptist church has extended a call to Rev. Rufus W. Weaver of Greensboro to fill its pastorate, made vacant by the resignation of Rev. J. K. Fant. Rev. L. R. Pruett of Mt. Airy was recently called to this church, but declined. It is probable that Bro. Weaver, who has been supplying the church since Bro. Fant's resignation, will accept. Bro. Weaver is a recent graduate of Wake Forest College, where he distinguished himself for the perseverance, energy and success which characterized his works at that institution. For the past two months he has been engaged as a teacher in the Greensboro graded schools. He is a young man of brilliant promise, and we congratulate the High Point people on securing his services.

....Dr. R. R. Overby was sixty-six years old this month, and it does our heart good to know that he is as hale and hearty and useful as ever. May he live many more years of usefulness to the Master. Brother Overby has been engaged in many meetings with the assistance of Dr. C. S. Blackwell this season. At a meeting at Pleasant Grove church, which was built last year, fourteen were added; at South Creek, twenty-eight. Dr. Overby has resigned the pastorate of the latter church, which he first occupied in 1869. He writes: "My connection with the church has been pleasant. It was hard to break away from them." He has recently received a call to the pastorate of the Ebenezer church, which he served for seventeen consecutive years, and he says he feels like serving them again. He closes his welcome letter with "thank Dr. Carter for his late sermon. You would do well to publish it in every issue for two or three months."

....The Western North Carolina Baptist Convention met at Asheville on the 18th inst. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, J. H. Tucker, Asheville; First Vice-President, Rev. George Wharton, Waynesville; Second Vice-President, Rev. D. A. Glenn, Hendersonville; Secretary, Rev. R. A. Sentell, Waynesville; Treasurer, B. Stradley; Auditor, J. D. Brevard. The Charlotte Observer says that about one hundred delegates were present the first day.

From Wake Forest.

The situation with the Board of Education is really serious. Some of last session's bills are still unpaid. And a work which will cost about $800 a month has been undertaken for the present term. But the average receipts are falling far below the outgo. Now this is not sentiment; it is business. If the Baptists of North Carolina desire an educated ministry for the coming generation, and wish to help the young preachers who are really needy, they must send some money or provisions to Bro. Gwaltney for these young men, or else we must send them home.

The great trouble, of course, is hard times and scarcity of money among our people. But even in such desperate straits as many of us find ourselves in now, I believe that when the truth comes to be known as to the real condition of this Board, good men and women will send money to Bro. Gwaltney or Bro. Boushall for its relief.

The Board of Education has been faithful to the great trust imposed upon it. And the outcome of its work for many years past justifies its methods. The Board is not upon the defensive, and I am not in apologetic mood as to its work, past or present. For several years the hand of Bro. John Mitchell or Bro. W. R. Gwaltney has been on the helm. If I cannot trust these two men, I cannot trust anybody. As to the criticisms which reach me second-hand,—some of them made, too, by good men, I simply say to myself, "These brethren do not know all the facts." If they could see the work of the Board in its totality, they would feel as I do and brush away objections like so many cobwebs.

The Board had two meetings last week. And there were, besides, two other meetings of a committee of five appointed to consider the present emergency. It was finally decided that the Board had no right to pile up a great debt, and that, unless the churches should send in more money than they have been doing, aid would be withdrawn from a number of our young ministers. This means, of course, that they will have to leave College. And this action will be taken after the Convention. Bro. Gwaltney is away, attending an Association. If he were here, he could put the case better than I have done. But in his absence I have written because no time should be lost in informing our people as to the real situation. It is not a theory but a condition that confronts us.

Perhaps I ought to say that the members of the Board present at the last meeting pledged $150 for immediate relief. This sum will be increased.

Crossing the Mountains.

The mountain sides are like an artist's pallette. Frost has touched the foliage and brought out great masses of richest coloring. One of our old students, L. S. Cannon, had been telling me of the wonders of the White City at Chicago as we rode up the mountain and through the tunnel, but I said to myself as we rolled around the curves down the long downward grade that nothing in Chicago could surpass in beauty the panorama of natural beauty which stretched for miles on every side. The old gold of the chestnut, the russet of oak and dogwood, the flame-like yellow of the hickory, the crimson of the sumach, and the variegated hues of the maple—most beautiful of all—blended into a picture of surpassing loveliness. O the glory of the October mountains!

THE WESTERN CONVENTION

was the object of my trip. It was a spirited and enthusiastic meeting. A good delegation was present, and a number of the leading Baptist preachers of Western North Carolina. J. H. Tucker, Esq., was elected president, and filled the chair with dignity and grace. Brethren Bell and Bitting delivered eloquent addresses on Sunday-school and publication work. It pained me to see Bro. Tichenor so much enfeebled and broken by his recent illness, but on the platform he showed that he had not lost his wonted fire. Bro. Carroll followed him in an able address on Home Missions. Much interest was manifested in conventional missions, and good collections made. Bro. Morgan, the consecrated layman, is doing a great and blessed work in his agency for this object. A considerable amount of time was given to the Asheville Baptist, now published in Waynesville. Many were the congratulations on the improvement in the paper, and pledges for its support. Bro. Mills was on hand to represent the Orphanage, but had not spoken when I was compelled to leave. The introductory sermon by Brother Glenn made me feel proud of him as an old Wake Forest man. Education received its full share of attention. An admirable report was presented by Rev. E. E. Blount. The brethren of the west look on Wake Forest as their own College, as they have the right to do. I shall be greatly surprised if the number of students from that section is not largely increased. I heard good reports from Mars Hill, Fairview, Hamburg and Hendersonville.

REV. J. L. WHITE

has won the hearts of the people of Asheville. I heard many pleasant things said about his preaching, his work, and the size of his congregations. He is now in great request as an evangelist and is soon to hold meetings in Knoxville and Birmingham.

DR. J. L. M. CURRY.

It was a great pleasure to have the opportunity of spending two or three hours in Salisbury and on the train with this veteran pleader for education. What a truly great man he is! Statesman, orator, author, he is above all a man, and in his love for Christ and the humblest of his brethren, he manifests the loveliest spirit.

ASHEVILLE

seems prosperous in spite of hard times. At least fewer signs of depression are visible there than in most other places which I have visited. This is said to be due in part to the facts that large numbers of visitors continue to flock thither and that Mr. George Vanderbilt continues to spend $30,000 a month on his palace at Biltmore.

Now my face is turned homeward and to the West Chowan Association.

The News About Lenoir.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—There are times when one feels more sensibly than at others the worth of friends and visitors. For ten weeks I have been confined to my room with catarrh of the stomach, and I never before was able, as now, to appreciate the kindness of friends. Kind attentions have come from every hand like little sun rays to cheer and enliven, and to chase away the monotony of seventy days confinement indoors—little bouquets, little words so fitly spoken, little acts so kindly done by neighbors, kin folks and friends. I'm no pessimist and don't believe the world is growing worse. If I were, my recent experience would convince me to the contrary. It does me good to know that others feel an anxiety, and to have such expressions of sympathy, and as I am convalesing and able to begin sitting up, I feel like taking this method of thanking friends from different parts of the State and elsewhere for words of comfort and cheer, and their many prayers through the many long weeks I have lain here. The RECORDER, too, has been a great comfort to me as I have had it read to me—so nice to hear of the many glorious meetings held all over the State.

Our town has been blessed with splendid meetings lately, one conducted at the Methodist church by evangelist J. W. Lee, resulting in seventy-five or eighty professions of religion, and one at the Presbyterian church this week. We hope soon to have a good meeting at our church. The brethren of other denominations have been quite courteous to us, and the utmost harmony prevails. The Methodist congregation have arranged their services so as not to conflict with ours. Everything moves on nicely. We hope the little vine, which we trust the Lord has planted here, may soon be bearing much fruit. Our pastor, Bro. I. W. Thomas, is quite a good preacher and we love him dearly. It may be said of him that his soul is in the work. He preaches to four churches, but gives us an extra Sunday night as often as he can.

Our church is nearly out of debt and we are hoping for the time when we will be able to keep house ourselves.

I was glad to have Bro. E. F. Jones call to see me last Sunday on his way to Gastonia to which place he moves his family this week. He has a nice field.

I am sorry to see such pastors as Moore, Broughton and others leaving our State.

Many thanks for recent editorials. The RECORDER is more and more indispensable.

Hope you will have a profitable meeting of the Convention. Will not be able to attend, but sincerely hope the Board may go up without the embarrassment of debt. Success to the work.

Lenoir, Oct. 20, 1893.

An Earnest Appeal for Help.

Dear Recorder:—I address all the dear brethren who may read this request:

This is to certify that I am now engaged in the effort to erect a suitable building for my Baptist High School near the line of the two Carolinas. It is in a locality where a good school is more needed and would undoubtedly do more for our cause than at any other location I have seen. It is situated near the line of the Columbus County Baptist Association and the Waccamaw Baptist Association, and near the center ground of the Anti-mission Association (Mill Branch), and near the center of the Loris Methodist circuit.

I had part of my dwelling-house blown down in the recent storm, which leaves me out of doors and entirely without a shelter until I can build, only as I rent. I have rented and paid in advance for the use of a house until December 1st, 1893.

If my dear brethren will be so kind as to aid me, I will be able to be in my own house and also be able to open my school with three good, efficient teachers by January next. A good friend offers us the material free of charge. Now what we are begging for is money enough to enable us to put it together, both our cottage and the school building.

I have been serving the Missionary Baptists ever since I was a fifteen year-old boy up to this time, except about seven years' sojourn among the Anti-mission Baptists; and I have served them without asking help from the Missionary Baptists until now.

Now my enterprise is a good and worthy one, and is strictly Baptist; and I feel that I am entitled to a faithful patronage by all lovers of the truth. I promise that every dollar contributed shall be judiciously applied for the good of the Baptist cause.

Dear brethren, please help us, and God will reward you. Please send your contributions to Rev. D. N. Gore, Loris P. O., Horry county, S. C. D. N. GORE, Principal Baptist High School.

Wake Forest Letter.

MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

Prominent in the minds of the founders of Wake Forest was the desire to establish a school for the training of young men called of God to preach his blessed gospel. And in all the years of its history the College has sought to carry out this purpose of its first friends. Hundreds of its sons have entered the ministry and by their lives and labors have borne testimony to the faithfulness and efficiency of its work. There is scarcely a State or Territory in the Union, or a country in heathen lands occupied by the Southern Baptist Convention, in which they cannot be found.

There are at present fifty-one young men here preparing for the ministry. Some of the brightest and best students, as well as some of the most gifted speakers in College are found among them. Eleven of them are serving churches as pastors while prosecuting there studies here. Thirty-five are receiving aid from the Board of Education. To meet the neccessary expenses of these beneficiaries requires the expenditure of about three hundred dollars per month. The money stringency has caused a considerable decline in the contributions of the churches and the Board is now in urgent need. Will not the brethren see to it that their pledges are paid and thus save the Board from the necessity of discontinuing some of its beneficiaries?

Recently several consecrated brethren and sisters have undertaken to support each a beneficiary. In this way four young men are already provided for. Will not others do likewise? Money thus given is a contribution to the forces that brighten the world, bless humanity and hasten the coming of our Master's kingdom. No one can measure the good that one godly, consecrated man can do when his powers are properly trained.

THE LADIES' MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Dr. Taylor said in an address a few days ago that the strongest spiritual force in the religious life of our community was exerted by this Society. In this he was undoubtedly correct. Its meetings are always well attended, and not unfrequently are they pervaded by a deep glow of religious feeling. It is thoroughly organized and prosecutes its work systematically. Its members study and discuss the needs and nature of the various mission fields, are thoroughly imbued with the self sacrificing spirit of the Master and contribute liberally for the support of the cause they all love so dearly. More than once our pastor has called the attention of the brethren to the fact that the sisters were going beyond them and urged them to imitate their good example. At a special meeting of the Society held last Monday evening the members raised as a thank offering $32 00. In view of the present pressing need this amount was given to the Board of Education.

OTHER ITEMS.

Dr. Taylor is attending the Western Baptist Convention in Asheville.

Pastor Gwaltney has just returned from the Mt. Zion Association and reports a pleasant and prosperous session. Three hundred and eighty-nine dollars were pledged for education next year. Nobly done!

Mr. E. E. Hilliard, the general agent of the College, reports a growing enthusiasm for Wake Forest in sections of the State where he has traveled.

Old students returning will miss the Timberlake store from the corner. It has been removed and just below it Dr. J. B. Powers is building an elegant residence. C.

October 21.

Five Things Now Needed.

1. A report from the Treasurer of every Association, church, Sunday-school and mission society in the State is needed at once by J. D. Boushall. Do not, brethren, wait for anything, but if you have funds, no matter how small the amount or for what objects, please send them to Bro. Boushall at once.

2. Many Union Meetings will be held Oct. 27—29. We need now special aid for State Missions. Only about one-third of the amount needed to pay off our missionaries this year has been received up to the present time. Will not some brother, therefore, at each Union Meeting held this month see to it that something is done for this work?

3. A final report from each missionary of our Board and of the Associations should be sent in by Nov. 1st. This is very important in making up the report of the Board of Missions for the Convention. Please, brethren, do not neglect or delay to report in full and at once all the mission work done this year, which has not already been reported.

4. It is important that we know, as a Convention, what is being done by the Baptists of the State in building houses of worship, and I, therefore, ask the pastor or missionary of every church or mission station where building or repairing has been done this year, to report the cost of the same with the name of the church to me at once.

5. It would be well, too, for the denomination to know the number and names of the churches in the State that have a parsonage or a pastor's home as the property of the church. Will not the pastor or some member of each church which has such a home drop me a postal at once and tell me when it was secured and what it cost? Please do so at once. C. DURHAM.

Statement Corrected.

Dear Recorder:—I greatly regret a mistake that I made at the Brier Creek Association. I said that I attended Sunday-school at three or four years of age; when I meant to say ten or twelve years of age.

I humbly apologize, and beg the pardon of all who were present.

ENOCH N. GWYN.

Union Association—Monroe Church.

Will all those who now contemplate attending the Association (the Union) which meets with the Monroe church, November 9th–11th, 1893, kindly send their names at once to J. C. Fletcher, Monroe, N. C.

Our congregations are large and increasing. Last night there were only a few vacant chairs. If they continue to increase for the next month as they have in the past, we will not have seating capacity. One joined last night—a great day for us.

M. A. ADAMS.

Monroe, Oct. 16, 1893.

From Randleman, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—I have just closed one of the best meetings ever held in Randleman. It commenced the first Sunday in this month and continued until the 12th. There were thirteen or fourteen conversions. The congregations were very large most of the time, and nearly all seemed to be interested.

Bro. Carrick was to help me, but owing to the sickness of his family he could not come. I had no help except the brethren. The church was greatly revived and strengthened. I will baptize the candidates in the near future.

God bless you and the RECORDER.

G. M. WEBB.

The Recorder's New Feature Approved.

Dear Recorder:—I am delighted to note the new feature of the RECORDER, viz., the first page "comments on current topics." Whether I agree with the comments at all times matters not: the comments are brave, strong, clear, and set people to thinking along right lines. Great secular interests always have a religious and righteous side which can be better treated by the religious than by the political press. The political press sees all great interests through party eyes and gives the people one-sided views. The religious press fails in its whole duty to God and man when it fails to apply gospel principles to daily affairs.

Fraternally, CALVIN S. BLACKWELL.

Elizabeth City, Oct. 18, 1893.

Elder W. F. Watson's Resignation.

HE GOES TO NORFOLK, VA.

At our prayer-meeting at Roxboro on the 12th inst., Elder W. F. Watson tendered his resignation as pastor of the church, to take effect the last of this month, which was accepted. This will leave three vacant churches in Person county—Roxboro, Clement and Ephesus. He goes to a new church in a new part of the city of Norfolk, Va., and is to enter upon his labors there the first of November. He will have been with us only ten months when he leaves, but the circumstances are such that he not only feels justified in changing his field of labor, but that it is duty to do so, the prospect for more enlarged usefulness being so much better in Norfolk than in Person county. So far as the church is concerned, I think the general feeling is that of regret at his leaving, but if he feels it his duty to leave, and having made up his mind to do so, for my own part I see no use in whining over the inevitable. The right thing to do now is to provide for the future. J. J. LANSDELL.

From Roberdel, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—Rev. I. S. Boyles has resigned the Roberdel field, Pee Dee Association, to take effect on the first of November next. He has made us a most faithful and earnest pastor and an excellent preacher for about two years; hence, we regret his leaving, but I trust God is guiding him.

During Bro. Boyles' stay with us, he has baptized about 140, and many others have professed faith in Christ.

The Roberdel church has increased forty, and others will come in early. This church, as well as our pastor's country churches, are in splendid working condition financially and religiously. I hope that our next pastor, Bro. Tuttle of Plymouth, will be pleased and do great good in his new field.

Bro. Boyles has one or two calls, but is undecided as to where he will move. Our prayers follow him wherever he goes.

I would not do without the RECORDER for five times the price of it. God bless the paper as in days past.

EUGENE LEGRAND.

Roberdel, Oct. 13, 1893.

We invite the special attention of our lady readers to the new advertisement in this paper of Miss Maggie Reese, Raleigh's fashionable milliner. Her stock of millinery goods is complete and first-class in every particular. All orders receive prompt and careful attention, and satisfaction is guaranteed.

In ordering goods, or in making inquiry concerning anything advertised in this paper, you will confer a favor by mentioning the fact that you saw the advertisement in the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

mission field inquiries frequently go from one church to another; if the churches are in the same mission, it makes but little difference; but if each represents a separate interest, there might be a misunderstanding. This may be a little thing, and yet it is worth avoiding, as the consequences may not be so little.

These are some of the reasons which lead me to think that we cannot conduct our Foreign Mission work efficiently and economically without a board or some corresponding body of a different name. There is nothing human to which some objection may not be urged. No man is perfect. Boards may make mistakes, but so may missionaries and churches. In order to unify our work and give it prominence and efficiency; in order to develop the resources of our churches and give all our members, even the poorest, an opportunity to have a chance in giving the gospel to the perishing heathen, I can see nothing better than a Foreign Mission Board. —R. H. Graves, in Religious Herald.

Baptist Children in Baptist Schools.

Dear Recorder:—Another perplexing question among South Carolina people to day is the "school question." We have denominational schools, undenominational schools, State schools, and "no schools." The trouble comes about the patronization of these schools. In general, our people forget their color when they send their children to school. So here we have it.

It seems to me that Christian people ought to patronize their denominational schools rather than State schools. Yet the majority of our Christian people do not realize this. It appears that they had rather their children would attend the State schools, where religious influences are weak, than to attend their denominational schools where their doctrines and practices are set forth and religious influences are good.

But those who patronize these schools rather than their denominational schools say that they are better and cheaper schools. But this is not always true; for some of our denominational schools are as good or better than the State schools. Then, again, suppose this is true that the State schools are better and cheaper, is it the place of a Christian to patronize some other schools rather than his own schools?

The way to make denominational schools better is to support them and patronize them. Suppose I have a family of six persons, and half of them go off and support another family, what will become of my family? Those who belonged to it have become disloyal to it. They will not support their own family. Therefore the family goes down. So it is with our schools. If we have denominational schools, and the members of the denominations support the State schools, our schools will be weak, and ultimately go down. And this is caused by the disloyalty of the members.

The Roman Catholics teach us a lesson along this line. They have their own schools wherever it is possible, and they always patronize their own schools. Whoever heard of a Catholic going to a State school? This loyalty to their own institutions is the real cause of their rapid growth in America. Ought not evangelical Christians be as true to their colors as Catholics are to theirs?

The fact that the earliest impressions on the child's mind are the most lasting, is sufficient reason for us to send our children to our denominational schools rather than to the State schools. Because the general influence of State schools is to make the students non-religious, while that of our denominational schools is to make them religious. But many of our Christian people in this State are patronizing the State schools rather than the denominational schools.

I think it is far better that Christians patronize undenominational schools than State schools, for I am sure that the religious influences in these are generally very good. Some of our undenominational schools are the very best in the land. I have no objection to these schools in themselves; but looking from another standpoint I have two objections. First, the distinctive doctrines of the denominations cannot be taught in them. Secondly, I think that each denomination ought to support its own institutions in preference to general institutions. Look after your own household first.

So I think it is the duty of Baptist parents to send their children to Baptist schools. In the same way I think it is the duty of Methodist or Presbyterian parents to send their children to their own schools. And they always do. How many children of parents who belong to other denominations do you find in Baptist schools? You can count them on your fingers. But on the other hand, the schools of other denominations are somewhat supported by Baptists. Is it possible that all other denominations can be loyal to their own while Baptists alone remain disloyal to their own? If the principles of the Baptists are worthy of support, why not support them? Why profess one thing and do another?

I think Baptist ministers and laymen ought to keep eyes open and canvass for Baptist children, and get them into schools which are Baptist. Or shall they sleep till other schools eat theirs up? Let us prove to be loyal to our denomination and to our denominational schools. Why not let our motto be: Baptist children in Baptist schools?

There are thousands of young men standing on the very threshold of life, trying to make a wise decision as to what business or profession they will follow. To all such we would say, before deciding the question, write W. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., who can be of service to you, as they have been to others.

The Gospel Mission—How to Send Funds.

Dear Recorder:—Please allow a word to the churches that are proposing to work in connection with the Gospel Mission and to send their Foreign Mission money directly to us. Some are wanting to know how it will be sent.

Bro. J. C. Bostick of Asheville, N. C., a fine business man, has made arrangements to transmit money to China in the most convenient way. Through a bank in New York, he has arranged to have his checks honored and cashed in Shanghai. He kindly consents to forward the money for those of us who go out from North Carolina free of cost. Bro. G. P. Bostick has been having his sent through him, and I shall avail myself of his kind offer, and I think brethren Blalock, Crocker and Royall will. Money may be forwarded to him by registered letter, post-office order or check. And it must always be stated for whom it is sent; for he is not a disburser of a general fund, but simply a medium. But the money sent to us now before we leave, especially the "passage" money, should be sent to our own address, or to us at Reidsville in care of Dr. C. A. Rominger. We shall start to China, the Lord willing, from there Monday, Oct. 30th.

Of course, money could be sent to us through any bank; but to send through one man in each State will fecilitate matters. Bro. G. L Norwood, a banker of Greenville, S. C., will do this for the South Carolina missionaries.

Please keep the address—J. B. Bostick, Asheville, N. C. He will receipt for us. Besides, at the end of the year we shall each make a full report to the churches of all we have received. This is a financial report. We shall make to the churches quarterly reports of our work.

We hope thus to keep in touch with our supporters. The pastors will aid us in doing so. We are asking that once a month at their preaching service they give a few minutes to this work, reading a letter from us or imparting any missionary information they elsewhere obtain, a sort of prelude of ten or fifteen minutes.

I may mention here our plan of raising money. It is much like the usual way of managing the pastor's salary. Let the church appoint some live brother, who loves to serve God and feels like efforts to save the heathen, is God's service, to circulate a subscription, an annual subscription, to be paid in quarterly instalments. Let every member be given a chance to subscribe, however small the amount; for we want to feel that the whole church is backing us and praying for us. When the fullest amount of a reliable subscription is raised, then let the church endorse it, so that it becomes the subscription of the church. And then should any subscriber die or become impoverished, the church is under obligation to the missionary to get some one to take his place.

Remember to send the money subscribed in promptly at the end of each quarter, that is, the last of March, June, September and December. D. W. HERRING.

Eternal Freshness.

Time has not made our human life common. In April, of this year '93, the lawns were just as green and velvety as ever; in May, the apple blossoms were just as fragrant; in June, the roses were, I dare say, as luxuriant in their loveliness as those plucked by the hand of Eve; and now, in these autumn months, we come to luscious fruits in garden and orchard, and golden tints in the forest. The accumulation of the years, instead of making things common, enriches the soil from which all this growth springs. And there is a primal freshness in the sky. There is a mystery, a mysterious glory in this over-arching, which domes the play of children, the love of youth and maiden, the toil and struggle, the fear and hope of men and women. Yes, life still is new and radiant to child and lover, its tragedies, with deepening plot, lead on to crises in the affairs of men, in just the same absorbing way as at the first. Across the tender blue there comes the battle-crash of thunder clouds. The sky above mirrors the life of man below. The earth is still the Lord's, the arena for the unfolding of his purposes. God is the same. He has not yet finished his work. All things are still reaching forward toward their culmination. The golden age is before us, and not behind us. Later stages, in a process of development, we all know, are more complex in their relationships. The call now, therefore, is not for lower but for higher powers of co-operation. Responsibilities do not lessen but thicken.

No, my brethren, do not think that you have fallen upon common times; do not allow your heart to feel that original thinking and heroic endeavor are antedated by the heroes of the past. Moses was none the less heroic because he was preceded by Abraham. And when Paul came in the opening of the later days, he looked upon the long list of ancient worthies, not as forestalling him in amplitude of manhood, in enthusiasm of service, in fresh impulse from the heart of God, but as a company of witnesses, eager to see with clearer vision, in later development, what in their day was dimly discerned. Their watching inspired him, as the eyes of the vast concourse nerve the runner in the race. Though in comparison with otherwise more favored apostles he might speak of himself as born out of due time, and, in humility before God, rank himself "the least of the apostles," yet, close upon this, he exclaims, "But, by the grace of God, I am what I am." The grace of God, in every generation, is the free, loving, purposeful life of God working in the life of man, through man out upon the world. And every personality focuses a peculiar, distinct combination of living forces. Personality is the light of the world. One star differeth from another star.

Believe it not, that the thought of God, that the thinking of God, has been overtaken, minutely explored, that the plan of the Most High has been exhaustively comprehended. The best of men, and wisest, have known only in part. Parts hitherto unknown may dawn upon your vision; the relation of truth to truth, the application of truth in its newly discovered relation to life. In the material realm the revolutionary discoveries and inventions of the last half century have come from a keener perception of relations, and a consequent wiser utilization of forces which, in a general way, have been known for ages. Who thought fifty years ago of yoking the falls of Niagara and the lightning of heaven, and making them turn the wheels of industry and illuminate cities for a hundred miles around! It is not altogether in the genius of the individual; the epoch, the times, furnish new view-points, new base-lines for calculation, and sometimes a clearer atmosphere. The end is not yet; either in the material or the spiritual domain. The world is waiting just as eagerly and patiently for thoroughly prepared men as when Wycliffe went to Oxford, Luther to Erfurt and Edwards to Yale.—Rev. B. A. Greene, D. D., in The Watchman.

Both crown and kingdom slip away;
Who rules himself a king shall be,

LOOK OUT.

"In peace prepare for war, in health for sickness." This old adage is always wise and timely, especially so just now. Summer is on, with its debilitating influences. Nerves are flagging, appetites failing, energy and strength yielding, even now. Shortly will come decay of vegetation, when malaria will "ride on every passing breeze" and count its victims in every home. Now is the time. Repair the wastes. Restore the vitality. Fortify the system. Ward off the perilous attacks of malaria and pass safely and happily through. You can do this by using DR. KING'S

ROYAL GERMETUER.

It is the best preventive, the best restorative, the most unfailing cure—pleasant to take as lemonade and harmless, unique, matchless, perfect, "the ultima thule of medicines." Try it now. For sale by druggists.

I have used Dr. King's Royal Germetuer for indigestion, and cheerfully say that it afforded me more relief than any other remedy I ever tried. I also used it in my own family in a case of malarial fever with best results. I take pleasure in recommending it.

An Antidote for Frivolity.

There is no question that causes pastors more perplexity than the ever-recurring amusement question. Many a one has repeated with a sigh the bon mot of Sir George Cronewall Lewis, "Life would be very tolerable but for its amusements." Of all cases of casuistry that pastors are required to help their young people in solving, none crop up so frequently, none so test all the resources of grace and "gumption" with which a man may be endowed, as cases that grow out of the appetite of the young for amusement.

Now, while this appetite is a natural and wholesome one, when it is in a normal condition, it is too often true that it has become abnormal, artificial, unwholesome, a morbid craving rather than a healthy appetite. The desire for amusement becomes a mental and moral disease, and is productive of great evils. A cure is greatly needed, and he who could produce a nostrum warranted to be an infallible remedy in all cases would not lack patronage. We have no such nostrum. It is our belief, however, that an effective remedy may be found in many cases by imitating a method of the physician. Some diseases cannot be successfully treated by direct attack, but yield to counter-irritation or to some stimulation of the vital forces that react on the seat of the disorder.

The trouble with the young Christian too often is, that his mind and heart and hands are not occupied with the things of his Master's kingdom.

Satan finds some mischief still
For idle hands to do, but who ever read, in Dr. Watts or elsewhere, that Satan can find mischief for hands that are busy in the service of Christ? It was into a house swept and garnished and empty that the demon returned with seven others more wicked than himself and thereby made the last state of that man worse than the first. An empty head, an empty heart, these are direct invitations to Satan to enter and take up his abode, and this is an invitation that the adversary of souls never declines. You cannot pour water into a full bottle. You cannot get chaff into a measure filled to the brim, pressed down and running over with the choicest of the wheat. Let the young Christian get his heart full of love for Christ, his mind full of his truth, his hands full of service, and he will have no time or concern for hair-splitting questions about amusements of doubtful character. It is an indication of a very low state of the Christian life, when a follower of Christ is habitually perplexing himself and others with problems of this kind. It is his glorious privilege to rise to a higher plane of experience, where these things will have no claim upon his thought. —The Examiner.

How to Make it a Delight.

Duty is a very good thing. We have no sympathy with those who decry it. If we have no better motive, let us do what we ought because we ought. But if there is a higher motive, let us get it.

Can we with truth say that we love our religious duties? Can we say, "Oh, how love I Thy law"; "I delight in the law of God." Of course, there are exceptional times. When there is a revival, or some world renowned evangelist, it is quite likely that pleasure comes in, and that duty is for the time forgotten. But would it be unjust to say that the great body of Christian people read and pray because they ought? And if we were to abstract from the hours of Sunday worship the social feature, would there remain much beside a sense of obligation?

This is very unfortunate. We rob ourselves; we rob God; we rob our fellowmen. For, if it be true, as Shakespeare says, that, in matters of study and intellectual employment, "no profit comes where is no pleasure taken," how much more true is it that we cannot expect to attract our fellowmen to Christ, if all we can say is that we are doing our duty.

Everyone who has visited a home where there are young children knows how exquisitely uncomfortable the visitor is when the children are forced to kiss the stranger, and when they are pulled, struggling, forward or are held up, red-faced and screaming with passion, that they may bestow a caress as per order. May it be not that sometimes God looks upon our devotions in a similar spirit?

The reader of Robert Browning remembers the dismal picture of the Jews in Rome on "Holy Cross Day," driven into one of the churches, and compelled to listen to a sermon, they all the time convulsed and writhing with impotent wrath. How must this service appear to him who is to be worshiped only in spirit and in truth?

How shall we turn our devotions from duty to delight? One who is now an eminent Christian laborer said, years ago, to the late Harry Morehouse, the Irish evangelist, "I wish I could feel as you do. I read my Bible because I ought to. I read it to get texts and illustrations. But you read because it is a delight to you." And so it was. Dear young Harry Morehouse would sit the whole day long (we have this from Dr. W. A. Reed, in whose house he was a guest while in this city), and, when invited to read a newspaper, or something of current interest, he would put it aside, and say, "Yes, yes, presently; but now I want to read the Bible." To the question asked him, he replied, "I will tell you how. Just for one year, read nothing else but the Bible, and then you will love it as I do." The direction was followed, and the result secured. If we would love to read and to pray, let us read and pray a great deal more, whether, at the time, we feel like it or not. If we would enjoy the service of God, let us serve him a great deal more constantly and faithfully and zealously. Everyone has noticed how long a road seems the first time we traverse it; but, with every repetition, the journey becomes shorter and easier and pleasanter.—National Baptist.

To Boys.

When a boy is patient and persevering, and conquers difficulties, it is a sign he will make his mark in the world. If he worries, and frets, and stews, it is a sign he is likely to die prematurely, or live to little purpose. If he is in a hurry to spend each coin as he gets it, he will never be rich, but a spendthrift. If he hoards up his pennies, and will not part with one for any good cause, he is likely to be a miser. If he is careful, economical and generous, he may or may not be rich, but he will have the blessing of God, and if he is a Christian who attends to his religious duties, he will never want. If he is obedient to his parents, he has the promise that his "days shall be long in the land." If he is lazy, and indifferent, and neglects his duties, he will grow up a dunce, and men cannot respect him. If he reads dime novels, or low, trashy, vile five cent papers, instead of bright, helpful literature, he will likely end his days in prison, or upon the gallows. If he loves his religion, and his church, and his Sabbath-school, he will be good and useful, and occupy an honorable position among men. Are you patient, persevering, prayerful, contented, careful, generous and good? Are you trying to be?—Selected.

A wonderful stomach corrector—Beecham's pills.

There is a terrible responsibility incurred in all beginnings that do not finish—beginnings made without calculation, without rational, cool, clear headed resolution; without counting the cost, without anticipating the stress and securing the resources. And it is for the honor of the cause, and it is for the honor of the kingdom that our Lord would bar all such unbusiness-like disasters, and therefore he turns on the crowd as they vaguely follow, sternly bidding them beware; let them take care, there is a risk run in starting on the Christian's life; the work will be severe and long the labors; the kingdom cannot afford a series of defeats, an exhibition of folly; there must be no irrational hurrying in reckless enthusiasm. These, if they lapse, do more than fail—they hurt and damage the kingdom and the cause. Then there must be inspiration and zeal, just because they are so sorely needed. They must not be frittered away or wasted in rash efforts that begin in heedless haste and cannot finish.—Holland.

That the Christian life is not to be one of quiet, meditative enjoyment, is made manifest by many teachings, both of Christ and of the apostles. He characterized his disciples as the light of the world, and then commanded them to "let their light so shine before men that they should see their good works, and glorify their Father who is in heaven." Fruit-bearing is the putting forth of a very decided and a revealing activity. The inner nature expresses itself in fruit. Paul exhorts his fellow-Christians to "let the word of Christ dwell in them richly in all wisdom," and that they teach and admonish one another; with psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with grace in their hearts unto the Lord. Indeed, an inactive life is a contradiction of terms. Life means action. Existence may mean less than that but life cannot. Christian life means Christian action, and the fullness of life means fullness of action. The measure of life is in deeds rather than in years.—Christian Inquirer.

We have many discouragements to meet in this life. Sometimes they come from within, and sometimes from without. They seriously impede Christian work, and yet it is the greatest folly to give way to these obstacles. We have every promise for help, and surely we have no reason to doubt that God is not able to fulfill his promises. Many a noble workman has learned by experience that God has been with him and that his troubles have vanished as the mist before the sun.—Christian World.

Above all things beware of letting pity (meant to be an impulse toward help) be excited and then not allowing the emotion to act. To stimulate feeling and do nothing in consequence is a short road to destroy feeling."—Dr. Maclaren. This, says the Western Recorder, is one of the reasons why even the "legimate drama" injures.

No services are more gratefully remembered than those which smooth the path in which the first steps of independent life are taken, and often the man who recalls his own mistakes and trials at that time and tells the young man how he may avoid the one and meet the other does a kindness greater than he knows.—Congregationalist.

The Work of the Home Mission Board in Our Cities.

While in its earnest efforts to further the cause of Christ our Home Board has done so much in the country and on the frontier, the work in our cities has by no means been unimportant; and in looking back over the past we find that many churches, in what are now our most prosperous centers, in their infancy, asked and were not denied help from this source.

Beginning with the Northeastern States, we find that the work done in Maryland by this Board had never been very conspicuous. Previous to the war Annapolis was for many years a station of the Home Board, but here little success seems to have attended its efforts, and we are advised that the church which it aided no longer exists. Feeble churches in Baltimore were helped by co-operation with the Maryland Union Association, and for many years Rev. Jno. Birg was sustained as its missionary. At present the work in Maryland is confined to labors among the Germans and colored people.

In Washington City the First, Second, Third and Fourth white churches, and the First colored church were, previous to the war, its mission stations. Since the war, including those that it is now aiding, five other churches have received its help. So that in the capital of your country no less than ten Baptist organizations have been fostered by it.

In Virginia many churches at important points have been assisted by the Board in former years. Alexandria, Warrenton and Fredericksburg, were all at one time mission stations of the Board. In Richmond the Leigh Street church and, just across the river, the First church of Manchester received aid, its pastor, Rev. W. E. Hatcher, being partially supported by the Home Mission Board. Baptist churches in cities lying upon the bay, Hampton, Norfolk and Portsmouth, in their infancy were supported or helped, while the same thing was true of Lynchburg, Danville, Charlottsville, Lexington and other important points. Examination of the records show that in former years, and especially just after the close of the war, that Virginia received efficient aid from our Home Board.

In North Carolina, among the churches in important places that have been upheld and sustained through this medium have been Edenton, Weldon, Henderson, Newbern, Goldsboro, Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Greensboro, Asheville and Wilmington. It is impossible to say how much of the present strength and prosperity of the Baptists of North Carolina is due to the early efforts of our Board to establish its cause in these important centers of influence.

In South Carolina the history of the Board shows many important places have been helped in by gone years; Camden, Columbia, Charleston, Spartanburg, Anderson, Edgefield, Orangeburg and Aiken.

In Florida the records point to the fact that almost without exception, from Jacksonville to Key West, the churches of important places either have been or are now receiving aid from the Home Board. The church in Jacksonville, under the able and judicious administration of Dr. McGegor, is taking on new life. Their former house of worship, utterly dilapidated and in every way unsuitable to the needs of the church in that growing city, has been sold. A nice and most desirable lot has been purchased and paid for, and plans drawn for the erection of a well arranged and commodious house of worship. The church is now engaged in the laudable undertaking of erecting a chapel, designed for the Sunday-school room and for prayer-meeting service. This part of the building will cost about ten thousand dollars. The Home Mission Board has agreed to give them two thousand dollars to aid in its construction, with the agreement of the church to raise the remainder. It is confidently expected that the coming winter will see this growing church in its new quarters, without debt. From this vantage ground they expect in the course of the next few years to secure the construction of the main audience room. They will then have a place of worship admirably adapted to the needs of the congregation, and in every way a credit to our cause in Jacksonville.

The cities of nearly all the other States of the South have shared equally as those already mentioned in the benefactions of the Board.

In Georgia, Dania, Brunswick, Savannah, Augusta, Macon, Americus, Columbus, Atlanta, Cartersville, Rome, and many others, have been aided.

In Tennessee, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Nashville, Gallaton, Columbus, Jackson and Memphis have been helped.

In Mississippi, Corinth, Holly Springs, Grenada, Aberdeen, Oxford, Starkville, Meridian, Jackson, Vicksburg and Natchez.

In Louisiana, New Orleans has been, among the cities, the chief point of expenditure. Here the only three Baptist houses of worship occupied by white people owe their existence to the help received from the Home Mission Board. The ill starred Coliseum Place church has been paid out of debt, time and again, by the efforts of the Home Board.

The new Board, in the very year of its removal to Atlanta, was instructed to pay off an indebtedness of ten thousand dollars due by this church. With the efficient aid of Dr. O. Landrum, then pastor, this was accomplished in about three years. The Convention of 1883 ordered the Board to procure a house of worship for the homeless First church of New Orleans. It bought the property on Magazine street, in which they worshipped until two years ago, when it was destroyed by fire. The Board also built the Valence Street church, of which the Rev. D. I. Pursur is now pastor. Rev. John Pursur accepted the call of the First church last January, and these two brethren, jointly supported by the Home Board and State Board of Louisiana, are accomplishing a noble work. Our Baptist cause in New Orleans has never seen so bright a day. The Home Board has recently purchased for the use of the First church a building capable of seating fifteen hundred people, at a cost of eighteen thousand dollars, admirably located and in every way adapted to the needs of this growing congregation.

Space will not permit us to tell what the Board has done in States west of the Mississippi river. It must suffice to say that in St. Louis, two of the most important churches, the Third and Fourth, were, from the date of their organization, mission stations of the Board, while important points in the interior have not been neglected. Arkansas and Texas, from the very first, have been mission fields of the Board, and there is scarcely a Baptist interest in these States that has not felt the benefit of its helping hand.

In conclusion, we beg our readers to remember that all that has been done in the past is but a little of what must be done in the present and coming years.—Mary B. Barnes, in Foreign Mission Journal.

WM. J. FULFORD,
Pastor Maxton Baptist Church.
Maxton, Oct. 19, 1893.

The Cause at Benson.

Dear Recorder:—I desire to give expression to a few words relative to an article in the RECORDER of Oct. 11th, 1893, on the work at Benson.

In regard to the aid which we received in paying off the debt which was against the church four years ago, we must not forget our beloved and faithful Elder Allen Betts, who came here and labored so hard, and who, when it was necessary to pay the debt, came forward and with a true spirit lifted his portion of the burden. Although the church had the service of another, he contributed the larger part of the money.

Soon our house was laid to waste, and when our people had learned that the house was blown down, one man (who is not a member of the church), upon arriving at the place, said, "I will be one of ten men to replace the building." Soon the work began, and with the help which we received here and from Bro. Holleman, the building was soon erected and completed.

The State Mission Board continued to send our esteemed Bro. Holleman to this point, and now we, the Baptist church at Benson, desire to extend to him our sincere thanks for his work; also to all who have aided us in any way; and especially to the State Mission Board, which has so kindly helped us.

But we think our former pastor did not do us right in his article in saying that we would try to support our pastor next year without help from the State Mission Board; for it was without the consent of the church to make such a statement. Would the brother be willing to preach for the church for what we can pay within ourselves? And to have completed the mission work at Benson without an explanation does not leave the right impression on the minds of the people who knew the circumstances; and we hope our brother will not entirely deprive us of the privilege of asking the Board to aid us, we having thought it best to choose another pastor for the next year. He received about $150 a year for coming here, and now he knows we cannot pay more than one-third of that amount. The majority of the members of our church are females, some of whom need our aid and attention. While we are willing to do all we can, we see no possible way of supporting our pastor without aid from the Board. E. L. HALL.

The Luminous Match-Safe.

I heard this story the other day. It was new to me, and it may be to most of my readers. A gentleman was traveling in Europe. He saw, in one of the cities, a match-safe so constructed that there was a spot in it which was luminous on the darkest night. He said to himself, when he saw it: "Now, that will just suit my wife; for often when the children are sick, and she has to get up in the night, she has a long hunt for the match-safe. I will buy it for her." He did so. He had the safe wrapped up and put in a box. When he reached his home, and had displayed the other presents, he came across this box in the bottom of his trunk. He said to his wife: "My dear, I have something for you that is very curious, but in order to appreciate it, you must come with me into a dark closet." They went into the closet, and shut the door. He then opened the box, took off the wrappings, and held up the safe, expecting to see it shine. But it did not shine at all. He thought the man who sold it had cheated him; so he laid it on the mantle-piece, and thought no more about it. This was early in the day. Waking up in the night, and happening to look at the mantle-piece, he saw the match-safe shining just as it shone when exhibited to him in a dark place at the time he bought it. In the morning he examined the safe, and then read, what he had failed to notice before, this printed statement: "The safe will not shine at night unless it lies in the sunlight by day." It was so constructed that it held the light which it gathered.

I presume that this story is authentic, as I heard it from the pulpit last Sunday. The preacher's text was: "Let there be light." He contended that Christ, in telling his disciples that they were "the light of the world," intended to teach them that each of them was to shine in his sphere. But some one might ask: "How can we shine when we are in the deep, dark night of disappointment and sorrow?" The answer is: "Gather in so much of the radiance of divine love and joy in times of prosperity that it will be radiated in times of adversity. Treasure up the tokens of God's goodness and grace, as that little safe treasured up the sunlight." Even Job had some idea of the lesson of this match-safe. He said: "What! Shall we receive good at the hand of the Lord, and shall we not receive evil?" He was comforted in the hours of poverty and pain by recalling how God had blessed him. He believed that it was the same kind and loving Father, and that what seemed evil was either needed for the development of [illegible] was really not evil, but good for [illegible] ought to be cheerful under all [illegible] in order to show those [illegible] that they have an unwavering [illegible] If his light is within them, it [illegible] the darkest cloud. It is never night when the sun is above the horizon, though some days are brighter than others. If the Sun of righteousness has risen upon us, and we walk in his light, we will so shine at all times, and under all conditions, that men will take knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus and learned of him.—Senex Smith, in Journal and Messenger.

Some Aphorisms for Every Day.

A young girl once heard a bit of wisdom from the lips of a very aged woman—a woman who had rounded the full term of ninety years, and with eyes still bright and clear looked out upon the inrolling waters of eternity. The girl was impressed by the emphasis with which the venerable dame said to her, "Bessie, never insist on having the last word." The determination to have the final word leads to more quarrels and more bitterness of feeling at home than almost anything else in domestic life. The fact is, that one may so control her tongue and her eyes, that she may allow her opponent the pleasure of this coveted concluding thrust and yet placidly retain her own opinion, and in the homely colloquial parlance of the up country, where one finds strong-willed people living together in great peace with the most pronounced diversity of characteristics, "do as she's a mind to."

Another bit of wisdom may be condensed into a pithy sentence. Avoid explanations. In some families nothing is taken for granted. Every action, every decision, every new departure, every acceptance or rejection of an invitation, must be endlessly talked and fussed over, explained, and re explained. In that way lie all sorts of stumbling-blocks. As a rule, beyond your parents or your husband there is nobody who has any right to demand of you an explanation of each step of your onward path. Don't give them. Establish a reputation of keeping your own counsel. It will serve you well in many a crisis, and be no end of a comfort.

Again, don't be forever setting people right. There is a houshold fiend with a memory for dates and details, who can never sit still and hear papa say that he went down town on Monday, at eight, without correcting the statement with the remark that the hour was half past. If mamma happens to allude to Cousin Jennie's visit as having occurred last Thursday, this wasp-like impersonation of accuracy interposes that it was Friday, not Thursday, that brought Cousin Jane. A dozen times a day exasperating frictions are caused by needless corrections of this sort, referring to matters where exactness is not really imperative, the affairs in question being unimportant, and no violation of truth being for an instant intended.—Harper's Bazar.

The Bible.

The Bible is the first book, the best book, and the oldest book in the world. It contains the choicest matter, gives the best instruction, and affords the greatest satisfaction that ever was enjoyed; it contains the best laws and the most profound mysteries that ever were penned; it brings the best tidings and affords the best comfort to the inquiring and the disconsolate. It is a complete code of laws, a perfect body of divinity, an unequaled narrative, a book of lives, a book of travels, and a book of voyages. It is the best covenant that ever was agreed on, the best evidence that ever was produced, the best will that ever was made, and the best testament that ever was signed. To understand it is to be wise indeed; to be ignorant of it is to be destitute of wisdom. It is the king's best copy, the magistrate's best rule, the housewife's best guide, the servant's best directory, and the young man's best companion. And that which crowns all is that the Author is without partiality and without hypocrisy, "with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—Selected.

The Farmer and the Newspaper Man.

Many men think that newspaper men are persistent dunners. By way of comparison let us suppose that a farmer raises 1,000 bushels of wheat a year and sells this to 1,000 persons in all parts of the country, a great portion of them saying, "I will hand you a dollar in a short time." The farmer does not want to be small and says all right. Soon the 1,000 bushels are gone, but he has nothing to show for it, and he then realizes he has fooled away his crop and its value to him is due in a thousand little driblets, consequently he is seriously embarrassed in his business, because his debtors, each owing him a dollar, treat it as a small matter and think it would not help. Continue this kind of business year in and out, as the publisher does, how long would he stand it? A moment's thought will convince anyone that a publisher has cause for persistent dunning.—Glen Falls Times.

Harvey Carpenter, a fifteen-year-old negro boy, is in jail at Dallas for attempting to criminally assault a four-year-old white girl.

Dr. Philip Schaff, the eminent biblical commentator and scholar, is dead. Dr. Schaff emigrated to America from Germany in 1844, and distinguished himself as a professor of theology in a Pennsylvania institution. He published several valuable religious histories and commentaries that have won him lasting fame. He became professor in the Union Theological Seminary in 1870. He was seventy-four years old, and vigorous in mind until his death.

Acknowledgments.

[The Treasurer requests that when money is sent, that the name of the contributing church, society, or individual, and the object for which the money is intended, be clearly stated. This will serve to prevent mistakes in the acknowledgment, and save the time, correspondence and printing to correct them.]

Seaside Sermons.
"Seaside Sermons," written by the recent Morehead City pastor, is a booklet of 54 pages, and contains seven discourses on the following subjects: (1) Abuse of the Tongue, (2) Sabbath Desecration, (3) Irreverence, (4) Profanity, (5) The Saloon, the City, the Church, (6) The Holly and the Christ, (7) Samson. These sermons were published in compliance with the wishes of those who heard them. It is hoped that in this form they may exert a more permanent influence and be more widely appreciated.
Press Comments.
Newbern Journal: "Seven excellent and practical sermons suited to the affairs of every-day life. . . . A valuable little book." Lenoir Topic: "Interesting and taking sermons. . . . A literary treat." Gastonia Gazette: "The sermons are well constructed and tersely expressed. The language is remarkable for its picturesque figures, striking phrases, and often for its blade-like sharpness." Charity and Children: "Short and very pleasant. . . . They will be sure to make you better."
It is desired to sell in lots the few hundred copies on hand. A New Feature.
ARTISTIC
Dress Making.
We respectfully beg to state that we have added and opened on Sept. 18th a Dress Making Department. This department has been thoroughly organized after months of careful preparation, and after having at great expense secured the very best talent to be had in their respective capacities, thus guaranteeing perfect equipment, not being excelled in artistic merit by the dress making establishments of any of the northern cities
Our lines of high class dress goods, comprising the newest Silks, Velvets and Dress Woolens are now on sale, and is the richest collection we have ever brought out.
We ask the attention of the ladies of North Carolina to this new feature of our business, assuring them that at moderate prices garments and costumes can be furnished here at home that will have the chic and style of French-made dresses.
Specialties: Bridal trousseaus and mourning outfits. Samples sent and estimates given.

Literary.

Columbus Outdone. This is the title of a well illustrated book of two hundred pages, just issued, to record the enterprising adventures of Capt. William A. Andrews in his trip across the ocean in a boat fourteen and a half feet long, and aptly called the "Sapolio"—because she "scoured the seas!" The preface claims that "the example of intelligent daring is never lost on the world," and that "four-fifths of the so-called dangers of life are trifles if met with courage, resolution and common sense." Cloth binding, 35 illustrations, $1.00. Published by Artemas Ward, 11 East 14th street, New York.

A Light from the East. It is the birthplace of man; the land of prophecy; the country where our Saviour was born; the home of God's peculiar people, Israel, among whom Christ lived, preached, suffered, died, rose and ascended. To this same land will Jesus come again "without sin unto salvation," gather his people, and reign with them personally one thousand years. The time is nearing.

The treatise is designed as a book for all people. A small book, but large in interest. It is an effort to set forth a clear and concise statement of Scriptural facts, in the hope that it will repay every lover of truth to give it a faithful perusal. It will contain sixty or more pages, paper covers, sold at twenty cents per copy, prepaid, when five or more are sent to one address. A less number will be sent at expense of purchaser. Cash required on delivery of books. When two thousand subscriptions are secured, the book will be issued. Why should not that number be obtained at once? Cannot the readers of the BIBLICAL RECORDER furnish me the two thousand required or more?

Chapter I. Heaven—Heaven our need—Heaven, what, where, when? Heaven and Paradise—Heaven, seen through God's telescope—Looking for Heaven—Heaven in view.

Chapter II. Resurrection and translation of the righteous—The Man of Sin destroyed—Satan bound—The gospel to all nations—As in the days of Noe—The Jews returning—Israel's inheritance.

Chapter III. Judah and Israel—Building the new temple—The temple finished—The beast, etc.—And yet is!!—Battle of Armageddon—Christ judging the nations—Final judgment—Conclusion.

The preceding has been published, twenty-two articles, in the Baptist Record, edited by Dr. J. A. Hackett, Meridian, Miss., eliciting a good degree of interest, with suggestions from good men, that the articles ought to be put in permanent form. So much am I interested in its publication, that I shall be sincerely grateful to one and all, who may contribute to that end.

Meetings at Beulah, Reynoldson and Great Fork Churches.

We held a good meeting at Beulah during the second week in August. Bro. Burfoot did most of the preaching. There were twelve added to the church—ten by baptism and two by letter.

The week after the third Sunday in September, we had a fine meeting at Reynoldson, in which Bro. Jas. E. Jones of Virginia did the preaching. The church seemed revived and twenty-four were added by baptism.

We also had a very precious meeting in September at Great Fork, Va., where Bro. Scarborough did some of his best preaching. The church was much revived, and thirteen were added by baptism. To God be all the praise.

South Yadkin Union.

The Union of the South Yadkin Association will meet with New Hope church, Iredell county, N. C., on Friday before the fifth Sunday in October, 1893. Preacher—N. S. Jones; S. F. Conrad, alternate.

PROGRAM.

1. The Scripture on giving, or the Scripture on the proper use of money. C. S. Cashwell and S. J. Tatum.

2. Are we doing our duty in establishing and maintaining missions in the South Yadkin Association? J. B. Holman and J. B. Newton.

3. The New Testament on the ordinances. W. J. Hopkins and M. F. Foster.

4. The enlargement of the Sunday-school work. Jacob Stewart and E. Frost.

S. V. FURCHES, Sec.

Shelby Notes.

We have had a very fine meeting in Shelby, the best the church has had in all of its existence—no excitement, but a deep undercurrent of God's Holy Spirit working on the hearts of the people.

Rev. P. G. Elsom of Fincastle, Va., did the preaching, and from the first captivated the town. As a result of two weeks' preaching there have been seventy-three conversions and eighteen backsliders reclaimed. Up to date fifty have connected themselves with us—forty-three for baptism and seven restored. With a few exceptions, all of those remaining will connect themselves with us.

When in Virginia this summer at the Valley Association, I met for the first time our Bro. Elsom, and felt moved to have him with me in a meeting. We shall never cease to thank the Lord for his coming. A number of our leading men and women were brought into the church. His work is solid. I have never been with a brother in a meeting who was more consecrated to his work. He is a man mighty in prayer. He is an evangelist who leaves a pastor stronger with his people.

The work has not ceased with his leaving, but conversions are still being heard from.

Any pastor wishing to engage someone to help him in a meeting will do well to correspond with him at Fincastle, Va.

This meeting leaves our church now with a membership of about four hundred. Suffer me to say in praise of my people, that although Shelby is a small place of scarcely three thousand people, one of God's best churches in North Carolina is at this place.

The Master's cause has been greatly revived. The 126th Psalm expresses our feelings.

May the Lord bless the RECORDER and its editor.

Cordially, J. L. SPROLES.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

State News.

The Albemarle Park Fair opened yesterday in Elizabeth City.

Gold in paying quantities has been discovered on Mr. W. S. Ingram's land in Stanly county.

The North Carolina Presbyterian Synod meets at Tarboro Oct. 31st. It has now 134 ministers and 311 ruling elders.

Robert Kenan, a two-year old boy, living two miles east of Asheville, was accidentally shot and killed on the 16th inst.

It is reported that whitecaps have posted notices in Cleveland county, warning cotton-ginners not to gin until the price of cotton reaches ten cents per pound.

The State Board of Public Charities and the Confederate Veterans Association met in Raleigh Fair week. Both meetings were characterized by enthusiastic and concerted action.

Col. G. Wash. Sharpe, who lived near the W. N. C. Railroad, about a mile and a half east of the depot at Statesville, was run over and killed by a train on the night of the 16th inst.

The North Carolina Conference of the M. E. Church, South, convenes in Wilmington, December 6th. The Western North Carolina Conference convenes in Charlotte, November 26th.

Mr. Samuel D. Black, a son of Rev. Dr. W. S. Black, superintendent of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, died in Oxford, on Monday, 16th inst., of typhoid fever, aged about twenty-three years.

Wm. R. Dry, colored, of Wilmington, fell from a train near Cedarhurst, Onslow county, on the 19th inst., and was instantly killed. He persisted in standing on the platform, although repeatedly warned not to do so.

Last Wednesday week, Mr. Al. Clay of Hickory was held up in the public road in open day, near Collettsville, Caldwell county, by a negro and a white man, and robbed of $42. He had $400 in his coat-pocket that the robbers failed to find.

A dispatch from Beaufort, N. C., October 16th, says: "The schooner Jennie R. Tomlinson, Capt. Thomas, kainit laden, from New York for Newbern, lies stranded twenty miles west of Beaufort. The vessel and cargo are a total loss. The crew was saved."

The chestnut crop of Buncombe county and Western North Carolina is unusually large this season, and shipments are continually being made to New York and Cincinnati, where good prices are realized, eight dollars a bushel being frequently paid.—Asheville Citizen.

Major Harper, who returned from Watauga court Saturday evening, tells us that there is a regular organized band of robbers over in Watauga—a Jesse James gang—who have been carrying on their business there for a considerable time. Eight of them are in jail in Boone, but a great many of them are still at large. They take an oath, putting both hands on the Bible, getting down on their knees and swear that they will steal, rob, lie, and will not give away any of their members.—Lenoir Topic, Oct. 18.

For several weeks the people of the "Gold Belt" of Rutherford and McDowell have been engaged in mining or digging for dark yellow sand, called Monozite, which now commands at Lattimore and Ellenboro stations five cents per pound or $100 per ton. The gold-diggers have left the gold-mines and gone to prospecting branches and creeks for the hidden treasure. It is used in making incandescent electric light, as it contains thoria, once called a rare earth. Thoria is a grey, heavy mineral that burns with great brilliancy and is exported to Germany and England.—Shelby Aurora.

Mr. I. H. Foust, cashier of the First National Bank of Salisbury, has resigned in consequence of a shortage in his accounts of $8 000. He has made a transfer of all his real and personal property to secure the bank from loss, the property being more than ample to cover the shortage. The Salisbury Herald states that in addition to the bank funds which had been used by him, Mr. Foust also had charge of other funds as trustee, in which there is also a shortage. The exact amount of this deficiency is not known, but it is estimated at about $7,000. This amount Mr. Foust is not able to pay now, all his property being transferred to the bank, and it will be made good by his bondsmen. The directors of the bank have elected Mr. William C. Blackmer cashier to succeed Mr. Foust.

The annual State Fair was held in Raleigh last week under the auspices of the North Carolina Agricultural Society. Hon. Z B. Vance spoke to a rather small crowd on Tuesday on "The Questions of the Day." The other specialties were a foot-ball game and a "Wild West" show. On Wednesday and Thursday very large crowds were in attendance, and the gate receipts made the Fair a financial success. The exhibits taken as a whole were fully up to the usual standard, and the stock exhibit was in some respects better than usual. Secretary Hal. W. Ayer deserves great credit for making a success of the Fair under the disadvantages of the year, and we are pleased to note his re-election. Col. J. S. Carr of Durham has been elected President of the Agricultural Society for the ensuing year.

General News.

Forest fires have done great damage in the yellow pine section of Texas.

William Smith, LL. D., the English classical scholar and writer, is dead.

Auguste Flameng, the noted French painter, died recently at the age of fifty.

Thirty buildings in King City, Mo., were recently destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $150,000.

The Union Pacific Railroad, with all of its branches, has gone into the hands of a receiver.

A fire in Allentown, Pa., on the night of the 13th inst., destroyed nearly $300,000 worth of property.

The Wellman Iron and Steel Company, Chester, Pa., has failed, throwing 1,200 laborers out of employment.

A recent conference of thirty-one Moorish tribes decided on a war of extermination against the Spaniards in Morocco.

Three trainmen were killed, and three others injured, in a railway accident at Wellsville, Ohio, on the 17th inst.

Continuous long-distance telephone service is now established between Boston and Milwaukee—a distance of 1,300 miles.

A London atheistic paper, founded by Charles Bradlaugh, and which at one time had a circulation of a quarter of a million, has ceased to exist.

It is now stated that the World's Fair will be formally closed on October 31st, but that the gates will still be open to visitors during November if the weather continues good.

The main building of the South Dakota State University at Vermillion, was recently destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of one hundred thousand dollars or more without insurance.

During a recent storm on Lake Erie, the steamer Dean Richmond went down with twenty-three persons. One man was washed overboard before the steamer sank, and he alone was saved.

Emma Goldman, the notorious New York anarchist, has been convicted of inciting riots by her incendiary speeches, and has been sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

New York City was visited by a $3,500,000 fire last Wednesday evening. The mammoth wall-paper factory of William S. Campbell, two other factories, nine dwelling-houses and two tenements were consumed. Fifty people were rendered homeless.

Mr. R. M. Dobie, a prominent commission merchant of Petersburg, Va., committed suicide on the 17th instant, by blowing out his brains with a pistol. Mr. Dobie was reported to be worth between $75,000 and $100,000. No cause is assigned for the rash act.

The great miners' strike in England is about at an end. Sixty thousand miners have gone back to work at their old wages. While this appears to be a victory for the strikers, it is said that, owing to the strike, the price of coal was raised so that owners can well afford to maintain the old scale of wages, at least for a while.

HUNTER—TOMLINSON—On Oct. 18th, 1893, at Clayton, Johnston county, N. C., by Rev. John S. Hardaway, Mr. Carey J. Hunter of Raleigh and Mrs. Eugenia A. Tomlinson of Clayton, N. C.

McDOWELL—KITCHIN—On Oct. 10th, 1893, in the Baptist church in Scotland Neck, by Rev. R. T. Vann, Mr. Archibald McDowell, son of the late Dr. A. McDowell, and Miss Virginia Gertrude Kitchin, daughter of Hon. W. H. Kitchin, all of Scotland Neck.

DIED.

BRANHAN—On Oct. 5th, 1893, at 7 o'clock a. m., little Willie, youngest child of Mrs. Lula Branhan of Benson, N. C., passed from this life to fill his place among the angels of heaven. He was one year, seven months and eleven days old, and was one of the most promising among children. He leaves his mother and one little sister to mourn their loss.

E. L. HALL.

FOREHAND—In Chowan county, Thursday, Oct. 5th, 1893, at 8:30 p. m., after a few days' illness, Ettie May, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Forehand, was carried by the angels from the sorrows and cares of life to the joys and peace of heaven.

"In that beautiful place he has gone to prepare
For all who are washed and forgiven;
And many dear children are gathering there,
'For of such is the kingdom of heaven.'"

A FRIEND.

WHEELER—Died at the home of his parents, R. F. and C. V. Wheeler, near Garysburg, N. C., on July 26th, 1893, Thomas J. Wheeler, at the age of fourteen years and three days. He professed faith in Christ when twelve years old, joined Elam Baptist church, and was baptized by Rev. H. T. Williams. He gave many evidences of a new life. He attended the Sunday-school regularly. He enjoyed reading his Testament. He was regular in his private prayers. In the absence of his father, he would conduct family worship. He was dutiful to his parents. He would frequently admonish his brother when he saw him doing wrong. He would speak to his mother of death, and tell her that he was not afraid to die. On the day of his death he seemed conscious of that fact, and told her that he would be better off. He leaves a father and mother and two brothers. While they grieve over their loss, they rejoice over his gain. They have the loving sympathy of many friends.

A FRIEND.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, An alwise God, whose ways are past finding out, has seen fit to remove from this Sunday-school and church our two young brethren, T. G. and B. L. Churchill; therefore Resolved 1. That in the death of these two young men, we recognize the fact that our town has lost two valuable citizens, and our Sunday-school and church two worthy and devoted members.

2. That while we chronicle these deaths with deep sorrow and profound regret, we do not question the wisdom of Providence. We mourn, but we do not murmur; we sorrow, but not as those who have no hope.

3. That our sympathies and prayers be extended to the bereaved family, that "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever," may abide with them in this their time of need, when creature comforts fail and earthly helps flee away.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and also published in the Newbern Journal and BIBLICAL RECORDER.

D. G. SHAW,
S. M. BRINSON,
RUFUS FORD,
Committee.

The following resolutions of respect to the late Sister Lucy Rand were, on the 30th of September, 1893, adopted by the New Bethel Baptist church:

Died at her residence in Wake county Aug. 8th, 1893, Sister Lucy Rand, in the eightieth year of her age. It has pleased God, in his wisdom, to remove from our midst our esteemed sister, who has been for many years a faithful and active member of Bethel church, a kind friend, a devoted wife, and a good neighbor. In all of the relations of life she was tender, thoughtful and affectionate. She loved her companion, her relatives and friends with a devotion that never grew weary. She was kind to all, and shed brightness and light wherever she went. Her house was the preacher's home. She loved the Bible, quoted it with ease, and believed implicitly its precious promises.

She was a liberal Christian, a loyal Baptist, and was appreciated most by those who knew her best. Eternity alone will reveal the good that this sweet-spirited Christian woman did for the community in which she let her light shine: others saw her good works and were constrained to glorify our Father who is in heaven. She was devoted to Bethel church, and a strong supporter of the pastor in everything that would advance the kingdom of Christ. What a bright and beautiful light among those who shall shine as the stars forever—growing in grace by patient continuance in well doing! She came to her grave in full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

May the memory of this Christian woman be embalmed in the hearts of the bereaved, that her example may lead all to follow her as she followed Christ and meet in heaven to dwell forever.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

It is, therefore, this day resolved by Bethel church—

1st. That though our church, the bereft family and community have sustained a great loss, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, believing that our loss is her eternal gain.

2nd. That we will strive to emulate her Christian virtues, especially her zealous work in the church, her amiable disposition, her unshaken faith, and her habitual piety, that we, like her, may be prepared when the final summons shall come, and bid the messenger of death a hearty welcome.

3rd. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, and pray God's blessing upon them, that they may walk in her footsteps and eventually meet her on the other shore.

4th. That these resolutions be spread upon our church-book, and a copy be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

Creeping up the Stairs.

In the softly falling twilight
Of a weary, weary day,
With a quiet step I entered
Where the children were at play;
I was brooding o'er some trouble
Which had met me unawares,
When a little voice came ringing
"Me is creepin' up the stairs."

Ah! it touched the tenderest heart-strings
With a breath of force divine,
And such melodies awakened
As no wording can define.
And I turned to see our darling,
All forgetful of my cares,
When I saw the little creature
Slowly creeping up the stairs.

Step by step she bravely clambered
On her little hands and knees,
Keeping up a constant chattering
Like a magpie in the trees,
Till at last she reached the topmost,
When all o'er her world's affairs
She delighted stood a victor,
After creeping up the stairs.

Fainting heart! behold an image
Of man's brief and struggling life,
Whose best prizes must be captured
With a noble, earnest strife;
Onward, upward, reaching ever,
Bending to the weight of cares,
Hoping, fearing, still expecting,
We go creeping up the stairs.

On their steps may be no carpet,
By their side may be no rail;
Hands and knees may often pain us,
And the heart may almost fail;
Still above there is the glory
Which no sinfulness impairs,
With its rest and joy forever,
After creeping up life's stairs.

—By the late Rev. N. S. M'Fetridge, D. D.

Learn How to Think.

There is as much or more difference in the way men use their mental faculties as there is in the way they use their tools. Just as one man will proceed deftly and systematically to the accomplishment of a piece of work, with everything convenient at hand, every motion intelligently directed to the furtherance of the main purpose, and an expedient ready for every irregularity or difficulty which presents itself, so, according to power, the ready thinker proceeds at once in the right line to the pith of a subject, sifting out the extraneous matter, defining the main point, and bringing to bear upon it all his available information. On the other hand, a clumsy thinker will chase a question up one side and down the other without getting anywhere or arriving at any relevant conclusion. The mental, like the manual, faculties are susceptible and require cultivation. It is only by practice and continual use that the dexterity and skill of the expert machinist or other manipulators are acquired. No matter how natural, ingenious and handy a man may be, he will lack deftness when placed upon work to which he is entirely unaccustomed.

In order to think with facility a man must be accustomed to thinking. It is one thing to let the mind roam about the things one knows, and another to put it hard at work and keep it there, grinding at something you do not know, but want to. It is easy and entertaining to read an article which tells you something which you can indorse, but you learn nothing by reading it. It requires an effort to read an article which contains real information, however plainly expressed. It has to be studied, applied, digested, criticised, the suggestions raised by its perusal have to be followed out to the conclusion and to conscientiously read an article of this character is a task which a man is inclined to shirk just as a lazy man might shirk a physical task. But compare the man who shirks with the man who reads, and you will find in the first a mental bungler, in the second the accurate and able thinker, and the man whose head saves his hands and who is always valued, respected and trusted with the conduct of work and the administration of affairs and rewarded accordingly. Always read a little ahead of yourself. Read matter which requires an effort on your part to understand. The effort will not only place you upon a higher intellectual plane, but the mental exercise will develop a habit of accurate thinking which will be of more value to you than volumes of average matter read only to be forgotten.—Perquimans Record.

Care of the Hands.

"How can I keep my hands white?" laments the busy wife and mother. "I have dishes to wash, sweeping to do, and a certain amount of cookery falls to my lot. I must resign myself to being satisfied with keeping my hands clean, and try not to care if they are ugly."

Here she makes a mistake. She may have her hands pretty as well as clean, but, like everything else in this world, it will be at the cost of a little time and trouble.

In the first place, she should wear gloves as much as possible. Not tight ones that will impede the freedom of her movements and hinder her about her work, but a loose old pair. Let her put in a claim for those that have been cast aside by the men of the house, and, cutting off the tips of the fingers, wear them when she is sweeping, dusting, cooking, and washing dishes. There is no reason why she should plunge her whole hand into a dish-pan in search of a stray spoon when she can recover it by the aid of a mop and a dish-cloth. The gloves will save her hands from dirt, from grime.

[illegible] she washes them she should use [illegible] soap, and have a little almond [illegible] water. She should dry [illegible], and anoint them lightly [illegible] glycerine and rose [illegible] and bay-rum, in equal [illegible] will not bear glycerine, [illegible] some similar prepa-ration, or she may apply cold cream in very small quantities, rubbing it well into the skin. After this, the hands should be rinsed in soft water and dried gently and thoroughly. Should the water be hard, a little borax will soften it.

Lemon juice, or lemon juice and salt will be found excellent for removing stains from the fingers, and should always be at hand, to be resorted to when soap and water fail.

A little care bestowed upon the hands at night will increase their softness and whiteness. They should be washed clean with bran and warm water, all stains removed, and the nails trimmed and cleaned. Some good unguent, like cold cream or one of the others suggested above, should then be applied, and if the hands are very red and rough, a pair of loose gloves may be slipped on and worn all night.—Harper's Bazar.

Straight From the East.

A Sultan of Turkey once said,
As he groaned at the pain in his head,
"Oh, my favorite wife,
I am sick of this life,
And I wish very much I were dead."

But his wife, who was wise, answered "Fie!
If you will Pierce's Pellets but try,
You'll be well in a week—
And then you will speak
Of these Pellets with praise just as high."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cost only 25 cents and they are guaranteed to cure all the troubles which spring from constipation, indigestion, and bilious attacks. If you have any of these troubles, why don't you follow the example of the Sultan of Turkey?

Doubling the Collections.

In a small town in the Midlands there is a rich congregation which is not characterized by a lavish liberality.

Time after time the minister has vainly appealed to his people to contribute more generously to the funds of the church. The members would, indeed, give something, but it was nearly always the smallest silver coin of the realm that was placed on the plate.

A shrewd Scotchman, who had recently come to the place and joined the church, was not long in noticing this state of affairs, and a remedy soon suggested itself to his practical mind.

"I'll tell you what," he said to one of the officials, "if you make me treasurer, I'll engage to double the collections in three months."

His offer was promptly accepted; and, sure enough, the collections began to increase until, by the time he had stated, there were nearly twice as much as formerly.

"How have you managed it, Mr. Sandyman?" said the pastor to him one day.

"It's a great secret," returned the canny Scot, "but I'll tell you, in confidence. The folk, I saw, maistly gave three-penny bits. Weel, when I got the money every Sabbath evening I carefully picked oot the sma' coins and put them by. Noo, as there's only a limited number of three-penny pieces in a little place like this, and as I have maist o' them at present under lock and key, the folk maun give saxpances, at least, instead. Sae, that's the way the collections are doubled."—Spare Moments.

Go About Your Business.

Upon the old Temple clock at London is a singular inscription the origin of which is said to have been a lucky accident.

About two hundred years ago, a master workman was employed to repair and put a new face upon the clock. When his work was nearly done he asked the Benchers for for an appropriate motto to carve upon the base. They promised to think of one, week after week he came for their decision, but was put off. One day he found them at dinner in commons.

"What motto shall I put on the clock, your lordship?" he asked of a learned judge.

"Oh, go about your business!" his honor cried angrily.

"And very suitable for a lazy, drawling gang!" the clock maker is said to have muttered as he retreated. It is certain that he carved "Go about your business" on the base side.

The lawyers laughed and decided that no better warning could be given them at any hour of the day, and there the inscription still remains.—Youth's Companion.

You Need It.

Whether you be a preacher, a parent, or a Sunday-school teacher or superintendent, you need the American Commentary, published by the American Baptist Publication Society. The price of it is moderate. It costs only $16.00 for the entire set.

What One Girl Did.

Some girls exert an uplifting influence upon all who know them. Peace and purity, charity and cheerfulness, seem to abide with them, like angels protecting them from harm, causing their companions to love their virtues for their sake. Where they go quarrels cease. Where they are, no one would dare to be rude. Their parents find comfort in them. Brothers are fond of them. Sisters cling to them. Friends admire them. Gracious influence radiates from them and blesses all whom it touches.

Once it happened that a young man, who was "sowing his wild oats," became acquainted with one of these young girls to whom innocence is as vital as pure air. The magnetism of her goodness made him a changed man. He forsook his evil companions, and when chafed about the influence of Miss M——, he said:

"When I am with her, I want to be good, and I hate myself for being bad, I dare not call on her after visiting my old haunts. I had to choose between them, and she drew me upward more strongly than they were pulling me down."

Another one was at a party. Wine was served with refreshments. She refused repeated invitations to take a glass of it. A young man told another, as the two were talking of the entertainment the next day:

"I came very near breaking my pledge. The smell of the wine was so tempting it sent a cold shiver down me. But just as I was going to yield, I heard Miss B—— refuse wine. That gave me courage to hold out. I watched her all the evening, and I made a bargain with myself. I said: 'If she drinks, I will.' I was hoping and fearing she would; but as often as she was asked, she answered with more vim, I thought, and she saved the day. If it hadn't been for her, I wouldn't have pulled through, and to-day I'd have had a swelled head and a big load of remorse, for I'd have gone on a drunk."—Onward.

The Woodpile.

As winter draws near, it is well for the farmer to take thought for his woodpile. There is more solid comfort to the square inch in a well built woodpile than most people realize. "Pay more attention to sledding than to sleighing until you have a sufficient woodpile," is the advice an old almanac gives. A year's supply of seasoned wood is what every farmer should have, and a well filled wood box will be a great help to the farmer's wife.—Exchange.

The Devil never gets very far from the man who is trying to lead a religious life without giving.—Selected.

THE SMALLEST IS THE BEST.

There are a dozen well-known liver pills, but only one so effective that it can be guaranteed to give satisfaction, or the money be refunded. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are smaller, but better than the huge, old-fashioned pill, the medicinal agents are refined and concentrated.

Every one suffers, at some time or other, from Constipation, Sour Stomach, Biliousness, Indigestion, Biliousness, Bilious and Sick Headaches. You're relieved and cured of these troubles, if you take "P. P. P."

These Pellets are easy to take, and act in a natural way without shocking the system. They're easy to carry, because they are put up in little glass vials. They're the cheapest, because guaranteed to give satisfaction. Remember, that Dr. Pierce's Pellets are pleasant to take, pleasant in action, perfect in effect. Keep this in mind and you solve the problem of good health and good living.

AMONG other measures that have received more than usual attention from the public recently, is that which proposes the levying of a direct tax on the incomes of the more wealthy classes, i. e., those who have incomes of $5,000 or more per year. There is, as far as we can see, only one objection to this measure—the fact that it is obviously unfavorable to the wealthier class—and that is only technical, and, in our opinion, should have little bearing on the question. All legislation must necessarily be unfavorable to one class or the other, for the simple reason that our interests are so diverse that that which benefits one will be unfavorable to another; and we are sure that all good citizens will agree that if legislation must be unfavorable to any class, that class should be the wealthier. In the first place, they are better able to suffer slightly unfavorable laws; but more than this, the fact that they are wealthier is good evidence that past legislation has generally been in their favor; and, if this admitted, we can see no good reason why they should resist a movement to favor the poorer man, who has been at a disadvantage for half a century.

Something must be done to prevent the congestion of wealth and to discourage the accumulation of unnecessarily large fortunes. The fate of the great nations of antiquity is our warning. The direct tax would be so graduated as not to affect the happiness and prosperity of the rich man in the least, and would be a glorious boon to the wage-earner—and none will say that the sweat of his brow does not make the largest contribution to the millionaire's coffers—whose income can ill afford even moderate taxation. The other benefits, among them the decrease of the tariff, and increase of school funds, are obvious. Now, with these beneficial results guaranteed, and the assurance that it will not be a hardship to the more fortunate classes, we cannot see why the direct income tax should not be speedily incorporated in the National Statutes.

THIS has always been a world of dissatisfied people, and consequently of carpers and critics. But we believe that seldom in our history has the earth been so populous of this special class as to-day. Journalism, no less than all else that is exposed to the public gaze, is having its share of the sweeping tide of deprecation. In fact, nothing—whether good or bad—that is actively before men, has escaped. There is no doubt but that there are certain species of journalism that are a stench in the nostrils of honest people, which are worthy the abuse that has been heaped upon the entire genus. But we feel constrained to remark that the printing press, and the enterprise of modern journalism has been, and is to day, the great civilizer of mankind and preserver of the public weal. There are badly conducted and unworthy papers in the land; there are papers published in the interest of corporations that pose as guardians of the people; there are others that are published for money alone, and there are others utterly devoid of principle or backbone, that cater to every whim of their patrons in order to increase and maintain their subscription lists, all of which are a menace to the welfare of the country. Such as these are unworthy the name of journals, and are both a reproach to the profession and a disgrace to their subscribers, though they are usually the loudest and the boldest in their declarations of the "degeneracy of the press," and all other things that are dangerous to the existence of frauds and deceptions. We admire an editor who is equally above the "machine," the corporation, and the people, who maintains his principles, though his sheet be reduced to the size of a postage stamp. Such as these are the true journalists, and should not be included in the deprecation that is applicable only to a small and special class of newspaper harpies.

NOW THAT the majority has all but demonstrated its inability to effect an unconditional repeal of the silver Act of 1890, it is probable that a compromise will be agreed upon. In a recent speech, Senator Vance stated that every measure that had ever been incorporated into the statutes, from the Constitution down, was a compromise. The statement was a surprise to us, and we still believe that it should be qualified. At the present writing it is very doubtful what the compromise will be, or when it will be enacted, but the last statement given out by the daily press was that the Act of 1890 was to cease operating in eleven months, and meanwhile the silver purchased under the present law, the seigniorage thereon, and the seigniorage now in the Treasury, are to be coined into dollars at the usual ratio. Moreover, all notes under the denomination of ten dollars, except silver certificates, are to be retired and coin and certificates substituted therefor. We candidly believe that such a measure would have no other effect, for good or evil, than to remove the doubt and suspense as to what the Senate would do, that has so disturbed the business world. The measure will not increase the currency, because notes are to be retired for the coin and certificates issued. Moreover, there is not enough silver in sight to materially increase the per capita. Again, the measure amounts to unconditional repeal in less than one year. Now, if the Senators believe in coining bullion into "cheap dollars" during that time, why stop at all? Surely if "cheap dollars" were the cause of the panic, this great addition to their number cannot but prolong and aggravate the trouble. The truth is, "cheap dollars," so-called, had little to do with the panic. But we hope and believe that this is only a temporary measure, and if enacted at all, will be replaced before next October by an enactment by which silver will be restored to its full and worthy use as a part of the standard currency of the country. We believe the country may well rejoice that the Senate has concluded to cease cavilling and to go to work.

TWO DAYS since, the World's Fair, which has indeed been the crowning glory of this century, and which will be unrivaled for many years in the next, was closed. In a few more days those magnificent structures which have excited the admiration of the world, will be destroyed forever, and the exhibits which they contained, no less magnificent and admirable, will be removed and scattered over the earth. It does seem a pity that this, the grandest display of man's handiwork ever collected, and the greatest testimony of modern times to God's goodness, should be brought to an end, when scarcely 20,000,000 people have beheld them. But such is the decree, and those who have not been so fortunate as to see the Fair must resign themselves to the inevitable. They may learn some lessons from it through representation, but its grandeur and magnificence can never be adequately appreciated by this means. How can words express the beauty and wealth represented by $150,000,000? No more is it possible than it is to obtain an idea of the Liberal Arts Building, which has a flooring of forty four acres, by a 10x12 inch photograph. We believe, with the editor of the Century, that the equal of this Fair will not be reproduced in the life of any one living to day. The time, the place, the occasion, and the circumstances, combined most favorably for the success of this colossal undertaking in a manner that will hardly be repeated. Yet the Fair may only be an earnest of what man can do, and two decades may not pass before the present exhibition will be relegated to the realm of the common-place, as it has overshadowed the almost forgotten Centennial Fair of 1876.

A Divine Canon Applied to the Ordinance of Christian Baptism.

PREACHED ON SUNDAY BY THE LATE REV. A. W. PRICE IN THE LAURINBURG CHURCH BEFORE THE BURNING OF THE BUILDING.

"Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5: 19.

Christ seems to recognize here that while none of the commandments of God are unimportant, yet there are some of more importance than others. Anything which the infinite God commands, however non essential it appears to finite man cannot in itself be of non importance. This were to charge infinite wisdom with foolishness and maintain that the infinitely great Lawgiver trifles with his moral creatures. But while every command coming from the great Lawgiver of the universe is great and important, the Saviour himself recognizes that some commandments are greater than others, that some are fraught with more serious consequences and involve higher obligations than others. He recognized this fact on another occasion when a lawyer, with the view of tempting him, asked him, "Which is the greatest of the commandments?" And Jesus replied, "The first commandment is this: Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord, and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength. And the second is like, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There are no commandments greater than these; for upon these hang all the law and the prophets." These two commandments, as the broad, underlying principles and motives of the whole law are, of course, of more importance than any specific precept which may grow out of them. Then Jesus recognized the same fact that some commandments are more weighty than others when he said to the Pharisees, "Ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith; these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." He did not say that tithing mint and anise and cummin was unimportant or unnecessary. On the contrary, he intimated that carrying out of the tithe law to the most scrupulous exactness was in the highest degree important and commendable; yet he plainly stated that obedience, however scrupulous in these ceremonious precepts, could not atone for the neglect of the weightier matters of the law, justice, mercy, faith. "These things ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." So that the distinction which he seems to set forth here is that moral precepts are of more importance than ceremonial precepts, though these when divinely commanded are not to be ignored or rejected. This is not only in accordance with the Supreme Court of Heaven, but is the verdict of universal reason and common sense.

But Christ in this text shows the estimate which he puts upon the least of the divine commandments. "Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven." Now then the text is a canon or rule, used by Christ himself in reference to the least or less important commandments. I want on this occasion to apply this divine canon or rule to the commandment to be baptized. In more formal statement: This canon of Christ applied to Christian Baptism.

"Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven." Baptism may with propriety come under the head of "these least commandments," because a positive and ceremonial ordinance and not a moral precept. It is not as important as repentance and faith, because upon them depend eternal salvation. And while baptism is to follow repentance and faith in close succession, and while it is intimately associated with them occurring in the same sentence and spoken with the same breath with which the command to believe was spoken, yet from the very nature of the command and the position of the duty, baptism is not as great in importance and issues as repentance and faith are. This much is true that by the common consent of the Christian people, with few exceptions, the ordinance of baptism is relegated to the realm of the least of the commandments. There are some, it is true, who make baptism not one of the least, but one of the greatest commandments. By attaching an importance which the Scriptures do not attach to it, by erecting it into a saving ordinance and declaring that by it conscious adults and unconscious infants are regenerated and made heirs of eternal glory, some people make baptism not only one of the greatest commandments, but the greatest. Because, if it is a saving ordinance, it is so simple, so easy and so mechanical, that not to embrace it were not only fatal but foolish. This, however, is not the position and importance that the Scriptures attach to Christian baptism, nor what the majority of evangelical Christians attach to it. Compared, then, with repentance and faith and love, the command to be baptized is "one of the least commandments." And yet are we to ignore it or reject it with impunity? Nay; the Master says, "Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, the same shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." Mark you, he does not say, "Whosoever therefore shall break one of the greatest commandments shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosoever "shall break one of these least commandments, shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." The comparison is between breaking the "least of these commandments" and being "least in the kingdom of heaven." This may mean that they shall be least in the estimation of the kingdom of heaven, but it more probably means that they shall be least in Christ's kingdom in point of dignity and knowledge.

Applying the text to the question of Christian baptism, the question naturally arises, how may we break the command to be baptized?

1 I answer, we break the command to be baptized by changing the form or mode of baptism. This is something in which you cannot separate mode from substance; indeed, the mode is the thing itself; so that if you change the mode you destroy the thing. What led Prof. Moses Stuart to write his work on baptism—a work in which he candidly admits and perseveringly proves that the meaning of the Greek work baptizo means immerse and nothing else, was a proposition which some one put to him. The proposition was this: "Baptism is nothing but a rite; a rite is nothing but a form; therefore, if we receive the baptism, we must submit to the rite, and if we submit to the rite, we must observe the form." And the burden of Prof. Stuart's book was to prove that, notwithstanding that immersion was the original mode of baptism, yet we are justified in adopting some other mode. Prof. Stuart was Professor in Andover Seminary and was not a Baptist, but was a ripe and candid scholar, and he plainly admitted that immersion is the meaning of the word which is translated baptize. He says: "The mode of baptism by immersion, the oriental (Eastern) church has always continued to pursue even down to the present day. The members of this church are accustomed to call the members of the Western churches 'sprinkled christians' by way of ridicule and contempt. They maintain that baptizo means nothing but immerse, and that baptism by sprinkling is as great a solecism as immersion by sprinkling." And so it is. To say baptism by sprinkling is as much a contradiction in terms as to say "immersion by sprinkling." But Prof. Stuart closes his discussion with this concession: "But enough; it is a thing made out, viz, the ancient practice of immersion."

Now in this discussion, it would not be wise for me to quote Baptist scholars, for their prejudices are naturally in favor of the Baptist position; but Pedobaptist scholars are naturally supposed to be prejudiced on the other side, so that if they give testimony in favor of the Baptist position, it must be out of their love for and loyalty to truth. Hence I have taken some pains to collate some of the concessions which eminent scholars, not Baptists, have made concerning the mode of baptism. All of these authorities I have not personally consulted; but have taken their declarations from published works which have long been before the world and whose faithfulness has never been called into question.

Let us notice some of the Greek Lexicons. In order that these children may understand what I say, I will say that a "Greek Lexicon" is a dictionary of the Greek language, which is compiled by eminent scholars, who find the meaning of the Greek words from the usage of the language as seen in Greek literature. Of course you need not go to an English dictionary to find out the meaning of the word baptize, for the English dictionaries give the meanings which have attached to the English word; but we must go to a Greek dictionary and find out what the word meant when Christ and the Apostles used it; for whatever it meant then, it means now.

Let us go to some of the standard Greek dictionaries. Liddell & Scott: "Baptizo, to dip repeatedly." Donegan: "To dip repeatedly into a liquid." Robinson, Lexicon of the New Testament Greek, "To dip, in, to sink, to immerse." Smith's Bible Dictionary: "Baptism properly and literally means immersion." Neander, in his Life of Christ, says: "As John's followers were entirely immersed in the water, so the Messiah would immerse the souls of the believers in the Holy Ghost." Lange says on Matt. 3: 6—"And were baptised, immersed in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins." Neander says in his Church History, page 197, "Baptism was originally administered by immersion, and many of the comparisons of St. Paul allude to this form of administration." John Calvin says in his Institutes, Article on Baptism: "The word baptize means immerse, and it is certain that immersion was the practice of the primitive church." Dr. Wall, author of the History of Infant Baptism, says: "Baptism by immersion was the practice of the primitive church. This is so plain and so clear that one cannot but pity the weak endeavors of such Pedobaptists as would maintain the negative of it. It is a great want of prudence as well as of honesty to refuse to grant, to an adversary what is true, and may be proved so."

Barnes, a Presbyterian commentator, says on Romans 6: 4—"Buried with Christ in baptism, that like as Christ rose from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so should we walk in newness of life." "It is altogether probable," says he, commenting on this passage, "that the Apostle in this place had allusion to the custom of baptizing by immersion." Dean Stanhope says: "The ceremony of immersing the body of the baptized in water, represents the burial of the dead underground." William Burkett says: "The Apostle alludes no doubt to the ancient manner and way of baptizing persons in those hot countries which was by immersion." Dr. Chalmers: "The original meaning of the word baptism is immersion." Conybeare and Howson, Life of Saint Paul, "This passage cannot be understood unless it be borne in mind that the primitive baptism was by immersion." Fairbairn's Hermeneutical Manual, "Liddell and Scott, in their Lexicon, beyond all reasonable doubt, give the fair import of the word as used by profane writers and Josephus, when they represent it as signifying to dip under water, to sink, to bathe or soak." Dean Stanley says, in his work on baptism, "Baptism was an entire submersion in the deep water." Philip Schaff says, "The baptism of Christ in the Jordan, and the illustrations of baptism in the New Testament, are all in favor of immersion, as is freely admitted by the best exegetes, Catholic and Protestant, German and English." Bossuet, the distinguished French Catholic, says: "John's baptism was by plunging. In fact we read not in Scripture that baptism was otherwise administered, and we are able to make it appear by the acts of councils and ancient rituals that for thirteen hundred years baptism was thus administered throughout the church as far as possible."

Dr. A. A. Hodge of Princeton Theological Seminary, in his Popular Lectures on Theological Subjects, says: "Though the root-meaning of baptizo and bapto is to immerse in any liquid, have come to mean generally the producing of the effects for the sake of which the liquid is applied, that is, to wash, or to tinge, or to dye, no manner in what form the liquid may be applied to the subject operated upon."

I would like to ask Dr. Hodge if the root-meaning of the words was to immerse, when did they come to mean anything else? If they have come to mean anything else, it has been since Christ issued the command to be baptized. The wisdom of God is most signally displayed in his giving the New Testament in a dead language. The meaning of words in a living language are susceptible of change, in fact so change. Almost any of you can call to your mind English words which have changed their meaning in a single generation. For instance, the word "rascal" used to simply mean "slave," so that the expression of Paul, "I am the servant of Jesus Christ" might have been translated "Paul, the rascal of Jesus Christ." But we now attach a different meaning to the word "rascal." But when a language becomes dead, its words do not and cannot change their meaning. They are as unchangeable as the fossil remains of extinct species of animals which lie embedded in the strata of the earth's surface. And as soon as the canon of Scripture was completed and God had completed his revelation, he locked it up in dead languages, which cannot change, so that the words of inspiration will mean the same when Gabriel's trump will blow, as they did when they came from the pens of the inspired writers. What the word meant when the New Testament was written is exactly what it means now, and it cannot "have come" to mean anything else.

These are but a few of the many quotations which I might make from eminent Pedobaptist scholars, giving their testimony to the meaning of the word baptizo and the practice of the early church. Why these eminent scholars write one way and practice another, I shall not attempt to say. They have some plausible, and to themselves satisfactory, reasons for not conforming their practice to their acknowledged convictions on the subject of baptism. To these might be applied the saying of the Master, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." It is enough for us to know that honesty and candor compel them to concede the truth of our position, though they do not follow our practice. To their own Maker they stand or fall, and we may deplore their lack of [illegible] we rejoice in their candor and [illegible]. The conscience of the world [illegible]

A FEW MORE QUESTIONS.

Would it not be well for our preachers to ask those who appear before our churches, seeking admission into their fellowship, a few more questions at the time they are received as candidates for baptism? The questions now usually asked are good, so far as they go; but they are few in number, and usually are only such as bring out the fact that the person applying for membership has repented of sin, and is a believer in Christ. Usually no questions are asked that forecast or hint at the practical duties that pertain to the Christian profession; so that many are inducted, we fear, into our churches with a rather dim conception of the fact that they are expected to assume their part of the burdens and responsibilities of Christian living and of church fellowship. Now in order to impress upon such some at least of the practical duties of the Christian life, we ask, again, would not our preachers act wisely to ask a few more questions at the time of their reception? To aid them in the performance of what we regard as sometimes a neglected duty, we will suggest a few that we respectfully submit for their consideration:—

1. Do you, (brother or sister), promise to render proper obedience to church and pastoral authority? We are aware that this question will strike some of our very independent members as unnecessary, and rather a thrust at the Baptist idea of the independence of members and of churches. We admire our system of church independence; we are in favor of the largest personal liberty to our members that is consonant with proper ideas of church obligation and personal duty; but these things do not blind us to the fact that many of our church members are so extremely independent that they pay little or no regard to pastoral or church authority. The pastor may notice a slim attendance at prayer-prayer or church conference, and may make an urgent request on the Sabbath in the presence of most of his people that they attend these meetings. His people go their way straightway, and if that pastor thinks they are going to obey him to the extent of heeding his request, he has only to wait until the next prayer meeting or conference to see that many have paid no attention whatever to his request. None but a zealous, conscientious pastor can know how depressing this rebuff from his people is to the pastor's feelings.

Again, some zealous member, realizing that the finances of the church are being neglected, may rise at a church meeting and offer a motion requesting, (even requiring), every member, unless providentially hindered, to be present at the next church meeting. The motion may be adopted, and all the members may hear of it; but even in a case like this, in some churches at least, many, and sometimes the majority, will be absent. This plainly shows that they have little or no respect for church authority. We are conscious that we have put it strongly, and we are happy to say that the state of things mentioned cannot be found in many of our churches; but the number in which it is true suggests the imperative necessity of adopting some plan of correcting the abnormal idea that many of our people have as to the personal liberty of church members.

2. Do you promise to bear your part, according to your means, of the financial burdens of the church? This question may be wisely put to all who join our churches; because not only heads of families ought to be taught to give, but their children, and, in fact, every member of the church, young and old, male and female. The time has come when our preachers ought to have the courage to teach their people that it is just as much their duty to give to build up Christ's kingdom as to pray for its coming. We know enough of the struggles and trials of our pastors and churches, especially in rural districts, to venture the assertion that the failure of many of our people to pay according to their means, is one great cause why pastoral spirits are crushed and the wheels of church progress clogged. This assertion is strengthened by the sad fact that our churches are carrying year after year the names of many who give nothing whatever to the church or for the Lord's work. Their ideal of a happy church membership is that of an old brother (!) who thanked the Lord "that he had been a member of the church twenty-five years, and it had cost him only twenty-five cents." Is there remedy for this state of things? If there is, and one splendid means of doing (!) is to ask the above-mentioned questions of people who are received into our churches, and to see to it that they keep

3. Do you promise to abstain from the sinful indulgences and amusements that are condemned by God's word, and by the church or people among whom you are seeking fellowship? This kind of question would forestall dancing, theatre-going, and other indulgencies that we find it somewhat difficult to prevent some of our members from yielding to. We are forcibly reminded by the experience of some other denominations about us, that it will not always suffice for it to be known that the denomination condemns such as these, but a convert is better preserved from tempation in these directions if it be true that he promised at the commencement of his Christian career to abstain from them. It may readily be replied that in the reception of members a church need not discriminate between certain sins, for that might produce the impression that the church might wink at indulgence in others, not specifically alluded to in the examination of the candidate. If the above question is examined closely, however, it will be found, we think, quite comprehensive, and yet specific enough to give the pastor sufficient reason to explain that the question not only includes the sinful indulgencies mentioned, but any other, or others, from which the local church in which the person seeks membership may be suffering.

We do not claim that these questions are perfect in conception or wording; it is possible that they are needed at all times and places where people are received into our churches. They are, we repeat, submitted for the consideration of our pastors and godly laymen, who are specially interested in promoting the purity of our churches and the efficiency and piety of their membership. We once heard an intelligent pastor ask one who was seeking membership in his church if he was "willing to show proper respect to pastoral authority;" and the question was doubtless suggested by his noticing that a good many of those already members of his church had rather a dim conception of it. If these questions, then, merely put our pastors and laymen to thinking, so that they may use them, or some others better suited to accomplish the end in view, we have not written in vain. Any careful student of the general condition of our churches as to the zeal and efficiency of the members must be impressed with the fact that a large percentage of our members need some system of training and development that will promote their general efficiency, and especially their liberality in giving for the support of the ministry and the general benevolent work of the denomination.

After having said this much, lest we be considered as taking rather a pessimistic view of the situation, allow us to say that we have great faith in the beloved people for whom we have, under God, given the prime of our days, and in whose service we expect to die. With all their faults, we love them. And may the Lord have them in his holy keeping.

THE TRUE REFORMER.

The cry for "Reform" has characterized every era of civilization. The Pharaohs heard it in the dim twilight of the monarchy of the Nile, and smothered it beneath their might. The Greeks contended for it, established and annihilated empires and republics in its name, and finally fell in suicidal dissension for its sake; the Cæsars heard it, and more than one of them fell victims to the wild rage which it engendered among the oppressed of the Eternal City; 'twas heard again in England, and the Magna Charta is one of its glorious fruits; and again in France, stronger, wilder, louder, more determined and more terrible than ever, in the birth throes of the First Republic; and again when America rose up against her oppressor, and laid the foundations of the greatest government of modern times. And so through the centuries the cry, "Reform!" "Reform!" has echoed and re-echoed.

Every country and every age has its Utopian dream, and the cry for reform is but the hopeless longing of men for this ideal. How often have their cries been false; how many false lights have lured them to dissension and destruction of their hopes; how greatly has true reform been hindered by false cries, false lights, and false leaders, can never be told. For who can tell "what might have been"?

But, although the cry for reform is by no means new, and although it has especially characterized the development of the institutions of this country, never in our history has the cry been so strenuous, widespread, and threatening as in the present decade; and, we may add, never in the history of the world was it more confused and less promising.

How many cries for reform have arisen out of necessity, and been perverted to unworthy motives by designing, ambitious and selfish leaders, and finally died in vain, is only partially told in history. But we feel no hesitancy in stating that, though the large majority of them have been sincere and worthy—for there is always room for reform—the means to which the reform leaders, so called, have resorted, and the motives to which their force was turned, has in most cases been the death of the longed for reform. A false prophet is a reproach to his disciples; just so, a false leader—a demagogue—whose cries for reform are loudest and most threatening, will pervert the accomplishment of true reform and disgrace his supporters.

Such as these are our great fear to day. The condition of the people—the widespread unrest and discontent which now pervades the middle and lower classes—makes the situation most auspicious for the false prophet and the demagogue. We need reform, but we need true reformers far more. We have always needed reform, but never in the history of our country have our people been in such a state of mind as to be readily victimized by designing men as to-day. He who can abuse the conduct of affairs most, stands highest in the estimation of the public in many communities. To them there is no good thing in all the land; and he who proclaims the evil, and makes the good appear evil in their eyes, is a hero. This is grossly wrong, and verges on anarchy. Reform will come, but never in this way, or by these means, or under such leadership.

Now at to the false and the true reformer. The demagogue finds his most acceptable field in our land, particularly in the South and West. His voice is heard daily, or his patriotic utterances read at will in the press. He is forever and eternally "of the people, by the people, and for the people." He taxes the dictionary for words of abuse to heap upon anyone, any section, or any measure, to which his hearers are opposed. His sole effort is to please, and not to instruct. They are found in all the parties—none too few in any of them—but having made fraud, deception and delusion a profession, they are with difficulty identified

Now as to the true reformer. How have all truly great reforms been wrought? How was the greatest reform that ever blest mankind brought about, and by what manner of man? The Bible and history are indisputable testimonies that they were slow and gradual results of the efforts of wise and conservative men, who, though unpretentious, and ofttimes unappreciated and unhonored in life, appeared in their true greatness in the brilliant after-glow which crowned their humble and honest efforts, and have lived blessed in the memory of the generations that followed them. They never joined in the popular cant of their times, but pursued the even tenor of their way, trusting in the future. They never catered to the popular applause, confident that truth crushed to earth would rise again, and that when the temporary rage wrought up by faithless demagogues had died, their way would be adopted as the true way to reform. There are true reformers all over the land to-day who are sincere in their principles, but they are not to be found among those who are trying to excite the public and increase discontent. They, too, are found in all parties, but they are not to be classed among those who claim that theirs is the only way to save the country and insure equal rights to all; who madly declare that all other parties are the instruments used by unseen oppressors who have conspired to enslave the working classes of the land. They seek to instruct and to build, and not to enrage and destroy. They do not catch an idea, or conceive a dream, and immediately proclaim it to the world as a panacea for all ills, but allow the test of time and experience to demonstrate its worth. The true reformer is, in a word, he who creates new institutions, however slow may be the process, however small the popular applause, and gives them life and energy, and trusts to them, rather than the excited and confused clamor of the multitude, to gradually overcome such evils as may beset the body politic. The true reformer is the gradual reformer, and not the radical. For such was the way the Sower, who went forth to sow His seed, did really reform the world without making any open assault to up-root what was already existing. And He was the greatest and most successful reformer that the world has seen. For did he not come when the earth was in her greatest need of reform? And did he not revive the dying forces of Judaism, Greece, and Rome, redeeming their failures, giving true life for the vain forms of Judaism, "imparting to his followers a perfection of beauty and a clearness of knowledge of which the Greeks had never dreamed, and founding a kingdom broader than the empire of mighty Rome!" And amid all his work

"No war, or battle's sound
Was heard the world around;
The idle spear and shield were high up hung,
The hooked chariot stood
Unstain'd with hostile blood."

Such should be our method to day, whether in politics or in dealing with "mission methods." Let not rage and anger divide either the people or the church, when calm and conservative action will right all our wrongs far more swiftly and surely than the confused clamor of a misled multitude. For there are the dupes of scoundrels and the agents of unholy ambition. On the other hand, he who communicates true knowledge to the people, however insignificant and unpretentious his action, is the true friend to the world and benefactor of society, and deserves the encouragement of all good men.

Such was Christ, the great reformer; his truths divine and undying; his progress slow, and his life unpretentious; his works insignificant at the time of their accomplishment; and his reward, how unworthy! But after eighteen centuries, how marvellous the results, and how great the applause!

"REMINDERS."

During the present week all of our subscribers whose subscriptions have expired will receive "reminders" of that fact, and requests to renew. In view of this, we have just a few words to say.

In the first place, the label on your paper tells you when your subscription expired, and you may regard a change of the label figures as a receipt for your money.

If we didn't need the money, or if we could afford to wait longer, the notices would not be sent out. We do need the money, and we trust that those who can, will pay immediately. If you haven't the money now, don't get mad and order the paper stopped, but write us a frank, straightforward letter, and tell us when you can renew, and we will wait until that time. If you have simply forgotten to pay, and have fallen behind by oversight, don't abuse us for reminding you. If a mistake has been made—and we all make mistakes—and your subscription has not expired, don't get mad; but keep the "reminder" until it is useful.

Finally, if you can possibly pay, either a part or whole, remember that a newspaper debt is as binding as any other, and let us have the money by return mail.

The RECORDER, we believe, has more and better friends now than ever before. We know that lately kind and complimentary letters have been more frequent than ever, and we are sincerely grateful for them all. If there is one thing that encourages an editor more than all else, it is appreciation of his efforts. Our aim shall be to make the paper better with each issue, until it is recognized as indispensable in all our Baptist homes, and we are certain that with the co-operation of our readers, by way of communications, renewals, and new subscriptions, that aim will be easy of accomplishment. We trust that our pastors throughout the State will make the RECORDER the medium of expressing their opinions, and carrying the glorious news of work done for the Master to the whole denomination. We shall rely on them to push the work of the RECORDER in their fields, and to redouble their efforts to extends its usefulness by adding new subscribers to our list.

....The Religious Herald has passed another mile-post of its existence, and, we are happy to note, grows better with the years. We extend congratulations.

....John D. Rockefeller has recently given $575,000 for an aged Ministers' Home. This is one of the great philanthropist's wisest and most enduring gifts.

....We were glad to see Bro. C. W. Blanchard of the Third church of Durham in our office last week, and regret to note that his health is still not strong.

....The Treasurer's report will be closed, for the fiscal year of the Baptist State Convention, on Friday, Dec. 1st, 1893. Send in all of your contributions before that date.

....Two weeks more and the Associations will all have been held. Look at the acknowledgments of the Treasurer in each paper and see the objects which need your aid.

....Mrs. Black, wife of Dr. W. S. Black, superintendent of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, died last Sunday afternoon. Her remains were brought to Raleigh for interment. We offer our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

....Rev. Geo. W. Harman, pastor of Sharon and Weldon Baptist churches, spent a few days recently with Bro. Hoggard at Margarettsville, and two were baptized as a result.

....We were pleased to see Rev. John T. Edmundson of Chincoteague Island, Va., in our city last week. Bro. Edmundson is looking well, and reports his field in a flourishing condition.

....Rev. D. J. Harris, missionary of our Board in Alleghany county, says: "I have never known the prospects for the Baptist cause in this county half so flattering as at present."

....We were very glad to see Prof. Jno. B. Brewer of Chowan Baptist Female Institute in the city on the 28th ult. Brother Brewer is looking as well as ever and reports a good school.

....The ordinance of baptism was administered to several candidates on Sunday last at Bethel church, Person county, as the result of a meeting recently conducted by Rev. J. A. Beam.

....The corner stone of the Franklinton Baptist church will be laid on the second inst. Dr. J. W. Carter of this city will deliver an address. The exercises will be under the auspices of the Masons.

....Bro. Durham wishes the pastor of every Baptist church in our Convention which has a pastor's home, or parsonage, to report the fact to him, and to give also the cost of the same and the date when secured.

....The last issue of the Kentucky Baptist contained a good picture of Rev. J. W. Lynch, the promising young divine who has met with such success in Kentucky, since he graduated at Wake Forest College.

....Rev. W. S. Ballard writes from Scotland Neck: "The Lord has blessed me with health in this country. I have held good meetings in which brethren Dowell, Curtis and Fant helped me, and all did good work."

....A great number of State conventions were held last week and the week before, particularly in the Northern and Central States, and we are glad to note that they all showed progress the past year, and report the cause in a growing condition.

....Rev. W. F. Wilhelm, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Hillsboro, died in that town on the night of the 24th ult. Mr. Wilhelm was well-known in this city, where he conducted a series of meetings some years ago. His death is a severe loss to his church.

....We intended to say that we regretted that we were not represented in the South River Association, and not the Little River. We are still waiting for some good brother or sister to render a report of the proceedings.

....Rev. J. K. Fant has accepted a call to the pastorate of the church at Littleton, and takes charge at once. Bro. Fant has our best wishes in his new field, and the church should be congratulated on the selection.

....Miss Nettie, daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. E Owen, and Mr. John Freeman, Union, N. C., were married on the 1st at the residence of the bride's parents, Portsmouth, Va. We extend our hearty congratulations to the couple.

....Rev. G. J. Dowell received a warm welcome from his new flock, the Second church of Durham last week, who gave him and family a "pounding." Bro. Dowell is preaching to large congregations at each service.

....The protracted meeting being conducted at the Baptist church by Revs. M. M. Landrum and C. B. Justice, is still in progress. Much good has been done, and much more will be.—Western Free Lance, (Marion) Oct. 27.

....The protracted meeting now going on at the First Baptist church, which began Sunday, is creating a great deal of interest. Rev. J. H. Edwards, the pastor, is very ably assisted by Rev. T. J. Taylor of Warrenton, N. C.—Fayetteville Observer, Oct. 26.

....Rev. N. S. Jones writes of the revival meetings which were commenced in his church at Salisbury last week: "We are in the midst of a most precious revival. Bro. Jenkins of Wilmington is doing the preaching, and his sermons are practical and forcible."

....Our columns this week contain a newsy missionary letter from Rev. E. F. Tatum of China. Next week our readers may expect another splendid missionary letter from Sister Fannie S. Knight. We are always glad to give our subscribers such excellent reading matter.

....Let every pastor, when the Baptist people have built a new house of worship this year, or when they are building, or when they have done repairing, report the cost of the same to Bro. Durham at once, and also the name of the church and the Association in which it is located.

....The cases of Drs. Briggs and Smith have recently been settled forever as far as the Presbyterian church is concerned. The Synod of Ohio has sustained the action of the Presbytery of Ohio in regard to Prof. Smith, and the Synod of New York refused to re-open the Briggs matter.

....Rev. J. A. Campbell of Poe's, N. C. was in our office last week. We are glad to know that Bro. Campbell's Academy (Buie's Creek) is in a flourishing condition, and regret exceedingly that we cannot accept his kind invitation to attend the Little River Association which meets this week.

....Dr. H. M. Tupper has returned to Shaw University, this city, over which he has presided so long and so ably, from a trip North, which was prolonged by severe illness. We regret to note that the Doctor is still very weak and unwell, and hope that his former vigor may be speedily restored.

....Dr. T. H. Pritchard begins a series of articles in our next issue on "The Higher Education of Women and the Co Education of the Sexes." The Doctor has gone into the subject in that earnest, and promised to convert us before he is through.

....Rev. G. W. Gardiner formerly of Mississippi, now of Kissimee, Fla., writes that he is going to resume his former able letters to the RECORDER. We are grateful to Bro. Gardner, and are sure that our subscribers will read his letters with pleasure.

....Rev. M. A. Adams baptized three candidates into the fellowship of the Monroe church last Sunday night, and his work is reported as moving onward. He is preaching a series of sermons to Christian people this week to good congregations, and much interest is expressed.

....Rev. W. F. Watson, late of the Roxboro church, writes: "I left the 29th for my new field (Spurgeon Memorial church, Norfolk, Va.), but am anxious to keep well informed about the progress of our Baptist Zion in the Old North State;" and therefore he renews his subscription.

....Rev. J. H. Hildreth, who recently took charge of the church at Southport, desires to express his sincere gratitude to the ladies and Sunday school scholars of his flock for a magnificent pounding bestowed upon his family. Brother Hildreth says he wouldn't object to being pounded in this way about six times a year.

....Revs. D. W. Herring, W. E. Crocker, F. M. Royall and T. L. Blalock held their farewell services at Reidsville on Sunday last before leaving for China. The services were very interesting and were largely attended. These brethren shall have our prayers in their work. They left this State the 30th.

...."We have made no new division in mission work. Christ said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me in Jerusalem"—that is City missions—'in Judea'—that is State missions—'in Samaria'—that is Home missions—'and to the uttermost parts of the earth'—that is Foreign missions."—Dr. G. A. Nunnally, in Religious Herald.

....Evangelist Weston R. Gales has been holding meetings in this city during the past week. Much interest is manifested, and large audiences are in attendance daily. The meetings were begun in the Christian church, but on account of the increasing attendance it was removed to Metropolitan Hall.

....Rev. A. A. Butler has recently taken charge of the pastorate at Mt. Olive, and writes that the people have been exceedingly kind to himself and wife since their coming. They were given an old time pounding recently, which was greatly enjoyed, and for which Bro. Butler desires to express his gratitude. The outlook, thinks the new pastor, is encouraging.

....One of the most promising of our young pastors in this State writes: "The RECORDER is the best paper that comes to my study, and when I tell you that I get about twenty per week, you can form my estimate." No one but an editor can appreciate such kind words; and we are trying to be more and more worthy of them each issue.

....We have intended for some time to commend the action of the Wilmington Messenger in having religious editorials in their Sunday issues. This is the only way that Sunday papers can become popular in many communities, and we are glad that the Messenger has set the example. Dr. Kingsbury may differ from us considerably, but the general tenor of his editorials are wholesome and sensible.

....We are glad to know that we were mistaken in our statement in regard to Bro. Thomas Carrick's health. He writes that his health has been good, and that he has been able to fill all of his appointments; but that the illness of a member of his family prevented him from doing much pastoral work and filling proctracted-meeting engagements. Bro. Carrick and Bro. Webb held a good meeting at Liberty last week.

....Rev. W. C. Newton, our missionary to Lagos, West Africa, was in our office this week, and says he expects to leave for his field in a few days. God has blessed Bro. Newton's work among our Associations as well as in Africa. It is seldom that a missionary vacation has been spent as busily as was his. Bro. Newton may be sure that he and his family will be followed to Africa by the prayers and love of thousands of his brethren and sisters, whom he has addressed in the past half year.

....Rev. Calvin S. Blackwell writes from Elizabeth City: "We are all hard at work putting down new carpets all over the church, finishing up the Sunday-school annex, and getting ready generally for the Baptist hosts." In this connection we might mention that both of the Elizabeth City papers have spoken very highly of the Baptist denomination, and the honor they do the city by holding its Convention there. Now let there be a great concourse of the faithful within her borders next month.

....The statement of the Examiner that "Our English brethren are finding it easier to raise money than men for the missionary cause," cannot but be surprising to our readers, who have always regarded money as the one thing needful for the prosecution of missionary work. Yet the statement is true, and the handsome sum of $600,000 netted by the centennial movement in England, though available cannot be used immediately for lack of missionaries. A deputation is now visiting the Baptist churches of England, appealing to them to furnish men, in order that the planned work may commence. And yet people tell us England is suffering from financial stringency. What a contrast the American situation presents. All our Boards, North and South, are behind, and consecrated workers, ready and willing to enter the fields! May God hasten the day when our treasuries will overflow.

....It is with sadness that we announce the death of Rev. J. C. Price, D. D., the premier negro orator of his day. He lived a life of consecration to the Master, did much for his race, and has passed from among us esteemed and beloved by all who knew him. As a pulpit orator he had few equals among any race. His life is an enduring monument to his race, and should be an inspiration to them.

....Our pastors should remember that the papers of other denominations take the RECORDER reports of revivals as complete each week, and give their results as the work of the denomination. Such should be expected of the organ of the Convention; but it is a sad fact that many pastors enjoy good revivals, and many people are converted that we never hear of. All we want to announce is the figures and interesting features—no long accounts.

....A grand rally at Metropolitan Hall, for the benefit of the Fayetteville Street Baptist church of this city, was held last Sunday. Three sermons were preached on that day, by Dr. Thos. E. Skinner, Dr. J. W. Carter, and Dr. M. W. D. Norman. It was a rally indeed, and with the inspiration of these consecrated men much good was done. A collection was taken for the new house of worship, and resulted very encouragingly. To Brother Jno. Pullen's efforts, under God, the success of this very promising church is due. Rev. R. E. Blake is pastor.

....Our Western North Carolina brethren must have had one of the best sessions in their history if we are to judge from the goodly list of distinguished speakers who took part in the proceedings. Among many others we notice, Drs. C. C. Bitting, T. P. Bell, I. T. Tichenor, C. E. Taylor and J. L. Carroll. In this connection we are glad to note the continued improvement of the Baptist, which now announces its name as the Western North Carolina Baptist, with Rev. Geo. Wharton, editor, and postoffice, Waynesville, N. C.

....Rev. Benjamin Griffith, D. D., one of the most prominent Baptists of the North, died suddenly at his home in Chester, Pa., on Oct. 24th, 1893. Dr. Griffith enjoyed a national reputation as a pulpit orator and religious writer. For the last twenty-five years he had been the Corresponding Secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, and this work kept him constantly before the Baptist denomination as a foremost educational writer. He was withal a man of remarkable executive ability, great consecration and great power. His death is a severe loss to the denomination. He was a little past seventy two years of age.

....Verily South Carolina is the home of innovations an experiments. It was not long since that our brethren of that State opened the doors of Furman University to women, and now the Courier is in favor of consolidating Greenville Female College with that University. We are not sufficiently acquainted with South Carolina conditions to speak on this subject, but we feel no hesitancy in expressing the hope that God may spare Wake Forest College from Furman's fate yet many years. We are in favor of higher female education, we want our girls to have equal preparation for life as our boys but would rather wait for our Female University several years, than resort to "consolidation;" or, co education.

....Rev. W. Jasper Howell, Jr., seems to be pleasing the Tennessee brethren mightily, if we are to judge by the good things said of him in the Baptist and Reflector. Says one correspondent: "Rev. Jasper Howell, as seen from the writer's standpoint, shou'd have returned to Wake Forest College and then to the Seminary, which he may yet do; but he so delighted the Jonesboro saints with his preaching that they constrained him to remain there and preach a year. He is young yet, being only 23." Says another: "Howell is a very bright young man, and is destined to make one of our strongest ministers. He preached for us (Greeneville, Tenn.,) yesterday morning, to the satisfaction of all who heard him. After the sermon he give an invitation to any that wished to unite with the church to come forward. To the surprise of all but a very few, Rev. W. B. Baldwin of the M. E. Church, with his wife, came forward and related in a very brief way their Christian experience, and said they wished to follow their Master in baptism."

A New Church Constituted.

Dear Recorder:—On yesterday a council, consisting of Elder Wm. L. Tart and Deacons W. B. Hocutt and Jacob K. James, met at a public school-house near Lillington Hall, in Pender county, and organized a regular Baptist church, to be known as Olivet Baptist church.

This new church is located about fourteen miles from any other Baptist church, and is composed mainly of members regularly dismissed by letter from Riley's Creek, Mt. Holly and Maple Hill churches. Others came by baptism. The present membership is twenty six. Several others have signified an intention to secure letters and identify themselves with this new work. May the Lord graciously bless this people.

Wake Forest Letter.

THE STUDENT.

The October number of the Wake Forest Student was issued last week. The publication of this magazine was begun about twelve years ago under the auspices of the Literary Societies. From the start it took high rank as a college monthly and its articles have, in the main, received favorable comment from competent critics. Professors, students and alumni write for its columns and it seeks at all times to represent the best thought and effort of the institution whose interests it was founded to promote. It is in some sense our organ. The alumnus struggling with the battles and business of life, or already happy in the attainment of success finds in it an opportunity to encourage and stimulate the plodding student; the professor can record in it the results of his studies and investigations, while to the student it offers an excellent medium for communication with the outside world and the training of his powers as a writer. During the present session the Student promises to be of unusual interest.

Every issue will contain an article from a member of the Faculty on some interesting or educational topic. For the next number Prof. Lanneau will write on the "Recent Uses of Electricity."

The present editorial staff are W. L. Foushee and R. W. Haywood, senior, and R. F. Beasley and J. E. Yates, associate editors. Prof. J. C. Marke represents the Faculty in its management. Every friend of the College ought to take it. The subscription price is $1.50 per year. Mr. D. R. Britton, the business manager, will be pleased to receive subscriptions and advertisements.

THE SENIOR CLASS

Thirty young men expect to receive their diplomas in June next. Nine of them are preparing for the ministry. The others expect to be lawyers, doctors, teachers or farmers. W. L. Foushee is president of the class and R. H. Carter its secretary. The class representatives at next commencement will be J. D. Robertson, orator, R. F. Beasley, poet, R. W. Haywood, historian and T. M. Leary, prophet.

OTHER ITEMS.

Two new students have come since my last letter was written, one from Jackson county, N. C., and one from South Carolina.

Wake Forest men are in great demand. At least six letters have been received here during the last few days making application for Wake Forest men to take charge of academies at good salaries. Let the young men of North Carolina bear this in mind. A diploma from Wake Forest always enables its possessor to get honorable and lucrative work.

Eleven of the students paid for their board during the month of September $5 51 each. And they had good, substantial fare. At first-class hotels board is only $10 per month. Let fathers who have sons to educate make a note of this. The best Literary Societies in the South, a Library of over ten thousand volumes, and a well furnished Reading Room, handsomely equipped Laboratories, a thorough and practical course of instruction, cheap living and religious influences—these advantages Wake Forest offers to the young men of the State. We ought to have forty new students at the beginning of the spring term and we can have them if all our friends will begin work for us now. C.

With a Comment or Two.

"Rev. M. A. Adams of Monroe will begin a series of seven sermons on 'Marriage' at his church at Monroe, shortly."

Generally speaking, the brethren and sisters do not need much exhortation along this line. It is one of the things which the Lord will find on the earth when he comes again. Panics and earthquakes and the swelling of great waters will not seriously retard this business. But Bro. Adams is wise, sensible and consecrated, let the people hear him. His advice will be worth heeding. People often make up their minds about getting married and then ask the Lord for guidance. They will hear what the preacher has to say on the subject, then do as they please. It is refreshing for a preacher to feel that the Lord will not hold him responsible for the mistakes that people may make after he has tried to give them the truth on the subject.

"I see no use in whining over the inevitable. The right thing to do now is to provide for the future."—J. J. Lansdell in Recorder of last week.

The pastor of the church had resigned after ten months' labor on the field. He is silently folding his tent and quietly stealing away to the "Old Virginny shore." Bro. Lansdell views the situation like a philosopher. The field is the world. If a preacher wants to change, and another church holds out larger opportunities for him, what is the use to "whine" about it? The Lord can fill the vacancy. No man is so indispensable to any place that the work he is doing cannot be done equally well by another. I know if we were to dwell on this thought very long, it would take the starch out of "us preachers." Of course, it is hard to part with our pastors; but when some church, which "covets the best gifts," calls him and he accepts with all the points before him, "I see no use in whining over the inevitable."

"I am sorry to see such pastors as Moore, Broughton and others leaving our State."—J. V. McCall, in last Recorder.

Bro. Broughton will leave Winston after the first Sunday in next month. He has been with the Broad Street church nearly two years. He has done a fine work. Many beside his own congregation regret to see him go. He is a whole-souled brother, an excellent preacher and an aggressive worker. The church to which he goes will find him ready for every good "word and work." Like David and Jonathan, we have walked together during the months past. We have taken sweet counsel together. The church in Roanoke will furnish him a fine opportunity for the employment of his gifts. The church here will do its best to find a suitable successor. My prayers and best wishes will follow Bro. Broughton to his new field and to the end of life.

H. A. BROWN.

Rev. C. A. Jenkens.

One of the largest congregations that ever assembled at the First Baptist church, comprising all the various denominations of the city, was present Sunday night to hear the Rev. Mr. Jenkens' discourse on "Future Punishment," which subject he preached on by special request. For one hour and thirty-five minutes this learned gentleman held the rapt attention of the vast assemblage with one of the most powerful, yet plain and practical sermons that was ever delivered in that edifice, clearly portraying the frequent teachings of the Bible on the subject given him, to the great pleasure and satisfaction of all whose good fortune it was to be present on the occasion. The renditions of the choir, selected for the occasion, were greatly enjoyed and highly spoken of.—Argus, October 24.

Bro. Jenkens is giving masterly sermons to large audiences at every service. His flock here love him very much, and they are enjoying his feeding. The author of "Pot Hooks" is a preacher of research, deep thought and fervid eloquence. He is at home in the pulpit, prayer-meeting and Sunday-school, and loves a hearty hand-shake anywhere. To know him is to love him.

ONE OF THE FLOCK.

Oxford Female Seminary Items.

Miss Alberta Newton (Class 1887), one of our missionaries to Africa, paid her Alma Mater a visit last week, in every way delightful to all here. She met the students on Thursday afternoon and gave them in a conversation an interesting account of her work at Lagos, and of the customs and manners of the people. Her dignified bearing, her quiet, refined manners, and her devotion to duty made a most forcible impression on all who met her. Special honor has been put upon this Seminary by the Holy Ghost in calling three of the alumnæ to work in foreign lands—Mrs. Herring, alas! no more, Mrs. Geo. W. Greene and Miss Newton—a noble trio.

The work of the Seminary is progressing satisfactorily. Our new teachers, Miss Ida Poteat and Mrs. Addie Dixon, are meeting the high expectations raised by them. The Art Department, in charge of the first named, is popular and growing more popular daily, while Miss Dixon is building up a large class in Elocution. Both of these ladies come from gifted families, are themselves richly endowed, and have carefully and arduously cultivated their talents under the most favorable conditions.

Our Music Department, in charge of a German Conservatory music-pupil, is one of the best in the South.

Resolutions of the Zionville Church.

WHEREAS, Rev. E. F. Jones was for a number of years our efficient and faithful pastor; and whereas, he has gone from us to serve others; therefore be it Resolved 1st. That it is with feelings of deep regret we part with one so dear to all our hearts.

Resolved further. That we recommend him to the brotherhood as a faithful minister, a wise pastor, and as a godly, consecrated servant of the Lord, praying the blessings of heaven upon him and his whereves his lot may be cast.

Resolved further. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication; also a copy be sent to the family of our brother; also that these resolutions be spread upon the church book.

Resolutions of Respect.

In a special meeting of Roberdel Baptist church, Pee Dee Association, Oct. 22d, 1893, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, Our beloved brother and pastor for the past two years, Rev. L. S. Boyles, has resigned our church; and whereas, he has been so faithful in all his work here; therefore be it Resolved 1. That we, the Roberdel church, will follow him with our earnest prayers, sincerely trusting that he may be as useful wherever he goes as he has been in the Roberdel field.

Resolved 2. We tender him the testimony of our great debt of gratitude for his most faithful labor while our pastor.

Resolved 3. That we shall always be glad to welcome him to our homes and hearts, and that we hereby extend to him a standing invitation to pay us visits and preach to us when possible.

Resolved 4. That these resolutions be entered on our church register, and copies be sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and North Carolina Baptist for publication.

May God's richest blessings abide upon our brother and his family.

Literary.

The Wake Forest Student, No. 4, Vol. XIII, has been received. This number is filled with matter of general interest, and naturally its contents are of special value to the Baptist denomination. Prof. Poteat contributes a very readable descriptive narrative, entitled "Penikese," and Mr. E. F. Beasley an excellent historical paper on "The Establishment of Christianity as the State Religion of the Roman Empire." "Wake Forest," a poem, is one of the best of its kind that we have ever seen. As a whole, this number of the Student reflects great credit on its editors and the College, and is worthy of the encouragement of the denomination.

The Revival Helper is the title of a new book just completed by Rev. C. W. Ray, and though specially adapted to Evangelical work, as its name implies, it will be found equally helpful in all religious and devotional exercises in Sunday-schools. The hymns are faultless in sentiment, elevating in character, of rare literary excellence, melodious and inspiring. "The Revival Helper" has 224 pages; finely printed and substantially bound; with index of subjects, first lines of hymns as well as names of hymns. Specimen copy mailed for thirty-five cents. Published by the S. Brainard's Sons Co., Chicago.

Our Best Moods, Soliloquies and Other Discourses. By David Gregg, D. D., Pastor Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. New York: E. B. Treat, 5 Cooper Union, Office of the Treasury Magazine. 12 mo, 362 pages, price, cloth, $1 25.

Anything from the pen of one considered worthy to be the successor of Dr. Cuyler (as Pastor of Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church) should attract attention; especially as his pastorate is proving eminently successful, and his pulpit efforts are always original, fresh and popular. The reader will soon discover that these are no ordinary sermons. They are the product of a mind thoroughly cultivated, charged with truth expressed in a style at once original and energetic. There is in these discourses food for the soul, pabulum for the intellect, stimulus for the life, and an uplift for the whole man.

Life Among the Hindus. By Rev. P. M. Johnson, A. M., Missionary to the Telugus. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. Address, Rev. P. M. Johnson, Eureka Springs, Ark.

This book consists of a well-told narrative of two years' life among the Hindus, and will be of interest to any one who admires works o' this sort.

A Suggestion.

It seems to me it would be a good plan to have a column in the minutes of our Associations, giving the dates of the organization of the churches (just the year), and the dates of the ordination of the ministers; also the dates of the ordination of ministers in the minutes of the Baptist State Convention. This plan, once started, could be kept up with very little trouble, and it would be the means of preserving historical dates, which is sometimes difficult to get hold of. What say the brethren to the suggestion? Some of the churches of the State date back one hundred years, others more. The very old churches are few, and it would be interesting and instructive to look over the list and the dates and see how they have multiplied within a given time; also to see how long certain ministers had been preaching the "gospel of the grace of God."

French's Creek Church.

Dear Recorder:—We have just had a gracious outpouring of God's Holy Spirit at our church (French's Creek). Bro. A. J. Bordeaux commenced the meeting on Monday, the 9th inst., and preached until Tuesday evening, three very earnest sermons, when Bro. Walton arrived and fell into line and did the balance of the preaching, doing so day and night with the exception of the day of the storm until last Monday, when he led seven happy converts into the baptismal waters, leaving two others to be baptized at his next appointment. Three were restored to membership.

We believe our church and community have been greatly blessed by having such an able and earnest pastor, and we feel proud to say when Bro. Bordeaux moved in the conference to call him again as our pastor, every member voted for him. We believe that God directed us to call him as our pastor, and that he is the right man in the right place.

that the baptism which Jesus commanded is immersion.

But, my friends, there is but little need of appealing to scholarship to settle a question, when the plain English Scriptures if consulted with freedom from prejudice and a desire to learn exactly what they do teach on the subject regardless of preconceptions or personal taste, infallibly lead to immersion. The celebrated Laura Bridgeman is a demonstration of this fact. She was born deaf and dumb, and at four years of age she had scarlet fever, which left her blind. She was taken to an institution in Philadelphia and educated. She was of course without any religious bias, and the principal of the institution determined to make a test case of the matter. So when she got so she could read, he placed in her hands a New Testament to be studied without note or comment. The first impression the Testament made upon her was that she was a sinner and needed a Saviour. And when she had found Christ precious to her soul, she came to the principal and demanded to be baptized. The principal said, "Well, how do you want to be baptized?" And she replied, "There is not but one way, is there?" The man replied, "Yes, some churches baptize by sprinkling, and some by pouring, and some by dipping the candidate in the water." And she said, "I want to be dipped; that is the way Christ was baptized." And the principal, who was not himself a Baptist, sent for a Baptist pastor, and she was baptized into the fellowship of a Baptist church. Now this is an authentic case and can be vouched for.

Even Dr. Charles Hodge, late of Princeton, who made concessions to the Baptist position with great care, and I might say reluctance, admitted that there were many passages in the New Testament, in which the presumption is decidedly in favor of immersion. Those passages, for instance, which speak of the persons baptized "going down into the water" and "coming up out of the water," as Matthew 3: 16—"And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straitway out of the water"; and Acts 8: 38, 39—"And they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more." And the Doctor says, "The only presumption against immersion is the physical impossibility of thus bapt zing the multitudes mentioned in Matthew 3: 5, 6, "Then went out to him Jerusalem and Judea and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan confessing their sins." Well, all that need be said is that if the Holy Spirit says this vast number were immersed, we don't need to account for how they were baptized. But the most extravagant literalist dare not maintain that every individual in all this region was baptized. It is only a general expression indicating a general movement, like when the rulers said of Jesus, "The whole world has gone out after him." We are certain, however, that all the people in Jerusalem and Judea and the region round about Jordan were not baptized of John, because it distinctly said of the Pharisees that "they rejected the kingdom of heaven against themselves, not receiving the baptism of John." What is meant is that a great many came to John's baptism. Then furthermore, the length of time that John was occupied in baptizing this vast number is not given. It certainly was not in one day or one week: it may have required months. The same presumption is urged against immersion from the statement that three thousand people were added to the church in one day. But this objection may be met in various ways. First of all, it is not necessary to maintain that they were all baptized the same day. The record simply is that they "were added to the church in one day." And this is only a general account of the results of the one day's meeting. In my last quarterly report, in summing up the results of the meeting conducted by Mr. Fife, I report "five added to the church by baptism," although they were not baptized during the meeting; indeed they are not yet baptized. The report was not misleading. It simply meant that five were admitted as candidates for baptism. And so with the record in Acts. You do violence to the statement and to common sense to insist that they were all baptized in one day. But grant, for argument's sake, that they were all baptized in one day, and what follows? Well, it has been demonstrated that you can immerse as fast as you can pour or sprinkle. The greatest consumption of time in either case is in pronouncing the formula. It has been demonstrated by mathematical calculation based on the time it requires a modern Baptist preacher to baptize one candidate, that the twelve Apostles, together with the seventy other Apostles which Christ had appointed, could have baptized the three thousand in less than four hours. Besides, the pentecostal feat has been almost duplicated in modern missions. In June, 1878, in Ongale, India, were immersed 2,723 candidates in one day, thus lacking 278 of being as many as were added to the church after pentecost. This is near enough to prove that the immersion of three thousand, as recorded in Acts, is possible.

Great stress is laid on the fact that it is said in Matthew, third chapter, that John baptized with water and not in water and that John said of Christ, "He will baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire." But if you will take down the Revised Version and examine, you will find that in every place where the preposition is translated with, the revisers have put in in the margin, thus indicating that in is as proper as with. This rule, then, will hold good that where the same word may be translated by either of two words, that is the most proper which can be used all through the narrative without doing violence to the sense or connection of the passage. Suppose we apply this test to the account of John's baptism. Suppose you [illegible] the Greek preposition en by the [illegible] in every place where it occurs in the [illegible]. Listen now: "In those days came John the Baptist preaching with the wilderness of Judea and saying, Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." According to this the wilderness of Judea was not the scene of the Baptist's preaching, but the instrument with which he preached. This makes nonsense. "Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him with Jordan, confessing their sins." This agrees with the definition which most of our Pedobaptist brethren give of baptism, that it is the "application of water to a person in the name of the Holy Trinity." Here, then, was an application in abundance; they were baptized with a whole river. This translation is even worse nonsense. But if you use the word in all the way through, you have sense all the way through. "In those days came John the Baptist preaching in the wilderness of Judea." "Then went out unto him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of John in (the river) Jordan"—not with the river Jordan—"confessing their sins." "I indeed baptize in water unto repentance, but * * he shall baptize you in the Holy Ghost and in fire."

(To be concluded next week).

No Waste.

No other board, society or publishing house can furnish literature for colportage work as readily as the American Baptist Publication Society. Every dollar that goes into the treasury of the American Baptist Publication Society for missionary work sets in motion an influence that will extend into eternity. Not a dime is lost or misused, but is employed to the glory of God and in the extension of his kingdom in America. Every salary of officers and assistants in the Rooms is paid out of the profits made by the Book Department.

Our Daily Bread.

"And his allowance was a continual allowance given him by the King, a daily rate for every day, all the days of His life."—2 King 25: 30.

Jehoiachin was not sent away from the king's palace with a store to last him for months, but his provision was given him as a daily portion. Herein he well pictures the happy position of the Lord's people. A daily portion is all that a man really wants. We do not need to morrow's supplies; that day has not yet dawned and its wants are unborn. The thirst we may suffer in the month of June does not need to be quenched in February, for we do not feel it yet; if we have enough for each day as it arrives, we shall never know want. Sufficient for the day is all we can enjoy.

We cannot eat or drink or wear more than the day's supply of food or raiment; the surplus gives us the care of storing it and the anxiety of watching against a thief. One staff aids a traveler, but a bundle of staves is a heavy burden. Enough is not only as good as a feast, but is all that the veriest glutton can truly enjoy. This is all we should expect; a craving for more than this is ungrateful. When our Father does not give us more, we should be content with his daily allowance. Jehoiachin's case is ours: we have a sure portion, a portion given us of the King, a gracious portion, a perpetual portion. Here is surely ground for thankfulness.

Beloved Christian reader, in matters of grace you need a daily supply. You have no store of strength. Day by day must you seek help from above. It is a very sweet assurance, that a daily portion is provided for you. In the Word, through the ministry, in prayer, and in waiting upon God, you shall receive renewed strength. In Jesus all needful things are laid up for you. Then enjoy your continual allowance. Never go hungry while the daily bread of grace is on the table of mercy. Jesus has taught us to pray: "Give us this day our daily bread."

Bearing Others' Burdens.

Happy is that one who enjoys the opportunity and is gifted with the ability to lift heavy weights from burdened souls. It would be difficult to determine which is more blessed, the one to whom such a ministry is granted or the grateful recipient of such timely succor. It requires more than human skill to know just when and how this task is to be undertaken. There may be moments in a life of sorrow when anything said or done to help is absolute rudeness, when utter solitude is grateful for the time, when the heart is wrung with a deeper agony because of these very attempts in its behalf, all of which may be made in full sincerity. There are Gethsemanes along life's way where, provided we may but know that our associates are tenderly "watching" with us, we do not care to have them intrude upon sacred grief by any expressive salutation. But these are exceptionable seasons in life, and, because suffering sometimes leads to morbid mental states, the sufferer should guard against the tendency to a self-imposed isolation.—New York Advocate.

ADDITION.

"Add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity." (2 Peter 1:5).

SUBTRACTION.

"Laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocricies, envies and all evil speakings, * * * desire the sincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby." (1 Peter 2:1, 2).

MULTIPLICATION.

A Parisian Photographer.

When a lady is sitting to a Parisian photographer for a portrait the operator does not, in a perfunctory manner, coldly request her to "Look pleasant now, if you please!" He says to her, in the most natural and graceful manner in the world: "It is quite unnecessary to ask madam to look pleasant—she could not look otherwise." The lady of course acknowledges the compliment with her most gracious and highbred smile. "Click!" goes the camera and the picture is obtained, revealing the sitter to the greatest advantage.—Exchange.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

Can this disease be cured? Most physicians say No—I say, Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 30 years study and experiment I have found the remedy.—Epilepsy is cured by it; cured, not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of to-day. A Royal Cure.

I have suffered twelve years from indigestion and dyspepsia. Nearly two years ago I had a very severe attack of la grippe, from the effects of which I suffered with sore eyes, catarrh of the head, stomach, and bowels, deranged condition of kidneys, and the worst sort of case of piles. In fact, I was confined to my bed for eighteen months and was given up to die of consumption. Great abscesses formed on my lungs, and when they would break I coughed up quantities of offensive matter and blood. I suffered with high fever in my lungs, bowels, and stomach. No language can describe my suffering. After all remedies had failed, and my doctor had given me up to die, I was persuaded by Rev. J. W. Howard of this city to try King's Royal Germetuer. I began to improve with the first bottle, and now hope to live to a good, ripe old age to tell of the virtues of that greatest of all remedies—King's Royal Germetuer. I have persuaded many to use it, and all of them join me in singing its praises. God be praied for sending his servant to tell me of this wonderful medicine. I would advise all the afflicted to try it. N. H. DRIGGERS,

Some Ecclesiastical Don'ts.

1. Don't study without prayer.
2. Don't pray without study.
3. Don't tell all you know in one sermon.
4. Don't mistake length for profundity nor brevity for wit.
5. Don't offer to other people manna which you have not tasted yourself.
6. Don't preach a mutilated Bible, sugar-coat the truth or administer homœopathic dilutions of orthodoxy. The pulpits that are losing their grip on the people are the pulpits that are losing their grip on the old gospel. The preachers who are securing the best audiences, the world over, are those who habitually present the old gospel in its integrity and simplicity.
7. Don't preach science; not even the science of theology. Your pulpit is not a lecture platform, nor your church a class-room.
8. Don't be ambitious to be considered a "big gun." Better be a well-loaded rifle. The "swamp angel" in the last war was a failure. It proposed to do great things, but after a while they found it was cracked and were afraid to use it lest it blow up. So while men of real effectiveness are doing their work well, and making no fuss about it, we have a few "big guns," half cracked with conceit about themselves, but unfortunately liable to blow up just when they are wanted for important service. Most "big guns" are smooth-bores. Don't be a "big gun."
9. Don't make up your mind that you will be, at whatever cost, a "popular preacher." The formula for making a "popular preacher" involves these three ingredients: One-third voice and personal "presence," one-third sensational selection of topics, and one-third heresy. The proportion of ingredients varies somewhat in special cases, a little extra allowance for heresy, for example, serving to offset trifling deficiencies in personal appearance; but in general the proportions must be blended about as we have indicated. Don't be "popular" at the price.
10. Don't indulge the slightest impression that there is any substitute for thorough-going, ardent, sincere earnestness. A distinguished lawyer once said to Dr. Cuyler, "If I had a student in my office who was not more in earnest to win his first ten-dollar suit before a justice of the peace than some ministers seem to be in trying to save souls, I would kick such a student out of my office." Don't fail to be in dead earnest.
11. Don't use a pompous style in prayer. Let your sentences be simple and your words plain. Let them as far as possible express wants likely to be felt by your congregation. Remember that you not only pray for your hearers, but on their behalf and in their name. You are, for the time being, their mouthpiece. Don't use a style of prayer in which they cannot join.
12. Don't neglect most careful preparation for the devotional exercises of worship. Preparation, mental and spiritual, for leading the devotional service is quite as important as preparation for preaching. Preaching would be far more effective than it is if more life and power were put into the praying and the singing.
13. Don't forget that long and formal prayers are not conducive to the ends of worship. Brevity, warmth, directness, simplicity in thought and language will find response in the hearts of the people. The spirit and impression of the devotional part of the service will guage the interest and effect of the sermon. Properly conducted it is the best preparation for seed sowing.
14. Don't let your notices mar the effect of your preaching. Give them out distinctly and in as few words as practicable. Limit them to your own church and its work. Don't be a vender of nostrums.
15. Don't, in exchanging, read announcements without making sure that they are new. An old New England preacher read a request for prayers from a man who had lost his wife. It was a year old or more. And while he was praying for the widower, the widower was present listening with a new wife by his side!
16. Don't be cold and formal in manner. Put heart in your preaching. "To me," said Longfellow, "a sermon is no sermon in which I cannot hear the heart beat." Most people feel in the same way.
17. Don't be dull and uninteresting. Don't let your congregation go to sleep. Keep them awake at all hazards. You can neither save nor help a soul when it is asleep. As a last resort you might wake the sleepers by some such method as that used by a certain Scotch minister when, on a warm day, he saw many of his people nodding and drowsing in their pews. Resolving to meet the difficulty in some way, he suddenly introduced into his sermon the word "hyperbolical." Then pausing, he said, "Now, my friends, some of you may not understand this word 'hyperbolical'—I'll explain. Suppose I were to say that this congregation were all asleep in this church at this present time, I would be speaking hyperbolically; because (looking around) I don't believe that more than half of you are sleeping." The effect was instantaneous. Those who were nodding recovered themselves and nudged their sleeping neighbors, and the preacher had the best of attention to the close of the service. Try it if you must.
18. Don't torture people with prolixity and verboseness of illustration. A minister noted for this fault was once preaching to the inmates of a lunatic asylum. In one of his illustrations he painted the scene of a man condemned to be hung, but reprieved under the gallows. He went on to describe the gathering of the crowd, the bringing out of the prisoner, his remarks under the gallows, the appearance of the executioner, the adjustment of the halter, the preparation to let fall the platform, and just then the appearance in the distance of the dust-covered courier, the jaded horse, the waving handkerchief, the commotion in the crowd. At this thrilling point, when every one was listening in breathless silence for the climax, the doctor became painfully prolix. One of the inmates, who could endure the torture no longer, arose in the congregation and shouted, "Hurry, doctor; for God's sake, hurry! They'll hang the man before we get there!" Don't forget that oratory abhors lengthiness.
19. Don't fail, as the principal thing, to exalt the cross of Jesus Christ. It is the one great attraction. "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me."
20. Finally, don't be an evangelist without a message, a preacher without doctrine, a pastor without devotion, or a bishop without watchfulness, and you will not be a servant without reward.—Rev. Gerard B. F. Hallock, in the October Treasury Magazine.

Fidelity Greater Than Success.

In the Young Men's Era, Rev. D. Sutherland writes thus on this subject:—

Success is the idol of our generation, before which many knees are bent, and to which almost universal homage is paid. The gospel of getting on is the most popular gospel of our day, casting into the shade the infinitely nobler claims of the gospel of getting up. Failure is the unpardonable sin in the ethics of society, while success covers a multitude of sins. A millionaire may drive a carriage and pair through the ten commandments and persistently ignore the highest possibilities of life without lowering himself in the esteem of the fashionable cliques that arrogate to themselves the name of society. Let a man be successful—that is the first and main consideration—all others are secondary.

It is here that the line of demarcation between Christianity and worldliness shows sharp and clear. Christianity emphasizes fidelity, but worldliness emphasizes success. Christ says, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life;" the world says, "Be thou successful, and I will give thee a crown of honor and applause." The two are diametrically opposed the one to the other. Choice must be made between the two. Compromise is impossible. It is no less true to-day than in the days of Christ, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

The thoughtful student of Christ's teaching must have been impressed over and over again with the importance he attaches to fidelity. It appears with a vividness almost startling in its intensity in the parable of the talents. There the diligent servants, who by trading had increased the five talents to ten and the two to four, received cordial words of approbation from their Master. He did not say unto them, "Well done, good and successful servants," but "well done, good and faithful servants." Fidelity is the grace in service which Christ honors most highly and praises most warmly.

Surely, Christians ought to find inspiration in the truth that fidelity is greater than success in the estimation of their blessed Lord and Master. Successful they cannot all be, but faithful they all may be. A conscientious discharge of duty and a steadfast pursuit of the right must inevitably bring to them the guerdon of heavenly welcome and everlasting blessedness.

Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, will tell you that Johnson's Magnetic Oil always gives satisfaction and is the cheapest.

Creed and Deed.

The whole duty of man can be put into a nutshell. It is comprehended in two words—believing and doing. The full duty of every man is to trust in the Lord. This sublime faith in God is the key-note to all religion. When youth is tempted by the voice of passion, when manhood is battling in the throng and press of life, and when weary age craves release from stern conflict, the cry of wisdom in all the stages of life's journey is "trust in the Lord with all thine heart." Trust in the Lord—this is the grandest of creeds. It is the essence of a spiritual religion condensed in a phrase. By trusting in the Lord, every man may augment the volume, the intensity, and the reality of his character and life. But the essence of religion lies in more than belief or creed. It is in believing and doing. Put your creed into your deed. Let your daily deeds illustrate the sublimity of your life-long creed. To offer trusting in the Lord as a substitute for doing good, or to rely on a cold, lifeless morality as an apology for the absence of a fervent trust in the Lord, is a fatal mistake. Matthew Arnold declares that conduct is three-fourths of a life. It was so with Christ, for he went about doing good. It has also been said that religion is morality touched with emotion. This was Christ's Christianity, for he went about doing good because he was moved with compassion. Doing good is the essence of all morality. Put down all the actions of a man's life—put down all that he is doing at home, in his business, or in his recreations; if he is doing that which is right in the sight of the Lord, he is doing good. The want of this and every age is just that creed that has vital energy in it to translate its sublime teaching into deeds of self-sacrifice and love. When trusting in the Lord does not control conduct it is a delusion. Creeds that hold no sway over deeds are waste products. The true art and essence of a complete Christian manhood is beautifully set forth in the French version of our Lord's last words in the sermon on the mount: "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and shall put them into practice, I will liken him to a wise man who built his house upon the rock. But whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and shall not put them into practice, shall be likened to a foolish man who built his house upon the sand, and the wind blew and beat upon that house, and it fell, and the fall of that house was great."—Rev. E. Aston.

Power of a Kind Word.

Many years ago a poor German immigrant woman sat with her children in the waiting room of an Eastern station. A lady passing to a train, struck by her look of misery, stopped a moment to speak with her. The story was soon told. Her husband had been buried at sea. She was going to Iowa, and "it was hard to enter a strange world alone with her babies." The stranger had but one instant. She pressed a little money into the poor creature's hand and said: "Alone! Why, Jesus is with you! He never will leave you alone!" Ten years afterward the woman said: "That word gave me courage for all my life. When I was a child I knew Christ and loved him. I had forgotten him. That chance word brought me back to him. It kept me strong and happy through all troubles."—Philadelphia Methodist.

STUDY TOPICS.—Japan an open door. One of the Isles that waits for his law. It is accessible. Character of the obstacles to success. The outlook of our Board in Japan. What has been done in Japan?

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Japanese Life and Religion.

The two great religions of the Japanese nation are Shintooism and Buddhism.

Shintooism is the religion of the upper classes. The Shintooists deify their ancestors, worship the sun, and go often on weary pilgrimages. They wash their hands as they enter their temples; and each kneels to worship before a mirror of polished metal, which is supposed to reflect his own consciousness.

Buddhism is the religion of the great masses of the common people. I have often stood at the gate of Asakusa, the principal Buddhist temple in Tokio. I have watched the mothers with their children coming up to worship. They first feed the sacred horse that stands at the gateway and the holy pigeons that swarm down from their nests in the overhanging roofs of the temple. At the door is a box into which they throw their contributions. Then they ring a bell to awaken the gods, and, kneeling at the altar, chew paper prayers, and throw them against the wall. At the right of the altar is a large wooden god, whose face is entirely worn away by the hands of the sick people, who come and rub him, thinking, like that woman of old, that, if they but touch him, they will be healed. Around his neck are a dozen of children's bibs, offerings of mothers for their sick children.

Let us in thought follow one of these women back from the temple, and enter into her home life. As she is walking through the streets, we will glance at her dress. It is a loose robe coming to the feet, and kept in place by a girdle or obi, four yards long, wound around the body, and tied in a panier behind. She has no veil or covering on her head, but her hair is dressed elaborately; for in Japan even the poorest women employ a hairdresser, who visits every house two or three times a week, the charge for such a service being only about a cent for an hour's work. The women so saturate their hair with oil that they do not find it necessary to arrange it more than twice a week. They wear no ornaments except in their hair, which is dressed high on the head, often in the shape of a butterfly or open fan. The number of puffs, together with the style of dressing the hair, indicates whether the person is a wife, a maiden, or a widow. We perhaps notice that this mother as she walks has a baby on her back. She has loosened her outside garment at the neck until it forms a sort of a bag, into which she puts the child; and it is kept from slipping down by the tightness of the obi at the waist. The disadvantage of carrying the child in this way is that its head is thrown back when sleeping, and its face unprotected from the intense rays of the sun. This is thought by physicians to be the cause of much of the blindness prevalent in that country.

When the woman reaches the house she takes off her sandals, pushes aside the sliding doors of paper, and enters in her stocking feet. The rooms are softly matted, but contain no furniture. The houses are built of wood, and among the poorer classes have but two or three rooms. In the kitchen is a large stone box, with ashes and burning coals in it. This is called the hibachi, and over it the rice is cooked. There is no chimney, in the kitchen but the smoke goes out either through an opening in the roof, or imperceptibly through the broad open doors. After the rice is cooked, it is put into a small unpainted wooden tub. At dinner time, the mother brings out a little table, two feet square and one foot high, with dishes and food upon it. The family sit upon the mats, the tub of rice is in the centre, and each one dips out into a bowl from this central dish rice sufficient for himself. They often pour tea over the rice, and always eat it with chopsticks. Fish, sweet potatoes, and a pickle made from a vegetable called the daikon, are sometimes served with the dinner. Japanese houses often have but one sleeping-room, which is occupied by the entire family. When guests come, they share it with them. The beds consist of heavy comforters called the futans. They are spread out on the mats at night, and put away in closets during the day. Each person lays his head, in sleeping, on a little wooden pillow, constructed with a hollow place in which the head may rest.

In some room of the house is a closet containing a shelf for gods; and upon this shelf stand all the household idols which have come down as heirlooms of the family from generation to generation. One of the best tests of the sincerity of the Christian converts in Japan is their willingness to put away these idols; for it proclaims at once to their friends and priests that they have renounced the religion of their fathers. In our own church in Tokio, four women over fifty years of age, on the evening before their baptism, took down from these shelves their sacred household gods, which for half a century they had worshipped, and destroyed them. One threw hers into the river, another hers into the fire, while still another brought an armful of her idols to us. There were household images of Buddha, ancestral tablets, scrolls and medicine charms printed on paper. One of these she had already eaten during an illness, to drive away the evil spirit of disease. This same woman, after becoming a member of the church, came to Miss Kidder, and, laying down her pipe upon the table, said, "I give up this, my last idol, for Christ."

The occupation of the women of Japan is usually the care of house and children. They sometimes, however, work in the fields and do other heavy labor; but with the care of a large family, and in many cases extreme poverty, their husbands often spending their small earnings in dissipation, the burdens of the mothers in Japan are not light.

On marrying, the women blacken their teeth. This custom has come down from a very beautiful empress, who in devotion to her husband blackened her teeth, that she might become less attractive to others. The children are often betrothed by their parents when very young. Miss Kidder, of Tokio, writes: "This betrothal by the parents is a very hurtful and serious matter, but we missionaries cannot touch it only as the fruits of Christianity shall bring it about. The girls must marry, and universally in their teens; and, if to a heathen, they have, in almost every instance I have known, followed their husbands, and not Christ. . . . This," she says, "is a matter of solicitude in regard to my school of girls;" and she rejoices that in the last year she has been enabled to establish two or three Christian homes.

When one of a Japanese family is sick, the parents consult the gods. The priests bring charms to drive away the disease, while the Japanese doctor comes with medicine sufficient in quantity and quality to destroy rather than cure. Far more efficient than these is the simple diet allowed of soft boiled rice, and the ignorant but kind nursing of sick children by their mothers. Medical missionaries with a practical knowledge of all the natural laws for the preservation of health, and with experience in nursing the sick, I believe to be nearest in type to that first divine Missionary, who brought not only salvation to the souls of men, but healed also the sick.—Selected.

GRIFFITH & SEMPLE, 605 MAIN ST., LYNCHBURG, VA.

From China.

Dear Bro. Bat'ey:—At the beginning of this, our fifth summer in China, our little three-year-old and I suffered with repeated slight attacks of fever. We decided to act upon the advice of physician and friends and take a vacation during July and August. We went to Arima, a small mountain town in Japan. I might have written you of many circumstances and impressions when they were fresh in mind, but it was necessary to refrain from study, reading and writing for the most part, and indulge in outdoor exercise. The place has its drawbacks, but we were very thankful to be there. Besides the one and a half pounds I gained, (Mrs. Tatum lost five), the rest and change were so helpful.

The situation of being unable to communicate with the people re called our first months in China, and kindled anew our sympathy for missionaries who have just arrived on the field. Some of the people knew a little English. We would begin with that. When it failed to be understood, we frequently almost involuntarily tried that other language, the Chinese. Failing in this, it was difficult not to indulge a little ungrounded displeasure that our hearer could neither understand (our) native nor foreign tongue. Then we tried signs, which often proved as foreign as our talk. So an interpreter had to be called in, or the case given up.

The lack of clothing among the middle, working and poor classes strikes the visitor to Japan. We find ourselves giving credit to the belief that the Japanese must be clothed upon with clothing before they can be clothed upon with Christianity and righteousness. Houses are neat. In one or more sides of each room they have four windows. The light is transmitted through tough paper, not glass. Slide two of these windows behind the other two and you have quite a pleasant opening. The partitions between the rooms generally consist of four neat sliding screens. These may be conveniently removed, throwing two or more rooms into one when desired. Their floors serve two other purposes, those of chairs and beds. The entire floor is spread with straw mattresses six feet by three, three inches thick, and covered with matting. No wonder they are so careful to take off their sandals when they go in the house. We take off our shoes when we go to bed. One thing that struck me about the houses was the sharp corner of the top door facing, the regulation height of a door being five feet eight inches, while my height is six feet two.

From the 6th to the 15th of August was devoted to the Arima Christian Conference. I had the pleasure of meeting several of the missionaries to the Japanese, and I brought away some general impressions as to missionary work in that land. I can only hint at some of these. To be sure the majority of the missionaries are unceasing in labor—watching and praying for the coming of the kingdom. And the kingdom is coming. But some undesirable complications exist. The great enemy of souls has not given up Japan yet. The kingdom is a small one. If one man or set of men shows a little power or exerts an unusual amount of influence, jealousies arise. Christianity comes to the empire, and the propagators of the heathen religions are on the defensive. Foreigners have made treaties with the government, and their power is feared and mistrusted. The ports and accessible places have been occupied by missionaries, and the new herald is knocked down with a hint that he had better pass on. Pass-ports are a nuisance, but outside the ports, as a rule, you can neither stay nor pass on without them. Then there is the idea of Japanese Christianity for Japan. Two years ago it was generally intimated to the foreign brethren that they might go home on a visit and not trouble themselves to return. I wonder if that was a result of a former tendency on the part of foreign brethren to lord it over God's heritage. The foreign brethren seem to be more welcome now. I believe the secret of this fact was expressed by a brother when he said: "I put myself on an equal footing with my brethren in the work for the Lord, and do whatever is decided upon after freely consulting together." This is safe doctrine everywhere among brethren. "For one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren." Where the Japanese are mere babes, but contend for the relation of brother, sometimes that of elder brother, you can see that the position is awkward and undesirable. What the Japanese like and dislike has much to do in shaping the conduct of many. A Christo-heathen conscience and public opinion needs shaping lovingly and firmly—not to be lorded over. School teaching must be done. This work may become a secular employment, and those engaged in it may live a long way from the Lord, even in Christian lands.

We saw our missionaries, Brother and Sister McCollum—were with them a week. They and Mrs. Tatum crossed the Pacific in the same steamer. He is on new soil. His leave-taking from the port was not the most pleasant. "But all things work," * *. He impresses one as being the right man in the right place. He, with our other missionaries to Japan, Brother and Sister Waine, whom we had the pleasure of meeting, deserve hearty support from the brethren at home.

Vacation over, I was glad to come back to the Flowery Kingdom, and in coming back there was no lack of gratitude that the Lord called me to come to preach to John Chinaman. I wanted to say something about him in this letter, but must wait till next time, after saying so much about our neighboring kingdom.

Yours fraternally,

E. F. TATUM.

Messrs. Editors:—A lady rightly remarks that it is not necessary to bind yourself down hard and fast to the directions for the Electropoise. When I first saw these directions, it made me think the article was another of the many frauds that are unscrupulously put upon the market of pain and trouble. However, I did not like to throw it over without a trial, not only because it promised so much, but because it was so well and influentially backed. I need hardly say, that the trial has given more than satisfaction.

My wife and I have been now in this trying climate over a year, and have had not one days illness, and during this time we have not taken one drop or grain of medicine. The Electropoise is worth its weight in gold if it only cured as medicine, but it does more, it prevents illness. We use it just when we feel weary, and generally wear it four or five nights in succession; while this is not exactly according to directions, I do not write this to encourage anyone to depart from them, but to show that like any other good thing the directions are a little pliable.

From my experience with the Electropoise I am persuaded that by following directions given it will accomplish all that is claimed for it. What it can do by adaptation, or to what extent it can be adapted, remains to be seen.

[Extract from a letter published in the North Carolina Presbyterian, September 7.]

Letter from Rev. J. B. Harrell.

I have been spending the time very pleasantly in Mt. Olive for about two weeks. I suppose I shall make this place headquarters for a few weeks longer, possibly till the end of the year. This church was my first pastorate after leaving Wake Forest in 1885, and it is very hard for me to forget my first love. For this and other reasons I felt strongly inclined to accept the call they so generously extended to me a short time ago. I served them two years and a half as pastor, and though I have always perhaps been treated much better than I deserved, still I can truthfully say I have never enjoyed a pastorate better than this.

Rev. A. A. Butler of the Second church, Durham, has recently been called to the care of the church, and has accepted. He brought his family this week and expects to preach his first sermon as pastor next Sunday. I have had the pleasure of hearing him preach a few times. Judging from what I have heard and seen of him, I believe the church is exceedingly fortunate in their selection. As an expression of the exalted opinion they have already formed of their new pastor, a large number of the brethren and sisters severely pounded him on yesterday with a handsome supply of the necessaries of life.

I am still preaching for two of my churches in the Chowan Association, and shall continue to preach for them till the close of the year, unless in the providence of the Lord, I begin work on another field before that time. The field I am leaving seems to be dividing itself out among several pastors.

South Mills has called Rev. R. R. Overby, D. D., for next year. He was pastor of this church seventeen years, during which time it was generally conceded to have been more harmonious and prosperous than at any other period of its eventful history. When I took charge of this church three years ago next January, it was rather in a bad condition every way. But by the help of the Lord and the sympathy and co operation of the brethren and sisters they are again on their feet and ready for work. During my stay among these good people, I have learned to love them very much.

Corinth, near Elizabeth City, another one of my recent charges in the old Chowan, has called Rev. T. G. Wood of Murfreesboro for next year. This church is just a little over two years old, but from the start it has done marvelously well, and I leave it with a beautiful house of worship and a strong, united membership.

In giving up my work in this part of the State, I am leaving one of the strongest and best country fields in North Carolina. They are liberal to all the objects of the Convention, and pay a good salary to their pastor, and pay the most of it by the month. May the Lord bless them and make them even more prosperous in the future than in the past.

J. B. HARRELL.

Mt. Olive, Oct. 21, 1893.

United States Judge Hugh L. Bond died at his residence in Baltimore on Tuesday, October 24th, 1893, aged about sixty-five years. Judge Bond was senior Judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit and presiding Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals. The fourth circuit is composed of the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the two Carolinas. Judge Bond's successor will be appointed by President Cleveland with the concurrence of the Senate. The salary is $6,000 a year, and the term of office is for life.

The battle ship Oregon was successfully launched at San Francisco October 26th in the presence of 50,000 people.

STANDARD WORKS.

Christ's Acted Parables.
A Study of the Miracles. By N. S. Burton, D. D. 12mo, 256 pp. Price, $1.00.

Dr. Burton has conceived of the miracles of Christ as acted parables, as his title indicates. The miracle, according to his thought, contains moral, spiritual truth no less than the parable. He has given us a thoroughly good book. Its style is clear and its thought evangelical and strong.

An Outline Analysis of the Books of the Bible. By Prof. B. C. Taylor. 16mo, 192 pp. Price, 75 cents, net.

Professor Taylor takes the Bible by books, and analyzes them according to author, time of writing, relation to other books, contents, specific points, etc. We know of no volume that in so small a space gives so much.

Centenary Missionary Addresses 12mo, 228 pp. Price, $1.00.

Neat in appearance, cheap in price, historic in its occasion, noteworthy in its contributors, and most valuable in its contents. Its appearance fittingly rounds out the centennial of missions.

Hours with a Sceptic. By D. W. Faunce, D. D. 12mo, 256 pp. Price, $1.00.

It purports to be a series of conversations with a sceptic, but the arguments of a lifetime are crowded into it. It is strong, vigorous, and up to the times.

A Short History of the Baptists. By Henry C. Vedder. 12mo, 245 pp. Price, $1.00.

This volume is well written and with scholarly accuracy, and should be owned by every Baptist.

SOON TO BE PUBLISHED.

The Ancient British and Irish Churches, Including the Life and Labors of St. Patrick. By William Cathcart, D. D. 12mo, 350 pp. (about). Price, $1.50.

In this work Dr. Cathcart has shown a vast amount of research. He has gone as far as may be to the fountain-head of information, and has overturned many popular conceptions concerning the Irish patron saint. He claims him conclusively as a Baptist, and shows that Rome had nothing to do with the founding of the ancient churches of the British Islands. It is emphatically a standard work.

Lessons on the Life of Jesus. By Rev. O. S. C. Wallace. 16mo, 192 pp. Price, 90 cents.

This is a series of lessons prepared for young people, and in conjunction with the Young People's Baptist Union. The book is especially adapted for class-room work, and can be cordially recommended to our young people who want to pursue systematically such a course. At the same time it is well fitted for individual perusal.

BIBLE HANDBOOKS.

The Pentateuch. By Rev. A. J. Rowland, D. D. 16mo, 96 pp. Price, 50 cents.

This is the first of the series of Bible Handbooks for which provision has been made by the Society. In an Introduction Dr. Rowland deals in a very just and scholarly way with the question of the higher criticism. He is appreciative of the scholarship arrayed under its banner, but holds to the "old paths" nevertheless, and moreover successfully defends his position. In analysis, in the citation of authorities, in the meeting of difficult questions, the book will be found of great value to our young people, and others who want to understand the matters with which it deals.

A Lansingburg Miracle.

A RAILWAY MAN TALKS.

LITERALLY HALF DEAD, HIS CASE PRONOUNCED HOPELESS BY PROMINENT PHYSICIANS, A STORY OF SURPASSING INTEREST VERIFIED UNDER OATH.

(From Troy, N. Y., Times.)

I am the most conservative reporter on the staff. I despise the chimerical, I court the real. I burrow in facts. I am from Lansinburg. We don't often get a good thing from there, but here is one. F. C. Kimball last night gave me the following:

"I am a plain straightforward man. Originally from Lansingburg, where now reside my mother, brother and sister. Several years ago I moved to Rochester. There I was in the employ of the Erie Railroad as yard and freight superintendent. After a strain to my back, caused by heavy lifting, three years ago, I developed so called rheumatism. It was an increasing thing for two years,—at times worse, again better. I worked intermittently. If I would shut my eyes I would fall down. My feet and legs soon lost feeling—were numb. This extended to my stomach and at times to my hands. Doctors Lee and Spencer of Rochester finally pronounced my case progressive locomotor ataxia, said it was incurable, and that they could only ease my sufferings, and so I lay. Up to this time I had been sick nearly two years. Before this and for several months I was confined to my bed. Pins stuck into my limbs the full length gave me no feeling whatever; my legs seemed wooden. To pound them gave off a noise like wood. So I say, as I lay there I was absolutely one-half dead—dead from the waist down. There was one word written in large characters all over that sick room—C-L-A-Y. Life departed from my limbs, that word best expressed what was left. You, of course, have read of John Marshall. The reporter in describing him, described me exactly. I sent for the remedy which cured him,—for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Schenectady, N. Y., and tried them. I took them irregularly for two months. They didn't seem to help. All of a sudden one morning one of my legs began to prickle—seemed as though rubbed with nettles. Then, perhaps, you think I did not investigate that medicine. I began to mend fast; got some circulation, got control of my bowels and after a few weeks got out of bed and tried to stand. At last I fetched it. Could walk—now can run. And Pink Pills cured me. The doctors said I couldn't be cured, but I am. What I am now telling you is merely a reiteration of what I long ago wrote Dr. Williams' Medicine Company at Schenectady, and my affidavit to the same is now in their hands. Here also is a letter which my mother wrote to them and to which she has made affidavit, as you see."

186 Second Ave., LANSINGBURG, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—My son Fred has just written you a letter concerning himself to which I desire to add a few words in entire corroboration of all he has said. He has told you of his agony and his cure. The remembrance of the whole thing makes me shudder as I think of it. It is all too wonderful for me. I was resigned to his fate. Now as I look at him walking about and feeling well, with his old health and ambition returned, it does seem that he has been born again and rescued from death for a fact. Could I, therefore, say too much to you of thanks in the fullness of my gratitude? Can I well cease blessing you? Yet the intensity of my feelings make my words of thanksgiving to you seem but empty indeed; for the lost is found, and he that was dead is alive again.

Yours, HARRIET J. KIMBALL.

Sworn and subscribed before me this 5th day of April, 1893. M. L. FANCHER, Notary Public.

Mrs. Kimball said: "While I believe in answers to prayer and prayed earnestly for his recovery, for I am a Christian woman, and believe my prayers were answered, I do think Pink Pills were the means the Lord used to effect my son's cure. I want you to meet my daughter, Mrs. G. H. Morrison, with whom we are living here, and the Rev. George Fairlee, pastor of Westminster church, who lives with us, and hear what they have to say." So Mrs. Kimball brought them in, and while the story as told was most complete and could be added to by nothing they might say, yet the reporter heard from the lips of the sister and their pastor, corroborative words of all that has been said. The reporter also ran across the son-in-law, Mr. G. H. Morrison, cashier of the National Bank of Troy, and spoke to him of Mr. Kimball. He is a busy man and though he could only be detained for a moment he said: "I now knothing of the case technically. He says he was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I think that is about the size of it."

Mr. William H. Flandreau, the druggist at 414 River St., Troy, said: "It is the most wonderful cure from locomotor ataxia—a so-called incurable disease. Mr. Kimball tells me he owes his recovery to Pink Pills entirely and I have every reason to believe him."

Pink Pills restore pale people and sallow complexions to the glow of health, and are a specific for all the troubles peculiar to the female sex, while in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature."

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Brockville, Ont., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company from either address.

Mr. J. S. Carr of Durham, N. C., has been elected Vice President of the American Bankers' Association.

Mr. Marsden Bellamy of Wilmington, N. C., has been elected Supreme Dictator of the Knights of Honor of the United States.

Dr. Robert S. Young of Concord has been appointed Assistant Surgeon General of the State Guard, to succeed Dr. J. A. Hodges, resigned.

The foot ball teams of the University of North Carolina and Trinity College played a game of foot ball at Durham last Saturday for the State championship. Trinity won by a score of six to four.

It is learned that the Raleigh Street Railway Company will ask to be allowed to shut down for ninety days without forfeiting the charter. The idea, it seems, is to preserve the charter in tact while a purchaser can be found.

The residence of Major John W. Graham at Hillsboro, together with most of its furnishings, was recently destroyed by fire. The loss amounted to about $20,000. There was no insurance on either the house or its contents.

At the Road Congress held in Raleigh during Fair week, a permanent organization was effected by the election of the following officers: Dr. R. J. Brevard of Mecklenburg, President; W. F. Kornegay of Wayne, Vice-President; J. A. Holmes, Secretary and Treasurer.

A train on the Yadkin Railroad jumped the track between Rockwell and Gold Hill on the 23d ult., wrecking one car and damaging others. A brakeman was slightly hurt. Mr. A. Hodge of Gold Hill, one of the passengers, was seriously injured by jumping from a car.

Mr. Washington Duke of Durham has contracted for the building of a mausoleum at the cemetery there with space for forty bodies. It is to cost $20,750. The material is granite, with lining of marble, tiled floor, stained glass windows and bronze doors. It will be far the handsomest in the State.

Mr. John W. Wagner, a well-known pharmacist of Statesville, died in Charlotte last Saturday morning, aged about thirty years. His death, it is thought, resulted from an accidental overdose of morphine administered by himself. In addition to being a first-rate pharmacist, Mr. Wagner was a capable newspaper man, and at the time of his death was in Charlotte assisting the Observer force during the absence of the editor at the sick bed of his wife.

On October 24th, Samuel Harper and John Right, both farmers, left Asheville for their homes near Fairview. Both men are said to have been drinking. On the way an altercation took place between the two. A fight ensued, and Right was killed, a knife blade having pierced his heart. He also received several other wounds and his left arm was broken. Harper was arrested. He asserts that Right was killed by the knife in his own hand, which he was trying to use on him (Harper.) No wounds were found on Harper's body.

Between five and six hundred street railway employees in Columbus, Ohio, are on a strike.

J. A. Demeree, founder of the Knights of Honor, died suddenly of a hemmorrhage at his home in Louisville, Ky., Tuesday week.

A Georgia Pacific engine pulling a freight train blew up at about five miles from Birmingham several days ago, killing both engineer and fireman.

The Mingo Steel and Iron Mill at Mingo Junction near Wheeling, W. Va., has shut down indefinitely. Six hundred men were thrown out of employment.

The Chicago Evening Post states that the fire losses in the United States during the first nine months of 1893 were $26,840,000 greater than the corresponding period of 1892.

The planing mills of E. McDonald & Son, and a number of other buildings in San Francisco, Cal., were burned on the night of the 24th ult., causing a loss of about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Miss Daisy Garland, aged twenty four years, daughter of ex-Attorney General Garland, committed suicide at her home in Washington City on October 27th by shooting herself through the heart. No cause is assigned for the act.

At Roanoke, Va, the grand jury summoned to investigate the riot and acts of lawlessness on Sept. 20th and 21st, made their report on the 23rd ult. Nineteen indictments were made. The Mayor was commended for trying to uphold the laws.

In Chicago last week a young woman aged eighteen years, while despondent from long continued sickness, committed suicide by drowning herself in the lake at the foot of Ninth street. On the day following, her father, insane with grief over his daughter's rash act, followed her example.

Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago, was shot and killed in his residence early last Saturday night, by an assassin, who surrendered himself to the police confessing the crime. He gave his name as Eugene Patrick Prendergast, and when asked at the station-house why he killed the mayor, he replied: "He said he would make me corporation counsel and he did not do it. That's what I shot him for."

DIED.

BRITT—At the home of his parents, in Bertie county, N. C., Oct. 1st, 1893, Henry, beloved son of Frank P. and Katie L. Britt. Sweet little Henry is gone. He first saw the light of day on Sunday, March 18th, 1888, and saw the light of eternity Sunday, October 1st, 1893. Given on Sunday, taken away on Sunday; taken before his young heart had known sin; carried where sin shall never enter, and where, after awhile, one eternal Sabbath shall ever make glad the re-united hearts of parents and child. Ever anxious for the return of papa, methinks he is now at the beautiful gate waiting to say, in accents hushed forever in this world: "Papa's coming; open the gate." UNCLE.

UPCHURCH—Delia, wife of I. S. Upchurch, was born March 8th, 1832, and was baptized into the fellowship of Mt. Pisgah Baptist church, Chatham county, in 1851, by Elder P. W. Dowd; was married Dec. 23d, 1851; was dismissed by letter and joined Green Level church, September, 1884, and died at 3.35 o'clock a. m., Sept. 24th, 1893. of erysipelas, after an illness of eight days. She was a good wife, a kind mother, and a lover of the RECORDER. She leaves a husband and ten children, five sons and five daughters, to mourn their loss, all of whom are members of Green Level Baptist church, except one, who is a member of Mt. Pisgah church, a son and daughter having gone before.

The deceased owned a magnolia tree at Wake Forest College, also a seat in the Baptist church at Cooper's, in Buncombe county, N. C. BROTHER.

City papers please copy.

ELLIOTT—Mrs. Carrie E. Elliott (nee Moore) departed this life in Edenton, N. C., Sept. 16th, 1893. She was the daughter of Britton and Caroline Moore of the town of Murfreesboro, where her earlier days were spent. She early became the subject of religious impressions, and joined the Baptist church at Murfreesboro at the tender age of thirteen, being baptized at the same time with her brother Thomas, he the oldest, and she the youngest child of the family. Always mindful of her duties in church work, her place in the prayer-meeting and Sabbath-school was seldom vacant. Also being a close student, she graduated with considerable distinction at the commencement of the Chowan Baptist Institute in 1879. She was happily united in marriage to Wm. O. Elliott of Edenton in December, 1884. She had been suffering with a painful affliction for about five years, which at last terminated in her death. She leaves, in addition to her husband, three children, mother, brother, two sisters, and a large circle of friends to mourn her untimely loss, all of whom may be much consoled by the reflection that even during the pangs of her long continued suffering her faith burned brightly to the last, and that she had such a glorious foretaste of eternal joys as to cause her whole conversation to be tinctured with visions of unspeakable happiness of her future home, of which she sang and talked until the messenger came to escort her thither; and we, too, can write, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

Edenton, N. C., Oct. 29, 1893.

GLENN—At her home in Durham county, Sister Glenn, wife of Bro. W. E. Glenn, after an illness of only three hours, quietly passed away. How we shall miss her! Always at Sandy Level, her church, when our appointment came, if she was able; a very devoted and affectionate wife and mother at home; an exceptional friend and neighbor to the community in which she lived. But alas! she is gone.

"Sister, thou was mild and lovely,
Gentle as the summer breeze,
Pleasant as the air of evening,
When it floats among the trees.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in the grave so low;
Thou no more will join our number,
Thou no more our songs shalt know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled;
When in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed."

To the sorely bereaved husband and dear children, our hearts go out in sympathy and prayer. "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Resignation.

God knoweth best. It is not meet
That we should murmur at his will;
'Tis ours to "suffer and be still,"
Low lying at his feet.

He knoweth best. Our blinded eyes,
So dim with unshed tears, can see
No light athwart the gloom, till he Shall bid the clouds arise.

He knoweth best. We cannot tell
Why he doth sever tender ties,
We only know that he is wise;
He doeth all things well.

He knoweth best. And he will keep,
Though near or far, his watch between;
His tender care, though all unseen,
"Shall slumber not, nor sleep."

He knoweth best. His love hath planned
Each step that marks our onward way;
'Tis ours to trust him—come what may,
"Our times are in his hand."

He knoweth best; who loveth best;
He leadeth us from day to day;
'Tis ours to follow all the way,
And leave to him the rest.
—Edith Virginia Brandt, in Exchange.

The Gentlemanly Boy.

Every one who knows Tommy Blue is charmed with his beautiful behavior. He is so polite and accommodating, so willing to lend a helping hand at every turn, that the neighbors called him Tommy "Helpful." But this Tommy "Helpful" has two sets of manners, one for the folks at home and the other for strangers. A few mornings ago he came running down the steps of his pleasant home on his way to school, as bright and pleasant as a sunbeam. Presently his mother appeared at the door with a request that he would leave an order at the market for her.

"I can't stop a minute," he answered, impatiently. "I shall be late as it is."

"It would not take you much out of your way, and at the same time save me a long walk," reasoned his mother, wearily. "You know I have no one else to go."

"There' the bell this minute, and I shall get a demerit if I am tardy," argued Tommy, an ugly frown disfiguring his handsome face. "I can't go out of my way for anything this morning," he added crossly, although he knew the market house was just round the corner, and there was a full half-hour before the second bell should ring.

A few minutes later he met Mrs. Beard, the lady who lived in the little cottage which joined his mother's and when she smiled upon him, he pulled off his cap and spoke so pleasantly that she was encouraged to ask:

"Have you time to do a little favor for me, Tommy?"

"Certainly," he replied, his chivalry returning in an unaccountable way. "What can I do for you?"

"It is really too bad to detain you when you are on your way to school; but I forgot to mail my letter when I was down street, and if you do not mind going a little out of the way, I should be ever so much obliged if you would drop it in the office."

"It will not take me five minutes to run round the square, and I shall be very glad to accommodate you," answered Tommy politely, as he took the letter and hurried away to mail it.

And yet, strange as it may seem, the post office was a full square farther out of the way than was the market, and he had refused to stop there with his mother's order.

"What a perfect little gentleman he is,—so kind and obliging to everybody!" said Mrs. Beard to herself, looking admiringly after the bright little fellow tripping briskly down the street.

But she did not know that this model boy of hers had refused to do his own mother the same favor he had so cheerfully performed for a stranger. Had she known this when, a few minutes later, she met his pale, tired looking mother on her way to market, the gentleman would have fallen several degrees in her estimation; but, being ignorant of the preference shown herself, she passed on, inwardly congratulating the weary mother on the possession of such a son.

And yet, regardless of Tommy Blue's apparent indifference towards his mother, he loves her a hundred fold more than he does Mrs. Beard, or any of the neighbors who are always holding him up as a pattern to their own children. Only yesterday he said that his mother was the sweetest and best mother in the world; and I am quite sure he believed just what he said, though it must be admitted that he has a very poor way of showing his appreciation. What can be the matter with him?—B. V. Chisholm in the Sunday-school Times.

It covers a good deal of ground—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. And when you hear that it cures so many diseases, perhaps you think "it's too good to be true."

But it's only reasonable. As a blood-cleanser, flesh-builder, and strength-restorer, nothing like the "Discovery" is known to medical science. The diseases that it cures come from a torpid liver, or from impure blood. For everything of this nature, it is the only guaranteed remedy. In dyspepsia, biliousness; all bronchial, throat and lung affections; every form of scrofula, even consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages, and in the most stubborn skin and scalp diseases—if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

Ruling in Love.

There are two ways of governing a family; the first is by force; the second is by love. Any father or mother who attempts to govern the home by force deserves to lose their empire, and will be sure to fail in the long run. Love is the golden chain which binds a family together. It always increases their joys and helps to lighten their cares. Solomon well says, "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." You can be loving yet firm, gentle but resolute, in carrying out your own views. Remember, mothers, you are moulding the characters and fixing the destiny of your children. See to it when you refuse, you refuse finally, and when you consent, you consent cheerfully. It has been sweetly said—

"A mother's love is never cold,
A mother's love is never old,
A mother's love is ever true,
A mother's love is nine times new."

Rely upon it that in proportion as this gentle yet powerful influence reigns in your home, and influences you in the training of the children, you will succeed. A mother's love for her children when under proper influence is the noblest and purest illustration of goodness we can conceive. How it has raised her character, nerved her resolution, and fixed her purpose! What wonders it has wrought, what sacrifices it has prompted! Speaking of this, Jean Paul Richter truly observes, "The noblest and fairest quality with which nature could and must furnish woman for the benefit of posterity was love the most ardent, yet without return, and for an object unlike herself. The child receives love, and kisses, and night watchings, but at first it only answers with rebuffs; and the weak creature which requires most pays least. But the mother gives unceasingly—yea, her love only becomes greater with the necessity and thankfulness of the recipient, and she feels the greatest for the most feeble, as the father for the strongest child." No doubt it was this kind of love which prompted Mrs. Wesley to act so wisely and well in the training of her children. She seems to have been able to regulate even their crying with as much ease as either the sleep or food! Her rule was this: when a child reached its first anniversary it should be taught to fear the rod, and to cry softly, and the result was success.

Try, then, to make your home bright and attractive to your children. Many a boy and girl goes astray, not because they have no home, but because the home lacks brightness, or in other words, "sunshine." Children need smiles as much as flowers need sunbeams. It is warmth which leads to growth and beauty in our gardens, and it is equally needful in the home. A moonlight night never imparts the glow which a sunny day gives to all around. In like manner a home where faces are dull and sour, words are harsh, and fault-finding is a constant thing, will never prove attractive to the children, but will of necessity lead them to seek their happiness elsewhere. Let it be a constant study, therefore, with you to remove out of the way everything which will hinder constant sunshine from resting upon your home, so that the children may feel sure that, however, dark it may be outside, it will be bright within.—John W. Kirton, LL. D.

David's Coat.

David Robertson, the Scotch naturalist, had, when a boy, rather an unusual experience in clothing himself, and the method he adopted seems amusingly different from that of boys in our own day, who when they want a new jacket, ask for it or go without.

David was early apprenticed to a farmer to herd the cattle, and one day he went to a fair with his master and there gained a prize of twenty shillings by running a race. When he reached home his mistress offered him for the pound enough of home made woolen cloth for a coat, but though David joyfully accepted it, he was disappointed at finding that the tailor would not make his yearly visit to the house for some time.

With the impatience of youth he begged his mistress to let him make the coat himself. At first she refused, but when David persisted, she agreed to the wild project, stipulating, however, that he should take the responsibility and ask help of no one.

The boy began by carefully ripping his old coat in pieces for a pattern, and by this he cut the new one, first numbering the pieces in chalk that he might know how to put them together. As all his time belonged to his master he was obliged to take his sewing out into the pasture, and there after a month of laborious work the new coat was completed. Its buttons came from an old coat which had been discarded by his master, and the thread with which it was put together had been spun and dyed at the house.

When David showed his mistress the new coat she was loud in praise of it and declared that not even the tailor could have done it better. One thing, however, it needed and that was a careful pressing, which he was allowed to give it at the house.

The hardest task of all remained, for he was obliged to remake his old coat, and as the seams were frayed and delicate he had to exercise great care in joining them again. Another month and this task also was done. Then was David the proud possessor of two coats.—Youth's Companion.

"I can heartily say to any young man who is wanting good employment, work for Johnson & Co., follow their instruction and you will succeed." So writes an agent of B. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., and that's the way all of their men talk.

"In Debt."

A man who attempted to raise some money on a subscription paper for a necessary church out West relates his experience as follows:

"The first man I went to said he was very sorry, but the fact was he was so involved in his business that he couldn't give anything at the present time. Very sorry, indeed, but a man in debt as he was, owed his first duty to his creditors.

"He was smoking an expensive cigar, and before I left the store he bought of a peddler who came in, a pair of expensive Rocky Mountain cuff buttons.

"The next man I went to was a young clerk in a banking establishment. He read the paper over, acknowledged that the church was very greatly needed, but said that he was owing for his board, was badly in debt otherwise, and did not see how he could give anything.

"That afternoon as I went by the base-ball-grounds I saw this young man pay fifty cents at the entrance to go in, and saw him mount the grand-stand where special seats were sold for a quarter of a dollar.

"The third man to whom I presented the paper was a farmer living near the town. He also was sorry, but times were hard, his crops had been a partial failure, the mortgage on his farm was a heavy load, the interest was coming due, and he really couldn't see his way clear to give to the church, although he freely acknowledged it was just what the town needed.

"A week from that time I saw the same farmer drive into town with his entire family, and go to the circus, afternoon and night, at an expense of at least four dollars.

"The Bible says: 'Judge not that ye be not judged,' but it also says, 'By their fruit ye shall know them.' And I really could not help thinking that the devil could use that old excuse, 'in debt,' to splendid advantage, especially when he had a selfish man to help him."—Youth's Companion.

LOSS OF POWER and vital force follow loss of flesh, or emaciation. These come from impoverished blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood, stops the waste of strength and tissue, and builds up healthy flesh. Nasty Cod Liver Oils add fat, but not wholesome flesh. Thin, pale, puny and scrofulous children are made plump, rosy and robust by the "Discovery." They like it, too.

In recovering from "Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other wasting diseases, it speedily and surely invigorates and builds up the whole system. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, rouses every organ into natural action, and brings back health and strength.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

It has cured others of Catarrh—thousands of them. Why not you? Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is so positive, its makers offer $500 reward for an incurable case.

WERE the question, What is the fundamental difference between the Republican and the Democratic parties, put to the average American citizen, we dare say he would be utterly at a loss for an answer. This is not surprising in view of the fact that not a few citizens vote according to their environments—sectionalism;—others for men, not measures; others in the name of their fathers; and still others for the money that may be paid them, or the office in the distance; every one of whom are not worthy of their citizenship. A patriotic citizen votes according to his opinion of the platforms of the respective parties, with due consideration of the men who represent them, but without further regard to environments or inducements. This is ideal, but it can and should be made real.

The age of the particular question, coupled with the marked changes that have come over them, necessitate very the growth of the country and the ... lands of another generation, has also little to do with observing their fundamental differences. But let us see the real difference. The question turns upon the ... ages of constitutional construction," particularly on the construction of the ... mble, and that clause which says that ... gress shall have power to ... provide ... the common defence and general welfare of the United States." The Republicans viewed this as empowering Congress to enact any law which it may deem necessary to the common defence, or conducive to the general welfare. But further on in the Constitution, in addition to these general words, are certain clauses which set forth the especial powers of Congress. The Democratic statesmen held that the implied powers of Congress could be drawn only from the express powers, and not the general words referred to above. The former construction is general and lax, the latter specific and strict. One gave very extensive and indefinite power to the National legislature, the other restricted National legislation and claimed certain powers for the States. This is the difference simply stated, though by no means would we have the reader to understand this to be the difference to-day, or that the legislation of either party is conducted on these constructions of the Constitution, or that this difference is literally true in all instances; in fact we might name many in which both parties have acted directly contrary to their original construction of the Constitution.

SAYS Dr. Strong in "The New Era":

"The workingman of to-day may have, if you please, twice as much as his grandfather had, but he knows, say, ten times as much and wants ten times as much; hence his discontent."

This is in a degree true. To-day men are capable of more, know more, and want more, than they have since men were. But we do not believe, nor do we believe that Dr. Strong intends to convey the idea that man's wants increase in proportion with his knowledge. If such is the case, we are consigned to a life of discontent; for as the years come and go progress is made in almost every department of human activity, and not the least in the means of communicating knowledge. In fact such a theory would lead us to believe that each man will finally "want the earth." Men's wants do increase with his knowledge to a certain extent, but there is a degree of knowledge which broadens the healthy intellect, leads it to a deliberate view of human affairs, convinces of inability and unworthiness, and content ensues. But such is more often the exception than the rule. Avarice destroys the lives of hundreds of men each year. Our business centers are crowded with men who throw away health, destroy conscience, kill themselves and others in a vain attempt to possess and enjoy more than they need or can use. The time will come when such men must be restrained both for their own sake and for the protection of the less fortunate who lose their share of the world's goods to the rapacity of the strong. Human law is powerless to restrain, and divine law is our only resort. We believe with Dr. Strong that the simple mandate of Jesus, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," is the only remedy for discontent and "hard times." Men will always be unhappy and unfortunate, just as human capacities for labor and pleasure and natural opportunities vary. All may be well situated, but many will cry "hard times" as long as others seem to be happier than they.

IN THE preceding article we have discussed a species of discontent that arises from dissatisfaction rather than actual need. It is unnecessary to say that that discontent which rises from the latter cause, while less general, is more dangerous, threatening and pitiable than that which finds its origin in dissatisfaction. The winter is fast approaching, and we are told that it will fall upon thousands and thousands of unemployed, though worthy and willing, laborers in our greater cities. In the summer their necessities were few, and they have been supplied by charity, but in winter the cost of living increases, thicker clothes are needed, and shelter is necessary to life. Can charity supply all these? We know it will not; so it appears that there is great suffering ahead and increased danger to our government. It is, indeed, a sad state of affairs when men cannot find work, and, though worthy, must suffer. To day men are begging for work, not bread, but actually for the privilege of executing God's law, "In the sweat of thy brow thou shalt eat bread," and they esteem themselves fortunate if not turned away as beggarly tramps. No wonder that discontent becomes anarchy in such conditions. It should not be said of any country or any age, which claims to be civilized, that men begged for work in vain. Whose is the fault, is a question that is often asked, and meets with as many different answers. Some say party, some tariff, others silver; but none know. And it strikes us that if each of us were to consider many such evils, and especially this one of poverty, as ours to prevent and alleviate, that there would be fewer parties and fewer evils to lay at their feet.

THE unexpected turn in the political tide which landed Repeal safe in harbor, and left many fond hopes high and dry on the rocks of disappointment, was a surprise to the nation. Every newspaper in the land had announced that repeal could not possibly be effected unconditionally, and that a compromise of some sort would surely result. In his recent address at the State Fair, Senator Vance declared that anything but a compromise was impossible, and taking his word for it, with the additional assurance of the press that the requisite number of Senators had agreed in writing to a compromise, the RECORDER set forth its views on the subject. But the tide unexpectedly turned, and left us, with many others, in the lurch.

The repeal, as passed by Congress, has pleased the North and sorely disappoints the South and West. It was effected, we are told, in the name of harmony. There may be harmony in the Senate, but severe discord is rife in this part of the land. A sacrifice of principles in the name of anything is crime. There is but one result that will bring harmony now, and that is the prosperity which the repealers have promised. A majority of the legislators favored unconditional repeal, and voted for it. None can take exceptions to this, as the legislators were elected by the people on certain platforms. If the legislators betrayed their covenant with their constituents, the score will be finally settled when they face the people for re-election. We candidly believe that the majority of the Senate deemed unconditional repeal necessary to the general welfare, and are not among those who think the country was sold to Wall street. Think, reader, what a crime that is to bring against the guardians of our rights! The repeal bill promises that the coinage of silver shall be resumed. We shall see if faith is kept in this respect. The repealers claim that this action will eventually result in bimetalism, the hope of the South and West. It does not seem so to any one now, but time will tell. We know that many of the Senators who voted for repeal are in favor of silver money; we know that nine-tenths of the citizens of the South and West, and at least one-half of the North, are avowedly opposed to an absolute gold standard; and knowing this, we have good hope that the present legislation is only temporary, and may be changed in a moment to a more promising relation to silver coinage.

But few of us understand National finance; the subject is clouded in mystery; but all of us can have the consolation of knowing that we were right or wrong, after a year has settled this one phase of the question. We can surely learn whether a cessation of silver coinage is conducive to prosperity or not, and having learned this much, we will know in whom to place our trust when this or any other question is brought up again.

The Higher Education of Women and the Co-Education of the Sexes—No. 1

BY T. H. PRITCHARD, D. D.

Dear Recorder:—I propose by your favor to write several articles, in which I shall endeavor to show, first, the need of educating our women more highly, and the wisdom of educating the sexes together; and then I shall adduce the considerations which satisfy me that the best place for us to establish a school of higher learning for our girls is at Wake Forest, and in direct and organic connection with the College already in prosperous operation there.

I do not suppose that a majority of the brethren will agree with my conclusions at the first, but I believe them to be amenable to reason, and hope that a careful and unprejudiced examination of the facts in the case will affect a revolution in their views, such as has been wrought in my own.

A few years ago, I regarded the co-education of the sexes with exceeding disfavor: it seemed to me to be unreasonable and contrary to the natural fitness of things. After a time such facts came to my knowledge as somewhat weakened my opposition, and latterly, a still further investigation of the subject has satisfied my mind that this is the true theory of education, and that the very best results can be secured to both sexes by its adoption. I have no selfish end to subserve. I am old enough and ought to be mature enough to form a just judgment in the premises, and as the matter is one of much practical importance and of pressing interest to the Baptist public, just at this juncture, I beg a candid hearing at the hands of my brethren.

In doing so, let me present, as an introduction, a word as to the history of

THE HIGHER EDUCATION OF WOMEN.

Why it should have been so is a profound mystery to me, but it is nevertheless a fact, that while liberal provision has been made by every State in the Union for the higher education of young men, no such advantages of liberal culture have been provided by the States or by the Christian denominations of the country for young women. A hundred years ago the State of North Carolina established by law an University for the training of our sons. She has never founded a school of like grade for our girls, and only a little more than a year ago did the State, in the erection and equipment of the Normal School at Greensboro, do anything at all corresponding with the demands of the case.

The whole movement for the higher education of woman in this country reaches back only some thirty years when Matthew Vassar, after maturely considering how he could confer the greatest benefits on his adopted country by the use of his large estate, built and endowed, near Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Vassar College, the first institution in this country, which afforded young women the same advantages of culture provided for young men at Harvard, Yale, Brown, the Universities of Virginia and many other States. All honor to this man of Baptist faith, who was the first to conceive the idea, and the first to put it into practical operation in the founding of this noble school of learning, the pioneer and precursor of several others since established of like dignity and character. If I remember aright, Vassar was opened in 1865. Smith and Wellesley followed afterwards in New England, and still later, about 1880, Bryn Mawr near Philadelphia was opened to the public. If I mistake not, these are still the only four schools, in the whole of the United States, which supply for girls what may be called an University grade of education.

CAN OUR WOMEN ATTAIN THIS HIGHER EDUCATION?

Let the wonderful rapidity with which the number of female students has increased within the past twenty-five years, and the multiplication of colleges for their accommodation, and the splendid record they have made in scholarship, answer this question.

A few years ago, the best Greek scholar and the best mathematical scholar at Ann Arbor, were women; last June, at the University of Iowa, in the honor roll, made on the basis of scholarship, five out of the first seven were women; in 1886, at Cambridge University, England, the finest scholar in modern languages was a young woman; at the same school, in 1884, and 1887, the best scholars in moral science and the classics were women, and in 1890, at the famous University of Oxford, Miss Fawcett ranked above the best honor man in mathematics. I believe women to be the equals of men in natural endowments, though there are certainly differences in their mental and moral characteristics. These differences, however, do not seem to me to be so great as to justify the variant methods and degrees which have prevailed in the training of the two sexes. While I am hardly prepared to say that there is no sex in education, I am persuaded that it would be better for our women if they were subjected, not only to a wider and more thorough mental training, but along the same lines that have been prescribed for the education of their brothers.

WHAT STATISTICS SHOW AS TO THE EFFECT ON THE HEALTH.

From reports received by the Massachusett's Bureau of Labor Statistics from twelve colleges, nine of which were co-educational, in 1885, the following conclusion was reached: "It is sufficient to say that the female graduates of our colleges and universities as the result of their studies do not show any marked difference in general health from that of an equal number of women engaged in other kinds of work." In 1890 an investigation was instituted in England as to the history of the graduates of the four colleges connected with Oxford and Cambridge, and the report concludes thus: "There is nothing in a university education at all specially injurious to the constitution of women, or involving any greater strain than they can ordinarily bear without injury; women generally pass through it without its affecting their health one way or the other." Now, I grant that the experiment has not been tried sufficiently long to furnish data entirely satisfactory on this point, but so far as we have the results of investigation they are not such as to furnish any argument against the highest education of women.

A Divine Canon Applied to the Ordinance of Christian Baptism.

PREACHED ON SUNDAY BY THE LATE REV. A. W. PRICE IN THE LAURINBURG CHURCH BEFORE THE BURNING OF THE BUILDING.

"Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 5: 19.

[Concluded.]

Then, as another test of the correctness of the three respective words by which baptizo is translated, that is the correct one which can take the place of the word "baptize" everywhere it occurs and make sense every time. Now take the words sprinkle, pour, and immersion, and see which one stands the test. "In those days came John the Baptist preaching with the wilderness of Judea and saying, Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. * * Then went out unto him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were sprinkled or poured of him with Jordan, confessing their sins." This is the Pedobaptist translation, according to their definition that baptism is an application of water to a person. Or take Romans 6: 3, 4—"Know ye not that so many of us as were sprinkled into Jesus Christ were sprinkled into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by sprinkling into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so should we rise and walk in pewness of life." Col. 2: 12—"Buried with him in sprinkling, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God." Well have Conybeare and Howson said of these two passages: "They cannot be understood unless it be borne in mind that the primitive baptism was by immersion." No other conception than immersion will give them any sense or signification.

In many passages the word sprinkle or pour, when substituted for the word baptize, does not make any sense at all. But in every passage you may substitute the word immerse with perfect good sense and propriety. Which, then, is apt to be the word the Master intended? the one that does violence to the sense and connection of the passage, or the one which in every case agrees with both? If there is any one point in theology which scholarship and common sense have settled, it is that the baptism commanded by Christ, and submitted to by Christ, was immersion. Mr. Moody asked a negro in Richmond, Va., "Why are all you colored people Baptists?" And the old darky replied, "Cause we are all ignorant, boss, and can't splain away the Bible." To find anything in the Bible but immersion requires a great deal of "splaining away."

Now, then, if immersion is the rite, then they who change the form break the commandment. Many good people say that the quantity of water makes no difference, that a drop is as good as an ocean—that a little drop of water may seal the fulness of divine grace in baptizing as well as a small piece of bread and the least tasting of wine in the Lord's supper. But, my friends, it is not with us a question of much water or little water, but purely a question of obedience to a positive precept of Christ. And so far as the supper is concerned, the two cases are not analogous. They both are subject to the limitations which Christ the lawgiver has put upon them. Christ has left it discretionary as to the amount of bread and wine which we may take in the communion so long as we eat not to gluttony and drink not to drunkenness, and so we obey the command, however small the amount we may take of the elements. But were we to change the wine for water and the bread for meat, we would then break the command in about the same way that we break the command to be baptized by substituting another form other than the one prescribed.

2. The command to be baptized is broken by changing the subjects of baptism from those prescribed in the Scriptures. In other words by baptizing those whom the Lord has not commanded to be baptized. "The mention of one is the exclusion of all others" is a principle of common law which holds good here. Christ has commanded only believers to be baptized, and therefore this excludes unconverted adults and unconscious infants. The one who is baptized in infancy though the mode of his baptism were valid, has not obeyed the command to be baptized. Obedience implies choice, but how can that be an act of obedience which was imposed in the passiveness and unconsciousness of infancy?

Now, then, unbelieving adults and unconscious infants are excluded by the very terms of the great commission from the ordinance of baptism. This is true of the commission as given by Matthew and Mark. Matthew put it, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." The better rendering, according to the best authorities, is "Go ye, disciple all nations, and when they are disciped, baptize them." Then in Mark, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; and he that believeth not shall be damned." Here belief must come before baptism. Then how did the Apostles interpret the commission of their Lord? In strict accordance with the interpretation I have given it. On the day of Pentecost, when those who were "pricked in their heart" asked, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter replied, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." And to encourage them, he continued, "For the promise is unto you and to your children, and to all afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." This promise says nothing of the "infant seed of believers," but simply those of their posterity, as well as those who were afar off in point of relationship whom the Lord our God shall call. And the result was that "as many as gladly received the word were baptized," which implies that only those who gladly received the word were baptized. Infants can't gladly receive the word. It does seem that if the Apostles had baptized infants, they would have left some record of it. In Acts 8: 12, it is said, "But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." If there had been any infants baptized, surely here was the place to mention it. It distinctly says that men and women were baptized, but not one word about infants. If they just had included infants with men and women, what a world of controversy they would have saved the Christian church. But no; for while the writer of Acts takes especial pains to say that men and women were baptized, not one word about infants.

But one of the proof-texts relied upon to prove infant baptism, is where Christ says, "Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." But there is no baptism in the passage. Mark says in 10: ... brought young children to ... should touch them," not baptize ...

OBSTACLES.

Those who engage in protracted meetings cannot but notice that there are many obstacles to their success. Some of these are so well known, and are so often commented on in our religious papers and by our pastors from the pulpit, that we do not propose now to discuss them; but there are others that are not so common, or are more subtle in their nature, to which we wish now to call attention.

One is uncleanness in the camp of God's spiritual people. It is to be remembered that the Israelites of old were suddenly checked at Ai because some of the condemned spoil was hidden in the tent of Achan; and it often happens in a church that all seems to be fair without, but there are some hidden sins, possibly among leading members, that are hindrances in the way of the coming of God's blessing. When David of old felt that he was unclean before the Lord, he cried out, "Have mercy on me, oh God;" and again, "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." When there are these private sins in the lives of prominent members, who may perhaps take an active part in the meeting, God will not, as a rule, bless the meeting, until these men or women confess their sins before him, and are rid of their spiritual uncleanness. It is a sad thought that good men may at times find themselves cold and careless at the commencement of a meeting, and their sins may hinder seriously the success of the meeting. Sad enough, brother, to allow your sins to come between you and your God without confessing them and heartily repenting of them; but sadder still that you should be in the way of some one else who might come to Christ but for your wrong-doing. Christ has said, "Woe unto the world because of offences; but woe unto that man by whom the offence cometh." Are you the man? Christ, in Matt. 18: 6, gives a solemn warning to one who casts a stumbling block in the way of one who has trusted him; has it never dawned on the minds of our readers that it is both dangerous and unfortunate to cast obstacles of any kind in the way of those who would come to Christ; or, what is about the same thing, prevent the coming of his blessing on a congregation by our unfaithfulness or sinfulness?

Another hindrance, closely allied to the one just mentioned, is the existence of private feuds among the members of the church when the meeting is held. It is too often the case that these feuds are of long-standing, and may at times be well-known, or else almost entirely concealed from the public and from the pastor and the church. It matters not what may be their origin, or how they are managed by the parties involved, they are serious obstacles in the way of the success of the meeting. One peculiar fact true of men who are involved in these feuds is that they will at times rise in the presence of the whole church, deplore their existence, admit that they are more or less involved, and then make no private effort to heal them. After doing so before the congregation, including of course the pastor and the church, they seem to think they have done their duty, especially if they are moved to tears while they confess before their brethren; and from that time seem to take an active part in the meeting. But how seriously their efforts are crippled with those who are involved, or who may be acquainted with the fact that the brethren, who openly deplore the existence of these feuds, are in the wrong, and have made no proper confession to the offended parties in private. Ah! when will stubborn-hearted Christians learn the true meaning of Christ's words, "If thy brother trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone," &c. The failure or unwillingness of prominent church members to do just what the Saviour here directs, has often been the cause of turning aside God's blessing and of greatly crippling the harmony and growth of many churches. Before your meeting commences then, brother, even if you feel sure your brother is in the wrong, go and heal the breach if you can, by a private conference. If you fail, the Saviour gives you further remedy, which you have a right to use; but give yourself time enough to use it before the meeting commences. The further remedy implied in the words, "If he refuse to hear thee, take two or three with thee," &c., may demand such time.

[illegible] obstacle in the way of the [illegible] meeting is found in the loose [illegible] maintained in the church in not [illegible] sinful habits often indulged [illegible] members. It is the often the case that one or more men are retained for years in the church when their public lives are such as to bring continual reproach upon the cause of Christ. This is more especially the case when these men are heads of, or are connected with prominent families belonging to the church, and pay annually considerable sums for the support of church and pastor. Ah, how often does the glitter of gold blind the eyes of even the conservators of church purity and church morals! Who does not admire the backbone of a pastor and church that have faith and religion enough to rid themselves of a man who is a continual sore upon the body of the church? This should be done if he will not suffer his backsliding to be healed.

WINTER IS COMING.

The northern winds, the cool nights, the hoar frost, all remind us that winter will soon be upon us. Have you prepared for it? To enjoy the winter months, or rather to deprive them of much of the physical discomfort that usually comes with them, we should as far as possible prepare for them. Before they are fully upon us, fuel should be procured and housed; substantial clothing prepared for the household; some fresh wholesome reading matter should be procured for the children; food and shelter provided for live stock, and even the dog kennels should not be overlooked. Some may smile at these suggestions, especially the last in the above list. But we have made it for a purpose. It is too much the custom of our people, living in what are called the warmer States, to make little or no provision for the comfort and protection of domestic animals. The Bible says "the merciful man regardeth the life of his beast." According to this statement many of our people would not be regarded as merciful to the beasts that serve them and look to them for protection. The faithful horse that has broken the stubborn sod and pulled the plow that tilled your crop, and then drew the wagon that hauled your produce to market, deserves better treatment than to shiver all night in the open barns in which he is often stabled. The faithful milch cow that has fed you and your little ones through the summer, deserves a better retreat than the open leaky shed in which she is often sheltered. Shame upon the man who will suffer her to spend her long winter nights in the open air, while the pitiless rain or sleet falls upon her! And poor old Fido whose baying has often sent the light fingered thief about his business, deserves better treatment than to shiver upon the thin mat on the front porch through the long night. Homely talk, all this; but our people do need attention to homely matters and home comforts. Let those who are careless, no longer neglect these things. Attention to the helpless animal creation about us may be a means of our own growth in grace, and certainly is in accordance with the religion of Christ. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

A BROTHER has asked us to write an editorial on evil literature, and we are puzzled as to how we can treat the subject. Speaking generally, most of us are capable of distinguishing the good from the evil books, and have no excuse for reading low, demoralizing literature, when the land is flooded with that which is good and pure, and the price is no greater. But the danger lies in our youth. How can we keep such influences from them. We cannot catalogue the good from the evil, for it would take volumes. We cannot judge by the name of the book, or the house from which it comes. For names are misleading, and publishers hold the author responsible. The solution of the problem rests with our fathers and mothers. We cannot give our children too many books to read, and we cannot exercise too much care in the selection of books. A good book goes far toward moulding good characters, but an evil book, as an instrument of the devil, takes rank with the saloon. In this day of pure, ennobling, but cheap literature, there is no reason why every family should not have a modest library and a weekly periodical.

CHURCH members should know that having a good pastor and a good church building does not make a good church. The pastor is dependent on his flock for success, and he cannot make progress without their prayerful co operation. Says an exchange: "We depend too much on our preachers and not enough on God. Praying members make a live church and a happy pastor, but members who pray only when they think they are about to die, are worthless and make the pastor sad." There is food for reflection in this for those who are dissatisfied with their pastor whom God has guided to them. If they would pray more, attend prayer meeting and regular services more, their pastor would grow strangely better before they were aware of it.

WE hope that this issue is the last that will be called on to set forth either side of the mission question in theory. We have had enough of theory, and now, we thank God, the time is close upon us when the practical work of the "new methods" can be demonstrated. We shall cheerfully keep our readers informed as to this work, and expect the independent missionaries to use our columns as freely as they wish.

We have published column after column from Bro. Herring and his adherents, and we are sure fully as much has been said on the Board side of the question. If the question could have been settled on paper, Bro. Herring could have stayed in China.

The present dispute is narrowed down to one church, and verges on the personal. Both are written under a nom de plume. We deplore this. The "Friend of Truth" writes in the interest of truth, he says, and the RECORDER will always give its columns for the correction of errors and the exposition of truth. We have no doubt but that the "Friend of the Boards" will regard the statements in the last article as erroneous, and will come again himself in the "interest of truth;" and if he thinks he is misrepresented, we shall be glad to have him show the error.

We can say now, both sides of the great question having been fully and exhaustively exposed, that these petty disputes, whether in the interest of truth or not, are calculated to injure the cause in our State far more than the "new methods" can injure general mission work.

SHORT sermons seem to be the burden of the correspondents of some of our exchanges. We have seen congregations who were not satisfied with less than half-a-day's preaching—and they were better for it too,—and others that complained at an half-hour sermon. We believe we have no record as to the length of the Bible sermons. Christ's sermon on the mount was indeed short, as printed; but all of us know that three lines of that sermon will furnish food for a series of modern exhaustive and analytical discourses. We believe that the trouble with many of our people is that sermons which could be preached in fifteen minutes are extended to forty five. A true child of God never tires of the pure gospel intelligently set forth, but there is sometimes so little gospel in a very great sermon preached from a $5,000 pulpit. Preach the gospel, and Christians will not complain at the length of your sermon. We can heartily sympathize with the congregation that complains when an hour is consumed in making all sorts of points, arguments, and digressions, applicable to modern times, which neither the Scriptures warrant nor the people apply. If our pastors hear any complaint, and if there is complaint, it is to them and them alone, that it should be made. Let them study the gospel more, put more meat in their discourses, and preach just as long as ever.

"HE makes no friends who never made a foe" may not be literally true, but it is undoubtedly true of worthy movements and their active prosecution. Some people were born to envy and decry the success of others, and their scoffs are a credit rather than a discredit. No man ever rose to power, and no reform has ever been accomplished without a battle that demonstrated the worth of the man and the movement. Christ was reviled, and is reviled to day, but the glorious progress of his work goes surely onward. To know this is a consolation to every struggling pastor and editor who is convinced of the worth of his views, but whose enemies rise up on every side. Thank God for your friends, however few they are, and have charity, not resentment, for your enemies. Be sure, if your motives are pure, success shall be yours finally.

THE ministers who claim that the pulpit is losing its power, would do well to ask themselves if they are putting all the power they can command into their pulpits.—Watchman.

There is truth here. As long as our ministers bend the energies of their lives to rescuing souls, there is no danger that the pulpit will lose power. One soul saved is worth all the petty debates that consume so much of some preachers' time. A ministers duty is to expound the Scriptures, but he can do this and save souls at the same time, if he will leave off hair-splitting and high flown sermonizing.

EVERY one of our pastors, whether in pastorates great or small, should attend our Convention at Elizabeth City. Now is a good time for our churches to show their love and appreciation for the work their pastors have done in the past year by paying their way to Elizabeth City. It is not charity, but a good investment. We must have a large representative attendance.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

THE MT. ZION ASSOCIATION

was held with the church at Burlington. Bro. W. A. Albright was again elected Moderator, and Bro. Scott, Secretary. Many said it was the most interesting meeting this body ever held. The churches were all represented.

The Association seemed to have on hand and in prospect a great amount of work, and this we think did much to produce the fine spirit which prevailed throughout the entire session.

The introductory sermon by Bro. Tyree of the First church in Durham from the text, "Preach the word," was clear, forcible and and most appropriate to the occasion. We have the promise of the sermon to print for the benefit of our readers.

Dr. Williams of Baltimore who was on a visit to Chapel Hill, attended the meeting and added much interest by the part he took in the discussions of the different objects of the Association.

Dr. Carroll found it necessary to leave the Association after the first day, to attend the Western North Carolina Convention, which met in Asheville. He went away, however, happy over the thought that the Mt. Zion Association had redeemed in full the amount of its pledge to the Centennial of Missions.

Associational Missions was discussed by Bro. Hocutt and several brethren who have been engaged in the work for the past year. The missionaries were all paid off, and some new territory will be added to the places already occupied.

Brethren Gwaltney, Stringfield and Drs. Hume and Williams spoke to the brethren on ministerial and general education.

We were sorry to have to leave before the Association adjourned. The brethren at Burlington were delighted to have the Association meet at their church. It was only a few years ago that there was no such thing as Baptist preaching in the town. Now the interest here is one of the most hopeful in the State. There are already more than two hundred members, and the present house already needs enlarging in order to accommodate the increasing congregations.

The Richmond and Anson Associations united to form the which met with the Morven church in Anson county. Bro. Covington, who was Moderator of the Anson Association, was chosen Moderator of the joint body. This is a fine section of country, and we shall be greatly disappointed if the union of these two small Associations does not produce one of the best Associations in the State. It would be a wise thing for other small bodies in the State to follow this example. I only spent one day with the brethren, which I greatly enjoyed.

Bro. Adams, recently of Asheville, is now pastor at Wadesboro. He is fortunate in uniting in the work of this Association with men like Johnson, Kesler, Martin and others. There is no division nor contention about the work. The enlargement of the work seems to fill the minds of the brethren as they go to their respective fields of labor.

THE WEST CHOWAN

held its last meeting with the church at Colerain. We always look with special interest to this meeting. This year the representatives were not so numerous as we have seen. Colerain is near the boundary line which made the distance considerable from many of the churches, besides this the recent heavy rains and swollen streams kept away many who are accustomed to be present.

Dr. R. T. Thomas was again elected Moderator of the Association. The unanimity and enthusiasm with which the brethren re-elected him was such as to add pleasure to the work which the position involves. We hope one day to see Bro. Thomas President of the Baptist State Convention. The brethren seemed from the first to have a mind to work, so at the close of the first day a considerable portion of the work of the Association had been done. The report on the Chowan Female Institute is always one of the most prominent subjects discussed in this body. The report was read by Bro. T. G. Wood who made a speech thereon, and he was followed by Dr. Taylor, R. T. Vann and other brethren who spoke in the most flattering terms of the merits of the Institute. The discussion was closed by President Brewer whose only difficulty seemed to be in finding something to say that the other speakers had not already referred to. The discussion was one of the very best we have ever heard on the Institute and the brethren listened to it with much pleasure.

OUR thanks are due many of our subscribers for prompt response to our reminders, but there are many who haven't heeded the call. We shall sent out more this week, and we earnestly hope all who are able will respond as soon as possible. Remember, if you can't pay all, pay a part; but don't stop your paper because you haven't the money now, as we can wait on those who request it until times improve. Meanwhile, let our brethren and sisters work for new subscribers, and help the cause and the denomination.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....We regret to announce that Dr. H. M. Tupper continues extremely ill.

....Dr. J. J. Hall has begun a series of meetings in Park Avenue church, Norfolk.

....Rev. J. A. Smith has resigned the pastorate of the church at Vineland, Columbus county.

....Rev. Dr. Pritchard was engaged in a good series of meetings at his church, Tryon Street, Charlotte, last week.

....The Baptist State Convention of Texas closed its session this year with a debt of $6,100 on its State Mission work.

....Rev. C. M. Murchison has resigned his pastorate at Granite Falls. He did good work here, and his place will be filled with difficulty.

....Dr. A. J. Holt of Palestine, Texas, has been elected Secretary of the State Mission Board of Tennessee, and has accepted the position.

....Rev. C. E. Gower of Lincolnton made our office a very pleasant visit last week, being in this part of the country in attendance on the Raleigh Association.

....One of our most successful pastors writes: "The RECORDER is in nearly every family connected with my church. It does its work quietly and supports me often."

....The policy of the State ought to be to help the masses of our people, and not to cripple the colleges and preparatory schools. —E. K. Proctor, at the Robeson Association.

....Dr. C. E. W. Dobbs of Cartersville, Ga., has accepted the pastorate of the church at Guthrie, Oklahoma, where he will be sustained by the American Home Mission Society.

....Rev. Dr. J. C. Hiden baptized thirteen candidates in the Grove Avenue church, Richmond, last week, as a result of a recent meeting, in which Dr. Landrum assisted him.

....Many of our readers will be glad to hear of the success of Rev. Oscar Haywood in Huntsville, Ala. The Daily Argus of that city speaks very highly of him in a recent issue.

....There were more than forty professions of religion in the recent glorious meeting at Fayetteville conducted by Rev. J. H. Edwards, the pastor, and Rev. T. J. Taylor of Warrenton.

....Rev. C. A. Woodson, late of Durham, is now doing work across the line. He has lately been engaged in meetings at which twenty professions were made. He writes from Brookneal, Va.

....The State has no more right to furnish higher education to a part of its citizens than it has to give "forty acres and a mule" to others.—Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, at the Robeson Association.

....We were glad to see Rev. J. C. Hocutt of Burlington in our office last week. Bro. Hocutt and Rev. Alvis Andrews closed a meeting at Graham recently, which will result in great good to their church.

....The Robeson, Elkin, Little River, and Stanly Associations were held last week, and this week the Bladen, Columbus and Union will be held. This will close the sessions of the Associations for this year.

....Bro. S. C. Page writes that since his health has failed, he has been compelled to give up his colportage work in the South River Association. We hope Bro. Page may be restored to the Master's work again.

....We were very glad to see Miss Alberta Newton, daughter of Bro. C. C. Newton, and missionary with her father to Africa, in our office last week. Bro. Newton and family will leave for Africa very shortly.

....Pastor J. H. Nelson was recently presented with a nice top buggy in token of appreciation of his faithful services in a great revival meeting at Piny Grove church. Such kindnesses never fail to cheer the pastor's heart.

....We hear with regret of the death of Mrs. J. P. Caldwell, wife of Mr. J. P. Caldwell, editor of the Charlotte Observer, which occurred on the evening of the 2d, and extend our sympathy to the family in their sad bereavement.

....If any of our readers fail to get a copy of the RECORDER, we will be very glad to send them a copy, if they will inform us by postal. Mistakes will happen; but we are always ready to correct them as far as lies within our power.

....Rev. A. M. Simms, we are happy to note, is proving the right man in the right place in the Tabernacle of this city. His services are always interesting, and large audiences at all services testify to his growing popularity and usefulness.

....We were very glad to see Rev. G. L. Finch last week, who takes charge of the new church at Belmore this month. This church was built by Mr. George W. Vanderbilt, at a cost of about $5,000, in place of a former wooden structure. We are sure Bro. Finch will prove a most efficient pastor in this growing community.

....Rev. J. L. White of the First church, Asheville, will supply the French Broad church of that city until another pastor is secured, preaching on Sunday afternoons and Thursday evenings. Seldom has such a compliment been paid a pastor as this. The two Asheville churches are now virtually under one pastorate.

....Of the fifteen thousand dollars needed for State Missions this year, only five thousand nine hundred and eight dollars and three cents have been received by the Treasurer up to date. We will not every treasurer and executive committee report at once, and every pastor and church help us just now with this work!—C. Durham.

....The church at Corinth, Miss., has invited Rev. Geo. Wharton of Waynesville, an ex-Mississippian, to its pastorate. His decision has not been announced, but it is hoped he will remain with us.

....We regret to learn of the death of Rev. O. Churchill, which occurred last week near Haywood. Brother Churchill, though quite old, had been busily engaged in revival work until a few days before his death. We will have a sketch of his life in a future issue.

....Assistant Home Secretary, F. C. McConnell, says that just before leaving the Seminary he took supper with Dr. Broadus, and among other things Dr. B. said: "Whatever you do in life, do not start a little paper." This advice, Bro. McConnell says, has proved of great use to him. Dr. Broadus is a wise man.—Western Recorder.

....Says an exchange: "Christ is to-day in his servants, and he expects us to learn much of him from them." What a great responsibility there is placed upon Christians and our pastors specially; but there is nothing but truth in the statement. None of us can be too careful in the example which our lives hold before the world.

....We thank Bro. J. C. Woodson for the following: "The RECORDER seems to grow better with each issue, and I intend to make special efforts during the coming year to put it into every Baptist family in my churches. It is so helpful to the pastors in getting his people interested in our denominational enterprises. It is safe, sound, loyal and conservative."

....Rev. M. V. McDuffie writes: "I am seriously in the eighth year of my pastorate in New Brunswick. Our new church walls are up and we are putting the roof on, but will not finish the building before spring or summer, though we continue at the work every day." We are proud of Bro. McDuffie and the work he has done since leaving North Carolina.

....We learn from the Examiner that Rev. A. C. Dixon is making great preparations for city evangelization in Brooklyn this winter. He has secured the assistance of Revs. R. G. Pearson, McNeill, Robertson, Varley and Moody, all of whom participated in the recent great Chicago meetings, and has engaged two church buildings and a hall in which the services will be conducted.

....Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Union Baptist is before us. It is a church paper, published monthly in the interests of the Baptist church at Monroe and the Baptist cause in Union county, edited by Rev. M. A. Adams, pastor at Monroe. The first issue presents a neat and orderly appearance, and Brother Adams as editor begins in a straightforward, pithy style. Our best wishes go out to Bro. Adams and the Union Baptist.

....It would almost seem that Chicago is a more Christian city than any South. Mr. Moody lately occupied a circus tent on Sunday morning, and 15,000 people were there to listen to him. In the evening the regular performance was announced and the attendance was so small that Sunday exhibitions were given up. How many of our North Carolina cities have larger attendances at great revivals, which are free of cost, than at the travelling circuses with a high admission price?

....Prof. Briggs has come to the front with another startling magazine article, in which he declares that "the church has lost the confidence of the people, in its ability to teach them the truth, in its authority as a divine institution, and in its sanctity." It may have lost Prof. Briggs' confidence, just as the Bible lost it, but we beg to state that Prof. Briggs and his disgruntled followers are not "the people." Prof. Briggs' theories are just such as to destroy confidence in all things.

....Rev. S. W. Thomas was engaged in a meeting at King's Creek church with prospects for a good meeting. He expected Rev. Rufus Bradshaw of Moravian Falls to help him. Bro. Thomas writes: "News has just reached me that Brother Harvey West was stricken with paralysis on the 29th ult. while preaching at Union church, and is probably dead by this time. He was reported dying on the 30th. He was more than eighty years old, was a good man, and a useful Baptist minister."

....As the time for the Convention approaches, we earnestly request our pastors to bestir themselves in behalf of the RECORDER. We must add to our subscription list, and we must rely on our pastors to aid us. Can't every one of you meet the RECORDER in Elizabeth City with a list of renewals and new subscriptions. The RECORDER and its usefulness depends on our pastors now, as always, and we hope they will not fail us. Speak to your people whenever you can, and lighten your work, and strengthen the denomination by placing the RECORDER in all the homes connected with your church.

....The following postal has been received from Rev. G. P. Bostick of China: "The Crawfords and we left Tungchow last Wednesday (13th September) and reached here (Pingtu, China,) Saturday night. We will all board with the Leagues and Sears until we can settle for houses wherever we decide to go. Dr. Crawford and I will go soon to look for a field not yet occupied by any missionary. We find our friends all well here. My address will still be Chefoo, China. We are all in very good health. We are praying the Lord to lead us into large fields of usefulness. The parting with the native Christians in Tungchow was painful." From this it appears that the independent movement of our "new-method" missionaries is well under way, and we expect that when Bro. Herring and his party reach China, the fields will be decided upon and ready for occupancy. We pray that God may quickly demonstrate which is the better method, that the work may be prosecuted as speedily as possible.

....LET our pastors help their denominational organ in a time when it most needs help by bringing a list of renewals and new subscribers to the Convention. It helps the pastor, it helps the people; and helping these, it helps the cause. This applies to every one of our pastors, and we shall rely on them.

....Rev. J. H. Lamberth is preparing to hold a series of meetings at the Greenville church on Sunday last, and asks all who are interested in the church to pray for pastor and people. This church is better known to the denomination at large than any other in the State, being the memorial church of our State Convention.

From Rev. S. J. Porter.

Bro. S. J. Porter of Brazil writes in a private letter, dated Sept. 28th:

"We are now here in the city of Juiz de Fora, which is situated among the mountains about 250 miles from Rio. Studying the language is the greater part of our program, and we are making satisfactory progress.

AS TO THE REVOLUTION,

A great part of Brazil's national power lies in her navy, the officers of which are not at all pleased with the administration of Fluriana, the President of the Republic. All the particulars are not fully known, and hence I cannot give them; but on the 7th of September the navy turned its power against the national government, and so they revolted by opening fire on the city of Rio de Janeiro. Since that time a number of severe battles have been fought between the navy and the national guards, which resulted in a great many deaths and considerable damage to property. * · What the final result will be no one knows.

There is no danger that war will reach any of the interior towns, as all the fighting must be done against the navy, and necessarily off the coast.

Our mission work will suffer greatly on account of the revolt, especially the church in Rio and Nichteroy. We are out of all danger in Juiz de Fora."

Our people will rejoice to read in the preceding that our consecrated brother is not in danger, and is able to pursue his studies, even in the midst of a revolution. We expect to publish a letter from Bro. Porter on the revolution as soon as definite action is taken.

Wake Forest Letter.

LECTURES TO MINISTERIAL STUDENTS.

For several years before his death, Dr. Royall lectured to the young ministers of the College regularly every week on subjects related to their life-work. Being himself a great preacher and profound thinker, he knew quite well how to remedy defects in young ministers and train them for the best and highest service. In reviewing the life-work of this great and good man,—a work showing in many lines of intellectual and spiritual activity,—I am inclined to regard these lectures, delivered during the last eight or ten years of his life, among his most valuable labors, both in their character and ultimate results. I believe he so regarded them. In his informal but earnest talks he brought the students face to face with the great problems and principles that confront the minister of to-day, and inspired them with a desire to attain lofty ideals in service and character. A short while before his death the ministerial students presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane as a token of their love and appreciation.

This work, inaugurated by Dr. Royall, is now being admirably done by Dr. Taylor. The first lecture of the present session was delivered last Sunday evening. In the course of his lecture, which was attended and enjoyed by several who were not ministerial students, Dr. Taylor showed that preachers should have at least a few sermons prepared so as to be ready to preach at any time when called on, and that they should study to make their preaching interesting. In this day of Sunday newspapers and cheap books with which the preacher must compete, there is no room for idleness. Laziness in the preacher's study breeds inattention in the pew. Preachers should seek to develop the homiletic instinct. Their own experiences, the daily happenings about them, the columns of the secular press, the great store house of nature, everything should be brought under contribution in helping them secure the glad tidings of the gospel.

ORDINATION.

Rev. M. P. Davis was ordained to the full work of the ministry last Sunday night at the request of churches served by him as pastor. The sermon was preached by Rev. W. R. Gwaltney from the text, "Let no man despise thee;" the prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Edwards; the charge delivered by Prof. W. B. Royall and the welcome by Dr. Taylor who was chairman of the ordaining presbytery. Mr. Davis is one of the debaters of the Euzelian Society for next anniversary and is regarded as a young man of promise.

OTHER ITEMS.

A Chemistry club has been organized under the direction of Prof. Brewer for the study of advanced topics not taught in the regular course. Wake Forest has one of the most thoroughly equipped and best conducted Chemical laboratories in the South.

The Law Department has started under very favorable auspices. I shall have more to say of the scope and character of its work hereafter.

We were much pleased a few days ago to have a visit from Dr. and Mrs. G. J. Watkins of Winston. The Doctor is a dentist of State-wide reputation, an earnest and successful Christian worker, and withal a good friend of Wake Forest. He has one son here now and will have another soon.

Another new student has come from Virginia. The enrollment is eleven greater than the enrollment of last session at this date.

The work of the College in all its departments is moving along well. The department of the student body was never better. The Faculty have had no occasion for the exercise of discipline thus far this session.

November 4, 1893.

Raleigh Association.

The eighty eighth annual session of this body met on Thursday, October 26th, 1893, with the church at Mt. Moriah near Auburn in Wake county and was organized by electing Rev. H. W. Norris, Moderator and L. O. Lougee, Clerk. One new church was admitted making the present number of churches even fifty with a membership of about 5,000 and a vast amount of destitution in Johnston county. Dr. Carter of Raleigh preached the introductory sermon and brethren A. A. Pippin, Coppedge and Worley Creech, preached at the stand to the people who could not get into the house; but no announcement of the preaching was made in the house to disturb the speakers and the congregation who were already seated—a good idea. The letters which were not presented on the first day were referred to the finance committee and the Clerk without reading—another good idea, as it saves the time of the Association for other business on Friday and Saturday and reminded the lingering delegates of the importance of being on time next year. The reports were presented by committees who were appointed a year ago, and were, therefore, well prepared and were generally followed by speeches from the writers. Dr. Carter, by request, prepared the report on periodicals which was both concise and comprehensive. Bro. J. M. Broughton made an excellent address on Foreign Missions. Bro. Caddell and the writer represented the BIBLICAL RECORDER; Bro. N. B. Broughton, and others, Associational Missions; Dr. Durham, State and Home Missions; Brethren Edwards and Mills, the Baptist Orphanage. Bro. Claud Gower and the writer, Aged Ministers' Relief Board; Bro. F. H. Poston, and others, spoke to the report on Temperance; and Brethren E E. Hilliard, Stringfield, Blanchard, and others spoke to the report on Education. Presidents Hobgood and Brewer represented their respective schools.

The Association was well attended; the delegates and visitors, well provided for; and the spirit of the meeting excellent. The house of worship had been repaired and painted within and without and nicely carpeted; and ample provision was made for transporting the delegates and visitors who came on the cars from the depot to the church and back again. The executive committee of this Association are doing excellent work in supplying the vast destitution which lies in the lower part of their bounds and the Lord has greatly blessed the labors of their missionaries during the past two years, notwithstanding the strong anti-missionary element they have to contend with on their fields. Brethren O. C. Horton and F. H. Poston have been abundant in labor for the Master. N. B. C.

Good News from Fayetteville.

Dear Recorder:—The Lord has graciously blessed us in Fayetteville. Rev. T. J. Taylor of Warrenton came to my aid on Monday after the fourth Sunday in October, and continued with us eleven days. Very large congregations attended, and the Lord was with us in power from the beginning. Forty-one persons professed conversion, and twenty-four of this number have been received already while others have told me that they will come in at an early day. The week previous to the meeting, nine united with the church, making a total of thirty-three during the past two and a half weeks. In all, we have received forty-eight members since August 1st, and others are to follow. The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad.

Bro. Taylor preached with great power and tenderness, the simple gospel, and his sermons have produced a profound impression upon the church and community. He has greatly endeared himself to us by faithful labors in many ways.

The lines have fallen unto me in pleasant places here. The pastor is upheld in his labors by an earnest, working church, and is encouraged by many kindly tokens of appreciation.

Very much to my regret I was prevented from attending our Association, the Robeson, as our meeting was in progress, but I have very fine reports from it. This Association is, without doubt, one of the best organized in the state.

I shall drop you a line from time to time as to the progress of the work here.

J. HARTWELL EDWARDS.

November 5, 1893.

Southern Union, Eastern Association.

This body met with Bethlehem church, Pender county, commencing on Friday before the fifth Sabbath in October, 1893.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. J. C. Crumpler from Job 10: 23.

The discussion of the various subjects was full and free.

The exercises on Sunday in behalf of Sunday-school work, presided over by Bro. J. H. Folles were interesting and instructive, the children adding much by singing beautiful songs.

The following are the contributions: For Orphanage, $7.13; for Associational Missions, 5.01. Total, $12.13.

Our next session will be held with Shiloh church, Pender county. SECRETARY.

Pimples, blackheads, moles, freckles, tan and sunburn removed by Johnson's Oriental Soap. Medicinal. Sold by Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh, N. C.

Union News and Notes.

Dear Recorder:—Pastoral changes seem to be the most important feature of our work. They have the system of annual calls throughout the Association, I believe, Monroe and Waxhaw excepted. It is strange that this must be every year. But so it is, and we submit.

Waxhaw has gone forward and set an example that is worthy to be followed by more of our country churches. She has called Bro. Caudle for two Sundays in each month, and will locate him in her midst. That will take his family from us, and in their leaving we lose some of our best workers. Waxhaw is blest in having them.

Bro. Caudle is one of our wisest and best preachers and pastors. He has baptized near one hundred on his field this year, and his churches are in good condition and doing good work. We need more such men in our work.

At Waxhaw they have prayer meeting twice a week, a good Sunday-school, and large congregations at their preaching services. They have outgrown their present quarters, and are now arranging to build a new church.

Our Monroe work has developed very rapidly indeed. It has been my pleasure to baptize thirty-two, and I shall baptize one more to-morrow evening, and to preach to an increasing audience all the time. During all the hard times they have paid the salary monthly and kept all expenses paid. They gave me a trip to Chicago, and now they are raising my salary. They are united and at work. We will make improvements on our house soon. Last Sunday evening there was a great number turned away for lack of seating capacity.

We are looking forward to the Association with much pleasure. Every arrangement has been made. We are expecting to entertain all who come—and do it well. A goodly number have written that they were coming from a distance. Friday evening we wish to have an educational meeting. We hope by this means to greatly stimulate the educational interest. Come and be with us. A good time awaits you.

Letter from Sister Knight in China.

My Dear Bro. Bailey:—I want to tell your readers something about the Master's work in this part of his vineyard. We believe there is not a better place in all China in which to station the Lord's vine dressers than in this Pingtu section. The need is true workmen—such as are willing to go among the people and "endure hardness" in the Master's service. We do not need any teachers of schools—nor any who desire to settle themselves comfortably and send out native helpers to do the work which they themselves ought to do. Neither do we need any overseers or superintendents, but we do need earnest, patient sowers of the gospel seed—yes, and we need skilful reapers, too, for the time of harvest is near. The sheaves shall be healthy with well developed grain for the Master himself is working with us. During the two months just past, our work here in Pingtu City has taken a step which I had been praying it might take—a step which, if followed up will place our work on a good foundation. Three meetings have been held, by invitation, in native homes—at which meetings both men and women were present—the women assembling in an inner room, and the men in an outer room or passage-way, the leader of the services standing in the door-way where he could be seen and heard by all. Although, at each of these meetings, persons were present who had never before attended a similar service, yet good order was maintained, and good attention was given to the preacher. Two of these meetings were held in the home of an earnest native Christian woman, who has an unconverted husband and three unconverted sons with their unconverted wives. The other service was held in the home of a man who is not a Christian himself but he has Christian relations and he is friendly disposed towards the foreigner and towards the "Jesus doctrine." He is a man of some means—the place in which we met is quite convenient for such a meeting. Both these homes are now open to us whenever we wish to meet in them. Others will be opened. When we meet in this homelike way the younger women are not afraid to come in and hear. In my opinion, this is the way to begin. Slowly and by degrees these natives will become able and willing to build a church-house, such as they may need, and we missionaries may help them do this out of our private means, in proportion to their own efforts. We do not need any big church-houses of foreign appearance. Our religion does not need any outside show. This plan of meeting in different neighborhoods brings the gospel to many who would never go out to a church-house to hear a preacher. The missionary also takes his turn, inviting the natives who are willing to meet with him in some rooms in his home fitted up in Chinese style. I have visited both Mentsen and Saling this week and came back from both places with a glad heart.

Brother and Sister Sears and their baby returned last Saturday from Chefoo, where they had spent most of the summer. Brother and Sister League have been here in Pingtu most of the summer, and I need not say they have made themselves useful. We, who have remained here, have been well during the summer, and we have suffered no great inconvenience from the heat, although we have had some very hot days. Our hearts are glad in anticipation of more workers for Pingtu section. The veteran missionaries, Dr. and Mrs. T. P. Crawford, who have worked so long and so well in Tungchow, will come on here in the course of a fortnight. Our work among the women will look up with a smiling face when Mrs. Crawford comes among us. As a worker among the women, she is worth her weight in gold many times over. It is said by all who know her that she is one of the wisest and best workers in China and she is one of the best speakers of the Chinese language. She and her venerable husband are among the oldest and most experienced of all China's missionaries. A Chinaman here in Pingtu City, an experienced carter, who has carried many missionaries from place to place, says of all the missionaries he has ever moved in his cart, Dr. Crawford is his favorite. He says: "Mr. Crawford knows just what is in our minds, and he knows all our customs and he knows how to sympathize with us." A great many of the people in this section know these dear aged servants of God and they will be received with joy by us all. It is not yet decided that they will remain here in Pingtu, but we hope they will—and let some of the younger missionaries press into the interior. Yes, Brother Bailey, some of the Master's "fishermen" from among the Southern Baptist, at the Master's bidding, are going to "launch out into the deep and let down their nets." I have been thinking, since my first winter in China, that the Master was saying to his people: "Cast the net on the right side of the ship and you shall find." This "right side of the ship" is full of meaning to my mind. I have written of these things again and again in private letters. I do not think my work here in Pingtu is yet done, but if in the future I shall believe I can better serve the Master by moving farther into the interior, I shall gladly go where he leads. Please ask my brethren and sisters of the churches composing the Chowan Association if they will be ready to go with me with their prayers and their helping hand? Tell them I do not want to do what they cannot approve, while they are working with me. I want them to know exactly what kind of work they are helping me to do. I want to feel that they are working with me, not through or by me. One of us is as responsible as another for the carrying out of his or her part of the Master's commission. If any of them will write and ask questions about the work, I will answer them gladly, as far as I shall be able, and shall have time. There is much more in my mind and heart which I should like to write, but my letter is long already.

May God bless and prosper you, Brother Bailey, and may he bless with you all whom you faithfully serve.

Yours with Christian love,

FANNIE S. KNIGHT.

From Rev. C. J. Woodson.

Dear Recorder:—Our Union Meeting last week was pleasant and profitable, and nothing occurred to disturb the harmony of our deliberations. Our missionary in Hyde was present, and gave us an encouraging report of his missionary labors. He thinks the morning light is breaking, and that the work he is doing would be very much accelerated by the erection of a good substantial house of worship. There is not a Missionary Baptist church building in this large, wealthy and populous county, and when his appeal is made in behalf of this object. I hope and believed that our people from the mountains to the sea will liberally respond. Brother Carrawan impressed us all as being a godly man, and very much interested in the Master's work, and the permanent establishment of the Baptist cause in his county, where he is contending single handed amidst many discouragements for the faith once delivered to the saints. He needs and deserves our prayers, sympathy and co-operation.

Bro. J. E. White, our new bishop at Edenton, has made a splendid impression and already won golden opinions from all sorts of people.

Rev. W. P. Jordan has so far recovered from his recent severe attack of rheumatism as to be able to resume his ministerial functions, very much to the delight of the churches to which he ministers so faithfully and acceptably.

We are looking forward with much pleasure to the meeting of the Convention in December, and hope to meet many of the dear brethren from the Western part of the State with whom we labored so pleasantly in the days of yore. Bro. Blackwell and his people are making elaborate preparation for the reception and entertainment of the Convention, and all who attend may confidently anticipate a delightful time. God grant we may all come together on this occasion thoroughly imbued with the spirit of our Divine Master, and with an eye single to his glory, and the salvation of mankind.

C. J. WOODSON.

18: 15, says, "Then there were brought to him children that he should put his hands on them and pray," but not one word about baptizing them. Luke 18: 15, says: "And they brought unto him also infants that he should touch them;" but not one word about baptizing them.

Besides, the New Testament plainly says that Jesus baptized not, but his disciples. John 4: 2. And furthermore, if the disciples had been in the habit of baptizing infants, and these infants had been brought for baptism, then they would not have rebuked those who brought them. So there is, as Spurgeon says, "not the shade of the shadow of the ghost of infant baptism in this passage."

Infant baptism is also argued from the household baptisms mentioned in the New Testament. But in all but two of these cases mentioned there are qualifying expressions which forbid the idea of infants being baptized. The first household baptism recorded is that of the Philippian jailer. The record is, "And he took them the same hour of the night and washed their stripes and was baptized, he and all his. And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them and rejoiced, believing in God with all his house." Here, then, all his house "rejoiced," "believing in God." No infants here. Then in the same chapter is recorded the baptism of Lydia and her household. But the burden of proof lies upon those who find infant baptism here to prove that Lydia was a married woman—that she had any children at all. I baptized a household last summer, composed of parents and six children, and yet there was not an infant among them. There are many households without infants in them.

But infant baptism is more commonly supported by the supposed identity between the Christian church and Jewish theocracy. Its advocates maintain that the Christian church is but the continuance and development of the Jewish church, and therefore the church began with Abraham and not with Christ and his Apostles. But against this is the plain statement of Jesus. He said, "Upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Mark you, he says, "I will build my church," not "I have built it." Now, then, assuming the identity of the Jewish and Christian churches, they further assume that baptism and the Lord's supper take the place of circumcision and the passover. So far as the supper is concerned, the Scriptures plainly state that Christ himself is our passover and not the Lord's supper. The passover was a type of Christ and not of the Lord's supper; for the Lord's supper is but a symbol of something else, so that according to this theory the passover was a symbol of a symbol. Certainly a shadow of a shadow is too thin for defence or pleasure. The same may be said of circumcision. Circumcision has not been superceded by baptism, but carnal circumcision has given place to spiritual circumcision, which is but another name for regeneration. Heb. 2: 27, 29—"For he is not a Jew which is one outwardly, neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh; but he is a Jew which is one inwardly, and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit and not in the letter."

Furthermore, baptism cannot have taken the place of circumcision, because both are positive ordinances instituted by positive law, and therefore cannot be changed without an express command from God. But who can point to the command of God in which baptism is made to take the place of circumcision. And if in the absence of an express declaration of Scripture, men assume or infer that baptism took the place of circumcision, then pray what took the place of all the other rites and ceremonies of the Mosaic economy. But again, circumcision was given only to males; but both sexes receive Christian baptism. Therefore, circumcision and baptism are not identical.

And again, servants as well as children were circumcised, because they were the property of Israelitish masters. To be consistent, our Pedobaptist brethren must not only baptize unconscious children, but their servants. But who has ever heard of a slave's being baptized on the ground that baptism takes the place of circumcision?

Then Christ himself, though circumcised in infancy, was baptized when about thirty years old, and this would not have been the case if baptism had taken the place of circumcision.

Also, Timothy was circumcised after he had been baptized, and this would not have been the case if baptism had taken the place of circumcision.

Nay, nay, baptism has not taken the place of circumcision. Circumcision had its own place and served its own purpose, and when its mission was fulfilled, it was simply dropped without being superceded by anything. Circumcision was to distinguish Abraham's natural seed and servants and keep them from being merged into surrounding nations till the prophecies concerning the Messiah were known to have been fulfilled. It was also a "token" of the covenant by which Abraham's natural seed were to hold the land of Canaan. Now then, that the covenant of which it was the token has been discharged: there is no need of anything to take its place. Baptism comes in under the new dispensation by special Divine enactment and fills its own place and serves its own purpose, and consequently takes the place of nothing else. Christian baptism is different from Jewish circumcision, in its form, in its design, in its subjects, so radically different in its very nature and genius that it cannot be an evolution, it must be a [illegible], so the argument for infant bap-

[illegible] then, as I have given you my argu- [illegible] infant baptism, and as I gave [illegible] of eminent Pedobaptist [illegible] concerning the mode of baptism, I [illegible] discussion without giving [illegible] of some Pedobaptist [illegible] infant baptism.

[illegible] is altogether wanting any conclusive proof passage for the baptism of children in the age of the Apostles, nor can the necessity for it be drawn from the nature of the ordinance."

Neander: "It is certain that Christ did not ordain infant baptism. We cannot prove that the Apostles ordained it."

Julius Muller: "The Scriptural proofs for the necessity of infant baptism are untenable. * * The fact that new-born infants were baptized by the Apostles cannot be proven."

Prof. Moses Stuart: "Commands or plain and certain examples of it (infant baptism) I do not find in the New Testament."

Hanna: "Scripture knows nothing of infant baptism. There is absolutely not a single trace of it in the New Testament."

John Calvin: "It is nowhere expressly mentioned by any of the evangelists that any child was by the Apostles baptized."

Lange: "All attempts to make out infant baptism from the New Testament must fail. It is totally opposed to the Apostolic age and to the fundamental principles of the New Testament."

Philip Schaff: "The New Testament contains no express command to baptize infants: such a command would not agree with the free spirit of the New Testament."

Those quotations are from men whose scholarship is recognized by the world; and yet not one in the whole list is a Baptist.

I tell you, my friends, it is a solemn thing to do something in the name of the sacred Trinity, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, which neither has for its authority and express command a reasonable inference, or an authenticated example in holy Scripture. I know this is a subject to many in this congregation, and you will think it harsh and uncharitable in me thus to speak. Many parents would feel that they had left undone a sacred duty if they failed to have their children baptized. With them it is a matter of education and association, and even to call the practice in question were to them sacrilege. Their feelings in this matter I respect; but their practice I condemn. "But am I become your enemy because I tell you the truth?"

Baptism does the child no good; for according to the confession of Pedobaptists themselves, the baptized child has no advantage over the unbaptized. If he die in infancy without being baptized, he is saved; and if he die after reaching the age of accountability without being converted, even though he were baptized in infancy, he will be lost. And are children who are baptized in infancy any better morally for their baptism, or are they any more religiously inclined than children who have not been baptized? I defy anybody to establish the fact. Bob Ingersoll was baptized in infancy; is he any the better by it? William Carey was not baptized in infancy; was he any the worse for it? Baptism not only does the child no good, but it does him positive harm. It brings him up with the idea that he has personally obeyed the command of Christ, when as I have already said, he has not obeyed at all; for how can that be obedience which involves no choice and was imposed upon him without his knowledge or consent? We break the command to be baptized not only by changing the form, but also by changing the subjects of baptism in baptizing those whom Christ has not commanded to be baptized. "Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." Hence the heaviest responsibility rests upon religious teachers and preachers. It is bad enough to break one of these least commandments, but to break them and then to teach others to break them, is worse still. I tremble for some preachers in view of the account which they must give of their stewardship at last. They have not only broken these least commandments, but have taught others to break them, too. Said an intelligent lady sometime ago: "I believe that the baptism taught in the Bible is immersion. I don't find any infant baptism in the Bible, but some other mode must do as well, and infant baptism must be right because our preachers preach it."

A word or two in conclusion now, as to why it is that whosoever shall break one of these least commands shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven. The fact that Christ has said so is to us proof enough of its reasonableness, and yet there are some reasons on the very surface of the subject which makes this canon of our Saviour a just one.

1. One of these least commandments is sufficient to test our fidelity to Christ. In many instances this seems to be the only reason for giving these least commandments. Now Christ himself laid down the axiom that "he that is unfaithful in that which is least is unfaithful also in that which is much." The hole that would leak out a pint of water, when put into a barrel, would leak out a whole barrel full if put in. He that is habitually unfaithful in these least commandments is not apt to be faithful in those which are greatest. Besides the positive precepts of Christ, whose only reason for their appointment being in the will of the lawgiver, are a severer test of our fidelity to Christ than moral precepts whose reason lies in the very nature of things and which ought to be obeyed whether God had commanded them or not. Judgment and mercy and faith and honesty and sobriety are binding upon the human race, even though God had never commanded them. They grow out of the very constitution of the human race and are essential to the well being of society. A great preacher has said, "There is more respect paid to the Divine Being in maintaining positive institutes than in maintaining moral duties; for moral duties have their uses independent of pleasing God: they commend themselves to our reason apart from revelation and religion, but positive institutes, as they rest on Divine authority and would not be obligatory but for that, show more strongly the deference of the people to the will of God." This being true, some of these positive institutes which seem least among the commandments, when they become a test of our submission to the Divine authority, become invested with superlative importance, so that they become all that is dreadful in transgression and all that is blessed in obedience. The eating of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil was in itself a small thing till God forbade it. It then became a test of obedience involving the destiny of the human race. God commanded Lot and his family not to look back on the doomed city of Sodom. Nothing could be more trivial or natural than looking back toward the city in which were buried the accumulations and interests of a life time. The only reason for it was the will of God. Lot's wife disobeyed and became a pillar of salt. To support the tottering ark on its return from captivity might have been thought an act of piety, but God had given authority only to his priests to approach his ark, and its touch by any one else was presumption; and the death of Uzzah teaches us that it is a fearful thing to make free with the institutions of God. "And when they came to Nachon's threshingfloor, Uzzah put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it; for the oxen shook it. And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah: and God smote him there for his error; and there he died by the ark of God." 2 Sam. 6: 6, 7.

The way by which the "man of God" should return home (1 Kings, chapter 13) was, so far as we can see, a thing of indifference in itself, and accepting the hospitality of his friends was certainly more convenient than to return home fasting. But God, for reasons which he did not see fit to explain, gave specific directions that he should eat no bread nor drink water in Bethel, but return by the way which he came. After resisting the importunities of the king, he yielded to the solicitations of a pious friend. His awful death is recorded as a lesson for all time on the sin and danger of disregarding the subject of a Divine command, however seemingly unimportant, as "non-essential."

It was seemingly an unimportant matter that Moses should smite the rock when God commanded him only to stretch his rod; but it was a question of Divine authority, and for his disobedience he was not allowed to enter the land of promise.

All these examples teach us that a positive command, though small in itself, when it becomes a test of our submission to God, is of vast importance and fraught with serious consequences.

A Royal Cure.

I have suffered twelve years from indigestion and dyspepsia. Nearly two years ago I had a very severe attack of la grippe, from the effects of which I suffered with sore eyes, catarrh of the head, stomach, and bowels, deranged condition of kidneys, and the worst sort of case of piles. In fact, I was confined to my bed for eighteen months and was given up to die of consumption. Great abscesses formed on my lungs, and when they would break I coughed up quantities of offensive matter and blood. I suffered with high fever in my lungs, bowels, and stomach. No language can describe my suffering. After all remedies had failed, and my doctor had given me up to die, I was persuaded by Rev. J. W. Howard of this city to try King's Royal Germetuer. I began to improve with the first bottle, and now hope to live to a good, ripe old age to tell of the virtues of that greatest of all remedies—King's Royal Germetuer. I have persuaded many to use it, and all of them join me in singing its praises. God be praied for sending his servant to tell me of this wonderful medicine. I would advise all the afflicted to try it. N. H. DRIGGERS.

Ministerial Support.

A REPORT PREPARED BY THE LATE REV. A. B. ALDERMAN, AND READ BEFORE THE CEDAR CREEK ASSOCIATION OCT. 20, 1866.

WHO SHOULD NOT BE SUPPORTED.

1. Those ministers who labor only as convenience offers should claim only what the people can conveniently and willingly give them.

2. Those who preach for self-aggrandizement, or to relieve themselves of other duties, should receive a full portion of the scorn and contempt of all the churches and people. Titus 1: 7.

3. Those who preach for the sake of filthy lucre. "Not greedy of filthy lucre." 1 Tim. 3: 3. "Not given to filthy lucre." Titus 1: 7.

4. Those who teach, by precept or example things they ought not, and things not in God's word. "Whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake." Titus 1: 11.

5. Those who have not a "good report of them who are without." "Moreover he must have a good report of them which are without." 1 Tim. 3: 7.

6. Those who are not capable of teaching the churches or people, and cannot be made so by support. "Apt to teach." 1 Tim. 3: 2; 2 Tim. 2: 24. "And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." 2 Tim. 2: 2. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 15th verse. "But foolish and unlearned questions avoid, knowing that they do gender strifes." 23d verse.

7. Those who will bid God speed to those who preach false doctrines. "Look to yourselves, that we lose not those things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward. Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed: for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds." 2 John 8: 11. "Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees." Matt. 16: 6. "Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees." 12th verse. Beware of the doctrine.

WHO SHOULD BE SUPPORTED.

1. Those who give themselves wholly to the work. "Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine. Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the presbytery. Meditate on these things; give thyself wholly to them; that thy profiting may appear to all. Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee." 1 Tim. 4: 13–16. See again 2 Tim. 2: 15.

2. Those who deny themselves and take up their cross and follow Christ. "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." Matt. 16: 24. "And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life." Mark 10: 29, 30.

3. All those whom God calls to preach. "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Mark 16: 15. "For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel." 1 Cor. 9: 16.

4. All those who preach the "word," and nothing but the word. "Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." 2 Tim. 1: 13. "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine." "But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry." 2 Tim. 4: 2–5. "Holding fast the faithful word which he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers. For there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, specially they of the circumcision: whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake. One of themselves, even a prophet of their own, said, The Cretians are always liars, evil beasts, slow bellies." Titus 1: 9–12.

5. Those who are able to teach, and those who can be made able by supporting them. See again 2 Tim. 2: 2–15.

6. Those who "earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered to the saints." "Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and to exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered to the saints." Jude 3.

7. Those who faithfully expose false doctrine. "Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and shew my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins." Isaiah 58: 1. "Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God when he was about to make the tabernacle; for, see, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount." Heb. 8: 5.

WHY SHOULD THEY BE SUPPORTED?

1. Because God commands it. "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." 1 Cor. 9: 14.

2. Because the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." Romans 1: 16.

3. To not support them is to rob God. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." Mal. 3: 8.

4. It is a part of the worship of God. "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of all thine increase." Prov. 3: 9.

5. They cannot give themselves to the work without support. "Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? Or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? Say I these things as a man? or saith not the law the same also? For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?" 1 Cor. 9: 7–11.

6. Because it enriches the giver. "But this I say, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." 2 Cor. 9: 6. "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty." Prov. 11: 24.

HOW ARE THEY TO BE SUPPORTED?

1. By putting into practice the word of God. "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gathering when I come." 1 Cor. 16: 2. Here is a constant supply for the minister every week. He is never disappointed. He can then give himself wholly to the work. Subscription is without scriptural warrant, and is seldom paid in time, and often never paid. The minister does not have to credit the church, which often turns him off without his due returns; nor the church credit the minister, who often fails to fulfil his obligations to her; so there is safety on both sides. Every one is to lay by—it brings all into the work according to their ability.

2. By a competency, so that he can give himself wholly to reading, to study, and to pastoral visits.

3. By fervent prayer for his success, and by constant and devoted Christian love to him, to keep his heart constantly warm in the glorious cause.

W. P. Drop, druggist, Springfield, Mass., writes: "Japanese Pile Cure has cured a lady seven years afflicted; could not walk half mile in the last three years; now she walks any distance." Sold by Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh, N. C.

Give Your Burdens to Christ.

"Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee." Ps. 55: 22. The easiest thing to do with a burden is to drop it. Just let go of it, and the heavier it is, the faster it will fall. We please God most when we carry the least weight, for the soul that loads itself with many cares has not learned to trust. The text does not say, "Lift thy burden on the Lord," but "cast it," which means to let go of it and trust him to take it up. It is a blessed thing in the Christian life to believe that God is with us at every step. To count upon his presence and help at every moment. To walk by faith and not by sight. To believe that he cares for us, and find rest and peace in casting all our care upon him. One of the gravest mistakes a Christian can make is to load himself down with cares that he ought to give to Christ.—Ram's Horn.

Rev. O. L. Stringfield of Wakefield, N. C., says: "Five boxes of Japanese Pile Cure cured me after twelve years' suffering." Sold by Jno. Y. MacRae, druggist, Raleigh.

Every pastor is more or less annoyed by cranks, and the great question is how to get rid of such people. Mr. Moody seems to have solved the question, but we do not know whether his method will work in every instance. It is said that at one time the noted evangelist was very much worried by such a man, and that he took him into a private room and prayed the Lord to give him common sense. It is greatly to be feared, however, that if one be not endowed with common sense in the beginning, he will hardly attain to that blessing in after life. Still, omnipotence can do every thing, and nothing less than divine power can impart common sense to a man who has it not. —Central Baptist.

Treatment of Books.

Whoever helps to keep alive the respect for a book, for books as books, renders a great service in his time, when the feeling toward books is becoming like that toward newspapers—that they are to be rudely handled and cast aside when the news is snatched out of them; or when regard for them is like that of a hungry man for oysters, who scoops out the soft parts and chucks away the shells, perhaps with pearls in them. The love for the book goes along naturally with the love of literature itself, and there is something wanting in the "humanities" of a man, whatever his attainments, who has not a respect for what may be called the personality of a book. It is an underbred culture which does not honor it. Books, those unfailingly faithful companions, stand mute and waiting on the shelves. In their hearts are preserved the thought, the aspiration, the despair, the love, the heroism, the emotion, the tragedy, the immortal beauty, the bewitching loveliness, the personality of all the ages. We take one down; it is ready to yield to our every mood; we handle it with care; we linger a little over the cover; we study the book-plate; we judge the title-page; we inhale the book fragrance as we open it and begin to taste its unmaterial essence. It is brutal not to respect its individuality.—Editor's Study in Harper's Magazine.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. A Foreigner's Experience in China.

One day, on the south side of Nanking, I was pelted with old shoes and stones by a crowd of hoodlum boys; another day my hat was knocked off; and the same afternoon I came in contact with a crazy woman who made considerable sport for the crowd at my expense. I finally got rid of her by complying with her request and giving her a gospel.

Talking one day in the northern part of the city to some carpenters who were at work on a large public building, one of them asked as to the contents of the books that I was selling. I replied: "They exhort men to be good, to repent of their sins, and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ; not to worship idols, but to worship the true God." At this he laughed and said, "O, you on that side [foreigners] have come over here to exhort us on this side [Chinese]!" Only those who know the Chinese could appreciate his remark. It might be translated thus: "What! you from one of those small outside kingdoms come here to exhort us of the great 'middle kingdom'! [Presumption.]"

In a tea shop near the Han Si Men I asked a man if he would not buy a Gospel. Looking at his feet he replied, "See, I have straw shoes—men who wear straw shoes don't read." Another replied, "I am a farmer—farmers don't know characters [don't read]." A common saying among the unlearned is, "They [the characters] know me, but I don't know them."

A stonecutter in a small town asked one day, when I was showing him the books and explaining the doctrine, "What profit is there to be derived from worshipping this God?"

I replied: "If you worship the true God, and serve him, he will protect you and bless you, and give you food [rice] to eat and clothing to wear; and he will forgive your sins."

"Umph!" said he; "I trust in my hammer and chisel for my rice."

"But," I asked, "whence comes the strength to wield your hammer? Is it not derived from the rice you eat? And whence comes the rice? Is it not grown in the field? If your clay idol falls into the water, it dissolves and is gone. Your wooden one burns up, and the wind scatters the ashes. Your idols are gone. They have no power. They are worthless. It is the true and living God who made the soil and the seed. He sends the rain and the sunshine, and makes the rice grow."

Just then he was called to dinner; so I passed on.

Coming one morning to a tea shop and finding it full of people, I entered, and without saying anything began to show our Scriptures. A portly old lady, evidently from the country, sat with her husband at one of the tables near the door. Nudging him, and not supposing that I understood her, she said, "Isn't that a foreign devil?" I replied, "No, old lady, but a foreign gentleman." "O, foreign gentleman, foreign gentleman!" she responded. She had evidently never seen an "outside kingdom" man before.

In another city, across the lake, just as I was coming around a corner, I met a man who paused as though he wanted to look at the books. I asked him if he did not want to buy some of them. He made no reply for some time, and staring at me, said, "Are—are—a—you not a foreigner?"

In the spring I made journeys to several cities lying adjacent to Nanking. Luh-Ho lies about thirty miles north of the river. It is the cleanest city I have seen in China, and the sparkling blue waters of the river on which it is situated form a pleasing contrast to the muddy waters of the Yang-tse.

A wheelbarrow cooly whom we met on the street became much interested in the Gospel. He was one of a party of four who had driven their barrows, loaded with produce, all the way from Lai Cheo Fuh, in the northern part of Shang-Tung Province, a distance of three hundred and thirty miles, and were taking them back laden with white sugar. This will seem incredible to our friends at home, but things are done in the most primitive way in China, and this is not an uncommon mode of transportation in the "middle kingdom." As these men were too poor to stay at an inn, they had made a shelter of reeds and grass outside of the city to protect them from the fierce rays of the sun. But notwithstanding his poverty, one of these bought several Calendars, one copy of the Psalms, two New Testaments, and twenty-four Gospels, saying that he wanted to take them to his native village, as they had never heard the Gospel there. May he learn through these of him who said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest!" Thus will the way be prepared for the living voice of the evangelist who shall "explain the way more perfectly."—Rev. G. W. Verity, in Bible Society Record.

Rev. A. D. Hill of Japan gives the following report of the faithfulness of a Christian convert: "Some thirty years ago, in Japan, there were rewards given for convictions of the crime of being a Christian. All over the country edicts of great severity were posted up against the hated religion. One of these persecuted families found its way into the extreme backwoods of the province of Kii. About twenty years after their removal, a young man from this family, for the first time in all that period, visited the town of Shingu, where we have a church. He hunted up an old neighbor, who happened to be a member of it. That evening, before lying down for the night, the host brought out his well-worn New Testament and informed his guest that it was their custom to engage in worship before going to bed. The guest at this announcement was both astonished and terrified. It was a kind of Rip Van Winkle awakening. For the first time had he heard that Christianity was tolerated and spreading throughout the empire, and that the cruel edicts against it had been removed. Having had positive assurances that there was now no longer any danger, he told his host his history. He had been taught by his father the faith that had been handed down for more then two centuries in his family. He had been taught to worship only the one true God and to reverence Mary and believe in the Son of God. Sometimes in the early morning his father would go all around the premises to see that no one was near, and then, returning to the house, would take a crucifix from its secret place and teach his children to bow before it and worship the true God. There was but little sleep that night for either host or guest. The man seemed to have a perfect Christ-hunger, and so he stayed several days longer, studying the Scriptures and hearing more of 'the God of his fathers.' Just at that juncture an itinerating missionary happened to come around to that place on his regular tour, and the man was received into the Christian church."—Gospel in All Lands.

"The Crucial Test" vs. The Truth Test.

In your issue of October 18th I find an article headed "Mission Methods—the Crucial Test," which needs only to be seen in the light of truth to show the falacy and sophistry used to hold up a church before the gaze of the denomination.

It seems to me that if "Friend to the Boards" was as good a friend to the Lord as he tries to be to the Boards, he would rejoice in any progress in the Redeemer's kingdom, whether it was done through the Boards or not.

Even according to his most biased view he must admit there has been progress all the while in the church which he holds up as a spectacle of one-sided development. I would be glad for "Friend to the Boards" to show the progress and all around development of his own church so the denomination might profit by the example and practice of this judge of other people's matters. But to the facts in the case. He assumes that the loss to State Missions, Education, and the Orphanage, is due to the fact that more has been done for Foreign Missions, which is not true. The small amount contributed to the Orphanage is due to the fact that Bro. Mills twice had engagements to come to this church with some of the orphans to hold an entertainment, and twice failed; and the church was waiting till he came to make its contribution to that object. Not a dollar of Orphanage money went to Foreign Missions. During those years, too, when this church did most for the Orphanage we had two representatives there for whom, for one year at least, three ladies agreed to pay, and did pay, five cents a day. They did not then know they were making a most practical test for "Gospel Mission" methods. But, of course, "Friend to the Boards" did not know any of these things. I would advise him to know a little more before he writes so much about what he does not know.

The seeming loss to State Missions is not the result of what was done to Foreign Missions either.

This church has expended more than $50 in State Mission work which is not reported in the minutes, and which "Friend to the Boards" knows nothing about. And I suppose it will greatly pain him to learn that the work has been done, because it was not done through the Board. He says that the seeming gain to education in 1892 was only a seeming gain, and not real. The only reason it was not real was because it was not done through the Board, for it went to exactly the same object that it did the year before.

But "Friend to the Boards" is guilty of one truthful assertion, and that is, that a part of what is credited in the minutes to Foreign Missions properly belongs to Education; but that is due to the fact that the church decided to appropriate its pledge of $75 to Foreign Missions to our beneficiary who was then at the Seminary, but "Friend to the Boards" did not know that, either. There a great many things about this church which he does not know.

It needs to be said, furthermore, that this church is financially weaker the last two years than it was the three previous years—it lost by deaths and removals several good working members; so that the progress that has been made is much greater than is apparent.

Suppose we take the statistics of another church in the Association, and argue as "Friend to the Boards" does. In 1891 that church gave $3.43 to the Orphanage against $38.61 in 1890. Now, he would say it was because the church had adopted a one-sided development plan, or use it in any way that would suit his purpose to make an argument against the church. I take it that there was some local and reasonable explanation for the great falling off, and not because the brethren cared less for the orphans than they did the year before. Again, that church in 1890 gave to the five objects of the Convention $166.14, but it has never done that much any year since, but as that church has always done all of its work through the Boards, its backward development is quite satisfactory to "Friend to the Boards."

The truth is, there are frequently local causes that cause a church to fall back for some time in its contributions, and during all that time the church may be making real progress and having an "all-around development."

This church has never sought notoriety, and if "Friend to the Boards" will hold up his own church, or else hold us up in our true light we will have no more to say.

FRIEND OF THE TRUTH.

Death of Rev. J. B. Barlow.

Rev. J. B. Barlow of the Eastern Association was called to his reward Sept. 29th, 1893, only a few months after he had completed his three score years and ten.

For about forty years he had been a self-sacrificing, faithful preacher of the gospel which he loved so much himself and which through his earnest efforts he gladly gave to thousands of others.

During his ministry he was pastor of some of the best churches in his Association, but much of his life was given to the missionary work along the coast. He was a co-laborer of the sainted Faison and Kennedy who preceded him to the goodly land by only a few years. For a number of years these three consecrated men were the Master's standard-bearers in eight or ten of these Eastern counties. "Passing through the valley [illegible]," one by one, they have "entered into [illegible] which remaineth to the people of God."

Bro. Barlow, like the most of our reverend [illegible] was familiar with his Bible, and [illegible] while he was preaching that [illegible] of it was true.

[illegible] pleasure and privilege to visit [illegible] during the last few years of his [illegible] to his earnest words about [illegible] heaven." He talked of nothing else. Well and truly might he have sung:—

"E're since by faith I saw the stream
Thy flowing wounds supply,
Redeeming love has been my theme,
And shall be till I die."

He was not a brilliant speaker or scholar; but to travel over these eastern counties and see what a large and warm place he occupies in the hearts of almost every home will convince one that he was a man of great personal magnetism and spiritual power. Much of the work which he did was done at a very great sacrifice—traveling afoot sometimes as far as twenty-five miles to preach to the destitute. He made no great ado about what he did, and for this reason he was not nearly so widely known as were many others far less worthy of note.

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear,
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

The plain, unassuming gospel preacher, the man of humble, fervent prayer, (sweeter than which never fell from human lips) the the clever Christian neighbor, the kind affectionate husband and the tender loving father has fallen asleep to wake with Jesus in the morning of the resurrection, but he has left behind hallowed and sacred memories. This zealous Christian life is a rich legacy for the people among whom he lived. The after sunset is sometimes more beautiful than the sun itself.

"Gone but not forgotten."

To the lonely and bereaved family, we, with the thousands who knew and loved Bro. Barlow, tender our sincerest sympathy. May the blessed presence of him who took the loved one to himself fill up his absence till the happy family reunion which we hope may take place in the "Sweet by and by."

Young People's Societies.

Notwithstanding the multiplicity of names, I am satisfied, after an experience of twelve years, that there is a place and a need for them.

A link between the Sunday-school and the church. It is not fair to condemn the Sunday-school because it does not cover the whole ground of Christian training. It is doing its work, and doing it very well, as results show, yet there is a feeling that something more should be done, than is being done by the Sunday-school especially along the lines of Christian culture. We do not condemn the locomotive as worthless because it does not lift tons of iron in the air. We are satisfied the engine is doing well the work for which it was made. We do not think of condemning the "ecole des beaux arts" because other branches of science are not taught, so long as the legitimate work of the school is well done. The churches feel, especially those having no meetings for the young Christian, that there is a want that is not supplied. The pastor fails not to exhort and admonish the young Christian, and still results are not satisfactory. There is a difference between Christian instruction and Christian training, and the churches and pastors feel the need of some agency to change Christian instruction into Christian training. It is the settled conviction with many pastors and others that the young people's meeting is the missing link.

Give the young Christian work. Put him to cultivating the Christian life for himself. Let the fact be emphasized that there are some things people have to do for themselves. The intellectual man becomes so by constant brain work, the athlete by physical culture, and the full-grown man in Christ Jesus becomes so by the application of the same principle.

The charity question is a serious one. To know when to help. We say "unwise giving tends to pauperism." Cæsar found 320,000 persons in Rome on the roll of public aid. It is religion and wisdom to relieve want and at the same time promote self respect and independence—to help others to help themselves.

We cannot have well developed church-members so long as all the work is done for them. The gifts they have must not be neglected. I think Sunday-school teachers and preachers are constantly pouring into the mind, and seldom make an effort to draw out. They deluge the class and congregation and make but little effort to get the people to absorb what has been so generously given. "Go to work" was the advice of a celebrated physician to a dyspeptic, and the same advice followed would cure many of the ills in the Christian life.

OBJECTIONS.

I think many of them are like goblins and ghosts which vanish with the light.

They will detract from the other meetings. After twelve years' experience, I am persuaded that this is only a theoretical objection. The most regular attendants on church services, and those who can be depended upon to do any work for which they have a talent, are those who are hearty supporters of the young people's meetings.

They degenerate into social clubs. There are dangers attending all the work. The pastor has to face many. He may fail to divide the Word of Life, the preached Word may become the subject of unprofitable disputation, or the evil one may pluck up the good seed; but the preacher does not allow these difficulties to deter him in his work of faith and labor of love. Let the pastor attend the meeting and exercise consecrated tact, and the evil will be prevented.

The young people will be conceited and forward. It is just as natural for the boy to present his little prayer to God as it is for the father to present his longer and better arranged one. It is as natural for godliness to grow in the young heart as in the mature one, and it is in keeping with propriety that the young heart should be cultivated as well as the older. It does not seem presumption for the child to modestly express his hope in Jesus any more than for a mature person.

There are two types of piety—the hot-house type and the ice-house type. I ask which is the more desirable?

I have a conviction in these days of formalism that there is need of fervid piety, even if forced by hot-house method.

It is fortunate in these unspiritual times that there is a corner in the church where the atmosphere is mild and conditions favorable to growth.

To welcome a class of young Christians into a church with the mercury at zero does not promise the best results.

The young people's meeting does much to keep the fires burning, therefore let us have them. There are other objections, no doubt, but can they bear having the light turned on?

Three Convincing Qualities.

When one buys of the American Baptist Publication Society the American Commentary he is convinced of three things, viz.: 1. That it is doctrinally sound. The most orthodox ministers of the Baptist denomination, North and South, did the work. 2. That it is able. No one who examines the list of those who prepared the Commentary will fail to recognize them as the very ablest in our ranks. 3. That it is pervaded by a devout spirit. Dr. Hovey says of it: "To my mind it is the record of much honest and prayerful study." Where else can be found a complete commentary on the New Testament that combines these qualities?

Revival Meetings—Union Meeting.

Dear Recorder:—The week before the meeting of the Tar River Association, Rev. Duncan McLeod of Washington, N. C., preached a week for the writer at Fishing Creek, Nash county, and the week after the Association at Hickory. His preaching was plain, solid gospel—the kind that never fails to reach the heart. These meetings were a great blessing to the members of these churches. It reached those outside, and two were brought into the fold.

I am glad to state that the church at Washington, under his wise leadership, is taking on new life. He is the right man in the right place.

The Union Meeting at our new mission church, Gethsemane, Edgecombe county, N. C., was a splendid meeting. Brethren J. D. Hufham, R. T. Vann, R. E. Peele, J. W. Powell, Duncan McLeod, C. M. Cobb, J. K. Fant, W. S. Ballard, Noah Biggs, E. E. Hilliard, C. J. Austin and others will make any meeting a success. With such men at the helm, things are bound to move.

A Too Usual Plea.

That of a general average of goodness. A man says, "I am as good as the average," and rests there. A man says, "I am passionate, but I am benevolent;" or, "I am stingy, but I am thrifty;" or, "I am profane but mean nothing by it;" or, "I sin variously, I know, but I don't do harm to any one save myself." And so men, allowing many a "but" here and there, strike what they call an average goodness and go on heedlessly. I constantly meet this plea of an average goodness.

Well, did you ever hear the story of the average fence? I think it admirable.

One of these average men—a man who was constantly saying, "I am doing pretty well on the whole; sometimes I get mad and swear, but then I am perfectly honest; I work on the Sabbath when I am particularly busy, but I give a good deal to the poor, and I was never drunk in my life"—hired a shrewd Scotchman—a very clear headed Christian by the way—to build a fence round his pasture lot. The directions given were most particular, it was to be a staunch fence, on all sides so high and strong. In the evening the Scotchman came in from his work and the man said, "Well, Jock, is the fence built, and is it tight and strong?"

"I canna say it is all tight and strong," replied Jock, "but it is a good average fence; if some parts are a little weak, other parts are extra strong; I don't know but I have left a gap here and there, a yard or so wide, but then I have made up for it by doubling the rails on each side of the gap; I dare say though I canna just say it is perfect in every part."

"What!" exclaimed this averaging man, "do you tell me that you built a fence around my lot with weak places and gaps in it? Why, you might as well have built no fence at all; if there is one opening, or even a weak place where an opening can be made, the cattle will be sure to find it, and through it they will go; don't you know, man, that a fence must be perfect or it is worthless?"

"I used to think so," answered the Scotchman, "but I hear you talk so much about averaging matters with the Lord, it seemed to me that we might try it with cattle; surely if an average character will do for a man in the day of judgment, an average fence will do for them."

A good story, and it teaches well one of the hardest lessons for a man to learn. When will men learn that a gap, if only here and there in character, will let sin through, and that sin is condemnable? When will men learn that the only answer which God's perfect law can receive is the answer of a life as perfect? Either in themselves they must present that answer, or in another. But no man can present it in himself. For every man who will accept it, such answer has been presented in Jesus Christ. There is a chance for one to be perfect in his perfection. If I refuse that, I must appear before God in my poor and battered self. Ah, me, what must be the issue of such appearance before the Divine Holiness, infinitely white! —The Ensign.

Cures when all else fails.

We know the true merits of the Electropoise, but realize that sufferers are dubious of advertised remedies, however well endorsed, therefore we have adopted a rental system, whereby at a nominal cost the Electropoise may be tried, and then either purchased or returned.

Labors of Rev. S. F. Bristow.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I have been trying to serve five churches this year. At three of these I have held protracted meetings.

At Christian Harbor I began a meeting the second Sunday in September which lasted one week. Bro. Williams preached one sermon and Bro. Craig one during the week. I did most of the preaching myself. The Lord was with us, and we had a glorious revival. As a result, I baptized sixteen and restored three. This is my first year with this church, and I have found it a working church.

At Lawrence's Cross Roads I began a meeting the third Sunday in September. Bro. J. B. Boone of Windsor was with me all the week up to Saturday, and gave us some good gospel preaching. At the close of the meeting I received eighteen by baptism and restored one. I have been preaching for this people five years, and during this time we have experienced both sorrow and joy. We cannot expect to walk in sunshine all the way. The brethren and sisters of this church have treated me kindly since I have been working among them, and I trust that our co operation will be in the future as in the past.

At Bethany church, we have held no protracted meeting. This is the closing of my fourth year with this church. The most of my work here has been pleasant, and while the death of Bro. Shady Perry was a great loss to us, yet we have been trying to keep up with our work. We would not forget to say our church has lost strength by the death of Bro. Hughes. This church is like a great many others—they don't take the RECORDER as they should.

At Green's Cross Roads I began a meeting the first Sunday in October. I had no one to help me, but the Lord was with us. I baptized eighteen into the fellowship of the church. I have been preaching for this church four years and three months. The majority of this people are poor, but the gospel was first preached to the poor, and while the majority of them are poor, they always pay their pastor.

At Colerain, the last session of the West Chowan Association met with this church, and we want to say we enjoyed it, and the complaint is, the sisters did not have enough company, and good many say they want another. I won't say any more, as I am looking for a long piece from the agent of the RECORDER. This is my second year with the Colerain church, and I want to say that the brethren and sisters have treated me with all kindness. I have sit around the most of their firesides and spent hours of pleasantness. This is the place the pastor prepares himself for the pulpit.

Before I close I want to return thanks to Dr. Watford for his visits to my family in their afflictions free of charge.

S. F. BRISTOW.

Our Best Doctors Failed.

STATESVILLE, N. C., June 13, 1892.

Dear Sir:—For the past two years I have been a great sufferer from asthma; my first attack lasted five months—second eight months. Two of our best doctors did all they could for me, but to no effect. I had been confined to my room and bed for seven months when a friend brought me an Electropoise. I had no faith in it and would not use it until I saw my little boy cured of an acute attack of bronchitis by it. I then commenced its use, and in two months was cured of asthma. As I have often said to friends who ask me about it, "It is the wonder of wonders!" To all who suffer from asthma, I can sincerely recommend the Electropoise from my own experience, and what I have observed makes me believe that it will do all you claim for it.

Very truly,

THADDEUS W. SUMMERS.

Cape Fear Association.

This body met with the Lebanon Baptist church, Thursday, October 19, 1893. Rev. E. W. Wooten, the Moderator, being absent, Bro. C. C. Gore was elected Moderator pro tem. The Association was called to order by the Moderator and regular business of the Association was taken up and dispenced with. Owing to the recent storm a large number of churches failed to be represented. However, the Association was well attended and exceedingly well taken care of by the church and surrounding neighborhood. Bro. E. W. Wooten reached the Association Friday afternoon and the Association immediately went into an election of officers for the coming year. Rev. E. W. Wooten was again elected Moderator, and Rev. A. H. Porter was re-elected Clerk and Bro. Oren Lenan was re-elected Treasurer. The queries were taken up in their regular order, and ably discussed and a collection was taken for about all of the different objects, which was exceedingly good considering the scarcity of money. The collections as well I remember were as follows: Ministers' Relief, $9.50; Thomasville Orphanage including subscription for Charity and Children, $12.75; Ministerial Education, $4.50. The Sunday-school mass meeting was led by Bro. B. D. Wescott, immediately after which a presbytery consisting of Bro. J. L. Wescott, Revs. E. W. Wooten, A. H. Porter, J. C. White and the writer, proceeded by request of the church to the ordination of Bro. Lane Ward to the desconship. The writer made the informal address, Bro. J. L. Wescott gave the introduction, Rev. A. A. Porter offered the prayer and Rev. E. W. Wooten, delivered the charge, and J. C White dismissed the congregation by prayer. Then the seats were moved out to the stand to accommodate the large audience. The writer preached on "Giving." Services closed and a collection was taken by Rev. E. W. Wooten for Associational and State Missions, and amounted to $17.25. Rev. A. H. Porter preached in the afternoon at 2 p. m. The Association decided to employ a missionary to work in the Association this coming year, and we have pledged ourselves to raise his salary—that is, what he fails to get on the field. But I believe the right man will get his salary as he goes over the Association, for there never were a more liberal and kinder hearted people than the Brunswick county people. The above mentioned collections were all congregational.

Prof. D. M. Bane of Eoka, N. C., rendered the Association a proficient service in leading the vocal music. The Association tendered him a vote of thanks to be recorded on the minutes of the Association. The Moderator said on Sunday that the collectons were better than he had seen in the "Old Cape Fear Association for ten years past."

The Moderator preached at 7 p. m., and thus closed a successful meeting.

Affectionately yours in Christ,

J. H. HILDRETH.

Literary.

Turner's North Carolina Almanac for 1894 is before us, and we feel no hesitancy in saying that the "Old Reliable," is more complete, handy, and interesting than ever. Several striking new features have been added, the most important of which are the monthly Calendars with State Chronology, Annual State Record, State Necrology, &c., which in themselves are an excellent outline history of our commonwealth, and are very valuable for refernce. The State and Governmental statistics, and other information, political, judicial, and historical are very good. In fine, this Almanac has surpassed itself, and contains everything that goes to make up a first-class State almanac; facts and figures for the farmer and editor, anecdotes and advice for the family, and general information of importance to all.

With the November number the Century began a new volume, and it goes without saying that its contents are fully up to its past high standard, if not superior. It is, indeed, a difficult matter for the Century to surpass itself, and for one, we would be content for many years with its present excellence. Among a galaxy of interesting and valuable articles we note a very timely paper on Bismarck, "Memories and Letters of Edwin Booth," a hitherto unpublished essay by James Russel Lowell on "Humor, Wit, Fun, and Satire;" and "Taking Napoleon to St. Helena," the second instalment of the diary of the Admiral's Secretary, who accompained Napoleon on his last voyage. In this number some important serials begin, viz: "John Henderson, Artist," by George Kenan, of Russian fame; "The Casting Vote," by George Egbert Craddock, whose former stories have had much to do with mountain North Carolina and Tennessee. In addition to these there are four complete stories, and several articles, all of which are very readable.

Sweet-Pickled Watermelon Rinds.

Peel the rinds with a sharp knife that will take off the green skin evenly. Trim off also every trace of the pink flesh of the fruit, because it is too juicy to make a firm, crisp pickle. Then cut the strips of rind into small pieces two or three inches long, and placing them in a large earthen dish, sprinkle them lightly and evenly with salt. Cover the dish, and let it stand over night. In the morning drain off the water that will have formed, rinse the rinds in cold water, and cook them in a steamer until a broom splint will readily pierce them. Cooking the rinds by steam is an easy method, as they are less liable to burn than when cooked in the spiced vinegar. When the rinds are tender, take them out carefully with a skimmer, and put them into a stone jar.

Take good cider vinegar for the basis of the pickle. Allow a pound of sugar to a pint of vinegar, and add also half an ounce of stick cinnamon broken into inch pieces, and a half teaspoonful each of whole cloves and blades of mace. The whole amount of vinegar, sugar, and spices used must, of course, depend on the quantity of rinds to be pickled, but a quart of vinegar is usually sufficient for the rinds of a medium-sized melon. Boil the vinegar, sugar, and spices together vigorously half an hour, skimming off the froth, and pour the pickle boiling hot over the rinds. Press the rinds down under the pickle by means of an earthen plate or saucer, fasten the cover on, and tie a cloth over the whole. These pickles will be ready for use in two weeks. —Harper's Bazar.

The Wayside Inn, a new hotel at Hendersonville, which cost $40,000 and was insured for $14,500, was destroyed by fire last Monday week. Two persons were burned, one seriously, while attempting to extinguish the flames.

Mr. John Seagraves, living near Huntsville, Yadkin county, was killed by a falling tree on Monday of last week. The tree was cut down by Mr. Seagraves' son, who warned his father as the tree was falling, but the old man being slightly deaf did not hear him.

Collectors Elias and Simmons have been given temporary commissions, and will take charge of their offices immediately. The regular session of Congress will act on their confirmation. The President expects to make many postoffice appointments in the next few weeks.

The Page Hotel at Sanford was destroyed by fire last Wednesday. Several of the guests lost money, clothing and other property. The Express learns that the owner of the burned building intends soon to begin the erection of a large, commodious hotel, much better than the old one.

Several bold and very daring attempts at highway robbery have recently occurred in Cumberland county. On Thursday night week near Fayetteville, Mr. Blankman Royals and another gentleman were held up by a man supposed to be a negro, who at the point of a pistol demanded their money. Mr. Royals did not have any, and told the man so, whereupon the would-be robber opened fire, one of the balls grazing Mr. Royals' head and killing his mule.

Bride of the Autumn Sun.

O, golden rod! sweet golden rod!
Bride of the autumn sun;
Has he kissed thy blossoms this mellow morn,
And tinged them one by one?

Did the crickets sing at thy christening,
When, in his warm embrace,
He gave thee love from his fount above,
And beauty, and cheer, and grace?

He brightens the asters, but soon they fade;
He reddens the sumach tree;
And the clematis loses its sunny bloom,
But he's true as truth to thee.

Scattered on mountain-top or plain,
Unseen by human eye,
He turns thy fringe to burnished gold
By love's sweet alchemy.

And then, when the chill November comes,
And the flowers their work have done,
Thou art still unchanged, dear golden rod,
Bride of the autumn sun.

—Sarah K. Bolton, in Ladies Home Journal.

The Wants of Humanity.

I remember hearing a naturalist describe a species of jelly-fish, which, he said, lives fixed to a rock, from which it never stirs. It does not require to go in search of food, because in the decayed tissues of its own organism there grows a kind of seaweed, on which it subsists. I thought I had never heard of any creature so comfortable. But the naturalist who was describing it went on to say that it is one of the lowest forms of animal life, and the extreme comfort which it enjoys is the very badge of its degraded position. As you rise in the scale of life, you come upon animals with multiplying wants; and it may be laid down as a general rule that the nobler any form of animal life is, the more complex will its wants be found to be.

The interesting law of natural history applies to human life also. A savage has very few wants. Compare his kit, if he requires to make a journey, with the innumerable articles which have to be packed in all sorts of receptacles, when you move from home. Compare the simple life of an African kraal with the arrangement, for the police, the water supply, the food supply, the post-office, the telegraph. It may be laid down as a general rule, to which, however, there may be exceptions, that the progress of civilization has for its badge the multiplication of wants.

But this law extends further: it holds good in the spiritual sphere. If you go back and trace the history of human nature in its higher types, you will discover that this has been the principle of ascent. In the ancient world three races stand out, head and shoulders, above their neighbors—the Greek, the Roman and the Hebrew; and, if you go deep enough in the study of their history, you will discover that each of them felt some want of human nature as it had never been felt before, and taught the nations to feel it likewise; and this was its contribution to the progress of the world. And now the position to which any individual rises in the scale of humanity depends on the reproduction of those catholic wants in his experience, and the intensity with which he feels them. A man may live and die without feeling them, and he may be all the more comfortable on this account; but his comfort is like that of the jelly-fish—it is the badge of degradation.

It is the glory of Christianity to be intimately associated with these deep catholic wants of the soul; it is the devine provision for their satisfaction. This is precisely what is meant when it is said that Christ is made of God unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and santification and redemption; because each of these four things answers to a profound need of human nature.—Rev. James Stalker, in Men and Morals.

How Many Stars Can We See?

The stars are not, as one might suppose, scattered indiscriminately over the heavens. A luminous belt called the Galaxy, or Milky Way, surrounds the heavens, nearly in a great circle, so as to divide the sky into two portions almost equal. This belt is of irregular width and brightness. For about one third of its way it is devided into two nearly parallel streams.

The great majority of the stars appear to gather in and about the Milky Way, and thus indicate to us the direction in which the stellar system has its attendant planets, is situated near the center of this disc-like space.

The total number of stars visible to the naked eye is about 6,000, and, as we can only see one half of the sky at once, the greatest number visible at one time on a clear night is about 3,000.

But by the aid of the most powerful telescopes, the number visible exceeds 50,000,000. Even this number is greatly increased by the aid of photography, as rays of light from stars, too faint even to be seen in the telescope, can, by long exposure of a sensitive ephemical film, make their existence evident.—Home Magazine.

The way she looks troubles the woman who is delicate, rundown, or overworked. She's hollow-cheeked, dull-eyed, thin, and pale, and it worries her. Now, the way to look well is to be well. And the way to be well, if you're any such woman, is to faithfully use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's the only medicine that's guaranteed to give woman's strength and to cure [illegible] diseases. In every "female complaint," irregularity, weakness, and unsuspected condition of the female organism, it never fails to benefit or cure, [illegible] money back.

Care of Fine China.

"One of the troubles of a house keeper's life," said a pratical woman the other day, "is the practice that some servants persist in of pouring boiling water over fine china. I went into the kitchen the other day just in time to see this done, and when I spoke to the maid about it, she immediately turned about and deluged the dishes with cold water from the hydrant. It seems impossible to impress on the minds of these people the fact that sudden changes of temperature will crack the glazing on almost any kind of earthenware, and that it is practical ruin to fine grades of china, and all argument on the subject seems wasted. They will take the dishes out of the pan, examine them with the greatest of care and declare that they are not injured a particle, and they may not show at the moment that they are, but soon afterward they begin to 'craze,' as the manufacturers say, and after a time are covered with tiny lines of crackle.

"There is but one way to wash china and glassware, and that is to have the water of sufficient temperature so that the hands can be put in it. Water that is too hot for the hands, is too hot for good dishes. I used to insist on the servant's preparing the dish-water before putting the dishes in the pan. To do this they must rub the soap on the cloth, and will easily discover what the proper degree of heat should be. In this same connection I may say that I never allow dish-mops in the kitchen. Servants are almost absolutely certain to use boiling water, because they do not realize the necessity for cooling it when they use a mop. If the pieces are brushed out with a mop, the water may be actually at the boiling point, and for this reason I think that the dish-mop should be banished from every well-regulated kitchen."—Ledger.

The Ideal Home.

The ideal home beautiful is attained rather by avoiding errors of taste than by the adoption of special dogmas of art. For my own part, if I have any dogmas to preach they may fairly be condensed in one rule: "Avoid shams and affectations of all kinds."

Don't mistake mere prettiness for beauty; millinery, for instance, is out of place in the beautiful house.

Don't attach to your chairs and sofa cushions meaningless bows of ribbon which tie nothing.

Don't dress up your toilet tables in muslin petticoats stiffened with crinoline or colored calico.

Don't scatter startling white "tidies" about chairs and sofas as on so many bushes, as if you were hanging out your wash to dry.

Don't display on your walls china plates and dishes. They were never meant to be there. An exception may be made now and then in favor of a piece of fine color to help light up the room, or where a delicate china painting is worthy of careful examination. But don't hang up ordinary domestic china!

Don't hang small pictures so that their beauty is lost to any one under ten feet tall. If a picture is not seen from the same position that the artist saw it when he painted it, the drawing will appear foreshortened and the general effect consequently falsified.

Don't hang any picture in the home which has not the impress of elegance, purity and cheerfulness.

Don't give place to representations of corpses, tortured saints, or anything occasioning painful emotions. And above all, having such pictures and not wanting them down stairs, don't banish them to the nursery, school-room or bed-room.

Don't buy your carpet or your wall paper because it looks pretty in the roll when you see it in the store. But think of the fitness of each with its ultimate surroundings. Remember that the carpet is to be a background for your furniture, and the wall paper—unless it is to be the actual decoration of the walls—is to be merely a background for your pictures.

Don't admit into the home beautiful any piece of furniture or implement of every-day life which does not honestly serve its purpose—no light, flimsy chairs which an able-bodied man dare not sit upon; no puffy, debilitated sofas, all wind and springs; no burnished brass-sheeted fire irons, bought only to be looked at, and give place to the ugly little black poker and shovel when coal is to be broken or ashes are to be removed.

There is no reason why an object should not be useful as well as ornamental. Indeed, there can be no beauty without fitness. Nature everywhere teaches us the compatibility of the highest utility with the greatest beauty.

And so with beauty and truth. There may be truth without beauty, but there is no beauty without truth. Truth, beauty and utility are the inseparable trinity of the ideal home. Let us then write them upon the portals of the house as the epitome of all that is most admirable in religion, in art and in every-day life.—Journal Decorative Art.

Beecham's pills correct bad effects or overeating.

"Bimeby."

Little Jack always says, "By and by," when he is asked to do anything. He will get up by-and-by; he will learn his lessons by-and by; he will bring in wood for his mother, or go to the store for her groceries by-and-by.

A great many troubles come to him and to his friends from this bad habit of putting off his duties, and not long ago it was the cause of a very serious misfortune.

One winter morning "Bimeby's" mother said:

"Jack, I want you to sprinkle some ashes on that icy place by the back door."

"All right," said Jack, "I'll do it by-and-by."

"But you must do it right off," said Mrs. Harris; "somebody will fall there, if it is neglected."

"Yes, mother," and "Bimeby" started off to get his sled that he had lent to the boy next door, thinking that five minutes' delay could not make much difference.

Just about that time, Mamie, Jack's four-year old sister, begged to go out and play in the yard.

"It is so shiny out," she said.

So her mamma put on her little rubber boots, her warm cloak, and hood, and mittens, and let her go out with her sled.

Poor Mamie! She clambered down the steps, laughing and talking to herself. But all at once she uttered a loud cry of fright and pain. She had slipped upon "Bimeby's" ice, and broken her arm.

Then came the surgeon to torture the little soft, fair arm, and long days of weariness followed.

When Jack came in to see his poor little maimed sister, who was confined to her bed, he found his mother crying bitterly. Raising her head, after awhile, she said:

"If I could take my choice, I would rather be blind, or lame, or deformed, than to be under the control of the habit of putting off. I need not tell you that such a habit makes endless troubles for all our friends. Think of the suffering you have caused your little sister."

The tears rolled down Jack's cheeks.

"I know you do not mean to make trouble and sorrow," added the mother, "but you always will until you learn to do every duty right off."

"Bimeby" took the lesson to heart, and his friends soon changed his name to "Right-off."—Kind Words.

For Debility and Wakefulness
Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. G. G. Brewer, Baltimore, Md., says: "The best results I have seen from it, was in a young man debilitated from malarial fever. I am myself taking it at night to get sleep."

PROMPT RELIEF comes to the woman suffering from any of the painful disorders and derangements peculiar to her sex, if she accepts the help that's offered. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine so certain in its effects that it can be guaranteed. In every case, if it doesn't benefit or cure, your money is returned.

Beautiful women know how much they owe to good health. If you wish to be beautiful, keep the natural functions of the body in proper state and you'll be healthy.

A train of disorders follow the derangement of the womanly functions. For nervous prostration, excitability, fainting spells, dizziness, spasms, convulsions, or "fits," this remedy relieves and cures.

Take it when you suffer from sleeplessness, backache and bearing-down sensations, for the prompt relief it imparts.

WE HAVE recently received an abstract of the Fifth Statistical Report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which it is stated that for the year ending July, 1892, more miles of railway were constructed in North Carolina than in any other State in the Union. This statement is very significant, in view of the fact that three years ago it was held by many prominent citizens that the institution of a State Railroad Commission would tend to discourage railway construction in this State. The fact that the State mileage of railways has increased, and that the increase has been greater than in any other State, utterly destroys the force of such claims. We believe that whether the Commission has discouraged railroad magnates or not, it has been of vast advantage to the State at large, and will become more useful each year.

But aside from this significance, the statement is very encouraging to North Carolina and those who have interests in this State. It shows that the possibilities of the State are being recognized, and that the facilities for their development are being increased in a secure and lasting manner. More than this, the increase in railway construction opens up to the world a new country and brings it within the reach of civilization. Macaulay says that next to the alphabet and the printing press, the means of transportation from one locality to another is the great civilizer of man. Civilization has progressed only by travel and contact with alien influences. Greece was the most civilized of the nations of antiquity because of her favorable seaports. Just so to-day the intellectual quality of our State, as well as the development of our resources, cannot advance without the facilities of contact with the outside world, from which a two-fold advantage proceeds. Our State learns more of the world, and has a wider advantage of human progress, and the world learns more of our State, and gives its products a broader use. We are glad that this forward movement has been made, and that it is announced to the world; no greater advertisement could have been bought. North Carolina will soon cease to be called the poorest of the "Original Thirteen," and will eventually take the position which its natural wealth merits, and its possibilities promise—second to none in the Union.

THE problem of municipal government is one that has received but little attention from North Carolina people on account of the small population of our cities, but the time will come, if present influences continue, when the welfare of the nation will hang on the solution of this problem. When we reflect that one large city has more representatives in Congress, and casts a larger vote for President than our State, it will be seen that the exercise of purity in the conduct of municipal affairs is of grave importance. This will be a nation of great cities in another century, probably sooner, and they will control the destinies of the nation, and if they are controlled by "bosses" and the "machine," as New York and Brooklyn are to-day, this will be a country of "bosses," and the cost of living, dangers to to public welfare, and the burden of taxation, will be proportionately increased. The fact that city residents can be very easily reached, and that city population is to a large extent politically debased, and controllable by bribery, makes the operation of the machine a great deal easier than in sparsely settled communities. As far as municipal interests are concerned, National political platforms should have no significance. City government is entirely different from National government, and the main planks of the platform of a candidate should be low taxation, preservation of health, and good police protection. We cannot awake too soon to the importance of this problem. We cannot begin too early to encourage purity in the conduct of the affairs of our smaller cities, that whatever evil influence may have taken root, be it ever so insignificant may be promptly destroyed. For good municipal government will mean good National government before many years; the converse of which statement is equally true.

IT IS a strange way the passing generation have of depreciating the callings to which they have given their lives. As Horace Greely began to fail, he looked back on his life, that seems to many so remarkably successful and brilliant, and said that in many respects it had been a failure, and that, if he were a boy again, journalism, of which he is the recognized father, and politics, in which he was honorable, if not successful, should have no part in his existence. Edwin Booth, after spending his life in an effort to elevate the stage, died warning the rising generation against it. We think his warning salutary; but cannot understand how one who was as successful as he could turn his back upon the profession in which he attained honor, fame and wealth. In a recent great daily appeared a symposium of opinions as to the attractions of political life from the standpoint of those who had spent their lives before the people, and whose success had been most marked. With but one exception the opinions were against politics as a sphere of life. Hon. Jno. Sherman, who is the recognized leader of the Republican party, whose word has shaped the financial policy of our government for a quarter of a century, who, of all politicians to day in office may be regarded as the most successful, says: "I would not advise any young man to embark in politics." We believe the advice is good, but can't understand it, coming as it does from one who has won fame, honor, and made a great fortune in his political career. Surely, if such men as he dislike politics as a life's work, that profession must be avoided by the young man of to-day, against whom the chances are one hundred to one that he will fail of his ambition. None can count on success in political life, but we should all be politicians in the true sense of the word, as students of the science of government. None can know too well how to vote, and none can study statesmanship too much, for in the development of the forces and the means of government lies the future of the world, and the greater the progress made the better will be the condition of the people of the earth.

Look on the Fields.

BY REV. J. R. JONES, MILTON, N. C.

"Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." John 4: 35.

Jesus and his disciples were on their way from Judea to Galilee. Late one afternoon they came near to the town of Sychar, and stopped at Jacob's well; and Jesus being tired sat down on the curbing of the well to rest, while the disciples went into the town to buy something to eat. It was here that the circumstance took place that gave rise to the Scripture that I have chosen for a text this morning. While Jesus was there resting, a woman came out from the town to the well for water; and Jesus, ever ready to do good, entered into a conversation with her that resulted in her conversion. She at once returned to the town and told the news. "Come see a man," said she, "that told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ?" The news spread, and soon great crowds began to move out from the town to where Jesus was to see and to hear him. While Jesus was looking on these crowds, and thinking of their spiritual condition, and of what an opportunity there was then of preaching the gospel to them, and doing them good, his disciples were trying to get him to take something to eat. But he replied to them, "I have meat that ye know not of;" and as they seemed curious to know where he had gotten food, he said in explanation, "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. Say not ye, there are yet four months, and then cometh harvest. Behold, I say unto you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest."

This text, as you see, was an exhortation to the disciples, and so it may be to you and to me. Let us regard it as such, and heed it.

1. Let us lift up our eyes. The great trouble with many Christians is they do not do this. They go through the world with their eyes down. They seem satisfied with being interested only in the little affairs that are temporal, and immediately about themselves. The matter about which the disciples seemed mostly concerned, was of very little immediate importance, compared with the opportunity then present of accomplishing a great work; and yet it so engaged their attention that they most likely had not thought of the spiritual condition and needs of the people that were gathering about them, and of what a good time it was to preach to them. Not so with the Master. The sight of those Samaritans stirred his soul; and as he thought of what they needed, he was willing to put aside his own bodily comfort for the sake of doing them good. To preach to them at that time the Word of eternal life, was, in his estimation, of much greater importance, and to him a greater pleasure than the satisfying of his present hunger. But that was like the Saviour.

Selfishness is one of the main causes of the indifference on the part of so many of the Lord's people towards the work he has given them to do. Such Christians do not lift up their eyes. They live in self and for self. In all their thinking and planning, self occupies so large a place that there is scarcely room for the consideration of others. Their minds are so absorbed in the affairs pertaining to their own interests, that they give but little, if any, thought to the welfare of others. It seems to me that, of all people, Christians should be the most public-spirited, the most unselfish. The great central truth of the Christian religion teaches us to live for others; and the example set by the blessed Saviour, who "though rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich," impresses the lesson upon us. He lived a life of self-denial and sacrifice for others. He died that others might live. Now holding such a truth, and having such an illustration of it, how can it be otherwise expected than that Christians should have a more exalted conception of life than the low motion that we are to live only for self? Let us look at his life and learn how to live. I believe that, if it were tested, the common verdict of mankind would be, he that lives most for others lives noblest.

Of course, our temporal matters must be attended to. There are duties we owe to ourselves and families, a neglect of which is sinful. We must be "diligent in business." The more of this world's goods we have, the more we can do for the Master. But all our labor must be done with an eye single to his glory; for if it is otherwise, selfishness will grow upon us until it will become difficult for us to feel interested in any enterprise, in which self is not prominent as a beneficiary, however laudable it may be, or necessary to the interest of the country.

We are not alone in the world, others are here with us; and we are so related to them that we do violence to the common instinct of mankind to try to live alone, or in other words, selfish lives, to say nothing of the spirit of Christianity we trample under foot. Brethren, let us lift up our eyes, and think of the great work, the spiritual uplifting of man, there is to be done; and let us live less for self, and more for Christ and humanity. But as no Christian can have large, liberal views of Christian duty, unless he knows something of the amount, and need of the work to be done, we must

2. Look on the fields. Our Lord never failed to call the attention of his disciples to the magnitude of the work in which they were engaged, and to the fact that out beyond were fields to be cultivated. "The harvest," said he, "is great, and the laborers are few;" and again, "The field is the world." If we would see the work to be done, and the pressing need of earnest and faithful effort on our part, we must look out on the fields, must inform ourselves. Our duty is not done when we have read our Bibles. We might read them until we have worn them out, and still be ignorant of the spiritual condition of the various peoples of the world, and of the opportunities, as they are brought about in the providences of God, of preaching the gospel to them. These things must be learned from other sources. Whether or not this nation or that have the religion of the Bible, we learn from those who know something of them.

I said awhile ago that one cause of the indifference of the Lord's people towards his work was selfishness. Another cause is want of information. It goes without saying that one will not feel any interest in anything that he knows little or nothing about. For instance, the brother that knows nothing of the millions of China that are groping in densest darkness will not do anything for their evangelization. Now the Saviour says to you and to me: Lift up your eyes and look on the fields;—and he will not hold us guitless, if we can, and fail to do it.

But how are we to look on the fields? Well, I thank the Lord, that we are blessed with abundant facilities for doing so. Religious and missionary books, magazines, papers, &c., are numerous and in our reach. By means of these we may learn about the spiritual condition of the various nations, and their needs, and keep ourselves posted in regard to the progress of the gospel in them. They tell us what has been done, what is being done, and what needs to be done. These facilities being in our reach, and knowing how the information they give would affect us, I believe it to be the duty of Christians to use them. If we can get information that would inspire greater zeal and liberality in us, and do not do it, the fault is ours; and in the judgment we need not plead ignorance of the demands that were upon us in excuse for not having done more for the glory of God. Such excuse will not be acceptable; for he will know that we might have known of the demands but for wilful failure to use the means of looking on the fields. I regard this information of such serious necessity that I believe it to be our duty to get it even if we have to make some sacrifice to get it. The question, brethren, of taking a religious newspaper is not one of helping the editor, but of helping ourselves to the knowledge that will make us more useful as Christian workers, and a greater blessing to the world. The most of us are too poor to travel over the fields, and witness in person the work that is being done, and the work that needs to be done, information that would doubtless fire us with zeal; but in the providence of God, we can, by the expenditure of a few dollars, stay at home and still look on the fields.

Now, brethren, let us do this, and we shall be stimulated and encouraged, for

3. The fields are white to harvest. This is what the Saviour said to his disciples that afternoon when he saw the crowds of Samaritans coming out to him; and may not the same thing be said to-day? It does seem, as we read the news from all parts of the world where the Lord's people are at work, that the time has come for us to take hold of the work with renewed courage, and to push it with greater vigor than ever before. From all parts of our own country reports are full of encouragement. Tens of thousands are turning to God every year; from the highways and hedges they are coming into the fold. Mr. Moody said, in one of his talks in Chicago a few weeks ago, that he "had the conviction that this country is ripe for one of the greatest religious awakenings it has ever seen." Door after door has been opening into the heathen nations of the world, until now only one is closed against the missionary of the Cross, and that one will soon open. From all these countries, Thibet excepted, the Macedonian cry is heard, "Come over and help us." Shall we go to their help? One of the best posted men in America on missions said a few years ago: "The doors have actually been opening too fast and too soon for the churches to go in and take possession." Another competent witness says: "The heathenism of India, Burmah, China and Japan is giving way before the increasing power of Western thought and Christian civilization." A Hindoo priest said to a missionary: "Sir, Hindooism is doomed, it must go by the board, and I must have some eighty miles to ask what you are going to give us in its place." So the news from these strongholds of heathenism bids us take courage. While the reports from the Dark Continent, Africa, at present are not so encouraging as they are from other fields, yet the prospects are hopeful; and we may see great ingatherings of souls from that benighted land. The island of Cuba is coming out from under Roman Catholic domination. Only seven or eight years ago Baptists began work there, and during this time more than two thousand communicants have been gathered into seven or eight churches. One of the best and most imposing buildings in the city of Havana is a Baptist house of worship. In Mexico, another Roman Catholic country, hundreds of the people are being converted to the true faith every year. In every mission field, both Pagan and Papal, there are perishing souls ready to hear the old story of the Cross.

Brethren, wake up, and let us lift up our eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest.

"The morning light is breaking;
The darkness disappears;
The sons of earth are waking
To penitential tears.
Each breeze that sweeps the ocean
Brings tidings from afar,
Of nations in commotion,
Prepared for Zion's war."

Light-Shiners.

"Ye are the light of the world. Let your light so shine," &c.—Matt. 5: 14–16.

Well, this is just the thing that this dark world of sin and sinners is looking for to-day. They are waiting—perhaps anxiously, perhaps indifferently; still waiting, nevertheless, to see light—light from the "light-shiners." That they need to see it, and desperately, too, will not be disputed. Oh, the world needs to see the lights gleaming—lights held up high in the midst of the moral gloom that broods, intensely like a great pall over the slumbering millions of deluded souls—lights that should be seen in the daily lives of those who are, or ought to be, the real representatives of the Lord Jesus on the earth.

"Ye are the light of the world," said Jesus. Oh, where are they? Where are the "light-shiners?" How can the spiritually blind and the morally "dark ones" see "the way" at all unless the "light shiners" move forward to their rescue? Are they here? Are they there? Are they anywhere visible? Who will say, "Behold, here is one!" or, "there he goes!" If they exist at all, why not the world, that so wofully needs them, see and follow their light as the Lord requires, so that our Heavenly Father may be glorified? Can any one tell? Are there really any such lights among us now as were spoken of by the Blessed One in the text above? Were he here he could doubtless shew them, for he knoweth all hearts; but his own blessed person is away now, and we are all so short-sighted; and how can the poor, groping, sin-bound and worldly-minded ever find them? Oh, ye "light-shiners," where are ye? The world would see you, surely, if ye might be seen. Will ye not come forth? Christ says "ye are the light of the world." Who, Lord? On yonder alley corner stand a portion of "the world" in rags and dirt and crime, and they wonderingly ask, "Who, Lord? Who are they of whom you speak? Which way shall we look to find them that bear the light?"

Oh, ye "light shiners," come forth from your cosy rooms! Come forth with your "lamps trimmed and burning!" Come out into the "high-ways;" come, and let the poor miserables see and rejoice that your Lord made no mistake when he said of you "ye are the light of the world!"

But perhaps your light doesn't shine! What then? Will you not make it shine? Is there light in you at all? Do you ask how to be a "light shiner?" Perhaps you will indignantly "flare up" if we tell you. If there is light in you at all, it will be seen; and men seeing it, "will glorify your Father in heaven" thereby. Listen. Would you be a "light-shiner?" We speak to your conscience—your inner, renewed personality—your Christ-aroused, regenerated individuality.

The sweet voice within us must not be "hushed." It "will not down at your bidding;" it comes from God, warning and entreating. We profess to love him, and shall we not all obey him?

Listen again. It says to us—to you—to me—to all—if you will be a "light shiner" in the world, stand for God—stand for the right—make no compromise with wrong—be bold in "the faith," and for "the faith once delivered,"—resist the devil always—be ever on the side of the good—flee from that evil and cursed thing called drink. Let the world see, O my brother, my sister, among friends or among the foes of righteousness that you do belong to Christ—not simply to the church, but to Christ—even at the risk of being thought "singular," or "too particular," or, it may be, "fanatical," when you are assailed by the "gibes and jeers and sneers" of the so-called "society" people. Ah! then and there is the time to hear the voice of your Lord saying, "Ye are the light of the world"—"let your light so shine,"—let it be so clear, so bright, so brilliant, so unmistakable in the eyes of men, that they, seeing, may "glorify your Father in heaven." Then shall your light shine, indeed, your integrity be maintained, and your conscience be at peace. In short, be a "light-shiner" to day.

How to Read the Bible.

Remember that it is God's Word to men. In these days, when it is urged so often that the Bible must be treated like any other book, there is need of emphasizing the fact that it is not like any other book. This is the most significant fact about it, to overlook which means to misunderstand the Bible seriously, if not fatally. We do not object to the application to it of the rational critical study, such as is bestowed upon other books. But this study fails chiefly of its end when it disregards the unique character of the Bible as the Word of God. Ordinary readers, of course, do not always adopt the point of view of the critic. Yet many of them speak as if they minded that the Bible is [illegible] other books.—The Outlook.

CONSTRAINING LOVE.

Christ, in the parable of the Great Supper, mentions the fact that the lord of the feast commanded his servants to go out into the by-ways and compel men to come to his feast. This is a strong word, and carries with it the idea of constraining power. To compel men to come to the gospel feast, in the sense in which the Saviour used it in this parable, does not carry with it we think the idea of unholy force, or violence, for this would be contrary to the spirit of the gospel and the genius of Christianity; and hence, the plan resorted to by Rome and by Mohammed of using the sword as an instrument with which to propagate the faith, does not commend itself to those who have right views of Christianity.

But the words of the Saviour in the parable alluded to certainly imply persistent effort to save men, and a great deal of Christian warmth and Christian love in prosecuting that blessed work. We greatly fear that the cold formality and staid habits that have crept into many of our congregations, especially in our city churches, are operating very much against the progress of our principles and the progress of the gospel as we preach it. It is a fact that none can dispute, that as we progress in culture and refinement, there is a well-marked tendency to abandon what are regarded as the less refined habits of our ancestors. This idea is carried into our religious life and worship. If there should be seen in some of our city congregations the warmth and fervor of primitive Christianity, when a great multitude cried out "men and brethren what shall we do," there would be a great rattling of eye-glasses, and the high-toned sons of fashion would be ready to say, "that was almost a religious mob;" others might say, "it was rather a vulgar scene." It is a well-known fact that when Moody and Sankey went to England that many of the English aristocracy that condescended to attend their meetings were disposed to criticise what they saw, simply because it fell short of the destitute worship to which they were accustomed.

We thank God for giving us many men and women of wealth and culture, as well as for giving us many of the poor of this world from the by-ways and hedges; but we should carefully guard our worship from that dead formalism which would deem it a breach of decorum for a poor sinner to cry aloud in God's house for mercy, or for a happy saint to express audibly by words, or even shouts, the joy felt within. To such an extent, however, have some of our congregations drifted into this decorous formalism that the pastors when conducting protracted meetings rather guard against any special manifestation of feeling. The praying, the singing, the preaching, all are modelled after this idea, and when sinners are invited to come to Christ, God's people are not even asked to go into the congregation and persuade them to come. They say they do not believe in persuading men to come to the gospel feast, or to Christ, when he himself has commanded his servants to compel them to come. The cold indifference, or the dead formalism, that would prompt a man to stand like a statue in a meeting near his own child, his neighbor, or even a stranger whom he knows to be a sinner, without making an honest effort to bring him to Christ, is no recommendation to the discretion or piety of him who is influenced by it. There can be no doubt that the movement inaugurated by John Wesley was the result of the fact that he was weary with the formalism and fading piety of the Church Establishment in England. The fervor and noise that characterized the early Methodist meetings were but the natural outcome of his protest, and that of his followers, against the chilling quiet and formalism of the Episcopal worship.

There must always be a good deal of warmth and more or less demonstration about true religion; and we would guard our pastors and congregations carefully from being so influenced by those about them, or from false views of Christian decorum, as to allow their methods of worship to degenerate into that cold stereotyped formalism that is chilling to piety, and that hinders their churches in their growth in grace and [illegible] the Master has committed to their charge. While guarding them against the [illegible] of worship and work that would rob [illegible] people of the warmth and earnestness of [illegible] days, let us learn to cultivate that [illegible] erring and straying about us [illegible] prompt us to labor earnestly for [illegible] conversion—[illegible] formalism, [illegible] and [illegible] "to the contrary notwithstanding."

DRIFTING TO THE CITIES.

There is a very marked tendency now, especially on the part of young men, to leave the country, and the farm, and drift to the cities. More or less of this may be expected at all times; but after all, is the rapid growth of this habit best for the young men, the cities, and the country at large? America has, since its settlement, been largely an agricultural country. There seems to be something in the life of the farmer that develops a sturdy and virtuous type of manhood, and we can but hope that the day is far in the future that our people shall cease to be noted as an agricultual people. To our young men, then, who are growing weary with what they call the hum-drum of country, and especially farm life, we would say, be very slow in deciding to leave the farm for the city. All pursuits have their trials and their worries. Farm life has its trials, but after all it is the most independent life a man can live. One great advantage connected with life on the farm is found in the fact that those who lead it are generally stout and healthy. Many a pale and debilitated merchant or resident of the city would give the accumulated wealth of years for the robust health and vigor of the young man on the farm. Then, again, as we have just intimated, there are fewer temptations thrown in the way of young men in the country than in the city. To enjoy life, one must have a good appetite, must be able to sleep well at night, must have a clear conscience, and good morals. If one is a Christian his capacity to enjoy life is greatly increased. If a man has these blessings he certainly ought to be content with his lot. "Godliness with contentment is great gain." says an inspired apostle, and one can often more readily realize the force of this language in leading a life that has a tendency to promote both of these graces. If the young man, then, has anything like a fair showing, let him stick to the farm. Many have learned by sad experience the force of these words by Eugene Field:—

"I am sick of the roar of cities,
And of faces cold and strange;
I know where there is warmth of welcome,
And my yearning fancies range
Back to the old homestead
With an aching sense of pain;
But there'll be joy in the coming
When I go home again."

HENRY MARTIN TUPPER, D. D.

A genuine sadness fell over our city last Sunday morning when it was announced in the churches that Dr. Tupper, so well-known as the able President of Shaw University, was dead. His death was not unexpected, as it had been manifest for some days that he was rapidly sinking, and the nature of his malady gave no hope of recovery.

Dr. Tupper was born at Monson, Mass., April, 1831, and spent his early youth on his father's farm. His early education was limited, but mainly through his own exertions after becoming of age he matriculated at Amherst College, where he graduated in 1859, and then entered the Newton Theological institution, from which he also graduated, just at the outbreak of the war. In the same year he was ordained to the ministry and joined the Army of the Potomac, with which he served as soldier and chaplain with honor and piety. In this capacity he became acquainted with the Race, for the elevation of which he devoted the best energies of his blessed life.

In the last year of the war Dr. Tupper came to Raleigh as a missionary to the negro race, and in a few months had prepared the way for establishing Shaw University, which has since been under his watch care, and which, largely through his ability, has attained its present high plane as the foremost institution of its kind in the world. But it is needless for us to speak of this institution so well known North and South, though its grand history was wrought by his life.

Dr. Tupper's work has been peculiarly blessed. We do not hesitate to say that no other man in our knowledge could have done what he has done in our midst. Coming among a people against whom he had but lately borne arms, laboring in the interest of a then despised race, a "stranger in a strange land" indeed; his task was beset with difficulties. Yet his energy, his Christian demeanor, his honest piety, his righteous character, and his gentle godliness, at once won for him the high esteem of all sects and classes, and enabled him not only to elevate the intellect and the character of the negro, but also to do much toward healing the gaping wound of war. Truly

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mix'd in him that Nature might stand up,
And say to all the world, 'This was a man!'"

Although the efforts of Dr. Tupper's life were devoted to a special object, they were productive of general results; and in this his death is a public loss. Let us thank God that his work was so well accomplished; and may he raise up another worthy of his mantle! And let us pray him to keep and comfort his noble companion and children, who have labored with him so nobly, in this sad hour.

Dr. Tupper's funeral was preached from the chapel of Shaw University on Tuesday morning, before a large concourse of our citizens, by Dr. T. E. Skinner, after which his remains were interred on the University grounds.

It cannot be concealed that in many communities Christianity is becoming modernized. This century has seen the great economic law of division of labor developed. In making a coat, one person furnishes the material, another a machine, another operates, and another sells. This is due to the rapid growth and increasing demands of civilisation. It is necessary to the times. But Christianity cannot be lived, or Christian works carried on, by division. It is true that some are better fitted for certain paths than others. But all must join in the work. The tendency toward division of labor in Christian life is most prominent in benevolent societies. Men give to these societies, and feel that their part is done. But not so. It is very well to give freely and liberally of your means, but as Christ gave himself, so also must we give ourselves. Our money may relieve physical want, but our words alone can relieve the distress that oppresses souls. Societies can distribute alms, and relieve much physical suffering; they may bear messages, but it is so often in a cold, mechanical way that the longing of the soul is not satisfied! God demands our time as well as our money. A society can never impress the goodness of God, the power of his grace, or the tender brotherhood of his sons on suffering mankind, as the personal contact of the giver who gives in the name of Jesus. Societies have their place, but they should not encourage men to depend on their check books alone.

We were very much impressed recently by a statement from a distinguished social author that Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges were endeavoring to fill a place among men that should have been occupied by the church from the beginning. The divine commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," should be the basis of our churches. It is almost the basis of the two organizations referred to above. We know that the churches have failed to carry out this, the greatest and most sacred of all commandments addressed to Christians as to their earthly conduct; and we know if Christians obeyed that command there would be no need for other organizations than the church of Christ. Alas, how often do we call each other brother when the spirit of brotherly love is not within us! How often do Masons and Odd Fellows relieve the suffering of those whom they call brethren, when the church has failed. Surely it should not be said that members of any earthly organization are more brotherly than are the brothers of the church. The church is a divine organization, and its members are brothers under one fatherhood, and they should live in closer, warmer, and more sacred love than is possible under other conditions. Let us love our fellowman, let us relieve more earthly suffering, and save more souls. Let it not be said to our shame that secular organizations were governed by a more brotherly spirit than is our church whose very foundation is love, the law of Christ, and the hope of the world.

"Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

These words were not addressed to pastors or teachers, or any special class. They furnish the motive for your actions and mine, and for those of every child of God. It includes all Christians and all actions. How often is this command transgressed. Say you, we all sin, and sin more gravely than in transgressing this law, for we can't help it. But Christ says, "If ye love me ye will keep my word." And as we profess to love Christ, so should we make the "glory of God" the motive of our actions, whether our occupation be secular or sacred, for to the Christian all his occupations should be sacred.

But the subject is too general for a short editorial. We wish to speak of newspaper disputes between the brethren. How many of us feel that what we do is for the "glory of God" when we attack another brother, and ascribe unholy motives to his work? How many enter into disputes, forget our brotherhood, and decry another's character and ability, without considering God's kingdom? "Think on these things."

Some pastors, especially those who occupy "great" pulpits, and entertain "immense" audiences, and preach "striking" sermons each Sunday morning, are accustomed to think that God called them for no other object than to expound his word, praise his name, and prepare a certain number of discourses each week. But there is other work, far more noble and more Christ-like that we believe God bids us do. The world is full of perishing souls who can never be reached from the pulpit. The pastor must mingle with the people. It is not creditable for him to preach a gospel of brotherhood, and then refuse to relieve his brother, however low his condition. It is not creditable for him to preach the gospel of Christ, and fail to go to any extreme to save a soul. It is not creditable to claim to be a servant of Christ, and not do his works and execute his law. It was once a cross to be a Christian, but now how often is the pastor's condition better than his fellow man's! He should always be happy, for there is a divine happiness that all servants of Christ enjoy, but it does not grow from easy circumstances, a great reputation, or a large salary. Jesus knew not distinctions among men; he came to save all. His field were all unsaved mankind, and to them he gave himself. He did not stand in the pulpit and call for sinners, but went along the highways and hedges in search of the perishing. So to day the pastor's work should not be confined to the pulpit—it is well enough that he preaches twice a week—but he should seek the lost wherever they are. It is easy to give a general invitation, and announce services, but the true servant of God will not stop there, but will go to those who will not come, tell them the story of Jesus, and show them his character by their works.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

ROBESON ASSOCIATION.

This body met with the church in Maxton, N. C., but the Baptist church being too small to accommodate the Association, the Presbyterians were very kind in furnishing their church for the accommodation of the Association.

The churches were all represented, and while we did not have the large crowd which we are accustomed to see at the meeting of the Robeson Association, still we had a most harmonious session, and we feel that the Baptist interest was greatly encouraged and strengthened by this meeting.

Bro. A. R. Pittman was again elected Moderator, and this is the eleventh year he has presided over this body. It seems that no one else is thought of in this connection, and certainly no more acceptable officer could be found. Bro. Pittman is very kind and courteous to every one, with plenty of business and system to insure the successful carrying on of the work of the Association, and yet not too much of the cold and tasteless "parliamentary" to absorb the ease and sweetness of the work of the Association.

When Bro. Proctor was re-elected Secretary the Moderator remarked that he hoped he would ever be retained in this position, and no utterance in the Association met a more hearty response. Bro. Proctor is one of those sensible fellows who stands behind and yet leads the work in the Association. I contend it is a duty he owes to other Associations to make known the methods by which he has worked up this Association to its present efficiency and the harmony and apparent ease in which it does its work.

The entire membership go to the Association with no other thought than that we are to go ahead of what we did last year. This year the increase in State Missions was most gratifying. Notwithstanding the hard times, all the churches gave much more to this object than heretofore.

All the objects were well discussed, and what we were glad to see was that these discussions were participated in largely by the brethren of the Association. We hope to see this prevail more and more in all our Associations. The appointing of committees to write these reports a year in advance will do much to bring about this thing. Then the writers of the reports will study the subjects, and will feel that they have something to say which will interest the Association.

Nobody can dispense better hospitality nor more of it in the same length of time than an old-fashioned Scotchman, and by the way, a lot of them are getting to be Baptists. We enjoyed our stay greatly, did well for the Recorder, and now we are off to the Little River, which meets at Mt. Tabor church in Harnett county. J. C. C.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....The Virginia State Convention was in session last week.

....We thank Bro. A. Cree for esteemed favors during last week.

....A $3,000 Baptist church is in course of erection at Ramseur, N. C.

....Rev. E. F. Jones of Gastonia baptized four converts on the 5th inst., says the Gazette.

....Rev. Charles Durham has received a call to the pastorate of the church at Bryson City, Tenn.

....Rev. J. L. Bennett was engaged in a series of meetings at Gum Springs, Anson county, last week.

....Rev. D. B. Nelson has changed his address from Biltmore, N. C., to Yale, Henderson county, N. C.

....If you fail to get the Recorder, let us know, and we will do all that is possible to correct the mistake.

....Rev. W. H. H. Lawhon preached his farewell sermon to the church at Pee Dee, near Wadesboro, on the 5th.

....Rev. W. J. Fulford has tendered his resignation as pastor at Maxton. The church has refused to accept it.

....Rev. W. T. Jones, the new pastor of the Second church, Goldsboro, has arrived and taken charge, says the Headlight.

....We are glad to learn that the Bible Reader, which lately suspended, will be revived in Richmond by Rev. E. L. Pell.

....Rev. J. K. Howell will take charge of the Rocky Mount pastorate on the 26th inst. May God bless Bro. Howell's ministry here as he has elsewhere.

....Revs. E. P. Ellington and W. H. Wilson of Madison closed a revival at Somerfield last week in which there were twelve professions of conversion.

....We have received a copy of a book entitled "Jesus Christ Himself: The Sample, Source and Substance of Salvation," by D. C. Taylor, Tyrone, Pa.

....The Foreign Mission Board, Boston, of the Congregational church, closed their fiscal year with a debt of $88,000 which has since increased to considerably over $100,000.

....Rev. Frank Dixon, the youngest of the three brothers who are Baptist preachers, is to be the stated supply of the Centennial Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Watchman.

....Rev. W. V. Savage recently conducted a good meeting in his church at Columbia, Tyrrell county. It is stated that Bro. Savage is the only Baptist preacher in that county.

....Rev. W. J. Wyatt writes: "I now have four churches, and our work is in good condition. We have baptized fifty-three this year, and expect more in the near future."

....It is stated that in the recent revival conducted by Rev. J. L. White of Asheville, at Knoxville, Tenn., there were more than two hundred professions—a glorious outpouring of the Spirit, indeed.

....We regret to learn that Miss Fannie E. Heck, President of the Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, has been quite sick for the last ten days. Our readers will be glad to learn that she is now recovering.

....Rev. Archibald Cree baptized two candidates at Jackson on the 6th as a result of a recent meeting. Others are awaiting baptism. We are pleased to learn that this church has called Bro. Cree for another year.

....Rev. M. L. Kesler and family removed from Laurinburg to Red Springs on the 7th inst. Bro. Kesler is pastor of the church at each of these places, and we are glad to learn that he is meeting with great success.

....Bro. N. P. Stallings publishes an earnest and worthy appeal in another column. He is without a co laborer in his county, and deserves help. He says: "I baptize a Methodist brother occasionally, and wish I could baptize all of them."

....Rev. J. C. Crumpler writes: "We expect to begin a meeting at Mt. Holly on the 12th, and will have the assistance of Bro. L. R. Carroll. I now have care of Mt. Holly, Myrtle Hill and Olivet churches. Had I one more, my full time would be occupied."

....Dr. N. B. Cobb has been called to the pastorate of the church at Pittsboro for another year. The Doctor says this is the best church for its size in the State, and that each month he finds some improvement in the church, both spiritually and structurally.

....Rev. F. H. Jones, a Baptist minister from Chatham, Va., will preach at the following places on dates named: Eaton's church, Thursday, November 23d; Farmington, Friday, 24th; Jerusalem, Saturday, 25th; Mocksville, Sunday morning and night of the 26th.—Davie Times.

....We are grateful to brethren W. E. Johnson and G. O. Wilhoit for representing the claims of the Recorder at the South River and Stanly Associations. It is needless to say that these brethren were successful. With such friends all over the State, our usefulness would be unlimited.

....It is very important that those who intend attending our Convention send their names to the committee at Elizabeth City immediately. The brethren desire to know just how large a delegation they shall have to entertain, so that no one will be inconvenienced. Don't wait longer, but let brethren Aydlett and Ward have your names immediately.

....Dr. J. A. Mundy has resigned the pastorate of the church at Greenville, S. C., and has prevailed on his charge to accept his resignation. This pastorate has been occupied by Dr. Mundy fourteen years, and his people were very loth to part with him. It is stated that Dr. Mundy has received two calls, one to Wilson, N. C., and another to some point in Virginia. We hope our State may be so fortunate as to secure Brother Mundy.

....We regret to chronicle the death of Bro. A. L. Ferrall, which occurred suddenly on the 9th inst. Bro. Ferrall had been a resident of Raleigh for many years, and his life was that of a good citizen and faithful servant of God. As city health inspector he proved an exemplary officer, both in the character and ability of his work. He was forty nine years old at the time of his death, and leaves a wife and several children, to whom we extend our warmest sympathy in [illegible] bereavement.

....That the power of prayer and the gospel pulpit is not declining is shown by the wonderful progress of Dr. Conwell's church in Philadelphia. In ten years the membership of this church has increased from 90 to 2,200, and Dr. Conwell says it is due to the simple gospel and faithful prayer.

....Brethren and sisters, if there is any denominational news in your neighborhood, let us have it before it gets out of date. The people look to the RECORDER for Baptist news in North Carolina, and we are determined they shall not look in vain. "What thou seest, write and send unto the churches."

....Rev. O. L. Stringfield, the worthy agent of the Baptist Female University, has accepted the pastorate of the Third Baptist church of this city, and will locate his family here. We welcome Bro. Stringfield to our city, and congratulate the Third church on their admirable selection.

....The many friends of Brother W. C. Powell will be glad to know that he has been elected Vice-President of the Board of Trade of the city of Savannah, Ga. Bro. Powell has proved himself a wise and successful business man, and no better selection could have been made by his Georgia friends.

....Dr. Cobb is now ready to take orders for the Baptist Almanac, which promises to be better and more valuable than ever this year. It should be by every Baptist fireside. Pastors of churches will do well to order clubs for their charges, and thus save money. A prospectus of the contents will appear in our next issue.

....We were very glad to see Dr. J. J. Hall of Norfolk in our city last week. Dr. Hall's success in Norfolk is nothing less than that which characterized his work in Raleigh. In the short time that he has occupied the Park Avenue pastorate his church membership and attendance has shown a marked increase.

....The October number of the Seminary Magazine is out. In our opinion it is better than usual, though always good, and creditable to the Seminary. This number contains articles from Drs. Broadus and Eaton. It is of value to all ministers. We note that Bro. Junius W. Millard, a North Carolinian, and a Wake Forest boy, is one of the editors.

....We were very glad to see Pastor Gwaltney and Professor Lanneau of Wake Forest in our office last week. Both report the College in excellent condition. Prof. Lanneau delivered a lecture before the students of the College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts of this city on the evening of the 10th. We have heard the lecture very highly spoken of.

....We have received a memorial sketch of Rev. Cornelius Tyree, D. D., who died Dec. 23d, 1891, by Rev. J. B. Taylor, D. D., pastor of the Baptist church at Salem, Va. The memorial is well written, neatly printed, and is a credit to its author, and an honor to its distinguished subject. It can be obtained at fifteen cents per copy from W. R. Whitescarver, Salem, Va.

....Lady Somerset, the great leader of the W. C. T. U., said in a recent sermon that when Christ announced his divine mission it was as an anarchist. The people of Chicago must have enjoyed this aid and comfort to the anarchists. Imagine an anarchist saying, "If any man smite thee on the one cheek turn to him the other also," and "Render unto Cæsar the things that be Cæsar's."—Western Recorder.

....Rev. N. S. Jones writes from Salisbury: "We have just closed a very interesting meeting. Bro. J. T. Jenkins of Wilmington did the preaching, and I found him a zealous worker for the Master. Ten were baptized on the 8th." We rejoice with Bro. Jones that the cause is gaining in this section, and that the day does not seem distant when many strong churches may be organized all through the "hill country."

....The next meeting of the Convention should be one of interest to all Baptists. While there are no severe internal discords, the Convention has many important questions before it. We may expect to hear something very interesting when the subject of education is brought up, and incidentally the question of State education. The question of ministerial education just at present deserves our attention, and we hope the Convention may take steps toward relieving the distress of the Board. Of course the subject of Foreign Missions will be ably discussed, and may be of more than ordinary interest.

....It is necessary to the progress of our denomination that a full delegation of our brethren and sisters be present at the Convention, and there is no reason why every part of the State should not be represented. Railroad rates are reduced, and accommodations at Elizabeth City are ample. It will not cost a pastor much to spend the week at the Convention, and his presence will be of vast benefit to himself and the denomination; and if his salary is poor, his church should be glad to raise the money for him. Let us show that hard times are not influencing our spiritual life, however badly business is affected.

....Dr. C. S. Blackwell writes from the Convention church: "Our Sunday-school annex will be finished by the time the Convention gets here. It has been a great undertaking this hard money year to build the annex, but we were into it before the crash came, and have gone through, as this church always does everything it undertakes." The brethren and sisters of Elizabeth City are making great preparations, and will be fully able to accommodate a great assemblage at the Convention. We hope to see the largest and most representative body that has ever assembled in the interests of the denomination. Churches, send your pastors. They will preach better for it, and the denomination will be strengthened by their presence.

N. C. Baptist Historical Society.

Dear Recorder:—The annual meeting of the N. C. Baptist Historical Society shall be held during the Convention period, and it should excite some interest among our brethren. Who will care for our history, if not we Baptists ourselves? Is it not true that not much may be expected of the future of a people who do not cherish and revere their past? We all find in this principle or sentiment the finest justification of our Southern memorial days. Let it not be said of this Society of ours, Stat nominis umbra—it stands the mere shadow of a name!

We are anticipating with pleasure the papers or addresses of brethren Cobb and Alderman on subjects to which they have devoted special duty, and the opportunity is now offered us to hear Prof. W. H. Whitsitt of our Theological Seminary on a subject which he has elaborated with rare skill and power—Baptist Sects in America. I think that we should make a good place in our program and in our minds for such instructive and inspiring discussions. Hasn't the time come for more of special studies in church history and denominational life by our pastors and people? Whatever objections many of us conscientiously entertain as to the principle and methods on which the young people's "societies" in some of our churches are conducted, would it not be well to adopt one of their plans, viz., the Christian Culture Course, and set our bright young Baptists at hunting up the facts and becoming inspired about "The Dawn of Christianity" as the plan is suggested in the paper called The Young People's Baptist Union—and then to find the thoughtful pastor reviewing them once a month on these studies and stirring their faith and their imagination as he shows them how to "follow those who inherit the promises"? Such a course might serve to correct that vague or false conception of early Christianity that misstatement of Baptist views and practices so often found in so-called church histories and so well adapted to color and pervert the thoughts of our children as they form their ideals and set up their heroes.

THOS. HUME.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Real Condition of the Country.

Rev. J. A. Stradley of Oxford, N. C., is one of the most judicious and successful country pastors among the Baptists of this State. In a private letter to me, November 7th, he writes some things which the public ought to know, and the knowledge of the facts he states ought to stir every Baptist in the State to do their best just at this time for State Missions. Bro. Stradley preaches at the only mission point in the Flat River Association, and for his work there one fourth of his time, the Board appropriated fifty dollars this year. But read what he says:

"Well, I have never seen such times in this section in money matters. The farmers have as much, or more, to eat for man and beast than for a long time before; but they have never been so scarce of money. The tobacco crop of this section will not pay the cost of production. The bulk of it is selling at from one to five dollars per hundred. I cannot collect money for any object. I tried a collection last Sunday for Ministerial Education and got two dollars by giving seventy-five cents of it myself. I had aimed to take extra collections for State Missions, but the brethren have no money. I have raised from my four churches this year up to date only one hundred and five dollars.

I am sorry about the debt on the State Mission work. I am in debt, and am harder pressed than I have been since I have been in the ministry; but I will donate twenty-five dollars of my salary to the Board. I cannot go to the Convention for lack of means to pay my way and to get clothing. I have not heard of any one going from this section, except, perhaps one or two from Oxford. They say they can't pay their way. I hope the eastern part of the State will help out the Board, as both cotton and tobacco in that section are selling better. I am sorry to have to write such a gloomy letter, but it is best to look facts in the face. You may know, too, why so little money is coming up from this section for missions. I hope times will brighten up soon."

I beg Bro. Stradly's pardon for giving the above from a private letter (not designed for publication) to the public, and I beg the pastors, churches, and each individual member to note the facts stated by this self-sacrificing Baptist preacher—one of the missionaries of our Board—and then to send at once to J. D. Boushall something, whatever God shall put it into your heart to do, for State Missions. Then unite with me in earnest prayer to God to put it in the hearts of our people to aid this work just at this time. You will see that I have asked that you give something to this work before you begin to pray to God to put it into the hearts of others to aid it. I have acted according to this advice. I thought I had given all it was possible to give this year, and like Bro. Stradly, I have been harder pressed this year than I have been since I entered the ministry; but when I had received and read and re-read his letter, I found some way to add ten dollars to State Missions, and by the help of the Lord I will add something more for this work before December 1, 1893.

We ought not to be willing to make it necessary for the missionaries in the State department of our work to make greater sacrifices to give the gospel to the people of North Carolina than we are willing to make to aid them in doing this work. Brethren, one and all, will you not help State Missions with an extra donation?

Brother Tuttle on His New Field.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—To day, Thursday, I write to say I am here at Roberdel, Richmond county, having come hither "through many dangers, toils and snares." Well, apart from those common to life and travel by rail, I was subjected to some that were—to me, at least—exceptional. Coming by the Wilson Short Cut to Pembroke, I struck the crowd from below returning from the Fayetteville Fair, and to tell it very mildly, it was peculiarly a Fair crowd. To be sure, they meant no harm to anybody, only they were having a "high time," and so, never having been in such a company before, my wife and daughter were very much frightened. We reached Rockingham about 12 o'clock Friday night, where we stopped over till about 11 o'clock a. m. Saturday, when Bro. Dockery sent us out to the place selected for our future home—Roberdel.

This is simply a factory village, there being but five or six families, I am told, not in one way or another connected with the factory. It is central to my work, and so will be most convenient for me, making us mutually available and helpful. There are two churches here, Baptist and Methodist, the latter being much the stronger. How and why this is so I may be able to tell you later on—certain it is there is some good reason for it. So far, at least, I am not disposed to blame the Methodists for it—indeed, I am not yet blaming anybody.

The climate is simply superb, and I am already entertaining visions of when I, too, shall be a "big man"—in avoirdupois, of course, and when my brethren of smaller proportions may covet like corporeal attainments, let them come and sojourn here awhile. My wife and children, too, are simply luxuriating in this milder climate and change of scenery, as also the bill of fare provided by our landlord. We are boarding temporarily till our house is ready, and if our host finds no occasion for regret, we shall be glad of this little freedom from the cares and responsibilities of housekeeping, as we are being provided for better and cheaper than we could do for ourselves in a new home. I think I shall like the field, and can see no reason now why I may not find it pleasant to abide here for a season at least. To be sure, every new field is an experiment, as there will be differences in material and environment; but with the Lord's blessing and the help of the brethren, I look hopefully to the work before me. Brethren from the churches have kindly conveyed my household goods over from Rockingham, and we are expecting to set up for ourselves inside the next month.

When I shall have made my round with the churches and am fixed in my own home, then I shall be able to write more advisedly concerning matters hereabouts. And now, aside from painful regrets at leaving loved ones with brethren and friends not a few, true and tried, whom to part from is a real affliction, I am truly glad to be here; and so shall hope to bear my full part in creating other friendships and ties which, though dividing, shall not diminish those already formed. Sincerely yours.

J. F. TUTTLE

Roberdel, Nov. 9, 1893.

The Meeting at Marion.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—To God be all the praise for a wonderful outpouring of his Spirit upon the church and people of Marion, as has been witnessed and enjoyed for the past three weeks. I closed a meeting in my church here last night with apparently as much interest as at any time during its progress. Quite a number were up for prayer, and the church is in better condition than at any time since my connection with it. The church extended the hand of fellowship to sixteen on yesterday morning, after which we celebrated the ordinance of the Lord's supper. Ah, my brother, it was a precious season to me and I believe to all present.

I am expecting yet others to follow as results of the meeting. Bro. C. B. Justice of Rutherfordton was with me half of the time and did the best preaching of his life in my hearing: he certainly is a Bible preacher—deals in nothing but the "Old, Old Story." The pastors of the other denominations here aided me with great earnestness. As for myself I entered the meeting sick, scarcely able to walk, but felt better from day to day, until I now believe I am in better condition than at any time since I have been here. I very much fear, though, I shall not be able for many reasons to attend our State Convention this time.

Success to the RECORDER. I hope to get some new subscribers among my new members.

Brother and brethren, pray that the Lord may do still greater things for us here.

Your brother in Christ,

M. M. LANDRUM.

Seminary Notes.

Last week was one of unusual interest at the Seminary. At the regular meeting of our Missionary Society last Wednesday morning, Bro. R. T. Bryan gave us a very interesting discourse on the mission work in China. Thursday evening he lectured to the students on "John Chinaman." He also lectured at Broadway and at Walnut Street churches. All of Bro. Bryan's lectures were thoroughly enjoyed, and he made many warm friends at the Seminary.

Brethren D. W. Herring, W. R. Crocker and T. L. Blalock bade us farewell Friday evening. They will be joined by Bro. F. M. Royall at Chicago. From thence they go to Van Couver where they expect to embark for China, November 13, and after a voyage of seventeen days reach Shanghai. These brethren carry with them the prayers and sympathies of many loving friends at the Seminary.

Norton Hall, our handsome new building, was formally opened in the afternoon of November 1. Dr. Henry McDonald of Atlanta, Ga., made the opening address, briefly outlining the history of the institution, its trials and its triumphs. Mr. Geo. W. Norton, as representative of the Norton family to whose liberality we are indebted for the building, then delivered this valuable piece of property (over $60,000) to the Board of Trustees. Dr. F. H. Kerfoot made the speech of acceptance. Then Dr. Broadus, with great force and tenderness, made the closing address. Thus another mile post in the history of the Seminary was passed. We now have the best equipped Theological Seminary on the continent, and possibly, in the world. With her handsome endowment of over $400,000, with her 250 students hailing from twenty-seven States and from several foreign countries, Southern Baptists should feel a just pride in their hearty support. Especially should North Carolina feel a deep interest in the Seminary.

Dr. A. T. Robertson, from North Carolina is Professor of Biblical Instruction, and Associate Professor of Interpretation of the New Testament. Bro. W. R. Cullom, a North Carolinian, is tutor of Systematic Theology, Bro. J. G. Blalock, a "tar heel," is one of the directors of the gymnasium, and Bro. J. S. Corpening, another North Carolinian, has charge of the coal fund. Does this mean anything? Surely North Carolina ought to show her appreciation of the honor paid her sons by sending a much larger delegation than she has at present. We now number fifteen. It is to be hoped, however, that what we lack in quantity we may make up in quality.

By request, Bro. R. W. Spilman repeated his popular lecture, "Laugh and Grow Fat" to quite an appreciative audience at Norton Hall last Tuesday evening. Bro. Spilman delivered this lecture several times in the city last spring, and has won for himself an enviable reputation as a humorist lecturer. For producing side aches, he excels the world famed humorist, Robert J. Burdett, who delivered his "Rise and Fall of the Moustache," in Broadway church last Monday night.

Brethren C. J. Thompson, J. W. Millard and W. R. Cullom have good pastorates in the country, and are doing a noble work.

It is to be hoped that North Carolina will call these sons of her's back to her confines when they have completed their course at the Seminary. Bro. James I. Kendrick will be the only full graduate this year from North Carolina. Bro. Kendrick has taken a high stand at the Seminary, and we predict for him good success in the great work which lies before him.

*Basing rate including transfer.

Tickets may be be sold through to Elizabeth City and return at rates made by adding $8.00 to the rates quoted to Norfolk, Va.

R. D. CARPENTER, Com'r R.

The Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company will sell round trip tickets from Norfolk to Elizabeth City for $2.50.

For all points not stated, Tariff No. 2 will govern the price. It is a one and one-third rate.

A SPECIAL TRAIN.

We have arranged with the Seaboard Air Line to run a special train, starting from Raleigh at 8:30 a. m. on Thursday and make connection with the train of the Norfolk and Southern road at Norfolk, Va., at 4.10 p. m., which will put us in Elizabeth City at about 6 p. m. All delegates and visitors reaching Raleigh by 8 a. m. Thursday morning, Dec. 7th, will find this the most direct and expeditious of all the routes.

A through special car will leave Charlotte on the night of Dec. 6th, at 9:45, to be attached to the special train at Raleigh on Thursday morning, the 7th.

BY STEAMER FROM NEWBERN.

The Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company offer a very nice trip by steamer from Newbern, N. C., and I am authorized to publish the following rates by Mr. H. C. Hudgins, General Passenger Agent:

From Newbern, $3.50; Wilmington, $7.00; Goldsboro, $6 50; Kinston, $5.25.

If through tickets to Elizabeth City are not issued by the A. & N. C. R. R. and R. & D. R. R., they will sell special round trip tickets to Newbern, and the fare by the boat is $3.50, which includes state-room berth; meals extra. We have a fine boat on the route, and would like to carry some of your people.

Steamer leaves Newbern on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Will wait for train on the A. & N. C. R. R. on Wednesday and Saturday.

If further information is desired or accommodations needed, I shall be glad to do all in my power to furnish the same.

N. B. BROUGHTON,

Sec. N. C. Bap. State Convention.

REDUCED RATES BY R. & D. RAILROAD.

The Richmond & Danville Railroad will sell reduced-rate tickets from all points on its lines in North Carolina to Danville, Va., Raleigh, Selma or Goldsboro, N. C., and return. Through tickets will also be on sale at the following points at rates named, via Goldsboro, Newbern and steamer "Neuse" to Elizabeth City and return:

Hot Springs, $20.90; Asheville, 19.30; Marion, 17.70; Morganton, 16 90; Hickory, 16.10; Lenoir, 16 90; Newton, 16.70; Statesville, 14.70; Lincolnton, 17:10; Charlotte, 15.50; Concord, 14.70; Salisbury, 15.95; Lexington, 13 30; High Point, 13.20; Asheboro, 13.30; Danville, 11 20; Greensboro, 11 20; Reidsville, 11 20; Wilkesboro, 15.90; Winston-Salem, 13.00; Burlington, 11.30; Hillsboro, 10.75; Chapel Hill, 10.95; Oxford, 9.85; Henderson, 9 85; Durham, 9 85; Raleigh, 9.00; Selma, 7.55.

Tickets on sale Dec. 4th to 7th, inclusive: limited to Dec. 16th.

The steamer "Neuse" leaves Newbern Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; returning, leaves Elizabeth City Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On Wednesday and Friday, Dec. 6th and 8th, this steamer will be held at Newbern until arrival of Atlantic & North Carolina R. R., train leaving Goldsboro 3 30 p. m., which is due in Newbern at 6.00 p. m., thus putting passengers in Elizabeth City the following morning at 9.00 o'clock. Returning, the "Neuse" leaves Elizabeth City at 6.00 p. m. on days above named and arrives in Newbern the following morning in time to connect with Atlantic & North Carolina R. R. train leaving Newbern at 9.00 a. m., and arriving in Goldsboro 11:40 a. m., thus making connection in each direction at Goldsboro with Richmond & Danville, N. C. Division, trains Nos. 9 and 10.

This steamer has state room accommodations for sixty people. Meals and state-rooms will be furnished at slight additional cost. State-rooms can be reserved on application to Dr. Chas. L. Hopkins, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C., or Mr. H. W. Miller, P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

NOTICE TO DELEGATES AND REPRESENTATIVES.

All delegates and representatives of the different Boards who will attend the next session of this body to be held in Elizabeth City, N. C., Dec. 7th next, are earnestly requested to send their names at once to the Secretary of the Committee on Hospitality.

The Committee will only provide and promise homes for those who send us their names as requested by Dec. 1st.

All lady delegates to the Woman's Auxiliary Convention will send their names to Mrs. E. F. Aydlett by Dec. 1st, and they will be provided with homes.

The Sandy Association.

This body convened with the church at Albemarle, November 3. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. G. W. Henderson, "Theme—Power of Faith." Prof. E. F. Eddins was chosen Moderator and E. D. Tuter, Clerk. The reading of the letters disclosed the fact that some of the churches had not met their last year's pledges. The committee in regard to the action of the Gold Hill church with Rev. J. C. Deany reported unfavorably for the church, which we think will be a warning to churches hereafter as to how they deal with their ministers. Rev. G. O. Wilhoit represented State Missions and the BIBLICAL RECORDER; while the mission reports were discussed in a way that would have stirred the masses if they could but have heard it. Rev. A. W. Crabtree preached Thursday night just like he did not care whether he pleased anybody but God. Friday night a mass meeting was held in the interest of the Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville. J. H. Mills addressed the audience as follows: First he preached us a short sermon from that old backwoods text of John the Baptist, "The Kingdom of Heaven is at Hand," and then told us about the Orphanage and laid the foundation for a more systematic way of contributing to the Orphanage. Saturday we had a sermon from J. F. Hodge and Sunday at 11 a. m. the missionary sermon by Rev. G. O. Wilhoit to a large attentive audience.

Thus closed another session of the Sandy Association. Respectfully,

The Roanoke Baptist Association convenes at Conway Dec. 7-11.

Brief History of Lower Creek Church.

Lower Creek church is situated on Lower creek, two miles east of Lenoir in Caldwell county, in what is known locally as "Powell Town," because so many families by the name of Powell live in the neighborhood of the church.

This church was constituted in 1826, and has since sent out eight colonies or churches as follows: Liberty, Fleming's Chapel, Pisgah, McCall's Chapel, Lenoir, Zack's Fork, Blair's Fork and Tabernacle, or rather, the Tabernacle went off. It is a Second Advent church, and was rent off by Rev. G. D. Sherrill under the influence of a Second-Advent preacher by the name of Cargile, but most of the members constituting the Tabernacle church were members of Lower Creek, and were excluded for heresy. Many of them were good men and women, a few of whom have returned to the mother church.

Of the eight churches going out from Lower Creek, two have dissolved, Liberty and McCall's Chapel.

This church has sent out eleven preachers as follows: Phillip Powell, Nathan Clark, J. B. Powell, Moses Smith, Roby Powell, Isaac Smith, G. D. Sherrill, G. W. Greene, F. P. Clark, Sidney Heffner and Henry Powell.

The following are some of the brethren who have served Lower Creek as pastors: Benjamin Beach, J. B. Powell for about twenty-five years, Swain Reed, — Holesclaw, J. B. Pool, W. A. Pool and now the writer. I think others have served the church, but at this time I have no means of ascertaining the names.

The present membership of the church is about 140.

Of the ministers going out from Lower Creek, Bro. G. W. Greene is in China, and has many devoted friends in the church, of whom two are his sisters. Most of the other ministers have gone to their reward.

Ordination.

On Oct. 29th, 1893, at Wake Forest, N. C., a presbytery appointed by the Wake Forest Baptist church met, and after a satisfactory examination of Bro. M. P. Davis of Yadkin county, N. C., voted unanimously to set him apart to the gospel ministry.

The ordination services were held on Sunday evening, Oct. 30: Sermon by Rev. W. R. Gwaltney; prayer, by Rev. W. H Edwards; charge, by Dr. W. B. Royall; welcome, by Dr. C. E Taylor, and benediction by Rev. M. P. Davis.

Work.

Work is a law of human life. Exertion of mind and body is necessary to development. Flabby muscle and brain are penalties of idleness. Comparatively few do not need to work to live, and they are to be pitied. They "kill time" with frivolous amusements or sinful and enervating pleasures, which alternate with ennui and disgust with life. Work is a blessing. It keeps people out of the mischief which Satan finds for idle hands to do. It furnishes preoccupation and diversion in disappointment and trouble. It is the best way to throw off a crushing burden of sorrow.

Christian work is necessary to the maintenance of the Christian life. An idle Christian is an anomaly and a contradiction. God the Father works. Christ works. The Holy Spirit works. We must work or die spiritually. To all Christians Christ says, "Go work to-day in my vineyard." A working church is the appointed agency for the salvation of the world. A church that is not instrumental in saving anybody has no right to the name. Call it social club, and entertainment society—anything you will except a church of God.

Many people seem to think that when the work of repentance and conversion is over and they have joined the church little remains to be done but to sing hymns, enjoy sermons, attend social meetings, tell their experience, and have an easy time. They do not have a true conception of the facts that the church is a place for work, and that its members are an association of workers. They forget that conversion is only the beginning of a life of religious activity; that the best use of the social meeting is to devise ways and means for promoting the work of the Lord; and that a religious experience that is not kept fresh and vigorous by daily work for the Master becomes stale, flat and unprofitable, both to the hearer and the teller. We ought to have a superlatively joyful Christian experience. The service of God is not irksome. His commandments are not grievous. But it is in keeping them, not in neglecting them, that there is great reward.

Work is the condition of spiritual growth. As well might you expect a boy to grow tall and strong by lying on his back in his bed, as to suppose a Christian can grow in grace by watching his own spiritual state and doing nothing for the salvation of others. "Exercise thyself unto godliness." Do something. Do all you can. Help and bless others. Then you will grow strong. One of the pass-words of a great society is, "Work your way." It is a good motto for every young Christian.

The salvation of the world depends upon the activity of Christians. It is work under the sun. To be [illegible] is saving one soul is a greater [illegible] than to win fame, wealth or [illegible] converteth a sinner from [illegible] way shall save a soul from [illegible] work we are "laborers together [illegible] What an exalted fellowship! What a glorious privilege! Work, then, with joy. Abound in the work of the Lord, "forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." Be up and at it now. "The night cometh when no man can work."—Epworth Herald.

What the Deacon Said.

"Yes," said the deacon, "there is many a man who calls himself honest who's never so much as inquired what amount of debts heaven's books are going to show against him. I've learned that. There were years in my life when I hardly gave a cent to the Lord without begrudging it, and I've wondered since what I'd ever have talked about if I'd gone to heaven in those days, for I couldn't talk about anything but bargains and money-getting here, and those wouldn't have been suitable subjects up yonder.

"Well, in those years I was telling you about, it was dreadful how I cheated the Lord out of his due. Once in a while I paid a little to our church, but I didn't give a cent to anything else. Foreign Mission Sabbath was my rheumatiz day, reg'lar, and I didn't go to church. Home Mission day was headache with me allers, and I stayed away from the meetin'. Bible Society day I'd generally got a touch of neuralgia, so I didn't feel like goin' out, and I stayed home. Tract Society day I'd begin to be afraid I was goin' to be deaf, and I oughtn't to be out in the wind, so I stayed in doors; and on the Sabbath for helping the Publication Society, like as not my corns were unusually troublesome, and I didn't feel able to get out.

"Wife wanted to take a religious paper once, but I wouldn't hear to it. Told her that was nonsense. I didn't believe any of the apostles took religious papers. The Bible was enough for them, and it ought to be enough for other folks.

"And yet I never thought I wasn't doing right. I'd come into it sort of gradual, and I didn't think much about giving anyhow, except as a sort of losing business.

"Well, my little Nannie was about eight years old then; and I was dreadful proud of her, for she was a smart little thing. One Sabbath night we were sitting by the fire, and Nannie'd been saying her catechism, and by and by she got kind of quiet and sober, and all of sudden she turned to me and said: 'Papa will we have to pay rent in heaven?'

"'What?' says I, lookin' down at her kind of astonished like.

"'Will we have to pay rent in heaven?' says she again.

"'Why, no,' says I. 'What made you think that?'

"Well, I couldn't get out of her for a time what she did mean. Nannie didn't know much about rent, anyway, for we'd never had to pay any livin' in our own house. But at last I found out that she had heard some men talking about me, and one of them said, 'Well, he's bound to be awful poor in the next world, I reckon. There ain't much of his riches laid up in heaven.' And as the only real poor folks that Nannie had ever known were some folks down at the village who had been turned out of doors because they couldn't pay their rent, that's what put into Nannie's head that maybe I'd have to pay rent in heaven.

"Well, wife went on and talked to Nannie, and explained to her about the many 'mansions' in our 'Father's house,' you know, but I didn't listen much; I was mad to think Seth Brown dared to talk about me in that way right before Nannie, too.

"I fixed up some pretty bitter things to say to Seth the next time I met him, and I wasn't sorry to see him next day, in his cart. I began at him right off. He listened to everything I sputtered out, and then he said:

"'Well, deacon, if you think the bank of heaven's got anything in it for you, I'm glad of it; but I've never seen you makin' any deposits,' and then drove off.

"Well, I walked over to my blackberry patch and sat down and thought, and the more I thought the worse I felt. I was angry at first, but I got cooler, and I thought of Foreign Mission Sabbath and the rheumatiz, and Home Mission Sabbath and the headache, and the Bible Society day and the neuralgia, and the tract day and the corns, till it just seemed to me I couldn't stand it any longer; and I knelt down there in the blackberry patch and said: 'Oh, Lord, I've been a stingy man if there ever was one, and if ever I do get to heaven I deserve to pay rent sure enough. Help me to give myself, and whatever I've got, back to thee.'

"And I believe he's helped me ever since. 'Twas pretty hard work at first getting to giving. I did feel pretty sore over that first dollar I slipped into the collection plate, but I've learned better now; and I mean to keep on giving 'as unto the Lord' till I go to that heaven where Nannie's been these twenty years.—Congregationalist.

Only Ten and Twenty Cents.

The Young Reaper published by the American Baptist Publication Society for thirty-five years, a favorite with our juveniles from ten years old and upwards, is one of the best papers issued for the young. One good evidence of its worth is that it has a circulation of a quarter of a million. If, as is probably the case, each copy has four or five readers (for they all go into families), then The Young Reaper is read every two weeks by fully a million of children. What a mighty agent for good is this single publication! Baptist Sunday-schools like to take his paper. The price for such a paper is very low, only 10 cents monthly and 20 cents semi-monthly per copy for one year.

Wisdom is the name God gives to religion, so telling the world what it was not aware of, and will hardly yet believe, that the great things which so engross the desires and designs both of the noble and the ignoble sort of mankind are to be found in religion, viz., wisdom and pleasure; and that the former is the direct way to the latter, as religion is to both.—South.

BAPTIST LESSON HELPS.

TWO SERIES FOR 1894.

THE OLD SERIES.—Improved, Enlarged, Unsurpassed.
THE NEW SERIES.—Fully up to the times.

THE OLD. None of the old and popular helps on the International Series—six helps, six grades—will be dropped out. They will be better than ever.

THE NEW. Some prefer the Inductive plan of study. The Society will therefore give a choice, by publishing

Junior Inductive Studies and Senior Inductive Studies, taking up a chronological life of Christ.

PRIMARY CLASSES.

In addition to the present Primary Quarterly on the International Lessons by Mrs. M. G. Kennedy, which will be made better than ever before, the Society will publish a new quarterly entitled: "TWO YEARS WITH JESUS," by Miss JULIET E. DIMOCK.

SAMPLES WILL BE READY BY NOVEMBER 1st.

PRICES:—Junior Inductive Studies, single copy, 5 cents; in clubs of five and upward 2½ cents per quarter, or 10 cents per year. Senior Inductive Studies, single copy, 10 cents; in clubs of five and upward, 6 cents per quarter, or 24 cents per year. "Two Years with Jesus," in clubs of five and upward, 2¼ cents each per copy for one quarter, or 9 cents per year.

Mr. Spurgeon on Inspiration.

In a fascinating conversation with the late C. H. Spurgeon, but a few months before his lamented death, says Principal Cave in the British Weekly, the talk turned after a while upon recent attacks upon the authority of Scripture. The whole conversation was memorable, and full of quaint and surprising turns which I do not feel at liberty to repeat. But one point suggested itself to him, in which I could not but very heartily coincide. "What a blessing it would be," said he, with some warmth, "if there were no misrepresentations of each other! May the good Lord keep us from misrepresentations!"

In talking with Mr. Spurgeon, I ventured to assert that of course he did not hold any mechanical view of inspiration, and that of course he did not believe that the Holy Spirit, so to speak, dictated every work that was written, and that the apostle, or prophet, or historian was a mere amanuensis (a "pen of God," "a hand of Christ," "an amanuensis of the Holy Ghost," as men used to say in the seventeenth century.) "Certainly I do not," he instantly replied. "Might I express your view in this way; that, as the Eternal Word is both divine and human, but no man can say where the divine ends and the human begins, the union of divine and human being real but unanalysable, so in the written word of God, every word is both divine and human in source, but no man can define the limits between the divine and human?" "That is solemnly theological," Mr. Spurgeon merrily replied; "but that is just my view."

Liberal Giving.

After the death of the apostles, the early church was noted for its large liberality. "It is incredible," says the heathen Lucien, "to see the ardor with which the people of that religion help each other in their wants. They spare nothing. Their first legislator (Jesus) has put it into their heads that they are all brothers." Going back to our Lord's description of the Judgment and his words, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these my brethren, even the least, ye did it unto me," their current phrase was, "In thy brother, thou hast seen the Lord himself." "It belonged to the idea of a Christian housewife to visit the Lord, to clothe him, to give him meat and drink, in the person of his needy disciples." In the Decian persecution the deacon Laurentius showed the heathen prefect the widows, orphans, blind, lame and sick of the Roman Church as its most precious treasures.

Not only Christians, but the heathen poor were the objects of the Church's beneficence. When the pestilence raged in Carthage and the heathen threw out their dead and sick upon the streets, ran away from them for fear of contagion, and cursed the Christians as the supposed authors of the plague, Cyprian, the Christian bishop, assembled his congregation and exhorted them to love their enemies, whereupon all went to work, the rich with their money, the poor with their hands, and rested not till the dead were buried, the sick cared for and the city saved. Every Christian congregation was a charitable society, and when the empire professed to become Christian, charitable institutions for the sick, the poor, strangers, widows, orphans, and the helpless were everywhere established.—Watchman.

To-Morrow's Load.

So many people vex and worry themselves by too much anxious thought and care for the future. Certainly God does not intend them to be improvident and expect miracles to be worked if they do not take care for their earthly needs and provide for themselves and their own.

But he does not mean that people should try and forecast the future, and worry themselves by wondering how they could bear such and such a trial, which possibly will never come, and if it does in some different form from what they anticipated.

Day by day we ask for our daily bread, and let us also take that in a spiritual sense, and believe that God will give our souls their daily bread of food and support, to meet whatever he may send or permit.

Have you ever seen these beautiful lines, new, I should imagine, to many of us?

"Charge not thyself with the weight of a year,
Child of the Master, faithful and dear,
Choose not the cross for the coming week,
For that is more than he bids thee seek.

Bend not thine arms for to-morrow's load;
Thou mayest leave that to thy gracious God,
'Daily' only, he saith to thee,
'Take up thy cross and follow me.'"

To act on this principle is the secret of all rest and peace in every-day life. It gives calmness to the soul, and the mind is filled with peace. The future, try as they may to peer into it, is hidden from all but God.

He knows it all in its every detail, and he will give thee strength and courage to bear all he sends; the guidance that is needed, the provision for needs, temporal and spiritual; the daily bread and the daily light. But he does not give in advance.

God will not give you to-day strength for to-morrow's cross. Wait till to-morrow comes, and you will then have it, if you seek it and depend on him to give it.

By this means you will learn real humility; for depending upon God, and not upon our own plans and strength, teaches us that invaluable lesson. And if we are honestly trying to seek him in all things, and bear all trial for his sweet sake, then let us trust him fully and implicitly for strength for "to-morrow's load."—Cottager and Artisan.

The Old Testament saints spent much time in devout meditation, as did the Lord Jesus Christ and his apostles. This was a characteristic of the early Christians, as it has been of the most earnest and loving children of the Most High in every age.—Presbyterian Banner.

Light in the Days of Darkness.

I am seeking to cast my shadow upon glad lives when I say that every young woman should learn in sunny days where to find light in the days of darkness. If you are about to enter Mammoth Cave, while you are still outside in the sunshine the guide puts a lamp into your hand. It seems useless, then, as you walk down the green bank, and its beams appear pale and dim; but when you enter the cavern, you understand the value of your little lamp, and its light is very beautiful as it shines in the dense gloom.

The lamp of Christ's comfort may seem useless to you in the happy days of youth, when you have no sorrow; but sometime it will grow dark about you, with no earthly light to shine upon your path, and then this heavenly lamp will be most welcome. Keep the picture before you, therefore, at Christ's feet in sorrow. It will teach you where to go when the night darkens about your own soul.—Selected.

Consult the Right Book.

Suppose you found me looking all through a dictionary, and asked me what I was about; I should tell you, I am trying to find the best route to Washington; there is a heap here about Washing, but not a word about Washington, and I don't believe there is such a place. You say, what you want is a map, not a dictionary. But I answer you and demand, "Isn't a dictionary a good thing? Where is there a better book? didn't the men who made it know? were they not smart and learned men?" Assuredly, but you want a map if you want to go to Washington. Nobody knows the way to heaven my friend, but those who have gotten on the way. Yes, Huxley, Darwin and Tyndall are smart men, and Ingersoll beats the world for eloquence—all the same if you want to go to Washington, you want a guide-book and not a dictionary.—Lansing Burrows, in Young People's Union.

Worth Trying.

To conquer difficulties, to overcome all lions in our pathway, and always do our best.

To hope, even when the clouds lower around us, and it seems hopeless to try further.

To forget self that we may think of others, to rise above weariness, grief and sorrow; to look for the silver lining of the cloud.

To smile cheerfully, though tears are in the heart.

To conquer pain, and sorrow, and despair.

To rise above defeat and build anew.

To look for good in others, even if disappointed ninety times out of one hundred. The ten prove the possibilities for all.

To keep our faith in human nature, notwithstanding its weakness.

To view charitably our neighbors' acts, and scrutinize our own.

To rest our cases on its merits, and be content when we have faithfully done our utmost.

To implant in our children such traits as we may wisely wish to see reproduced in their lives.

Seven Baptist Points.

1. We rest our doctrine of the ordinances solely on New Testament prescription and example.
2. We make the relation of the believer to the church to depend on, and express his previous relation to Christ.
3. We have always stood for the absolute separation of church and state, and have done much to secure the freedom for America and the world.
4. In spite of small beginnings, frequent persecutions and unpopular doctrine; we have multiplied more rapidly than any other body of Christians in America.
5. We have a polity analogous to that of our republic, and therefore adapted to win increasing favor of loyal Americans.
6. We hold to a freedom of individual interpretation and opinion, which makes us capable of unlimited expansion with the expansion of the land in which we live.
7. We hold a principle which limits and safeguards this individual freedom—a freedom of stability—the principle of direct and entire obedience to Christ.—Doctor H. A. Strong.

Obedience is a mark by which the true children of God may be known. They obey, not because they are commanded to, but because they love to.

"I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."

—Whittier.

There is hope for a doubter if his doubts are not cherished for the purpose of excusing his sin, but the man who professes unbelief because of his desire to get rid of God, is joined to his idols.

A Chinaman came to a missionary to ask for baptism. When asked where he had heard the gospel, he answered that he had never heard the gospel, but had seen it. He then told of a poor man at Ningpo, who had once been a confirmed opium-smoker, and a man of violent temper. This man had learned about the Christian religion, and his whole life was altered—he gave up the opium and became loving and amiable. "Oh," said the candidate for baptism, "I have not heard the gospel, but I have seen it."

Twenty-four thousand, seven hundred dollars is the sum spent in Chicago every day for tobacco.

It is said that if the United States were supplied with ministers in the same proportion that the heathen world is with missionaries, there would be altogether about 275, about two-thirds as many as there are now in Boston alone.—Ex.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. STUDY TOPICS.—Japan an open door. One of the Isles that waits for his law. It is accessible. Character of the obstacles to success. The outlook of our Board in Japan. What has been done in Japan?

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

Monthly Missionary Literature.

The leaflet for the month, "Japan for Christ," has been written by Rev. A. E. Price, 3 cents.

For three months' supplies of leaflets, programs, &c., 8 cents; annual subscription, 30 cents. Maryland Baptist Mission Rooms, 9 west Lexington street, Baltimore.

Japan and Romanism.

The present introduction of Christianity into Japan is by no means the first. In the year 1549, St. Francis Xavier took Romanism and fire-arms, at the same time, into the Sunrise Kingdom. For one hundred years, nearly, Catholicism flourished on this pagan soil. One Mikado openly paid homage to the Pope.

Buddhism, brought over by the Chinese, was fast uprooting the old religion, and Christianity was eagerly hailed by the nobles as an offset to this hideous creed. But when, as in other countries, Romanism began to show its real intent—conquest, not conversion—and when some thousands of its retainers, led by foreign priests, had joined in an insurrection against the throne, loyal Japanese, wiser in their generation than nations of fewer years but of similar experience, rose in a body, determined to put Catholicism out. It is said that, in one year, thirty thousand Papists, Japanese, and foreigners were massacred.

Their method was, perhaps, not the best, but it was the last hope of safety to the country. And they had the courage to face an issue that is now threatening our land, and they said, "Romanism is but another name for usurpation and rebellion, and it must go;" and go it did. To be sure, there are Romanists in Japan, but the Japanese are not Papists. Of course, to them Christianity meant Papistry; and so the cross we revere, so many times desecrated by the Jesuits and their followers, became to the Japanese the sign of all evil. For four hundred years every foreigner landing in Japan was compelled to place his foot upon a cross, kept on the shore for the purpose, in token that he would not attempt to make converts to Christianity.

When, in 1854, Commodore Perry forced an entrance into Japan, he found a flourishing nation of people, whose main characteristics were patriotism, filial piety, self-complacency, and perhaps strongest passion of all, a deep seated determination to be let alone. But their policy was a policy of expediency; hence, when fully persuaded that they would be gainers by a treaty with America, they accepted it, but not before.—Foreign Mission Journal.

Woman's Work in Japan.

As in all unchristian lands, so in Japan, woman is considered as many degrees inferior to man. In an old book, written for the instruction of women and girls, and formerly much read by them, we find these statements: "Woman is the creature of man." "A woman's husband is her god." "Such is the native stupidity of her character, that it is her bounden duty, in every particular, to distrust herself and humbly to obey her husband." "In an ancient law it is said that when a female child was born, it should be put under the floor for four days. The reason for this is that man is woman's superior, and may be compared to heaven and woman to earth." Although much that is taught in this old book has become a "dead letter," yet the shadow, still resting darkly on the country, exalts man and humbles woman. While the little daughter finds a warm welcome in the hearts of mother and father, the congratulatios are more joyous when a son is born.

* * * * *

There are, doubtless, happy wives in Japan. The girl expects to be wedded to a stranger; it is the common lot, and at least they find pleasure in their little ones. But what if, for some trivial cause, the wife incurs the displeasure of her lord and is divorced, and thus separated from her children? Such cases are not uncommon. Among the grounds on which a man may divorce his wife are the following: A man may put away his wife if she is disobedient to his parents, if she is childless, if she is jealous, if she is a tattler.

Another custom which poisons the homes of Japan and adds to the bitterness of woman's cup, is that of concubinage. While the wife must be chaste and loyal, the husband is allowed, by law, concubines not to exceed in number those of the Emperor. If the wife objects to such conduct in her husband, or is unkind to the concubine, she may be divorced. Within a stone's throw of the "Sarah Curtis Home," in Tokyo, is the house of a general in the Japanese army. His wife, the mother of six children, refusing to submit quietly to her husband's bringing a concubine into the home, was cruelly divorced, her children torn from her, and she, in disgrace and alone, obliged to return to her father's home.

The divorce law in Japan gives the children to the father; but for this, no doubt, many women would leave their unfaithful husbands. A beautiful girl, once a pupil in our school in Tokyo, was married to a dissolute young man. After years of silent suffering she wrote to a friend, out of the bitterness of her heart: "If it were not for my children, I would endure this no longer."

To the mental suffering of these women add physical pain and weakness, the portion of multitudes of our Japanese sisters, and have we not a picture by which our hearts may well be touched? Let us remember, too, that for suffering they have no Good Shepherd's staff on which to lean for strength and guidance; for their heartache and woe, no ever present Comforter; in death, no knowledge of a Father's house and of a Saviour gone to prepare a place where there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain.

Sitting, as we do, in the full light of the glorious gospel, shall we not, out of the abundance which God has given us, give to these needy daughters of Japan their portion of the bread of life?

Pity them, pity them, Christians at home,
Haste with the Bread of Life, hasten and come.

Wake Forest Letter.

ENGLISH AT WAKE FOREST.

The most important study in the college course of to day is English. It matters not how brilliant or profound one's attainments are in other branches of learning, if he lacks a fair knowledge of his mother tongue his education is sadly defective, if not totally worthless. The last catalogue shows that the English course here has been modified and improved. It is in charge of Prof. B. F. Sledd. Prof. Sledd is a Master of Arts graduate of Washington and Lee University, Virginia. While a student he won the Santint medal given for the best series of English essays, and the Robinson medal awarded for the highest grade in Languages. He then did two years of post graduate work in English under the direction of Prof. J. A. Harrison of Washington and Lee, who is recognized as one of the finest English scholars and teachers in this country. He afterwards spent two years at Johns Hopkins University studying English, French and German. And coupled with his thorough training and ripe knowledge he has the ability to create interest and enthusiasm in his students and to lead them to the formation of correct habits in writing and speaking.

Four courses are given in this department. Owing, however, to the stress of work on the Professor, only three of these courses have as yet been organized; but it is proposed to organize soon an English Seminary, for the study of special authors and periods, and for the systematic study of the philology and history of the language. The courses given at present are as follows:

1. Composition. In this class there are thirty-two students enrolled. The work of the class is given to the study of the fundamental principles—sentence structure, synonyms and common errors in speaking and writing. One hour a week is given to American Literature. Compositions and letters are required at regular intervals.

2. Rhetoric. In this class forty-one students are enrolled. The writing of essays and the systematic and critical study of classic English prose are the chief features of the work. The Professor believes that English must be learned not from text books but from our best writers. Besides the work done in the class room a large amount of private reading in Scott, Thackeray, Dickens and George Eliot is required. An effort is thus made to develop a taste for literature.

3. Literature. Ten students are enrolled. After an introductory course of two weeks, the text-book was laid aside, and the student was put to studying the authors in their writings. The best poems of Dryden, Pope, Goldsmith, Gray, Cowper and Burns were read rapidly but carefully and then the Romantic Movement was chosen as the center of study. Coleridge, Wordsworth, Byron and Keats are the authors selected for special study. The class are now busy with Wordsworth. Much private reading is required with monthly essays. The next essay will be on the structure and purpose of Coleridge's Christobel.

OTHER ITEMS.

Dr. W. B. Royall lectured last Sunday evening to the ministerial students on "A Sunday in Chicago."

Prof. Brewer has moved into his hand some new residence and Mr. W. O. Allen has moved into the house owned by Mr. W. C. Powell.

Anniversary marshals have been elected as follows: By the Eu. Society, J. H. Kerr, S. W. Buxton and W. H. Reddish; by the Phi. Society, F. E. Parham, S. W. Oldham and J. R. Moore.

Dr. Taylor and Pastor Gwaltney are attending the Union Association in session at Monroe. The latter assisted in the ordination of Rev. R. W. Weaver, a member of last year's class, on Monday night in Greensboro.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Missionary Society Sunday night Buddhism and Christianity were discussed and contrasted. The collection, amounting to six dollars, was given to State Missions.

We are very much gratified at the success of the faithful labors of Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, the Secretary of the Board of Education. It shows that the work of training young ministers is very near to the hearts of our Baptist hosts when the appeals of the agent are thus heeded.

The class attendance of the present session is remarkable. In three Latin classes with a total enrollment of eighty-eight there was but one absent on Friday.

Help Your Pastor.

Don't do this if your pastor has deceived you, and has proved to be a bad man. In this event, have him excluded from the church, and deposed from the ministry. If from lack of ability, or faithfulness, he fails to do reasonably good work, let the deacons quietly ask him to resign. But if he is doing good average work in the pulpit, and helping on all church work, then encourage and help him.

You ought to help him. He greatly needs your help. No preacher is perfect. No preacher can please all his members. Some will dislike him, and hinder him all they can. Therefore you ought to help him, to encourage him, and make him more useful.

"Our pastor preaches better and better all the time," said a brother. "Why?" asked another. "Because our church is in peace, and the members love and help the pastor."

Our pastor needs your help because of great work to which God has called him. It is a common call God has brought him alike to be Christians. In accord with him on the same level [illegible] given him a second call to [illegible] there remained his position [illegible] him to take to me his work [illegible] gospel. This is the most important work to which men or angels were ever called. The preacher is often overwhelmed with a sense of his responsibility and cries out "Who is sufficient for these things?" Therefore he needs your daily, earnest prayers, your sympathy and encouragement.

Help him. Don't stay away or stand off and leave him all the work to do. If he sometimes makes mistakes and failures don't criticise and complain; but help him to do better. Do not expect perfection of your pastor, until you as church members become perfect.

Help him by being always present when he preaches, by looking at him, listening to him, and praying for him. Help him by being present at prayer-meetings and taking some part in them. Help him by keeping up the Sabbath-school and all Christian work. Help him to live honestly by giving him enough at the right time to secure the necessaries of life. Help him by speaking well of him before your family and in the presence of others, and by defending him when others speak wrongfully of him. Pray for him daily in secret, at the family altar, and when he ministers to you in holy things.

Flattery is to be despised but deserved praise is right, therefore, when your pastor helps you, help him by speaking words of appreciation.

Thanksgiving Proclamation by the Governor.

At the close of another year it is meet and proper that as a State and Nation we should give thanks to the Author of every good and perfect gift for the many blessings vouchsafed to us. The people of North Carolina have much for which to be thankful. The ravages of the storm, the blight of disease and the serious ills which have befallen some other States God in his mercy has spared us. Our lands have responded to our labors, and although not as abundantly as heretofore, still we have sufficient to preserve us from hunger and want.

In compliance, therefore, with the time-honored and beautiful Christian custom of our Commonwealth, and in conformity with the recommendation of the President of the United States, I, Elias Carr, Governor of the State of North Carolina, do appoint Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, 1893, as a day of public thanksgiving and praise to God. I earnestly request the people of the State to observe this day in a suitable manner, laying aside, as far as possible, their secular pursuits, and to assemble in their places of worship and with thankful hearts give praise and thanksgiving. And that every heart may rejoice, let us remember with that charity which is twice blessed the poor and afflicted, the widow and the orphan, the unfortunate inmates of our charitable institutions, and be especially mindful of our fast aging heroes at their own firesides and in the Soldiers' Home.

Given under my hand, and the Great Seal of the State of North Carolina, at the city of Raleigh, this 8th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety three, and in the one hundred and eighteenth year of our American Independence.

ELIAS CARR

By the Governor:
S. F. TELFAIR,
Private Secretary

Rev. E. F. Jones in His New Pastorate.

Dear Recorder:—We find the people very kind in Gastonia. On the day we moved we found a dozen or more of the sisters at our home, and they had brought us provisions enough to last us many day, for which we are very thankful. We are as grateful for sympathy, which the gifts express, as well as for the worth of the gifts.

I baptized four converts yesterday evening in a nice pond near the town. A large congregation of people witnessed the baptisms. Some ten have been received by letter. Our collection for the Ministers' Relief fund yesterday was near five dollars. I hope the Lord will use me as his servant to build up his cause here. I preach two Sundays in each month at Gastonia—one at Dallas and one at Lowell.

Success to the RECORDER.

On Tuesday last elections were held in about one-third of the States; in some for governors and legislatures; in some for the judiciary; in some for the legislature only, and others for municipal officers. The election had no bearing on the national legislature. The election resulted as follows: New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Iowa, Ohio, Illinois, South Dakota, New Jersey, and Wisconsin, largely Republican; Virginia, Kentucky, and Maryland, Democratic; Nebraska, Populist. In Colorado, a local election resulted in favor of the woman suffragists.

STANDARD WORKS.

Christ's Acted Parables.
A Study of the Miracles. By N. S. Burton, D. D. 12mo, 256 pp. Price, $1.00.
Dr. Burton has conceived of the miracles of Christ as acted parables, as his title indicates. The miracle, according to his thought, contains moral, spiritual truth no less than the parable. He has given us a thoroughly good book. Its style is clear and its thought evangelical and strong.

An Outline Analysis of the Books of the Bible. By Prof. B. C. Taylor. 16mo, 192 pp. Price, 75 cents, net.
Professor Taylor takes the Bible by books, and analyses them according to author, time of writing, relation to other books, contents, specific points, etc. We know of no volume that in so small a space gives so much.

Centenary Missionary Addresses 12mo, 228 pp. Price, $1.00.
Neat in appearance, cheap in price, historic in its occasion, noteworthy in its contributors, and most valuable in its contents. Its appearance fittingly rounds out the centennial of missions.

Hours with a Sceptic. By D. W. Faunce, D. D. 12mo, 256 pp. Price, $1.00.
It purports to be a series of conversations with a sceptic, but the arguments of a lifetime are crowded into it. It is strong, vigorous, and up to the times.

A Short History of the Baptists. By Henry C. Vedder. 12mo, 245 pp. Price, $1.00.
This volume is well written and with scholarly accuracy, and should be owned by every Baptist.

SOON TO BE PUBLISHED.

The Ancient British and Irish Churches, Including the Life and Labors of St. Patrick. By William Cathcart, D. D. 12mo, 350 pp. (about). Price, $1.50.
In this work Dr. Cathcart has shown a vast amount of research. He has gone as far as may be to the fountain-head of information, and has overturned many popular conceptions concerning the Irish patron saint. He claims him conclusively as a Baptist, and shows that Rome had nothing to do with the founding of the ancient churches of the British Islands. It is emphatically a standard work.

Lessons on the Life of Jesus. By Rev. O. S. C. Wallace. 16mo, 192 pp. Price, 90 cents.
This is a series of lessons prepared for young people, and in conjunction with the Young People's Baptist Union. The book is especially adapted for class-room work, and can be cordially recommended to our young people who want to pursue systematically such a course. At the same time it is well fitted for individual perusal.

BIBLE HANDBOOKS.

The Pentateuch. By Rev. A. J. Rowland, D. D. 16mo, 96 pp. Price, 50 cents.
This is the first of the series of Bible Handbooks for which provision has been made by the Society. In an Introduction Dr. Rowland deals in a very just and scholarly way with the question of the higher criticism. He is appreciative of the scholarship arrayed under its banner, but holds to the "old paths" nevertheless, and moreover successfully defends his position. In analysis, in the citation of authorities, in the meeting of difficult questions, the book will be found of great value to our young people, and others who want to understand the matters with which it deals.

The uniform success that continues to attend the application of the Electropoise, demands for it the careful investigation of every sufferer, and especially from those who have despaired of cure, having tried all other methods of treatment in vain. (It will not cure consumption.)
the Electropoise, the instrument that cures.
That the Electropoise cures these so-called incurable diseases, is abundantly demonstrated in our daily experience, and proved by the sterling endorsements given the instrument by intelligent men and women of every section. (See reading notice in this paper, "Our best doctors failed.")

An Appeal from the East.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I am sure many of the Baptists in the State know but little, if anything, about the work in Currituck county.

I came to this part of the State Feb. 18th, 1890. It will soon be four years since I took charge of this field. I thought that I would leave at the close of this year, but have decided to remain another year—have accepted a call to the same field, with our church in Camden. I am glad to say we have been successful in completing the repairs on our church building.

We began holding meetings in a schoolhouse in the town of Arlington during the winter of 1891. Last April 5th, a presbytery, consisting of Dr. R. R. Overby and Dr. C. S. Blackwell and others met and organized a Baptist church with a membership of eighteen. Last August Bro. J. F. Tuttle aided us in a meeting, which resulted in much good. We now number thirty. We are now building a house that will cost fourteen or fifteen hundred dollars, and we are not able to complete it without help; so I make an appeal through the RECORDER to the brethren and sisters in the State. I hope the brethren and sisters will remember what a struggle we had in building Olive Grove in the Tar River Association. It is now a self-supporting church. I am sure, if we can get our house completed, it will not be long before this church will be self-supporting and will add much to the Baptists in eastern Carolina.

The town of Arlington is located on the Chesapeake and Albemarle Canal. It is about fifteen miles from Poplar Branch Baptist church to Rehoboth. This church is about midway between.

Brethren, we are few, but we want a good house. Dr. J. Gatrenton gave us the site, and is going to give more. Brethren B. D. Taylor, Brunsit Crone and others are doing what they can; but we can't build without help. I hope the brethren will make us happy by sending us help at once.

Brethren, remember this is the first time I have appealed to you for help. I want all the brethren to take stock in this building.

All contributions will be sent to B. D. Taylor, Church Clerk, or to the writer at Coinjock, N. C. N. P. STALLINGS.

Coinjock, Nov. 8, 1893.

From Washington, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—Will write you a line from our church here as it may interest some of the brethren in different parts of the State who formerly lived here, and others who are interested in State Missions.

We have a nice site for a church here on one of the principal streets but the building is very old and delapidated but have hopes of a new building the coming year. Our congregations have been very small owing to a combination of circumstances, but with the energetic management of our beloved pastor, Duncan McLeod, (who by the way is mainly supported by the State Mission Board,) matters are growing brighter steadily in church and Sunday-school matters.

There were added to the church during the last week six members who represent three families of our business men, lawyers, bankers, &c. We are a small band and we desire the prayers of all the brethren that we may go forward in the Masters work and do his will as we understand it in the New Testament.

Fraternally, J. J. WOOD.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I hope a few notes from hereabouts may not be amiss.

Seven months ago, by invitation, I went to Island Creek, and at the request of the church, I consented to visit them at their regular monthly meetings until they could secure a pastor. The church at Dobson's Chapel—about eight miles distant—being also pastorless, I consented by request, in July, to enter into a similar engagement with them, hoping to group these and other adjacent churches into a field and call some minister who would locate thereon with a view to permanency. To this end, Bro. W. H. Vanhoy of Yadkin county was invited to attend our Association, and having just completed a survey of the field by a visit to each of the churches, has kindly consented to undertake to serve them.

This is a very interesting field and contains some of the best men and women in the Eastern Association. At Island Creek, on the first Sabbath in September, the hand of church fellowship was extended to thirty new members, the direct result, to this church, of the "tabernacle meeting" in the vicinity in August. Bro. Jenkins was also with us ten days at Dobson's in September, when twenty-five were added to this church by baptism, besides a few restorations.

I would not fail to state that much of the success that has recently crowned the churches at Island Creek and Dobson's Chapel, is due to the earnest and continuous seed sowing of their former leaders, Elders J. T. Albritton and W. L. Bilbro, than whom no better nor more faithful pastors can be found in our State. May the blessings of heaven equally attend the labors of our dear Brother Vanhoy.

L. R. CARROLL.

Warsaw, Nov. 8, 1893.

From Rev. R. M. Loftis

Dear Recorder:—I entered upon the work as pastor of the Pilot Mountain church on the second Sunday night in October, and protracted two weeks. The Lord was with us and blessed and saved a number of souls. Seventeen joined the church, and others I think will soon follow.

Bro. L. R. Truett of Mt. Airy was with us four days, and did us much good. He is a faithful worker, a good preacher, and a fearless defender of the faith, and is much loved by his people at Mt. Airy.

Pilot Mountain is a little growing town on the C. F. & Y. V. Railroad, twelve miles south of Mt. Airy; it has about five hundred inhabitants. The work here was commenced a few years ago by Bro. C. C. Bynum and followed by Bro. J. H. Lewellyn. The latter was compelled to give up the work a few months ago on account of failing health. The seed sown by these good brethren is maturing fast, and the prospects for the Baptists here are flattering. The Lord be praised for it all.

I am yours for the RECORDER and for all that tends to the advancement of the Master's kingdom. R. M. LOFTIS.

Our Best Doctors Failed.

STATESVILLE, N. C., June 13, 1892.

Dear Sir:—For the past two years I have been a great sufferer from asthma; my first attack lasted five months—second eight months. Two of our best doctors did all they could for me, but to no effect. I had been confined to my room and bed for seven months when a friend brought me an Electropoise. I had no faith in it and would not use it until I saw my little boy cured of an acute attack of bronchitis by it. I then commenced its use, and in two months was cured of asthma. As I have often said to friends who ask me about it, "It is the wonder of wonders!" To all who suffer from asthma, I can sincerely recommend the Electropoise from my own experience, and what I have observed makes me believe that it will do all you claim for it.

Very truly,
THADDEUS W. SUMMERS.

Letter from Rev. Henry Sheets.

Dear Recorder:—On last fifth Sunday, Bro. Jefferson Lanning and I began a meeting at Wallburg. It was not a big meeting, but the church was much revived and quite an interest created in the community. Bro. Lanning has not been preaching long, but he made many warm friends here. At the close of the meeting I baptized five into the membership of the church.

I then went on to Waughtown where, on Sunday evening, I baptized thirteen more. Just a month ago we held our meeting there and baptized twelve then—making in all twenty-five this fall. Bro. W. H. Wilson was with us again and delighted our people with his earnest preaching.

Besides other meetings in which I took part this fall, I held meetings at three school-houses, two of which I preached at on Sunday evenings during the year. At these meetings there were about twenty-eight professions. About one-half of these have joined or will join some Baptist church nearest them.

At the close of this year I give up my work at Trading Ford church—having been there four years. Bro. J. M. Bennett will succeed me there, and I will go to Wallburg to begin my work there in January.

Bro. J. M. Hilliard will accept the call tendered him by Abbott's Creek church.

HENRY SHEETS.

Ordination of Rev. R. W. Weaver.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Nov. 8th at 7:30 p. m., Bro. R. W. Weaver was ordained to the full work of the ministry in the Greensboro Baptist church. Rev. W. R. Gwaltney preached the ordination sermon, Rev. R. R. Moore offered the ordaining prayer, and the pastor delivered the charge. Brother Weaver pronounced the benediction.

Bro. Weaver has been called to the High Point Baptist church, and has entered upon his work. He goes out from his mother church with the prayers of all the people to follow him. He enters upon the work of the ministry with a pright promise of usefulness and success.

DIED.

GRIFFITH—Died, infant child of Mr. Web Griffith of Iredell county, N. C., on Saturday, November 4th, 1893.

MARABLE—Octavia, widow of Rev. B. F. Marable, D. D., and daughter of the late Col. Thos. I. Faison of Sampson county, was born Sept. 20th, 1840; was married in 1863; died at the home of her son-in-law, Will. G. Davis, Esq., of Mount Olive, on the morning of the 31st of October. To her husband she was an help-meet indeed. Her holy example, her sweet spirit and gentle courtesy illustrated and enforced his eloquent teachings. To the sorrowing and the suffering she was as a ministering angel. Her children, of whom five survive her, give proof of her wisdom, vigilance and faithfulness as a mother. She was a specimen of the best fruitage of a civilization now passed away, matured and made perfect by the power of Divine Grace and the discipline of suffering. J. D. H.

Tributes of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his infinite wisdom to remove from our midst to his eternal home our beloved Deacon W. R. Burgess, who died at Sanford, Fla., Oct. 23d, we, the members of West Washington Street Baptist church, in regular conference assembled, do offer the following resolutions:—

Resolved 1. That we extend to the stricken family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of trouble, directing them to lean heavily upon him who is the Great Comforter in times of sorrow.

Resolved 2. That we shall always cherish in our hearts the memory of our brother as we think of his deep though quiet piety, and his great liberality to the cause he loved so well.

Resolved 3. That a copy of these resolutions shall be sent to the bereaved family, also to the RECORDER for publication, and one spread upon the minute book of the church.

Done by order and in behalf of the church, Wednesday, Nov. 1st, 1893.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

Can this disease be cured? Most physicians say No—I say, Yes; all forms and the worst cases. After 20 years study and experiment I have found the remedy. Epilepsy is cured by it; cured, not subdued by opiates—the old, treacherous, quack treatment. Do not despair. Forget past impositions on your purse, past outrages on your confidence, past failures. Look forward, not backward. My remedy is of to-day. Valuable work on the subject, and large bottle of the remedy—sent free for trial. Mention Post-Office and Express address.

The Victory.

He stood with a foot on the threshold,
And a cloud on his boyish face,
While his city comrade urged him
To enter the gorgeous place.
"There's nothing to fear, old fellow!
It isn't a lion's den;
Here waits you a royal welcome
From lips of the bravest men."

'Twas the old, old voice of the tempter
That sought in the old, old way
To lure with a lying promise
The innocent feet astray.
"You'd think it was Bluebeard's closet,
To see how you stare and shrink!
I tell you there's naught to harm you –
It's only a game and a drink!"

He heard the words with a shudder—
It's only a game and a drink!
And his lips made bold to answer:
"But what would my mother think?"
The name that his heart held dearest
Had started a secret spring,
And forth from the wily tempter
He fled like a hunted thing.

Away! till the glare of the city
And its gilded halls of sin
Are shut from his sense and vision,
The shadows of night within;
Away! till his feet have bounded
O'er fields where his childhood trod;
Away! in the name of virtue,
And the strength of his mother's God.

On the page where the angel keepeth
The record of deeds well done,
That night was the story written
Of a glorious battle won.
And he stood by his home in the starlight –
All guiltless of sword and shield—
A braver and nobler victor
Than the hero of bloodiest field.
—New York Observer.

Trouble at the End.

Some years ago a contractor was building an iron railway bridge. An engineer was employed, and plan and specifications were made for the contemplated structure. The engineer saw certain defects in the plan, and protested against it. The contractor was wealthy and willful, and insisted on having his own way. The engineer could not afford to lose his place nor quarrel with his employer, and so he yielded to the pressure, and the work went on. The bridge was completed and stood for years. One stormy winter night, when the tempest was abroad and the air was thick with snow, a railway train approached that bridge. Presently there was a crash, and the train went down, a helpless wreck, into the gulf beneath. Fire and water, snow and ice, added to the terrors of the scene. An unknown multitude—perhaps two hundred souls—were crushed, consumed, or drowned. Among them were some whose names were known around the world, the bright promise of whose lives went out amid the horrors of that gloomy hour. An inquest was held, but the engineer was not there. At last the thing which he had predicted and feared had come, and with his own hand he ended his wretched life. Another man, cognizant of the facts, absented himself from the country.

The rich man lived on, but we may well believe that he was not without anxieties and fears and haunting spectres, and at length, when financial disasters had robbed him of a portion of his wealth, he too ended his own life by suicide. He had abundant means, he was a man of generous impulses, and his charities made his name famed and honored; but he went to his death by his own hand.

There is a lesson in this painful tragedy. Wrong makes trouble; so certainly as iniquity prevails, there is calamity ahead. He who yields to wrong doing may escape present trouble, or avoid some approaching difficulty, but he lays up for himself sorrow and affliction in the years to come. Office is brief; honesty is eternal. A man may lose his situation with a good conscience; but if he loses his conscience, situations are of little account. Men are constantly under temptation to swerve from the right, and yield their convictions to outward influences, and soil their consciences for worldly gain. They make a bad bargain if they wink at iniquities and fail to rebuke wrongs. They may be prospered and petted for the time, but there will be a hidden canker eating out their hearts, and when trouble comes they will have no strength to bear it.

This world needs more "impracticable men"—men who cannot be coaxed, driven or frightened; men who will not do wrong under any circumstances; who will not lie, nor stand silent while others do it; who will protest against iniquity; who will wash their hands in innocency, and who, though crushed by the strong arm of power, yet will, with their dying breath, protest against the ungodliness which imperils the soul and bodies of mankind.

If this engineer had been willing to lose his life, he might have saved it. Had he protested with all his power, sounded the alarm, and sacrificed his own interests, he would have saved the lives of others, and spared himself a burden that he carried for many years upon a heavy heart, and at last the dreadful remorse which sent him to an untimely grave.

God puts men in places of awful responsibility. The man who shirks from meeting those responsibilities through the hope of office, position, or gain, will find at last that he has missed his life's great opportunity, that he has failed to fulfil the end of his existence, that he has misled others, and ruined himself by his unfaithfulness.

There are plenty of defective bridges being built to-day. In politics and religion, in social and financial circles, men are erecting structures which are sure to go down when the storm beats upon them. O for men of God who dare withstand and protest against every wrong, denounce every iniquity, and [illegible] the peril of life [illegible] from the blood of [illegible] upon us on earth may be heard; they may appoint themselves to poverty and loneliness and toil and tears; but when the Master comes he will reward their labors, and speak to them the gracious words, "Well done."—The Armory.

General Mourning.

The Hindoo, if not inventive, is a capital imitator, and not without a wit as refined as anything to be found among English-speaking people, as is plain from a story related by the Rev. J. Ewen. Many years ago, when the Mogul emperors reigned in imperial city of Delhi, a policeman, walking along one of the streets, met a potter in mourning.

"O potter, for whom do you mourn?" he asked.

"Sadamiya," was the reply.

"Dear, dear! Is Sadamiya dead?" cried the policeman, and he hurried off to the corner where the barbers sat plying their trade.

"Shave my head and beard," said he. "I am going into mourning for Sadamiya."

Shortly afterward duty took the policeman to the kotwal,—chief of police,—and at once the kotwal asked for whom he was mourning.

"For Sadamiya, that illustrious person."

"Ah dear me! Is he dead?" exclaimed the kotwal. "Well, well, all die in turn! Call the barber."

Presently the kotwal had occasion to visit the vizier, who was surprised to see him in mourning; the more so as he did not know that any of his family were ill.

"Who is dead?" he inquired.

"Alas! your honor, the illustrious, high-minded and dignified Sadamiya has been called away."

"Oh!" exclaimed the vizier, "I am sorry to hear you say so. What a loss! Will you please call the barber?"

The barber came, and the vizier went into mourning. Duty took him to the presence of the emperor, who was startled at his changed appearance.

"Who is dead?" he asked.

"Your highness, I grieve to inform you, but that sublime custodian of goodness, of honor and learning, Sadamiya, has been taken."

"Call the barber," said the emperor to his attendants, and soon he was mourning with shaven head. When he appeared before the empress she inquired, "Who is dead?"

"Alas! that I should have to say it! Sadamiya is dead."

"But who is Sadamiya?" she asked, for even in India women are endowed with curiosity.

"Sadamiya! Sadamiya! I never thought of asking, but the vizier was summoned and the emperor demanded, "Who is this Sadamiya we are all in mourning for?"

"Really, your highness, I never thought of asking; but the kotwal could not tell; no more could the policeman, but he would ask the potter.

"Who is this Sadamiya we are all in mourning for?" the policeman inquired of the potter.

"You—you—do—not—mean—to—say—you—are—mourning—for Sadamiya?" he stammered.

"Yes, I am; and so is the kotwal and the vizier and the emperor."

"Dear, dear! Whatever will become of me!" cried the potter. "In mourning for Sadamiya! Why—Sadamiya is my donkey!"
—Kind Words.

"All human history attests
That happiness for man,—the hungry sinner!—
Since Eve ate apples, much depends on dinner."

And a good liver is absolutely essential for appreciating a good dinner. Lord Byron knew that as well as anybody. One of his greatest regrets was for his weak stomach. "Gad, man!" his lordship would say, "why don't one of these infernal doctors invent a liver medicine?"

Byron would never have asked that question were he now living. Why? Because he would have been using Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, an absolutely sure cure for constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. There is no griping or violence about these pills, and they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is refunded. Don't live with the stomach weak, when the cure is within your reach for 25 cents.

Thousands of cures follow the use of Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's $500 reward for an incurable case.

Doing one Thing at a Time.

I never could have done what I have done without the habits of punctuality, order and diligence—without the determination to concentrate myself on one subject at a time, no matter how quickly its successor should come upon his heels, which I then formed. Heaven knows I write this in no spirit of self landation. The man who reviews his own life as I do mine in going on here from page to page, had need to have been a good man indeed if he would be spared the sharp consciousness of many talents neglected, many opportunities wasted, many erratic and perverted feelings constantly at war within his breast, and defeating him. I do not hold one natural gift, I dare say, that I have not abused. My meaning simply is that whatever I have tried to do in life I have tried with all my heart to do well; that whatever I have devoted myself to I have devoted myself to completely; that in great aims and in small I have always been thoroughly in earnest. I have never believe it possible that any natural or improved ability can obtain immunity from the companionship of the steady, plain, hardworking qualities and hope to gain its end. There is no such thing as such fulfillment on this earth. Some happy talent and some fortunate opportunity may form the two sides of the ladder on which some men mount, but the rounds of that ladder must be made of stuff to stand wear and tear; and there is no substitute for through going, ardent talent and sincere earnestness. Never to put one hand on anything on which I could not throw my whole self, and never effect depreciation of my work, whatever it was, I now find to have been my golden rules.—Charles Dickens.

THE OLD-FASHIONED STYLE

of pill gives you a feeling of horror when you see it and when you feel it. Like the "blunderbuss" of a former decade it is big and clumsy, but not effective. In this century of enlightenment you have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver troubles in the most effective way. They're not easily seen for they're small as grains of mustard seed, but the effect is lasting and the cure complete. For Indigestion, Constipation, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headache, nothing has been found to equal these pills of Dr. Pierce's Invention. They give such complete relief that their makers promise that they'll give satisfaction or your money will be returned.

A plain statement of fact made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is this: "If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case, we'll pay you $500 in cash."

FOR THE last two weeks the press of the country has been busily engaged in expressing opinions as to the significance of the recent elections, but as is the usual custom the representatives of each party concerned have tried to make the result appear as favorable to their interests as possible, and those claiming independence of parties have been equally diverse in their opinions. No one man, nor limited body of men, can sound the motives that influence the votes of a million of citizens scattered over our entire territory. Hence we have no means of deriving certain knowledge of the future influence of the elections. But we can all approximate motives and surmise conclusions by a studied examination of the circumstantial evidence. In our opinion the vote in each State was the result of local influences peculiar to that State, though allowances should be made for the fact that the party in power is always regarded with an unusual degree of disfavor in times of discontent. We think the State of Ohio was the only important State that spoke boldly for a National principle—protection,—though the unusual size of the Republican majority can quite justly be attributed to the personal popularity of Gov. Wm. McKinley, who, as a prominent candidate for the nomination of President in 1896, justly deserves honor at the hands of his State. But aside from personal consideration, Ohio citizens find a domestic market for most of their products, and hence naturally favor a protective policy. Any other result there would have been extraordinary. The result in New York was the great surprise to both parties. But National questions did not enter into consideration in this State. Of all the States in the Union, New York has been most gratified by the financial policy of the administration, and her press has thundered its applause and encouragement for the last six months. Under such circumstances we should expect New York to be the last State to declare against the National Democratic party. Her vote was not against Democracy, but against "bossism" and Tammany, which, though always permitted to commit crimes in Democracy's name, has never been willing to divide the spoils of her victories with Democracy. Tammany is not representative of Democracy, but is an oligarchic organization of the extreme type. New York's vote was against oligarchy, not Democracy, neither for Republicanism. In New Jersey, heretofore a part of the "Solid South," the high crimes committed in Democracy's name, by a so called Democratic legislature, in selling the State to a race track corporation, and exposing her citizens to a gambling evil that fairly rivals the now dying Louisiana Lottery, stripped Democracy of every claim of decency, and made a Republican victory necessary to the welfare of the State. The vote was a protest against a depraved legislature, and not Democratic principles. In Iowa the result only demonstrated the power of the "liquor vote." For the past six years the Republican party in this State had stood on prohibition principles and had been defeated. This year her prohibition plank was destroyed, and victory was hers once more. A victory for whiskey and the devil, and not a declaration for or against the principles of either great party. In Illinois the result was due to the determination of the people to honor a just judge whom an unscrupulous governor had attempted to dishonor. Massachusetts has always been Republican in spirit, and elected Gov. Wm. E. Russell, Democrat, three successive terms on his personal popularity. Had he been a candidate this year his election would have been certain. In Virginia the result was no more than was expected—Democratic,—though the Populists showed unusual and very creditable strength, if we are to believe the statement of the Democratic press, that the negroes voted largely with the Democratic party. Perhaps after all, Nebraska is the only State that voted on general principles. It is a Populist State, locally and generally, and went Populist. No great effort was made to carry it otherwise.

Taken all in all, the elections had little real significance so far as National platforms are concerned, which we have endeavored to demonstrate specifically. But there is a great significance in the result New York and New Jersey, which should be cause for general rejoicing.

IT HAS been said time and again that in a question of politics the prospect of a full purse is more potent than the purest principles. It has almost become a proverb that money controls politics throughout the country. But the result of the recent election in New York and New Jersey stamped the lie on this assertion most forcibly. Tammany entered the contest with coffers overflowing, and the patronage of a great State and city in her hands, against an organization that could scarcely keep up an appearance of respectability about its headquarters, and was overwhelmingly defeated. Tammany imported voters, resorted to false registrations, bribery and force, and held the polls, but the voice of the people was heard above the jingle of gold, the vigilance of her eye sought out the source of fraud, and the power of pure principles overcame force, and humbled America's most dangerous political organization in the dust. What is applicable to New York is equally so to New Jersey. There is a glorious prophecy in their victories: "The will of the people shall be the law of the land." Tammany power has been annihilated in New York, the home of the "floater" and the "boss;" surely it will not be difficult to achieve a like result elsewhere. The people of New York State have demonstrated to the people of the United States that in spite of money, patronage and organization, there is such a thing as purity in politics; that when the people know what they want, and are determined to have it, it will come. Unity of interest and unity of votes is the secret of New York's success.

THE sphere of the influence of civil service reform has always been so limited that its advantages have attracted but little attention, and the movement has not received that encouragement which it deserves. But now that the classified service has grown from ten thousand officers a decade since, to fifty-five thousand to day, there is no reason why its advantages should not become so widespread that its usefulness would be extended throughout our government. Civil service reform means the merit system of appointment to the less important government offices instead of the patronage system. The evils of the latter system are too various and too obvious to mention. Whereas no argument can be urged that will detract from the worth of the merit system. In the very nature of things merit always deserves to win, and we cannot see why a government position should be made an exception to a general rule. Surely it is necessary that the more important offices be in the hands of representatives of the party in power, but why is it necessary that the petty clerkships should be disposed of as "spoils" for political "camp followers" is an unanswered question. How much better, how much cheaper, how much more securely, would our affairs be conducted, were they executed under the direction of representatives of the party in power, by experienced and competent officers, whose time of position depended on the fidelity and ability which characterized the execution of their duties, rather than their ability, to vote with the winning party, or to serve parties, Congressmen or Senators. This is one reform that has come, but it lacks the proper extension of its usefulness; and when it is fully applied, the professional office seeker, political camp-follower, and patronage-serving legislators, will disappear from the land—"a consummation devoutly to be wished."

North Carolina Baptists and Foreign Missions.

We have a great Baptist brotherhood, of which we are justly proud; but we are not doing a work commensurate with our numbers and ability. The North with fewer members give more than we; we, with less ability than they and larger numbers, are able to do as much as they are now doing.

North Carolina is behind in the amount of money, though she has given more largely of her sons and daughters than some of her sister States in the Southern Baptist Convention. What will bring us up to the full measure? Whether we are in the rear or in the van is not the question; but are we doing what we can? We may be doing what we can under the circumstances, but may we not be responsible for the circumstances? We have many of the essentials to success; what do we lack? We may wish we had a better "brand" of membership; we can hardly say we have not the influence of numbers. The pastors no doubt might do better service; but we think as a class they are as efficient as those of other States. Our organization is being improved with the years, and we are getting in better shape to do better work.

There is a mind to stand by the tried methods in our strongest churches and Associations. With all these helps we are conscious that we are not doing our duty towards the lost millions.

OUR RESOURCES.

To put the matter in mild terms, they are very great. Among the multitudes of young men and women are many heralds of the Cross. Under the operations of the Holy Spirit many would become embassadors of the Lord.

The vast wealth under the control of the church members might be used to send out hundreds where there goes one. Whatever may be the resources, they are not available. It will do no good to sit and talk what we might do—what is needed to make us do what we should?

The prayer should be "Awake, O north wind, and come thou south, blow you upon my garden that the spices thereof may blow out." Come, Lord, upon the churches, that they may go and do thy bidding. Give, Lord, thy Spirit, that the churches may give themselves and theirs to thee. Work, Lord, in the churches that they may work for the salvation of the world. Work with them that they work for souls and thee. Lord Shaftsbury had for his motto, "Love—serve." It spirit and interpreted his life. He resolved to devote his life to the helpless and suffering. When he entered the House of Commons, he began to serve by attacking the lunacy law. When the bill was seconded, he wrote "By God's help my first effort for the advance of human happiness is successful." Then he turned his attention to the system of farming out paupers, chimney-sweeps, boot blacks, and sewing women.

We have many men and women in our churches who love humanity and God, and by the influence of the Holy Spirit would gladly serve men and God. It is with pleasure and pride that we turn our eyes to Thomasville Orphanage and see how one good, great man loves and serves, and how many men and women in the State have loved and served in putting up so many comfortable buildings. It is not time for us to cry, Enough, Lord, but "awake, O north wind."

In the North our brethren are more diligent in using means for the spread of the gospel than we, as is suggested by the lines used at the dedication of the car Evangel:

"Sweep on O car of light,
And bless thy holy flight,
On thy wings bring
Peace to the troubled breast,
And to the weary rest;
Glad for thy mission blest,
The angels sing.

Roll o'er the mountain height,
Roll to the waters bright,
The distant sea;
Visit the lonely vale,
And fly the wintry gale,
Thy errand will not fail,
God moves with thee."

We have in our churches men who have the ability to speed the gospel.

I love to think of the consecrated activity of the churches of Macedonia, the church at Antioch and at Jerusalem. During the first century after the coming of the Lord, Asia Minor and Europe were given the gospel, because the Holy Spirit moved upon the Christians, and every man became a missionary.

THE NEED.

Solomon in his Song gives us a poet's conception of the condition of God's people. Beneath the poetic imagery is the divine truth. God's people are not giving their blessings to the world. The power of God is needed that the people may fulfil their mission in the world. Our churches will never do their duty in this respect without the operation of the Holy Spirit. It takes an unselfish, broad-minded, large-hearted church to be missionary in faith and practice.

The pure, sweet atmosphere of the religion of Jesus is needed. The heathen is lost to noblest living; he does not know the highest humanity can be reached only in Jesus. Their moral sense needs adjusting, their social life needs purifying, their home-life needs cleansing. Many churches in North Carolina are like Judaism in Solomon's time. The glory of the temple shone for Jews only, the blessings of Judaism were only for Israel. They had forgotten that God had said to Abraham, "In thee shall all the nations of the earth be blest." Israel was a garden walled in, a spring sealed up.

Some of our churches are like the churches were a century ago. The eloquence, wealth and influence were for the people in a corner of England till the Holy Spirit came upon them and made them willing and anxious to divide their blessings with India.

The mission of the church is to make the earth not a part of it like heaven—to "transform the kingdoms of this world into the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ."

The mission will never be fulfilled while we spend our resources all at home. The garden may be beautiful with artistic walks, bordered with rare shrubbery and fragrant with choice flowers; but the beauty is all lost on the world because the garden is walled in. The church may be as fair as the moon, and as terrible as an army of banners; but her power will never be felt if she go not out into the lost world. The springs may be cool, refreshing and healthful, but the sick and needy will continue to die without a knowledge of the "Balm in Gilead" and the "Physician" in Israel, if the church go not out. "Awake, O north wind, and come thou south, blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may blow out."

The Higher Education of Women—No 2.

BY T. H. PRITCHARD, D. D.

Dear Recorder:—Do our women need this higher education of which I have been writing?—higher and deeper and broader than that afforded by any institution of learning for girls now in the State? It shall be the purpose of this article to show that they do. If, as has been abundantly shown, women are physically and mentally capable of attaining these higher walks of intellectual development, then it needs no argument to prove that it it is their duty to aspire after them, for it is the paramount duty of all of us to make the most of ourselves—to become all we are possibly capable of being. If women in this country are to be merchants, physicians, teachers, editors and authors, and I am heartily in favor of all these calling being thrown open to them, for they are perfectly legitimate occupations for them. Then we can see how they need the special mental training this higher education will give them. But if they never enter into any such pursuits, they need this higher education for their own sakes; they need it to develop themselves, to make their inner life larger. The inner life determines the character of the outer life, and as her powers of will and thought and knowledge become broader and stronger so is she the better able to meet the responsibilities of life, no matter what her station may be. How much of wisdom is there in these words of a wise and able woman writing on this very subject:

"How often a father, loving his daughter tenderly but not wisely, seeks to throw about her the protection of his own strong arm, shielding her from the responsibilities which would make her self-reliant, and the anxieties which would make her know the world in which she lives. Fondly planning her future he says: 'You will not have to support yourself. I do not care whether you study or not, your mother and I want our girl to make sunshine in the house. Learn music so you can play for us, paint a little if you want to, dress well, cultivate graceful manners and enjoy yourself.' So with desires for higher things stifled or never awakened, with ambitions set toward lesser things rather than the greater, with earnest purpose left out altogether, the years of her young womanhood go on. She plays a little, usually in a mechanical way, paints a little, frequently some indescribable thing which she ties with a ribbon and hangs in the parlor, she toils over the multifarious stitches of fancy needle-work, reads a little, chatters a great deal, goes into society, and presently, when father and mother are gone, faces her life's realities. It is a false and dwarfing idea of the ends of a woman's being and it bears its fruit. Her mind is not developed and she never becomes a self reliant, broad-minded, strong woman. How many such women have looked back through the tears of later years and mourned the misguided affection which sent them forth women in physical development but with the mental powers of girls. More sorrowful still, how many have gone through life and never knew they were not all they might have been. That father trains his son to be a working unit of the world's forces and sets before him for an ideal the highest development he can reach. He sets before his daughter as an idea to be pretty and pleasing. He would be shocked if told that he is grossly selfish in thus hedging in her life and that he has thus defrauded her of her most sacred right, the right to be within herself all she can be."

THE INFLUENCE OF SUCH EDUCATION ON THE HOME LIFE.

But it is said, "Home is woman's throne," that is the seat of her power, and how can these extraordinary attainments and this great mental development help her to meet the responsibilities which come upon her as wife and mother? The wife has not the opportunities for stimulating her mind that the husband has, mingling with the outside world as he does and being daily brought into contact with the throbbing brains of his fellowmen, and therefore she should have all the resources within herself which education can give, for her duties are many and responsible. Good food, pure air, healthy exercise, all the laws of household sanitation depend upon her skill and judgment; indeed, we may say that the management of the whole family is in her hands rather than those of the husband and father.

And it is just because woman is the center of home life in this country that I plead for her highest and noblest development, for there is no other influence, save the grace of God, that is half so potent in forming the character of our people and affecting our civilization as the home life. If our homes are refined and cultivated, if the atmosphere there is pure and sweet and elevated, then will the children reared there be superior from their birth, and amid all the influences of a wicked world they will never lose the stamp of that home life. If it is empty and frivolous, or coarse and unrefined, then the minds and manners and characters of the children brought up there will be poisoned for all time.

Home is the world to the child. His mind knows nothing greater and purer than his mother. He does not reason, he simply absorbs, and the impressions then and there made upon him go with him through life. Lord Brougham said before the University of Edinborough that the moral character of a child was formed before it was seven years old, and Dr. John A. Broadus, a greater than Brougham, said to me once that he believed "the moral character of a child was formed before it was four years old." Now, if this be true—and I, for one, do not question it—then the character, moral and intellectual, certainly the moral, is determined by the influence of the mother more than by all other agencies in the world.

What possibilities then lie in the fact that woman's life is a home-life? As another has admirably said, "If she bring to it an untrained mind, filled with petty thoughts, if her talk is of neighborhood gossip, her reading light fiction, her pleasure and recreation some inane fancy work, if her likes and dislikes are without reason or judgment, her actions controlled by impulse or caprice, what does this mean to her child? But if she bring to her home-life a cultivated, well-balanced mind, full of wide, generous thought, if she be self-reliant, self-controlled, guided by calm, dispassionate reason, if her reading, her conversation, her pleasures are all of noble things, what may this mean to her child? Though the professional woman and the business woman and all other women neglect the higher education, the home-maker and mother will always need it." How inestimable are the advantages of a child reared by such a mother! In language, in manners, in ideals of goodness, in all the essentials of character, he has really acquired many of the results of a liberal education before he leaves his home.

The truth is, I have, after much reflection, reached the conclusion to which a certain Indian chief came. It was the custom of the Government to take the boys and educate them. When they returned to the tribe, they married uneducated squaws, and their children were but little above the condition of the original savage. The fact that the father was educated to some extent did not seem to affect the civilization of the tribe, and the wise old chief petitioned the government to educate the girls, too, and he affirmed it as his opinion, that if either sex was elected, it was better to let the boys grow up in ignorance than the girls. That is my deliberate opinion; if either sex shall fail of this higher mental and moral development, then it will be better for society, better for morality and religion that the women of the land shall be the favored sex.

WORTH NOTICING.

This paper contained an editorial some months since on "The Skepticism of Poetry." We have been forcibly reminded of the justness of the criticisms then offered as to the moral teaching of some celebrated poems, by noticing a rather striking poem in a recent number of the Cosmopolitan on Hagar, by Eliza P. Nicholson, illustrated by Otto Guillonnet. This poem abounds in striking language and in bold thrusts at the mercy and compassion of Jehovah. This is what will give that poem zest with many people, and its skeptical thrusts at the justice of an overruling God, are not only bold and impious, but well calculated to trouble the faith of the unwary Christian. It is characteristic of those who read the Bible to criticise it, or doubt its divine origin, and they are very prone to look at Bible incidents in a one-sided way. They are very prone to write on those too which they suppose exhibit a want of mercy on the part of God, while they overlook the many incidents that show in a marked way his wonderful mercy and compassion. This fact will account for Bob Ingersoll's plan of attacking the Bible as an inspired book and God himself as a merciful God.

The poem referred to not only does violence to the facts connected with Hagar's expulsion from the tent of Abraham, but makes a strong bid for the maudlin sympathy of those who have never carefully examined the account given in Genesis of that expulsion, with the causes that led to it. The poem not only reflects on the mercy of God, but also on the character of Abraham, by representing him more than once as an arrant coward. Now, as a matter of fact, both insinuations are very unjust. Did not Abraham plead with God before the birth of Isaac that Ishmael "might live before him" and thus be heir of the coming blessings? And did not God say to Abraham at the same time, "As for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation." Now we respectfully submit that these facts promptly clear up some of the difficulties suggested by the poem. Abraham had plead for Ishmael as above mentioned, and that shows him the loving tender father. He was a brave man, too, to plead with God for Ishmael when God had just promised him a son by Sarah. The gushing sentiment of the poetess at the point she reflects on the mercy of God by a parade of the supposed virtues of Isis and Osiris becomes rather an insipid affair, in the face of the fact that Hagar and her son were not sent away to suffer and to die in the wilderness, but simply as a preparation for the great future that awaited both of them, promised in the words, "I will make of him a great nation."

There was another little incident mentioned in connection with this so called banishment of Hagar, thus recorded, (Gen. 21: 8, 9), "And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day Isaac was weaned. And Sarah saw the son of Hagar, the Egyptian, which she had borne unto Abraham, mocking." Here we have some strong insight into Ishmael's character. Whom was he mocking? From whom had he imbibed the disposition to mock? Did the state of things this little word clearly reveals, promise domestic happiness in Abraham's family? "A house divided against itself cannot stand," and it was evidently best for all concerned for Hagar and her son to be sent away. And that act of mocking—who prompted Ishmael to engage in it? Those who understand human nature will be almost sure to suspect that Hagar was at the bottom of it. If so, does not the act place both her and her son in an unenviable light? Did she not show a little soul to envy the happiness of Sarah when the great hope of her life had been realized? Did she not despise the authority of God, who had determined to perpetuate the blessing through Isaac, instead of Ishmael? When all these things are considered, much of the gushing sentiment of the poem can be transferred to Abraham's credit; and God's justice and his wisdom are intact; especially when we [illegible] that his mercy followed Hagar and [illegible] and by his favor the wilderness [illegible] to her.

[illegible] to put our readers [illegible] when they read popular [illegible] who are poor theologians; [illegible] they sadly misrepresent [illegible] who often misrepresent [illegible] Christians of course have to be on their guard in many things that they see or read in this life; but there is such fascination in the realms of poetry and art that they need to be specially guarded here. Some of the noblest defenders of Christianity—thank God—have been among the poets; but it is equally true that some of the most dangerous darts ever cast at the heart of Truth have been hurled by poetic hands. In passing, let us say, would it not be well for the editors of such a widely circulated magazine as the Cosmopolitan, to be a little more careful as to the religious tone of the prose or poetry they admit to its columns? They have done a good thing for the country in placing a first-class magazine before the public, at a price so low, that it can visit even the homes of the poor. The public are not slow in showing their appreciation of this fact, and the magazine is meeting deserved success. A magazine brought to the level of the masses can well afford to guard carefully the religious faith of its patrons.

THINK OVER IT.

The faithful wide-awake pastor must at times feel a strong inclination to discuss in the presence of his congregation certain subjects and themes that are not usually included under the head of preaching the gospel. Hence, we have "preludes" to regular sermons, "discussion of current events," "lessons of the hour," &c., &c. We would respectfully suggest to our pastors, who feel a need for such discussions, that it would be best not to blend them with the preaching of the gospel, but use them at such time and place as may suit. The preaching of the gospel is the preacher's great duty, but as he is a conservator of religion and public morals, and is deeply interested in the temporal and spiritual improvement of the people to whom he ministers, would it not be well for him to lecture at his church from time to time on current topics, signs of the times, public manners and morals, and other things that tend to promote or hinder the great cause he represents. How often is it the case that pastors are afflicted for years with men who will get to church late, and walk like oxen to the very front seat, interrupting the preacher and the whole congregation, simply because he has never told them in plain English that such conduct is quite rude and annoying! By all means, then, let him lecture his people on manners.

Again, how often is God's house badly defiled with tobacco expectorations to the grief of people of refined habits. Let the pastor lecture his people on some night in the week on "Respect for God's House." These are only leaders. A word to the wise ought to be sufficient.

AFTER THOUGHTS.

For the past five months we have attended from one to three Associations every week. During this time we have seen a multitude of brethren, heard many speeches, and witnessed the devouring of much rations.

The thought of these meetings is a real pleasure, and notwithstanding the work has been hard and wearing, yet in spite of this we feel in our heart just a little lingering of regret that they are really over. If my time and space were not limited I could write this entire article upon the growth and development which has taken place among our churches and in the individual brethren in the State for the past three years.

On the part of our pastors there is a continual effort to get in their churches better system, more universal interest among their members, more and better work done by their congregations. Some of these pastors are often discouraged at the progress they appear to make, and yet most of them are making progress, and as they shall intensify their desires and redouble their energies, the joy and rewards of their labor will grow larger as the years go by. The work of the present year is to bear fruit for the denomination through many years to come.

The discussions on

while not every time characterized by the harmony and grace to be wished for, yet has done this much certainly: It has caused many to think and investigate to a degree that must result in good. I never before saw the delegates and other brethren so eager to read the Foreign Mission Journal, and to get information from all possible sources about our Foreign Mission work.

Bro. Bryan's coming to the State and visiting the brethren and the Associations has not only greatly endeared him to many brethren to whom he was before a stranger, but many now feel an increased interest in his work in China, and the increased love and affection which they now feel for him will be seen in many cases in the increased contributions which will go to him in his far away home among the heathen. Bro. Bryan is a man of fine intellectual powers, sees at once, and then seizes the salient points, never stopping to deal with collaterals. This, however, is by the way. After being with Bro. Bryan for several months and hearing him on several occasions, the things which impressed me both in his speeches and as I journeyed with him from day to day, was the transparency of character, the honesty of his purposes, his charity and love for those who differed from him, his zeal for his work, and his boundless faith in the God whom he serves.

Many of our people knew very little concerning our work in before hearing Bro. C. C. Newton, who for seven years has stood almost alone in the portion of the "Dark Continent" where he now labors. It will be cheering to him and his family to learn that many of his wisest brethren think we have no better man, no more efficient missionary, nor no more hopeful work than that in charge of Bro. Newton. Personally, we feel it was a blessing to be permitted to hear him talk of his work, and we are sure it will tend to increase the hope of the brethren generally in the work in Africa.

Dr. Durham, the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Missions, has made an unusual effort for the cause of missions in the State, and notwithstanding the hard pressure which the churches have felt on account of the scarcity of money, they have undertaken as much or more work than last year. The Associations, with a few exceptions, are in the strictest harmony with the plans of work as laid out by the Convention, and the meeting of this body is looked to now with unusual interest as the crowning occasion for the summing up of one of the most important year's work since its organization, more than sixty years ago. We hope to see many of the brethren from the Western portion of the State. The Eastern brethren are looking for you, and will extend you a royal welcome to their homes in the "City of the Sea."

No more important work has ever been done in the State than the vigorous, earnest canvass which has been made in the interest of EDUCATION.

Dr. Taylor was at a number of the Associations, and his speeches will be remembered by the brethren in the years to come. There has never before been as deep and widespread interest on this subject as now.

Bro. Hilliard has also made a canvass of a large portion of the State in the interest of general education, and for Wake Forest College especially.

The Board of Education has been faithfully represented by Brother Gwaltney. The churches have lost none of their interest in this work, and besides this, several individuals have become interested to the extent of assuming the support of some young men now at College. We hope to see more of this done in the future. Many young men who are preparing for the ministry would greatly prefer an arrangement of this sort, even if they should be required to replace the money after leaving College.

The Orphanage has, we think, been well cared for at our Associations. The brethren always listen to Bro. Mills, whether he speaks on the Orphanage or other subjects. Bro. Edwards is a fine worker, and he never fails to put out his best efforts for the Orphanage.

The brethren have been kind to the representative of the Recorder greatly beyond what he deserves. The Recorder has at all the Associations had a favorite time and place on the program of exercises. The amount of work we have been able to do is the best evidence of the appreciation which the brethren feel for their denominational paper.

Bro. Stringfield came into the canvass late, but not too late to show his fitness for the work for which he has been recently chosen.

Presidents Hobgood and Brewer have made decided efforts for the institutions they represent, and but for the stringency of money matters both of these schools would be filled to their utmost capacities, a condition the institutions richly merit.

J. C. C.

God's harvest never ends, but there are times when it is more plentiful than usual, and we believe the present can be made a great and glorious harvest time, if God's workmen will go into the fields with hope, faith, and determination to win souls. We believe with the Examiner that "periods of great financial depression have almost uniformly been followed by great revivals of religion. Misfortune in business makes men feel their dependence upon God; the loss of treasure on earth is warning to lay up treasures in heaven; the transitoriness of earthly things reminds men of things that are eternal in the heavens." Let us work and let us pray that this season may be one of great blessing to all the churches of our Lord.

We might well call this issue of the Recorder an educational number. Dr. Pritchard resumes his able series of articles in favor of higher education of women, and seems to think that this can only be accomplished by co-education. "Palmetto" takes issue with some of the educational methods of South Carolina, and strengthens his position with an admirable display of irony, sarcasm and logic. We reprint, by request, an excellent article on the State and education by Dr. P. S. Henson. And in her very interesting letter, Miss Simmons sustains in a pleasing manner Dr. Pritchard's argument. All of these articles are well worthy the close study of our readers. While it is very well known how we stand in regard to the question of higher female education, and co education, we do not think best to try to influence the minds of our readers just at this time. It will be far better if they study the present discussion thoroughly, master the various phases of the question, and reach their own conclusion. The question of education in relation to State government is no less important than that of co education. It is one that must be settled shortly, and therefore is more worthy of our immediate attention. Our columns are open to brethren and sisters who have something on either side to say, and know how to say it in few words. Long articles on anything are disagreeable to both reader and editor in these busy times. Again we wish to express the hope that, whatever opinions may be held, personalities and petty flings will not enter into any discussion that may be had through the Recorder. Let the writers argue, and the people will learn; but when they cease arguments, and resort to unseemly references, no good can be done, and they may expect their articles to find a retired corner of our waste basket.

We invite the attention of our readers to the excellent paper on "North Carolina Baptists and Foreign Missions," on our first page. It is a sad fact that recent discussions of Foreign Missions have brought the subject into disrepute. But we are certain that this article is worthy the attention of our readers, and many like it cannot but be of value to the great cause. Interest in a subject so vital to our religion should never wane. We cannot know too much concerning our work in foreign lands, just as we cannot know our duty too well. Foreign Mission work presents a great field for the exercise of Christian duty, and we hope that a difference as to methods will not interfere with our progress.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....An effort is being made to establish a Baptist orphans' home in Alabama.

....We were glad to have Rev. F. H. Poston of Smithfield in our office last week.

....Profs. Poteat, Maske and Sikes of Wake Forest College were in Raleigh last week.

....Rev. J. B. Boone of Windsor, we are glad to learn, is pleasing the eastern saints very much.

....Rev. T. G. Wood has accepted pastorates in the field recently vacated by Dr. Overby of Belcross.

....If you fail to get the Recorder, let us know, and we will do all that is possible to correct the mistake.

....Revs. E. F. Jones and M. P. Mathewney were engaged in a very interesting revival at Gastonia last week.

....We received so many obituaries that we could not publish them all in this issue. They shall have places later.

....Dr. Carroll of Chapel Hill was in Raleigh last week, and made our office two very pleasant visits during his stay.

....Rev. E. J. Adams of Siloam held a revival meeting at Bean Shoals last week, in which fifteen were converted.

....We were pleased to see Prof. F. P. Hobgood in our office last week, and were glad to hear that the prospects of the Seminary are very bright.

....Bro. F. S. Biggs of this city and Miss Leonora Land of Baltimore were united in marriage on the 15th inst. The happy couple have our best wishes.

....The Board of Trustees of Shaw University of this city met in New York City on the 21st to consider the question of the lamented Dr. Tupper's successor.

....Rev. J. F. Love began a series of revival meetings at Suffolk, Va., on the 19th, with "A young man and his opportunities," as the subject for the first sermon.

....We regret to learn that Dr. Daniels, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, is quite ill with typhoid fever. May God grant him a speedy restoration.

....Our brethren and sisters who expect to attend the Baptist State Convention at Elizabeth City will find rates, arrangements and other information in this issue.

....It is urgently necessary that those who will attend the Convention send their names to brethren Aydlett and Ward, of the committee on entertainment, immediately.

....We regret very much that a lack of space prevented us from publishing several interesting communications this week. They shall have places in our next issue.

....The church at High Point, Rev. R. W. Weaver, pastor, has issued neat cards of invitation to regular church services, announcing the themes of the services for the month.

....Rev. A. J. Taylor is recuperating at the Chase City, Va., Lithia Springs, after a summer of labor in the vineyard of the Lord. We are glad to know that the Springs are proving beneficial.

....Are you going to the Convention? If not, you will miss a rare treat. Churches, don't let your pastors want for railroad fare. If you can't give it to him otherwise, let it go as a Christmas present.

....The Young People's Leader is a new paper, published under the auspices of the Sunday-school Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. See their interesting advertisement on another page.

....The minutes of the Raleigh Association are ready for distribution to the churches, and the clerks are requested to call or send to the office of Edwards & Broughton, this city, and get them.

....The interest seems to increase rapidly in the revival services which are being conducted at the Brooklyn Baptist church.—Wilmington Messenger. Rev. H. A. Brown of Winston is aiding Pastor Jenkins in this meeting.

....Rev. R. T. Bryan and family have decided to make Durham, N. C., their home while in America. We had heard that Bro. Bryan had determined to make Raleigh his headquarters, and regret that he has changed his intentions.

....Rev. C. C. Newton, wife and daughter left last week to resume work in Africa. Bro. Newton's stay among us has been very beneficial to the cause in the State, and we know his welfare in Africa will be the object of many prayers.

....Dyspepsia is a compound of gluttony and laziness.—Dr. Broadus. Will our dyspeptic saints—and their name is legion—submit to this? Dr. Broadus is very wise, but such truths as these are dangerous for an old man to pronounce.

....Rev. E. M. Poteat, on a recent Sunday, gave the hand of fellowship to ten new members of Calvary Baptist church, New Haven. His church seems to be growing rapidly in numbers and efficiency.—Baltimore Baptist.

....Rev. A. M. Simms of the Raleigh Tabernacle has added five new subscribers to our list since coming to Raleigh. We believe that our friends will agree with us that there is a growing need for just such pastors as Bro. Simms all over the State.

....Sister M. T. Yates sailed for China on the 21st, after a stay in this country of about six months, which was greatly enjoyed by her many friends all over the State. She will be followed to China by the earnest prayers and good wishes of the Baptist hosts.

....We were happy to have Dr. J. A. Mundy of Greenville, S. C., with us last week. Bro. Mundy is looking well, and we feel that, though many years of usefulness are behind him, many more await his future. Dr. Mundy preached at Wilson on Sunday last.

....We are glad to know that Robeson Institute, the beneficiary of the late lamented Bro. J. A. Melke, is still progressing finely. Prof. Duckett writes that they now have 125 students enrolled, and that in a long experience he has never taught a more industrious and orderly school.

....Rev. Chas. F. Deems, D. D., LL. D., of the Church of the Strangers of New York City, died on Saturday night last. He spent some part of his life in North Carolina, but attained his highest prominence in New York. He is well known as editor and author of many valuable works.

....We wish to thank many of our friends for responding to our reminders. They have done us a great favor. There are very many others, from whom we haven't yet heard, but we hope that in the next few days they will let us have part of the amount due on back subscriptions and their renewals.

....A brother asked us last week to wait on him for his subscription, saying that he needed his money at present to pay his pastor and his church dues. He is right; a debt to the Lord takes precedence over all others, and as there is no way of enforcing payment, it should always be paid first and most freely.

....Rev. G. W. Gardiner writes from Kissimmee, Fla., that he is greatly pleased with his new field, and likens it unto the Goldsboro pastorate, and says the church is active and united, and "I know I can do good here," which is likewise a deserved compliment to the Goldsboro brethren and sisters.

....The protracted meetings that have been carried on at Dillsboro and River Hill for the past two weeks have closed. There were a good many conversions at both places. Last Sunday four converts were baptised at the Webster bridge.—Dillsboro Cor. of Waynesville Courier. We have not learned by whom the meeting was conducted.

....Jno. D. Rockefeller has made another great gift to the University of Chicago, being his fourth donation. It amounts to $500,000, and makes the sum total of his gifts to the University, $3,250,000. Think of it! One man has given to one institution within five years sixteen times as much money as Wake Forest has received in nearly sixty years of existence. It strikes us that Bro. Rockefeller is suffering from centralization of beneficence, and the University of Chicago has a malady, to which we all are prone, had best not call names.

....Bro. W. E. Atkins of Cary writes that the work in that place is prospering, and gives as good evidence that the Cary members are pledged more for Missions next year than ever before.

....The RECORDER must have the addresses of the following brethren and sisters before their requests can be attended to: Jesse Suggs, R. H. McManus, L. T. Shearin, R. D. Price, W. G. Harris, and G. W. McGinnis.

....Rev. C. A. Jenkins of Goldsboro was engaged in a series of meetings last week at Scotland Neck. Pastor Vann announced on Monday night that the object of the meeting was to eliminate the ungodly element from the church as well as to gather in the unsaved. A good meeting was held.

....The church at Roxboro has recalled Rev. J. H. Lamberth of Greenville to their pastorate. This is a compliment that is seldom bestowed on a pastor, and is a manifestation of the high estimate placed on Bro. Lamberth by a people whom he had served so long. He has not made known his decision as to the call.

....Rev. Geo. Wharton, pastor at Waynesville, and editor of the Western N. C. Baptist, has accepted a call to Corinth, Miss., much to the regret of his many friends in this State. Bro. Wharton has done a good work in our State, and his departure is a severe loss to our Western brethren. Eighteen candidates joined the Waynesville church on the 12th.

....The Wilkesboro Chronicle says: "The new Baptist church near Eschol, which has been named Edgewood, is nearing completion. It is expected to be completed this week, and there will be preaching there for the first time next Sunday by Rev. J. W. Birchett. It is one of the best and neatest churches in the county, and those people deserve credit for building such an edifice of worship."

....Rev. W. C. Tyree of Durham writes of the recent revival that his church has experienced: "We closed last week our meeting, which continued for nearly three weeks. There were many conversions—we did not count them. The church was thoroughly interested in the work, and received a great blessing I trust. I never saw such plain and unmistakable manifestations of the Spirit's power. We all feel the Lord was with us." Dr. Felix of Lynchburg, Va., was expected to aid in this meeting, but was prevented by the illness of his mother.

....Rev. M. L. Kesler preached his farewell sermon here, as pastor, to a crowded house last Sunday night. While his sermons here have always been strong and clear, this was the supreme effort of his pastorate. Without mincing his words he exposed with unsparing hand the vice and sin that are rampant and pointed the people to righteousness and truth. The sermon will not be lost. It was good seed and it was sown in good ground. The whole community follows this grand preacher with its best wishes.—Wadesboro Messenger.

....Rev. E. Ellis Blount of Clyde writes: "The Lord has been good to me, especially during the last year. There have been above fifty additions to my churches. Others await baptism. Jonathan's Creek is getting ready material to build a house of worship at a mission station. Clyde has put up a neat five room pastor's home. Bethel has under way a church house. With this material work there are signs of spiritual heart work. God be praised. Our whole country has been blessed with good revivals. We lose a friend in Bro. Wharton of Waynesville. He is strong in head and heart. But God who takes him will give a man in his place. The Western Convention is hopeful. A year of promise is before it."

....We feel very grateful to our people for the many kind words said of the RECORDER lately, and we assure the writers that we appreciate them all. "Kind words never die." We print below extracts from these letters, selected from hundreds which are especially gratifying, coming as they do from subscribers of long experience. Says Bro. Theo. Evans of Brunt, Cumberland county: "I have now entered on my seventy-fourth year, and have been a subscriber to the RECORDER fifty years, and shall be as long as I live. Long live the RECORDER, and may the good Master spare it many years to defend his cause." Sister M. A. Rayborn of Wake Forest writes: "I have almost reached the seventieth round in the ladder of time, and for a large portion of my life the RECORDER has been a companion, and has helped me to pass over a great many rough places in safety." Prof. John Duckett of Lumberton writes: "I came to North Carolina twenty years ago. The first paper I subscribed for was the RECORDER, and I have been a constant reader of it ever since. In these twenty years it has grown a great deal, and is better now than ever before." We are sure our readers will pardon us for printing such encouraging words.

Board of Missions and Sunday-schools.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Missions and Sunday-schools in the Mission Rooms in this city, Dec. 4th (Monday), at 7 o'clock p. m.

Sandy Creek Union Meeting.

This body will hold its next session with the church at Siler City, Chatham county, beginning on Friday before the fifth Sunday in December, 1893. G. L. MERRELL.

Our last Union Meeting was poorly attended. G. L. M.

In ordering goods, or in making inquiry concerning anything advertised in this paper, you will confer a favor by mentioning the fact that you saw the advertisement in the RECORDER.

Board of Education and the Convention.

It seems now that the Board will have to report a debt at the Conventon. And we fear it will be so large that we shall have to refuse help to many who are applying for aid during the Spring term. Many churches had failed to meet their pledges to the Board when their Associations met. And the work done last year and the work begun this year was undertaken on the faith in these pledges. Will not every church and individual send up all unpaid pledges, if possible, by the meeting of the Convention.

THE CHURCHES OF CHARLOTTE.

I have not found any church in better condition than the two churches in Charlotte. Besides liberal contributions to the Education Board by these churches. Two members of Tryon Street church and the pastor and one of the members of the Trade Street church assumed each the support of a young man. Rev. J. Y. Hedgepeth of the Robeson Association also is supporting one. And last week in Monroe while attending the Union Association, I found another brother who undertake the support of another. Are there not many brethren and sisters in the State who will write me that they too will carry one each. Its costs nine dollars per month. You who have not been called to preach the glorious gospel that saved you can thus preach it through others.

W. R. GWALTNEY.

To be Saved by Three Hundred.

History repeats itself. More than three thousand years ago the Lord said, "By three hundred men will I save you," and by just that number Gideon was saved, and the victory was complete. On November 16th "three hundred men were selected, only the best were taken, and into the hands of each of them, as you will see below, was put a trumpet and an empty pitcher with a lamp therein, and they were asked to do a most important and difficult work. They are to blow with their trumpets, to brake, before their churches, the pitcher, to flash the light on State Missions, and to secure one dollar from each member able to pay this additional amount to this work this year, and thus save the Board from debt and our missionaries from real distress. By these three hundred faithful preachers the people will be reached and we hope three thousand secured. Picked men never foil. There has been raised of "the $3,000 named below, since the date of the letter, $1,341.18. Total amount raised for State Missions this year, $11,184 40. Amount still needed, $3,815 60. But to the letter:

"RALEIGH, N. C., November 16, 1893.

My Dear Brother:—The Board of Missions needs your attention and aid at once. We wish to reach your people through you. Of the $15,000 needed for State Missions this year, the Treasurer has received $9,843 27. All of the Associations have been held, but the reports from some of them are not in hand. We think about $2,000 more will be received. Certainly not more than that amount. This will make it necessary for the Board to secure $3 429 68, in addition to the $2,000 referred to above, or report a debt to the Convention. If every pastor will tell his people about these needs, and secure one dollar from each member who is able to give it, the total amount will be secured.

We know you and your people have aided this work this year, but we most earnestly ask you and them to render this extra aid just now. Please do what you can, all you can, and at once, and forward the same to J. D. Boushall, or send it to the Convention at Elizabeth City.

Last year we wrote to more than 3,000 individuals, and received more than $2,000. This year we write only to pastors; and, too, only to such pastors we believe will now aid us. We select three hundred of the best Hence we write to you as one of the three hundred. In behalf of the Board,

C. DURHAM,
Corresponding Secretary.

Worthville, Liberty and Randleman

Dear Bro. Bailey:—My meeting began at Worthville on the third Sunday in October. Bro. John A. Summey was with me all the time for a week and did good, old-fashioned preaching. During the meeting there were eight or ten conversions. Four joined the church and were baptized. The meeting was a success, notwithstanding the rain.

I went to Liberty on Monday, Oct. 23rd. Bro. Carrick went to Liberty on Saturday; but owing to the rain, the meeting did not begin until Monday evening. Bro. Carrick did all the preaching until Friday morning, when he had to leave. His preaching was very good and the congregations were very much interested. He is one of our best preachers. I continued the meeting until Sunday night. The meeting was a grand success—one of the best ever held in Liberty. There were ten or twelve conversions. On Sunday evening I baptized five in Cox's pond in the presence of a large crowd. On Sunday night I gave a lecture to those just baptized on the subject of baptism. At the close of the services I received a young man for baptism, making six received, and more to follow. To God be all the glory.

In Randleman there was a beautiful and impressive baptism on Sunday night, Nov. 12th. I baptized eight—men, women and boys—in the presence of a packed house. I don't think I ever saw a more enjoyable baptism. All seemed to enjoy the scene very much. Our cause is in a very prosperous condition in Randleman. This baptism was the result of the recent meeting here.

Baptist State Convention—Time of Meeting.

The Baptist State Convention meets at Elizabeth City Dec. 7-11.

C. DURHAM.

Our Virginia Brethren in Convention.

[Condensed from the Richmond Dispatch.]

FIRST DAY.

The General Association met in Roanoke, Va., Nov. 11th, 1893. The meeting was opened with prayer by Dr. C. C. Bitting, Secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society. The President announced the usual committees, and there was a season of devotional exercises, in which Revs. J. R. Bagby, J. C. Hiden, and James Nelson led in prayer.

EDUCATIONAL BOARD

Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, the Corresponding Secretary, presented a most interesting report of the Educational Board.

The Board has under its care forty-five young men, twelve of whom are pursuing their studies at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, and thirty three at Richmond College.

The report incorporates a synopsis of the Treasurer's report as follows:

Our Treasurer's report shows that at the beginning of the year we had a cash balance on hand of ..... $ 809 18
Received during the year 6,032 55

Making a total of $6,841 73
Expended during the year 6,356 23

Bal. on hand Oct. 31, 1823 ..... $ 485 50

We owed at the close of last session, $3,000; $1,800 on account of board of students at Richmond College, and $1,200 for the board of students at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. To pay the most pressing of these obligations, we were compelled during the latter part of June to borrow $1,800. Out of the receipts of the Board since July 1st, we have been enabled to pay the $1,809 borrowed, and a part of the amount due the Seminary, but we still owe the Seminary $857.82 on account of the board of students for the last two sessions. The amount in the treasury is not more than enough to pay what is due for the board of our beneficiaries for the first month of the current session, so that we enter upon the work of the new year with the indebtedness of nearly $900, and without any balance in the treasury for the expenses of the present year.

WORTHY MEN.

Rev. Dr. C. H. Corey, President of the Richmond Institute for colored Baptist preachers, was called out, and made a very interesting speech.

GLORIOUS SUCCESS.

Rev. F. H. Kerfoot, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, next spoke in reference to the Seminary. He said that the Seminary, though located at Louisville, was the property of Virginia Baptists as well as others, and he came to give an account of his stewardship. He was glad to say that it is no longer proper as in days gone by when speaking of the Seminary, to draw a dark picture of dire necessity, but that he could come with a report of glorious success. The Seminary has now fully paid for buildings costing $250,000. Besides the value of the superb lots in the heart of the city of Louisville, it also has invested interest-bearing funds amounting to $400.000, besides a recent gift of $70,000 for the endowment of the President's Chair, which gift will soon be realized in cash, and turned into the endowment, so that it will not be long before the Seminary would have $500,000 in invested endowment. But the Seminary needs more endowments, that it may have more professors, and even better faculties. They have now 250 students, all of them, of course, theological students, and the number is steadily increasing, and will at no distant day reach at least 500.

PERSONAL CONTRIBUTION.

Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson explained the causes of the deficit, and the necessity of meeting at least the part which is due the Students' Aid Fund of the Seminary.

Rev. Dr. W. E. Hatcher, President of the Board, made a brief statement, and in his felicitous style engineered a collection to meet the deficit. The collection amounted to $850, lacking only $100 of being the full amount asked.

STATE MISSION BOARD.

The report of the Education Board was adopted, and after prayer by Dr. John Pollard, Mr. William Ellyson, Corresponding Secretary, read the report of the State Mission Board.

The report of the State Mission Board, says: In the last ten years the net increase in the membership in the State was 25,782. In this time the missionaries baptized into the church 9,712 converts, and aided pastors in meetings in which 18,665 other persons professed faith. During the same period there was an increase of 142 white Baptist churches in Virginia, and the missionaries organized 94 new churches.

Seventy missionaries are employed. And from a tabulated abstract of their labors hereto annexed it will be seen that our missionaries occupied 189 stations, preached 6,619 sermons, baptized 971 converts, aided pastors in meetings in which 1,969 others professed faith in Christ, made 13,050 visits for religious conversation and prayer, organized 26 new Sunday-schools, 8 new churches, completed 6 new houses of worship, and are engaged in the erection of 18 others.

The receipts for State Missions for the year ending October 31, 1893, were $11,598 53, which, with the balance on hand, $1,500 68, Nov. 1, 1892, made our available resources for the year, $13,099 21. The Treasurer paid out on account of this Board the fiscal year the following sums:

Salaries of missionaries	$10,993 40
Printing and postage	70 16
Interest	16 50
Traveling expenses of Cor. Sec.	65 20
Pro rata share of expenses of General Association	221 71
Total	$11,366 97

Leaving a balance of $1,732.24 to our credit Nov. 1, 1894—the amount received being $670.29 less than the contributions for the year previous.

The report was discussed by Mr. William Ellyson, Dr. George Cooper, Rev. J. M. Luck, Rev. J. V. Dickinson, Rev. C. A. Woodson, Rev. T. B Shepherd, Professor C. L. Cocke, and Dr. W. E. Hatcher.

This afternoon there was a meeting of the Virginia Historical Society in the Sunday-school room, and a meeting of the young people in the church. The Historical Society was addressed by Dr. C. C. Bitting in a very interesting and practical talk. The young people organized a State Union.

FOR STATE MISSIONS.

The house was packed again to-night at the mass meeting for State Missions. Dr. Cooper presided over the meeting, and after reading the Scriptures, Rev. Alfred Bagby led in prayer. Prof. H. H. Harris made a request that in all of the pulpits to morrow there should be special prayer for young men in the colleges, and that the "week of prayer" begin to-morrow. He stated that of the ninety five students boarding at Richmond College ninety of them were church members, and of the seventy others about fifty of them were church-members, so that of the 170 students, 140 are church-members. He eloquently appealed for earnest prayer for these college students and for all of the schools and colleges.

Rev. Dr. T. S. Dunaway was the first speaker in the mass-meeting. He was followed by Revs. G. W. Kilgore and Dr. W. W. Landrum.

SECOND DAY.

After the Association was called to order, Rev. Julian Broaddus, from the Committee on New Boards, reported three names as nominees to fill each vacancy in the Board of Trustees of the orphanage.

M. Morris, from the Board of Trustees of the Southwestern Virginia Institute, presented a proposition tendering to the General Association the control, and direction of that splendid property, by filling vacancies in the Board of Trustees. Mr. Morris offered a resolution to the effect that the property and franchises be accepted, and that a committee, of which the President shall be Chairman, be appointed to procure such amendments to the charter as may be necessary to make legal this action. Rev. J. R. Harrison made a very interesting statement of the origin and history of the institute from its humble beginning at Glade Springs to the splendid buildings and beautiful and ample grounds, with their 120 boarding pupils at Bristol.

On motion the whole matter was referred to a committee of seven to report at this meeting. Mr. Walter Sydnor, of Richmond, offered a resolution to the effect that a committee of seven be appointed to report next year as to whether it was desirable, and practicable to consolidate the Sunday-school and the Bible boards with the State Mission Board, and if found desirable and practicable to report the method of consolidation, and otherwise to report any desirable changes in the methods of the Boards.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Mr. Norvel Ryland, Treasurer of the General Association, presented his report.

It shows that the collections for the year have been: For State Missions, $11,598 53; Sunday-school and Bible Board, $5,722 99; Education Board, $6,032.55; Foreign Mission Board, $23,006 11; Home Mission Board, $11,547 30; Ministers' Relief Fund, $2,658.21—total, $60,565 79.

Rev. Dr. C. H. Ryland read the report of the Committee on Co operation. The reports states that the aggregate receipts for the past year had been $3,644 38, but that this increase had been in the contributions to the Boards of the Convention, there being a slight decrease in contributions to several State Boards. The report spoke in strong terms of commendation of the efficient work of the woman's societies.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Pilcher, Corresponding Secretary, read the report of the Sunday-school and Bible Board.

The report gives a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures, showing the receipts from the churches $5,999.23; from sales, $7,340.56; from the Sunday-school Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, $100; small gifts, $18 71, and balance on hand November 1, 1893, $110.70—making the total this year, $13,358.50.

GOOD SPEECHES.

Rev. Dr. H. W. Battle, of Petersburg, President of the Board, made an eloquent and effective presentation of the needs and and works of the Board, especially in its colportage work of distributing the Bible, tracts, and good books. Rev. Dr. J. C. Hiden made one of his inimitable speeches, full of humor and with telling points, and closed with a pathetic incident of his own conversion through the instrumentality of a tract given him by a fellow-cadet at the Virginia Military Institute. Rev. Dr. Pilcher gave some illustrations of the destitution all over Virginia, and of how this Board is meeting it. He made an earnest plea for more money with which to do the work in Virginia. Professor Edmond Harrison told a striking incident illustrating the necessity of colportage.

HOME MISSIONS.

The report of the Home Mission Board, located at Lynchburg, in co-operation with the same Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, written by Mr. C. B. Fleet, Corresponding Secretary, was read by Rev. George E. Truett. The report brings out the fact and the figures given by the Home Board, located at Atlanta, showing their work in the territory lying in the region from Maryland to Texas, and from Florida to Missouri.

Dr. J. William Jones, late Assistant Secretray of the Home Board, called out his successor, B. F. McConnell, from the mountains of North Georgia, and spoke of him in warmest terms of commendation. This was Mr. McConnell's first appearance before the General Association, and more than fulfilled the bright prophesy of his friends.

An invitation from the Virginia Institute, Roanoke, to attend an entertainment was received, and the President was instructed to return thanks and regrets that the business of the body would not allow its acceptance.

MINISTERS' RELIEF FUND.

In the afternoon Mr. T. H. Ellett, President of the Board of Trustees, read the report on Ministers' Relief Fund.

In the year ending October 1, 1891, we received from the churches $3,288 58; for the year ending 1892, $2,300. A like comparison of disbursements for beneficiaries shows for the year 1891, $3,588.75; for the year 1892, $2,947.25, and for the last year, $3,170. For the last two years we have spent more for beneficiaries than the churches have given us. Last year our disbursements to the needy were $870, in excess of our receipts from the churches. Had it not been for our permanent investment fund there would have been suffering unrelieved, great mortification to your Trustees, and grave reflection upon the generosity and justice of the Baptist brotherhood.

The balance in bank to the credit of the fund October 31, 1893, was $40 69.

LAST DAY.

November 14.—After devotional exercises the reading of the minutes showed that last night's collection for the Orphanage amounted to $1,365 16.

Rev. E. W. Winfrey reported on the time, place, and preacher for the next session—time, Tuesday after the second Sunday in November, 1894; place, Alexandria; preacher, J. M. McManaway; alternate, F. W. Claybrooke. Adopted.

Mr. Ryland was unanimously re elected Treasurer.

C. H. Ryland, J. Taylor Ellyson, and R. H. Pollard are appointed a committee to secure from the Legislature a modification of the charter for the Southwest Virginia Female Institute at Bristol.

GENERAL EDUCATION.

Rev. W. W. Landrum read the report on general education. The report brings out the fact that Richmond College gives regular and systematic instructions in the Bible.

Rev. Robert Ryland was invited to address the Association. He spoke both humorously and instructively. At the suggestion of Rev. J. R. Harrison, the hymn "How firm a foundation" was sung, and the preachers who have studied under Robert Ryland all came to the platform and shook hands with the venerable ex President of Richmond College.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Rev. Eldridge Hatcher led in prayer. Mr. William Ellyson read the report of the Central Committee of Woman's Work in Missions. They report $10,000 raised this year. Twenty seven new societies have been organized.

Rev. Dr. W. W. Landrum spoke and pointed out that during the past year the sisters have doubled their contributions to benevolent objects.

Mr. E. B. Hatcher reported 260 as the number of delegates present at the Association meeting.

After a beautiful parting address from J. H. Wright of Roanoke, the Association adjourned to meet in Alexandria on Tuesday after the second Sunday of November, 1894.

Thanksgiving—How Shall We Have It?

The Baptist State Convention, at its session in Raleigh, Dec. 6—13, 1893, adopted unanimously the following:

"We recommend that each Baptist church in this State hold a special service in their own house of worship on 'Thanksgiving Day' of each year, and take a collection in cash and kind for our Orphanage at Thomasville."

The object of the above was four fold, viz:

1. To discontinue, so far as Baptist churches are concerned, the present almost profitless "Union" Thanksgiving services in this State;

2. To make "Thanksgiving Day," if we are to have it all, mean something helpful to our churches and the people in general;

3. To develop a larger number of our pastors in preaching special sermons which present the duty, importance and influences of genuine thanksgiving; and

4. To secure practical aid, in cash and kind, for our Orphanage at Thomasville.

I clip the following from the Wilmington Messenger of Nov. 11th, 1893:

"HOME FOLKS.

"The Governor appoints November 30th as Thanksgiving Day. In Wilmington for a long time an union service has been held in one church edifice and not a full attendance at that. All the uniting congregations have not been able to fill one building. This shows want of interest and that people prefer to worship in their own buildings with their own people. Probably if this year all of the churches should be open and suitable religious services should be held, the aggregate attendance would be very much larger than heretofore. The experiment is well worth trying. We would suppose that each pastor would be glad to conduct services on an occasion like Thanksgiving to Almighty Father which appeals to every Christian heart and to every well regulated citizen."

The recommendation of our Convention and these words from the Messenger are timely. Now, let every Baptist church in the State arrange for its own Thanksgiving services in its own house of worship, be conducted by its own pastor, if possible, and let all the people have an opportunity to attend and take part in the services.

Of South-Carolina.

THE RECORDER CALLED TO ACCOUNT—THE WOMEN AND THE SCHOOLS—THE BAPTIST COURIER AND THE WOMEN, ETC—WAKE FOREST AND THE WOMEN—A GREAT REVOLUTION.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—A week or two ago you made some allusion in the RECORDER to the way we were doing things in South Carolina, referring to us in the following language:—

"Verily South Carolina is the home of innovations and experiments. It was not long since that our brethren of that State opened the doors of Furman University to women, and now the Courier is in favor of consolidating Greenville Female College with that University. We are not sufficiently acquainted with South Carolina conditions to speak on this subject, but we feel no hesitancy in expressing the hope that God may spare Wake Forest College from Furman's fate yet many years. We are in favor of higher female education, we want our girls to have equal preparation for life as our boys, but would rather wait for our Female University several years than resort to 'consolidation' or co education."

Do you not think that you are rather hard on us? I have great confidence, not only in your fairness, but in your sound judgment of men and things in general. I am persuaded, however, that you and many of the older brethren are behind the times, and that you do us great injustice when you speak of our progress as innovations and experiments. Now hear me, and see if I am not correct.

THE WOMEN AND FURMAN UNIVERSITY.

It would never have done to have allowed things to wag along as they were, and so our smart faculty opened the University to a few of the strong-minded who came tapping at the door, and what a furor we made when they got in. We made the welkin ring shouting their names. Now we are in for it, and you never saw such times as we are going to have among the Baptists of this State. Consolidation of Furman University and the Greenville Female College is to follow next, and we never expect to stop this thing until every school in the State is opened to the women. The State has a big new school built for the farmers' sons, called Clemson College, and though it is crowded to its utmost capacity with young men, we shall have its doors opened to the women and give them a chance to learn scientific farming. Heretofore we have been laboring to educate our women to be wives and mothers, but the plan is to relegate the men to this sphere of great usefulness and push the women to the front. The old South Carolina College, with all of its time honored associations, shall not escape, and we expect to have our next legislature open her doors to the women. In order that you may not misunderstand, I desire to say that the women are not doing this work, and I suppose that comparatively few of them will avail themselves of the privileges we offer, but a few men, who have the itch for novelty and variety, are leading the rest of us, and we are following like dumb-driven cattle. These fellows glory in having heralded abroad what they have done, and we have no more sense than to "whoop them up."

The only thing that alarms us in the least is the mortal dread lest the women should turn the tables on us, and open up their schools to the boys and give them an equal chance with the girls. If this is done, you may look out for our male schools to be emptied, and Cooper Limestone to overflow and the State girls' school which is being put up at Rock Hill. Already some of the women are saying that they believe that the minds of men are equal to the minds of the women, and they can see no reason for not domesticating them. It will be so nice to have our boys learn art, fancy work, housekeeping, picking on the guitar, banging the piano, &c., and how fathers and mothers will rejoice to see their sons crocheting and entertaining the folks during vacation, while the girls attend to matters more consonant with the new order of things! You say "We feel no hesitancy in expressing the hope that God may spare Wake Forest College from Furman's fate yet many years." If so, Wake Forest will be behind the times, but of one thing you may feel assured, she will graduate many a South Carolina boy who would have taken his diploma at Furman but for our progress. She may count on my son, though I have never tired of giving to Furman when calls were made for her endowment, but I thought I was giving to a male college.

THE WOMEN IN GENERAL.

Now we give you and all Baptists within our State and without it, to understand that her sphere is greatly enlarged, and if she desires to speak in the churches, she may do so; for our organ, the Baptist Courier, of a few weeks ago has said so, and that ends the matter; for we always do just exactly what the Courier tells us to do. But you say what of Paul? That has nothing to do with it. This is a day of progress, and the Lord's people did not have an organ to direct them in apostolic days. We have outgrown Paul's directions, anyway. If he lived in this day of enlightenment, he would change his mind and look at it as the Courier does; if he did not, so much the worse for him, inspiration or no inspiration. I must repeat and insist upon having you to understand that the good women are not doing all this business. No, not at all. It is a pack of we fool men, who are getting so progressive and smart that the Lord himself fails to instruct us.

One thing seems in our way. We argue that a woman can do anything that a man can do, and it is so. She can plough, split rails, be conductor, engineer, brakeman, fireman, lawyer, Governor, President, professor, lecturer, preacher, policeman, boy, soldier, but one old fool thing she cannot do, and that is nor throw a rock, and another old gray-headed Baptist preacher had the brass to lift his hat to one of the strong-minded, and say, "I grant, madam, that there are many things that a woman can do that men do, but there is not thing she can not and never will be able to do." "What is that?" said the strong minded. "Madam, she can never be the husband of a wife nor the father of a family." This is the next problem for our smart men to solve, and they will soon attack it with every confidence of success. South Carolina can solve it. Meet us in our Convention in Anderson next week, and you will learn a few things. We are on the eve of great and revolutionary changes. The Publication Society business; the new phase of the whiskey business which has taken such a turn as to make it altogether possible for church members, and even preachers, to sell the vile stuff without contamination; the woman question; consolidation; Arminianism vs. Calvinism; all these things make us feel that something is going to happen in South Carolina, and that all the Baptist world will follow our lead. The days of secession come back to me afresh, and I am thrilled and excited now as then. Already I can see the little corporals and captains and colonels and generals strutting around in the Baptist ranks with their plumes and cockades, crying, "Our rights and the womens rights," and trying to arouse all the rest who lie supinely upon their backs. What a noisy set we are, and what a big thrashing it will take to set us in our proper places, and to hush our big mouths! May the Lord send it, and send it speedily by the hand of whomsoever he will.

PALMETTO.

Boiling Springs, S. C.

Letter from Eufaula, Ala., by Miss Simmons.

When requested by your travelling agent to "write us a letter as often as you can spare the time," I laughingly answered that unless he would accept a treatise on nostalgia I really would not know what to say, as, in my new home, there would be nothing of local interest to the readers of the RECORDER.

I have been so absorbed in my work, and have been the recipient of so much kindness and hospitality from the people of Eufaula, that I have not had the experience requisite to a dissertation on nostalgia. I shall, therefore, ask the privilege of writing a somewhat personal letter to my friends in North Carolina.

I had been told before leaving home that Eufaula was the loveliest of the smaller Southern cities, and I am quite prepared to accept the statement. It is certainly the most beautiful city of its size I have ever seen. It is situated on a high bluff, at the foot of which winds the Chattahooche river. There are many handsome residences, and the semi tropical foliage and romantic river scenery form an exquisite setting for this urban gem. The people are refined and cultured, and are the embodiment of Southern hospitality. They are greatly interested in the welfare of the school and the success of the present admistration, and have given us a most cordial welcome.

Union Female College was established forty years ago. The college and grounds present an exceedingly attractive appearance, being situated on the highest point overlooking the city.

The building is handsomely furnished, every room being carpeted and furnished with dainty white and gilt furniture, a single bed being provided for each pupil. The Conservatory of Music and Art, a $20,000 building, is indeed a "thing of beauty."

There is a home atmosphere pervading the place which is something unique for a boarding school. In fact, it seems more like one large family, and we are especially fond of calling it our "school home."

The teachers, ten in number, spend a part of every evening with the pupils in the library, and, by a sort of object lesson, as it were, try to inspire in them a noble ideal of the home and of cultured womanhood.

I am especially delighted with the attention paid to physical culture. This department, which has been so sadly neglected throughout the South, is considered quite an innovation here, but is meeting a most enthusiastic reception, and the improved physique of the young ladies is already apparent.

Let none of the Wake Forest people (than whom there are none dearer or lovelier in all the world) feel aggrieved at my enthusiasm, or for one moment suppose that I am losing sight of the friends and days of "auld lang syne." Wake Forest will always be the mecca of the universe to every Baptist tar heel, and my thoughts are often with you there. But I am happy in my work.

There are few things which appeal to me so strongly as

HIGHER FEMALE EDUCATION.

And that is the cause for which we are working—to establish an institution for the higher education of Southern girls.

"Do something for girls," said Matthew Vassar's neice, as she lay dying. And these feeble words of a dying girl were instrumental in founding Vassar College. I would that, however feeble my tongue or pen, I might say something which would find an echo in the hearts of others, and arouse them to the importance of doing something for the higher education of girls.

I think I become more interested in the subject, as I realize more and more the wonderful mechanism of the human intellect and the vast power of education.

As I stood in machinery hall in Jackson Park and watched the great Corliss engine; again, as I passed along the aisles of that modern fairy-land, the Electricity Building, or sped over the waters in the electric launch, my first thought was, "What hath God wrought;" my second was, "What a glorious thing is the human intellect, that even the elements obey it—greater than all the forces of nature, since all have been brought in subjection to it."

For ages the giant force, electricity, lay slumbering, until awakened by the touch of science, it has thrilled the earth with its power. So the intellect lies dormant, unconscious of its latent possibilities, until the hand of the magician—the magister—breaks the spell of ignorance and leads it into the fair kingdom of knowledge.

We recognize the necessity of the greatest caution in tampering with the forces of nature. Yet we see the most criminal carelessness in the training of the mind which is a greater power, and yet more delicate.

Talmage compares a woman's mind to a knife with many blades, which she has never learned to handle.

Matthew Vassar says, "It occurred to me that woman, having received from her Creator the same intellectual constitution as man, has the same right as man to intellectual culture and development."

"Verbum sapientibus satis."

With love and best wishes for all my friends in the Old North State.

Bethel Church in Person County.

Dear Recorder:—Rev. J. A. Beam, pastor of Bethel church, Person county, N. C., began a series of meetings on Oct. 15th, 1893. Rev. W. F. Watson of Roxboro was with us and did the preaching. He preached the gospel, and it found a lodging place in many a heart. It was a spiritual feast to this community to have Bro. Watson with us. Eleven were added to the church, which were greatly revived. The pastor's heart was made to rejoice in the success of this meeting. May God's richest blessings rest on both pastor and people.

We regret very much to know that Bro. Watson has resigned his churches in this county, but if he feels it his duty to accept a call to another field, we can but bid him God's speed and pray for his success in his new field. May he win many precious souls to Christ and at last receive the reward of the faithful.

BETHEL HILL INSTITUTE.

While I am writing, I cannot help speaking of the school at this place, known as Bethel Hill Institute. It is without doubt one of the best schools in the State. As this is my second year here, I feel perfectly safe in what I say of this school. Rev. J. A. Beam, the principal, is doing a grand work training those that are under his care. This school trains not only the mind but the heart also. It has been said that an educated fool is the biggest fool in the world. This is only the result of training the mind and neglecting the heart. Every teacher should try Bro. Beam's plan and teach the Word of God in the schools above all other books. When this plan is carried out, we will have a God fearing nation and a God serving people.

For Dyspepsia and Nervousness,
Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. Angelo Festorazzi, Mobile, Ala., says: "It affords me extreme pleasure to be able to announce to the public, that in my hands Horsford's Acid Phosphate brings about results that it claims. It is excellent to the taste, promotes digestion, quiets and restores to healthful vigor the nervous system in such a happy manner, that for dyspepsia, wakefulness and nervousness I know nothing that may be claimed is equal."

Ordination of Bro. L. W. Overby.

At the request of a church in Nash county, a presbytery consisting of T. J. Taylor, R. Van Deventer, G. W. Harman and J. K. Fant were invited to meet at the Warren Plains church, November 5th, 1893, to consider the propriety of setting apart Bro. L. W. Overby to the office of the gospel ministry. Bro. Taylor was chosen chairman, Bro. Fant, secretary.

After examination as to Christian experience, call to the ministry and doctrinal views, it was decided to proceed with the ordination. Bro. Fant preached the sermon, Bro. Harman delivered the charge, Bro. Van Deventer presented the Bible, Bro. Taylor led the ordaining prayer, and Bro. Overby pronounced the benediction.

The services were quite enjoyable, and our young brother goes forth with the sincere congratulations of his brethren, and their earnest prayers for his success.

A Burning Question.

Very likely the writer of this screed is a heretic, and therefore deserves to be burned at the stake. Almost certain is he to be roasted by the critics, and to be impaled on the point of a pen before the fire of public indignation is quite as savage a punishment as being "done to a turn" on an old-fashioned "spit."

It is a perilous thing to question the claims of a popular idol, and the iconoclast is apt to fare as did Paul at Ephesus, when the populace, instead of answering his challenge, were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." And they gathered in riotous assemblage in the theatre, and "some cried one thing and some another; for the assembly was confused, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together."

No matter about the merits of the issue involved; each man had a pair of lungs, and he used them for two mortal hours, shouting at the top of his bent, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." We have our American Diana which, if it did not come down "from Jupiter," at least descended from our illustrious "forefathers," and that is undoubtedly a much bigger thing.

* * * * *

Whatever may be true of despotic forms of government, it is absolutely certain that a republic like ours cannot long withstand the shocks to which it is inevitably subjected, unless it have a solid substratum of morality and religion. Now, it is popularly imagined that morality and religion universally advance part passu with what is called "intelligence." Knowledge is held to be synonomous with light, and light is held to be the sovereign specific for crime, which is said to hide its head in ignorance, and reek and revel only in the dark.

There is a knowledge of which this may be affirmed, and it is such knowledge as the Great Teacher referred to when he said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." But his reference was not at all to the rudimentary "three R's," nor to the learned "ologies." Long time ago the wisest of men very solemnly declared that "he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow," and undoubtedly it increases man's capacity for criminality, unless it be sanctified and ennobled by religion. "Knowledge is power," and so is dynamite, but everything depends upon the use it is put to.

A great writer has aptly said that "education without religion doth only make men closer devils." And that leads me to suggest the Devil himself, the mighty leader of the hos's of hell, has never been suspected of being much of an ignoramus. He is a subtler metaphysician than Aristotle or Sir William Hamilton, a better astronomer than any of the savants that lately had such fun with the comet, and is a better linguist than the accomplished president of the University of Chicago, for he is equally at home in all the languages of earth—but he is still the Devil for all that, yea, he is all the more the Devil for all that.

* * * * *

Our government is controlled by the suffrages of our citizens, and there must be popular education enough to enable them intelligently to cast their ballots, else they will be delivered over to the tender mercies of unscrupulous demagogues who will lead them blindly to their own undoing. So much of education the government is bound to provide for its own self preservation. But beyond this rudimentary training we solemnly protest that the state or the nation has no business to go. And this protest may be justified by irrefutable reasons. If what is called the "higher education" be not essential to the salvation of the state, and this has already been sufficiently shown, then it can only be given on the ground that ours is a "paternal government," whose business it is to see to the uttermost development of its citizens in all the manifold relations of life. This idea of "paternalism" in government is one that is utterly foreign to the genius of our institution, but it is rapidly taking root in our American soil, and is destined to bear abundant and very bitter fruit, unless the axe is laid to the root without mercy and without delay. The state has no more business to give to any aspiring youth that demands it, the equipment of a higher education, than it has to give him "forty acres and a mule."

* * * * *

Let the government limit itself to giving only such elementary instruction as is absolutely necessary to the casting of the ballot, and let it leave to individuals or churches, or other voluntary organizations, all the work of the so-called higher education. If the rich desire such equipment for their sons, let them pay for it. If poor and ambitious youth desire such opportunity for themselves, let them work for it, as they have to do for other things. If Protestants wish sound religious teaching in the schools to which they send their children, let them found and foster Christian schools. * * *—Dr. P. S. Henson, in Western Recorder.

Ashe and Alleghany Association.

Dear Recorder:—This body convened with Landmark church in its first annual Sunday-school Convention on Friday at 11 o'clock a. m. Oct. 27th, 1893. Devotional exercises were conducted by Elder T. M. Duncan, who read the thirty-fourth Psalm. He also preached from Acts 5: 32. Eld. Elihu Tucker followed. Prayer by Elder E. W. Reedy.

Afternoon, the Convention assembled. Revs. T. M. Duncan and C. L. Porter acted as temporary Moderator and Clerk.

Letters from the churches were read and the names of delegates enrolled as follows:

Apple Grove—Elihu Tucker.

Healing Springs—Ezekiel Blevins, J. M. Ballon.

Landmark—S. Blackburn, W. F. Barker, L. A. Porter, B. J. Barker.

Long Branch—C. Roberts, J. P. Sexton.

New Hope—Roan Price, G. W. Wagoner.

Pleasant Home—E. W. Reedy, Owen Blevins.

Forest Home—R. L. Shoat.

Friendship—Roby Burket, H. C. Bare.

Rye Cove—W. H. Glenn, Robert Thompson.

The Mountain Union Association was represented by the following churches:

Liberty—Jacob Eller, James Keil, W. B. Heath, Marion Eller.

Union—E. Z. Bangus, Riley Anderson.

On motion, elected Elder T. M. Duncan, Moderator, C. L. Porter, Clerk and Treasurer.

The rules of order of the Ashe and Alleghany Association were read and adopted.

The following were appointed a committee of Arrangements: Elihu Tucker, Jacob Eller, Ezekiel Blevins, Ezekiel Bangus, R. L. Shoat. The Moderator and Clerk were added.

Committee on religious exercise for the session—Robert Thompson, H. C. Bare and the delegates of this church.

Committee on resolutions—W. H. Glenn, James Hurley, J. M. Ballon.

Committee to consider the propriety of holding a Convention one fifth Sunday and a Union Meeting the next fifth Sunday—Ezekiel Blevins, W. F. Barker, R. L. Shoat, S. Blackburn.

Committee on time, place and preacher for next session—Marion Eller, Roby Burket and Riley Anderson.

Committee on religious exercises reported preaching to night at this place by Elder Ezekiel Blevins and E. W. Reedy; Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, by Elder W. H. Glenn and Elihu Tucker.

Adjourned till 9 a. m. to morrow.

Second day, Saturday.—The Convention met at 9 o'clock and spent half an hour in devotional exercises.

The committee of arrangments made their report by asking the following questions, the first one of which was answered in the affirmative:

1st. Are Sunday-schools authorized by the Word of God?

2nd. Who should be the superintendent and teachers in a Sunday-school? Answer: The best material of the church, both males and females.

3rd. What should be taught in Sunday-schools? Answer: God's Word.

The committee on resolutions made their report. [See accompanying resolutions.]

Committee on time and place and preacher report next Convention to convene with Friendship church on Friday before the fifth Sunday in August, 1894; Elder Elihu Tucker to preach the introductory; and a Union Meeting to be held with Forest Home church on Saturday before the fifth Sunday in December, 1893. Adjourned.

T. M. DUNCAN, Moderator.
C. L. PORTER, Clerk.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That this Convention urge and insist that every church in this Convention organize and keep up a Sunday school.

Resolved further, That every individual member of each church should assist in the work.

Be it further resolved, That each Sunday-school should organize a choir.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. GLENN,
JAMES HURLEY,
JOHN M. BALLON,
Committee.

Elkin Association.

Dear Recorder:—This body met at Rock Creek church on Thursday, 2nd inst., but the writer was unable to attend until Saturday. Rev. C. W. Fields was re elected Moderator, and Rev. E. M. Gwynn was also re-elected Clerk. These brethren make efficient officers.

The session was harmonious throughout and the proceedings fairly interesting. The various reports, I am told, showed some progress all along the line of work. The writer did not learn the amounts contributed to the various objects except that there was about thirty dollars pledged to State Missions. The brethren say this amount shall be considerately increased. They decided to expend the money which they can raise for State Missions within the bounds of the Association, but under the sanction of the State Board, as I understand. This is manifestly right in this case. I know of no section in the State in greater need of it. The State Board can well afford to supplement the amount raised for the Ronda church. It is important that this ground be occupied at once and firmly held. Ronda is a station on the Wilkesboro Extension surrounded by a splendid agricultural community and has a promising future. Indeed, the whole section lying between the railroad and the Blue Ridge is a most inviting field for Baptist exertion. Its natural advantages can but secure for it a large growth in population and wealth at no distant day. Then let the Baptists seize firmly on Ronda and make it a strategic point. The result will repay the effort.

In September Brother Harris of Sparta preached a wonderfully strong sermon on some of the distinctive Baptist principles. His argument in regard to immersion was clear and unanswerable. He is now at the service of the brethren of the Elkin Association, provided they make arrangements to keep him; if not, he will return to Virginia. They can ill afford to let him go.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

President Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, MISS FANNIE E. HECK, Raleigh, N. C.; Secretary, MRS. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

Subject for November: Japan.

"Let them give glory unto the Lord and declare his praise in the islands." Missionaries, 4; native assistants, 2; stations, 6; churches, 1; membership, 27; baptisms, 26.

STUDY TOPICS—Japan an open door. One of the Isles that waits for his law. It is accessible. Character of the obstacles to success. The outlook of our Board in Japan. What has been done in Japan?

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

Japanese Courtesy.

I was led to Japan by grammar. No guide book took me there. I had read all the guide books, and most of them are not very good. None of them lured me to Japan. But I picked up a grammar once, which was very splendidly done by Mr. Chamberlain, and there I read: "The Japanese language has no imperative mode. The Japanese language has no form of oaths and no word of abuse." I rubbed my eyes, but there was the positive affirmation that one could not swear in Japanese; you could not tell a person to go, rudely or roughly, in Japanese; and I found it really to be so. The worst thing you can say in Japanese is "fellow!" Or, if you are very much put out, you say, "there! there!" It sounds like an exaggeration. But you cannot find a bad word in the Japanese dictionary. These are those who might find that a great privation.

Now, it stands to reason that language so refined as this reacts upon the people; and it does. Although not Christians, they carry out, as we never do, the maxim: "In honor prefer one another." They invariably speak of another person in the most respectful way and of themselves in the most disparaging way. In Japan you must not say, "Where are you going this afternoon?" You must say, "Where do you augustly condescend to repair?" You must never say, "Come in." You must say, "Condescend an honorable entrance." You must honor your friend and dishonor yourself; and this habit is carried almost to a ludicrous extent, and it reacts upon the habits and manners of the people, so that in Japan you find a place of tranquility, of restoration, and of soft pleasure and peace, which, I declare to you, I have not exaggerated.—Sir Edwin Arnold.

A missionary explained to a gathering how he came to enter the mission field. He said: "In coming home one night, driving across the vast prairie, I saw my little boy John hurrying to meet me; the grass was high on the prairie, and suddenly he dropped out of sight. I thought he was playing, and was simply hiding from me, but he didn't appear as I expected he would. Then the thought flashed across my mind, 'There's an old well there, and he has fallen in.' I hurried up to him, reached down in the well, and lifted him out, and as he looked up in my face, what do you think he said? 'O, papa, why didn't you hurry?' Those words never left me. They kept ringing in my ears until God put a new and deeper meaning into them, and bade me think of others who are lost, of souls without God and without hope in this world; and the message came to me as a message from the Heavenly Father, 'Go and work in my name;' and then from that vast throng a pitiful, despairing, pleading cry rolled into my soul, as I accepted God's call: 'O, why don't you hurry?'"

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE
IN 1894.

THE GREATEST OF ALL THE MAGAZINES.

2000 Pages of the Best Literature.
1000 Illustrations by the Greatest Artists of the World

The program of the new volume of THE CENTURY MAGAZINE, beginning with the November number, is one of rare interest to every reader of literature. The chief serial feature is

A New Novel by MARK TWAIN.

The most dramatic story ever written by America's greatest humorist. Like several of Mark Twain's stories, it has for its scene a steamboat town on the Mississippi River forty years ago. "Pudd'nhead Wilson," a hard-headed country lawyer, the hero of the story, furnishes much of the fun that one naturally expects to find in a work by the author of "The Innocents Abroad," but he appears in quite another light in the murder trial which forms the thrilling climax of the story. The plot introduces a novel and ingenious employment of science in the detection of crime, and the characters are well drawn and their every action is interesting. THE CENTURY will contain

A Series of Superb Engravings of the Old Dutch Masters;

Articles on

Hunting of Fierce Game;

Articles describing

Artists' Adventures,

by leading American artists, with their own illustrations; Articles descriptive of Important Expeditions

in all the great continents, including the adventures of two young Americans who traversed Asia on bicycles; A novel series on

Tramping with Tramps:

How a young man, disguised as a tramp, traveled over America and learned all the secrets of the "profession;"

Important Papers on Music

by the greatest living composers and musicians; Unpublished essays by

James Russell Lowell;

Short stories and novelettes by all the leading story-writers, essays on timely subjects, humor and fun in the "Lighter Vein" department, etc., etc. The

Great Christmas Number

contains a sermon by Phillips Brooks, seven complete stories, a magnificent array of full-page engravings, a new picture of General Grant, letters from Edwin Booth, etc

In no previous year has so large and varied scheme been presented as for the The Baptist Teacher for 1894, and in order to carry it out, each number will consist of at least fifty two pages during the year. The notes for The Teacher will be with reference to three distinct series—the greatest prominence being given to the International Lessons—and these will meet the needs of teachers who use the several Lesson Helps issued by the American Baptist Publication Society. During the first half of the year, Rev. Z. Grenell, D. D., Detroit, Mich., will furnish the Expository Notes and Hints to Teachers; and during the latter half of the year, Prof. H. H. Harris, D. D., LL. D., of Richmond, Va.

At the beginning of each quarter a summary of Baptist doctrines in the lessons for that quarter will be given as follows: First quarter, Prof. Howard Osgood, D.D., Rochester, N. Y.; second quarter, Pres. J. F. Forbes, Ph. D., De Land University, Fla.; third quarter, President John A. Baoadus, D. D., LL. D., Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.; fourth quarter, Prof. Noah L. Davis, D. D., University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.

Side lights upon the lessons will be given by eminent writers, almost any one of whose articles alone will be worth the price of The Teacher for whole year.

The official statement of the Treasury says that the per capita circulation of the United States has increased one dollar since July, 1893, being now $25 49.

R. D. Carpenter, Com'r R.

The Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company will sell round trip tickets from Norfolk to Elizabeth City for $3 50.

For all points not stated, Tariff No. 2 will govern the price. It is a one and one-third rate.

A SPECIAL TRAIN.

We have arranged with the Seaboard Air Line to run a special train, starting from Raleigh at 8:30 a. m. on Thursday and make connection with the train of the Norfolk and Southern road at Norfolk, Va., at 4.10 p. m., which will put us in Elizabeth City at about 6 p. m. All delegates and visitors reaching Raleigh by 8 a. m. Thursday morning, Dec. 7th, will find this the most direct and expeditious of all the routes.

A through special car will leave Charlotte on the night of Dec. 6th, at 9:45, to be attached to the special train at Raleigh on Thursday morning, the 7th.

BY STEAMER FROM NEWBERN.

The Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company offer a very nice trip by steamer from Newbern, N. C., and I am authorized to publish the following rates by Mr. H. C. Bridgton, General Passenger Agent:

From Newbern, $5.50; Wilmington, $7.00; Fayetteville, $5.50; Kinston, $5.25.

Round trip tickets to Elizabeth City are sold by the A. & N. C. R. R. and R. & D. R. R., they will sell special round-trip tickets to Newbern, and the fare by the boat is $3 50, which includes state room berth; meals extra. We have a fine boat on the route, and would like to carry some of your people.

Steamer leaves Newbern on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Will wait for train on the A. & N. C. R. R. on Wednesday and Saturday.

If further information is desired or accommodations needed, I shall be glad to do all in my power to furnish the same.

N. B Broughton,
Sec. N. C. Bap. State Convention.

REDUCED RATES BY R. & D. RAILROAD.

The Richmond & Danville Railroad will sell reduced rate tickets from all points on its lines in North Carolina to Danville, Va., Raleigh, Selma or Goldsboro, N. C., and return. Wake Forest Letter.

THE READING CIRCLE.

The Wake Forest Reading Circle held its regular semi-monthly meeting Friday evening, the 17th inst., at the residence of Prof. W. B. Royall. The purpose of this "Circle" is to stimulate and direct the study and discussion of the works of standard authors. Tennyson is being studied at present. At the last meeting In Memoriam was discussed and portions of it read. Prof. Sledd presented a thoroughly prepared and interesting paper on its growth, structure, and history; Prof. Poteat discussed Tennyson as an evolutionist, while Prof. Royall presented him as an optimist. The meetings of the Circle are always well attended and their exercises helpful and enjoyable. They represent the best phases of our social life and exert a strong influence in the development of a correct taste and high ideals in literary study.

OTHER ITEMS.

Dr. Taylor's lecture last Sunday evening was on the true sermon, which he defined, as "an oral address, to the popular mind, on a religious subject, as presented by the Bible for the purpose of edifying or converting the hearer."

Pastor Gwaltney preached a most excellent sermon last Sunday upon the Lord's desire for increased faith in his people. Among other good things, he said: "Wealth, honor, fame, learning, all human achievements and attainments, are valuable to us only as they contribute to the formation and development of a strong manly character, and character, however beautiful and symmetrical it may be, is like a house built upon the sand, lacking in real strength and enduring glory unless it is based on a firm faith in the eternal truth of God."

As a result of the work of the last Legislature the State University gets an appropriation this year of thirty thousand dollars. In other words the taxpayers of the State pay nearly one hundred dollars for every student at that institution. Many of these students are the sons of rich men. The common schools of the State, patronized by the poor, from which thousands of children must obtain the only training they will ever get for the important duties of citizenship, receive from the public funds, on an average, about one dollar for every scholar. These are interesting facts. J. B. C.

Rev. W. W. Bruce.

HUSTONVILLE, KY., April 16.h, 1893.

Dear Sirs:—In reply to your letter asking how I am pleased with the Electropoise, I will say that I am more than pleased. I am greatly benefited by its use. Have suffered for several years with kidney trouble, which it has greatly relieved. The test, however, that has revealed the merits of my 'Poise even more than my own was the case of a friend. This friend has been an opium eater for over eight years, consuming large quantities of the drug daily. I induced my friend to try to 'Poise and to use laudnum in a more convenient form of the drug to reduce doses acurately. When the 'Poise was first applied an ounce and a half of laudanum a day kept the patient barely comfortable, and sleep under this heavy dose was full of unrest and horible night maren. The dose was gradually reduced until now fifteen drops a day is sufficient, and this will be stopped in a few days. The case is not yet dismissed but I consider this a work for one pocket Electropoise.

Yours in health,
W. W. BRUCE,
Pastor Presbyterian church.

This famous Georgia orator and humorist visited our quiet University village last Saturday, and at night delivered in the chapel an interesting and strikingly entertaining lecture on the "Snollygoster in Politics."

It was pleasant to discover in him a whole-souled Baptist and Sunday-school superintendent. He attended our church services on Sunday morning, and gave our school a charming talk, and also prayed for us most devoutly and fervently after the sermon. Our people were greatly impressed by him and will give him a hearty welcome when he comes again. J. L. CARROLL.

LIVINGSTONE—Oct. 28th, 1893, Mrs. Mary Livingstone died, in the eighty-sixth year of her age. She was the daughter of Rev. Daniel White, who came from Scotland in 1807, and so deeply impressed his life on the people of Richmond county, and a large section of Eastern North Carolina and the Welsh neck section of South Carolina. His mantle fell on his daughter's shoulders. For over fifty years she has been a faithful member of Spring Hill Baptist church. Her life has been spent in deeds of unselfish kindness. Four generations of relatives remain to mourn their loss and treasure up the lessons of life. PASTOR.

JONES—At the home of his parents, in Wake county, N. C., Oct. 21st, 1893, Johnnie, the beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Jones.

"'Tis hard to break the tender cord,
When love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words,
Must we forever part?
Dearest loved one, we have laid thee
In the peaceful grave's embrace,
But thy memory will be cherished
Till we see thy heavenly face.
Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding
O'er the spoils that death has won,
We would at this solemn meeting
Calmly say, 'Thy will be done.'
Though cast down, we're not forsaken,
Though afflicted, not alone,
Thou didst give and thou hast taken,
Blessed Lord, 'Thy will be done.'

ALFORD—Died at the home of his parents, in Wake county, N. C., near Rolesville, Joe, the only son of W. B. Alford, aged twenty years and seventeen days, after an illness of only four days.

"Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er,
On the border land we left them
Soon to meet and part no more.
One by one earth's ties are broken,
And we see our love decay,
And the hopes so fondly cherished
Brighten but to pass away;
One by one our hopes grow brighter
As we near the shining shore,
For we know across the river
Wait the love one gone before."

LOWERY—On Oct. 1st, God's mysterious providence was manifested in the removal of our beloved sister, Mrs. S. P. Lowery, from her home near Franklinton. She had spent fifty-six years in usefulness, thirty-five of which were actively devoted to the Master's service. During the ten months preceding her death she suffered intensely, but was characterized throughout by a patient, Christ-like spirit. She was averse to dying until the day before her death while she rejoiced at the thought of meeting her Saviour. A kind mother, a devoted wife and a faithful member of Mt. Olivet church has gone to reap her reward. W. C. N.

Wake Forest, Nov. 15, 1893.

WAFF—On October 14th, 1893, Thomas Edward Waff died at his home in Brunswick, Ga., of yellow fever, having just completed his forty-fourth year. In early life he became troubled about his sins and the danger to which they exposed him, and once aroused, he found no rest until the peace of God came to him through faith in Jesus. From then until death his every-day life was consistent with his profession. He was ever faithful to duty, never complaining, never shrinking, however unpleasant it might be. He possessed a true nobility of soul. He was respected by all his acquaintances; he was loved by all who knew him. It was true of him indeed that "None knew him but to love him,

Nor named him but to praise."

One who went to school to him for sometime said of him, "Mr. Tom Waff is one of the men you read about; his like is rarely seen.

He spent three years at Wake Forest College; would have graduated in one more year, and longed to return, but gave up his cherished desire in order to help the younger members of the family. To this end he took charge of Reynoldson Male Institute in Gates county in September, 1873, where he taught one after another his six younger brothers and sisters free of charge. He remained here till February, 1887, when he moved to Brunswick, Ga., and took charge of a branch house of Ellis, Young & Co., commission merchants of Savannah. He was superintendent of the Sunday school and deacon of the church at Reynoldson, and in his church at Brunswick he held the same offices. As a teacher, as a business man, and as a Christian, "faithful" is the one single word that would best describe his manner of life. He was a dutiful son, an affectionate husband, a loving father, a warm friend, a wise counselor. The writer of this always felt safe in following his advice.

In November, 1876, he married Miss Carrie M. Rawls of Carrsville, Va., who with four children still survive him. When the yellow fever broke out in August he sent his family to Virginia, expecting to follow them soon if the fever continued to spread. The fever, however, seemed to die out in a short time, and he decided not to leave. But when the fever broke out afresh he wanted to leave, but was hindered in different ways, and when he applied for a pass he was told that he must go to the quarantine station and remain ten days before he could go any further. He feared to do that lest he should have the fever there and not get such attention as he knew he could get at his home. So he decided to remain and use every precaution possible to keep off the disease, but all in vain, for on Thursday night, October 5th, he was stricken down. While none of his loved ones could be with him, yet he did not lack for attention. He had as good nursing and as good medical aid as any one perhaps ever had. But nothing seemed to do him any good. The angel of death had set his seal upon his brow, and on Saturday evening, Oct. 14th, he peacefully breathed his last.

Rev. W. E. Porter, who was with him nearly all the time he was sick, in a letter to father, after speaking of his disease, says: "Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Putnam could not have done more. It is not in human beings to do more than they did. They were tender, kind, loving and faithful, and when they realized that it was all in vain, it almost broke their hearts. We all loved him as a brother, and, indeed, who could help it? He was truth itself. Honor ever abode with him. Love shone from his eyes and controlled his actions. * * * He was conscious all the time to within a few hours of his death. On Friday he realized that his end was near, and sent for two doctors to verify his impressions in that respect. His first thought was, 'My dear wife and children, how can I leave them? What will they do without me?' After I talked to him awhile, he said, 'I am willing to leave them in God's hands.' I then said, 'How about yourself; the God you have trusted in life, are you willing to trust him in death?' 'Oh, yes; that is all right; I have no fear in that respect. Give my dear wife my love. I do not want to leave her, but God knows best. What he does is right. Brother Porter, pray for my children, pray for my boys; they are good boys. Tell them to walk aright. Tell father I do not like to leave him. I send him all the love a dutiful son can send. I had hoped to make his old old age comfortable, that he would spend it with me, but it is not to be.' He then talked to me about his burial, &c. He was quiet a long time then, and I thought he was sleeping. Seeing his lips move, I bent down and found he was quoting promises. It was these: 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee;' 'Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me;' 'Even down through the dark valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for thou art with me.' That is the way he said it. He then talked about his dear wife and children in tenderest accents. About an hour before he became unconscious, he said, 'Give my mother and father my fondest angelic farewell, and tell them the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ which they taught me and lived before me, sustains me now.' About 7:30 in the evening he breathed easier and easier, and finally stopped. His work was done. He fell on sleep, and his spirit returned to God who gave it."

The same letter and some telegrams received after his death say, "We procured a nice walnut casket and on Sunday laid your dear son to rest in the new cemetery with all the honors due to a noble Christian gentleman. Revs. Porter and Thompson officiated. Funeral attended by all remaining friends."

It was a sad and mysterious providence that kept our dear one at Brunswick. "How unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out." We know that God could have ordered otherwise, and that he cannot make a mistake. So while we cannot understand, we try to bow in submission, praying that we may be closer drawn to him who "doeth all things well." W. B. W.

How He Helped Himself.

Help yourself, help yourself, little boy, do
Don't wait upon others to wait upon you,
Grandma was holding her afternoon chat,
Knitting and rocking away as she sat:
"Look at the birds, how they build their own nests;
Watch the brown bees always toiling their best;
Put your own hands to the plow, if you'd thrive;
Don't waste your moments in wishing, but strive."
Up in her face looked a mischievous elf,
"Don't forget, darling," said she, "help yourself."
Afternoon shadows grew drowsy and deep,
Grandma was tranquilly folded in sleep,
Nothing was heard but the old farm house clock
Plodding along with its warning tick-tock
Out from the pantry there came a loud crash;
Pussy jumped up from the hearth in a flash,
Back to her chair stood this practical boy
Steeped to the ears in jam, custard and joy.
Frightened, he cried, "Please, I've upset the shelf, Grandma, I minded, I did help myself."
—New York Evangelist.

If I Were a Girl.

I would take care of my health by living out doors as much as possible and taking long walks in the sunshine. English girls understand how necessary this is for good complexions and cheerful spirits. Wear simple clothing, that you may climb mountains and breathe freely.

I would secure the best education. Go to college by all means, if it is possible. Read good books, and thereby become intelligent.

I would cultivate cheerfulness. Discontent soon shows itself in the face. If you are cramped for money, be thankful that your lot is no worse than it is. Learn to made the best of things. An unhappy woman is a perpetual cloud in a home. A fretful girl has few friends, and the number lessens year by year.

I would say kind things of others, especially of the girls. A girl who makes unkind remarks about other girls would better be avoided by young men. She will not make an agreeable companion for life.

I would learn how to be self supporting. Especially in this country where fortunes change, it is wise for a girl to be able to take care of herself. Helpless women are not a comfort to others, and usually are not to themselves.

I would try to be polite everywhere. True courtesy is more winsome that a pretty face or fine dress. Loud talk or loud dress does not betoken the lady. Be appreciative and sympathetic, and you have two keys which will unlock almost all hearts.

I would learn self control. To know when to speak, and when to be silent; to have hateful things said about you, and be able to answer pleasantly; to have people confide in you, and be wise enough to keep it locked in your heart; to be in poverty, and not be soured by it; to meet temptation and be strong before it; to be strong enough to perform any labor or duty which needs to be done—all this shows a mastery over self.

I would be punctual. Being late at meals, late at church, or late in meeting engagements, makes unnecessary friction in families. If we are willing to lose valuable time, we have no right to make others lose it. The golden rule of doing unto others as we would that they should do unto us, is especially applicable here.—Selected.

The Crooked Tree.

"Such a cross old woman as Mrs. Barnes! I never would send her jelly, or anything else, again!" said Molly Clapp, setting her basket down hard on the table. "She never even said, 'Thank you!' but, 'Set the cup on the table, child, and don't knock over the bottles. Why don't your mother come herself, instead of sending you! I'll be dead one of these days, and then she'll wish she had been a little more neighborly' I never want to go there again, and I should not think you would."

"Molly! Molly! Come quick, and see Mr. Daws straighten the old cherry tree," called Tom through the window.

And old Mrs. Barnes was forgotten as Molly flew out over the green to the next yard.

Her mother watched with a good deal of interest the efforts of two stout men as, with strong ropes, they strove to pull the crooked tree this way and that. But it was of no use.

"'Tis crooked as the letter S, and has been for twenty years. You are just twenty years too late, Mr. Daws," said Joe, as he dropped the rope, and wiped the sweat from his face.

"Are you sure you have not begun twenty years too late on tobacco and rum Joe?" asked Mr. Daws.

"That is a true word, master; and it is as hard to break off with them as to make this old tree straight. But I signed the pledge last night, and with God's help mean to keep it."

"With God's help you may hope to keep it, Joe," responded his master. "Our religion gives every man a chance to reform. No one need despair so long as we have such promises of grace to help."

"That is my comfort, sir," said the man, humbly, "but I shall tell the boys to try and not get crooked at the beginning."

"Mother," said Molly, as she stood by the window again at her mother's side, "I know now what is the matter with old Mrs. Barnes. She need not try to be pleasant and kind now, for she is like the old tree—it is twenty years too late."

"It is never too late with God's help to try to do better; but my little girl must begin now to keep back harsh words and unkind thoughts. Then she will never have to say, as Joe said about the tree, 'It is twenty years too late.'"—Sunday-school Times.

Brains as Capital.

In all discussions of the relative rights of labor and capital there is a tendency to talk of the two things as though they were the only factors involved in the creation of wealth.

The labor leader maintains that to the toil of the worker class alone is due the production of the material wealth of the country; the capitalist is inclined to lay too much weight on the mere investment of money. Both are apt to slight the vast influence of directing intelligence.

A recent writer furnishes some figures which throw into strong relief the immense value of wise direction, invention, safe management—in short, brains.

Comparing the total production of labor in this country now with that in 1840, and making allowance for the population at the two periods, he finds that the same number of men who in 1840 produced wealth to the amount of a thousand million dollars, now produce more than two thousand millions dollars yearly.

Similarly comparing the facts in Great Britain now and at the beginning of the century, it appears that the labor of a quarter of a million of men then resulted in a total annual production of the value of six hundred million dollars, while now the same number of laborers turn out every year sixteen hundred millions of dollars' worth of product.

This surprising increase in efficiency clearly results, not from a gain in the strength or skill of the individual labor, but from modern industrial progress, from improved methods, labor-saving inventions, greater ability in applying labor and capital to their work—again, in brief, from brains.

The example of the artist who said that he mixed his paints with brains must be followed by all who hope to succeed in the great struggle of commerce.—Youth's Companion.

A Gentleman's Psalm.

Very few people would agree exactly in giving a definition of a gentleman. Some have the idea that he is a man who lives on the income of his property and does no work, others have other ideas on the subject. Here is one that was once given by a Christian lady. She was the widow of an officer in the army, and was at a review with her young son when several officers who had known her late husband came back to talk to her, and the conversation ran on former common friends.

At last she asked about a certain captain, who had risen from the ranks by distinguished service.

"Oh," said one of the officers, "I don't know anything about him; he's a snob."

"A snob!" answered the lady, fired with indignation; "I tell you he was the truest gentleman in the regiment."

"Indeed!" said her companion with a sneer; "then as you seem to be so conversant with the matter, perhaps you will kindly tell us what is a gentleman?"

Quietly, and without a moment's hesitation, the lady, looking straight in his face, repeated the fifteenth Psalm. "That is my definition of a gentleman," said she.

Her little boy, a mere child of eight or ten, was by. A day or two afterwards she happened to find in his pocket a piece of paper, on which was written out, in his childish hand, the whole of this Psalm, and at the beginning it was headed, "The Gentleman's Psalm."—Young Christian.

Sing a song of common sense,
A mind that's full of try,
A man who knows a thing or two
And shows it in his eye—
Who's well aware the medicine
That's best for you and me
Is always Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery.

You can escape just about one-half the ills that flesh is heir to, by being ready for them. When you feel dull, languid, "out of sorts" generally—then you may know that some of them are coming. Don't let them get any further. Brace the system up with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That prevents as well as cures: It invigorates the liver and kidneys, purifies and enriches the blood, sharpens the appetite, improves digestion, and restores health and vigor.

Cash and Poultry.

The production of poultry and eggs should be a cash business, says the Mirror. True, the farmer may at times buy on credit, but he is never compelled to sell eggs on credit. If prices are liable to fluctuate, they never get below the cost value of the eggs. Eggs can be produced at a very small cost compared with other articles sold off the farm, and they are produced every day in the year. It is the daily returns of cash that give the farmer such an advantage, for while he must wait two or three years for a steer to reach maturity, there is no such delay with poultry, as during such a period several flocks will have been marketed, as well as produced a supply of eggs. The man with limited means, who prefers life on a farm, may never be able to accomplish his desire, but he can begin with a small flock of fowls and gradually increase until he is competent to secure and manage large numbers, the fulfilment of his object being aided by the daily cash returns, which, however small, enable him to keep at the business until he reaches a position from which he can branch out and enlarge. If it were not for the quick returns from poultry, they would not be retained on farms at all; but as they keep the egg-basket full during winter and summer, they largely assist in providing for immediate necessities.

Good Advice to Young Women.

There is nothing so certain to make you disliked as to tell your troubles to a friend. Prosperity means friends, but once you take it into your head to retail your woes you will soon discover that your company is not wanted, and the people who once bowed to you in pleasant recognition now walk on the other side of the way with a cold and stony glare that looks over your head or through your body, but never meets your eyes as of yore.

The people are not hard hearted that turn the cold shoulder to you. They are only averse to knowing of any more misery than they already have to bear. We, every one of us, have our little troubles. In some cases they grow to be very large ones, and it isn't pleasant to have the dark side continually thrust before us just when we begin to feel a bit comfortable in our minds over some unpleasant occurrence that has upset us for a time.

Take a bit of valuable advice, and when you feel like telling some one of your spat with your intended or how low your finances are, just remember our warning and don't do it. Your mother, your father and your husband are the truest sympathizers, and, outside of them, you are certain to be soon called a bore if you persist in your harrowing confidences.—Philadelphia Times.

Laugh.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sickroom. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and borrow. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see good in the world, keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. No one cares to hear whether you have the earache or rheumatism. Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels, but they are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friend with a smile. The good humored man or woman is always welcome but the dyspeptic and hypochondriac is not wanted anywhere, and is a nuisance as well.—Annals of Hygiene.

A GOOD BUILDING UP of a run-down system can be accomplished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A long procession of diseases start from a torpid liver and impure blood. Take it, as you ought, when you feel the first symptoms (languor, loss of appetite, dullness, depression) and you'll save yourself from something serious.

As an appetizing, restorative tonic, to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing to equal it. It rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

MEN are at a loss for a name by which this age may be designated. Some call it an age of discontent; others an age of development and preparation; others the age of progress; others, more pessimistic, the age of evil; and still others, the end of the ages, and so on through the catalogue of epithets. Seldom a day passes but that a new designation for these stirring times is applied. By what name it will be known in history we cannot tell. It sufficeth to say that the times are pregnant with problems and prophecies of problems. Who keeps up in the race to-day, or who would excel to-morrow, must sacrifice all joy that comes from content, recreation and leisure, to the diviner transports that take possession of the soul when conscious that full duty is being done. And this joy, a joy that is known only to workers, and that surpasses that which the wealthy and the honored have in their luxurious revelry and display, should be the ambition of the young man of to day. Not to attain honor, nor wealth, nor luxury, nor ease, but to gain a consciousness of honest efforts to elevate mankind, to right the wrong, and make the world better, should be the goal of our ambition; let apparent success and worldly honor go where they may. And we feel sure in asserting that though the applause of the world may not be secured, or wealth may never come, that a pure life, devoted to pure motives, will not pass unrequited. He who seeks worldly honor, wealth and ease, to the sacrifice of his motives, is a selfish brute, a traitor to his fellow-man, and unworthy to be called human. Mankind is prone to ambition, but human ambition is so often unholy. Our day is a day of problems, and is most auspicious for the attainment of ambition; if the ambition of men is unholy, these problems will be intensified; if holy, the sufferings of the world will be far less intense and widespread; for in the solution of the problems of the age lies our welfare.

WE have said that the age is pregnant of problems, but we did not intend to make the impression that the problems that beset us to day were not existing half a century ago, or that the solution of them is a novelty of our times. The problems are old, and their "solutions" are scarcely younger. But the development of the age has intensified the problems, and the superior knowledge of to-day has found the formulas, that were once regarded as final solutions of such problems, inadequate. We used to think that what our text books taught was true; that the writers on political economy were infallible, and that the evils of life were inevitable, and sprung from travesty of known laws. But to-day who dares have certain knowledge? Who is so bold as to declare his formula more than a theory? The prophecies of the founders of our government have not materialized, and we are no happier than the subjects of that government from which we withdrew because of unhappiness. What was accounted knowledge has vanished away; the sublime eloquence of venerated orators is now recognized as the effusions of idle dreamers; the tongues of persuasion are silenced. "From nearly every chair of political economy are heard utterances which a quarter of a century ago would have been hailed with wrath and indignation; but they cause no outcry now." The educated man is no longer so well learned that he can ascribe the sufferings of the depressed classes to ignorance or to broken economic laws. He listens to the theorists as well as to the discontented, and he has no more means than they to disprove new ideas. This is not an age of new problems, but of old problems that the progress of men and the incredulity and distrust incident to increased knowledge, have brought into prominence.

WE do not know of another class of men whose occupations have been so strikingly affected by the problems of the age as ministers. Twenty-five years ago a pastor who taught God's word, visited his flock, and comforted the sick and the weary, was thought to be doing his full duty, and if he indulged in other occupations in connection with his calling, was considered unworthy of the pulpit. But now who can define the limits of a ministers work—or rather, not his work, but the work which is expected of him! Social agitations have arisen, and he is invited to apply Christian principles to aid the overthrow of the structure of society. He is asked to insure the poor against the oppression of the rich, and to exert the influence of the gospel for the control of the operations of human affairs in a manner that will tend to the equalization of all benefits. But aside from these broad duties that the age has imposed on him, he is now beset by the problems of the family and divorce, of the improvement homes and the condition of the poor, of the care of the dependent and pauper classes, and that of public education. These latter problems are really worthy his attention, and their solution may be numbered among his duties, as they are the duty of all Christians. That he should be expected to adjust the relation of labor to capital is asking too much. That is a problem, not of this age, but of all ages. He should comfort the oppressed, alleviate their wrongs, and do what he can to restrain the oppressor. These are not secular duties, nor is their solution necessarily a political one. For we believe, and we wish that all the world believed with us, that the solution of all problems, social or political, is found only in the gospel of Jesus Christ, in the Kingdom of God on earth.

AS IDEAS have increased, and problems have intensified, the facilities for the diffusion of knowledge have likewise increased, though we do not maintain that the converse of this statement may not be true, and that the increase of ideas is a result of increased facilities, rather than a cause. But however that may be, we deem it very fortunate that the two are results of the same age, and are co-ordinate. In view of the cheapness of the modern periodical, and the decreased cost of book-printing, there is no reason why all the world should not enjoy the full benefit of the progress of mankind. Whoever conceives a theory, immediately places it before the judgment of the world through the medium of a newspaper, pamphlet or book. The wise is quickly distinguished from the unwise, and efforts are made to apply them. By this means only the solution of existing conditions can be effected.

Whatever may be said of the evil of the age, we believe it is more blessed than all others in the fact that what is known or done in one part of the world is immediately diffused over other parts at a very small expense to the individual. The age of problems is no less an age of wonderful progress in the art of printing and the general diffusion of knowledge. Absolute poverty is the only excuse for ignorance to day, and ignorance is the only excuse for a want of opinions. With the advantage of the numberless books and papers that are spread over our country there is no reason why the humblest of our citizens should not know as much as the wisest of our fathers. Our knowledge need not be original to be valuable. What we learn from the past, tested by lapse of time, is all the more valuable than original and untried knowledge. God has made it easy for us to learn, and it is our duty to use his kindness whenever we can.

Talks About Law—No. 18.

BY JUDGE R. W. WINSTON.

SUNDAY.

In the year 1676, while Charles II was King of England, the original statute relating to observance of Sunday was passed. In the year 1741, the same act, in substance, was passed by the lawmakers in North Carolina. Our old Revised Statutes, ch. 118, sec. 1, provided that all and every person and persons whatsoever shall, on the Lord's day commonly called Sunday, carefully apply themselves to the duties of religion and piety, and that no tradesman, artificer, planter, laborer or other person whatsoever, shall, upon the land or water, do or exercise any labor, business or work, of their ordinary callings (works of necessity and charity only excepted) on the Lord's day aforesaid, or any part thereof, on pain that every person so offending, being of the age of 14 or upwards, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one dollar.

In the year 1857, one Henry Easley, a horse-trader by profession, on a Sunday sold to James K. Melvin a horse, warranting the horse to be "sound and healthy." Melvin claimed that the horse was not sound and healthy, and sued Easly for deceit and false warranty. Among other defences put up by Easley was that the trade was void, having been made on Sunday.

Our Supreme Court then consisted of Pearson, Battle and Manly; and the question was so vexed, that three opinions were filed, Judge Battle's being a dissenting opinion.

Judge Pearson attempted to apply the reductio ad absurdum by saying that "if the defendant's contention be true, then horse traders may cheat with impunity, provided always it may be done on the Lord's day"!! The opinion of the Court was largely formed by the fact that the trade was a private one and in a private place.

Ours is a Christian country, but Christianity is not established by law, and the genius of our free institutions requires that church and state should ever be kept separate. "When the act compels people to observe the Lord's day and apply themselves to the duties of religion and piety on that day, and thereby prohibits labor which is done in private and which does not offend public decency or disturb the religious devotion of others, the power of the Legislature is exceeded by force of the declaration of rights, "All men have a natural and inalienable right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences." So spoke the Court, and Melvin recovered his damages. Pearson further illustrated the point in this wise: "So the case of a lawyer who sits in his room and makes a law-book, or writes a deed, or a merchant who, in his counting-room, posts his books, or an old lady who sits by her fireside and knits, if done on Sunday, comes within the words of the statute. But my opinion is that the statute is void and inoperative in respect to cases of this kind, and that its operation is confined to manual, visible or noisy labor, such as is calculated to disturb other people; for example, keeping an open shop, or working a blacksmith's anvil," &c.

The law was conceded to be otherwise in England where the church and the state are one.

In consequence of this decision, no doubt, this law was changed and now reads this way: "On the Lord's day commonly called Sunday, no tradesman, &c., shall do or exercise any labor, business or work of his ordinary calling—works of necessity and charity alone excepted—nor employ himself in hunting, fishing or fowling, nor use any game, sport or play upon pain of paying one dollar." And the next section of the Code makes it a misdemeanor to hunt on Sunday.

In 1848, one Williams in Martin county was indicted for making his hands work in the field on Sunday. But our Court say that a profanation of the Sabbath by performing labor on that day is not an indictable offense in this State. They congratulate the State that cases of the kind so seldom arise in North Carolina. Williams, no doubt, could have been made to pay the penalty of one dollar, but it was sought to punish him severely for a supposed violation of the common law.

One may be arrested in our State for crime on Sunday; but no civil process can be served on Sunday; nor can one be arrested in a civil action on Sunday.

It is thought that railroads ought not to be allowed to run on Sunday. The difficulty in stopping them is that the State might interfere with the United States in the matter of carrying the mails, if the mail train were not permitted to run on Sunday.

A freight car cannot be loaded or unloaded on Sunday. Nor can it travel on Sunday unless it began its journey on Saturday, when it may go until nine o'clock Sunday morning in order to reach its journey's end. But Sunday, by our act, embraces only that portion of the day from sunrise to sunset.

Such Sundays as are experienced on the continent of Europe must be greatly demoralizing.

Public laws, however, cannot make people keep holy the Sabbath day.

Respect for the Sabbath must begin with the child and must be taught him by the precept and example of its parents.

Indeed the home ought to be the nursery of the virtues. It ought to be made attractive enough to keep the old and young away from questionable places of pleasure amusement on Monday as well as Sunday.

A SUGGESTION.

For the benefit of judges, lawyers, suitors, and witnesses, our Superior Courts ought to open on Tuesday.

Our Supreme Court does not sit Mondays. In our sister State, Virginia, Court convenes on Tuesday.

The next Legislature ought to make the change.

All Things Working Together for Good.

Outline of a sermon preached by Dr. J. L. Carroll to his congregation at Chapel Hill, Nov. 5th, 1893. Furnished by request.

Text: Rom. 8: 28—"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

The Scriptures are full of consoling passages which are as bright to the eye of Christian faith as the stars in the firmament. But as in the heavens above us "one star differeth from another star in glory," so in the galaxy of "exceeding great and precious promises" found in God's Word, there are some more conspicuously bright and attractive than others and which serve better to inspire and sustain his children in their earthly pilgrimage. Of this character is the one under consideration, which in every age of the church has been to the pious and devout as a polar star, comforting and upholding them in the midst of the sorest afflictions and trials. Hardly any other has been so often on their lips and in their hearts. It cannot be too often reflected upon, and when properly considered it cannot fail to strengthen faith and inspire hope and consolation. It teaches five lessons, which we propose to take up in the inverse order of their presentation:

1. In the work of salvation, God acts in accordance with an anterior "purpose" or design. It is altogether inconsistent with our conceptions of his attributes of omniscience and immortality to suppose him to act at any time without reference to definite plan or design. In fact, the evidences of design in the works of creation constitute one of the strongest arguments for the existence of a supreme Creator. Everything therein indicates his wonderful wisdom in adapting means to ends for the good of his creatures and for his own glory. If this be so manifest in the works of nature, it is natural to suppose that his works of grace would be conducted in like manner. And so we find it. We read in Eph. 1: 11 of "the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will." We are said to be saved, in 2 Tim. 1: 9, "according to his own purpose, and grace which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began." The covenant of redemption was determined in the eternal counsels of the godhead, and design is indicated in the assignment of distinct parts to the several persons in the adorable Trinity. Our Lord came, according to Gal. 4: 4, "in the fulness of time," or at a time previously appointed. His sufferings and death were in accordance with a previous arrangement, as taught by our Lord in Matt. 26: 24, "The Son of man goeth as it is written of him." It could not have been written had it not been first known and understood. A definite purpose is indicated by his words in John 17: 4, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." It must have been specifically understood, or else he would not have said that it was completed. And in the 12th verse, "Those that thou gavest me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the Scripture might be fulfilled." This last seems to indicate the purpose of God to save a specific number of the human family. And so does the context, "For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren." Moreover, whom he did predestinate"—without exception—"them he also called; them he also justified; and whom he justified"—without exception—"them he also glorified." His purpose, then, is the prior determination on the part of God that his chosen people should be called from darkness to light, should pass from a state of condemnation to one of justification, from a condition of sinfulness to one of sanctification, and from a state of degradation and shame to one of honor and glory.

2. Hence his people are "called according to his purpose." It is quite obvious that the calling in this connection means different from what it does in Matt 22: 14, "Many are called, but few are chosen." Then the call of the gospel is supposed to be heard by many but heeded by few. But here those who are called have both heard and heeded. It is evident that there is a great difference between the two classes in regard to their reception of the call. On the one class it falls, largely, without effect, and fails to move most of them out of their deep unconcern and lethargy; while to the other, it is as a voice from heaven, and leads them to feel a charm and preciousness in the doctrine of the Cross by which the enmity between God and sinful men is removed. How is this difference to be accounted for? The latter class have received what is termed by the old theologians "the effectual call" of the Spirit. There is a call which men may resist and disobey, and consequently remain under condemnation. There is another call which always produces repentance and faith, and therefore issues in salvation. When the effectual call is made, the gospel is said to come, 1 Cor. 2: 4, "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." The general call is neglected because men will not come to Christ that they may have life; but the effectual call operates on the will itself, working in men "both to will and to do of his good pleasure." The effectual call is irresistible. In the work of conversion, the Spirit is violently resisted; but this resistance is directed rather against the means employed. The effectual call subdues and softens the heart and brings it in docile subjection to the laws of Christ. The outward means which the Spirit uses may be resisted, but when the Spirit himself comes in the omnipotence of his grace, all resistance ceases at once.

3. The called according to his purpose are they "that love God." The calling in the text is the second in the order of enumeration, but it is the first in the order of succession. It is only upon entertaining the call of the gospel and consenting to it, that the heart passes from the state of indifference, or rather enmity, toward God in which it existed, toward an experience of love to him. Previous to this, the thought of God stood associated with feelings of jealousy, insecurity and alarm. What a strong statement of the feeling of the unrenewed heart is in verse 7—"Because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." Hence the imperative necessity for the effectual call of the Spirit to break down and subdue this bitter enmity, and introduce love instead. Before one can love God he must see him to be lovely; but this is a vision which the unrenewed heart cannot enjoy while its enmity continues. It is the Spirit, and the Spirit only, who can remove this difficulty by regenerating the heart. 1 John 4: 7—"Every one that loveth is born of God," nor can he love before this birth. Watts describes the process:

"The Spirit, like some heavenly wind,
Breathes on the sons of flesh,
Creates anew the carnal mind,
And forms the man afresh."

Then,

"Our quickened souls awake and rise
From their long sleep of death;
On heavenly things we fix our eyes,
And praise employs our breath."

The Spirit, in the fullness of his grace, must remove the veil from the eyes and enlighten the understanding before the soul can see God as "the chiefest among ten thousand" and "altogether lovely." Hence our Lord says, John 15: 16, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you." And John in 1 John 4: 19, "We love him because he first loved us." The unregenerate soul will not love until it has experienced the persuasive power of the effectual call of the Holy Spirit.

4. To those who are thus called to the love of God, "all things work together for good." Notice first, "all things work." There is nothing in a state of rest. What a picture of unrest does Solomon give us in Ecc. 1: 5—8, "The sun ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place whence he arose. The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits. All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither do they return again. All things are full of labor, man cannot utter it." And Paul in Rom 8: 22—"For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now." All is in commotion and unrest. And then, "All things work together." There is order underlying the apparent confusion. This may not appear so to human sight, but to him "that sitteth upon the circle of the earth," and superintendeth the developments of providence, every individual thing is interlinked with another, according to the sovereign purpose of him who has had all things put under his feet, and in moving on harmoniously and uniformly towards its complete accomplishment.

"His providence unfolds a book
In which his covenants shine:
Each opening leaf, and every stroke
Fulfils some deep design."

And finally, "All things work together for good" to God's purpose. His object is revealed in verse 29—"For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren."

PUBLIC COLLECTIONS.

Owing to our system of conducting church and denominational enterprises, there seems to be a necessity for frequent public collections; and we have reference here to special efforts for special purposes. So far as regular Sabbath collections in our churches for local or denominational objects are concerned, the necessity for them is generally admitted, and the large majority of our people see no impropriety in giving whenever they meet to worship. The habit of giving, then, in connection with our public worship is well established; but we fear that a good many of our people have not caught the true idea that giving is an act of worship as well as of duty. This opinion does not dominate as it should, especially in our public collections for special objects.

When we meet together in Union Meetings, at Associations, State Conventions, &c., there are generally some brethren present that have the reputation of being "good beggars," and one of these brethren is usually put forward on such occasions to "lift a collection" for the special object or objects that may claim the attention of the body. This brother, according to the idea of many, must be witty, quick at repartee, well acquainted with the people, but above all, "funny." He is expected to keep the people more or less in a roar of laughter while the collection is being taken, and the wittier and funnier his remarks the more the people are expected to give. If he succeeds in securing the amount asked for, much of the success is attributed to his power to amuse and entertain the audience; and if he fails, a funnier man will be found next time. We do not claim that this is our invariable plan of collecting, but it is so often resorted to, and is open to so many objections, that we may well enquire if there is not a "better way." That there is, we are fully persuaded, and these lines are written with the hope of enabling our people to find it. To do this it may be well to point out some objections to the plan just explained.

One is, that it puts us to disadvantage before intelligent and cultured people of other denominations, and before men who are not members of any church. Such as these often attend our public gatherings in large numbers, and watch closely our proceedings. A Baptist Association, State Convention, or other general gathering of our people, often presents a veritable surprise to a staid and dignified Episcopalian, Presbyterian, or man of another faith. About the first thing that strikes his attention is to see a layman often in the chair; and then he is no little astonished at our free and easy style. He has a striking object-lesson in true democracy. In most things we may show to advantage, but in some we fear we suffer loss, and one of these is, as we have just intimated, the manner in which we often take public collections. The funny brother is brought to the front, and for ten or fifteen minutes—sometimes longer—the whole body is given to the abandon of actual merriment. The public beggar, knowing what is expected of him, often apes the very airs of the clown in the circus. He assumes queer attitudes, makes grimaces, cracks jokes, plays on the names of givers, makes allusion to their being well-dressed, or mentions that they are looking for wives, or are just married, &c.

Now, we respectfully submit that all this is in quite bad taste, and no doubt often repels from our churches intelligent men that might otherwise join us. And the exhibition of such unrestrained merriment and clownishness gives those who are opposed to our principles further opportunity to harp on the old string that told of the ignorance of the Baptists. These men do not know that able jurists, men high in official positions, and distinguished D. D's, do participate in this temporary "freedom of the floor." They do not know how to make proper allowance for our democratic habits, and it is quite evident that we ought not to expect them to do so in things in which the rules of decorum and the interests of the Master's work ought to prompt us to make different impressions. When a dignified common sense, and the genius of true Baptist principles demand that we should ignore the dainty, quaint and foolish foibles of other people, by all means let us stand for the right; but we have nothing to gain in [illegible] the license of the former even temporarily away in our religious assemblies.

[illegible] objection to the plan under consideration, is that it educates our people [illegible] the true idea of giving, and that [illegible] for the spreading of Christ's [illegible] of worship. That it is [illegible] condemned by the teachings of God's word. Giving, offering sacrifices, was certainly part of worship in the ancient Jewish rites and God has nowhere in the New Testament doctrine or history divorced giving from worship. "What God hath joined together let no many put asunder." It warps the benevolence of our people then, and robs giving of much of its virtue as an act of worship, to drag it down from the plane on which God has placed it to that on which the religious clown cracks his little jokes. Some of the fun loving brotherhood may be almost shocked at this plain way of putting it. They may innocently protest that such is done to relieve the tedium of the graver proceedings, &c. But to all such we answer "there is a time for everything," and if giving is an act of worship it certainly ought not to be accompanied by giggling and jokes. Praying is an act of worship. What would be thought of a preacher, who might be leading his congregation in prayer, if he should stop in the midst of his prayer to crack a joke or deliver a witticism to please God, or for the gratification of his fun-loving members!

Another objection is, that people who give under the impulse of fun or witticism, do not develop into liberal or systematic givers. People should give through principle, through a sense of duty, and not because they expect their names to be called out, because they are paying for wit, because they like the man that is calling for contributions, and so on; for according to this latter system, if the motives suggested do not operate, they may feel justified in not giving.

Our idea, then, is that the plan mentioned, and all like it, should be abandoned, and that we should emphasize the idea that giving is an act of worship. We would do better to touch a man's heart and convince his judgment by an earnest appeal to both, and then, when the Spirit of Christ has fuller sway over him, ask for his contribution. If these means do not reach him, he sadly needs instruction, and his gift, if made, is not properly sanctified. Here, as elsewhere, the Apostle's injunction, "Let all things be done decently and in order," is of prime importance.

THURSDAY of this week has been nominated by the President of the United States and the Governors of the respective States as a holiday of thanksgiving to God.

It is well that a day is set apart, not so much for the purpose of rendering thanks and praise unto God—for all days should be thus devoted—but that in this season of the year, when the poor are most needy, we may give thanksgiving from our bounty to those less blest, as a testimony of our gratitude to God for the blessings which we have received, and in compliance with his word, is the setting apart of a secular day for thanksgiving especially fitting.

In the days of the pagan gods gratitude was manifested by noisy and joyous celebrations; at times, also, by human sacrifices. The heathen seldom relieve distress on an occasion which to them is a day of boisterous joy. To them revelling was more agreeable, and, therefore, more fitting. But in the light of Christianity the liberal exercise of sweet charity has come to be the order of the day.

It is well to thank God that we have been spared, that storm and famine have not rendered the land barren, and these blessings alone might well be an incentive to relieve the less fortunate. But our greatest and most enduring cause for thanksgiving is for him who gave his life for us. And that life, which was charity itself, should be our never-failing cause for the exercise of charity.

Let us not forget the fatherless on Thursday. Our Orphanage should be particularly the object of our charity. Whatever may be our opinion as to methods, there is no reason why we should forget the orphans at Thomasville. There are a hundred other objects all around us. We never have to go far to seek the worthy poor. Let them have one season of all the year for thanks to God for temporal blessings.

But let us not get into the habit of giving thanks or exercising charity only once a year. When the Psalmist exclaims in his gratitude, "Give thanks unto the Lord, O my soul," it was not for one particular day, or for special temporal blessings, but for the unending mercy of the eternal God. Let us raise our voices to God, and make sacrifices for his needy children, not only to-morrow, but to-day, and all the days. "For the Lord is good, his mercy is everlasting, and his truth endureth to all generations."

MISSIONARY A. J. Diaz of Cuba is in the North in the interest of his Cuban mission. This mission is one now not only of churches but of hospitals, &c., that are calculated to impress the minds of the "Catholic heathen" of Cuba with the value of Christian civilization.

We have heard that our Board is contemplating sending out thirty six new missionaries to various foreign fields in the near future. We are glad to see this move forward, but are fearful that so large an increase of charges will harrass the Board. We cannot send out two many workers to the harvest, we cannot obtain two many, but we know that money is scarcer within the limits of the Southern Baptist Convention just now than in very many years. But when we think of the enormous number of churches within the Convention, the support of thirty six missionaries appears very insignificant. Think of it: North Carolina has one hundred and forty thousand white missionary Baptists within her borders, and we should be ashamed to say that, in addition to all they gave last year, they could not support thirty-six workers in the Lord's vineyard. That they will draw their support from a dozen States does not make our duty any less obligatory. Let us support our share, and more. Let us make the coming year a glorious one for North Carolina and for the foreign field. We lead other States in the number of Baptists; let us, each and all, determine that we shall not be behind in liberality; and let our Foreign Mission collections be an index of our liberality. Above all, let us not postpone the time for increasing our collections. There is more month in this year; let us make it the best mission of all the year, and be ready to commence the new year with a balance in the treasury, and a renewed and glorious hope in all quarters.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING AGENT.

LITTLE RIVER ASSOCIATION.

This body met at Mt. Tabor church in Harnett county. Brother Smith was again elected Moderator, and Bro. J. A. Campbell, Clerk. The attendance was good, notwithstanding the Association met on one side of the territory. The brethren were glad to have Bro. Durham with them this year, as it had been some time since he had attended their meeting. Bro. Gwaltney was there to represent the Board of Education, and the brethren listened to him with much interest. Bro. W. G. King made a most effective speech on this subject. Bro. King never enjoyed the privileges which he so earnestly advocates for others, and this especially makes his appeals interesting and touching. Bro. Hilliard was on his native heath, and the friends of his boyhood gave him a most cordial welcome to his home Association. He is one prophet who is not without honor in his own country. Friday night was given him to discuss general education and Wake Forest College. And here, as elsewhere in the State where Bro. Hilliard has spoken, he made a fine impression for the work he represented.

The discussions were of much interest to all present. The Association is in fine condition—no divisions, nor trouble of any sort among the brethren. Several new churches were received by the Association. The church at Dennis, which has heretofore belonged to the South River, joined this body. This will add much to the strength and efficiency of the work. We note with pleasure the good influence Bro. J. A. Campbell's school is having, not only in the Association but in the entire county.

Bro. Hilliard spent the time with Dr. D. D. McBride, who is one of the pioneer Presbyterian preachers in this section. He has an ideal country home, plenty of this world's goods to make him thoroughly comfortable, a large and most interesting family, each one of whom seem to vie with the other in an effort to please father and mother and add to the pleasures of home.

On our way home Bro. Durham and I spent the night with Bro. Taylor at Dunn. I had often heard of this brother through his pastors, so it was a real pleasure to share the hospitality which I had so correctly anticipated before I had the privilege of stopping at his home.

UNION ASSOCIATION.

Thursday at one o'clock p. m. we are at Monroe. We are on hand in good time to see the beginning of the closing Association of the year. But notwithstanding the unseasonable hour in which we reach the town, we found Bro. Fletcher, chairman of the committee on hospitality, on hand ready to do duty. Dr. Durham and myself were sent to Bro. Ashcraft's, where we found a "light in the window" for us. Bro. Peterson was with us till we reached the town, and we soon found he was the least dependent upon any public arrangement for a place to stop for the last part of the night. But when it is learned that Bro. P. is a widower and has been to Monroe quite frequently recently, it will be plain to the average thinking man how it was he made his "touch-down" so easily.

The efforts of Bro. Adams, the pastor, and his brethren, to have a fine session secured the presence of Dr. Taylor, Prof. Hobgood and other visiting brethren, whose presence added much to the pleasure and interest of the meeting. The church here is in a most hopeful condition, the brethren and citizens of the town were delighted to have the brethren meet in the town, which has grown greatly in the last few years, and which is now a railroad center and promises to grow as the years go by.

My home was with Sister S. A. Covington who is probably the first Baptist who ever lived in Monroe. For years in the early history of the town, Maj. Covington was almost alone in his efforts to establish the Baptist cause in the town. We hope at no distant day to get in possession of some facts from the life and work which Maj. Covington did that will be valuable history for the Baptists of the State. We felt very much at home during the entire session. I have not seen so many Wake Forest men at any Association in the State.

All seemed to be thoroughly alive to the interest of the College. Bro. J. B. Richardson made a very strong and effective appeal for the cause of education in Union county. Some of us were specially struck with the statement he made that out of the twenty-three schools in Union county—which, by the way, has more Baptists than people of any other denomination—only one of these schools is presided over by a Baptist. The speeches of these brethren seemed to stir up new thought on this subject, and we hope this state of things will soon cease to exist both in this and every other county in North Carolina.

We enjoyed greatly the opportunity of spending an evening with Mrs. D. A. Covington, who has an elegant home and seems very happy in the cares and joys of house keeping. How rapidly time passes away! Only a few years ago Miss Mollie Simmons was a half grown girl; now she has a daughter in college, besides others who are interesting especially to men like Profs. Hobgood and Brewer.

At 12 o'clock Friday night we take the train for Whiteville, where we can only see the last of the

COLUMBUS COUNTY ASSOCIATION

This was, however, the best attended meeting this body ever had. Several new churches joined at this session. The brethren are sorry to lose their pastor, Bro. J. A. Smith, who has served the church here for several years. There are a number of the best brethren in this church, and if they could only realize their strength could easily employ a man for all his time.

Now after spending a night pleasantly with Bro. A. F. Powell, by the usual kindness of the Memory boys, we are again at Clarkton, waiting for the homeward train, and this is the last of the Associations till the meeting of the old Chowan in May, 1894.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....The North Carolina Conference meets in Wilmington on Dec. 6th.

....The Virginia Methodists are in annual conference this week at Danville.

....We were glad to see Bro. Bryan, returned missionary, in Raleigh last week.

....Rev. J. L. Sproles of Shelby has accepted a call to a pastorate in Kentucky.

....Bro. H. A. Foote of the Warrenton Gazette paid our office a pleasant visit last week.

....Rev. Wm. Ward of Asheville is on an evangelistic tour in the western part of the State.

....We are glad to hear that Bro. C. W. Blanchard's field, East Durham, is moving forward prosperously.

....If you fail to get the RECORDER, let us know, and we will do all that is possible to correct the mistake.

....We hope our pastors will not forget to meet us at the Convention with new subscribers and renewals from their fields.

....Rev. N. S. Jones assisted Rev. S. F. Conrad of Winston in a revival at the latter place last week. A good meeting was held.

....We are glad to hear that the Ochlawaha Institute, Hendersonville, N. C., of which Bro. J. C. C. Dunford is principal, is making fine progress.

....The November number of the Seminary Magazine and the Wake Forest Student have been received. We Baptists may well be proud of them both.

....Dr. Wharton, assisted by Bro. Elsom, recently held a revival in his Norfolk church which resulted in nine additions by letter and thirty by baptism.

....The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Wake Forest College met in the Mission Rooms, Raleigh, N. C., Tuesday evening, the 28th.

....We return thanks to Hon. Cushman K. Davis of the United States Senate for a copy of his admirable speech on the recent Chinese exclusion legislation.

....Let the brethren begin at once to pray for a good, hopeful, business like, spiritual session of the Convention, and continue thus to pray till Dec. 11th.

....Rev. J. A. Speight, D. D., of Berkley, Va., late of the Asheville Baptist, has accepted a call to the church at Kempsville, just without the limits of the city of Norfolk.

....We hope our readers will pardon us for consuming so much space with railroad schedules this week. They are necessary for the information of Convention delegates.

....Rev. J. F. Love of Suffolk, Va., Baptist church was engaged in a series of meetings last week which will continue through this week. A number of conversions have been reported.

....The total increase of Baptists in the United States for the decade of 1880–1890, was 1,182,753. The gain among Northern Baptists was 192,000; Southern, 353,000; and colored, nearly 700,000.—Watchman.

....Rev. W. F. Watson, the new pastor of the Spurgeon Memorial church at Norfolk, late of the Roxboro pastorate, received two members by letter, and two for baptism, on the 19th.

.....A series of meetings will begin at Roxobel church, Northampton county, Dec. 1st. The pastor, Rev. A. Cree, will be assisted by Rev. J. E. Hutson, well known as a strong evangelist.

....Rev. E. J. Edwards has resigned his position as travelling agent for Charity and Children, and will return to the pastorate. Bro. Edwards is well known over the State as an energetic Christian brother.

....The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of Shaw University will be held in New York City on Dec. 20th. Vacancies on the Board of Trustees are to be filled, and a successor to the late Dr. Tupper elected.

....Mr. L. S. Cannon, valedictorian of the class which graduated at Wake Forest College in 1889, has secured a lucrative position in the United States Civil Service for which he stood an admirable examination.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon's Brooklyn church now furnishes him with an assistant, Rev. S. V. Robinson. We suppose the pastorate will be conducted with Bro. Dixon in the pulpit, and Bro. Robinson as visiting and missionary pastor.

....Let our pastors from one end of the State to the other make an effort this week to extend the usefulness of the RECORDER. Renewals or new subscriptions handed in at the Convention will be gratefully received. Don't forget us.

....Dr. Thos. Hume spent Sunday last in Asheville, N. C., where he preached at the First Baptist church morning and evening, and at the French Broad church in the afternoon; pastor White being absent in Birmingham, Ala.

....Brethren, the Convention will be upon us in another week. Let us pray that God may bless the meeting; and let us attend it that we may share the blessings. It is going to be a glorious Convention, and none can afford to miss it.

....Bro. W. R. Simmons, Seven Springs, N. C., will receive, receipt for and apply all moneys subscribed at the Atlantic Association towards the debt on the house of worship at Seven Springs which the subscribers will send to him.—C. Durham.

....Rev. F. H. Martin of Lumberton writes under date of Nov. 20th: "We had a good day yesterday. The Lord was with us in power. Our meeting will continue ten days, or two weeks." The pastor is assisted by Rev. J. H. Edwards of Fayetteville.

....Rev. J. K. Howell was in Raleigh last week on his way from Lennox Castle to Rocky Mount, where he takes charge of the church. Bro. Howell has been one of our strongest country pastors, and we have no fears for him or his flock in Rocky Mount.

....Rev. J. W. Rose has changed his address to Core, N. C., from Newbern, and will make this his permanent home. He writes: "We organized and built a church at this point this year." Bro. Rose will continue in his same field, and moves to Cove for the sake of convenience.

....Rev. L. R. Pruett of Mt. Airy recently held a good revival in the Booneville church, of which Rev. J. E. Greene is pastor, and as a result eleven converts were baptized on the 19th. Bro. Greene writes that others will follow soon; "the Lord has done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

... Tally Ho Baptist church having accepted the resignation of Dr. R. H. Marsh, to take effect Jan. 1st, has called Rev. J. H. Lamberth of Greenville, whose decision as to the call has not been made known. Dr. Marsh had been in this pastorate twenty years, and the church was greatly endeared to him.

....Bro. L. R. Carroll writes: "The church was much revived and encouraged, and ten were added to its membership as the results of Bro. J. C. Crumpler's meeting at Mt. Holly recently. This church and others in the vicinity were fortunate in calling Bro. Crumpler to this field. He is one of our safest and most promising young ministers."

....We have a postal from Sister Yates written from the California Hotel, San Francisco, November 21st, in which she said she would embark for China on the 21st, and that many missionaries would depart for foreign fields on the same steamer, among them Mr. Upcraft and sixteen recruits. Miss Moon was also expected. May God keep them.

....Rev. Thos. G. Wood has resigned the pastorate of Murfreesboro and Mt. Tabor Baptist churches to take effect the first of January. He has accepted a call to Sawyer's Creek and Ramoth Gilead churches in Camden county. He has been pastor of the church here for nine years, and he has served it well. The entire community regret that he has decided to leave.—Murfreesboro Index.

....We think that it has been pretty generally claimed that the boys in college who have excelled in athletic sports have also made the best records as students. This may have been true in the earlier history of this branch of college work. But the testimony of educators like Drs. Percival of Rugby and Horne of Eton, that such is not now the case, may serve as a suggestion that physical education has been overdone.

....We are glad to announce that after a residence of eighteen months in South Carolina, Rev. J. M. White will return to his old home, Apex, N. C., at the close of this year, near which place, at Salem church, Bro. White has accepted a pastorate. He writes that the RECORDER has kept him well in touch with the North Carolina brethren, and that the breaking of pleasant South Carolina ties can only be compensated by renewing older ties in North Carolina.

....Maj. R. W. York of Chatham county, born Sept. 30th, 1829, died Tuesday the 21st, after a brief illness.

....Rev. W. F. Crocker, one of the departing missionaries, writes: "Please send my RECORDER to Chefoo, China. Everything has passed pleasantly for the most part of our trip so far, and to-day (Nov. 18) we are on board the 'Empress of Japan' moving down the bay to the sea." In another column we publish a farewell letter from Bro. Herring. May God keep and guide these brethren.

....The Foreign Mission Board met at Richmond on the 20th, and was addressed by Bro. Bryan, who, after having given an interesting review of the general work in China, urged that the Board set apart twenty more—ten single ladies and ten men—for that field next year. The matter was referred to a committee. It is said that there is a strong disposition on the part of several of the Board to comply with Bro. Bryan's suggestion.

....We have received two articles from Brother and Sister T. J. League of China, respectively, in justification of their position with regard to the Mission Board. We would have been glad to have given our readers these articles a few weeks ago, but now that the discussion is closed, both sides having been exhaustively set forth, we cannot see that good will come of a re opening of the subject. The letters are issued in circular form, and will doubtless be published in some of our contemporaries.

....We greatly regret a recent mistake that appeared in these columns, and Bro. J. J. Lansdell has our sincere thanks for correcting it. We have stated that Rev. J. H. Lamberth of Greenville had been called to the vacant pastorate at Roxboro; we should have stated that Ephesus church, near Roxboro, had called Bro. Lamberth, and that Dr. C. F. James was supplying for Ephesus at present. The Roxboro and Clement churches have agreed to call Rev. H. F. Williams of the Chowan Association, who has accepted the call.

....Rev. John H. Couch writes from Venner, Va: "God has more abundantly blessed my labors during the time I have been here than ever before. My strongest church has doubled her membership during the last associational year, repaired their house of worship at a cost of about $500, and more than doubled the contributions to the Boards, not counting the centennial collecting. We had one household baptism in this church. The husband, like the jailer at Phillippi, believed, and all his household, and we went with his whole family down into the water and buried them in baptism. I have a strong field before which I believe there is a glorious future.

....The Cleveland Presbyterian conference, which recently met in Cleveland, Ohio, appointed a big committee of elders and distinguished preachers apparently for the purpose of rocking the action of the General Assembly which disposed of the case of Dr. Briggs. Among other resolutions presented by this committee, it declares that a large majority of the presbyteries have expressed their dissatisfaction with the confession of faith, some wanting it changed, while others want a new creed out and out. The thing which will help our Presbyterian brethren out of the perils which seem now to beset their church and prevent a recurrence of similar troubles, is to throw away man-made creed, and let the New Testament take its proper place in the establishment of their churches and in the deliberations of their counsels.

....The North Carolina Baptist Almanac for 1894 contains a vast amount of statistical and other information which ought to be in the hands of every family. The following is a partial list of its contents: Tables of all sorts of Baptists in the State by counties; tables of all religious denominations in the State and the United States taken from the United States census returns for 1890; officers of State Government and of all the State institutions; times for holding Supreme, Superior and Federal Courts; biographical sketches of Drs. Royall and Tupper, and other distinguished Baptists; a revised alphabetical list of Baptist preachers with their postoffices and Associations; the Boards of the Baptist State Convention; trustees of Wake Forest College and officers of the same; extracts from Williamson's history about religious oppression in North Carolina, and other matter of general interest. Orders should be sent to Dr. N. B. Cobb, Raleigh, N. C.

Wake Forest Items.

In a recent issue of the Wilmington Messenger, Dr. Kingsbury stated in an editorial that he regarded the Dixon family as the most remarkable one now in the State and mentioned the wonderful oratorical powers of the three preachers, A. C., Tom and Frank. We venture to say that if they were asked the secret of this rare power, they would say that not a little of it was due to the training they received in the Literary Society here.

Prof. Poteat has been elected a member of the Marine Biological Laboratory of Woods Hall, Mass. Some of the most noted biologists in the country belong to this Society, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia being represented in its membership. This high recognition of Prof. Poteat's ability and attainments as a biologist will be very gratifying to his friends here and elsewhere throughout the State.

Mr. E. E. Hilliard made an excellent talk to the students at prayers Friday morning. Mr. Hilliard has been traveling as general agent for the College for the past two or three months. He reports the outlook as hopeful and that there is among the masses of the denomination a growing interest in the College.

Rev. W. R. Gwaltney has received a good contribution for the Board of Education from the North Carolina "boys" at the Seminary. Wake Forest is proud of her sons in Louisville and of the record they are making. They will be heard from in the future. Every one of them ought to be brought back to North Carolina as soon as they complete their course. J. B. C.

A Question Answered.

Dear Recorder:—I ask space for a public answer to a question that has come to me from various sources lately. It is this: "Will your Board furnish one quarter's literature free to schools using other literature, if they will agree to change to yours." I have invariably answered, no and have given several reasons.

1. We do not give literature to schools able to pay for it; we only give to poor mission schools unable to pay for it, or to new schools to help them start.

2. If we have literature to give away to people able to pay for it, our regular patrons most deserve the favor.

3. As an inducement to schools to drop other literature and take ours; we do not think this is a business method of such high character as to warrant our using it. If we cannot do work for our Master on business lines which are not condemned by high-toned men of the world, we will not do at all Yours truly,

T. P. BELL,
Cor. Sec. S. S. Board.

A Farewell Word.

We are now on board the Empress of Japan, expecting to sail in a few hours. After leaving that good meeting at Reidsville where we said good bye to many a warm-hearted friend, we had a pleasant visit with Bro. Crocker to his churches in Kentucky. Then we went through Chicago and saw where the World's Fair had been. Thence we came straight to the Pacific coast. Our route took us through Minnesota and North Dakota up into Canada, where we took the main line of the Canadian and Pacific Railroad. It was a splendid trip affording every variety of scenery—first the prairies, then the Rocky Mountains, the grandure of whose rugged heights, towering fourteen thousand feet above us as we pass, never can be described. The poor Indians living there in their savage old wig-wams—the sight of them is pathetic.

Yes, we are already 3,000 miles on our way, and soon we shall be on the deep, plowing on our way to yonder far-off shore. Much time we shall have for thinking, and many a one of you, dear friends, will come up to our minds. We shall pray for you, and hope to be prayed for. Yes, this love is akin to that of heaven.

Eight years ago my face was toward the sunset as it is to day—how different things seem! How different they are! These "boys," Crocker, Bialock and Royall have it before them all untried as I did then. One help I had then that even they have not now. Loved ones all behind us—only God is left us, and he is all. Soon the work will be done, and we shall, by the grace of God, be up yonder where parting is not known. Good-bye, i. e., God be with you."

Faithfully, D. W. HERRING.

My First Impressions of the Baptist General Association of Virginia.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I am home from the meeting of the General Association at Roanoke. This was my first year as a pastor in Virginia, and also my first attendance upon the session of the General Association. The meeting was a grand success. A sweet Christian spirit pervaded the sessions. The main speeches were of a high order. Special mention should be made of Rev. R. T. Bryan's speech on Foreign Missions. It was very instructive, showing how the gospel leaven is taking hold of China. The speaker dealt in plain facts, which were very hopeful also. Many of our ablest men said they never heard a speech on Foreign Missions so instructive and so hopeful. It was no small pleasure to see, hear and be with Brother Bryan, my Seminary school-mate and room-mate.

Special mention should be made also of the address of Bro. F. C. McConnell, one of the Secretaries of the Home Mission Board. This brother I had known in the Seminary, also a student from Georgia. He literally captured his crowd. I hope all who can go to the North Carolina Baptist State Convention will hear brethren Bryan and McConnell.

Our Boards here made good reports. Our State Mission Board report no debt. It was a real satisfaction to know that the missionaries had been paid up in full.

The Orphanage at Salem was visited. It has sixty children in it. It is a grand work and growing; but I am free to say that I like the family idea at Thomasville better, and also the farm attachment; yet this work with N. C. Baptists has an older history than here. More than fifteen hundred dollars were raised in cash and subscriptions for the Orphanage work. More room is an urgent need, as forty children needing help can't now be taken.

I am hoping to be at Elizabeth City for two reasons—first, my interest in the Master's work in North Carolina, and the fact that I am not far away.

Baptist Female University.

There will be a special meeting of the Trustees of the N. C. Baptist Female University at Elizabeth City, Saturday, December 9th, at 3 p. m. Important business will claim their attention.

From Burlington.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I thought that it might be of interest to your readers to have a few items of news from these parts.

The Lord continues to bless our labors in this town. There has been a continuous work of grace in our congregation from the beginning of my labors here, beginning with the first of last January. Every now and then there are professions of conversion. There are many in the congregation who are anxiously inquiring after the way of life. During the year there have been about one hundred and fifty additions to the membership of the church. We are expecting several valuable accessions in the near future.

Last Sunday afternoon we organized a church at Glencoe, a village three and a half miles from here. This is one of Bro. Alvis Andrews' preaching stations. He has done very efficient service there. We organized with thirty-eight members. This is a colony sent off by the Burlington church, all the members having been of this except one. Brethren I. H. Dunlap, I. F. Meacham and John Allen were elected and ordained as deacons. This church, being organized under favorable auspices, having such efficient members, promises to accomplish much in the name of the Lord.

As your readers have already been informed, we organized a church at Haw River the fourth Sunday in June, with a membership of thirty three. In July we held a meeting of wonderful interest. The work of grace has not ceased—within the last five or six weeks there have been twelve or fifteen conversions. We receive members at each meeting. The membership has been increased to seventy-five, counting several who have been approved for baptism. We expect to receive several next meeting.

In the work at Graham, there has been very little encouragement for several years. Beginning with the fifth Sunday in October we protracted a meeting which continued five days, and while there was only one accession to the church, the meeting was fruitful of good. The church is much revived and has gone to work. It is now in a very hopeful condition.

I think I can see that the leaders of the other denominations bring the church to the front, holding up what the church believes, what the church teaches, what the church practices. I am convinced, by experience and observation, that when the church is relegated to (as far back as) the second seat, and God's truth is brought to the front, people, acting without being biased, will become to be Baptists.

Dear reader, I ask you to pray for us in this difficult, but promising field.

Fraternally, JNO C. HOCUTT

Mt. Holly Church.

Dear Recorder:—We have just closed a most gracious meeting at Mt. Holly. The Lord richly blessed us. Bro. L. R. Carroll did most of the preaching. We were delighted with his rich gospel sermons. His earnestness, tenderness and fine reasoning and persuasiveness reached us all. Our church is greatly revived, one good sister came to us from the Disciples church and nine have come by baptism. Others we trust will follow. The Lord has lovingly blessed the churches which I serve. To my several churches twenty have been added by baptism and experience recently.

Bladen Association.

A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THINGS.

Dear Recorder:—On the second day of the meeting I arrived. The letters had been read and the body organized. The former officers were re-elected. No better selection could have been made.

The body was ready for work, and early Saturday morning the different objects began to come up and were fitly and enthusiastically discussed by Bladen county men to the instruction and edification of all present. Ministers present—William Brunt, W. S. Melon, Levi Bryan, A. J. Bordeaux, C. E. Baird, Hopper Brisson and the writer. From 9:30 o'clock until 1 o'clock we held the vast audience spell bound discussing Home Missions, State and Foreign. There being none of our representative brethren present, we tried to unfurl the banner and lift it to the breezes. For State Missions pledges were taken, amounting to forty-four dollars.

After dinner, and at two o'clock, the writer read a lengthy and startling report on Temperance, which is his pet theme. He did his best. I hope it will appear in the minutes as ordered.

A report on the Orphanage was read, discussed, and responded to with a good collection.

Bro. Bordeaux represented the RECORDER, and received subscriptions with the money therefor. The writer also spoke in behalf of the RECORDER, Baptist, Home Field, and Foreign Mission Journal. These papers are educators and a necessity in Baptist homes.

Rev. Wm. Brunt spoke in behalf of Wake Forest College and voluntary contributions were handed in.

Meeting of the Executive Board, the reports of the Finance committee and Treasurer concluded the day.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the writer preached the missionary sermon from Matthew 28: 19, 20. A collection was taken. This service closed the second day of the session.

We are now about twenty-five churches strong, and in this number we have four banner churches, which are calculated to develop the weaker ones. There have been over two hundred dollars in collections from this Association during the past twelve months for the various objects. There is no reason to be ashamed of small beginnings. We look forward to triumph by the time we meet next fall with Galilee, the banner church of the Association.

My much esteemed friend, Col T S Memory of Whiteville writes me that the Columbus Association was a success this time.

Your correspondent contemplates doing colportage and missionary work in the bounds of the Columbus and Bladen Associations for the year 1894. This is a work that should be urged by all our churches and associations as a forerunner of the pastor, the religious press, and the spiritual education of our people. From past observation there are six hundred families along the sides of the main or public roads without a family Bible, and three thousand individuals without a New Testament in Bladen and Columbus counties. Is this not startling! Yet our people fold their arms in contentment. "Awake, awake, O Zion, put on thy strength, O Zion."

D. J. CLARK.

Meetings Engaged In.

Dear Recorder:—I have recently helped in meetings at Waughtown, Red Bank, Summerfield and Mt. Olive. Two of these have beported.

In the meeting at Waughtown, twenty-five united with the church, nine at Summerfield, eight at Red Bank and fourteen at Mt. Olive, making fifty six in all. Several more professed in these meetings, who doubtless will join.

I will commence a meeting at Madison on Tuesday night before the fourth Sunday. Hope all who read this notice will pray for us.

I find in my churches and in other churches where I have been, that those who read the RECORDER are the best Christians and the best workers for the Master. I don't see how any Baptist in the State can afford not to take the BIBLICAL RECORDER

I have been on the sick-list this week, but am about well again.

Yours for Christ,

W. H. WILSON

Madison, Nov. 17, 1893.

The Lord's Work at Red Springs.

Dear Recorder:—I hasten to drop you a few lines about the Lord's work here.

Our dear pastor came in last week and found a good revival spirit in his church. A young Bro. Webster from Georgia was here on a visit to his father, and began preaching on the second Sabbath. The interest grew in town and country until the close last Sabbath night. Elder Kesler baptized ten persons Sabbath morning. Others desire to be baptized.

Bro. Webster is a good man and a good preacher, and has done us good, and made many warm friends in and around Red Springs. He will leave for Georgia this afternoon. He hopes to be able to enter Wake Forest College next fall. May the Lord bless him.

Brethren Kesler and Fulford are running a meeting at Spring Hill, Richmond county, this week. Our people are delighted with our new pastor.

My health and spirits are fine.

News from Two Meetings.

I have held with two of my churches glorious meetings. Bro. S. F. Conrad was was with me in my meeting at Piney which lasted over a week, and resulted in the addition of fifteen by baptism and three more received for the ordinance. The church of over 300 members is greatly revived under Bro. Conrad's earnest, plain preaching. He gave them the "gospel pill" without an "sugar coating."

I give half my time to the church here (Piney) and am principal of the school.

Our meeting at Holloways was a glorious one. I was assisted by Bro. H. Sheets, who by his touching way of putting the gospel, reached both Christians and sinners and as a result I baptized nine and received eight more. At the close of the meeting the church decided to build a new house as the congregation has grown too large for the old one. The good Lord be praised for what he has done for us.

J. M. BENNETT.

Churchland, November 18, 1893.

Rev. Orin Churchill.

Rev. Orin Churchill was born October 19, 1819, and died near Chalk Level, Harnett county, N. C., October 23d, 1893, being seventy-four years and four days old.

In November, 1852, he was licensed to preach by the Baptist church at Greensboro, N. C., and was ordained at the Liberty Association on August 27, 1855, Elders Benjamine Lanier, Azariah Williams, William Lamberth, and Alfred Kinney constituting the presbytery.

Of his earlier life and, in fact, most of his life in detail, the writer knows but little. His education and opportunities for development were limited; but, by hard study, diligent application and the blessing of God on his labors, he became well informed on general subjects and had a knowledge of the Bible that would have done credit to those having better advantages. The first preacher I remember ever to have seen was Bro. Churchill. I remember how I felt as he entered my father's home. It was while he and my father were holding a meeting at a little school-house that I was converted.

It is not strange, therefore, that I have always felt a strong attachment to him. He was a humble, unassuming man. His work was largely in destitute sections, building up the cause in many weak places. As a revivalist, he had few equals. He possessed an almost unlimited number of anecdotes, which he could use with telling effect. He was a forcible speaker. His power of description and ability to draw pictures made his sermons at times powerful. He denied himself and family many of the luxuries of life that he might save souls and serve his Master. He always seemed to hesitate about preaching, trembling under the responsibility, yet, warming up, he never seemed so happy as when telling of Jesus.

It is sad to think that he is dead. Though seventy-four years old, he labored in several meetings last fall and did some of the best preaching of his life. During his life, the number professing faith in Christ under his preaching reached up in the thousands.

His labors now are ended and he is at rest. But heaven will be the richer for his life. He has set in motion influences that will roll on and on, blessing humanity and brightening the world until the work of the world is finished. J. A. CAMPBELL.

Christ, and to be a member of the happy family in which he is the elder brother; and to live with him and them forever in the Father's house with "many mansions," is surely the greatest possible good for every soul. And to this end everything happening to it is made to contribute, even the sorest tribulations of life. So Paul teaches in Romans 5: 3—5, "We glory in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience;"—(see how things work together)—"and patience, experience; and experience, hope; and hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us." All tend to the fulfilment of this gracious purpose of love to his people.

5. "And we know" these things to be true—there can be no doubt about it, because, in the first place, God's Word says so. So the Saviour testifies. John 17: 17, "Thy Word is truth." And so does Paul in 2 Cor. 1: 20, "For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him amen, unto the glory of God by us." This is perfectly conclusive, Rom. 3: 4, "Let God be true, but every man a liar." And then we know it because the history of his people has abundantly demonstrated it. Take from the Scriptures the case of Jacob lamenting the loss of his children, Gen. 42: 36—"Me ye have bereaved of my children: Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me." And yet the old patriarch lived to see his mistake, and to find out that "all these things" had been working out the best possible good to his family. Joseph so understood it afterward. Hear him telling his brethren, Gen. 50: 20—"But as for you, ye thought evil against me; but God meant it unto good." Here we have a literal fulfilment of Ps. 76: 10—"Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee."

And we find another instance in Paul's experience of the outcome of the ills of his eventful life, Phil. 1: 12—"But I would that ye should understand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me hath fallen out rather for the furtherance of the gospel." And a like experience has been brought in many a Christian's life, and his experience compels his assent to the truth of our text. It has become the verdict of the church. So Beddome thought, and rightly, when he sang:

"In heaven and earth and air and seas
He executes h's firm decrees;
And by his saints it stands confessed,
That what he does is ever best."

From North China.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Permit me to say several things to your readers.

1. I desire to commend most highly to every reader two books on missions, which I have recently read. One is called Geology, by J. A. Scarboro, Atlanta, Ga., and the other is The Holy Spirit in Missions, by A. J. Gordon, Boston—the first, price 25 cents; the other, $1.25. I feel that these books are next to the Bible—the best things I have ever read on the subject. I can't say which is the better—indeed, I think they are much like Abe Lincoln's hats—"they do eventually surpass each other." I do not see how any one can read them without great benefit. May each of these books have a very wide and prayerful reading.

2. We are no longer in Tung Chow, but our address remains Chefoo, China, the same as before. On the 13th inst. we said good-bye to friends, native and foreign, there, and turned our faces westward in search of towns and cities in which none have yet lived to preach the gospel. This seemed best and wisest after the Board sent Dr. Hartwell to Tung Chow to open work on lines different from those we hope to pursue. It was painful to leave those whom the Lord had saved through our feeble efforts, but we hope and pray that this very step may be used of the Lord in renewing their faith and increasing their strength. By "we" I mean Doctor and Sister Crawford, my wife and self. Our wives will remain here for the present, while Dr. Crawford and I proceed further west to look out a place in which to locate. In this city, Pingtu, are Brother and Sister League, who unite with the "Gospel Mission" since they were suspended by the Board, Brother and Sister Sears, and our Miss Fannie Knight, who still are connected with the Board.

3. There are many encouraging signs in the work. Four had been baptized into the Tung Chow church this year before we left, and others were applying. There has been much voluntary earnest preaching from village to village by some of the native brethren in the past year. Some are waking up to the fact that when saved by the gospel they are obligated thereby to tell it to others.

4. I see that this year has been a very hard year in financial matters in America. I have not yet learned what the crop prospects are, but I do trust that these hard times will cause our Baptist people to look to a power higher than Congress for the remedy for this distress. May there grow out of this financial distress such a humiliation on the part of God's people as will open the windows of heaven and bring down untold blessings to themselves and to the heathen nations.

5. I and mine are in good health, and joyfully acknowledge the countless mercies of our Heavenly Father. May the blessings of God rest abundantly upon all his children.

Fraternally, G. P. BOSTICK.

A Statement.

J. E. W. in his letter of facts and forecasts in the Examiner of Nov. 9th, has the following from North Carolina in reference to our FOREIGN MISSION WORK.

"2d. Our Foreign Mission work is sadly demoralized by the successful introduction of the 'Gospel Mission' methods. A number of our Associations have voted practically to withdraw from the State Convention in its Foreign Mission work. This will bring about a large falling off of contributions to the work as organized under the Board at Richmond. Again, there is a large number of persons, forming the minority in Associations which have refused to go into the new movement, who, to say the least, will be very lukewarm when the missionaries under the Board need help. Also, it may safely be said that there is another class, easily conquered by division and controversy, who will accept the present state of affairs as a good excuse for not giving to either side. The Convention must face this trouble."

Up to the present writing the churches have given, as reported in the RECORDER, not including Western North Carolina, for Foreign Missions, $7,616 42 Last year from November, 1891, to December, 1892, the churches in North Carolina, not including Western North Carolina, gave $9 994.83 This shows a falling off of $2,288 41 up to the present. This, in the face of the difficulties of the year, does not show the work to be "sadly demoralized."

Of the forty-one Associations forming the North Carolina State Convention, six of the smaller ones have adopted the "Gospel Mission" plan. This fact does not indicate the successful introduction of the "Gospel Mission Methods."

I write this that no one may be confused by the "facts and forecasts" of J. E. W.

Sincerely, R. VAN DEVENTER

Monument to the late Mrs Herring.

[We are permitted to publish the following private letter in reference to the monument erected to the memory of our late Sister Herring.—EDITOR RECORDER.]

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Oct. 30, 1893.

Dear Miss Lizzie:—* * * It is plain, but beautiful, and about nine feet high. Now I turn my face toward China, and it is a comfort to me to have this sacred spot, where sleeps my dear Maggie, so beautifully marked. I do so much appreciate this lasting token of the love of many of her friends. I want to express my thanks to them all, and especially to yourself and the ladies of the missionary society at Mt. Airy who first inaugurated it.

On the front of the monument is: "Maggie Nutt, wife of D. W. Herring Born Dec. 17, 1864 Died Aug. 8, 1893 Missionary [Baptist] to the Chinese."

On the right side is: "She lived, not long, but well: in her home, a fond sister and faithful daughter, true wife and devoted mother; in the world, a constant friend and helpful neighbor; everywhere, of Christ, a faithful follower.

"Richly hath she deserved her rest."

On the left side is: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know here after."

"I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

On the back is: "Erected by her schoolmates."

The lettering is beautifully arranged, and it all shows up well.

Gratefully, D. W. HERRING.

Rev. W. P. D. Clark.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Aug. 8, 1892.—Dubois & Webb: My son. D. A. Clark, book keeper for L. R. Freeman & Co., was suffering with nervous prostration from over-work. He and his mother went to the neighborhood of Tyree Springs about the 1st of June to rest and recuperate. While there he became very much worse, and his mind became very seriously affected, and I had to go and bring him home. His condition was such that he knew no one, not even the members of his family. He was blind, deaf and speechless. At times he was very violent and would fight his attendants when they would undertake to control him. I called in a physician, who said he was suffering from nervous prostration and that he had better be sent to the asylum for treatment. That was the opinion of both physicians who saw him. Various remedies were prescribed, but we could get him to take none of them. Finally, I concluded to use the Electropoise. It took five men to tie him on the bed so that it could be put on him. In about twenty minutes his nervous system began to respond to the treatment, and he began to get quiet. In about an hour he was asleep. In five hours he recognized not only the family, but the friends and neighbors who came in. He slept well that night and awoke next morning with his mind apparently as clear as it ever was, his sight, hearing and speech almost perfectly restored. Now, after six days' use of the Electropoise his nervous condition is good, his mind clear, his physical system in good condition and he is preparing to go on a fishing trip with his friends. All this was done by the Electropoise, without the aid of medicines, because, as before stated, although the physicians prescribed various remedies, among the number four grains of calomel at one dose, we could never get him to take any of them. I make this statement as simple justice to this wonderful curative agent, and with the hope that it may benefit other sufferers. W. P. D. CLARK,

Pastor of the South Nashville Baptist Church. Home, 309 Green street.

A Plea for Harmony.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I am truly sorry to see that some of the brethren still persist in the fight on Missions Methods. This has already been detrimental to the progress of the Master's work in this part of the State.

Such personal tilts as are frequently seen, (even in this week's RECORDER) which I am quite sure would be better not made. I do hope the brethren everywhere will cease to dispute, and disparage each other, and get down to hard work in behalf of all our missionaries at home and abroad, working under any and all methods. For the sake of the Master's cause here and elsewhere, brethren, let us quit this, and not stop to contend when our missionaries, State and Foreign are suffering for the meagre salaries we have promised them. I am sure, that as a whole, our missionaries in this State are as noble and worthy men as ever entered any work And here we are fighting over minor matter while these brethren are less than half paid their salaries for the past year. I am, indeed, pained to see in this week's RECORDER, that less than six thousand of the fifteen thousand dollars needed have been paid in. Let us rally to the aid of these workers who have laid deep and wide the mighty foundation of Baptist principles and progress in North Carolina; and which is to-day operating as the basis of our most glorious advances in every sphere of our work at home and abroad. It is wounding to denominational pride (and I think we should all have such) to know that there are whole counties in our own State destitute of Baptist preaching; and we have fallen behind in many localities by reason of not having sooner started our mission work. Our encouragement is in the fact that some of the most useful churches in the State were, only a few years ago, mission points.

A suggestion: Now, let every brother who has an inkling, a sort of itching to deal in personalities concerning methods or anything else, quietly seek direction of the Lord; and I shall be surprised if their communications do not kindly soften.

May God speed the State Mission work till there be no destitution from Murphy to Manteo. Fraternally,

J. V. MCCALL

Rev. A. J. Hensley Ordained.

Dear Recorder:—Bro. A. J. Hensley was ordained to the full work of the ministry at Harmony Grove, McDowell county, N. C., on the 11th inst. He preached a sermon before the presbytery, then told his experience and call to the ministry. Bro. J. R. Denton examined him, Dr. M. M. Landrum offered the prayer and gave the charge. The whole presbytery laid their hands on him. J. R. DENTON.

Rocky River Church—Missionary Day.

This old church stands among the hills of upper Anson in a section of country noted for good water, good health and good people. It is thought to be the oldest church of any denomination in this part of the State. The records of the church prior to 1828 have been lost or carried away by some of the clerks who moved out West, but tradition here says that it was founded by Hon. and Rev. John Culpeper about 117 years ago, at a time when men mixed their religion and politics more than now, and when it was not thought impossible for a man to be both a politician and a Christian. For our pastor was held in high esteem by all the brethren and at the same time represented this District in Congress acceptably to all his party friends.

During the existance of the church it has had some of the most faithful and consecrated of God's servants to minister to them in holy things, and hundreds upon hundreds have been baptized into the fellowship of the church. Under the pastoral care of Rev. J. L. Bennett the church has been much strengthened, numerically and otherwise, the present year. Among other prominent preachers who have filled our pulpit on special occasions, or held meetings of days for us, we recall the names of Revs. A. L. Stough. J. R. Griffith, N. B. Cobb, J. B. Richardson, N. R. Pittman, H. W. Battle and others.

As no one ever writes for the RECORDER from here, the temptation is to write on but; perhaps, it is best to stop, and carry out the original object of this communication in telling your younger readers about our which was observed by our Sunday-school the first Sunday in November, instead of the 15th of October as suggested by the Woman's Missionary Union. The exercises consisted of responsive scripture reading, questions and answers on mission topics, prayers for our missionaries and their fields and recitations by the children interspersed appropriate and soul-stirring songs by the congregations. In closing the exercises the choir sang "Bringing in the Sheaves" and sixty children, suiting their actions to the words, marched up to the table and returned as many mite-boxes containing from one cent to one dollar. By thus observing the "Day" we awakened an interest and created a zeal for missions in the hearts and minds of those present that will yield fruit after many days, besides raising over $10 by the efforts of the children alone for this object.

The thanks of the decorating committee is due some good Baptist sisters of Wadesboro who sent up a quantity of rare flowers for the occasion and, which were admired by all.

Let other schools try this plan of raising funds. It will please and benefit the children and is most sure of being a success.

The Mortgage on the late Bro. Maynard's Home.

Dear Recorder:—Soon after the death of Rev. John R. Maynard of the Raleigh Baptist Association, it was learned that he left on his home in Morrisville a mortgage of two hundred dollars, with limited means for the support of his family, and nothing with which to pay the incumbrance upon the homestead.

A number of brethren and friends, who knew something of the life-work of Brother Maynard and of the sacrifices made by him for the cause of Christ, resolved that they would undertake to raise the amount necessary to pay the debt. The plan adopted was to appoint four brethren as a committee who would solicit contributions among the churches and congregations where he labored as a servant of God. The committee chosen were brethren J. C. Burns, Apex; N. G. Burns, Holly Springs; Jas. F. Caine, Cary; and P. W. Dowd, Auburn. Bro. Maynard, as pastor, served Apex, Ephesus, Collins Grove, Shady Grove, Good Hope, Reedy Creek, New Bethel, Swift Creek and Kinney's Creek churches, and others. Are there not one hundred brethren and friends in these congregations who will pay one dollar each? Are there not one hundred who will pay fifty cents each? Are there not two hundred more who will raise the remaining fifty dollars by contributing amounts from five cents to fifty cents?

In our want, let us not forget objects like this which appeal so strongly to our Christian beneficence. H. C. OLIVE.

Our Meeting Closed.

Dear Bro. Batley:—Our meeting closed last Wednesday night. Bro. C. A. Jenkens of Goldsboro did the preaching. The Christian people were delighted with his presentation of gospel truth. He has no methods. He preaches and depends upon the Spirit for results.

Our membership were much revived and strengthened by the meeting. Bro. Jenkens will hold a warm place in their affections for years years.

Twenty seven have been received for baptism. On last Sunday I baptized twenty-four. There are others to follow. We have had precious meetings in many of the churches of the Pilot Mountain Association this year. There is a great work for the older Christians to do in looking after and helping the young converts.

Yours fraternally. H. A. BROWN,

Read your Bibles. Fill your whole souls with the thought of Christ; make him not only a Redeemer, but a Brother; not only a Saviour but a Friend.—Cannon Farrar.

Every man's thinking machine necessarily makes him walk close to great intellectual perils. It is a sad thing not to think. Emerson says: "Beware when God lets a thinker loose among men" I walked with a friend lately among electrical dynamos. One had to walk carefully. Beware how you touch this band or that wheel; it is death-charged. The dynamos were lighting the city. But walking among the wheels was to be in deadly jeopardy. Thinking lights the world. And yet the thinking machine deals out equally light and death. Use the machine rightly, it will flood your path with light; use it wrongly, it is a thunderbolt to smite you; it will strike you stone blind. When I see the skeptics sneering at a future life, I say to myself, "Poor fellows, God gave them dynamos to generate light to pierce through the grave. They have used them to make thunderbolts for their own destruction."—Rev. C. L. Thompson, D. D.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

Subject for November: Japan.

"Let them give glory unto the Lord and declare his praise in the islands." Missionaries, 4; native assistants, 2; stations, 6; churches, 1; membership, 27; baptisms, 26.

STUDY TOPICS.—Japan an open door. One of the Isles that waits for his law. It is accessible. Character of the obstacles to success. The outlook of our Board in Japan. What has been done in Japan?

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

Christmas Appeal of the Woman's Missionary Union.

Poor indeed must be the heart to which Christmas brings no added joy through other hearts made glad; that has no treasured remembrance of home festivals, alleviated suffering and grateful praise. The Christian adoption of a heathen custom it may have been, but to every loyal Christian heart it has come to be intertwined with thoughts of all that is most joyous in our religion; and over all rings out the glad tidings, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Since the organization of the Woman's Missionary Union it has sought to link the home pleasures of Christmas with the wider, farther-reaching joys of helping to proclaim the blessed Christmas tidings to those who knew it not.

For the first four years the Christmas offering of the Union was for the increase of the missionary force in North China; and through this means $15,632 18 was raised. Last year, by the advice of the Foreign Mission Board, Japan was made the object of the offering, $2,068 89 being the amount of the ingathering. This year, again, this youngest and weakest of our missions calls for our Christmas benevolence.

We need only glance at the short and sad history of our work in Japan to realize that we, as a denomination, have done little for these children of the Orient. With high hope and noble purpose, Mr. and Mrs. Roher sailed for Japan in 1865. Here we lose sight of them. Their fate, as that of all on board the vessel, will be known only "when the sea gives up her dead."

No further attempt was made by our Convention to enter this field until 1889, when four missionaries were sent out. This is the present number of our force located in Kinshiu, one of the four principal islands, having a population of nine millions, among whom little missionary work has been done.

When we consider that in Japan alone of all heathen countries the name of Christ has been known and hated for centuries, we can better understand the wonderful triumphs of the gospel within the last forty years. In 1549 zealous monks undertook the evangelization of Japan, not that it might become a kingdom of the lowly Nazarene, but that this fair, sea-girt land might add another kingdom to the dominions of the triple-crowned Pope. Japanese statesmen, seeing the danger that threatened their kingdom, resolved to exterminate the new religion with fire and blood, and sixty thousand Catholic Japanese are said to have perished. Not content with this massacre, for the intervening hundred years, at each milestone hung a placard denouncing "murderers, thieves and Christians," and each province was yearly searched as with a lighted candle, lest any should remain who dared to own the name of Christ. Only familiarity with the facts lessens our wonder when to day we read of thirty five thousand Japanese Christians.

But let us remember that Japan is not a Christian country. Missionaries are restricted to the larger seaport towns, and travel for other than "pleasure or scientific purposes" is strictly forbidden. Wily Japanese politicians seeing that the greatest nations are Christian nations, have proposed that Japan take upon itself that name; but it is not in this fashion that Christian people are made. On the other hand, the army of Buddhist priests supported by the people and fearing their livelihood endangered, are calling conferences to decide upon the best methods for reviving and propagating Buddhism, following in some sort missionary methods.

Such is advanced Japan of to day, restless, discarding the old for the new, casting off all religion to enthrone in its stead education, science and political strength; but below this strata, among the greatest mass of the people, goes on the old worship of Shintuism and Buddhism.

To bring more vividly to the attention of our missionary societies the condition of this interesting people, the Woman's Missionary Union has prepared two Christmas Programs, one for the Woman's Missionary Societies, and the other for the Mission Bands. These can be obtained free, with envelopes for Christmas offering, from the Central Committee of each State, or from 9 W. Lexington St., Baltimore. Let each of us see to it that Christmas joys are as wide as the world, bringing back to us the blessing of a command fulfilled; for has he not said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature?"

FANNIE E. HECK,
Pres. Woman's Missionary Union.

What is Self-Denial?

Little Christians, as well as big ones, have to learn to deny self. The heathen in in Japan have a god which they call "the great, bright god of self-restraint." Would you like to know how they worship him?

If they want something that costs a dollar, they buy a cheap little article and put away the money that is saved. If they would like some nice fruit or candy, they only buy half as much as they would like, or even none at all, and put the money in their savings box. At the end of the year they open the box and give the money to the poor.

If the heathen can deny themselves for the sake of a false god, what ought Christians to do for the sake of Jesus, who gave his own life for us?—Kind Words.

Crying Out After God.

One of the most pathetic instances of the yearning of the human being for the divine is that related by Bishop Whipple of Minnesota.

"Some years ago," he said, "an Indian stood at my door, and as I opened it he knelt at my feet. Of course I bade him not to kneel. He said:

"'My father, I knelt only because my heart is warm to a man who pitied the red man. I am a wild man. My home is five hundred miles from here. I knew that all the Indians east of the Mississippi had perished, and I never looked into the faces of my children that my heart was not sad. My father had told me of the Great Spirit, and I have often gone out into the woods and tried to talk with him.'

"Then he said, so sadly, as he looked into my face:

"'You don't know what I mean. You never stood in the dark, and reached out your hand and could not take hold of anything. And I heard one day that you had brought to the red a man a wonderful story of the Son of the Great Spirit.'

"That man sat as a child, and he heard anew the story of the love of Jesus. And when we met again he said, as he laid his hand on his heart:

"'It is not dark; it laughs all the while.'"

ABSOLUTELY PURE

EXTRAORDINARY!

1894 | Beginning with January only.

In order to rapidly introduce the Baptist Teacher, the Baptist Superintendent, and the Advanced Quarterly into schools WHERE THEY ARE NOT NOW IN USE, the American Baptist Publication Society makes the following extraordinary offer for 1894.

THE BAPTIST TEACHER.

In clubs of not less than five.

One Year for only 30 cents per copy; Six Months for only 15 cents.

The regular price of the Teacher is 50 cents per year in clubs.

THE BAPTIST SUPERINTENDENT.

One Year for only 15 cents.

This offer is only to superintendents not now taking it. The regular price is 25 cents per year.

THE ADVANCED QUARTERLY.

In clubs of not less than ten.

One Year for only 5 cents per copy; Six Months for only 3 cents.

The regular price of the Advanced Quarterly is 10 cents per year in clubs.

The circulation of the Baptist Teacher is about sixty thousand copies. We want fully one hundred thousand susbcribers.

The circulation of the Advanced Quarterly is now about half a million copies. We want one million.

And there is no good reason why these numbers should not be reached.

The Society meets the schools half way. We believe the schools will appreciate this helping hand and do their part.

Note Carefully the Conditions.

BY STEAMER FROM NEWBERN.

The Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company offer a very nice trip by steamer from Newbern, N. C., and I am authorized to publish the following rates by Mr. H. C. Hudgins, General Passenger Agent:

From Newbern, $8.50; Wilmington, $7.00; Goldsboro, $6.50; Kinston, $5.25.

If through tickets to Elizabeth City are not issued by the A. & N. C. R. R. and R. & D. R. R., they will sell special round-trip tickets to Newbern, and the fare by the boat is $3.50, which includes state-room berth; meals extra. We have a fine boat on the route, and would like to carry some of your people.

Steamer leaves Newbern on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Will wait for train on the A. & N. C. R. R. on Wednesday and Saturday.

If further information is desired or accommodations needed, I shall be glad to do all in my power to furnish the same.

N. B. BROUGHTON,
Sec. N. C. Bap. State Convention.

REDUCED RATES BY R. & D. RAILROAD.

The Richmond & Danville Railroad will sell reduced rate tickets from all points on its lines in North Caroline to Danville, Va., Raleigh, Selma or Goldsboro, N. C., and return. Through tickets will also be on sale at the following points at rates named, via Goldsboro, Newbern and steamer "Neuse" to Elizabeth City and return:

Hot Springs, $20.90; Asheville, 19.30; Marion, 17 70; Morganton, 16.90; Hickory, 16.10; Lenoir, 16.90; Newton, 15.70; Statesville, 14.70; Lincolnton, 17:10; Charlotte, [illegible]; Concord, 14.70; Salisbury, 13.95; Lexington, 13 30; High Point, 13.30; Asheboro, [illegible]; Danville, 11.30; Greensboro, 11 20; [illegible], 11 20; Whitsett, 15.90; Wilmington, 16.90; Burlington, 11.20; Hillsboro, 10.75; Chapel Hill, 10.95; Oxford, 9.85; Henderson, 9 85; Durham, 9 85; Raleigh, 9 00; Selma, 7 55.

Tickets on sale Dec. 4th to 8th, inclusive: limited to Dec. 16th.

The steamer "Neuse" leaves Newbern Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; returning, leaves Elizabeth City Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On Wednesday and Friday, Dec. 6th and 8th, this steamer will be held at Newbern until arrival of Atlantic & North Carolina R. R., train leaving Goldsboro 3 30 p. m., which is due in Newbern at 6.00 p. m., thus putting passengers in Elizabeth City the following morning at 9.00 o'clock. Returning, the "Neuse" leaves Elizabeth City at 6 00 p. m. on days above named and arrives in Newbern the following morning in time to connect with Atlantic & North Carolina R. R. train leaving Newbern at 9.00 a. m., and arriving in Goldsboro 11:40 a. m., thus making connection in each direction at Goldsboro with Richmond & Danville, N. C. Division, trains Nos. 9 and 10.

This steamer has state room accommodations for sixty people. Meals and state-rooms will be furnished at slight additional cost. State-rooms can be reserved on application to Dr. Chas. L. Hopkins, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C., or Mr. H. W. Miller, P. A., Raleigh, N. C.

SEABOARD AIR LINE RATES.

To attend the Baptist State Convention at E. City, the Seaboard Air Line will sell round-trip tickets and return at greatly reduced rates. The following round-trip rates will govern from competitive and junction points, viz:

"Baptist Convention Special."—For the accommodation of delegates and visitors to the Baptist State Convention, a special train will be run from Raleigh to Portsmouth, which will leave Raleigh about 9:10 on Thursday morning, Dec. 7th, making direct connection with Norfolk and Southern train for Elizabeth City, arriving at this point at 5 50 p. m. same day. Returning, leave Elizabeth City at 9.00 a. m, arrive at Raleigh 8 00 p. m. same day.

The Seaboard Air Line is the most attractive route for delegates and visitors, affords quick time, unsurpassed accommodations and sure connections. For further information, address B. A. Newland, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C., A. J. Cooke, S. P. A., Raleigh, N. C., or F. J. Anderson, Pass. Agent, Norfolk, Va.

NOTICE TO DELEGATES AND REPRESENTATIVES.

All delegates and representatives of the different Boards who will attend the next session of this body to be held in Elizabeth City, N. C., Dec. 7th next, are earnestly requested to send their names at once to the Secretary of the Committee on Hospitality.

The Committee will only provide and promise homes for those who send us their names as requested by Dec. 1st.

All lady delegates to the Woman's Auxiliary Convention will send their names to Mrs. E. F. Aydlett by Dec. 1st, and they will be provided with homes.

TO DELEGATES WEST OF RALEIGH.

I have received several letters from brethren west of Raleigh asking if they could get reduced-rate tickets to Raleigh and go to the Convention by way of the Seaboard Air Line Special.

By referring to Circular of Col. W. A. Turk, Gen. Pass. Agent of R. & D. R. R., it will be seen that reduced rate round trip tickets will be sold to Raleigh from any point on account of Baptist State Convention.

Therefore, if delegates desire to go on the Special of the Seaboard Air Line, let them buy round trip tickets to Raleigh, and from Raleigh buy to Elizabeth City and return.

Remember the Special leaves Raleigh on Thursday morning, Dec. 7th, at 9:10 o'clock.

N. B. BROUGHTON,
Secretary Baptist State Convention.

BEST AND MOST DIRECT ROUTE TO E. CITY.

After carefully considering the various routes to Elizabeth City, we have selected the Seaboard Air Line as, in our opinion, the best and most direct for our people going to and returning from the North Carolina Baptist State Convention. Its connections are the best, and delays are least likely to occur. Our special train will leave this city 9:10 a. m. Thursday, Dec. 7th.

New Church-house at Franklinton.

Dear Recorder:—Our new church-house is progressing rapidly, and we hope to have the roof on soon.

All of the brethren and sisters have gone to work earnestly. The Sunday school raised over one hundred dollars last Sunday for the benefit of the church, and our school increases every Sunday. May God bless our work, and may we soon have a house of worship. Yours in Christ, L.

Ordination.

On November 11, 1893, at the request of Benson Baptist church, Bro. N. H. Gibbs was examined relative to a call to the ministry, Elders N. B. Cobb, A. N. Campbell, and Allen Betts constituting the presbytery.

The presbytery was organized by electing Elder N. B. Cobb Chairman and the writer, Secretary.

After a satisfactory examination the presbytery decided to ordain Bro. Gibbs Sunday morning.

Quite a crowd was present to witness the ordination.

Prayer by the writer; presentation of the Bible by Elder Allen Betts, charge by Elder Cobb; welcome by the presbytery; benediction by Bro. Gibbs.

Benson is one of our mission points. As pastor there, the writer asks an interest in the prayers of the readers of the RECORDER.

La Grippe Again.

The United States has never suffered from any disease that has caused such fearful results as has La Grippe. Royal Germetuer has never failed to cure it quickly where used

Reliable Evidence.

Major W. E. Penn, the great evangelist, was attacked with la grippe, and writes a personal letter as follows:—

"EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK., Jan. 16, 1893.

"I was about to give up this morning and go to bed and send for a doctor, but concluded to try Germetuer first, and having part of a bottle on hand. I commenced its use, taking a teaspoonful in half cup warm water. I have taken three doses and will not have any need for a doctor. I am much better and believe I shall soon be all right again."

Rev. W. G. E. Cunnyngham, editor Sunday-school Literature, M. E. Church, South, says: "The 'grippe' attacked me a second time last spring. One bottle of Germetuer relieved me, as it did before. I feel entirely free from all symptoms of 'la grippe' at present."

For Catarrh, Rheumatism, Indigestion, and General Debility, Germetuer is unequaled. Try it; $1 00 per bottle; six for $5.00 All druggists. Germetuer Pills for Constipation, 50 in a vial, for 25c.

DIED.

AVERITT—David T. Averitt died November 7th, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m., in his seventy-four year, and was buried at Cedar Creek, Cumberland county, N. C. He was confined to his bed some days before his death.
H. A.

ROBERTSON—Died Oct. 22d, 1893, Ruth Esther, infant daughter of J. W. and L. R. Robertson, aged one month and three days. She is not lost, but only gone before. "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." May we meet her in heaven where there is no death.
L

HICKS—Died, July 1st, 1893, at her residence in Franklin county, N. C., in her sixty-seventh year, Mrs. Rebecca H. Hicks, widow of the late Robert A. Hicks, and youngest sister of Capt. J. B. Timberlake of the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad, and Dr. R. H. Timberlake of Wake Forest, N. C.

For many years she had been a member of Flat Rock church and has left behind her numerous evidences of the reality of her faith in Christ. It was her portion to be for a long time an invalid and sufferer. She bore her sufferings with patience and Christian resignation. Her last days seemed to be spent very near the realms of glory. Death was but the step across the border. The Lord sustain and comfort the faithful daughter, the sons, and other sorrowing ones.
R.

WEBSTER—Deacon Richard Webster died at his home near Pittsboro, Chatham county, Nov. 11th, 1893. He was seventy-eight years of age. He professed religion and joined Emmaus Baptist church in 1844, and was ordained deacon of his church the following year. He was a devoted Christian, strictly upright in all his dealings. He gave liberally of his means to all benevolent objects that came to his knowledge.

His funeral was preached by Rev. L. R. Dixon, and his remains laid to rest near the church he so much loved.

He will be much missed by his church, his family, and the community in which he has spent his long and useful life. He loved the BIBLICAL RECORDER, having been a reader of that paper from childhood. He leaves a widow, four sons and two daughters, and many other relatives and friends, to mourn their loss.

May all his children and his many grandchildren emulate his example, and may their last end be like his.

Tributes of Respect.

The following tribute to the memory of the late Dr. Tupper was passed at a recent meeting of the faculty of the Leonard Medical School:—

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God in his infinite wisdom to call home to rest our esteemed friend and President, the late Rev. H. M. Tupper, D. D., therefore

Resolved, That while we bow in meek submission to the will of God, we deeply deplore the great misfortune which has fallen upon this institution in particular, and upon Shaw University, of which he was the executive head.

Resolved, That in his death we have undergone a personal bereavement in the passing away of a valued friend, whose kindly and genial presence and example were an inspiration to each of us in our labors.

Resolved, That the Leonard Medical School has sustained an irreparable loss, and that the vacancy thereby created in the office of its president will be difficult to fill with one combining, as did our lamented friend, the rare aggregation of qualities united in him; the executive ability; the untiring industry and zeal; the keen insight into character; the firmness blended with gentleness; the quick perception and promptness to act in difficult situations; the comprehensive grap of the multitudinous details of a great and responsible position; the self-poised character; the genius for interesting influential men and women in the work he loved and devoted his life to—and for holding that interest and making it permanent; the firm reliance upon Providence in every work he undertook; the unfaltering trust in God throughout a long and trying illness; and the calm, unflinching way in which he faced the inevitable end for days and days after he knew that it was near at hand.

Resolved, That to his family we tender our heartfelt sympathy and sincere condolence in this hour of their great affliction, and commend them to the care of "him who doeth all things well." Yet, while doing so, we desire to call to their minds, for their comfort, the reflection that he has borne his burden bravely, and has only laid it down after the accomplishment of the great work he mapped out more than a quarter of a century ago; that he has seen the full fruition of the hope he held before him in that work; that he has lived down the prejudice which environed him in its inception; that he has commanded the respect and good will of the community in which he lived and labored. We recall the basis and superstructure of the institutions he has developed here; the goodness of God in granting him length of days to see the fulfillment of the dream to which he consecrated the best years of his manhood; and finally, the patient and heroic fortitude which marked his last, long illness, and the glorious and triumphant manfulness of his entrance into everlasting life and rest.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the faculty of the Leonard Medical School, and that a copy of the same be sent to the family; to the general secretary of the Baptist Home Mission Society, in New York, and to each of the daily city papers, to the BIBLICAL RECORDER and the Gazette with the request for their publication.

BELL

The Home Circle.

He Died for Me.

When time seems short and death is near,
And I am pressed by doubt and fear,
And sins, an overflowing tide,
Assail my peace on every side,
This thought my refuge still shall be:
I know my Saviour died for me.

His name is Jesus, and he died—
For guilty sinners crucified;
Content to die that he might win
Their ransom from the death of sin;
No sinner worse than I can be,
Therefore I know he died for me.

If grace were bought, I could not buy;
If grace were coined, no wealth have I;
By grace alone I draw my breath,
Held up from everlasting death,
Yet, since I know his grace is free,
I know the Saviour died for me.

I read God's holy Word, and find
Great truths which far transcend my mind;
And little do I know beside
Of thoughts so high, so deep, and wide;
This is my best theology—
I know the Saviour died for me.

My faith is weak, but 'tis Thy gift;
Thou canst my helpless soul uplift,
And say: "Thy bonds of death are riven,
Thy sins by Me are all forgiven,
And thou shalt live, from guilt set free,
For I, thy Saviour, died for thee"

—George W. Bethune, D. D.

Only a Boy.

More than a half century ago, a faithful minister, coming early to the kirk, met one of his deacons, whose face wore a very resolute but distressed expression.

"I came early to meet you," he said. "I have something on my conscience to say to you. Pastor, there must be something radically wrong in your preaching and work; there has been only one person added to the church in a whole year, and he is only a boy."

"I feel it all," he said. "I feel it, but God knows that I have tried to do my duty, and I can trust him for the results."

"Yes, yes," said the deacon, "but by their fruits ye shall know them,' and one new member, and he, too, only a boy, seems to me rather a slight evidence of true faith and zeal. I don't want to be hard, but I have this matter on my conscience, and I have done but my duty in speaking plainly."

"True," said the old man; "but 'charity suffereth long and is kind; beareth all things, hopeth all things.' Ay, there you have it; 'hopeth all things.' I have great hopes of that that boy—Robert. Some seed that we sow, bears fruit late, but that fruit is generally the most precious of all."

The old minister went to the pulpit that day with a grieved and heavy heart. He closed his discourse with dim and tearful eyes. He wished that his work was done forever, and that he was at rest among the graves under the blooming trees in the old kirkyard.

He lingered in the dear old kirk after the rest were gone. He wished to be alone. The place was sacred and inexpressibly dear to him. It had been his spiritual home from his youth. Before this altar he had prayed over the dead forms of a bygone generation, and had welcomed the children of a new generation; and here, yes, here, he had been told at last that his work was no longer owned and blessed!

No one remained—no one? "Only a boy."

The boy was Robert Moffat. He watched the trembling old man. His soul was filled with loving sympathy. He went to him, and laid his hand on his black gown.

"Well, Robert?" said the minister.

"Do you think if I were willing to work hard for an education, I could ever become a preacher?"

"A preacher?"

"Perhaps a missionary."

There was a long pause. Tears filled the eyes of the old minister. At length he said: "This heals the ache in my heart, Robert. I see the divine hand now. May God bless you, my boy. Yes, I think you will become a preacher."

Some few years ago there returned to London, from Africa, an aged missionary. His name was spoken with reverence. When he went into an assembly, the people rose; when he spoke in public there was a deep silence. Princes stood uncovered before him; nobles invited him to their homes.

He had added a province to the church of Christ on earth; had brought under the gospel influence the most savage of African chiefs; had given the translated Bible to strange tribes; had enriched with valuable knowledge the Royal Geographical Society, and had honored the humble place of his birth, the Scottish kirk the United Kingdom, and the universal missionary cause.

It is hard to trust when no evidence of fruit appears. But the harvests of right intentions are sure. The old minister sleeps beneath the trees in the humble place of his labors, but men remember his work because of what he was to that one boy and what that one boy was to the world.

"Only a boy!"

Do thou thy work; it shall succeed
In thine or in another's day,
And if denied the victor's meed,
Thou shalt not miss the toiler's pay.

Living Lanterns.

Away down in the dark depts of the ocean there are living lanterns that are borne about to light up the darkness. A queer fish called the "midshipmite" carries the brightest and most striking of all these sea torches. Along its back, under it, and at the base of its fins there are small disks that glow with a clear, phosphorescent light like rows of shining buttons on the young middy's uniform. In this way it gets its name "midshipmite," by which young sailors in the navy are often called. These disks are exactly like small bull's eye lanterns and reflectors. The lenses gather the rays and the reflectors throw them out again. There is a layer of phosphorescent cells between the two, and the entire effect is as perfect as if made by some skillful optician.

Many other fish have "reflectors," many have "lenses," but the "midshipmite" is the only kind that has such splendid specimens of both. The fish is so constructed that when it is frightened by some devouring sea monster it can close its lenses and hide itself in the darkness. It can turn its lantern off and on at will, and then it is always "filled" and ready when wanted. Another marine animal has a luminous bulb that hangs from its chin, and thus throws the light before it to warn it of the approach of enemies. Still another upholds a big light from the extremity of the dorsal fin. Others again have constant supplies of a luminous oil that runs down their sides from the fins, making a bright and constant light all round. Most of the jelly-fish are phosphorescent. These live far down on the very floor of the ocean, where it is always dark and gloomy. These dwellers in these watery depths are provided with lights of their own shining bodies and fins, which illumine their home with a strange though no doubt cheerful glare.—Selected.

Was it Lost?

This bit of story must be for children of all ages:

"I am sorry, Miss Jennie," cried a little girl to her Sunday school teacher, "but I have lost a whole morning."

"Lost a whole morning!" repeated Miss Jennie, with a grave look on her sweet face; how is that, Clara?"

"Why, mother was very busy, and she left Harry in my room; and really, Miss Jennie, the little fellow was so full of fun, that I have done nothing but play with him"

Just then Harry put up his dimpled arms to "love Clara," as he called it in baby talk. He pressed his lips to her cheek, saying "Me love 'oo, Lara."

"You have not lost your morning, Clara," said her teacher.

"You have helped your mother, and you have bound your little brother closer to you by your kindness. Such a morning may have been well spent, my dear."

A few days after this Mrs. Potter was seized with severe illness. She could not bear the least noise or confusion, and little Harry's noisy play distressed her very much. So Clara took the little fellow to her own room, and rocked him almost as well as her mother could, until Mrs. Potter recovered.

"My dear child," said the physician, as he placed his hand upon the girl's head, "if your mother had not so kind and thoughtful a daughter. I fear she would not have recovered so soon—if at all."

Thus little Clara had her reward. Never call that hour lost which is spent in making others happy.

The blessed Jesus spent all his time when on earth in doing for others.—Selected.

A Lady Born.

True politeness does not consist of the artificial airs of the drawing-room, in what is sometimes called "company manners," that continue so long as there are persons present to look on whose good opinion is desired, and relapse into barbarism as soon as the company has gone. It is inborn impulse of a higher and nobler nature. Here is an apt illustration:—

An aged truckman bent under the weight of a big roll of carpet. His bale hook fell from his hand and bounded into the gutter out of reach. Twenty idle clerks and salesmen saw the old man's predicament, and smiled at his look of bewilderment. No one ventured to help him. A fashionably dressed young woman came along, took in the situation at a glance, and without looking to the right or left stepped into the gutter, picked up the hook in her dainty, gloved fingers, and handed it to the man with a smile. The idlers looked at each other and at the fair young woman.

The old truckman, in a violent effort to express his thanks politely, lost his hat. It rolled into the gutter where the hooks had been. This was almost too much for any woman, young or past young; but this New York girl was equal to the occasion. Into the gutter she tripped again and got the soiled hat. When she handed it to the truckman a happy smile was seen to play about her lips. "God bless ye, miss," the old man said, as the fair maiden turned her back on the idlers and went on her way. What an example of true politeness!—Selected.

Europe ought to send an army, if necessary, to Mecca, and give that city a thorough cleaning and white-washing. It is the cholera breeding place for the countries west of it through the pilgrimages made to it. This year nine thousand people left Tunis to attend the great festival at Mecca, and only half returned to their homes. Nobody would bury the dead, and a Turkish regiment was ordered to do it. Five hundred out of seven hundred of the regiment died.—Western Recorder.

Things Worth Knowing.

The chimney of a lamp should never be touched with water. A few drops of alcohol, or even paraffine oil, will remove the dimmed smoky effect and make the chimney as bright as possible when it is polished with a soft flannel or chamois skin.

All traces of mud can easily be removed from black clothes by rubbing the spots wit a raw potato cut in half.

If a bill must be sent through the mail unregistered, fold it neatly around a rather long visiting card, and it will escape, it is said the most careful search of a postal thief.

The more freely bedding can be exposed to the sun and air, the better, but exposure to the sun should not include the pillows or feather beds. The oily quality of the feathers is acted upon by exposure to a hot sun, producing a strong, offensive and unhealthy odor—in direct opposition to the results which it is intended to obtain. But there should be frequent exposure to the air, and the more persistently this is carried out the more healthful will be the bed.—American Baptist.

The Rise of a Boy.

This boy goes to business, and at his business, begins by simply doing the things he is told to do and doing them in a common and ordinary way. If he stops here, he remains all his lifelong a drudge. But if he begins to see that business has a significance; that his life is not merely sweeping the store, not merely writing letters, not merely selling goods; if he begins to see the higher life involved in business; if he begins to see that business is a greater instrument of beneficence than what we call beneficence; that trate is clothing thousands of men where charity clothes ten; that agricultural and milling industries are feeding thousands of men where charity feeds ten; if he begins to see how the whole history of the world is linked together, and is God's way of building up humanity and serving humanity, as he gets this larger view and enters into it, life is enriched and becomes itself the minister whereby love is enlarged and conscience is strengthened, the school wherein he is educated out the lower into the higher. He has now risen, or is rising, from that which is mortal into that which is immortal and eternal.—Dr. Lyman Abbott.

SHE DON'T WANT TO TELL

—what made her beautiful. Yet it's only what other women know. Wealth of beauty comes only with a healthy body. Health is a set of good habits. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription assists nature in establishing these habits. Women have sallow faces, dull eyes and hollow cheeks, together with low spirits, when they are made miserable with disorders, derangements and weaknesses peculiar to their sex. Health is regained, after periods of dizziness, nervous prostration and excitability, or other manifestations of derangement or displacement of the womanly organs, when the "Prescription" is used. THE immense facility given to intercourse by modern improvements, by increased commerce and travelling, by the postoffice, and especially by the press, has made itself most strongly perceptible, and in many respects very usefully, in the development of the principle of co-operation. This development is evident in every branch of society, political, industrial, and religious. Napoleon's great forte lay in his power to concentrate great forces on a single point. This manœuvre, unknown to former centuries, is now used by all parties, classes and sects. Such is the present state of civilization, so extensive have coalitions of interests become, and so various and rapid are the present means of communication, that a few leaders may impart an impulse to thousands of individuals in less than a week, and call forth a "voice as of many waters" from distant and widely separated multitudes. It is scarcely necessary to add that such concentration of power, though easily used for good ends, is pregnant with danger. Man is by nature sociable; association is necessary to his existence, and co-operation to progress. United effort has conquered nature, defying earth and sea and space, and time. Only by association and co-operation have we maintained our dominion over other animals, and reached our present civilization. But, though man has cultivated association since the first day, and used co operation, more or less, in the accomplishment of his every progressive step, not until the latter half of the present century had begun did he discover the great power over his fellow man that could be attained by co-alition of interests. Modern civilization has developed a mighty human engine which, in the coming years, must act either for good or evil, to an extent which none of us can prophesy. And we believe all our hopes of good and all our fears of evil are to be made glorious realities or deplorable conditions by the uses to which this engine is put.

WE need hardly speak of the power of co-operation in political results. The existence of great political parties, and the reliance which their leaders place in harmony of movement, is sufficient testimony to the general recognition of the power of co-operation in this branch of human affairs. We have all felt the influence of industrial co-operation more strongly than any other variety, and the ills which it has caused have brought the principle unjustly into disrepute. But it has not been without its good results. It is stated in a recent book that the means of transportation from New York City to Buffalo, N. Y., were controlled by sixteen different companies less than half a century ago. To day a railroad company is not placed among the leaders unless it controls more than a thousand miles of railway. Almost every instance of coalition of railroad interests has been accompanied by reduction in freights and a corresponding increase of shipments. But the railroad companies, many of which are without immediate competition, have it within their power to raise freights at will—a power in itself most dangerous to all classes. The history of the Standard Oil Company is very much the same. The concentration of the wealth and energy of hundreds of small rival enterprises, it has annihilated domestic competition, and though powerful to raise the price of its products, has preferred a wide patronage and a narrow margin of profits, to limited sales and extortionate charges. The oppressive operations of the sugar trust, the tobacco trust, which is for the protection of buyers only, and many others are testimonies to the power of co operation. If men were less avaricious, if they were honest, this new power would be a boon to the race. Yet, this not being the condition, our only resort is new laws, which, though necessary, cannot but appear unjust. Were capital governed by the divine law of love, trusts and combines would be blessings. But governed as it is by avarice and greed, the people must seek the statue law against a power so oppressive. Still, trusts and combines contribute strong testimony to the power for good that lies in co-operation.

THE present apparently superfluous number of societies, social and religious, can be attributed to the same influence which has given the dreaded "trusts and combines" their origin. One of the most remarkable features of our day is the energy with which the principle of combination is manifesting itself in the propagation of social ideas, and in the establishment of religious societies. We feel safe in saying that well-nigh everything is done by societies. We can scarcely name an object, which is desired or has been accomplished, which has not been the purpose of some organization. Do we wish to propagate a set of opinions or crush another? We organize a league. Would we reform politics? We make a union. Would we encourage manufactures, science, or agriculture? We have a society for the purpose. Would we spread the gospel? We have a society. Would we encourage philanthropy or education? We have a society. One class organizes to encourage horse-racing or sports, and another arises as quickly to annihilate them. And so on through every sphere of human activity, minute ramifications of these societies penetrate, propagating ideas to, and collecting resources from, the little child, the laborer, and the millionaire alike. There is possibility of good in such organizations, but like other coalitions of individual powers, they are very dangerous. They have power, but not so extensively as industrial combinations—for there are far too many of them—to sow the seeds of evil as well as good. False leaders are never far distant. A false idea springs up from them not in one community, but all over the land. Many of them have the power of light and darkness within their influence, and in this power, as in all other great combinations, lies our danger. The growth and strength of these organizations well show the tendency of the age to organization and co-operation, and attest in no mean way to the power for good or evil that lies therein.

THE Baptist State Convention is this week in annual session at Elizabeth City. Though not a body of church authority, it is very powerful, if it is not indifferent to its power. We have seen the power of concentration of forces on one policy; we know that power is always great in co-operation; why cannot the denomination determine a policy for one year, and concentrate all its great power on that policy. It has been one of our great hindrances in the past that we lacked not unity of ideas, for we believe we are the most agreeable of sects, but a consciousness of power, and co operation of energy. Every pastor, every Baptist, should have his denominational aims in view, however poor his church. We have unity and harmony, two valuable qualities, but the times demand, in addition to these, co operative efforts. Each of our pastors and each of our churches is individual; but that is no reason why we should not reap the large benefits of a co operation of energy, which will not only not destroy our prized individualism, but will strengthen that very quality.

Missions and education, two great instruments in Christian civilization, are among the worthiest objects of the Convention. What a harvest there will be if from now on the 150,000 white Baptist individuals in this State mass their energy for the furtherance of these objects! Let us seek not only harmony of ideas, unity of belief, and individualism of character, but let us add to these the mighty motive force of co operation of individual energy.

Baptist State Convention.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE CONVENTION.

There were Baptists in North Carolina in 1695; but the first Baptist church was Shiloh in Camden county, 1727, organized by Elder Paul Palmer. Then follows Meherrin in Hertford county, 1729; Sandy Run in Bertie, 1750; Sandy Creek in Randolph, 1754; and Grassy Creek in Granville county, 1755.

Sandy Creek was the first Association, formed in 1758. In 1814 the "Foreign and Domestic Mission Society" was formed, and lived till 1823

In 1826 or '27, the "Baptist Benevolent Society of North Carolina" was organized. This Society held its annual meeting in 1830 in Greenville, Pitt county. There were present fourteen members, to-wit:

Raleigh—Elder P. W. Dowd and R. M. Guffee.

Craven—Elder Wm. B. Biddle.

Newbern—Elder S. Wait and John Armstrong.

Edenton—Elder Thomas Meredith.

Perquimans—Charles W. Skinner.

Cumberland—Elder James McDaniel.

Tarboro—H. Austin, P. P. Lawrence and R. S. Long.

Greenville—Elder Thos. D. Mason, Geo. Stokes and R. S. Blount.

At this session it was unanimously "Resolved, That this Society be transformed into a State Convention."

The constitution, prepared by Elder Thos. Meredith, was adopted, and now remains substantially the same. Elder P. W. Dowd was the first President.

The Fathers of the Convention are now all dead; but the humble institution that was born in the barn of Dr. J. C. Gorman, March 26, 1830, still lives and grows in power and blessing, as a fitting monument of their pious zeal and wise forethought.

At the organization of the Convention there were in the State fourteen associations, 272 churches, and 15,360 members. Now there are (United States Census, 1890) in North Carolina 290,504 Missionary Baptists—153,648 white.

The influence of the Convention, in this wonderful result, can hardly be mistaken, when we look at Wake Forest College, the BIBLICAL RECORDER, our system of State Missions, Sunday-school work, General Missions, and the Orphanage.

Until 1845 the Convention co-operated with the General Convention of the United States. At Augusta, Ga., 1845, the "Southern Baptist Convention" was formed, and our State Convention became a constituent part of that body.

The second article of the original constitution, by amendment, now reads: "The primary objects of the Convention shall be to educate young men called of God to the ministry and approved by the churches to which they belong, to support the gospel in destitute sections in the State; to assist Baptist churches in the erection of suitable houses of worship; to encourage the study of the Bible in Sunday-schools; and to co-operate with the Southern Baptist Convention in all its departments of labor."

The work of the Convention, then, is not legislative or judicial, but co-operative. The independence and individual rights of churches are in no way interfered with. To help one another is a Bible duty, applicable alike to churches and individuals. Men and churches of large means may act independently in matters of beneficence; but the poor must co-operate or the fountain of benevolence will be dried up.

Hitherto, by wise counsel, heroic efforts and the grace of God, our Convention, on the line of Bible co-operation, has done a wonderful work in enlarging the borders of Zion; in multiplying the efficiency of the ministry and churches; in stimulating and developing liberality, good will, and the spirit of aggression and consecration among our Baptist people.

Dr. Armitage, the Baptist historian, says: "There is not a more efficient body of Baptists in the United States than those of North Carolina." If this be true, much, under God, is due the self-sacrificing zeal, the enthusiasm, the Christ-like spirit and well-directed Bible efforts of the Baptist State Convention.

"NORTH CAROLINA FOR JESUS!" is our motto. M.

Wake Forest College.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE COLLEGE.

It gives me pleasure to comply with your request that I furnish some facts about the College for the Convention number of the RECORDER.

This is its fifty-ninth session. Of its past history I cannot write now, because my space is limited. The by-gone years have been filled with faithful, honest work and results, of which no institution in the land need be ashamed. Grand men were they who, in the midst of poverty, apathy, and opposition, had faith and courage for the foundation-laying. I need not call over the roll of honor. Their names are household words among the Baptists of North Carolina. They not only did good work for and in the College, as it was in their day, but they hoped and planned and labored to make it a far greater and more useful institution in the years to come. And if the College shall be allowed to develop normally, unhampered by external influences, their highest expectations will yet be more than realized.

The patronage of the College is, perhaps, as large as could be expected, everything considered. But there is very much to be considered. The outlook before the College a year ago was disheartening to many of its friends. But the loyalty and enthusiastic co operation of large numbers of these have brought to the College this fall 180 students; a number which, in spite of the great scarcity of money, is greater by six than the registration at the corresponding date last year. Even this small increase would be encouraging if, after all, it was not a falling off of forty-six from the registration at this same time (Nov. 21) in 1891, of twenty in 1890, of thirteen in 1889, of twenty-three in 1888, &c. Concerning the reasons for the decrease of the patronage of Wake Forest during the last two years I shall not write. Grave questions of educational policy which are of paramount importance to the Baptists of North Carolina are likely to receive abundant discussion from many quarters within the next few years.

It is pleasant to pass to the consideration of the internal condition of the College. In all the years of my connection with the institution, I have never known a body of students, taking them altogether, to be more prompt, studious, or gentlemanly in deportment than the young men of '93-4 have been, so far. There are in the College a number of men of the finest ability, and they will be heard from hereafter.

The health of the students and of the community is excellent. A few months ago I gave some study to the actuaries' tables used by insurance companies, and found that the death rate among our students for several years was considerably below the average of insurable men between the ages of seventeen and twenty five.

The teaching force of the College now consists of eleven men—eight full Professors, including the President, two Assistant Professors, and the director of Physical Culture. The Chair of English, so long filled by the late Prof. Wm. Royall, is temporarily filled by Prof. Sledd, the Professor of French and German.

The last catalogue shows a considerable expansion in the several independent "Schools" into which the College is organized. Some important and desirable modifications have also been made in the requirements for graduation. The writer has had occasion to examine closely the catalogues of a large number of American colleges, and does not hesitate to express the opinion that the work required for the Wake Forest degrees is in quality and quantity far above the average.

The Law Department has been inaugurated under favorable auspices. The lectures of Prof. Gulley are well attended and highly appreciated. His work and that of his colleagues will be continued during the summer vacation. The future of the new department seems to be assured.

The general equipment of the College is excellent and in fine condition. The lecture-rooms, laboratories, gymnasium, library, and reading-room are not surpassed by those in the great majority of colleges.

Especially gratifying is the high position taken in many States by the alumni of the College. In the pulpit, in professors' chairs, in the legal and medical professions, as editors, bankers, and civil engineers, hundreds of Wake Forest men are making reputations for themselves and for their Alma Mater.

The endowment now amounts to $189,396.70. This is quite inadequate, and ought to be largely increased as soon as the shadow of financial depression passes from over our people. The Chair of English cannot be permanently filled until provision is made for its support. Several months ago a movement was inaugurated for the endowment of "The Royall Chair," but it has not been pressed at all because of the unprecedented scarcity of money in the State. But it has not been forgotten.

There are other needs which the Baptists of North Carolina—"the owners of the College"—will surely supply at no distant day. A system of water-works is imperatively demanded. Prof. Lanneau ought to have apparatus for his work in Physics in addition to what he has at present. Our growing work in Natural History demands a new building of specific adaptation. Above all, there is needed here a strong, wise, scholarly, magnetic man to take charge of courses of Bible study for all the students. And he ought also to give general, preparatory instruction to our young ministers in Biblical Theology, Homiletics, Interpretation, &c. We encourage all who possibly can to go to Louisville, but we ought to do more for the three-fourths who, as a matter of fact, do not go to any theological Seminary.

CHARLES E. TAYLOR.

Wake Forest, Nov. 21, 1893.

What Shall We Do in 1894 for the Heathen?

BY THE STATE VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE FOREIGN MISSION BOARD.

The object of churches is service. They are good according as they promote religion, balk profligacy, dethrone superstition, emancipate slaves in sin, and turn the erring footstop towards heaven. The future in heathendom is as bright as God's promises, and they are as bright as we could wish. The question of the salvation of the heathen was settled long ago. "I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." Ps. 2: 8. Will the Baptists of North Carolina in 1894 have a hand in bringing the nations to God?

Charles Lamb, in writing about the swiftness of time, says he "would fain put his intellectual finger on the great wheel." No doubt the Christians of North Carolina can delay the chariot of salvation as effectually as the people of Nazareth kept Jesus from doing many mighty works in their midst; as certainly as Aaron postponed his consecration to the priesthood by his own act.

No doubt we can keep back the truth crested with benediction for the lost, or we can

"Ring in the valiant man and true,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be."

Our present attitude means that millions must die, that this generation of heathen must go into eternity without Christ, and this generation of Christians must go to God bearing the curse of empty hands. God's providences are encouraging. Shall we follow the pillar of cloud and pillar of fire?

If we are going to prove ourselves worthy our high calling, enlargement must be the spirit—larger spirit, larger desires, larger gifts: an imitation of the Macedonian Christians, first giving themselves to the Lord and then to the work. Foreign Missions is woven into the very fiber of Christianity. Eliminate liberty from American institutions, and you destroy the best that exists in our land. Take the supernatural from our Lord's life and works, and you strip it of its power. Take out of Christianity the spirit of missions and you must never say the Lord's prayer, for he said, "Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven": you must give up the farewell words of our Lord so full of the promise of his presence, "Go ye into all the world;" we can never unite again in singing the doxology,

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow,
Praise him all creatures here below."

Brethren, as we turn our face towards the Convention, let us do it with a determination to work more diligently, pray more earnestly, and give more liberally for the extension of the Lord's kingdom.

R. V. D.

The N. C. Baptist Historical Society.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE SOCIETY.

This Society has for its object the preservation of the records of our denomination and the maintenance of interest in right methods of research into the history of our people and their doctrines. Every faithful clerk of an Association or church is its ally. Some Associations have special historiographers. Anniversary occasions should be used for the preparation and delivery of addresses or papers containing the important data in the life of churches, of representative pastors, teachers and other laymen. Diaries, journals, great sermons, inscriptions on tombs, pictures of notable leaders and buildings, rare copies of Baptist newspapers, controversial pamphlets and books of real value should be collected and preserved, and in most cases it would be well to forward them as gifts or loans to the treasurer and keeper of the archives, Prof. W. L. Poteat, at Wake Forest.

A larger number of our brethren should interest themselves in paying the small annual fee for membership, one dollar, or the reasonable amount for life membership, ten dollars, and thus a good library for reference and study of special periods might be provided which would be at the service of competent investigators.

We must set forth our peculiar tenets and mission to the world, and from our own Scriptural point of view. A just self-respect, the love of truth, a deep sense of responsibility, a sacred regard for the memory of the martyrs and confessors of the faith once delivered to the saints, will lead us to supplement the Acts of the Apostles with well-attested records of the later developments of Christianity.

Shall we not make a place in our program for this annual reunion, the meeting of the Baptist Historical Society, and "enter" its proceedings in the journal of our Convention? I hope that a numerous company will greet Prof. Whitsitt and our home speakers at Elizabeth City.

Bro. J. U. Caddell, Wake Forest, is the Secretary of the Society.

J. C. CADDELL, AGENT AND CORRESPONDENT.

OUR CONVENTION.

We need scarcely mention the great advantages that have resulted, and are expected to result, from the annual gathering of the representatives of our great denomination. The immediate objects of our Convention have always been to encourage mutual interchange of views from representatives of separated districts, to foster brotherhood, unity and co-operation, to discuss past work and plans for the future, and to bring the means and the sympathy of all our churches into one well-defined policy. Our more specific objects are education, missions, &c.

We have all so long enjoyed the benefits of our annual gatherings, and are so well acquainted with their field of action, that it has long since been conceded that they are an annual necessity to the successful and speedy accomplishment of the work which we feel that God has placed before us. Our Convention is, indeed, a joyful and a welcome necessity.

During the year which is now almost behind us we believe good steady progress has been made in the prosecution of our purposes, under God. We believe that the reports of the labors of the churches and the keepers of the flocks, shortly to be put on record, will add lasting glory to the name of Jesus, and will promise greater glory in the year before us. We are all sadly aware that our work has not been without unusual difficulties, natural and unnatural; but we believe that now, at the end of the year, our triumph over these difficulties is assured. We are poorer financially, but richer in numbers, strength, and the grace of God. It is needless to say that in a more natural condition of temporal affairs our financial record would be proportionately improved.

Our State has been the scene of the most vigorous campaign for the cause of Christ since last July that our denomination has experienced in many years. Not to dwell on the many glorious revivals that have made our hearts glad day after day, many of our representative brethren richly endowed with God's grace have attended the Associations, and aroused in all parts of the State an interest in missions, education, and the denomination that cannot but be permanently effectual. Who can say how much stronger and more compact we have become through the interest that these brethren have inspired. In the inevitable results of this campaign we are richer, if in nothing else. But this is not all.

Under the direction of our State Board of Missions noble workers have gone out along the highways and hedges spreading the light of Divine truth as they went. How incalculable are the advantages that have resulted to our State at large through this work! Were the work of our State missionaries for the past ten years, or the past five years, blotted from our State, a blank in our civilization would be strongly evident. State missions, in converting sinners, organizing and building churches in less favored portions of our State, have contributed no little to our civilization. It is a work that is done slowly and insignificantly, but none the less will be the final glory. This work should be pushed until none can say that the gospel of Christ is not within their reach. The same statement is applicable to our larger field of activity, Foreign Missions, which is worthy of the individual prayers and support of us all; and until these prayers and this support are an essential part of our religion, the millions of heathen will be a reproach to our Christianity. It is a great, great field, but its size should invite, rather than deter, our conquest in the name of Jesus.

And what shall we say of education! Surely in this branch of our work we have our noblest and most enduring monument—Wake Forest College, the cradle of our denominational strength—whose influence has been felt, and will ever be strong, over the length and breadth not only of our State, but many others, and even in foreign lands. We probably love Wake Forest better than most of our enterprises, but we cannot love it too well or support it too heartily. Of its young sister, the Female University, we hope to recount a record equally glorious in the coming years. May God speed their coming!

These and many more of our great agencies and instruments of the Divine Will will lay their records and their claims before us this week. Let us rally to them with a will. The "times are hard," but who knows but that these times are God's test of our faith and spirit of self-sacrifice! Who knows but that support, spiritual and financial, given in these times, will result all the more blessedly? If the kingdom of God is to come, it will be only by the faith and self-sacrifice of those whose daily prayer is, "Thy kingdom come."

Let those who are so blest as to attend the Convention not hide their light under a bushel as soon as they get home. Very few of the 150,000 Baptists in this State will be at Elizabeth City this week. Yet these few can share with all the State the good things that they have gained, and no one will be the loser. Let us not stop thinking of the objects of the Convention as soon as the benediction is pronounced, but let all who are there go home and talk to the churches about the meeting, and endeavor to arouse an interest that will not wane. These are not times in which we can allow our interest in the Lord's work to flag. The harvest is great, the workers few; let us, each and all of us, rich or poor, weak or strong, so long as the grace of God is within us, keep at the work until the fields, now white unto the harvest, are filled with countless laborers, until the kingdom of God has come indeed.

STATE MISSIONS.

We feel greatly encouraged at the showing that this department of our work will make in the report which will be presented at the Convention during the present week. This becomes the more interesting when we consider how sorely pressed our people have been on account of the unprecedented scarcity of money in which every section of our State has suffered.

The work and sacrifices of our brethren that have made the results what they are, constitute the best evidences of their interest and devotion to this work. It is this spirit which has enabled us to plant a Baptist church in nearly every city, town and village in our State. It is this spirit, born of love to the Master, which will enable us in the years to come to build a Baptist church in reasonable distance to every man, woman and child within the borders of our entire State.

Our State Mission work is justly regarded as foundation work. To this the destitute of our own people look to hear the gospel, and out of this spreading of the gospel will come growth, strength and prosperity to all departments of our work. And as we shall prosecute and undergo this home work we shall be enabled to increase our contributions of men and money for the civilization and conversion of the heathen in foreign lands. Let us rejoice that in this department of our work we have no divisions, no contentions; for whether we name it State Missions or Associational Missions, the purposes and ends arrived at are the same—the giving the gospel to the people. We hope Bro. Durham, our Corresponding Secretary, may soon be enabled to pay off all the missionaries who have labored so faithfully and so well in their respective fields. Most of these men are poor, and greatly need the small salaries due them, and though money is scarce and times hard, let us try to help out those who have struggled with poverty, and by whose struggles and sacrifices large numbers and much strength have come to many of our churches in all parts of our State.

We hope many of our churches will see to it that their pastors shall go to the Convention. It will help them to look into the faces of their brethren, shake their hands and gain new inspiration for the work of another year. Realizing the blessings we have received, let us pray more earnestly, work more and more, and plan larger for the future than we have in the years that are past.

WHAT OUR CONVENTION REPRESENTS.

The United States census, 1890, counted 153,648 regular white Baptists in North Carolina, including the Western Convention. Dr. Cobb has compiled some interesting comparative statistics for the Baptist Almanac for 1894 that will give us a better idea of our real size. We quote:—

"According to United States census returns the Regular or Missionary Baptists in Wake county alone number ninety-three churches and 11,570 communicants or members. This is more, by 167 members, than the entire number of Episcopalians, Roman Catholics and Jews in the whole State of North Carolina.

"The Regular or Missionary Baptists of the whole State are more than twenty-four times as numerous as the Anti-Missionary Baptists, more than thirty-five times as many as the Episcopalians, eight times as many as all sorts of Presbyterians, and 16,962 more than all sorts of Methodists, white and colored. They constitute more than one to every five and a half of the entire population of North Carolina. The Baptists of all sorts and the Methodists of all sorts combined number, according to the census, 600,464, or about one to every two and seven-tenths of the entire population."

These figures should not only be gratifying, but should stimulate us to greater efforts.

THE CONVENTION AND THE RECORDER.

If a newspaper had been possible in Paul's time, I am sure he would have established one at Antioch or Ephesus, with Luke or Mark as editor. It is natural, therefore, that our fathers, being in the apostolical succession, should have felt the need of such a helper when, sixty-three years ago, they organized the Convention as a means of bringing the Baptists of the State into communication and co-operation with each other in forwarding the Lord's work on the earth. It is natural also that they should have called for the establishment of the RECORDER, and that after a few years, when misrepresentation had been silenced and misunderstanding removed, and the Convention had passed forever beyond the stage of experiment, they should have expressed their sense of the incalculable value of the paper to them, and declared that without it their efforts to arouse and organize the denomination could not have been so speedily or so largely successful.

The years have come and gone, bearing away two generations of men. The Convention has passed through the day of small things and become a great body. The fruits of its wisdom and energy may be seen in all parts of the State and unto the ends of the earth. Through all these years it has been true—what our fathers said in the beginning—that "without the RECORDER our work could not have been done, or at least could not have been done so well or so rapidly." It has been the faithful servant of the denomination, never growing weary and never resting, never desponding and never sounding retreat; the faithful friend of every good man, the able and fearless advocate of all our enterprises. It has been the measure of our denominational harmony and prosperity. When the brethren have been united and cordial in its support every other Baptist enterprise has flourished. When they have been indifferent to it, or in any great degree alienated from it, other things have suffered accordingly.

Times change, but the essential needs of humanity remain the same. The Convention still needs one paper, and but one, the RECORDER: will continue to need it so long as the Baptists of North Carolina shall continue to strive together through the Convention for building up the waste places of the State and for spreading the gospel throughout the earth. Whatever the body can do, during the approaching session, to increase the circulation of the paper will be labor wisely expended, and will bring forth precious fruit in the years to come.

J. D. HUFHAM.

WE have designed this issue especially for Convention week, and feel confident that it will fulfill its purposes, which were, first, to present those who were unable to go to Elizabeth City with some idea of the work, and the good things that will fall upon those who are there, and to arouse in them an interest in our various objects that could not otherwise be aroused; second, to lay before the Convention the condition and the needs of our objects as seen by our representative brethren. Dr. Marsh's article on the Convention is valuable as an historical document, and all our readers should become well acquainted with the facts which he gives. Dr. Taylor writes in a very interesting manner on a subject that is near and dear to us all, and, no doubt, a perusal of his paper will be of advantage to the reader and the College. Bro. VanDeventer will follow his article on missions with others of equal interest. His question, "Will the Baptists of North Carolina have a hand in bringing the nations to God?" should find a prompt response from every Baptist. Dr. Thomas Hume writes interestingly of our Historical Society. Bro. Stringfield's advice to the Trustees of the Female University is timely and encouraging. Bro. Tyree writes worthily of one of our noblest objects. Bro. Greene from far away China well sustains the claims of our Foreign Mission Board, which, also, speaks to us in this issue. Dr. Durham being too busy, we have endeavored to give some facts about State Missions editorially, and also on our editorial page Dr. Hufham writes of the "Convention and the RECORDER" agreeably to us, at least. We are deeply grateful to the brethren who have thus nobly responded to our requests, and we hope they will not be slow to write again. They have not only done us a service, but the denomination as well.

THE Convention is upon us. The councilors are assembling and preparing to search present, past, and future for one end—the Kingdom of God. May our brethren meet, may they agree, may they differ, and may they depart in Christian love! We wish that we could be with them; we had hoped make the trip, but now we fear we cannot go. They shall not want for our prayers and love.

MAY the day speedily come when such statistics as Bro. Matheny quotes in his article are only a reproach to our past. As they are, they should be a great incentive to work and liberality. Let us determine that this shall be the last year in which any one can say that our contributions to Foreign Missions average less than five cents for each church member, or that our contributions for the spread of the gospel in Christian lands were proportionately less than in any other Southern State. What a great and glorious matter a little fire would kindle if each of us who are in church next meeting should contribute ten cents—a very small amount, indeed, and one that, we fear, some are ashamed of—to Foreign Missions. We should be ashamed to have it said that our contributions are so small. Yet we know that many give nothing. The year is not passed yet; in this last month the Board is making great efforts to clear itself of debt. In the few weeks that remain let us see to it that our part is well done. Better give ten cents, better one cent, than nothing; but best of all, let us give according to the dictates of our conscience.

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....Dr. Boardman is very ill in Philadelphia with pneumonia.

....Rev. J. M. Hilliard has accepted a call to Abbott's Creek church.

....Yadkin Valley church has been added to the pastorate of Rev. M. Baldwin.

....We were glad to have Bro. T. M. Pittman of Henderson in to see us last week.

....We were very glad to shake hands with Dr. G. W. Sanderlin of Washington City last week.

....A memorial chair to Dr. J. R. Graves is to be established in the Southwestern Baptist University.

....Rev. J. H. Edwards has been engaged in a good revival in Bro. Martin's church, Lumberton, for the past few days.

....Dr. W. B. Crumpton has purchased a half interest in the Alabama Baptist, and will hereafter be one of its editors.

....Rev. T. P. Lide, formerly of Elloree, S. C., has moved to Williston, S. C., where he took charge of the pastorate on Sunday last.

....Dr. T. P. Bell, Cor. Sec. of the Sunday-school Board, Nashville, Tenn., is always thrice welcome at our Convention. He will be with us.

....We have heard the sermon by Dr. Carroll, recently published in the RECORDER, highly spoken of by some of our most esteemed brethren.

....Thanksgiving day was observed as usual over the State, and we are glad to know that many good collections for our Orphanage were taken.

....If you have anything to say or do at the Convention this week, and can honestly say, "This I do for the gospel's sake," then say or do it; but if not, forbear.

....As it has been for sixty years, so it will be at Elizabeth City this week—many of the best, most liberal and most judicious men will have not one word to say.

....We were glad to see Bro. John A. Wray, who graduated at Wake Forest College last June, now a student at the Louisville Seminary, in our office last week.

....Where shall the Convention go for 1894? This question can, perhaps, be answered next week. The Southern part of the State has not had it in many years.

....Rev. S. F. Conrad has resigned the pastorate of two of his churches—Walnut Cove and Ruffin—in order to devote more time to Sunday-school and evangelistic work.

....Rev. Henry Sheets began a protracted meeting in his church at New Friendship Forsyth county, last week, in which Rev. Thos. Carrick rendered valuable assistance.

....As a result of the recent meeting conducted by Revs. R. L. Loftis, I. S. Boyles and W. H. Beamer, twenty-two converts have joined the church at Brown Mountain, N. C.

....Think this week of the encouragements in the past year's work, not of the failures; of the good done, and the difficulties overcome. The Lord has been very gracious.

....We have several times had to go through parts of Virginia and Tennessee to reach some of our Associations, but this time we go through Virginia to reach the Convention.

....Rev. Thos. Carrick has been called to the pastorate of the Randleman church. Bro. G. M. Webb, the present pastor of this church, will return to his old home in Cleveland county.

....We are happy to know that Dr. J. A. Mundy has decided to accept the call to Wilson. We welcome him with great joy to our State, and congratulate the Wilson saints on securing his ministry.

....Rev. A. B. Caudle writes from his new home, Waxhaw, N. C.: "We are safely domiciled in our new home, and will soon be ready for the work that lies before me." We are glad to learn that Bro. Caudle's pastorate is in excellent condition.

....If you didn't try to bring a new subscriber for us with you to the Convention, we think you have made a mistake, which can only be atoned for by sending us a new name before January 1st. The greater the number of our subscribers, the better and more useful will be the RECORDER.

....Rev. D. W. Pool will move in a few weeks from his present home in Alexander county to Iredell county, and will serve New Hope, Society and South River churches.

....The congregation of the Tryon Street Baptist church of Charlotte, Dr. Pritchard pastor, met on the 29th inst. and instructed their delegates to invite the next Convention to Charlotte.

....We regret to learn that Rev. L. P. Gwaltney, who has been laboring in protracted meetings almost every week since July last, is suffering with throat trouble. We hope he may soon recover.

....The North Carolina Baptist Atlas is ready to be mailed to purchasers. It should be in every Baptist family. Send orders to Dr. N. B. Cobb, Raleigh, N. C. Price, 10 cents; special rates on large orders.

....Two good sisters of Lower Creek church have recently died: Sisters Margaret Steele, aged 66, and her mother, Lucy Thompson, aged 91. Both had been faithful church members for nearly have a century.

....Dr. J. D. Hufham of Tarboro returned last week from a trip to Jacksonville, where he held a very good meeting in Bro. Peele's church. He writes: "Eleven members were added to the church, and Peele was in the third heaven."

....The American Baptist Publication Society's announcements can be found on the fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth pages of this issue. Our people know the merits of the Publication Society too well to need recommendation from us.

....It is expected that Dr. J. W. Carter will preach the introductory sermon for the Convention on Thursday at 7 o'clock p. m. Rev. W. B. Oliver was appointed, and Dr. Carter was the alternate. Bro. Oliver will, not, he thinks, reach there in time.

....Dr. R. J. Willingham, Cor. Sec. of Foreign Mission Board, Richmond, Va., and Rev. F. C. McConnell, Assist. Sec. of Home Mission Board, Atlanta, Ga., are expected to visit our Convention for the first time at E. City. They will be most heartily received.

....Rev. J. D. Southall died very suddenly while in attendance on the Virginia Methodist Conference at Danville last week. He was apparently in good health when last seen, and was found dead where he had fallen, in the basement of the Main street church of Danville.

....This is the fifth time since its organization that the Convention will have been held in the Chowan section. It was held in 1834 at Cashie church, Bertie county; in 1842 at Meherrin church, Hertford county; in 1857 at Hertford, in Perquimans county, and in 1883 with the Edenton church, Chowan county.

....Rev. Howard Lee Jones, formerly a student of Wake Forest and Richmond Colleges, and at present of the Louisville Seminary, was ordained to the ministry in Louisville on the 1st inst. Bro. Jones is a son, the youngest, we believe, of the distinguished Dr. J. Wm. Jones, and is the fourth one of his sons who has become a preacher.

....Our readers will do well to study the appeal of the Mission Board in this issue. North Carolina must not allow it to be said that she is backward in this great cause. Let our pastors act on the suggestions of Bro. Willingham, and arouse an interest in missions from one end of the State to the other.

....Union Thanksgiving services of the Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist congregations were held at the First Baptist church, this city, last week. Rev. A. D. Simms of the Tabernacle preached the sermon. The collection was divided between the Thomasville Orphanage, the Presbyterian Orphanage, and the Oxford Orphan Asylum.

....Revs. R. E. Peele, W. L. Tart and S. D. Swaim met with Castle Hayne Baptist church yesterday afternoon and ordained Rev. J. C. Crumpler of Rocky Point to the full work of the ministry. He is a very promising young man, and a bright future is predicted for him.—Wilmington Messenger, Dec. 2.

....The Young People's Leader, the new paper for young people, published by the Sunday-school Board, Southern Baptist Convention, will be a twelve-page monthly, edited by Rev. S. J. Van Ness. Price, forty cents per year. The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of the Board in this issue.

....We have received two very valuable works, published by the Baptist Book Concern, from the pen of Dr. J. T. Christian. They are on the subject of "Immersion" and "Close Communion," and are full of wholesome light. We place them among the best books on the subject that have been written. Price, paper, 35 cents.

....Rev. A. C. Dixon of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be in this State on the 20th inst., when he delivers the dedicatory sermon of the Drewry Dobbins monument at Sandy Run church, in the Western part of the State, writes his father, Rev. Thos. Dixon, Sr. It is expected that a large crowd will attend the services, as they will be of unusual interest. We hope Bro. Dixon may be prevailed on to remain in the State and conduct the promised revival at Wake Forest College.

....Rev. J. A. Hoyle has resigned the pastorate of the Independence Hill church, Mecklenburg and Cabarrus Association. He has been called to the King's Mountain and Patterson's Grove church in Cleveland county, and Long Creek church in Gaston county, all of which are in the King's Mountain Association, where Bro. Hoyle first entered the ministry. He has also four churches in the South Fork Association. Bro. Hoyle is fortunate, if opportunities for Christian labor are fortunate.

....We greatly regret to announce the critical illness of Col. J. M. Heck of this city. He is now in Philadelphia in the hands of expert physicians, and we sincerely wish that he may be restored. His daughter, Miss Fannie, well known to our readers as the President of the Woman's Missionary Union, is also quite sick.

....We deeply regret to announce the death of Dr. E. W. Warren, which occurred at his home in Macon, Ga., on the 26th ult. Dr. Warren's death was not unexpected, as he had been critically ill for some time. He had occupied prominent pastorates in Atlanta, Richmond and Macon, and was greatly loved and esteemed by all who knew him.

....Rev. Dr. J. W. M. Williams, for forty-three years pastor of the First Baptist church of Baltimore, has resigned. A long, laborious and successful life he has led, and he is justly entitled to rest.—Religious Herald.

Dr. Williams' resignation will take effect Jan. 1st next, and his pastorate will be supplied by Rev. C. L Laws, who has been his assistant for some time.

....Rev. Jno. A Summey recently held a meeting at Little River church, being aided by Rev. G. W. Henderson, in which two converts were added by baptism. Bro. Summey has resigned the pastoral care of this church, and in its place accepts the pastorate at Worthsville, a factory village in the Sandy Creek Association. Rev. M. J. Leach succeeds him at Little River.

....We rejoice with all the Baptists of the State at the great successes with which Bro. Bryan has met in his address in Virginia, District of Columbia, and Kentucky. The number of his friends has been multiplied ten-fold since his return to America. We clip from the Religious Herald: "How happy the North Carolina Baptists ought to be to have this gifted Carolinian succeed their own great M. T. Yates in China!"

....Rev. A. C. Dixon has occupied the pastorate of the Hanson Place Baptist church, Brooklyn, three years, and during that time the membership of the church has increased from six hundred to nine hundred; of the Sunday school, from four hundred to six hundred and seventy-two; contributions, from $13,140 to $17,238. North Carolina may well be proud of "the Dixons"—all four of them.

....At the last State Convention Dr. Taylor spoke of a young brother in the Senior Class at Wake Forest College, a most promising young minister, who, he hoped, would enter the foreign field soon after graduation. In this issue we have an interesting letter from this young man from Brazil. May Bro. Porter fulfil all the hopes that have been confided in him. We will publish in our next issue an outline of Bro. Porter's first sermon preached in the Portugese language.

....Three new pastors are expected to attend the Convention this year for the first time, viz., Rev. A. M. Simms of Texas, pastor of the Tabernacle church of this city; Rev. J. Q. Adams of South Carolina via Asheville, pastor of the Wadesboro church, and Rev. J. H. Hiden of Virginia, pastor of the Morehead City church. We bespeak for these worthy brethren, coming to us from other States, just what we know they will each receive, a most cordial welcome by the Convention.

....Rev. H. C. Moore has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Broad Street Baptist church of Winston, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. L. G. Broughton. Bro. Moore graduated at Wake Forest College in 1890; was pastor of the Morehead City church two years; and since September last has been a student at the Rochester, N. Y., Theological Seminary. He has met with unusual success in all his undertakings, and we feel that the Winston people have done well in calling him.

....Nine persons were added to the King's Creek church on the fourth Sunday in November by baptism as a result of a meeting conducted by the pastor, J. W. Thomas, aided by brethren Bradshaw and Beach. This church has grown considerably during the past year. Bro. Thomas recently aided Bro. L. P. Gwaltney in a meeting in the latter's pastorate, Sulphur Springs, Alexander county, which resulted in seven additions to the church. Brother Thomas has also arranged to hold a series of meetings at North Catawba, in which he will have the assistance of Rev. W. R. Bradshaw.

....Bro. S. J. Porter writes from Brazil that since his letter, which appears in this issue, the bombardment of Rio has ceased, through the interference of the resident foreign representatives; but that Nichtheroy, the city across the bay from Rio, is utterly ruined and deserted by the people. The Baptist church which had been established in Nichtheroy has disbanded and the members joined the Rio church. The pastor, Bro. Ginsburg, has taken charge of the work at Campos. Thus it is seen that though war prevents work in one place, the missionary finds another field. Bro. Porter has taken charge of the work at Juiz de Fora, and will send his native helper to Barballona. Bro. Porter thinks of making his permanent residence at San Paula, a city of 250,000 inhabitants, in which Baptist missionary work has never been done. Wherever they may go, he and his faithful wife will be followed by the prayers of a host of brethren and sisters in their native land.

The attention of musically inclined young men is called to the advertisement in this paper of Bro. A. W. Wilson of Durham. He has organized a first class Winter Music School to prepare young men to teach music, and is engaged in worthy effort to revive the old-time singing school.

In ordering goods, or in making inquiry concerning anything advertised in this paper, you will confer a favor by mentioning the fact that you saw the advertisement in the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

A Letter to the Baptist State Convention.

BY REV. GEO. W. GREENE.

Dear Brethren:—I do not write because I wish to give advice to the Convention, or try to tell you how to carry on your part of the Lord's work. I did not venture to do that when I was with you and knew the details of the work. Now that I am far away, still more you know better than I how it ought to be carried on. But I do not wish to pass entirely out of your memories, and I wish to bring our work in South China afresh to your minds. As the time for your meeting in Elizabeth City approaches, how my heart longs for the sight of your faces, the grasp of your hands!

I have now been in China two years. This time, of course, has not enabled me yet to do any effective work. One of our oldest and wisest brethren says the first two years in Canton must be spent in trying to live, becoming accustomed to the trying climate, so as to be able to do good work in the future. It has had its effect on me, and I have sometimes feared I should not be able to endure it. But my health seems to be now decidedly on the upward grade, and I am hoping for the health needed for residence and work on this field. My studies of the language have been greatly interrupted by my feeble health; but for six months and more I have been conducting occasional public exercises, besides daily family prayers with the Chinese of my household. I hope soon to begin preaching regularly once or twice a week.

Just before sailing from San Francisco, a brother who had spent many years in China, told us who were ready to come out, that for a year or two we might expect to be of little consequence on the mission field, unable to do any effective work, and our advice as to the work being of no consequence. On this advice I have tried to act, and have occupied a back seat in mission councils. But I have tried to keep my eyes open and have learned some things about the work, its methods and results.

I came out with some well defined ideas as to what I should find to be true of missionaries, Chinese Christians, churches and native preachers; and these preconceived ideas have proved to be substantially correct. There are in Canton, of all denominations, between 50 and 100 missionaries. These are not, as some suppose, almost angels, but just plain human beings, with faults and failings like ordinary mortals, making mistakes, as Christians everywhere do, but striving to find the right way and to do the Lord's work to the glory of his name and to the salvation of souls. If I could look in on your sessions, I could choose, almost at random, fifty men and women, as pious, as consecrated, as zealous, as these missionaries. They are plain, common-sense men and women, who love the Lord and love souls, and who, having heard the Master's voice calling them to this land, are trying in a straight forward way to heed his calls. They have struggles, similar to those which come to the average Christian in gospel lands, and they long for the sympathy and the prayers of their brethren at home. Some of us greatly feel the need of the spiritual uplifting which came to our souls, in times past, at the protracted meetings, the Associations, the Conventions.

The Lord has given his servants some success, and I have met quite a number of Chinese who have turned from idols "to serve the living God." I have been with them in their churches and Sunday-schools; I have attended the business meetings of their churches and one session of the Association; I have met them in the class for the study of the Scriptures; I have worshipped with them in the prayer-meeting, in the family circle, on the boat going to and fro in the land; I have had business dealings with them,—and the result of all my observation is that they are neither much below nor much above the average of church members in North Carolina. Doubtless there are some hypocrites among them, and now and then it becomes necessary to withdraw fellowship from one; but this happens in North Carolina. Many of them, recently from heathenism, are very ignorant, and need much teaching and training to make them such church-members as they ought to be. A few have been trained in Christian homes and Christian schools, and are thereby able to be leaders among their brethren.

In one respect these Chinese Christians surpass anything of the kind I have ever seen, in the giving of money for the support of the gospel and for the extension of the work. I have known some very liberal churches in North Carolina, but I have never known one whose members in general gave so liberally in proportion to their means as do these Chinese Christians. Most of them are exceedingly poor. I know churches in North Carolina containing a dozen members, each one of whom owns more property than all the members of the Canton church, with perhaps a hundred others whose income is greater than that of anyone member of this church, and yet that dozen wealthy men joined with that hundred others who make a good living, do not give as much as this church composed of exceedingly poor people.

Much the same may be said of the native preachers. Though few of them have had the benefit of Christian homes in their childhood; though none of them have been surrounded by the influence of Christian civilization, but have rather been hindered by the influences of heathen neighbors and hurtful traditions; yet perhaps the average of zeal and consecration is as high as that of an equal number of ministers in North Carolina. There are differences; some are better preachers than others, some are more deeply pious, some are more intelligent, some are more consecrated; but similar differences are found elsewhere. During this year two godly men have finished their labors and gone to their reward; another is just beginning on the borders of the heavenly land, longing only for strength to make one more visit to a far inland station where his labors have been especially successful.

Now and then one is found who does not commend himself to the brethren as an approved workman. One of the first I met, impressed me unfavorably. The brethren said he was a good preacher, but even before I could understand more than a word here and there of his preaching, I felt that there was a lack of spirituality. When I came to know him better, my feelings took something of the shape which they have formerly done towards a preacher who was noted for being a skilful horse-trader. The brethren told me that his great difficulty was getting in debt. At last, so much scandal was caused by this fault, that it was necessary to drop him from the number of our workers. He went to Hong Kong, seeking employment, and was employed as a preacher by one of the English missionaries of another denomination, at a higher salary than he ever received from us.

Thus I have found that the gospel, even amid all the difficulties of this heathen land, makes out of weak human nature about such Christians as it does in North Carolina. The great fact is that there are nearly 700 connected with Baptist churches in this part of China, most of whom are trying, with many failures, to glorify God by a pious walk and a godly conversation. This year's work will report the baptism of nearly a hundred more.

In conclusion, I would ask you to remember one family of North Carolinians in South China. Sometimes we are a little lonely. We have seen only one man born on the sacred soil, since we crossed the line near Clarksville on our way to Richmond, and one man who had been to place his motherless children in a North Carolina school, because their mother was from that State, while he went back to his work in Siam. We watch the progress of events in the dear State, as pictured in the papers and in letters, with much interest. Our hearts are with you at Elizabeth City. May the Lord of the harvest manifest his presence and guide your deliberations!

Wake Forest Letter.

THE COLLEGE AND THE CONVENTION

Wake Forest is the child of the Baptist State Convention. It belongs to the Baptists of the State. It was founded by their wisdom and zeal. It was consecrated in their prayers. It has been endowed in a large measure through their self sacrificing devotion and loyalty. Through all the years of its history it has been supported by the loving labors of thousands of faithful men and women whose devotion to the interests of their denomination caused them to work for the advancement of Christian education. Hence the relation between the College and the Convention is naturally and necessarily close. The interest of the one is the interest of the other. As the College sends forth annually well-equipped men, ministers and laymen, to labor in all the departments of Christian activity, it is helping in a marked degree to forward the purposes and work of the Convention; and while the latter is planning wisely and well for the unifying and strengthening of all the forces of the denomination in the spread of the Master's kingdom, it is widening the influence of the College and creating a greater demand for Christian education. The College sends greeting to its many friends and alumni soon to meet in Elizabeth City and calls upon them to continue to labor for the increase of its patronage and the advancement of its interests.

THANKSGIVING REFLECTIONS.

It may not be amiss to consider briefly some of the causes for thanksgiving on the part of the people of North Carolina in general, and the Baptist denomination and friends of Wake Forest in particular.

The people of our State are conservative, considerate and conscientious. Respect for law and for the rights of their fellows is deeply implanted in their life and character. Hence, while north and south and west of us, the red handed assassin has taken the life of his neighbor, while in our sister States bloodthirsty mobs have risen in open defiance of law and authority causing the death of the innocent and guilty alike; while the papers have been filled with accounts of oppression, extortion and wrong perpetrated by the strong upon the weak, the rich upon the poor in other sections, the people of our State have been living in their own quiet way, respecting the claims of justice and the rights of others and above all recognizing in their daily relations the principles of the Christian religion.

In many of the counties the jails are empty; the poor and unfortunate are provided for; the orphan is tenderly cared for and trained; there is a growing interest in education among the masses; drunkenness is becoming less frequent and the scope of practical prohibition is being gradually widened;—in a word the forces of right and virtue are stronger we believe in the old North State to-day than they have ever been before. The Christ idea—the brotherhood of man—the fatherhood of God—are living potent factors in the character of our people. For all these things we ought to be profoundly grateful.

Then, too, our people have been blessed in their business affairs. No terrific storms have visited our coasts or laid waste our fields. No section of the country has suffered less from the direful effects of the recent panic than ours. Our business failures have been comparatively few and unimportant. Money is exceedingly scarce but the necessaries of life are abundant and cheap. We should thank God and take courage.

The Baptists should be grateful. Strong, and ever growing stronger, in numbers and influence, they are a mighty host marching under the leadership of the Master himself and seeking to glorify his name and extend his cause. Divided they may often be as to methods and measures, but they are united in spirit and purpose and aim. The Lord is blessing their labors. Churches are being built, Christians edified and sinners converted. More and more as their doctrines are being proclaimed and understood does it become evident that the principles held by the Baptists are destined at no distant day, to take overpowering possession of the masses of our people.

The friends of the College should be grateful. While the enrollment of students is not so large as it should be owing to causes which need not be mentioned here, it is under all the circumstances very gratifying.

In reviewing the year we find much to sadden us. Dr. Royall, whose life and influence were a blessing to the College for so many years, was called home in January.

Two of the students, D. M. Gaddy, on the very eve of graduation, and T. B. Justice, as he was preparing to return and resume his work, were snatched away by the grim hand of death on the threshold of life's career. Strange providence? But their friends have the happy assurance that they were ready for the summons. But we also find much to cheer us. There were never so many people interested in the welfare of the College as now. There have, perhaps, never been so many boys and young men desiring and determined to come here as students. Its alumni have never before manifested such loving loyalty to its interests and such willingness to labor for its advancement. The spirit of the student body is excellent. The boys, as a whole, were never so healthy, never so studious, never so gentlemanly in their conduct.

OTHER ITEMS.

Pastor Gwaltney preached an excellent sermon in Wingate Memorial Hall on Thanksgiving day taking as his text the first verse of the 136th Psalm.

The Societies have decided to have a joint declamatory contest on the evening of the 15th inst. The best declaimer will receive a gold medal. The following have been elected to represent their respective Societies: From the Euzelian, J. D Robertson, R. F. Beasley, Bruce Benton, R. T. Daniel and I. M. Meekins; from the Philomathesian, T. M. Leary, R. O. Try, T. B. Hill, J. W. McNeill and J. R. Stokeley. This is a new but we think a wise move on the part of the Societies and one that will be productive of excellent results.

An Open Door for the Sunday-schools of the South

The Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention is in pressing need of forty thousand dollars with which to meet its obligations and close the year out of debt. The Board is sending out an appeal to every pastor and church to come to their rescue by taking a special collection for Foreign Missions during the month of December.

I beg leave to suggest that the Sunday schools of the Baptist churches in the South join in this movement, and at some time during December we make a special effort to raise at least an average of five cents for every member of the school.

It is quite likely that most of the schools will have an entertainment of some kind during the Christmas holidays. To all such it occurs to me that a good time to take the collection suggested will be at the entertainment.

If the school has the needs of the Foreign Mission work and the special effort of the Board placed before them before the collection is taken, and the collection is made by classes, I can but believe that it will be an easy task to secure an average of five cents per member.

N. B. BROUGHTON.

Dr. Carroll's Sermon.

The sermon of Dr. Carroll in last RECORDER has, doubtless, comforted hundreds. We need more of such preaching to our people. His sermons are so good, strong, Scriptural, and stimulating to the thoughtful, and are such splendid models for our young preachers, that if one each week for a year should be published, the RECORDER would thereby wisely serve the cause of Christ.

The Bible is a manly book. It takes a manly gospel to reach men, to make men, and to hold men. In the great doctrines of grace, in the New Testament, when wisely and vigorously preached, we have all we need. There should be no pulpit among the Baptists for an unmanly preacher with an effeminate gospel. But I venture to suggest a different application of one text of Scripture used in the sermon, viz., Matt. 22: 14, "Many are called, but few are chosen." Many are called—saved—but few are choice ones—few are excellent ones—few are distinguished ones—or, few are what they might be—few are all they ought to be—few are fully consecrated. The connection shows that Jesus was not speaking of the personal election of his people in the passage quoted.

C. DURHAM.

Raleigh, Dec. 4, 1893.

Union News and Notes.

Our Association was a success. All pledges were paid except to Associational Missions. Be it understood, however, the pledges were not large. They have been increased some for next year, and we hope to raise something above what is pledged.

State Missions was well represented by Dr. C. Durham, and Education by a number of brethren; but they all insist that Dr. Taylor made the best speech of the occasion and greatly strengthened Wake Forest in this section. Prof. Sikes came in late and did not take any active part in the public discussion. We are always glad to welcome Prof. Sikes back to Union. We did not have as many messengers and visitors as we desired. Some of the brethren suggested that we invite the Convention here next year, so that they might have the pleasure of entertaining all they desired.

At the Association a Ministerial Association was organized. This Association meets monthly and takes into consideration topics of interest to the pastors in the common Association and doctrinal teaching. We hope in this way to unite our interests and have a greater co operation in the work. We meet in Monroe on Wednesday before each second Sunday.

The work in the country is looking forward. Hopewell, one of our best churches, still retains Rev. S. C. Davis as pastor. Bro. Davis has preached there the past year, and they have made some progress under his guidance. Hopewell is amply able to employ a man half his time and pay him well. They are a good people and alive to our interest as a whole.

Meadow Branch has called Rev. J. B. Richardson for another year. Bro. Richardson has not decided yet as to what disposition he will make of the call. This church is without doubt one of the strongest churches both in number and financial ability of any church in the Association. Such a body of young people I have rarely ever seen anywhere—bright, intelligent faces, with neatly clad bodies and sanctified by the grace of God presents almost a heavenly spectacle; yet all this is seen at Meadow Branch. Their congregations are very large. They could easily be the banner church of the county if their forces were all utilized. I am not at all surprised that the development of our young people is the burning question of this age. When we see such mighty power and wonderful potentialism in them and such a host of them as there is at Meadow Branch. They have a handsome and comfortable house, a good Sunday-school, and one of the best preachers in the State. They also have a good school with Prof. Hughes as principal. This school has been in operation several years and largely accounts for the superiority of their community. This school was adopted by the Union Association some years ago as their school, but they have dropped that idea now and it simply stands on the minutes of our Association as a dead letter. We have two schools in the county with Baptist principles, but none distinctively Baptist, though every school in the county is largely run with Baptist money and filled with Baptist children. As one good brother said, "We furnish the children, money and houses largely, and the others furnish the teacher." Well, I feel the time is here when every Association in the State must have their academy for their boys under the direction of the Baptist people composing the Association. Then will our educational problem be greatly simplified, and our male and female colleges have feeders to rely on. It may be a good while before such a state of things can be, but sooner or later it will come "for all that."

So much for this time; as I have promised a monthly letter, I will defer till the next.

Our work still moves steadily on.

Peloubet's Select Notes. A Commentary on the Sunday-school Lessons for 1894, by Rev. F. N. Peloubet. 356 pp. Illustrated, $1 25. W. A. Wilde & Co., 5 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.

It has been said "there was only one best," and among all the many helps for teachers of the International Lessons the "one best" is surely Peloubet's Notes.

There are many helps that partially cover the lesson subject, but for a complete understanding of the text from every standpoint the teacher must have this book at hand for weekly reference in studying the lessons.

It will be a peculiar help during 1894, because the first six months' lessons, being from the earlier books of the Old Testament, introducing many perplexing questions that must be squarely answered, and Dr. Peloubet has been extreemly wise and judicious in so presenting these controversial subjects that they become incidental rather than prominent, and thus do not obscure or tend to lead away from the main teachings of the lesson.

In handling the lesson on the life of Christ for the last half of the year, the author has drawn from his incomparable store of past study and thought the brightest, most trenchant expressions and teachings of the world's students.

The notes are simple complete in every respect, and even a captious critic would have to scan close to take exception to them.

The text is illustrated with abundant original engravings which illustrate many otherwise dark passages, and as a whole, in its mechanical as well as literary make up, the book will at once interest and instruct any teacher of the work.

It is published in one volume, uniform with its nineteen annual predecessors, and is a rare reference-book for one's library, even after the year's study is completed.

We have received from J. Fischer & Bro., No. 7 Bible House, N. Y., three excellent anthems, viz:

1. Hail to the day. Solo and Chorus. Christmas Anthem, by A. Diabelli. Price, 20 cents.

2. Praise ye the Lord. Solo and Chorus, by J. Wiegand. Price 35 cents.

3. Angel hands in strains sweet sounding. Solo and Chorus, by J. Wiegand. Price 35 cents.

They are marked by melodic beauty, religious feeling, and commend their use for both church and home.

A Month with Moody, His Work and Workers. This is the title of a work which the Wharton & Barron Publishing Co., of Baltimore, Md., announce that they have in press. It will contain a sketch of Mr. Moody, an unpublished address, and the only picture of Moody that has ever been taken from the original now in possession of Mrs. Moody. The portrait has been copyrighted. The work will also contain portraits and sketches and sermons by Revs. John McNeill, Wilbur Chapman, Henry Varley, Thomas Spurgeon, Dr. Stoecker, A. C. Dixon, Major Whittle and many others. The book will be superbly illustrated and beautifully printed and bound.

To Trustees of Baptist Female University.

BY THE FINANCIAL SECRETARY.

Dear Brethren:—There has never been a more popular enterprise in the State than the Baptist Female University. It is no longer regarded as a luxury but a denominational necessity. How much we have lost by not having such an institution cannot be estimated. To postpone its establishment would be, it seems to me, to violate a sacred trust and multiply the number of difficulties. To continue the work already begun will result in having a school which, under God, will be a great factor in our denominational interests. Every evidence we have of the presence of the hand of God in directing our work at Wake Forest College, gives double assurance that this too is his work and will succeed. Then if this be his work, we need no greater encouragement, for the means are at his hands for its accomplishment. But, if we need greater encouragement, which has not been withheld, for thousands of dollars have been already collected, and thousands more will come from men—godly men in the State, who are ready when they are made certain that the work will be prosecuted to completion. I therefore most heartily urge that we begin the school September, 1894. With the buildings already on our lot, and with one wing of the proposed building which can easily be completed by that time, we can accommodate over one hundred boarders. If it should be necessary, we can secure other rooms at reasonable rates. To do this, begin the school. It will be necessary to select a president during the session of this Convention, or as soon thereafter as practicable, who may be asked to aid in the arrangement of recitation rooms, &c, but especially to aid in the preparation for publication the prices of board, tuition, course of study, the selection of text-books, &c. So much depends upon the selection of the right man. Whatever may be required as to his intellectual attainments, he must be a man of executive ability and of high moral character.

A very important item in erecting the building is the selection of men for a building committee who shall use the greatest economy possible to secure durability and beauty in the building.

The low prices at which the materials—brick and lumber—can be furnished, the reduced rates of labor make it certain that the building can be erected economically.

I need not say that the greatest anxiety is felt over the State about "what grade of school it is to be." If it meets what seems to be the demands of our people, the collegiate department must be equal to any female school in the State, and the university department equal to any in our land.

Perhaps one of the greatest questions concerning the education of our girls is, how can we reduce the expenses so that there shall not be such a great difference in the charges at our male and female institutions of equal grades of scholarship. A wise solution of this question will be a benediction to thousands of our homes. To set on foot this great work, I would urge that you secure a hearty discussion of this work during the Convention, and that either before or after the discussion, the trustees have a meeting to consider further the report of this work to the Convention as well as the suggestions I have made. May the good Lord direct you. Fraternally,

O. L. STRINGFIELD.

Ministers' Relief Board.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD.

The Ministers' Relief Board is the youngest child of the State Convention, and has not grown so large or strong in the affections and sympathies of our people as the older children, so its needs and claims, particularly, should be made known and emphasized.

Its object is to care for the old ministers of our denomination in the State, who have given their time and talents to preaching the gospel, and have not the means of support to render them comfortable when enfeebled by disease or old age.

The Board is located in Durham, and its members are elected annually by the Convention. One-third of all the money contributed for this object is invested in a permanent interest bearing fund, and the remainder is distributed at the discretion of the Board to the beneficiaries. This department of Christian beneficence has strong and peculiar claims upon us. These faithful preachers, who need our assistance to supply them with the comforts of life, are our brethren. They have given their lives to the service of God and of the churches. Had they followed other callings they doubtless would have secured a comfortable competency for old age. With many of them poverty is a badge of honor indicating a consecrated and unselfish life. To their labors our churches owe their existence, and many individual Christians owe their conversion. They are not so much our brethren as our fathers, and we should reverence them and gratefully and affectionately care for their wants. Governments pension their soldiers, who have fought for their peace and prosperity, making sacrifices as patriots in the service of their country. These dear old preachers are the old or disabled soldiers of the Cross. They have endured hardships, dangers and privations. They bear the honorable scars of brave and faithful service. Surely the church of Christ should not allow civil government to excel in a charity and benedcence which really the world first learned from Christianity. Many touching appeals come to this Board, either from the old brethren themselves, or their families, or some interested friends, and it is a grief to us not to be able to relieve in every case. Often we can only give a pittance, when we would and should give bountifully.

Every one of our churches take two public collections every year for this object? It is a cause which appeals to the head and heart of both the church and the world, and if pastors will give the people an opportunity, we believe they will respond cheerfully and liberally.

W. C. TYREE

Letters of Dismission.

When a member of a Baptist church moves away from the neighborhood of his church, or when another Baptist church is more convenient for him to attend, or when he feels that he can be more useful in some other Baptist church in reach of him, it is customary for the church of which he is a member to give him a letter certifying that he is in "good standing and full fellowship," and commending him to the care of the church with which he wishes to unite. "Each one receiving a letter is still a member of the church, and under its watchcare and discipline, until his letter is actually received by another church."

No one has a right to apply for a letter of dismission because he has a difficulty with a Christian brother and does not wish to remain in the same church with him. Let him settle his difficulty like a Christian man, and then ask for a letter of dismission. How can a church give to a man in a difficulty with his brother a letter stating that he is in "full fellowship?"

Whenever a person receives a letter of dismission to unite with another church, it is plainly his duty to join without any unnecessary delay. To put his letter in his pocket, or to put it away, and let it lie a long time without placing it in the church with which he has decided to connect himself, is a failure to discharge his duty. There are many who pursue this course. They take letters, lay them away indefinitely, and rejoice in being utterly indifferent to every good word and work. Such persons ought to be compelled to unite with a church convenient to them. If admonishing such of their duty meets with utter indifference on their part, they should be dealt with as disorderly members.

Pastors ought to teach their people that it is one's Christian duty to unite with Baptist churches in those places whither they have gone to live. Many come from distant churches and live often for years under the shadow of the steeple of some church of their own denomination, and yet never think of joining and working for the Master. The reason they do this is either they are indifferent to their duty to God, or they are penurious, being unwilling to help bear church burdens, or they have a sort of sacred love for the bricks and mortar of the dear old house where they hold their membership. Such a sentiment may be natural, and even commendable, but it ought not to stand in the way of a plain Christian duty and of Christian usefulness.

JNO. S. HARDAWAY.

"North Carolina Baptists and Foreign Missions."

Editor Recorder:—In your issue of this week (Nov. 22) is an article on the above subject, about which I want to say a word. I think it is time that we cease "blowing" about our great "Baptist brotherhood," and begin to confess that we are largely a failure. Last year we gave less than five cents per member for foreign missions, and this year has nearly passed and we have given a little over three and a half cents per member. There must be a cause for this somewhere, and we cannot charge it against God, because he has shown his interest in our development along this line by calling great numbers of our brethren and sisters to the foreign field. But this seems to have but little influence upon our people. We stand at the very head of the column, so far as numbers are concerned, but at the foot so far as our contributions are concerned. I think we had better appoint a day of fasting and prayer at our coming Convention, and make diligent enquiry as to the cause for this failure.

The new movement in foreign missions, known as the "gospel mission," is making considerable progress in our State, while it is doing but little in others. It is true that most of those who are in that movement are from this State. Those from other States are not making such progress as here. Our contributions to Foreign Missions have fallen off thirty per cent. during the past year.

You may say that I am a pessimist, and ought not to be permitted to say these things for the public to read. But will they not find out for themselves after awhile, and will they not lose confidence in the leaders for not giving them the facts when they knew them? I believe in taking the membership of my churches into my confidence, and I do not believe that any pastor will long succeed that does not; and I believe in taking the membership of the State into our confidence and letting them understand the difficulties as well as all our modes of work. It is said that the reason why Mr. Cleveland is so strong is that he goes beyond the politicians and feels the pulse of the common people and takes them into his confidence; and so I think we ought to do with the mass of our membership. I do not think we are going to remedy our troubles until we change our plans.

I dislike very much to have a brother over in Virginia standing up before his general association, as did Dr. Landrum at their late meeting, and asserting that they are not only running their own State Mission work, but paying a part of the salary of our Corresponding Secretary. But it is the truth; and what are we going to do about it? Last year we spent nine per cent. of our collections for Foreign Missions in our own State, and then they went to Richmond, and they spent about eight per cent. more, making seventeen per cent. of our contributions for expenses. As to the amount spent at Richmond I have not a word to say. I do not question but what that was as small a per cent. as could be used to do the work; but I am convinced that it is a great mistake to take the nine per cent. and use it in this State.

I state a fact when I say that a very large part of the contributions from our Associations will go to the "gospel mission," and largely because of the way in which our Foreign Mission contributions have been managed. If these things are true, and they cannot be gainsaid, is it not time for our people to know them? and is it not time for us to take the tax off of our home and foreign mission contributions, and turn the work over to the Vice Presidents of these Boards in the State? If our expenses in raising mission funds for this year are as large as last—and they are generally about the same, whether the amount raised is great or small—then the per cent. of expense will be much larger. As long as we let the Baptists of Virginia, with less than two thirds our number, raise more than three times the amount of money for Foreign Missions as we do, I think we better cease our boasting about numbers and begin to enquire, What is the matter, that we do not raise any more money than we do?

Yours for the largest results,

M. P. MATHENY.

Lincolnton, N. C.

Letter from Brasil.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Last Monday Senhor Soren embarked at Rio de Janeiro for the United States, where he intends to enter upon a course of study in William Jewell College, Mo. The story of this young Christian's life is one of interest. His parents, who are now very old, live in the country about fifteen miles from the city of Rio. While yet a boy, young Soren went to Rio and hired himself as a clerk in a shop. By economy and industry he was soon able to set up business for himself. One night as he was walking along the street he chanced to pass the house in which was the preaching-hall of Bro. W. B. Bagby, our missionary to Brazil, who was at that time preaching to a small congregation. From Bro. Bagby's lips came the words, "We are all lost and ruined, and can be saved only by the precious blood of Jesus." These words arrested the attention of the young shop-keeper, who stopped, and through curiosity stepped inside the door. He became greatly concerned through the preaching of Bro. Bagby. He had never heard the gospel before—it was something wonderful and new to him. The next time there was preaching he came, and continued to come until he found peace by believing in Jesus. As soon as he himself had received the light, he hastened to his friend and partner, Theodora, and did not rest until he too was brought to believe in the Lord. He immediately closed up his business and went home to preach the gospel to his parents and brothers and sisters. By his efforts his mother and, I think, one of his sisters, were brought to the Lord. Meanwhile, Theodora set out for Portugal, where his parents live, to tell them of the Saviour he had found. Soren returned to Rio where he has been preaching and aiding the pastor of the Baptist church for some time. Feeling the need of better education, he is now on his way to the United States, where he hopes to remain in school for two or three years. Theodora has returned to Brazil, and has also been studying and preaching with Bro. Ginsburg, pastor of the Nichteroy church. Brethren at home, don't be discouraged in mission work, so long as God blesses our efforts as he has done in the conversion of these two young men.

Probably your readers have heard something of the revolution which is now going on in Rio de Janeiro, and are wondering whether it will interfere with our mission work there. On the seventh of September the naval force, under command of Custodio de Mello, revolted and immediately opened fire on the city of Rio from the Rio bay. Ever since that time scarcely a day has passed but that the city has been bombarded. Also the city of Nichteroy just across the bay from Rio has suffered greatly. Many soldiers have been killed, but the worst and saddest thing is that many quiet and innocent citizens have lost their lives. Every day there are notices in the papers of people who have been killed by the stray balls which reach nearly every part of the city. I remember reading an account of a poor washer woman, who, while at work, was shot through the body by a bullet and killed instantly. The city of Nichteroy is almost deserted and numbers of poor people are on the point of starvation. The damage done to property is almost beyond estimation. Our mission work both in Rio and Nichteroy has suspended, as it is dangerous for our missionaries even to walk the streets. How long the war will continue no one knows. The latest news is that the State of Santa Catherina in the extreme southern part of the country has joined the rebellion. The war will probably go on until Peixoto, the President, surrenders. There is much ill feeling against him, as he is inclined to be somewhat tyrannical, and it is on this account that the navy revolted. The whole political situation is dark and complicated, and to explain it clearly and satisfactorily is a task which I do not believe a man in Brazil is equal to. We pray that the Lord will over-rule it all for the advancement of his cause. We are out of all danger, being here at Juiz de Fora, an inland city 250 miles from Rio de Janeiro.

Seminary Letter.

Editor Recorder:—Allow me to give your many readers a few dots as to happenings in this part of the moral vineyard. The work of the session has moved on quietly and steadily, but surely on since the opening. The increase in the number of students this session is of course a source of great gratification to all the friends of the Seminary and ought to be to the friends of theological education throughout this whole country. I do not believe there can be found anywhere a seminary better equipped in every way than is our beloved Seminary. There certainly can be no discount put upon its magnificent buildings. After being here even a short time one gets to feel very much at home. God be praised for the genuine Christian liberality that has given our institution such comfortable quarters.

Then besides the buildings the teaching force of this Seminary is of the highest order. I believe we have a Faculty, the equal of which is not to be found anywhere in this country. The Faculty believe firmly in the Bible as a revalation from God, given under the direction of the Holy Spirit. They believe, too, in its full inspiration and a "thus saith the Lord" settles once for all any question with them. They not only hold such views themselves, but strive earnestly and perseveringly to instill these fundamental doctrines into the minds of the students who come here. Men who are disposed to run off after every new fangled notion that comes along don't receive much comfort and one who proposes to stay here and hold other than orthodox notions of the Bible will find it exceedingly uncomfortable for him. The man who goes out from this Seminary to preach anything but the Simon pure gospel will certainly preach something the opposite of what was taught him here. Why is it that there is such a disposition among the young men of our State to go off to other seminaries when we have the best in the land? This is a question I have never been able to answer satisfactorily to myself. Surely it must be because they do not know the advantages afforded here. I have said before, what my experience teaches me is true and that is that the young minister who fails to come here for any reason will never know what he has missed. Of course one can learn a great deal from hearing the Faculty and men who have studied here talk; but if he ever knows what the institution really is he must come and see for himself. You may be told how delicious a certain dish is; but everybody knows that the only way you can ever know how delicious it really is, will be to taste it for yourself. I was hoping there would be an increase over last year in the number of students here from our State this year; but instead of that there is a falling off. Last year's record surpassed that of any previous year and did want the same to be said of this year's record. Where are the ministers of last year's graduating class at Wake Forest College? I suppose there were some in that class; if not, I am sorry for the class. I am glad to say that there are four here from each of the classes of '91 and '92. Brethren, Cullom, Millard, Blalock and Corpening belong to the class of '92 and brethren Spilman, Gillmore, R. G. Kendrick, Jr., and this scribe are the representatives of the class of '91. Bro. T. H. Plemmons is here again as the only representative of Judson College. Brethren R. D. Cross from Lexington and H. Morris of Palmerville, Stanley county, have neither of them attended college; but in spite of that fact I hear good reports from them. Bro. Cross, however, was with us last year. Bro. W. H. Hudson from Person county attended Wake Forest College but did not graduate.

I am glad to know that there is a large number of students at our College this year notwithstanding the stringency of the times.

Last Monday was one of sadness alike to both professors and students. About eight o'clock Sunday night grim death came and laying his icy fingers on one of the best of our number, claimed him for his own. It was Bro. C. B. Lloyd from Birmingham, Ala. The event, sad as it was, was not unexpected to those who understood that the disease was chronic. Bro. Lloyd was warned by his physician last year that he might die at any time. The Faculty understood the situation and accordingly advised him not to return to the Seminary this year. After the close of last session he accepted the care of a church in Norfolk, Va., not expecting to return. But so ambitious was he to thoroughly prepare himself for his work that he could not stay away. Not long after his return in October, his disease took a turn for the worse and was not long in putting an end to his earthly career. All class-room work was suspended last Monday out of respect to his memory. Exercises appropriate to the occasion were held in the chapel of Norton Hall at twelve o'clock. Remarks concerning Bro. Lloyd were made by two of the brethren, who were fellow students of his at Howard College; by Dr. W. L. Pickard who was then a pastor in Birmingham, and also by Dr. A. T. Robertson. At half past two o'clock Monday afternoon the body was accompanied by the Faculty and students in a body to Union Station whence it was taken to Birmingham for burial.

Dr. E. C. Dargan has been confined to his bed for several days. We miss him very much and hope that he will be able to meet his classes before many days.

There is a revival meeting in progress at each of the three Baptist churches, Walnut Street, Broadway and East. Dr. Eaton has no ministerial aid. Dr. Pickard is being aided by Rev. J. Morgan Wells of Fort Worth, Texas, and Dr. Christian by Bro. V. H. Cowsert of Natchez, Miss. I trust that much good will be the result of these meetings.

I hear it whispered around that Bro. C. J. Thompson expects to attend the Convention at Elizabeth City. Bro. Thompson was pastor at Lumberton just after he graduated at Wake Forest College and before his coming to the Seminary. He will not likely return to the Seminary next year. Some of the pastorless churches in our State would do well to lay violent hands on him and induce him to come back to his native State. He has been away long enough. More at another time.

Very truly,
JAS. I. KENDRICK.

Notes With Comment.

It is difficult for us to realize the many-sided pressure to bear upon nonconformists to constrain them to renounce nonconformity in England. A statement by a headmaster of a London school with reference to the preparation for the profession of teaching, illustrates it in part. He says:

"The denominational question is a very real factor in the teacher's career. A lad belonging to the Church of England has seven chances to one of getting into a training college as compared with one brought up in any nonconformist body. And yet there is nonconformity! Convictions and conscience are not anachronistic quite yet."

We should be willing to learn from our critics, even though inimical to us.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward says:

"Under a custom of extempore prayer the congregation is at the mercy of the minister; his varying moods and powers are made the measure of their spiritual edification."

And thence she argues for liturgy. We need not accept her conclusion. But every one who leads public devotion may find her statement suggestive.

Speaking of missed opportunities in a recent sermon, Joseph Parker said:

"As a young man, I was asked to go to church one Sunday afternoon. Said my friend who invited me, 'There is a very fine young man in this town, and I go to hear him preach whenever I can. He is preaching this afternoon.' I said, 'No, I shall not go.' It was the last sermon ever preached by Robertson of Brighton. Can I ever repair the omission?"

I say to you, be in church every service, because the time you are not there may be the time of special revelation.

In an address before the Evangelical Alliance in Chicago, Bishop Coxe explained why the Episcopal church insists on the Historic Episcopate as a basis of organic union of Christendom. It is in order that what he calls "the maternal churches of the East"—i. e., the Roman and Greek Catholic—may be embraced in the union. The Episcopal Church would be the church indeed if it were to happen. But how far removed are we who send missionaries to Catholic countries from the Bishop thus ready to organically unite with them!

Dr. John Clifford, in The Review of the Churches, calls attention to the peril of Baptists in Great Britain—

"From the very abundance of their opportunities. Strong pleas and urgent appeals follow one another with startling rapidity." But he remarks that "Baptists, who find one of their great texts concerning baptism forming part of the great commission, can never shrink from the heartiest response to missionary appeals."

The great text which makes us Baptists first, makes us missionaries.

The Baptist Union of Great Britain passed a resolution of sympathy with the persecuted Stundists—Baptists and other protesting Christians—not without strong indignation against the Russian tyranny manifested in that climax of cruelty, the seizure of the children of the Stundists, and forcing them to be trained in the faith of the Orthodox Greek church.

In this country Baptists do not have to be forced. They send their children to other denominational schools and Sunday-schools simply because it is cheaper or more convenient!

A Palmetto with a Twist in It.

I have read articles and articles against co-education; but none are so curious to my mind as the article in your issue of November 22d signed "Palmetto." The writer hails from South Carolina. He dodges behind his nom de plume in order to thrust his honest brethren in the back, with a sword, however, whose point is gone. Ask him to write again. Such writing will help along the cause of co-education. Dr. Pritchard will hail his helping hand. "Palmetto's" argument is based, it appears, upon the fact that it will injure the boys to have them study with the girls. He even threatens to send his boy out of this State to school if we have co-education in South Carolina. I think he is right. If I had a boy so weak and slack-twisted as to be injured by studying with girls, I'd send him out of the State, too, with specific orders never to return.

Letter from Bro. Williams in Arkansas.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—The dear old RECORDER finds me every Saturday regularly—only one failure in the last ten or more months. It is with pleasure I read its columns and see the returns from the different Associations and protracted meetings, and feel my heart go out to God in gratitude for the great work that is being done in the dear old State of my nativity.

My mind goes back to the first Association that I ever attended at Poplar Spring church, Franklin county, in 1827. The prospect that lay out before those dear old and leading brethren of that Association was indeed dark and gloomy. In God was their trust, and they felt that truth was their object and had never failed. Hence their prayers, energies and efforts were inspired by a confiding belief in the promises of Him who ever hears his people cry and turns them not empty away.

I thank God that I have lived to see the year 1893, and to know what He is doing not only in North Carolina but in other places.

Arkansas is coming to the front. Many new churches have been organized the present year. Although there has been some friction in our home work, yet it has passed off, and much has been done by pastoral and voluntary effort. Our Baptist State Convention had a very pleasant and harmonious session about the first of November. Churches and associations were well represented, and many visiting brethren from other States were present. A Northern visitor remarked to one of the brethren that he had never seen such a fine body of men, and that the speeches were neither tedious nor too short, but able and to the point.

Our literary institutions are on the upgrade. Ouachita College of our little city has a fine faculty and between 250 and 275 pupils. Mountain Home in the northern part of the State, in its first session, is doing finely, and a female college at Conway is doing well. Generally there are more classical scholars than ever before.

Your brother in Christ,
D. S. WILLIAMS.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

FOREIGN MISSION ROOMS,
RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 1, 1893.

Dear Brethren:—The undersigned, your servants charged by the Convention to conduct the work of spreading the gospel in foreign lands, ask your attention to a plain statement of the condition of that work.

THE SITUATION.

You have now in the service about one hundred missionaries and eighty native helpers. Their support, with necessary traveling expenses, rents and other aids to their efficiency, costs over $10,000 a month. They have kindly co-operated in reducing expenses and delaying drafts during the recent financial stringency; but, even with that relief, the expenses since May 1st have run up to $74,000. Receipts for the same period have been (exclusive of gifts to Chapel Fund) $44,000, leaving a deficit of $30,000, which, with the liabilities reported May 1st, $10,000, makes a debt of $40,000. This debt is a heavy burden. The interest on it would be enough to support several additional missionaries. It is your obligation, incurred for the support of your representatives in foreign lands.

THE OUTLOOK.

From the fields come cheering reports and also earnest pleas for reinforcement. Our brethren in Mexico, Brazil, Italy, Africa, China and Japan are few and lonely. They need colaborers. At several points a doubling of workers would far more than double their efficiency. At others open doors and Macedonian calls demand advance. Specially needy are the vast pagan fields. Piteous appeals come for two missionaries in Japan, four in Africa, and more than twenty in China. Nor will the men be lacking. Before us lie at this moment numerous applications from choice young brethren and devoted sisters. Others will be forthcoming. But, how can we appoint more when funds are insufficient for those already on the field?

THE REMEDY.

After much earnest prayer and anxious consultation it has been decided to lay the matter before you, and ask you to unite with us in prayer to God and in a concerted effort to liquidate the debt before the close of the present year, so that with the opening of 1894 we may undertake enlarged operations. This will require the raising of $40,000 in December in addition to the regular contributions of the month—a considerable sum for these "hard times," when "so many calls" are pressing, but easily raised if all will help. Is it a tenth or even a hundredth of what our people will waste this month in useless luxuries? Who will give $1,000, or $500, or $100, or $1, or 10 cents? Let every one take part and give much or little as God has prospered.

ENCOURAGEMENTS.

We are moved to make this proposition by a profound conviction that it is right in the sight of God, and will meet the approval of our brethren, by an abiding trust in him and in them, and by tokens already received of rich blessings in store. The stream of contributions, brought very low by the panic of last summer, has begun to flow again. From all quarters come assurances of revived interest in missions. Our brethren, we know, are praying, they will also work and give. Lest a special effort should be followed by relaxation, let it be distinctly insisted that the purpose is to get out of the slough of debt for the sake of making more rapid progress. The special effort must be followed by steady increase in systematic giving. To this end let us have, during December, a whole month of praying in faith and giving in love.

Fraternally yours in the service of our Lord Christ.

How sad to our hearts are some scenes of our childhood,
As our recollections present them to view;
The use of the switch that was brought from the wildwood,
And various punishments most of us knew.
But saddest of all is the thought of the pill-box,
That mother brought out when she thought we were ill,
O! the griping, the aching, the twisting and torment
Wrapped up in the horrible old-fashioned pill.

But that's all done away. To regulate the stomach, liver and bowels, Dr. Pierce's Pellets excel. You'll experience no pain, no discomfort, no bad results. Children take them as readily as peppermint drops.

The Meeting at Greenville.

A series of meetings began in the Baptist church on the first Sunday morning, and continued for two weeks, closing last Sabbath night. The pastor, Rev. J. H. Lamberth, had no assistance, but did the preaching himself.

Measured by the standard which is now too generally used, viz.: the number who make any kind of profession, it could not be called a great meeting, and yet we believe there has seldom, if ever, been held a meeting which accomplished more for the Master Christ, or that resulted in more lasting benefit to the town and church, than this must of necessity do.

The meeting was a great one in at least three particulars: First, as to the preaching; second, as to the prominence given to the fundamental doctrines of the Bible which are necessary to salvation, namely, repentance, regeneration and faith; and third, as to the standard of Christian action and living. We indulge in no fulsome flattery nor strain the truth when we say that the fifteen sermons preached by Bro. Lamberth during the meeting were as forcible, logical, earnest, faithful and effective presentation of the gospel in its purity as we have ever heard from any man. As a preacher and as a man, he is governed and actuated by principle, and in consequence does not fail to impress every one as a man of unusual power.

The prominence given through the entire meeting to repentance, regeneration and faith as prerequisites to salvation was indeed refreshing in these days of evangelistic tendency to depart from the Scriptural and substitute an easy method of becoming a Christian and leading a Christian life. The emphasis given to the one and only way to be saved—through faith in Christ—was timely and must eventually bear much fruit for the Master's cause. If we had more such preaching, we would have less backsliding and not so much necessity for church discipline. No one can be honestly mistaken under the methods used, and the manner of presenting the gospel by this consecrated and lovable minister of Christ. The motives urged why all should cease to sin and become servants of the Master, and the reasons emphasized for faithful service on the part of professors were of a very high order. The preacher believes it is right to serve God, and he does not fail to convince his hearers that they must act from principle and stand or fall by the faith that is in them. No clap-trap methods are used in conducting the services, but the gospel is preached in it original purity, and then men are left to act upon their convictions. We have never seen any one who relies more implicitly upon the Word and the Spirit, and we believe every Christian who attended the meeting has been made to become strong in the faith, and the seed sown cannot fail to bring forth each succeeding month and even for years much fruit both in numbers saved and the church living upon a higher plane of Christian duty and usefulness.

This meeting has brought the church very close to the preacher, and few pastors in the State are more loved than is Bro. Lamberth by his congregation and our citizens generally. What an untold power for good is the presence of such a man in any community. Especially do we of the east need such Baptist men and preachers among us, and but for its seeming officiousness in us, we would say to the churches of North Carolina, let him alone, we need him, and the Master's cause needs him here more than you do.

God grant long life, health, happiness and usefulness to this, his faithful, consecrated servant, and an abundant entrance into his presence in the great hereafter.

W. H. RAGSDALE.

Select for the Holidays.

The holidays are at hand and "presents" are now in order. "What shall I select?" This perplexing question is much more important than we are wont to think. As Christians we should aim to do all the good we can in making "Christmas gifts." But how? A good book is an appropriate gift to offer any one, male or female, old or young. Even the wee little ones, and the gray haired grandfathers and grandmothers enjoy such a present. Be sure the book selected is adapted to the needs of the party for whom it is intended, and God may bless it to the endless well-being of an immortal soul. The American Baptist Publication Society has just the book needed for this purpose, and in ample variety for all classes of patronage.

Geo. P. Pell has sold the Mount Airy News to Mr. P. B. Hamer. Mr. Pell has made an excellent paper in the News, and we are glad to know, leaves it only to accept a more lucrative position.

La Grippe Again.

The United States has never suffered from any disease that has caused such fearful results as has La Grippe. Royal Germetuer has never failed to cure it quickly where used.

Reliable Evidence.

Major W. E. Penn, the great evangelist, was attacked with la grippe, and writes a personal letter as follows:—

"EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK., Jan. 26, 1893.

"I was about to give up this morning and go to bed and send for a doctor, but concluded to try Germetuer first, and having part of a bottle on hand. I commenced its use, taking a teaspoonful in half cup warm water. I have taken three doses and will not have any need for a doctor. I am much better and believe I shall soon be all right again."

Rev. W. G. E. Cunnyngham, editor Sunday-school Literature, M. E. Church, South, says: "The 'grippe' attacked me a second time last spring. One bottle of Germetuer relieved me, as it did before. I feel entirely free from all symptoms of 'la grippe' at present."

For Catarrh, Rheumatism, Indigestion, and General Debility, Germetuer is unequaled. Try it; $1 00 per bottle; six for $5.00 All druggists. Germetuer Pills for Constipation, 50 in a vial, for 25c.

Revivals—Aiding Churches—Orphanage Notes.

Better have a financial panic in the country than a religious panic. Judging from the reports from different quarters of our own State and others, and in comparing these reports with those of other years, we incline to think that this has been one of the most successful years in revivals since Shubal Stearnes and John Marshall caught the fire from Whitfield and proclaimed on mountain top and in dale the story of the Crucified.

RICH FORK IN DAVIDSON COUNTY.

A meeting of fourteen days was recently held with this church. There were not more than three or four professions, but the members were greatly revived, and some brethren who have not been accustomed to lead congregations in prayer were drawn out and acted a noble part. The Arm of the Lord was revealed in strengthening the weak and giving grace to the humble. A mission has been begun by this church across Rich Fork creek, three miles away, and the pastor gives one Sunday in the month to this point. It is probable that a church will be organized in the near future.

UNION HILL IN FORSYTH COUNTY.

The third Sunday in November closed a nine days' meeting in which there were a goodly number of confessions and three happy boys baptized. It is to be hoped some of the grown people who claimed conversion during the meeting will be baptized before long. Rev. J. B. Newton is pastor here, and he has a warm-hearted people to co operate with him in the Lord's work. He is also pastor of the Clemmonsville saints and Advance. The first named place experienced a glorious revival in the month of August, in which Rev. C. C. Newton, missionary to Africa, did the preaching. The pastor baptized eighteen as a result. This part of Forsyth is one of the finest farming sections in the State.

ADVANCE IN DAVIE COUNTY.

This town on the Winston and Mocksville Railway is growing rapidly, and will in the near future, be the largest town in the county. Bro. Newton has been preaching there, but under great disadvantage. The appropriation by the Board was small; however some progress has been made. The brethren hope to secure a lot by the close of the year, and it is their purpose to try to build a house of worship in the year 1894 It would be well for the Board to seriously consider this field of work which promises so much. J. D. NEWTON

Ordination.

At a recent meeting of the Mount Vernon church, a presbytery, consisting of Revs. Dr. C. E. Taylor, O. L. Stringfield and C. M. Billings, was appointed for the purpose of examining, and, if found worthy, to ordain Rev. W. H. Riddick to the full work of the gospel ministry.

The presbytery met, and, after a satisfactory examination on his Christian experience, call to the ministry, the doctrines of the Bible and church polity, unanimously voted his ordination; accordingly, the ordination was proceeded with on Sunday last, at Mt. Vernon church.

Dr. C. E. Taylor preached the sermon from Col. 1: 28, "Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." The writer offered the ordaining prayer, Rev. O. L. Stringfield delivered the charge, and in connection with it the address of welcome, and the candidate pronounced the benediction.

Bro. Riddick is a young man of promise, and we heartily commend him to his people whom he serves, praying God's blessings to crown his efforts with abundant success.

Mrs. A. J. Richardson.

FLYNN, MOORE COUNTY, N. C., June 5, '93.

Gentlemen:—I received your letter and in reply can say, that the Electropoise was a God-send to me, for I know I should have been in my grave to-day if it had not been for that little instrument. I was suffering from a lung trouble caused by la grippe, which had been running on me for two years; also dropsy which my physician said was caused by the weakness occasioned by "the change of life," and he said that he had done all that he could for me. For fifteen months he had treated me, and I gradually grew worse all the time.

I and my family were satisfied that I could not live but a short time. Just at that time I read in the BIBLICAL RECORDER an account of what the Electropoise had done for others, so I concluded to try it, and to-day am able to go where I please and do all my house work; I feel like a new being.

I would have been glad could you have seen me before I commenced using the 'Poise, and could see me now. Words are inadequate to express my gratitude to the Electropoise for the benefit I have derived from it. Before I bought it, the physician was almost one of the family, but since, he has not had a call here.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. A. J. RICHARDSON.

Rev. Levi Branson.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 3, 1893.

Dear Sir:—My daughter who has been using the Electropoise a little over three months, has steadily improved all the while, until now, we feel sure of her entire recovery. Hers was a case of extreme debility, from dyspepsia, constipation, indigestion, headache, &c.

Very truly,
REV. LEVI BRANSON.

There never was found any pretended conscientious zeal but it was attended with a spirit of cruelty.—Palmer.

Rev. A. W. Setzer Ordained

Dear Recorder:—Bro. A. W. Setzer was ordained to the full work of the ministry at Mt. Ruhama church, Catawba county, N. C., on the 23d of October, 1893. Elder J. A. Hoyle preached the sermon, and conducted the examination. Elder E. S. Whisnant offered the prayer and presented the Bible. Benediction by Bro. Setzer.

Bro. Setzer is a very promising young man, and has the confidence of the people where he has been reared and lives. We can afford to recommend him to any church in need of a pastor. J. A. HOYLE.

If you look at a dozen common lamp-chimneys, and then at Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass," you will see the differences—all but one—they break from heat; these don't; you can't see that.

Common glass is misty, milky, dusty; you can't see through it; Macbeth's is clear.

Tough, clear glass is worth fine work; and a perfect chimney of fine tough glass is worth a hundred such as you hear, pop, clash on the least provocation.

DIED.

HUDSON—Mrs. Nancy Hudson passed to the heavenly rest Sunday morning, Oct. 22d, 1893, from the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. McDade, at Chapel Hill, N. C., in her eighty-fourth year. She was the relict of Col. Isaac Hudson of Wake county, with whom more than forty years ago she removed to this place, where they became constituent members of the Baptist church on its organization thirty-nine years ago. Well did she adorn the doctrine of God her Saviour by an unwavering pie[illegible] and a meek and quiet spirit. Her life was hid with Christ in God. Reserved, and yet peaceful, it flowed on like the woodland brook far from the haunts of men under the shadow of his love. Her own dear circle recognized her kindly feeling, her unselfishness, her patience and resignation under the stroke of affliction. Age touched her lightly in her long widowhood, and whatever of weakness or pain it brought was alleviated by the tender ministrations of the devoted daughter under whose roof her last years were spent. Such an experience hardly needed the confirming testimony which it is so pleasant to recall of her evident enjoyment of God's word as it was repeated to her by his ministers, of her rapturous smile and her uplifted gaze just before her death. She fell asleep very calmly in Jesus, and the peace of God settled on her face and filled the hearts of her believing household, as they bowed under the loss which was her gain and their spiritual blessing. Tributes of Respect.

MASONIC HALL, SOUTH MILLS N. C.,
October 23d, A. L. 5893.

New Lebanon Lodge, No. 314, was summoned by the W. M. to-day in special communication to pay the last tribute of respect to Bro. Henry Whitehurst, Sr., who was called from the Lodge below to the Celestial Lodge above on the morning of the 21st inst., and while our brother had measured up to the three score years and ten, judging by sight we none thought his earthly career was so near its close, as he had enjoyed such good health in old age. Thus the alarm at the outside door of our quiet retreat was unexpected. The last call for one of our number came for one of our youngest; this time for one of our oldest. He had been a member of the Fraternity and of the Missionary Baptist church for upward of thirty years, and had contributed liberally to the support of both during that time.

But so it is, and so it must ever be—the years come and they go, the young and the old pass away from our midst to the silent "cities of the dead." Their faces and many excellent deeds we see no more, but we will continue to cherish their memory.

In the absence of his pastor, an impressive funeral sermon was preached to a large audience by Rev. C. D. Crawley of the M. E. Church, South, from Phill. 1: 21, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

"Death is the chilliness that precedes the dawn,
We shudder for a moment then awake
In the broad sunshine of the other life."

Death introduces life into a wider sphere, and transforms the temporal present into the eternal future. And so in the light of the supreme truth and the largest hope, we do believe that "it is gain to die," nor "do we mourn as those who have no hope."

Our brother spent his youth, manhood and old age in the community in which he died. The community will miss him, as well as his surviving relatives and family. The large concourse of sorrowing friends that followed him to the grave gave testimony to his worth to them all. His remains were deposited in the grave with Masonic honors. "earth to earth, dust to dust," there to await the grand call on the bright resurrection morn.

WHEREAS, An Allwise Father has seen fit to remove from this body its distinguished head, Dr. Henry M. Tupper, and summoned him to a higher and better life; be it Resolved 1. That in his death we, the Literary Faculty of Shaw University, with whom he daily came in contact, with his rich qualities of heart and brain, deeply realize the loss of a faithful friend, a wise and noble leader and sincere Christian, whose power of analysis and discrimination was of the highest order.

Resolved 2. That we are most deeply grieved at the departure of one so highly esteemed by us all for his conscientious and prompt performance of every duty, so loved and honored for his frank, genial, generous, sympathetic, affectionate and sterling character.

Resolved 3. That Shaw University sustains a deeply felt and irreparable loss in the death of its President whose life responded to the broadest charity and the kindliest feeling for all, and whose mind was ever alert, comprehensive, active, capable of the utmost concentration, and accurate in its every conclusion.

Resolved 4. That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family, who mourn the loss of a husband, father, brother and friend.

Resolved 5. That while reverently bowing to the inscrutable providence that has taken him from us, we accept his dying message as a token of his entrance into a land where friend meets friend, and where parting and death come not.

Resolved 6. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, to the BIBLICAL RECORDER, the National Baptist, and that a copy be filed among the papers and documents of this department.

The Home Circle.

The First Snow-Fall.

The snow had begun in the gloaming,
And busily all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
With a silence deep and white.

I thought of a mound in sweet Auburn
Where a little headstone stood;
How the flakes were folding it gently,
As did robins the babes in the wood.

Up spoke our own little Mable,
Saying, "Father, who makes it snow?"
And I told her of the good All-Father
Who cares for us here below.

Again I looked at the snow-fall,
And thought of the leden sky
That arched o'er our first great sorrow,
When that mound was heaped so high.

I remembered the gradual patience
That fell from that cloud like snow,
Flake by flake healing and hiding,
The scar of our deep plunged woe.

And again to the child I whispered:
"The snow that husheth all,
Darling, the merciful Father
Alone can make it fall."

Then with eyes that saw not, I kissed her;
And she, kissing back, could not know
That my kiss was given to her sister,
Folded close under deepening snow.
—James Russell Lowell.

Foolish Customs at Weddings and Funerals

Some one has said that "society is a terrible engine of oppression." Doubtless we are too much influenced by the example of others. We build better houses than we can afford, because our neighbors build them. We wear finer clothes than need be, because our friends wear them.

"The eyes of other people
Are the eyes that ruin us."

We do not need to point to the thousands of cases every year of forgery and dishonest dealing, to show that men and women live beyond their means. We see it early in the young man who takes a young woman to a party, hiring a carriage in which to bring her, when the street cars are good enough for both, and quite all he can furnish her after they are married; buying a bunch of expensive roses for her because society seems to demand it, when in the store or office or bank where he works, he earns very little more than enough to pay his own board.

Fortunately a young woman sometimes has the good sense to think of a man's pocket-book, and is unwilling that any person should spend a large amount for her pleasure. A selfish girl makes a selfish woman, and where love has not made eyes too blind, it can be seen by the young escort.

She dresses better than her parents can afford—the mother often making too great sacrifices for the daughter, and the father spending other people's money on her. We could learn from the English a more simple and wiser fashion of dressing young girls.

Especially are we foolish in our wedding expenditures. Wedding presents have come to be a burden, and, to a considerable extent, simply a matter of pride. Said a lady to me recently: "We don't know very intimately the parties to be married, but our presents will be exhibited among the others, and we should be ashamed not to have them as elegant as those of our neighbors." And this same lady could ill afford to buy things for her own household, saying nothing of a thousand ways in which she could better have spent the money.

It is useless to reason that people need not give presents. As long as we have such a needless fashion, they will feel obliged to give, just as they do at Christmas, when half the time they have little heart or pleasure in it.

The recipients always know that, in the years to come, they also will be obliged to give presents in return; spoons, sugar-bowls, butter-dishes, that often are in duplicates, and of no use to the possessor.

This society fashion for people who are in ordinary circumstances is indeed a social oppression. It is pleasant to give and pleasant to receive; but not when you are certain that many are unable to give, and do so only because it is the custom.

If society would use the money expended for wedding presents in proper tenement houses, or free baths for the poor, or public parks, or to send boys and girls to college, the results in happiness would be increased a thousand fold. Of course it is argued that the making of these costly things gives work to the poor. A five thousand dollar clock may give work to the poor, but it is scarcely an open question whether five thousand dollars used in the making of nails or plows would not give much more work, and in a much more useful way.

A five-thousand-dollar dress might help somebody, but the results of the five thousand in sending two boys and girls through college, with their consequent usefulness, or the building of three houses for hard working poor people, are above comparison with the dress.

How could the fashion of promiscuous wedding gifts be changed? Just as the fashion about flowers at funerals has been changed. Heretofore, people who cared comparatively little about a person felt obliged at his or her death, in many instances, to send a five-dollar wreath, because they had met in "good society." A single line in the press, "Friends are requested not to send flowers," has stopped all this willing or unwilling giving.

When shall we see at the bottom of wedding invitations, "Friends are requested [illegible] and gifts"? The outside world would [illegible] a sigh of relief, while the father [illegible] be debarred from giving his child [illegible] a hundred thousand dollar check, or [illegible] beautiful home to his bride. [illegible] an occasion of rejoicing, as it should be if the parties are well suited to each other for the life journey, surely our funerals should be occasions of quiet and respectful sorrow for our dead. The display of flowers has largely ceased, but not the idle curiosity that makes scores of persons eager to attend a funeral, and at the proper time "view the remains."

Why hundreds who knew a person not at all intimately in life, should be welcomed at the house of death to look upon a face worn by disease and pallid in the not attractive hue of death, I cannot understand, save that custom unfortunately has made it a part of the funeral ceremony to look at the body.

It seems to me that no one should see our precious dead except the half dozen or more to whom they were especially dear; and at a funeral (usually the smaller and more quiet the better) the coffin should be closed.

"But," said a person to me, "you would have a small attendance if people could not look at the corpse."

Think of this curiosity being welcomed in the house of death! It is better that most of us be remembered, even by those who loved us, as we were in life. The world is, or ought to be, too busy to spend much time in attending funerals. Let us be laid to rest by the few who really love us, and not by the multitude who know us little and care for us little, but come to the house of mourning because it is the custom.—Sarah K. Bolton, in Independent.

Appreciation.

Even a dog likes attention, and a cat will rub up against you for recognition and purr in a most inviting tone. It is not singular, therefore, that human beings like to be noticed, that they crave a word of appreciation now and then as they journey along the pathway of life.

We can imagine no harder lot than for a man or woman to toil day and night, in season and out, in some humble calling, trying to do good and faithful work, and yet never receiving a kindly word or look, or a gentle "thank you" in recognition of his fidelity. A person has to be well fortified with grit and grace to continue on, ever cheerful and ever faithful, under such circumstances.

We are entirely too chary in expressing our appreciation and approval of others. We have a morbid fear lest our words of commendation may exalt them above measure; and to escape the sin of flattery, we go to the other extreme and withhold just and deserved words of approval. And yet, to speak words of praise when deserved, to speak them wisely and with discrimination, is as much a duty as it is to condemn wrong-doing and rebuke sin. Perhaps, if we were not so economical in our words of commendation, we would not have to be so lavish in our words of censure.

Let us look about us and see if we cannot lift a stone from the heart of some one by a kindly word of appreciation. We will not have to go far to find a place and opportunity for such a ministration of love. Your own children may be accustomed to complaints—have they also received an occasional "well done!" The servants about your house, or the laborers on your farm, may be familiar with the fault finding tone of your voice—have they ever heard a hearty and generous word of praise! The teacher in the day-school, the clerk behind the counter, the workman in the shop, the officer on the railway, the minister in the pulpit, even the bootblack on the street—all these may be made happier and better by your words of generous appreciation and kindness. Such words cost us nothing, but they are of priceless value to their recipients. Nor are they without their reward; for if the giving of a cup of cold water is a matter for registry in heaven, surely the words that lift a burden from a troubled heart shall not be unnoticed by our heavenly Father.—Southern Christian Advocate.

Talebearers and talehearers are alike guilty; the one hath the devil in his tongue, the other in his ear.—Bernard.

One of the most perilous experiences of a young convert is in dealing with the suggestion that he is not converted. To make the suggestion is one of the favorite modes of attack in getting a young Christian to listen to it, and to go into an analysis of the case, he is very sure of cooling that convert's zeal, if not of bringing his Christian life to an end. Be on your guard against his whisperings. Instead of looking at yourselves, look at Jesus. Meet the approaches of Satan as Luther did. When the Devil said to him, "You are no Christian," he replied, "Well, that's none of your business."—Michigan Advocate.

THEY CAN'T ESCAPE. The liver when active is the watch-dog of the system—the destroyer of germs and impurities. The truth is: ninety-nine out of every hundred diseases begin with a sluggish liver. A slight cold or chill may amount to something serious. If you correct the liver you'll cure the cold. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets rouse the liver to vigorous action. After dinner, if you're bilious, take one of these tiny, sugar-coated Pellets. Take them when you have wind or pain in stomach, giddiness, fullness, loss of appetite, or when you suffer from costiveness, indigestion, sick or bilious headaches.

THE great scope of legislation that confronts the Fifty-fourth Congress will probably make it the most prominent set of legislators that has ever assembled at Washington. In the recent extraordinary session the most retiring of the law-makers were brought before the people; some for praise, many for abuse. They are all already well known throughout the land. And now as they assemble in regular session they are threatened with a seige of popular petitions for radical changes in our national laws, which promises to keep them in the public eye until next fall. In view of this, it becomes Congress in the beginning to oil its internal machinery that its dealings with national matters may be more expeditious than in the extraordinary session. In our opinion no time would be lost in a revision of its parliamentary rules with a view to preventing the contingency that made the late session dangerous and disgraceful. This may be accomplished by providing a limit to all discussions, or empowering a majority to "call the question." With such a safeguard against filibustering and obstruction, the work on the proposed tariff, the income tax, the Federal election laws, the State bank tax, pension revision, the matter of finance, and possibly an anti-option measure, all of which questions, and many others of scarcely less importance, will be broached, and probably disposed of in this session, will be greatly facilitated. These questions having occupied the popular attention for two years, now being well known over the length and breadth of the land, and having made many warm partisans pro and con, brings this Congress into unusual prominence. As its majority is Democratic, it may be said that the future of that party will be determined by the treatment which these questions receive. It is now in the power of the dominant party to retrieve its fortunes, all but lost, or, to seal its fate forever. Will the opportunity be embraced?

THE voluminous message of the President to Congress is one of the most comprehensive documents of its kind that we have ever seen. It is far less bold, and is more conservative than was Cleveland's first message to Congress. Still, taken altogether, it is a strong document, and is weak only in the removal of the heretofore prominent personality of our Chief Executive. Our limited space will not permit of more than the merest outline of the message. First, our foreign relations are reviewed at length, and are stated to be gratifying. The President refers to international arbitration, and expresses his pleasure that the United States and Great Britain have manifested sentiments favoring "rational and peaceable settlement of international quarrels by honorable resort to arbitration." Next, the subject of finance is treated, and valuable statistics are brought forth. A treasury deficiency of $28,000,000 by next June is anticipated, and more definite laws in regard to the issuance of bonds are recommended. Perfect confidence is expressed that the repeal of the Sherman Act will ultimately have a "most salutary and far reaching" effect, though ignorance of "what, if any, supplementary legislation" will be "essential or expedient" is confessed. Cleveland still hopes for an international agreement in regard to coinage. Next, valuable recommendations as to the strengthening of our army are made, though just now it is thought best not to make any appropriations to the navy. It is recommended wisely that the "fee system as applicable to the compensation of United States attorneys, marshals, clerks of Federal courts," &c., be abolished. A serious deficit in the receipts of the postoffice department is found, and it is recommended as a remedy that less free matter be carried through the mails. Civil service reform is highly endorsed, and an extension of the reform is contemplated. No restriction of existing pensions is recommended, and only the intention to ferret out and expose frauds in the matter is expressed. It is shown that the present way of allowing legislators to send seeds, &c., to their constituents is abusive of the original law, and a useless expense. Hereafter the President advises that seeds be sent only to agricultural experiment stations. Finally, economy in appropriations is very wisely urged upon Congress, the new tariff bill is endorsed, and approval of a temporary "tax upon incomes derived from certain corporate investments," is expressed.

We are disappointed that Cleveland was not more definite in his treatment of future financial legislation, broader in his idea of an income tax, and that he neglected to express his views on the question of the repeal of the State bank tax.

THE proposed tariff measure necessarily embraces many hundred articles, and is far too extensive not to affect every locality of this country. Hence it will be the subject of much local abuse and approval. It is certainly not a radical measure, and is farther from being a free trade instrument than one of protection. That its duties were not lower is a disappointment to many; that they are as low as they are is a matter of much embarrassment to not a few. The most striking features of the proposed bill are the large free list, and the rather unexpected change from a specific to an ad valorem tax. Almost all raw material is admitted free, a boon to the manufacturer and the consumer, and not a hardship to the domestic producer. There are, we estimate, about three hundred articles on the free list, the most prominent of which are coal, iron ore, lumber and wool, farm materials vitally necessary to manufacturing industries. In this it is seen that the bill is intended to advantage the poor man, the consumer. But we have more weighty testimony to this in the change from the specific tax to the ad valorem. Perhaps a definition would be wise. According to Wayland "specific duties are certain sums charged on articles, by the piece, the pound, the yard, the gallon, &c., without reference to value. Ad valorem duties are indicated by a defined percentage of the value of each class of goods, as named in the importer's invoice. For instance, suppose the duty laid on tea to be ten cents per pound, without regard to price. Now those who buy a poorer quality of tea, at, say, thirty cents per pound, pay one-third tax, and those who buy a better quality at, say, $1 00 per pound, pay only one tenth tax. (Wayland.) The advantage of ad valorem duties is obvious. But the framers of the McKinley bill believed that, though the ad valorem tax was more just, it was impossible to enforce it, while there is but little trouble in enforcing specific duties. Measure and weight cannot be concealed, while the price of many things is very difficult to ascertain, and in some instances cannot be ascertained without the assistance and the co-operation of the buyer or seller, either of whom could easily make false representations. But a just law should not be abandoned because there is difficulty in enforcing it, and injustice, in its stead, should never be resorted to.

We hope the bill may become a law as soon as possible. This is one question on which popular sentiment is not doubtful, having expressed itself very strongly a year ago. Delays are always dangerous, and a delay, a suspense, in a matter so vital to our business interests, would tend to bring about a condition of affairs worse than that which surrounded us this summer and fall.

A Layman's Studies in the Life and Letters of Paul.

I. PAUL AND ROME *

Two cities of the ancient world stand in vital connection with Christianity,—Jerusalem and Rome. In the one are focused its retrospective relations, its prospective in the other. In the development and spread of Christianity during the first century, no name approaches in importance that of Paul, and it is precisely through its influence upon his career that Rome acquired its deep Christian significance.

Rome determined the career of Paul—made it possible as well as ended it. He was born under the protection of its universal law, the activities of his manhood were put forth in its great subject cities, and, if we may trust an early tradition, it was from its dungeons beneath the Capitol that he went forth to his death "without the gate" which is now called by his name.

The administrative policy of the Roman emperors was from the first to extend gradually the privileges of citizenship to the provinces. So that at the time of which I write, the imperial city was fast exchanging her position as the mistress of the world for the more honorable one of the world's capital. But in a period which, as regards art and political greatness, was perhaps the most brilliant epoch of humanity, she was still the centre of its energies, attracting all and swaying all from the Straits of Gibraltar to the Euphrates, and from the Scottish border and the Danube to the African Desert.

The outward circumstances of the Empire were favorable to Paul's mission. I may barely mention several particulars. The system of Roman law, which has been the blessing and the marvel of succeeding civilizations, seems to have been administered in remote provinces with the same care as in the capital city. Indeed, the provinces were often loyal and happy, while Rome itself groaned under the terror of the immediate presence of Tiberius, or Caius, or Nero. And, except possibly in the semi barbarous district of Galatia, Paul was never beyond the reach of its influence. Again, the Empire secured universal peace among all the nations and tribes of its wide dominions. Paul went to and fro, "in journeyings often," but he never crossed the track of war. Moreover, the comfort, safety, and speed of travel in this period are without parallel in all history, if we except the present century. Diverging from the golden milestone in the Forum, a network of great roads, mapped and measured, bound together the vast territory. It was safe to travel in any direction at any hour.

But still more important to the success of the Apostle's mission than these external conditions was that inward disposition, that cosmopolitan feeling and sense of interdependence engendered and developed by the fusion of so many separate nationalities in one political body. The administrative uniformity of the Empire prepared a congenial soil for the reception of Paul's message of the all-comprehending kingdom of God.

How Paul's father obtained the distinction of the Roman citizenship is not known. Possibly by "a large sum"; possibly as a reward for some marked service of the Emperor. The son inherited it, and in after years counted it a dignity, understood its privileges, and on more than two occasions owed his life to its protection (Acts 22: 24; 23: 10, 20—24; 25: 3—5, 11, 12). Besides, in the Roman colony of Philippi, though he and his companion did not escape the lictors' rods, he secured for his cause a certain valuable consideration (Acts 16: 37—39), and later in the Roman barrack in Jerusalem he saved himself from a cruel indignity (Acts 22: 24, 25) by appealing to its magic power.

The supreme trial and burden of Paul's life was the great controversy which he had to wage against the dangerous and sedulously disseminated doctrine that the Gentiles must become Jews in order to become Christians. It is somewhat foreign to Luke's narrative, but the letters of Paul, the most important of which sprung directly out of it, show it to have been the central fact of his career. Now, it was precisely the deep-seated hatred which this controversy engendered in the orthodox Jewish mind that finally brought him before the provincial tribunal at Cæsarea and the imperial at Rome. Only the main charge preferred against him need be mentioned here. "Who, moreover, assayed to profane the temple," said Tertullus to Felix the procurator (Acts 24: 6). The Roman law formally recognized the Jewish law that no Gentile should be allowed to enter the inner court of the temple, and punished with death any one, even a Roman citizen, who violated it. The Jews knew that the procurator would take cognizance of such a charge, and so rested their case largely upon it. But even on the supposition that their story was true, the charge was not valid against Paul, since it was not he, but Trophimus who had violated the special enactment (Acts 21: 29).

About A. D. 60, Paul, who had now lingered two years in bonds in Cæsarea, found himself before the judgment-seat of Portius Festus, the successor of Felix. For a provincial not possessed of the Roman citizenship the finding of such a tribunal was final. A Roman citizen might of his own accord submit himself to it, as Paul at first did. The transference of the proceedings to Rome would bring no advantage, unless there was reason to fear the local pressure or to question the impartiality of the governor. But Paul soon perceived that he would be sacrificed to the wishes of the Jews, and, possibly after a momentary recollection of his late vision in Jerusalem (Acts 23: 11), he availed himself of the privilege of appealing to the Emperor.

At last, after many longings (Rom. 15: 23; 1: 13; Acts 19: 21), in the spring of 61 the Apostle to the Gentiles found himself in Rome, the centre and head of the Gentile world. He entered by the Appian Way,—an avenue of magnificent tombs,—passed under the Porta Capena, soon caught sight of the Palace of the Cæsars on the Palatine, and just beyond it the throbbing centre of the world's activities, the Roman Forum, with the glorious temple of Jupiter crowning the abrupt slopes of the Capitoline and closing in the splendid prospect. The prisoner was delivered by Julius to Burrus, Prefect of the Prætorian Guard, stationed in the vicinity. Nero had been Emperor nearly six years, and the first, mild period of his reign had already passed into the later frenzy of brutality and crime. The city contained a closely crowded population of perhaps two million—larger than New York—one half of whom were slaves. The severe morals of Republican Rome were now quite forgotten. The example of the imperial household had spread like a vile infection through all the social orders to the lowest. Family ties were barely recognizable. Seneca, who was adviser to Nero when Paul arrived, exclaims: "There is a struggle to see which can excel in iniquity. Daily the appetite for sin increases, the sense of shame diminishes." The wealth of all lands gravitated into the capital and quickly vanished in the provision of food and shows for the idle masses, or was transformed into luxurious public and private structures whose remains are to this day the admiration of the world. Paul could not have been surprised by the moral decrepitude which advertised itself on every hand. Had he not himself drawn three years before, in the letter to the Romans, a more terrible picture than Seneca's of the contemporary heathen world?

We have to thank the just and humane Burrus—how shines a fair name in such a time!—for the mild restraints put upon the Apostle. A long, light chain bound the prisoner's right wrist to a soldier's left wrist, soldier relieving soldier at regular intervals. The first three days in Rome Paul appears to have spent as a guest in the house possibly of one of the Christians who had gone out forty miles on the Appian Way to welcome him. For the remainder of the imprisonment he was allowed to rent apartments in one of the several-storied tenement houses (insula) that made up the greater part of the city. All persons had free access to him, and they sometimes came to him in great numbers (Acts 28: 23), to whom he taught "the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ, with all boldness, unmolestedly." But he could not go abroad with the soldier that guarded him. He was confined to "his own hired dwelling." But even this restraint was greatly mitigated by the companionship of brethren whom he loved—Luke, Timothy, Demas, Mark, and others.

The most important feature of his prison activities related to the oversight and development of those who had believed through his word in other places. Messengers from the churches that he had planted relieved now and then the tedium of his confinement, assisted him in meeting his expenses, and in some cases carried back letters which have been ever since the guide and inspiration of Christian life. Possibly Ephesians, Colossians and Philemon, and certainly Philippians belong to this period.

And so passed "two whole years." The long-delayed hearing of the cause by Nero in the spring of 63, seems to have resulted in the acquittal of the Apostle. As to his subsequent history there is great uncertainty. After various journeys and the writing of I Timothy and Titus, he appears to have been apprehended and brought to Rome, a second time "the prisoner of Christ Jesus." Rome does not now intervene for the protection of her citizen against the persecuting Jew. She takes herself the role of persecutor and sends him to his martyrdom. Even in this extremity Paul must have been grateful for his membership in the Roman State. Instead of the wild beasts of the arena, or the lingering torture of crucifixion, it was the quick stroke of the Roman sword that released him from the infirmities of age and the cruelties of "evil men." And thus the great Apostle passed into that "Rome whereof Christ is a Roman."

The Forward Movement.

I have been requested by Rev. R. T. Bryan, whose ordination sermon I preached several years ago, to write something for the papers to help on the forward movement in our mission work among the heathen.

I am painfully conscious of my own weakness as a writer and of the small influence I have among the leaders of our denominational work in the State; still I love Bryan and the cause he represents, and at his earnest solicitation, I have consented to grant his request so far as to write a few articles to lay before the readers of the RECORDER.

Our own Foreign Mission Board at Richmond has just sent out a plain statement of the condition of our work in foreign countries. They tell us that we have now in our service about one hundred missionaries and eighty native helpers. Their support, with necessary travelling expenses, rents and other aids to their efficiency, costs over $10,000 a month. The receipts of the Board since May 1st (exclusive of gifts to Chapel Fund) have been $30,000 less than the expenses, which added to the liabilities reported on the 1st of last May ($10,000), makes a debt of $40,000. The interest they have to pay on this amount would support several additional missionaries.

The Board earnestly desire to raise from the churches during the month of December this $40,000 in addition to the regular current expenses. This would seem to be a very large amount if it were to be collected from one State, but when divided up among all the white churches in the Southern Baptist Convention, the amount would be small for each church in comparison with our ability even in this financial crisis.

North Carolina is more largely represented by men and women among the missionaries of this Board than any other State. Twenty of the one hundred missionaries, or just one-fifth of the whole number under appointment, are our own native men and women. It would be a graceful thing if our 1,500 white churches would undertake the entire support of these twenty servants of God. It would not require, on an average, more than $16 00 a year, or about $1 35 a month from each church, if all the churches in the State could be reached. But this is unattainable. Unfortunately a very small proportion of our church members have been in the habit of making regular contributions to any object outside of their own congregation, and many of them give but very little to support their own preachers. God has greatly honored the North Carolina Baptists in taking from among us so many noble men and women to carry the gospel to those who have it not. If we add to the twenty under appointment of the Board at Richmond, those who have identified themselves with what is known as the "Gospel China Mission," viz, Bostick, Herring, Crocker, Blalock and Royall, we have from this State alone twenty-five missionaries in foreign fields, and we ought to give as a thank offering to God not less than $25,000 a year for Foreign Missions.

If the more than 150,000 white Baptists of the whole State would agree to give to this cause the extra amounts that they spend for their own Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, we could raise this amount without any trouble. If every Baptist farmer would set apart one acre of land and cultivate it in any one of the money crops—cotton, tobacco, strawberries, garden-peas, or potatoes; every Baptist merchant devote his profits for two days in the year, and every Baptist laborer give the price of but one day's labor to the Lord's cause, we could double our number of Foreign and State missionaries and give to each one a comfortable support. Is this more than we ought to do for him who hath died for us, and who upholdeth all things by the word of his power? Is a day's labor too much for the poor man to give to him "who, though he was rich, yet for our sakes became poor that we through his poverty might be made rich"?

Brethren, we have been playing with the commission and bragging about our numbers long enough. We have been slumbering while the heathen were perishing. It is high time that we awake out of sleep and begin to witness for Christ unto the uttermost parts of the earth. When a laying hen, set apart for mission purposes, will make a larger contribution to missions than a whole church, the very cackling of the hens around our homes ought to arouse us to a sense of our obligations to the heathen. Paul, in writing to the Romans, said, "I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the barbarians, both to the wise and to the unwise. So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you that are at Rome also." What made him a debtor to these people whom he had never seen? God had given him the gospel in trust for others. He had been put in possession of it as one of the heirs of everlasting life, and it was his business to see that all the other heirs should be notified of their heavenly inheritance. The testator had died and left his will with Paul as one of his executors, and until all the heirs were informed of their interest in their brother's estate, he had failed to discharge his obligation to them, and hence he was, as every one who has received eternal life, debtor to all who have never heard of Christ.

This debt is a personal obligation resting upon every Christian. Shall we discharge it, brethren? If so, we must do it quickly, not at all, for those whom we owe are rapidly passing away, and we too will soon have to give an account of the trust committed to us.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Any reader of current literature can but notice that there is a mighty stir among our churches, pastors, and young church members, to find some means of better cultivating and developing the young who are under our influence, and especially those who are members of our churches. There is such crying need for attention to this particular thing that many of our best churches and pastors are strongly inclined to encourage the organization of our young people into societies of some kind under the direct control and oversight of the churches. The organization of the B. Y. P. U. has spread like wild-fire in the more northern and western States of our Union, and there is a manifest tendency among our Southern churches to follow suit; indeed there are already several State organizations of the B. Y. P. U. The Southern Baptist Convention has expressed itself favorably as to the organization of these societies, provided they are under the direct control of the churches, and confine their organic affiliations to the limits of our Convention. The wide awake Secretary of our Sunday-school Board is preparing to issue a paper adapted to the needs of such societies, and the indications are that their organization may become pretty general in the bounds of the Convention.

Some of our best pastors and churches are opposed to the organization of any societies, either in or outside of our churches, with the object of helping on in church work, and in the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom. There are others, well qualified to judge, who are quite enthusiastic for such organizations, and are ready to multiply their number, and, as a rule, to rush into almost any new claimant for denominational or undenominational favor. Our readers will bear in mind that the RECORDER has endeavored to pursue a conservative course; and, while not opposed to all organization of societies in our churches, we are opposed to their hasty and needless multiplication; especially those that cripple the working force of the churches, and possibly divert their funds into channels not under church control. A sense of justice compels us to say, however, that when societies are under direct church control, they are not to be feared as some of the good brethren seem to fear them. The Sunday school with its work and organization differs little from any other church society, and our most cautious pastors and churches are fully committed to this great movement. Ladies missionary and sunbeam societies are now organized in many of our churches, and they are generally admitted to be helpers in church work. If these societies are helpful, may there not be room for a few more?

We have watched this Baptist Young Peoples' Union movement with some interest, and we are inclined to favor the organization, under proper limitations, such, for instance, as those laid down by our Convention. Whether it is best to have State and interstate affiliations is a question on which our people and our societies, if organized, may differ; and such will be settled by experience and observation. Certainly there would be no risk to run in testing their efficiency in local churches and in State organizations.

One strong reason why there seems to be a necessity for such organizations is, that many of our young church members are lamentably deficient in information about Baptist history, polity, and Baptist doctrine. Any organization that would make them stauncher and firmer in their faith will be a blessing to them. It is a well known fact that many of our young people, when placed in certain communities where Baptist sentiment does not prevail, drift into other churches, often because they are not real Baptists through principle or conviction. We have a history of which any people need not be ashamed, and it is time that our honored record as a people were known to more than the select few. We have a freedom of faith and practice, an individual and church liberty, with which our young people ought to be fully acquainted, in order that they may better appreciate them, and may thus be prevented from hasty union with organizations or creeds which curtail both the civil and religious liberty they have inherited from a sturdy Baptist ancestry.

Another reason for such organizations [illegible] our young people, especially among [illegible] church members, results from [illegible] that nearly all the leading denomi[illegible] of our day have them, and we can[illegible] to lag behind in the line of needed [illegible] attention to our young members, Sunday-school scholars, &c. There are also quite a number of Union organizations composed of young people of all denominations, and active participation in the work of such organizations will often lessen the zeal of the young convert for his own church and her work. It is rather a measure of self-defense among us, then, and we can often study with profit the Saviour's words, "Be ye as wise as serpents, and as harmless as doves." It would be well, then, we think, for our pastors to interest themselves especially, and at once, in their young members, and get them to work; give them something to do, and if some kind of organization is needed to accomplish such desirable results, we see no special danger in it.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Some one has said the "prayer meeting is the pulse of the church," and if this is so, surely some of our churches sadly need doctoring. How often is it the case that even large city churches, numbering from five hundred to a thousand in membership, make rather a poor showing at the prayer meeting. We once "dropped in" at a regular weekly prayer meeting of a large city church, and out of a membership of about one thousand not more than seventy-five or eighty were present. Where were the nine hundred and twenty on that night? Echo answers where? but God knows. Did that great host need no prayer? If the Master had come that night to reckon with them, could they have met him with a bright face and a clear conscience? They can answer better than we; but we must say that those who habitually absent themselves from the prayer meeting rob their souls of a great deal of joy, and have rather a poor way of encouraging the pastor in his work, and of letting their light shine before the world.

Not long after the above mentioned experience, we were at another city church, much smaller and poorer than the one just mentioned, and there were something like two hundred people at the ordinary prayer meeting. Who can explain this difference? Perhaps the best explanation can be found in the Saviour's words when he addressed the poor church at Smyrna, "I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty; but thou art rich;" and his words when he spoke to the rich church at Laodicea, "Thou sayest I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....The Baptist Historical Society met last week in Augusta, Ga.

....Many good things have been crowded out of this issue; but they will keep.

....The Methodist Conference met in annual session in Wilmington on Wednesday, the 6th inst.

....An account of the proceedings of the Convention on Monday and Tuesday will appear in our next issue.

....The Convention over, let us commence now and get a "flying start" for the year that lies before us.

....Many church members are like much of the tobacco sold on the market, only fillers. But we need fillers. They have their place.

....Gen. Thos. J. Morgan and Rev. Dr. E. T. Hiscox, while in the city on business pertaining to Shaw University, called to see us.

....Remember that if the pastors and missionaries have sown unto you spiritual things, it is to be expected that they shall reap your carnal things.

....The Mt. Zion Union Meeting will be held with the First church in Durham, beginning on Friday before the fifth month in December, 1893.—W. C. Tyree.

....We stated some weeks ago that Rev. J. L. Sproles of Shelby was going to Tennessee. We are glad to say this is a mistake. Bro. Sproles is still with the Shelby people.

....Rev. Mr. Newton of Wake Forest preached morning and evening at the First Baptist church, Raleigh, last Sunday. Rev. Dr. T. E. Skinner conducted services at the Tabernacle.

....Rev. Herbert Williams preached his first sermon as pastor of the Roxboro church last Sunday. Bro. Williams has also accepted the pastoral care of the churches at Clements and Virgilina.

....We begin in this issue the first of a series of eight articles on the Life and Letters of Paul, by Prof. W. L. Poteat. Judging from those we have on hand, the entire series will be very profitable reading.

....The new house of worship of the Fayetteville Street Baptist church, Raleigh, approaches completion. The seats are now being placed in position, and the house will in the near future be ready for occupancy. The Lord has greatly blessed the efforts of this band of brethren. Nearly all of their membership has been gathered by conversions in their own meetings, and they have more than a hundred on their list of members. Bro. O. L. Stringfield has accepted a call to the pastorate of the church commencing Jan. 1st, 1894.

....The next session of the Mecklenburg and Cabarrus Association will be held with the church at Arlington. Introductory sermon by Rev. I. W. Thomasson.—D. M. Austin.

....Our office was brightened by the pleasant faces of brethren C. A. G. Thomas, W. R Bradshaw, C. W. Blanchard, C. J. Thompson, and T. M. Honeycutt, who were delayed in Raleigh on their way to the Convention. They were all in good spirits and very encouraging.

....Prof. Chas. F. Meserve, President of Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas, will be chosen to succeed Dr. Tupper at Shaw University on the 20th inst. Prof. Meserve is a young man, in the full vigor of life, not over forty-five years of age, is a graduate of Colby University, Maine, and comes highly recommended.

....The First Baptist Sunday-school of Raleigh, on Sunday morning last, chose its officers for the year 1894. With few changes the present officers were selected. Bro. S. W. Brewer proves himself to be a very efficient Superintendent, and this is his second annual election to that position. The school succeeds well under his care.

....Let us make this a record breaking month in our contributions to missions. A little effort on the part of our leaders in churches and Sunday-schools will accomplish a glorious result. Don't put it off; time is flying, and $40,000 is needed before the year passes. Let us make the memory of this month glorious.

....Rev. T. M. Honeycutt of Mars Hill, N. C., writes under date of Dec. 4th: "Last night closed, at Mars Hill, one of the best meetings in the history of this church. Twenty-three were baptized during the meeting and about thirty more were approved for baptism. There were seventy-five additions to the church. I was aided the first week by Rev T. C. King of Burnsville, N. C. The ministers of the village also rendered valuable service. God bless the RECORDER."

....Dr. T. T. Eaton recently closed a most successful meeting in Walnut Street Church, Louisville, Ky., of which he is pastor. He preached four weeks, and his subjects were: Sin, Guilt, Repentance, Faith, Salvation, Immortality, Inspiration, Divinity of Christ, Atonement, Conversion, Excuses, Neglect, Eternally Lost, Assurance, Heaven, God, Man, Grace, Sanctification, and Day of Judgment. All the converts except two were men. These were grown women. It is the great doctrines of the Bible which God uses to save thoughtful men.

....We have on hand death notices of the following persons, which are crowded out of this issue, viz: Of Sister Rachel C. Wells, who died Dec. 3d, 1893; of Sister Clarissa Sloan Bourden, who died Nov. 24th, 1893; of the son of Bro. C. E. Wilson and wife, who died Dec. 7th, 1893; of Deacon John W. Perry, who died Oct. 13th, 1893; of Mrs. Martha Ann Austin, who died Nov. 14th, 1893; of Sister Mollie Gentry, who died in East Bend, Yadkin county; of Edgar Wilson, who died Sept. 26th, 1893; and of verses to the memory of Joseph M. Ellis, who died Nov. 26th, 1893. We will insert these obituaries in our next issue.

BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION.

THURSDAY NIGHT.

The "Convention Special" left Raleigh Thursday with a good-humored crowd of representative North Carolina Baptists from that city and the western part of the State, to whose number many pleasant additions were made on the way. Barring the general tenor of liveliness, for which travelling Baptists are notorious, especially when brethren Durham, Cobb, Mills, Mitchell, Taylor and Van Deventer are in the company, the trip was devoid of remarkable incident.

Arriving at Elizabeth City we found the depot thronged with Baptists, whose only effort seemed to be to make all visitors feel at home. The doors of Elizabeth City were literally thrown open to us.

The appointee being absent, Dr. J. W. Carter, alternate, delivered the sermon introductory to the Convention, from Revelations 1: 13, "And in the midst of the seven candlesticks One like unto the Son of Man;" the subject being, "Christ in the church." Dr. Carter said the seven candlesticks represented the seven churches of Asia, and that John saw Christ among them reflecting an eternal light that was to dispel the darkness of the world in the centuries that followed. This was the last time Christ was seen on earth, and the preacher attached especial significance to the fact that in the vision he was among his churches. So he is to-day, so must he always be, if his kingdom on earth is to be accomplished. The subject was treated under three sub-heads, viz: Christ's presence in the church, the hope of glory; the assurance of perpetuity; and a power that would not be overcome by the Prince of Darkness, and before which all mankind must bow in life or death; if in the former, it is a victory of love; if in the latter, of condemnation. The sermon was listened to with remarkable interest by the audience of six hundred that had assembled. The sermon was regarded on all sides as peculiarly appropriate to the Convention.

The services were participated in by an excellent choir. Dr. Marsh, Dr. J. J. Hall and Rev. R. Van Deventer were on the platform and took part in the exercises.

At the close of the services Dr. Marsh announced that a motion to go into organization was in order.

On motion of Dr. Pritchard, Dr. Marsh was for the third consecutive time elected President of the Convention, which honor he acknowledged in feeling terms.

On motion, a nominating committee was appointed to name the other officers of the Convention for the present session. The following were nominated and elected viva voce: First, second and third Vice-Presidents, Dr. J. W. Carter, E. F. Aydlett and Rev. R. T. Vann; Secretaries, Dr. N. B. Cobb and N. B. Broughton; Cor. Secretary, Dr. C. Durham; Auditor, W. N. Jones; Treasurer, J. D. Boushall.

At this point Dr. C. S. Blackwell, the well beloved pastor, came forward, and in behalf of the church and the city invited the Convention to their hearts and homes. His remarks, excellently interspersed with humor, were indeed an inspiration to the visitors, and at his conclusion we could not but feel "at home."

Rev. W. C. Tyree was very happy in his response to Dr. Blackwell's generous welcome, and no doubt voiced the sentiment of those whom he represented. It is rather remarkable that the address of welcome and the response thereto were delivered by brethren who have been in the State but a few years, but they proved well worthy of the honor and the responsibility reposed in them. May our adopted sons ever be as able and worthy.

After a report on order of business, read by Prof. Hobgood, the body adjourned to meet Friday at 9:00 a. m.

FRIDAY MORNING.

After appropriate devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards, the Convention proceeded with miscellaneous business.

On motion of Bro. N. B Broughton, a committee was appointed to consider the expediency of appointing a separate Board to conduct colportage and Sunday-school work. Carried.

The report of State Missions and Sunday-school Board was the special order of this hour. Dr. Durham read a very encouraging report, saying that in the past eleven months, during which collections have been more difficult than in the memory of this generation, we had raised more for State Missions than ever before in the same length of time in the history of the denomination. Some valuable historical statistics were brought out. In 1775 there was one Baptist in the State to every one hundred in general population; in 1835, one in twelve; in 1890, one in five; in 1893, one to every three inhabitants over ten years of age. This remarkable increase, which has indeed made North Carolina pre-eminently a Baptist State, is largely due to the work of the Board under God. As the report is published in pamphlet form it is unnecessary to quote it further. State Missions was made a special order for to-night, when the committee reports.

Next in order came the report on Ministerial Education, read by the retiring agent of the Board, Rev. W. R. Gwaltney. Bro. Gwaltney stated that in spite of the hard times Baptists had been more liberal to the Board this year than ever before, and the debt was largely due to an increase of necessary expenses, the College having this year required all students to pay library fees, room rent, &c.

It is to be regretted that Bro. Gwaltney retires from a post in which he has been so successful and useful, but he feels that more of his time must be given to his pastorate.

Prof. Poteat also addressed the Convention on this subject, and made a very practical and earnest appeal that the means be speedily raised to support the thirty-one young men now on the Board, and to pay the debt. That this is one of our worthiest and most essential objects there can be no doubt, and it should not be allowed to lag.

At this point, Dr. W. H. Whitsitt of the Louisville Seminary was recognized, and addressed the body on the subject of ministerial education at the Seminary. Dr. Whitsitt, as usual, was pointed and practical in his remarks, and won the hearts of his hearers. We have now thirteen young men from North Carolina at the Seminary, and, as the speaker said, we should see to it that they are not supported or aided by other States' contributions. He asked for voluntary pledges for $600 to "carry our boys through till June next," and succeeded in a very short time in securing $500. This was the first collection that had been taken this session, and the liberality with which many pledged themselves was indeed a credit to the State. Dr. Whitsitt's remarks were greatly enjoyed throughout.

After routine business of minor importance, the Convention adjourned until 2:00 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

In the afternoon session the Orphanage was the special order. Dr. Pritchard made a few well-timed and stirring remarks. Bro. Mills, in his own practical style, told of what the orphans needed and what was not needed.

We were gratified to learn that the Orphanage is now in a better condition than in some time, as regards equipment, provisions and health. But room is sadly needed for many more orphans who apply almost daily. Bro. Mills' remarks stirred the Convention, and after further addresses on the subject by Rev. R. T. Vann, Dr. J. J. Hall and B. Craig, a good collection was taken.

Next in order was the report on periodicals, read by Dr. J. L. Carroll, in which the BIBLICAL RECORDER, Foreign Mission Journal, Charity and Children, and the Wake Forest Student, were especially commended. The time being short, only two speakers were heard, though others expressed a desire to speak. Dr. J. L. Carroll made a twenty five minute address on the RECORDER, which Dr. Hufham (and we think the Convention agreed with him) said was the best speech on periodicals he had ever heard. Rev. M. P. Matheny also spoke on the RECORDER, and urged the brethren not only to subscribe for it, and to spread it among their churches, but to write for it. His remarks, though limited, were well taken.

By special appointment, Dr. C. C. Bitting of the Tract and Bible Department of the American Baptist Publication Society, addressed the Convention. His hearers were persuaded long before the conclusion of the address that Dr. Bitting was presenting only the claims of Christ. That his remarks were highly appreciated was attested by the rapt attention of the audience for more than an hour.

At this point it was announced that Rev. T. M. Honeycutt, formerly of the Western Convention, had brought requests from three of the western Associations for membership in the Eastern Convention. These Associations were the Mitchell, the Yancey, and the French Broad. They were heartily received. It is said they are forerunners of union.

Convention adjourned.

NIGHT SESSION.

At 7 p. m. the report of the committee on State Missions was read by Rev. J. K. Fant. The report advised, in view of the present debt and deficit, that our collections next year be made on a basis of $8 000, and that the aggregate salary of each missionary be not more than $600 per year. This report brought forth the most interesting, instructive, spirited, and withal, good-humored discussions of the Convention.

After Brother Fant had concluded his remarks, Dr. J. W. Carter, Rev. M P. Matheny, Rev. C. F. McConnell, Drs. C. S. Blackwell, C. Durham, R R Overby, J. L. Carroll, Rev. B Cade, Rev. J. B. Boone and Hon. J. C. Scarborough made excellent addresses.

This was the first time that Bro. McConnell had spoken to the Convention, and though his remarks were all too short, he won the Convention to him. He is indeed admirably fitted for his position, and we are sure no better successor to Dr. Jones could have been found.

The report was amended so as not to limit our contributions or aims, but rather to encourage broader hopes and greater zeal.

There were in attendance to-night about one thousand persons, who justified the foresight of the Elizabeth City saints in building their convenient annex.

SATURDAY MORNING.

Bro. Cade, for committee, nominated the Ministers' Relief Board for next year. Adopted.

Bro. J. B. Harrell, for committee, nominated the Board of Education. Adopted.

Dr. Durham offered a resolution that the Convention express its opinion that our interests can best be served by a union of the Home Field and Foreign Mission Journal in one strong monthly. Carried.

By special order, the report of the Board of Trustees of Wake Forest College was read by Dr. Taylor.

A resolution in regard to State and denominational education was offered by Dr. Hufham, which approves that a committee be instructed to memorialize the next Legislature to take steps to remove the present friction between the University and the colleges.

Dr. Cobb offered a counter-resolution.

Splendid addresses were made by Rev. A. M. Simms, Dr. Hufham, R. T. Vann, Dr. Hume, Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, and others. Dr. Hufham's resolution was carried.

Dr. R J. Willingham addressed the Womans' Missionary Society this morning. He is making a very favorable impression on the Convention.

So far not even a shadow of discord has darkened the spiritual sight that seems so prevalent here. Elizabeth City is taking care of her visitors in a manner that elicits the admiration of all. Though not so large as usual in the number of delegates present, the Convention promises to be not only one of the most harmonious, but also one of the most spiritual that has assembled in many years.

PLACE OF NEXT ANNUAL SESSION.

Charlotte, N. C., was selected as the next place of meeting.

SUNDAY AT THE CHURCHES.

The following services were held on Sunday:

Baptist church—morning, sermon by Rev. C. F. McConnell of Atlanta; night, addresses on missions by Dr. Willingham and Rev. R. T. Bryan.

Methodist church—morning, Dr. T. H. Pritchard; night, Dr. J. L. Carroll.

Presbyterian church—morning, Dr. Thos. Hume; night, Rev. W. C. Tyree.

[The remainder of the proceedings of the Convention will be given next week.]

Resolutions of the Randleman Baptist Church.

WHEREAS, Our beloved pastor, Rev. G. M. Webb, has tendered his resignation as pastor of this church, and the same has been accepted upon his earnest request; and whereas, he contemplates going to another field of labor in the Master's cause;—

Resolved, That we give him up with regret, and that he goes from us possessing our full confidence as a man of a noble Christian spirit, and a gospel minister who is as unchangeable as adamant in the fundamental principles of our faith. He is a good preacher and a good man, and we most cordially recommend him to the brethren wherever he may be called, praying that God's blessings may attend him through all coming years. J. H. WILSON, C. C.

Randleman, Nov. 24, 1893.

CONVENTION NOTES.

We were very glad to see Bro. Corbett of Boykins at the Convention.

"The first book ever printed with movable type was a Bible."—Dr. Bitting.

"The report of the Board of Missions and Sunday schools is the best we ever had."—Dr. Hufham.

"There is no State in the Union good enough or old enough to be without State Missions."—Dr. J. W. Carter.

Bro. Bryan pledged the Shanghai (China) Baptist church to give $25.00 for ministerial education at the Seminary.

We are happy to find that Dr. Overby's health has been completely restored, and that he feels better than he has in ten years.

"The best district I know for producing strong, thorough, manly and useful men lies between the Potomac and Charleston."—Dr. Whitsitt.

"One Christless preacher can do more harm than ten Ingersolls; one faithless deacon is more dangerous than a Tom Paine."—Dr. J. W. Carter.

"I believe the BIBLICAL RECORDER must have 20,000 subscribers before the objects of this Convention can be thoroughly prosecuted."—J. H. Mills.

One of the pleasing incidents of the Convention was Dr. Hufham's happy introduction of the venerable Col. Creecy of the Economist-Falcon, as a "dry Baptist." We are sure he was warmly received.

By request of the Convention, the RECORDER will publish Dr. Carter's able introductory sermon on "Christ in the Church," in an early issue. The Doctor never says anything that is not worth repeating.

It seems to be the unanimous opinion of all visitors that Elizabeth City, the Water City, the Sound City, is a most fortunate selection for a Baptist Convention City. May it ever be our fortune to meet among such people.

Our preachers who have died since the last Convention are: Dr. Wm. Royall, Revs. E. Johnson, J. Layton, J. W. Smith, Jno. R. Maynard, F. H. Ivey, Isaac Smith, D. J. McKoy, J. P. Mason, R. D. Harper, R. R. Day, G. P. Moore, Benj. Lanier, J. B. Barlow, O. Churchill, Dr. H. M. Tupper. "To die is gain."

Among the more distinguished visiting brethren at the Convention were Dr. R. J. Willingham, who, by the way, is a power as Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board; Dr. C. C. Bitting, Hon. G. W. Sanderlin, Dr. A. E. Dickinson of the Religious Herald, who helps matters greatly, and Rev. C. F. McConnell of Atlanta.

Dr. Carroll's Sermon.

Bro. Bailey:—Dr. Carroll's sermon on Rom. 8: 28, which appeared in a recent issue of the RECORDER, was full of good doctrine and Christian comfort. The doctrines of election, predestination, effectual calling, and final perseverance,—doctrines out of which comes largely the great doctrine Dr. Carroll so ably treated, and without which the latter could not be proved true, are seldom presented in many quarters of our Baptist Zion. They are looked upon as belonging to a worn-out theology of the dead past. I crave long life for such solid preachers as Dr. Carroll has shown himself to be in that sermon.

Not long since, I was asked by a member of a Baptist church to preach a sermon against election! The member had probably never heard a sermon from a Baptist preacher in which the doctrine was approvingly mentioned or referred to. Our membership are suffering for want of good doctrinal preaching. About all that many hear concerning the doctrines of grace, are miserably wicked caricatures of them from the enemies of the Baptists.

Another word. The best religious editorial I have seen in a long time was the RECORDER'S leader on public collections a week or two ago.

From Biltmore, N. C.

Dear Recorder:—I am pleasantly located here in my mountain home, and am among splendid people; consequently I enjoy my work very much.

We are now in the midst of a glorious revival. I have no ministerial help, but the brethren and sisters have a mind to work, and the Holy Spirit is with us. So far, there have been thirty or forty professions of faith and twenty additions to the church. The meeting continues with unabated interest.

Our new church was dedicated on the third Sunday in November. Rev. D. B. Nelson, a former pastor, preached the sermon, which was a fine production and admirably suited to the occasion. He is much loved by the people here, and it was a joy to us all to have him among us.

It is quite a joy to me to get the RECORDER each week. I don't see how I could get on without it. May God bless you, brother, and spare you many years yet to edit it for the Baptists of North Carolina.

Yours in Christ, G. L. FINCH.

Our Seminary Letter.

Dear Recorder:—The work of the session has gone quietly and steadily on since it began. We had one sad interruption it is true, in the death of one of our number who was universally loved and esteemed. I refer to death of Brother C. B. Lloyd of Alabama. His disease, however, was of such a nature that his death, sad as it was, was not unexpected to those who understood the situation. It was not due to any local cause. Death is always a sad thing to think about and we all have more or less a natural aversion to it. And doubly sad is it when the victim is such a one as the one to whom reference has just been made. Our brother had not without many struggles been able to complete his course at Howard College, and had just entered upon his second years work at the Seminary. His disease took a sudden turn for the worse and in a short while ended his noble life. Although he was cut off just at the time when it seems to us he was ready to be most useful to his Master and to his fellowmen, yet I cannot think his life was a failure. We do not know how to explain such occurrences in God's providence. We dare not try to do it. The best that we can do is to trust God, believing that it will all be right in the end.

The work at the various Baptist churches in the city, seems to be moving on well. The Twenty-second and Walnut St. Baptist is, however, without a pastor at present. This church is situated in an important section of the city and offers a fine field for usefulness. I hope that they may soon find the right man. Three of the churches have held revival meetings recently, in each of which it is hoped that much good was accomplished. There is a meeting now in progress at the Broadway Baptist church, of which Dr. W. L. Pickard is pastor. Dr. Thomas of Danville, Va., is helping him in the meeting.

Dr. J. B. Gambrell, President of Mercer University, took supper with us in New York Hall on last Monday night. He lectured the same evening in Norton Hall to the students on the subject, "Common sense in the ministry." He told us a good many things about which a minister ought to use common sense, and among other things he mentioned in this connection, the matter of selecting a wife, of dealing with men, and that of preaching. It was a splendid address and one full of valuable suggestions to young ministers.

On Thursday the Baptists of the city held union Thanksgiving services at McFerran Memorial church of which Rev. Carter Helm Jones is the gifted and popular pastor. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity. The students of the Seminary sat in a body and led the music under the direction of Prof. Stapleford, our instructor in music. The invocation was made by Bro. L. W. Young, pastor of Portland Ave. Baptist church, after which Dr. Eaton read passages of Scripture appropriate to the occasion. Dr. Pickard was the first speaker. His subject was "Thanksgiving as a Citizen." As might be expected of anything that comes from him, his speech was good. Dr. J. T. Christian, pastor of East Baptist church, spoke next on "Thanksgiving as a Christian." This is one instance in which name and nature happily meet. The third and last speaker of the morning was Dr. Jno. A. Broadus, President of our Seminary. In introducing him to the congregation Bro. Jones referred to him as the Nestor of American Baptists. His subject was "Thanksgiving as a Baptist." He gave five reasons why we as Baptists had reason to be thankful. First, our theory in the interpretation of Scripture; second, our independent church government; third, our success in reaching the masses of the people; fourth, our progress in the matter of general and theological education; fifth, the Baptists of Louisville ought to be thankful for the progress they have made here during the past few years. Attention was called to the fact that in the last twelve years the Baptists of Louisville have multiplied themselves three times over.

Yesterday being the 1st day of the month was the regular time for the meeting of our Missionary Society. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Broadus, in the absence of the Presiden, Dr. Dargan, who was prevented by sickness from being present. Missionary Day is always a welcome one to the students. It is given up wholly to the study of missions. After the reports from the various missions were read, Bro. Weston Brower, essayist, appointed for this meeting read a well written and very instructive essay on "Missionary Labors and Trials in Madagascar."

Wake Forest Letter.

Another student has come from Tennessee making the enrollment one hundred and eighty-one, an increase of seven over last year's enrollment of this date.

Our representatives in the Convention are President Taylor, Prof. Poteat, Dr. J. B. Powers and Mr. P. W. Johnson. Mrs. C. E. Brewer represented the Woman's Missionary Society in the meeting of the Societies at the Convention.

The Christmas holidays will begin the 23d inst. Preparations have already begun for the examinations to be held immediately after the holidays. The Sunday-school will have a cantata about Christmas. As I write, the sweet melody of the songs of the children practicing for it in the chapel, is borne to me and causes me to think that a rich treat is in store for us. Our Superintendent recently distributed quite a number of paper pyramids among the children to be returned with contributions for Home and Foreign Missions. The amount realized was $16.19.

The Charlotte Observer of the 7th inst. referring to the resolutions adopted by the Methodist Conference in Charlotte says editorially: "The cloud is not much larger than a man's hand, but a storm is brewing. A dark, funnel shaped cloud, with pink edges is pointing toward the colleges that receive State aid. A rumble as of thunder was heard in the Conference here Monday."

The spring term will open on January 15, 1894. We are expecting quite a number of new students then. The recent changes in our courses of study make it to the advantage of some students to enter then. For instance students ready to read Cæsar and begin Geometry can enter classes now, but if they wait till September they will find it rather difficult to do so.

Dr. Taylor's morning talks to the students are very helpful and interesting. On Tuesday morning he discussed briefly the life and labors of the late eminent scientist and scholar Tyndall. J. B. C.

From Scotland Neck.

Dear Recorder:—Our special meetings closed last Sunday night. They were out of the usual line, being held mainly for the benefit of our members. Nearly every sermon was directed specially to Christians. This plan was in the mind of Bro. Jenkens and of the pastor, too. And so, no meeting that has been held here since I came was so thoroughly enjoyable or so genuinely helpful to Christians as this. I never knew our church so uplifted in spiritual life. But, as thoughtful people would expect, the ungodly also were reached; they always are when Christians are reached. Seventeen were added to us by baptism and one by letter, seven of the former coming from other denominations.

The preaching of Bro. Jenkens was simple, persuasive, unpretentious, evangelical, graciously sweet and winning. I hope many of our churches will have him hold meetings for them along the lines followed here. This kind of work is greatly needed among our churches now, rather than that which looks mainly towards enlarging the membership.

God bless you in your difficult and perplexing work. Cordially, R. T. VANN.

From Burlington, N. C.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—During the last week, Bro. G. S. Dougherty of Newberry, S. C., has been with us in a series of meetings. Bro. Dougherty did all the preaching, and he did it well. The meeting has resulted in the accomplishment of much good for the cause of Christ. His methods are the best—he depends upon the faithful preaching of God's truth, and the influence of the Holy Spirit. He does not fail to see that the pastor is a pastor. The tie between the church here and her pastor is stronger as the result of his labors among us. Any pastor, desiring help in a meeting, could not do better than to secure the services of this faithful servant of God.

It will be remembered by some of your readers that, six years ago, Bro. Dougherty conducted a meeting here that resulted in organizing the church by himself and Bro. Durham. The church was organized with only thirteen members.

May the Lord be with this faithful servant of his, as he returns to his family and work. Fraternally,

JOHN C. HOCUTT.

P. S. Your printers made me say, in my last letter, that, since I have been here, our church has had about one hundred and fifty additions to her membership. It should have been—"one hundred and fifteen."

The Clinton Meetings.

We have within the last fortnight enjoyed a great gospel treat in Clinton. Rev. E. W. Oakes, who has recently come on a visit from Boston to our South land, has preached for us his most informing and inspiring sermons on the "Bride and the Lamb," or the duty of the church to prepare for the coming of her Lord. Our people have been held spell bound by the presentation of this lofty theme; church members have been strengthened and revived, and even non-church goers have flocked in and been blessed. Bro. Oaks' message is primarily to the church, and he does not resort to any questionable appeals to the emotional, only as the truth makes men free and enthuses them. In a most commendable degree he hides himself behind the cross of Christ. Holding the truth on broad lines he is singularly free from any tinge of modern liberalism or "higher criticism." His powerful presentation of the vicarious sacrifice, his truly great sermon on sanctification so clearly discriminating against all crafty ideas, and his thrilling sermons on the second coming of Christ also so discriminating against the grossly materialistic views of the modern Adventists and Premillenarians, ought to be heard in every town and hamlet in all our land. To hear this warm-hearted and consecrated Irish brother is to be highly instructed and edified, and to know him is to love him.

He was reared and educated for the law in Dublin. Emigrating to this country he was converted in New York, studied Theology at the Union Theological Seminary, and ordained as a Baptist minister in Dr. McArthur's church. He was Dr. Judson's assistant for a time, latterly pastor of the Bowdoin Square Baptist church in Boston, and more recently assistant evangelist in Dr. A. J. Gordon's church. He comes highly commended by his Northern brethren. His engagements with churches in this section already carry him well into the spring. We trust that he may be permitted to make many more engagements in our State. O. P. MEEKS

Year's Work Closed.

Dear Recorder:—To day and to-morrow will close my year's work. My churches have given me December as a month of rest and to make arrangements for the winter. I have never seen money so scarce, but the Lord knows best; and while we have not been blessed with an abundance of money, he has greatly blessed us spiritually and crowned our efforts with the greatest success. During the latter part of the summer and fall I held seven protracted meetings—three with my own churches, and four for other pastors. During the time I witnessed the conversion of 140 souls, and the baptism of 110 persons, of whom I baptized fifty two.

I am frequently asked if I can't be induced to change my field of work. A brother wrote me last week asking if a salary amounting to almost twice the sum I am now getting would not move me from my present field; but I am one that believes that the longer a preacher can stay with his people, the better it is for them and the cause. We must know each other, and work together, and the work will go on, and good results will follow. C. C. H.
Mount Airy, Dec. 2, 1893.

From Brother Stradley.

There are some church members who perhaps, have never been known to take hold of any Christian work with their church, and heartily help to push it forward. They will either object to the proposed work, or to the plan by which it is proposed to do it. So they excuse themselves from doing anything at all.

The Devil is never better pleased than when he can employ church members to foment and stir up discord and strife among their brethren. He loves to see churches crippled and Christians injured. He praises the persons who sell themselves to him to do this dirty work. If some church-members would work half as hard for God, in promoting peace and Christian work, as they do for the Devil in promoting discord and wrong, what noble Christian workers they would be!

If a true history of many church members were written, the most marked feature would be that they have done more harm than good in the church and in the world. How sad it is that so many people who have promised God to work for him will spend their time and talents working for the Devil. "The wages of sin is death."

Death of Sister M. L. Justice.

On the 11th of November, 1893, "the angel of God's perfect love,—the angel that men call death" entered the home of Bro. M. H. Justice, at Rutherfordton, N. C., and took therefrom Mrs. Margaret Leak Justice the loving wife, the affectionate mother, the faithful friend, the true Christian. She professed religion at the age of sixteen. Was married March, 1865, and joined the Rutherfordton Baptist church and was baptized by the late Elder T. B. Justice during the following summer.

Her life was one of the most beautiful exemplications of the spirit of true Christianity, and the power of divine grace that I have ever known. Her religion was a positive one. Her life was a living epistle, "read and known of all men." Her influence was always on the side of truth and righteousness, her sympathies with the weak against the strong, her care for and interest in the poor being manifest in deeds of kindness and helpful acts—such as would give practical relief. She was devoted to her church, not because it was her's, but because, to her, it represented her Saviour and in its growth and prosperity he was honored.

She had been in delicate health for several years and during all that time had suffered without murmuring or complaining, always manifesting a spirit of meek submission to God's will. During the last week of her life she suffered from an acute attack of pneumonia, but her mind was clear to the last.

As she called first her husband, and then her children, one by one, to her bedside, and gave them her dying admonitions and parting blessings, exhorting each one to live so as to meet her in heaven, one could but feel that for the time being, the chamber of death was the abode of angels, and saying "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his."

She had always been a strong advocate of the principles of temperance and during her last days emphasized very strongly her devotion thereto, pointing out the dangers and evils of the opposite and exhorting her family and friends to avoid the wine-cup as they would a poisonous serpent.

Her life has been lived, her message declared, her work done, her spirit impressed upon others, her death witnessing to the power of grace to sustain and keep the child of God. At the call of her Saviour she joyfully left a husband, five children, and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss while she went to rejoice over her eternal gain.

She rests from her labors and her works do follow her.

May God in his boundless goodness and mercy sanctify this sad bereavement to the good of all who survive her and comfort and sustain, and keep to everlasting life the bereaved husband and children, enabling each of them to finish their course with joy as she has her's. C. B. JUSTICE.

From Roanoke, Va.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—For two weeks I have thought of writing the RECORDER a few lines from my new home, but have been prevented from so doing by reason of a two-weeks' spell of malaria. I have not been able for this time to get out of my room, and most of the time have been confined to my bed. But I am improving at this time and expect to be out this week and occupy my pulpit Sunday. Mrs. B. and little Leonard have also been sick with colds, but they, too, are "on the mend." During all this time it is needless to say we have had the blues. Many times we have turned our eyes towards the Old North State, and we have thought of the dear, good friends at Winston. But there has never been more kindness shown by any people to a new pastor and his family than has been shown by the Calvary Baptists of Roanoke to us. We are charmed by their manner and overcome by their kindness. I have only preached for them twice since coming as their pastor. At both of these services we had large congregations.

Our new church building is gradually going on to completion. We are doing the sensible thing of paying as we go. The chairman of the building committee made a statement at last conference to the effect that we were two-thirds done and out of debt. When completed, we will have a very excellent house of worship, with lecture and committee rooms and pastor's study down stairs and auditorium up stairs. A novel feature to me, though nothing new in some places, is the open baptistery which we will have. In every respect the church building will be a model, and yet it is wonderful how cheap this work is being done. I have long since believed that it was all folly to spend so much money in building churches. I now know that it is possible to build a handsome and spacious church with comparatively little money.

We have also, since coming, organized a "Young People's Union," not, however, upon the plan marked out by the International Committee, but in accordance with the needs of our field. Our young people are very enthusiastic over it; and, like the organization we had at Broad Street, Winston, it proves to be a great success. They meet this week to take steps to start a church paper published by the Union.

THE GENERAL ASSOCIATION.

I had the pleasure of attending this body in its session at Roanoke. It is a fine body. Some things I liked better than in North Carolina and some things not so well. There seemed to be less form, or, I should say, less "cut and dried business," as some would call it. More time was given to the State talent and less to the "distinguished brethren from abroad." State Missions were more thoroughly discussed than ever I heard in North Carolina—the needs of the various fields or sections of the State by men actually engaged upon and laboring for the Board in those sections. This impressed me very much.

Bryan—our own Robert T.—made, in the judgment of all who heard him, the speech of the Convention. North Carolinians in Virginia felt proud of him. It was my pleasure to have him stop with me.

A compliment was done your correspondent by putting him on the Board of Trustees of the Baptist Orphanage, and also as one of its Executive Committee.

I want to say a word about the dear brethren and sisters at

BROAD STREET, WINSTON.

I learn that Bro. H. C. Moore has accepted a call there. I am glad. He is a good man and never in his life is going to find a better band of brethren and sisters to labor with him. Oh, how they will stick to their pastor! God bless them forever. They deserve a grand success. They will ever be dear to me.

Let me say that I want the RECORDER sent to me at Roanoke, and sent regularly. I love it as a companion. Don't fail me a single week.

With best wishes and a greeting to all the North Carolina brethren, I am

Facial Paralysis.

WILLIAMSBURG N. C., Sept. 5, 1893.

Dear Sirs:—In January last I was attacked with la grippe, after I partially recovered I had a stroke of facial paralysis. After trying all the remedies prescribed by the doctors without finding any relief, I saw your Electropoise advertised, and testimonials by the best men of the State of its merits. I was induced to try it. For five months I had been in this condition. I commenced the use of the Electropoise and after the third application of the instrument found myself improving and have continued to improve and now I suffer very little inconvenience. Can open and shut my eyes and talk most as well as ever, and believe that by a skillful use of the 'Poise I will be fully restored. I can cheerfully recommend the instrument to all who are afflicted.

Talks About Law—No. 19.

BY JUDGE R. W. WINSTON.

RAILROAD TICKETS.

At a late term of Iredell court, a young man sued the railroad company and claimed damages on this state of facts: He had bought a ticket from Charlotte to his home beyond Statesville. Before he reached Statesville, and at a station called Huntersville, he handed a note out of the car-window to a friend; but by accident dropped his ticket. The conductor had already punched the ticket and handed it back to the passenger. After leaving Statesville, the rule of the company required the conductor, who was the same man who came from Charlotte, to again call for tickets.

To the call for "tickets" the passenger said: "You punched my ticket, and by accident I dropped it out of the window at Huntersville." "Am sorry for you, my friend, but you must pay or get off. It is the rule of the company."

After further talk the conductor put the passenger off near Statesville. He sued and claimed that his father was sick; he was unjustly put off; he had paid his fare and ought not to be made to pay twice.

It was held that the passenger was the custodian of the ticket; that if another person found the ticket he could use it again, and that the young man could not recover. This case is now before the Supreme Court.

A conductor recently said to me that a rule of his company required extra pay when a ticket was not purchased. That a passenger, having no ticket, had refused to pay the extra charge; and the question was asked if the rule had been enforced, and the passenger put off, could he have recovered damages.

In other States it has been held that such a rule is reasonable, and that unless one buy a ticket, he must pay extra fare or get off. Of course the railroad company is compelled to do its duty by having a ticket office near by and open in time to get a ticket.

And in one State where a lady had been in the habit of paying on the cars and offered to do so again, and was evicted for failure to pay the extra charge, it was decided that she could recover damages.

Some years ago a conductor came along in one of our North Carolina railroad cars and called "tickets," one passenger had no ticket and had no money; but he said to the conductor, "Let me go in the next car, a friend has some of my money." But the conductor, in too great a hurry, put him off, and he recovered damages. Our court said that the passenger ought to have been allowed a reasonable time in which to get the money. So if one loses his ticket on the train he ought to be allowed reasonable time to find it again. When one is put off the cars, it must be at a depot or near a residence. In some States, it must be at the usual stopping place of the cars.

On the whole, it may be said that as railroads are held to a high degree of care and diligence in conveying passengers, so, on the other hand, they have the right to make and enforce reasonable rules and regulations for the government of the train; and these rules, when reasonable, the public must observe.

Among such regulations would, no doubt, be such as these: "This ticket is good for this day and trip only." Though perhaps the company might be made to refund the money if ticket is not used. So a ticket from Raleigh to Greensboro could not be used on a trip from Greensboro to Raleigh.

In a Missouri case the passenger said, "I will not give up my ticket till you provide me a seat," and the court said he was entitled to a seat. It is doubtful how a North Carolina court would hold.

With reference to the amount of damages in cases of unlawful expulsion from a train, this depends, as we have seen heretofore, upon whether the expulsion is in a rude, careless and insulting manner, or whether it is done in a kind way and with no excess of force. If the former, exemplary and heavy damages can be awarded. If the latter, only such damages as are the immediate result of the act.

Among the latter elements of damage might be, lost time, extra hotel bills, and the cost of transportation.

One could not recover speculative damages. For example, if a public lecturer were, on account of the negligence of a common carrier, unable to meet an engagement, he could not calculate that perhaps so many people would have come to hear him lecture at so much a head. Damages of this kind are conjectural, generally speaking.

But if the lecturer was under a contract to be paid so much for the night's lecture, perhaps the measure of damages would be the contract price, less his expenses; specially so if the railroad knew of the importance of making the exact connection.

We have all, no doubt, sued many a railroad in our mind and wrath, when fearing to miss an important engagement. Generally we take it out in talk, however.

Books as Christmas Gifts.

When we think of the innumerable "Christmas gifts" to be made within the next few days, we do sincerely hope that many, very many good books, silent, powerful gospel preachers, may be distributed among the people. The American Baptist Publication Society is ready to supply all demands for such books at exceedingly low prices. Ask your pastor for the Society's catalogue and make your selections.

From Ruffin.

Dear Recorder:—I have just closed up my work at Ruffin, having preached there for the past four years. I have had a somewhat new and novel experience in my work in this community. I had previously arranged a "campaign" of missions taking in the surrounding country. I had five appointments in the country round about Ruffin for two services at each place a day. In these meetings I was accompanied by quite a number of the church. We formed what might be called a small "salvation army." At all except one of these appointments we were greeted by reasonably good congregations, and the Spirit of the Lord was with us. There were six open professions of faith in this series of meetings while it is hoped good seed was sown for a future harvest. We found nineteen stray Baptists in this campaign to whom we gave the hand of fellowship, and bade them God speed in their Christian lives. In one locality sixteen of these brethren and sisters were found fully enough with which to organize a church. Our meeting at Ruffin began on Sunday after this week's campaign. Here I had the largest congregation I have preached to at Ruffin since the dedication of our new house of worship. Sunday night we had one profession and several others interested.

On Monday morning Bro. N. S. Jones of Salisbury came to my assistance. This was his third visit to Ruffin. He very greatly delighted the church by his earnest, faithful preaching of the Word. He showed marked growth in his preaching since his first visit, and in my judgment is one of the brightest young preachers in the State.

We closed up the work on yesterday (Thursday) with an all day service. We met at 10:30 o'clock and staid till sundown. This was a glorious day. We baptized four young people not far from the church in the presence of a large audience. The ordinance was very solemn and impressive. It was a lovely sight to behold these bright young people put on Christ in baptism, and when I came up from the water, I saw tears on many faces. We closed the service by administering the Lord's supper and a farewell shaking of hands. It was sad to me to leave this dear little band of earnest Christians. We began the work here four years ago with no organization and no house of our own. We now have fifty three members on the roll and in fellowship. Last April three years ago we organized with eight members. Since that time sixty-eight names have been entered upon the church record, two have died, seven have taken letters, and six have been excluded. We now have a church property worth $2,500. Our house of worship is one of the neatest and most convenient houses of worship in the State for its cost. Here is a good field for work. There are three or four churches in reach of Ruffin without pastors, and there ought to be a man planted in this field at once. We have an $800 debt on our house of worship, but I am arranging to pay this through a building and loan association by getting enough persons to give me one dollar a year for seven years. I can pay out in this way and pay the interest on the money. I want one hundred names on this roll. I propose to combine the debt at Walnut Cove and get 124 names at one dollar per year and I can pay out all I owe.

The cause at Ruffin is left in good shape, and needs an active, earnest man at once. May the Lord send to that territory some good, earnest preacher is my prayer.

Fraternally, S. F. CONRAD.

From Moravian Falls.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—I see in a late number of the RECORDER an invitation to the pastors to tell its readers what they are doing.

Soon after after my ordination, about a year-and-a-half ago, I came to Moravian Falls and entered upon the pastorate of the church, and also took charge of the school for one year. I was soon after called to the pastorate of the churches at Wilkesboro and Walnut Grove.

Moravian Falls is a modest but thrifty little village nestled lovingly among the fertile hills, lying between the Brushy mountains and the Yadkin river. It is noted throughout this section as the site of Moravian Falls Academy which enjoyed such a high degree of prosperity under our esteemed brother, Geo. W. Greene. It would indeed be hard to estimate the influence of this institution on the educational development of this and adjoining counties. To it Wilkes county is largely indebted for a class of public school teachers that stand well in the front rank of the teachers of the State. And as a citizen of the village, I gladly note the reassuring prospects of the school at present, under the superintendence of Professor Frank B. Hendren. He is a graduate of Wake Forest College, Class of '88, and has had three or four years' successful experience as a teacher. The school is under military discipline and is beginning to command pupils from abroad.

There are few neater or more comfortable houses of worship in this section of the State than the Baptist church at Moravian Falls. The church now has a membership of seventy, being an increase of twenty eight under my pastorate of little more than a year. While numerically small, it is one of the most active and liberal churches in the State. It gives more to the various objects of the State Convention than all the other churches of the Brushy Mountain Association. According to the statement of the Treasurer, it gave about six dollars more to the Baptist Orphanage last Thanksgiving day than any other church in the State. It has a splendidly organized Sunday school, of which Bro. R. A. Spainhour is the efficient superintendent. Services are held on each first Sunday and Sunday night and also on the fourth Sunday night. It has prayer-meeting on each Sunday night on which there is no preaching in the village. No less than ten or twelve of its members, mostly young men, lead in prayer or make talks in these prayer-meetings.

The church at North Wilkesboro is also a little band of noble workers. They have very recently completed a house of worship, which, in design, beauty and convenience, is second, among the churches of the county, only to the splendid Presbyterian church hard by. This they did at a cost of $1,600, and did not go outside of the county to beg the money. This church has among its membership a number of the leading citizens of this hustling little town, and, with God's blessings residing upon it, we predict for it a splendid career of usefulness and influence.

There is also an improvement in the church at Wilkesboro. They pay more to the pastor's salary, and its contributions generally are more liberal than they have hitherto been. Since the arrival of the railroad, the town has taken on new life, there has been a considerable influx of population, and the churches are beginning to acquire additional strength. Altogether my work in this field has been pleasant, and I feel that it has been adequately blessed of God. There are few more hopeful fields in the State than this. The country has splendid resources, new enterprises are constantly springing into existence, the people are becoming more and more progressive and public spirited, and immigration of a desirable class is growing more brisk.

Outline of a Sermon.

PREACHED BY REV. S. J. PORTER AT JUIZ DE FORA, BRAZIL, NOV. 5, 1893, BEING HIS FIRST SERMON IN THE PORTUGUESE TONGUE.

Text—Mark 2: 1-12.

Jesus said of himself, "I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep." And indeed he is the good shepherd, and did finally give his life for the sheep. Jesus loves his sheep, and during his stay in the world went many times to the same place to find the sheep that were lost. In this scripture we read that he went again into Capernaum and began to preach to the people. While he was preaching, an interesting incident occurred—four men came to the house where he was and brought with them a man sick of the palsy. Let us notice

1. That this man was sick and paralyzed, and if his friends had left him alone, sooner or later, he must have died of this malady. There was no remedy for his sickness, and unless his friends had aided him, Jesus would hardly have seen him, and most probably would not have cured him. All persons are naturally paralyzed by sin, and there is no remedy for them away from Jesus. They have no strength to save themselves, and they have not the power to check the fatal disease which preys upon their spiritual nature. In fact this spiritual sickness terminates in eternal death.

2. It required four men to bring the sick man to Jesus in order that he might be cured. "Borne of four," says the word of God. Few souls are brought to Jesus by one person only. The prayers of a pious mother or father, the influence of a believing brother or a loving sister, the counsels of a zealous pastor, the entreaties of true friends, and many other such efforts often precede the conversion of a soul. God always honors human instrumentality. My brethren, have you ever brought an afflicted soul to Jesus, the Great Physician? Let each of us attempt to do something in this respect for the honor of God and the good of men.

3. Here we have an example of rewarded zeal. When those who carried the sick man approached the house where Jesus was, they found their way obstructed by the great multitude that was pressing about the door. Through the great throng it was impossible for them to pass to the Saviour with their precious burden, and had they not had great love for the poor, helpless man, they would have turned away in despair. But no, they would not and did not give up so easily. Their burning zeal was not so soon to be chilled. The poor sufferer must be laid at the Master's feet. Not finding a way, they made one by opening the roof over the place where Jesus was standing, and then they let down right at Jesus' feet the bed on which the sick man lay. What zeal! What faith! Christians, here is an example for you to follow. Your friends, your neighbors, and your countrymen are in great need of salvation. Make haste and bring them to Jesus, and your zeal will be amply rewarded.

4. Notice again, that the sick man by coming to Jesus received a double blessing. He received the pardon of his sins, which is the first and most important thing. The cure of the soul is by far more necessary than the cure of the body, and therefore Jesus gave attention to this first. It is this which ought to occupy the uppermost place in the hearts and minds of men. What shall it profit a man if he gain everything in the world—health, riches and honor—and in the end lose his own immortal soul? But Jesus not only pardoned the paralytic, but cured him also. Observe that Jesus performed the most important deed first. The pardon preceded the cure. Thus Jesus fulfilled in order the Scripture where David, speaking of his Lord, said: "Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases." Jesus alone can cure us perfectly, and it is only he who can pardon us perfectly. My friends, if you desire the pardon of your sins, do not go to a Catholic priest, nor to any other man in this world, but come, come directly to Jesus Christ, the one and only Saviour of men. It is he who can wash all sins from our hearts, who will wipe all tears from our eyes, and take away from among us all death and sorrow and pain.

5. This cure brought glory to God. All who beheld it were greatly astonished at the wonderful display of God's power in their midst, and this astonishment resulted in their glorifying and worshipping God. Let us give all glory and praise to God for the many things which he does for us. Let us not bow down to a man, nor worship any lifeless image which man may make, but let us adore with the whole heart the Lord God who made us and who is able and willing to save us with an everlasting salvation.

Yeopim Union Meeting.

The Yeopim Union expects to meet with the church in Hertford, N. C., Friday, Dec. 29th, 1893, Rev. J. E. White to preach the introductory sermon, Rev. C. J. Woodson alternate; Rev. W. B. Waff the missionary sermon, Rev. A. W. Burfoot alternate.

SUBJECTS FOR DISCUSSION.

1. Are not our churches too lax in their discipline, and ought not church members be disciplined for negative offences? To lead, brethren A. A. Parish and Josiah Elliott.

2. China as a mission field for Baptists, and how can our work there be enlarged? J. H. Parker and W. B. Waff.

3. What can Christians do to save young people from going to ruin?

DOMESTICATING THE BRETHREN—TITLES TO GREENVILLE FEMALE COLLEGE AND FURMAN UNIVERSITY—STARTLING REVELATIONS—THE PROGRESSIVES—ANDERSON CONVENTION, &C.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Since my last to you we have made considerable progress, and there is now every evidence of our getting down to bed rock bottom. A good brother has looked into the title of our Greenville Female College, which for years has been considered the property of the Baptist State Convention, but from the reading of the original document which has been published, and from the opinion of lawyers, it now appears that they have forfeited their right to it because they failed to keep up a mixed school, and established thereon instead a female college. To be sure legal steps were taken, when the college was established, so as to provide for the change, but it is likely that these will be overruled by the courts, and we shall give up our splendid plant and start de novo, or else we shall be forced to open the college to men and have a mixed thing of it. The former would make short work of consolidation, as we should have nothing to consolidate.

Another startling revelation seems likely to be made which will, in all probability, wipe out the right of the Baptists to the present excellent buildings and grounds of the Furman University. It is said that this property was given the Baptists with the understanding that there was to be kept up for all time a male school, university or college, but that contrary to this provision the present faculty opened the school to women, thereby forfeiting not only the title to the property, but violating the charter as well. The title will soon be examined by one or more preachers, and then submitted to legal lights for their wise opinions. If the courts decide against us, then consolidation, and the whole business of Baptist education, so far as the work of our Convention is concerned, will be at an end. But should the courts maintain that it was right and proper to make a mixed school out of our University, there are some who gave to the endowment who contend that they did not make their contributions to a mixed school, but to a university for the higher education of young men. This, of course, would have to be passed upon by the lawyers, and they might decide to take away the endowment from us. You see, then, that we are agitating and agitating. Some are alarmed, but others are very quiet, and say complacently if we lose the whole business it will matter but little, as it will furnish an admirable opportunity for us to start out right. As it is, our fathers have gotten us into a muddle. Poor old men, they little dreamed that they were to be the fathers of such a generation of "progressives." In all of this stir our women are as quiet as you please. The men are making all the noise. Really, from present indications, it is difficult for the most vivid imagination to forecast what lies before us in the near future. One old time Carolina Baptist who fought and bled and died for the lost cause says that he believes that a few Yankee sprouts are going to overturn the entire civilization of our people, and make South Carolina a veritable Yankeeized concern. But he is too conservative and full of prejudice. We have a few good brethren from the North in the State, and I know that I voice the entire sentiment of the brotherhood when I say that they know far more than we do, and the wise thing for us to do is to put them in the lead and keep them there. Many brethren have adopted their ideas, and even pronounce words as they do, and use the Yankee nasal twang in talking just as they do.

JOURNALISM.

I told you in my last that we always did just what the Courier told us to do. For this I have been roundly and soundly abused. And now, for the first time in my life, I have heard it intimated that some brethren do actually dissent from the Courier, and that they assert that they are going to do as they please in spite of the organ of the Baptists of the State of South Carolina. Of course, I think that this is all wrong, and that every man of us ought to do just what the Courier says. I do not see what use we have for an organ if we do not obey it. I know that the Baptists in North Carolina always have minded the RECORDER in every particular save one, viz., they will not pay their subscriptions every time you ask them to do it.

Well, I am writing this letter here in Anderson with the brethren all around me talking for dear life. They seem awful glad to meet once again, and it appears now that we have been having noise and noise only over consolidation, titles to college property, dispensaries, Calvinism, the women, &c. In a few moments the president's gavel will fall, and we shall be in Convention assembled. I am going to keep my ears, eyes and mouth open and gather up everything that drops for the RECORDER. After all, it may be decided by the combined wisdom of the brotherhood to stop the "progressives" and allow our institutions to remain, and possibly it may be deemed best to give up the idea of domesticating and confining the brethren to the nursery. I should be afraid to risk the generations of the future to the care of such mothers as most of them would make. I am afraid that our population would diminish at a rapid rate, and that ere long we should have no young men to berate the old fogies, and to push the universe out of joint. We shall see what we shall see, and you shall hear from me again. Eare thee well. PALMETTO.

Constipation and sick-headache positively cured by Japanese Liver Pellets; 50 pills 25 cts. Sold at Jno. Y. MacRae's drugstore, Raleigh, N. C.

The Forum's Reduction of Price.—The Forum, which its readers regard as the foremost of our periodicals, reduces its price, beginning with the December number, from $5 to $3 a year, from 50 cts. to 25 cts. a copy. This is the most noteworthy reduction in periodical literature that has taken place—perhaps that can take place. Magazines of fiction and adventure, the illustrated monthlies, were within everybody's reach even before the recent reduction in the price of some of them. But no periodical of the class of the Forum has ever been sold for 25 cts. It becomes the cheapest by half of all the great Reviews in the world, and it remains the largest of all our periodicals of its kind, and its character is in no way changed.

This reduction of price puts the Forum easily within the reach of every reader who cares for it—of every man and woman who desires to keep abreast of the times. The extent to which this reduction will add to popular education on great subjects is incalculable. The ablest articles by the foremost writers are now offered at less than two cents each. The December number, for example, contains the following sixteen articles:—"Are Presidential Appointments for Sale?" William D. Foulke; "Necessity for Immediate Tariff Reduction," A. Augustus Healy; "A Plan for an Automatic, non-Political Tariff," Hon. W. J. Coombs; "Francis Parkman and his Work," Julius H. Ward; "Child Study; the Basis of Exact Education," President G. Stanley Hall; "Israel Among the Nations," W. E. H. Lecky; "The Beginning of Man and the Age of the Race," Dr. D. G. Brinton; "Need not of 'More Money,' but Better Exchange," T. G. Shearman; "How to deal with a Filibustering Minority," John B. McMaster; "Use of Rich Men in a Republic," Frederic Harrison; "Mr. Goldwin Smith's 'Views' on our History," Woodrow Wilson; "A Plan to Free our Schools from Politics," Dr. J. M. Rice; "The Most Popular Novels in America," Hamilton W. Mabie; "Lasting Results of the World's Fair," Alice Freeman Palmer; "The Fair's Results to the City of Chicago," Franklin H. Head.—The Forum Publishing Co., New York.

Meeting at Jacksonville.

Dear Recorder:—We have had a most wonderful meeting at Jacksonville. I have been in many good and gracious meetings, but have never seen so many unmistakable and visible signs of God's presence as in this one. Dr. Hufham was with us and preached Christ with great power and demonstration of the Spirit.

The town and community were shaken up from bottom to top, and everybody felt the shock. The oldest inhabitant said he had never so seen it in Onslow or anywhere else.

Some thirty professed faith in Christ and as many as twenty five signified their intention to join one of the churches in the place.

We are doing this work at a great disadvantage. The Association is not standing by us, and even some of the preachers seem to take no interest whatever in the field. But for a few friends, we had fainted; as it is, we have had to neglect the field to supply ourselves with the necessities of life. The Association should do one of two things, either sustain me or put somebody in the work in whom they show more confidence. My great anxiety is to see the work done, with no concern as to who does it.

EXTRAORDINARY!

1894 Beginning with * January only.

In order to rapidly introduce the Baptist Teacher, the Baptist Superintendent, and the Advanced Quarterly into schools WHERE THEY ARE NOT NOW IN USE, the American Baptist Publication Society makes the following extraordinary offer for 1894.

THE BAPTIST TEACHER.

In clubs of not less than five.

One Year for only 30 cents per copy; Six Months for only 15 cents.

The regular price of the Teacher is 50 cents per year in clubs.

THE BAPTIST SUPERINTENDENT.

One Year for only 15 cents.

This offer is only to superintendents not now taking it. The regular price is 25 cents per year.

THE ADVANCED QUARTERLY.

In clubs of not less than ten.

One Year for only 5 cents per copy; Six Months for only 3 cents.

The regular price of the Advanced Quarterly is 10 cents per year in clubs.

The circulation of the Baptist Teacher is about sixty thousand copies. We want fully one hundred thousand susbcribers.

The circulation of the Advanced Quarterly is now about half a million copies. We want one million.

And there is no good reason why these numbers should not be reached.

The Society meets the schools half way. We believe the schools will appreciate this helping hand and do their part.

Note Carefully the Conditions.

Green River Sunday-school Association.

The next session convenes at Mt. Vernon on Friday before the fifth Sunday in December, 1893. The church and school at Mt. Verron, with others, are desirous that this be made a most pleasant and profitable season in the midst of the holidays.

The following, with perhaps other good topics, will be discussed:

1. By whom should the officers of a Sunday-school be elected?

2. What special benefits may be derived from a well-conducted Sunday school?

3. What helps should be used in Sunday-schools?

4. Should the Sunday school be kept running all the year?

Come, brethren, prepared to tell us something that will do us all good and glorify God. This is expected.

Those coming by rail, who so desire, can write, stating what train they will come on, to the Superintendent of Mt. Vernon school,

Prof. A. E. Booth Ordained.

The Baptist church of Christ in this place met this morning for the purpose of ordaining Prof. A. E. Booth, President of Hightower Baptist College, and pastor of this church, to the full work of the gospel ministry.

The presbytery consisted of the church and the following brethren: Revs. A. B. Vaughan, Jr., E. Roper, J. B. Blackwell and W. R Otwell. Rev. A. B. Vaughan, Jr., was elected Moderator, and W. R. Otwell, Secretary.

After a few very appropriate remarks and prayer by the Moderator, Prof. D. S. Kennedy, in behalf of the church presented Bro. Booth to the presbytery.

A very satisfactory statement was made by Bro. Booth relative to his Christian experience and call to the ministry.

A very thorough examination was conducted by Bro. Vaughan.

Prayer by Bro. J. B. Blackwell.

The Bible was presented and charge delivered by Bro. E. Roper.

Charge to the church was delivered by Bro. Blackwell.

After extending the right hand of fellowship and brotherly love, the benediction was pronounced by Bro. Booth.

La Grippe Again.

The United States has never suffered from any disease that has caused such fearful results as has La Grippe. Royal Germetuer has never failed to cure it quickly where used as directed.

Reliable Evidence.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 28, 1893.

In January last I had a violent attack of La Grippe. I was advised by a friend to use Royal Germetuer, which cured me in a couple of days. I was again attacked by the 'grip' this month, and profiting by my former experience, I commenced at once with Germetuer and did not have to go to bed. I consider it a specific for La Grippe. L. From Moravian Falls.

Dear Recorder:—The pastor, Bro. W. R. Bradshaw, has just closed a week's meeting with his church at Moravian Falls. It was a meeting of most gratifying results. There were no less than eighteen converts—nearly all the penitents and a large per cent. of the sinners in the community. The church was greatly revived and strengthened. Several of the converts were young men of promise and influence.

Bro. Bradshaw did all the preaching. His sermons possess an energy, directness, and aptitude that one rarely sees equaled in a man of his years.

DIED.

MITCHELL—Anne Belle, youngest daughter of Senator C. W. and Pauline Mitchell, passed into the brighter world on Sunday, Nov. 26th, 1893, after a painful illness of ten days of laryngitis, having just turned in her seventh year.

"A bud of beauty nipped by death!
O no! but upwarp borne,
Where no rude wind or poisoned breath
Can blast a flower of paradise." C.

HINTON—Monday morning, Nov. 20th, 1893, Sister Jane K. Hinton, aged sixty-four years, was found dead in her bed. She seemed as well as usual the day before, and no one suspected that her end was near. From her position when found she seems to have passed away in her sleep without a struggle. In early life she gave her heart to the Saviour and united with Middle Swamp Baptist church in Gates county, and through the remainder of life was not only a consistent, but also an earnest, faithful Christian. She loved her church and, took a deep interest in its welfare and in whatever pertained to the advancement of the Master's cause. At her home the preacher ever found a warm and generous welcome. We shall miss her much, but we feel that our loss is her eternal gain.

May the Holy Spirit comfort the bereaved ones and help them to be ready also for the summons when it shall come to them.

W. B. WAFF.

HARRIS—Sister Jackobina E. Harris was found, Nov. 21st, 1893, lying on her bed with her hands folded and eyes closed, sleeping sweetly in death. She had nearly reached the sixty-second mile post in the journey of life. She was a grand-daugher of Elder Stephen Pleasants of Person county, a man of lovely memory.

For eighteen or twenty years Sister Harris lived in a community very remote from a Baptist church. She was often urged by Pedobaptists to join with them, as there was no Baptist church convenient to her. She kindly but firmly replied: "No, I cannot join you, I am a Baptist from principle. I can't honestly be anything else." She advocated and defended Baptist doctrines. She went zealously to work to build up a Baptist church in her community. She invited her pastor to preach in her dwelling house, and sometimes in a tobacco barn. And thus was commenced a work that has resulted in the organization of Rock Spring church of Flat River Association with sixty members. This church stands as a monument to the zeal and fidelity of our departed sister. A host of loving, sorrowing friends buried her in the new cemetery of the church she loved. She rests from her labors and her works do follow her. PASTOR.

HAWLEY—On Nov. 24th, 1893, Sister Janet Hawley was called from time to eternity. She died suddenly, and there was no one present to see her pass away. She was a member of Spring Branch church. May the consoling Spirit of the Lord find its way to the hearts of all the bereaved. Let us pray that we all may meet her in that home beyond the grave. M. W. N.

MEACHAM—Nov. 24th, 1893, Mr. D. H. Meacham, in the sixty-fifth year of his age, died at his home in Laurinburg, N. C. The community lost an upright citizen, the Baptist church a faithful member and deacon, his pastor an unfailing supporter, his family an affectionate husband and father. The day he joined the church he subscribed for the RECORDER and has taken it ever since.

SCRUGGS—Died in Forest City, N. C., October 9th, 1893, Mrs. Lillian Scruggs, wife of J. D. Scruggs, and daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Yarboro, at the age of twenty-six years. Sister Scruggs professed religion and joined the Baptist church at Forest City at the age of thirteen, and lived a consistent Christian life thereafter, always adorning the doctrine of God her Saviour by a chaste walk and godly conversation. She leaves a father, mother, one brother and one sister, and a husband with two small children, both boys, together with a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn her seemingly untimely death. Her only anxiety to live was that she might raise her children for the Lord, and yet she was willing to trust them to his care, and expressed herself as being not only ready but willing to go at the Master's call.

Sister Scruggs graduated from Oxford Female Seminary in her eighteenth year, and was married to J. D. Scruggs Dec. 27th, 1881. Verily, she rests from her labors and her works do follow her. May God bless and sustain the dear bereaved ones in this the hour of their daak sorrow. C. B. JUSTICE.

RIDDICK—Bro. Thomas J. Riddick died at his home near Sandy Cross, Gates county, on Sept. 9th, 1893, in the fiftieth year of his age. When twenty-four years old he connected himself with Sandy Cross Baptist church. Soon afterward he was elected clerk of the church, which office he held till 1891, when he moved his membership to Beulah church. He was elected clerk of the Chowan Association in 1889, and served that body faithfully up to the time of his death.

His life was shadowed by affliction. Many years ago he was attacked with rheumatism which left its mark upon him in a bent form, giving him the appearance of premature age. He took cold at the last session of the Association, and on reaching home had a very severe attack of rheumatism. While he apparently recovered from this, he never fully regained his strength, and in September was stricken down with paralysis which resulted in his death. Bro. Riddick was an earnest Christian. He loved his church and the cause of Christ, and seemed ever ready to help it on In his death Gates county has lost a valuable citizen and Beulah church a useful member. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." W. B. W.

PRIVOTT—Sister Fannie E. Privott died at her home in Windsor, N. C., on Nov. 28th, 1893. She was fifty-seven years old on May 9th last. She had been a consistent member of the Baptist church twenty-seven years. Sister Privott was the widow of Bro. J. R. Privott, who died fifteen years ago, leaving her with one child, then quite a boy, to raise. By her industry and her indomitable energy she succeeded in rearing him. He, W. L. Privott, survives her, and is a highly esteemed citizen of Windsor, and a worthy deacon of the Cashie Baptist church. Our sister has so lived as to entitle herself to the esteem and good will of the people among whom she lived. And in her church relations she was always deeply interested and active in all of its enterprises and works. Only a few hours before death laid his icy hands upon her she manifested deep concern about the welfare of her church, and expressed great delight in hearing of a favor done to her pastor.

Her last days exhibited a bright and clear faith in her Saviour. Her conversations with her family, with her familiar friends, and with her pastor, leave abundant corroborative testimony of her readiness for the last summons. Our sister was not rich in this world's goods, but she possessed that which was better than riches: "a good name." "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." (Prov. 22: 1.) Her remains were interred in the Baptist church yard in Windsor on Nov. 29th. The funeral service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Boone, and a large gathering of friends were there to pay their last tribute of respect. J. B.

He Careth for Thee.

"Casting all your care upon Him, for He careth for you."—1 Peter v. 7.

What can it mean? Is it aught to him
That the nights are long and the days are dim?
Can he be touched by the griefs I bear,
Which sadden the heart and whiten the hair?
Around his throne are eternal calms,
And strong, glad music of happy psalms,
And bliss unruffled by any strife,
How can he care for my poor life?

And yet I want him to care for me,
While I live in this world where the sorrows be.
When the lights die down on the path I take;
When strength is feeble, and friends forsake;
When love and music that once did bless,
Have left me to silence and loneliness;
And life-song changes to sobbing prayers—
Then my heart cries out for a God who cares.

When shadows hang o'er me the whole day long;
And my spirit is bowed with shame and wrong;
When I am not good, and the deeper shade
Of conscious sin makes my heart afraid;
And the busy world has too much to do
To stay in its course to help me through,
And I long for a Saviour—can it be
That the God of the universe cares for me?

O wonderful story of deathless love!
Each child is dear to that heart above;
He fights for me when I cannot fight;
He comforts me in the gloom of night;
He lifts the burden, for he is strong;
He stills the sigh, and awakens the song;
The sorrow that bowed me down he bears,
And loves and pardons, because he cares.

Let all who are sad take heart again,
We are not alone in our hours of pain;
Our Father stoops from his throne above
To soothe and quiet us with his love.
He leaves us not when the storm is high,
And we have safety, for he is nigh,
Can it be trouble which he doth share?
O rest in peace for the Lord does care!

—The Christian.

Broken Laws.

Two men—one of them indifferent to religion, the other an earnest believer in the claims of Christianity upon the human soul—went together to the valley of the Conemaugh after the great disaster that came from the breaking of a dam, in the hope that they might be of use to the sufferers. As they stood looking at the awful field of wreckage, beneath which lay hundreds of ruined homes, and uncounted decaying bodies, the first man said with a shudder:

"And yet you believe in an all-powerful, merciful God! Where is his mercy here?"

"This is man's work, for which he alone is responsible," was the prompt reply. "God made the water and gave it a certain weight. He made earth and gave it a certain force of resistance. He made men and gave them the intellect to understand these inexorable laws of weight and resistance. When men enclose a huge body of water behind a clay wall which they ought to know is too weak to hold it, and then build their houses in a gully before the wall, it is man who is responsible for the result. Every broken law brings its punishment. That is God's justice. But yonder is his mercy."

He pointed to the distance from which on every side streamed relief wagons, and railroad trains laden with help and sympathy from almost every part of the land.

"It is only the life of a certain number of bodies which has ended here. But God through this disaster has lifted countless human souls in sympathy and tenderness nearer to his own nature."

We are apt to overlook the fact that there are inexorable general laws created by infinite wisdom, which God does not set aside in his compassion for individuals.

A lad at college, ambitious to excel, studies until late in the night with a poor light and small print. His eyes give way, he is threatened with blindness, and he arraigns the goodness of God in thus thwarting his plans for life, plans which he knows were worthy of praise.

Another boy has inherited a weak digestion from a gluttonous father; another has weakened every organ in his body by the incessant use of liquor or other stimulants. When they suffer they call God to account and blame him.

His mercy has nothing to do with the laws of light or vision, or with the effect of stimulants on blood and liver.

These laws have existed since the creation, for the government of our bodies. If we break them, no amount of virtue, of good intention, or of devotion, will hinder the infliction of the penalty that is a part of the law itself.

On the other hand, though our bodies or material lives become utter wrecks by reason of these broken laws, our souls, if we so choose, can be lifted to a higher plane on each pain and loss.—Youth's Companion.

Something Unusual,

as a medicine, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. And, because of that, there's something unusual in the way of selling it. Where every other medicine of its kind only promises, this is guaranteed. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

It's the only guaranteed remedy for every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood. Dyspepsia, biliousness, the most stubborn skin, scalp and scrofulous affections, even consumption (or lung-scrofula) in its earlier stages, are all cured by it.

It purifies and enriches the blood, rouses every organ into healthful action, and restores strength and vigor. In building up both flesh and strength of pale, puny, scrofulous children, or to invigorate and brace up the system after "grippe," pneumonia, fevers, and other prostrating acute diseases, nothing can equal the "Discovery."

Catarrh is positively cured by Dr. Sage's Remedy.

Nothing ever makes men good Christians, and therefore good citizens.—Daniel Webster.

No Success Without "Push."

Success is a big word, and one that may be variously defined. It means one thing to one man and another thing to another. In one walk of life its interpretation is entirely different from that in some other, and what is success from one point of view is almost failure from another. But there is this in common to all kinds of success: it comes as the result of effort. Whatever falls at one's feet, whatever is received by inheritance, whatever is natural endowment, or comes by request, is not success, however much of good there may be about it. Success is that which is striven for—that which comes as a victory to the warrior, or that which is as a laurel on the poet's brow.

To achieve success, therefore, effort must be put forth. Very generally it must be persistent, aggressive, persevering effort, that kind of effort that is so happily summed up in the little word "push." To be a prosperous merchant or manufacturer requires "push." To be an acceptable clerk or book keeper requires "push," and to be really useful in any walk of life, from the most exalted to the most commonplace, requires "push." "Push" is a word also with as many different shades of meaning as there are persons to whom it may be applied. It is wonderfully classic, but in all its definitions there is this idea about it: To drive forward. Strength and energy of whatever kind the individual may possess are to be used as he is able to use them and as circumstances permit to drive something forward. Very generally this something is the work of duty in hand, or the business venture upon which he is engaged, or the social project he has in view. To be unsuccessful in this world—for failure may come, however hard we may strive—commands pity, but to be without "push" is to be contemptible. When we want to say something extremely severe about a young man; when we want to condemn him unconditionally; when we want to convey the idea that he will never achieve success or be of any particular usefulness in the world anywhere, we say, "He has no 'push' about him." Without "push" one floats with the tide, driven hither and thither by the wind and currents.—The Office.

Queer Facts About a Watch.

Open your watch and look at the little wheels, springs, and screws, each an indispensable part of the whole wonderful machine. Notice the busy little balance wheel, as it flies to and fro unceasingly, day and night, year in and year out. This wonderful little machine is the result of hundreds of years of study and experiment. The watch carried by the average man is composed of 98 pieces, and its manufacture embraces more than 2,000 distinct and separate operations. Some of the smallest screws are so minute that the unaided eye cannot distinguish them from steel filings or specks of dirt. Under a powerful magnifying glass a perfect screw is revealed. The slit in the head is 2 1000ths of an inch wide. It takes 308,000 of these screws to weigh a pound; and a pound is worth $1,585. The hairspring is a strip of the finest steel, about 9½ inches long, 1 100th inch wide, and 27 10,000ths inch thick. It is coiled up in spiral form, and finely tempered. The process of tempering these springs was long held as a secret by the few fortunate ones possessing it, and even now is not generally known. Their manufacture requires great skill and care. The strip is ganged to 20 1000ths of an inch, but no measuring instrument has as yet been devised capable of fine-enough gauging to determine beforehand by the size of the strip what the strength of the finished spring will be. A 20 1000th part of an inch difference in the thickness of the strip makes a difference in the running of a watch of about six minutes per hour. The value of these springs, when finished and placed in watches, is enormous in proportion to the material from which they are made. A comparison will give a good idea. A ton of steel made up into hairspring, when in watches, is worth more than twelve and one half times the value of the same weight in pure gold. Hairspring wire weighs one-twentieth of a grain to the inch. One mile of wire weighs less than half a pound. The balance gives 5 vibrations every second, 300 every minute, 18,000 every hour, 432,000 every day, and 157,680,000 every year. At each vibration it rotates about one and one-fourth times, which makes 197,100,000 revolutions every year. In order that we may better understand the stupendous amount of labor performed by these tiny works, let us make a few comparisons. Take, for illustration, a locomotive with six foot driving wheels. Let its wheels be run until they have given the same number of revolutions that a watch does in one year, and they will have covered a distance equal to twenty-eight complete circuits of the earth. All this a watch does without other attention than winding once every twenty-four hours.—Jeweler's Review.

BROKEN DOWN

—by disease is the natural result if you allow your liver to become inactive, your blood impure, and your system run down.

The germs of Consumption, Grip, or Malaria, wait for this time of weakness—this is their opportunity.

If you rouse the liver to activity, so it will throw off these germs, purify the blood so there will be no weak spots; build up healthy weight where there is a falling off, you will rest secure from disease, for you'll be germ-proof.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does this as nothing else can. That's the reason it can be guaranteed. In convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other wasting diseases, it's an appetizing, restorative tonic to build up needed flesh and strength.

For all diseases of the liver or blood if "Discovery" fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

No matter how bad your case, Dr. Sage's Remedy will permanently cure your Catarrh.

WHAT is commonly referred to as the Hawaiian affair has grown out of an almost successful attempt of the American residents of the Hawaiian Islands, situate in the Pacific ocean, to abolish their government, which has heretofore been of the monarchical form, and to bring it under the jurisdiction of the United States. This was the beginning; the subsequent history of the "Affair" would occupy a volume. As the matter now stands, the discretion of a President, the honesty of a minister, and the honor of the United States, are involved. Such being the conditions, the result is regarded with far more interest than the Islands themselves.

The Hawaiian Islands had been of little importance until their resources were developed by American enterprise. They had been occupied and governed for many years by an inferior race, until certain Americans saw the advantages which they afforded for the production of sugar. Since this latter industry was established, the Islands have increased in value and in civilization, by contact with America, until to day they are largely owned and most of the taxes are paid by Americans. The more civilized, that is, the foreign contingent, of the residents, being desirous of relief from the embarrassments of the dominion of an inferior ruler, and, it is asserted, wishing to obtain the advantages of the United States' sugar bounty, deposed the Queen, and sought the protection of the United States with a view to annexation. The preceding administration favored this step and undertook a protectorate of the Islands. The present administration is unfavorable to annexation, claims to have discovered fraud in the former proceedings, and has renounced the protectorate, and it is daily expected that the Queen, and the monarchical form, will be restored. This is, no doubt, both acceptable and just to the Queen and the native inhabitants, though very embarrassing to the Americans who have developed the Islands, and who now practically own them. The question is very similar to that which we long ago decided by occupying, developing, and taking unto ourselves the lands of the Indians, removing them whither we wished. Is it just to deprive one of power who is incapable of using it to good advantage?

Other arguments are involved, among them the fact that, in event of war, the Islands would be of great advantage to us as an exclusive coaling station,—but we have space only to state the principle of the question.

WE are not pessimistic, nor do we care to appear abusive of the press, but we wish to call attention to a mistake that many of our contemporaries are accustomed to make. We see it stated now and then that the farmers, having "plenty to eat and wear," should be congratulated on their good condition. Now we do not wish to excite discontent, nor discourage a movement that promises well, but we protest that humankind should not be content with "plenty to eat and wear," and that that is a state of extreme poverty, rather than one worthy of congratulation. A farmer is not a first class farmer who fails to raise home supplies at the sacrifice of all money crops, but at the same time, we hope he will not learn to be content with a gratification of his physical wants. We cannot find conditions in North Carolina that can be compared with those of certain quarters of our great cities. In this light we are in a good condition, but still are not in a state to be congratulated. Who lives a life of physical enjoyment only, who is content with "plenty to eat and wear through the winter," is in a state of semi-barbarism, though his condition is far better than that of hundreds of thousands. A farmer is not in good circumstances until he is able to give his children more than a free school education, purchase books and periodicals, and "lay by" something substantial for his family in case of death. We are sorry for those who cannot enjoy these things, and, though we know their condition is far better than that of some others, we cannot think for a moment that it is one with which they should be content. We have physical, intellectual, and spiritual qualities, all of which must have full exercise and development before we are worthy representatives of the human race. Still we see no reason for a violent discontent, which is powerful only in sound; action, work, and determination, will accomplish more than all possible agitation.

THERE has always been a prominent and dangerous tendency in our government to abandon those measures, which, though just from every point of view and almost essential to good government, appear difficult of execution. We do not favor government ownership of railroads, still we cannot sympathize with the argument very commonly used that the government could not direct them. The same argument has been used against the ad valorem tariff with great effect, and we are glad that it can now be proved that such customs can be equitably collected. The same argument is the chief stock of the opponents of the income tax, and it now appears that they will succeed in their antagonism to the measure on so meagre a reason. The same argument was used against the anti option bill, and many other just measures that have been abandoned, and yet it is absolutely groundless. It is a very weak government that is unable to enforce just measures. Just here it may be wise to distinguish between expediency and justice. We believe that it would not be unjust for the government to own the railroads; still it is obviously inexpedient, and impracticable. But there are other measures that are just, expedient, practicable and essential—among them, in our opinion, the proposed income tax and the abandoned anti-option bill, and it is a reflection on our government to refuse to pass them for the reason that "they cannot be enforced," or would "lead to fraud and subterfuge." The government's duty is to enforce just laws and prevent and punish fraud, and if it fails in these, it has failed in its highest aim. It should not be said—and we should blush to hear the argument—that certain measures are wise and just, but must be abandoned because they lead to fraud.

IT IS probable that the State Bank tax, which has long been a discontentedly borne burden to many, especially of the poorer classes, will be repealed. The tax was imposed for the protection of a National Banking system, and the extinction of the State Banks, which were brought into disrepute by the fraudulence of unworthy and irresponsible men who abused the privileges of the system and took advantage of the laxity of law. The principle on which the State Bank system was based is worthy, but unless restrained, can be used dangerously by designing men. If the tax is removed, we believe the banks should still remain under control of the Federal government, the securities, on which notes are issued, qualified, and the entire system guarded as securely as our present system. We believe we may have in State Banks of issue a preventative of serious or widespread panics, still we are not in favor of giving the great license to the system that led to the panics of 1834, '40 and '57. State Banks must be guarded, their securities must be almost as invariable as those on which National Bank notes are based, before they can as well perform the functions of banks of issue. The safety of all banks reposes ultimately in the honesty of men, and dishonesty cannot be prevented. But this is not an argument against State Banks more than against National Banks. Dishonesty can as easily be minimized in the one as in the other.

It is unnecessary that State Bank securities possess the generally recognized value of government bonds; it is only necessary that they be almost as invariable in value and secure against serious depreciation. Surely, with the aid of bank examiners and a thorough system of banking laws, the value and the stability of the securities may be ascertained and made public, and thus the value of the notes be established, not only in one State, but, to a large extent, throughout the country.

A Layman's Studies in the Life and Letters of Paul.

II. THE CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER OF PAUL'S LETTERS

The New Testament canon reached its final settlement as the result of a gradual growth. The number of distinctively Christian documents quoted as authoritative by Christian writers became larger and larger during the second and third centuries, until all which are now held to be canonical were so recognized. The African bishops, assembled in council at Hippo in A. D. 393, formally ratified the general judgment and settled the canon exactly as we have it at present, except that they included in it the Apocrypha.

The collection of these writings was also gradual. Of them it would appear that some of the letters of Paul were the first that were brought together. Such a collection is implied in 2 Peter 3: 16—"as also in all his epistles." The first collection of which we have historic record was made by Marcion, the second century heretic, who carried it to Rome in the year 139. It embraced the Gospel of Luke in an altered form and ten of Paul's letters, those to Timothy and Titus and the letter to the Hebrews (of undetermined authorship) not being included. The order of the letters in this earliest New Testament I have not been able to ascertain. In all subsequent collections, as in that now in use, the only principle governing the arrangement of the Pauline letters appears to have been their relative length. If we except the letters to Timothy, they gradually decrease in length from Romans to Philemon. Or, they may be divided into two groups,—church letters, coming first, and personal letters, last. The order in each group is according to length.

The stereotyped arrangement of editorial paragraphs in a newspaper one cannot object to. The page acquires a certain smoothness which is, perhaps, desirable, and the paragraphs, being unrelated, are themselves unaffected by the order in which they are read. On the supposition that the letters of Paul stand in no closer relation to his personality than is involved in his merely transcribing the verbal dictation of the Holy Spirit, then the order in which they are read is of no consequence. But if they spring out of his dramatic experience and are transcripts of his mind and heart under the stress of varying external conditions and at different stages of his progress in the "apprehension" of Christ, then they become unintelligible apart from his personal history, and the order of their reading is no longer immaterial. It would be a manifest gain if they appeared in the New Testament in the order in which they were written. I cannot but regret that in the publication of the Revision of 1881 this order was not followed. Of course, they may be read in chronological order although they are not so printed, provided that order is known. It may prove serviceable, therefore, to inquire into the subject.

The letters which are preserved to us as Paul's, exclusive of those to Timothy and Titus, are scattered through the last ten years of his life as that life is certainly known to us. The earliest of them was written nearly twenty years after his conversion; the last, from the Roman prison shortly before his acquittal by Nero. His life after that time is entirely unknown to us, except so far as this acquittal, indeed, and a second imprisonment are necessarily implied by the letters to Timothy and Titus. What the date of these letters is it is impossible to determine. The question of their authorship has been long debated; but, assuming them to be Paul's, as I do, they were the last that he wrote, Second Timothy being the last one of the group.

The dates of the remaining ten, which belong to the known life of Paul, have been determined with sufficient accuracy by the evidence of the letters themselves supplemented by the narrative of Luke in the Acts. I shall not collate this evidence here, but am content to set forth the results at which special students have arrived with practical unanimity.

A. D. 53-54. First and Second Thessalonians, written from Corinth during Paul's eighteen months' residence there.

56. Galatians, probably from Ephesus.

57. First Corinthians, in the spring, from Ephesus; Second Corinthians, in the autumn, from Macedonia.

58 Romans, in the winter, from Corinth.

58-60. Colossians, Ephesians, and Philemon (all dispatched at the same time by the same hand), probably from the prison in Cæsarea; they may have been written two years later during the Roman imprisonment.

62-63 Philippians, during the captivity at Rome.

Paley, the author of the once celebrated Natural Theology, seems to have given the original impetus to a broader and more rational study of Paul's letters in a work published in 1790 and bearing the title, Horæ Paulinæ, or the Truth of the Scripture History of St. Paul evinced by a comparison of the Epistles which bear his name with the Acts of the Apostles and with one another. He treated the letters in their historical setting and sequence and in their mutual relations, and traced the development of the writer's teaching. Since Paley's attempt, many finely equipped minds have approached these wonderful letters in the same spirit, with the result of causing them to glow with the light and passion of Paul's remarkable personality.

Talks About Law—No. 20.

BY JUDGE R. W. WINSTON

RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES.

It may not be generally known, but it is the law of North Carolina that no one religious denomination can own lands, by the general law of the State, of a greater yearly value than six thousand dollars; nor can any single congregation own lands of a greater yearly value than four hundred dollars. Of course this does not apply to lands and lots set apart and appropriated to divine worship.

None but a student of the law will understand this seemingly harsh statute. Away back ten centuries ago, the monasteries in England were very rich and powerful. They began to absorb the lands of the whole kingdom, and hence the Parliament made it a cause of forfeiture for any one to give or sell lands to a religious corporation. Our North Carolina statute is the scar which remains upon that old wound. We have in our Code a very wise and beneficent provision that all glebes, lands and tenements, heretofore purchased, given or devised for the support of any particular ministry or mode of worship; and all churches and other houses built for the purpose of public worship and all lands so given to any church or religious society or congregation shall be and remain forever to the use of such church, society or congregation; and further, that the estate thereto shall be deemed and held to be vested absolute in such trustees for the uses expressed in the deeds of purchase or of gift; and in case there shall be no trustees, then in the said churches, denominations, societies and congregations respectively according to such intent.

From the above it may be seen that a gift to a church will be upheld by our courts even if the giver does not know and express the names of the trustees; or even if he does not name any trustees; but simply names the denomination.

But it must be borne in mind that no church can own lands of great value as we have seen above, unless it have a charter so to do from the Legislature. So, full power is given to any church or society to elect trustees who shall have power to receive donations and to take and hold property, real and personal, by purchase or by gift.

We were doing pretty well in North Carolina without any provision in the general law authorizing a church, through its agents, to sell any lands or to mortgage the church building until the year 1885. In that year it was provided by the Legislature that, if a majority of the congregation so voted, the church might mortgage its building and borrow money to improve the building.

Whether we have arranged a box of Pandora, to be opened in the hereafter, remains to be seen. Many fine churches at the North have been sold under mortgage, and are now used for storage houses, I learn.

These trustees simply act for the church, and as long as they do their duty, they are not liable personally except they contract personally. For example, a man who was injured in erecting a church building recently, sued the building committee for damages; but our court said that they were not individually liable.

Many statutes have been passed for the protection of churches against disturbances while services are going on in the church. It is made a misdemeanor for any one to exhibit any natural or artificial curiosity in half of a mile of a church during religious exercises, one statute our church people have perhaps overlooked. For, it is provided that if any person shall be intoxicated at a place of divine worship, during the time the people are assembled for such worship, he shall pay a fine of twenty dollars. So if any one disturbs a religious congregation while engaged in worship, he is guilty of a misdemeanor.

It is to be observed that to convict under the last statute, it must be shown that he actually disturbed the congregation during religious exercises; while under the first statute if one be intoxicated at a church during service, he is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Many a time a drunken man could be convicted for being drunk at church, but not for disturbing the congregation. For if a man, being drunk, should go to church, and the ladies, seeing his condition, should scatter and move about, and the poor drunken fellow did nothing, why he no doubt could not be convicted for disturbing the congregation, because the ladies did this, he did not. Of course, we have all heard of the case against one Linklaw down in Robeson county: it is well known in legal circles, and his name is in the law books all over the land. He did not sing well. He came in a word or two late at the end of each line. His voice, too, was not sweet. During big-meeting season, when he became enthused, he sang worse than ever. At last, the deacons and the preacher told him he really must sing no more. But at the next meeting Mr. Linklaw sang and sang no better, perhaps worse. The outcome of it all was that he was indicted for disturbing a religious congregation. A special verdict was taken, in which the above facts were found, and, in addition, that he did not intend to disturb the congregation and was a good member of the church. Our courts say that he was not guilty; that every man has the right to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.

A curious case came under my observation in Statesville. A man was indicted under this statute, and the evidence developed the fact that at the burial of his sister he simply said, "Her husband killed her." It was in evidence that he was greatly distressed and spoke from the depth of his affliction; and he was hence acquitted.

Indeed the statute does no embrace cases of this kind It is made to protect the congregation from wanton and careless fellows or others who are not interested in what is going on, and make noises so as to disturb the religious worship.

Hiding Our Lights Under Bushels.

The notion which a great many so called Christian people seem to have in this day, or at least which they act upon, that the sole end of their Christianity is their own happiness and salvation, is clearly opposite to God's truth. No man is so great or isolated that his single well-being can be the sole purpose of God's dealing with him, but his intention in lighting each little bit of a taper is that it should light ever so many more; and the meaning of our being light in the Lord is that through us and from us there should go forth a communicative light which, touching other souls, shall illuminate and transfigure them.

A great many of us who call ourselves Christians seem to forget the plain, homely wisdom of this metaphor. You are dark lanterns if you are lanterns at all, and you keep the lights down with admirable consistency from one year's end to another. We seem many of us to have no other object more at heart than that nobody should know that we are Christians by anything we do outside these chapel walls. That is not what God meant when he came to us in the sweetness of his love and spoke to us the healing words. He meant us to represent him in the world, and to shine as lights where he has set us. We creep under the bushel. We button our coats over our uniforms. If we do not hide away, at any rate we make no conscience of showing whose we are and whom we serve. And it is odd loyalty that conceals our loyalty amidst a universe of rebels.

The harp string only gives music when it moves so swiftly as to be invisible, and the sweetest praise comes from lives which so vibrate under Christ's finger that the onlooker does not so much see as hear them, and recognize the hand that has made the silent string sweet and vocal.

So remember Jesus Christ has not lighted his light that either he or you may bury it under a bushel, but that we may all for ourselves gaze with eager eyes on that light of his, the very obscurities of which are prophets of brightness, and may cherish and foster in our hearts that light which, if we set it on high to rule and enlighten the kingdom within, if we listen to it, if we obey it, if we feed it with the oil of the Spirit by communion with our Lord, will burn more and more brightly till every corner of the inward man is illuminated and rejoices. And then let us live before men as the witness of him who hath caused to shine in our hearts the light of the glory of the knowledge of his Son, that we may impart it unto others, until the whole world is filled with the radiance that streams from the central lamp of the universe, the light of Christ, "who lighteth every man that cometh into the world."—Rev. Alexander Maclaren, D. D.

The righteous are expected to magnify the grace of God by a clear testimony and a pure, consistent life.

CHRISTMAS AND THE HOLIDAYS.

Now that the Christmas holidays are upon us, it may not be amiss to say a few things on a matter about which no one thinks he needs advice, and which, for that very reason, needs some discussion now and then. We do not propose anything like a historical reference to the origin of Christmas, and the holidays usually taken in connection with it. Some seem to be certain that the twenty fifth of December is not the proper anniversary of Christ's birth; others think that the Romish church, or rather the Pope, had no right to fix that as the date; and there are others that contend for what they call "Old Christmas."

There is no harm, we think, in the Christian church observing one day annually as commemorative of Christ's birth, nor is there any harm in observing a few days in connection with Christmas as holidays. The day, and the holidays associated with it, have become so fixed in the Christian calendar that there is perhaps at this late day no good reason for people to raise objections as to the time when the birth of Christ is to be commemorated; but there is ample need that they should give proper care and attention as to the manner in which Christmas is observed. One remarkable fact about Christmas is, that the unconverted world seem very prone to take Christmas out of the hands of Christians and shape the observance of it themselves. Hence we have balls, revelry, card playing, whiskey drinking, and a great variety of sinful amusements and indulgences, participated in by people of the world, and to some extent by professors of religion, when this season of joy annually returns. We can partly account for this state of things by the fact that there are many people whose idea of joy is that of sinful indulgence. They do not know how to be happy without doing wicked things.

But perhaps the best explanation of this is to be found in the fact that Satan is always ready to turn any event that commemorates the blessings that have come to the world by the coming of Christ into an occasion for wrong-doing. He tried to convert the Lord's Supper at Corinth into a heathen feast, and might have succeeded but for the timely letter of the Apostle Paul. The Christian church certainly has no right to let the world monopolize the observance of the day that commemorates the birth of the blessed Saviour; and in this, as in other cases, there is need of proper aggressiveness in asserting her claim to prescribe the proper manner of its observance; and it behooves the followers of Christ to bestir themselves that they may bring about in the various communities where their lot is cast a healthier public sentiment as to this matter. Our pulpits and our religious press can greatly aid in this good work—we may say, in this needed reform.

Did it ever strike the reader with any force that there is a confused medly of ideas involved in sinful men, celebrating by sinful means the birth of the world's Redeemer? The atmosphere of the ball-room is surely not the atmosphere of heaven; and bacchanal revelry has no fitness for the Saviour's natal day. Sinners really have as much right to come into a Christian church and conduct the worship for God's people as they have to control the observance of Christmas, provided God in his providence intended this day to be commemorated as part of the Christian system of duty and worship.

This leads us to remark that the Lord seems to have so ordered things that there is great uncertainty about sacred days, seasons, localities, &c. There is indeed an obvious uncertainty connected with the exact day of Christ's birth; there is still more connected with the necessity of what is called the Lenten season, and as to many of the sacred localities of Palestine. Was all this by accident or by design? God by a wonderful display of divine power and providence has preserved his Holy Word in tact, and the spiritual power and success of Christianity is proof of the divinity of its Founder. It seems to be manifest, then, that Christ intended that his religion should be distinguished for its spirituality, and there is sparse encouragement in his word and providences for the observance of "days and months and years," as the Galatians of old wished to do after they had been corrupted by the leaven of Judaizing teachers. The fanaticism of the crusades of the middle ages, the long pilgrimages to Mecca by the devotees of Mohammed, are fraught with lessons that the Christian world is slow to learn. What a rebuke God has given the materializing tendency of those who would worship localities, rather than him who has honored them by his presence, by permitting the heel of the Moslem to rest for centuries on the neck of Palestine!

Some may think from the tenor of these remarks that we are preparing to recall the words used near the outset of this paper; but not so; we reiterate them. There is no harm in Christians observing one day in three hundred and sixty five as commemorating the birth of Christ, and if reasonably industrious the rest of the year, they can afford to associate a few days with it as holidays; but we do contend that Christmas, if observed at all, should be observed mostly by Christians; and the exercises or gatherings or services connected with it should be under their control. If Christians cannot celebrate Christmas in their own way, they should positively refuse to participate in the world's way of celebrating it. There are ways by which Christians can observe Christmas that are not open to objection. They can meet at their places of worship. They can thank God for the coming of the Messiah; they can praise his holy name for his goodness to them during the year that has passed; they can implore his mercies and favors for the year to come.

As to the holidays usually connected with Christmas there are plenty of ways that the Lord's people may observe them and sin not. There can be happy family reunions, pleasant social gatherings, giving presents, contributions may be given to relieve the wants of the poor, and visits can be made to the homes of the sick or afflicted; in short, they can be joyous and happy, and sin not. It doubtless grieves Satan a great deal for Christian people to meet together and be very happy for an hour or more without sinning, thereby counteracting the lie, that he is continually whispering into the ears of the young, that they must be worldly to be happy. Verily, Satan often so blinds the eyes and perverts the minds of men that they believe a lie to their own destruction. Tell it over and over again that Isaiah hath said "there is no peace to the wicked," and Christ has said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

THE co-operation of every individual Christian is essential to the coming of the kingdom—co operation in prayer, faith, and works. The old rhyme says, "for the want of a nail a kingdom was lost!" Just so the widow's mite is needed for the work, and is blessed with power in its insignificance. When wonder was expressed before Luther, that he—a poor monk, a miner's son—had become more powerful than the pope, he said: "God stays the waves of the sea upon the shore, and he stays them with—the sands." Though the waters make inroads, and the line be uneven, the resistance of the myriads of individuals, doing their part, however discouraged and weakened by the apparent failure of others, brings glorious victory.

To day we are as the sands on the seashore, each dependent on the other; each commissioned to fulfil an individual duty, that all combined may win the fight.

Let us end the old and begin the new year with a determination to do our part. None are too poor to do something, none so weak as not to win with God's blessing. Remember the widow's mite, and do your part in prayer, faith and works; for, as we have said, they are essential.

We pray that these words may go to the heart of every Baptist in the State; that pastors will see to it that each of their members gives something—however little—during the year, for the Lord's work; that each contributes his or her share in the battle against the great tide of sin, just as the sands, individual, but co-operative, resist the sea.

THIS is our last issue before the new year, and we do not want to lose this last opportunity for calling the attention of our readers from one end of the State to the other to the needs of our Foreign Mission Board. If all the denomination could have heard the addresses of brethren Willingham and Bryan at the Convention last week, further words would be unnecessary.

We must raise $40,000 immediately, if the Board is to begin the new year out of debt. The amount seems large, and yet if each will take the matter personally to heart and do something, it makes no difference how little, the debt will fade and disappear in a week. The amount should be raised without effort, and will be raised if each pastor in the South takes the Board's advice, and gives his flock a chance to contribute.

How glad we should be in this season of giving to give something for the unclaimed heathen, for the Lord! How selfish we are to resign ourselves to rest and joy without thought of the millions dying without Christ! Let us, one and all make a present to Christ in the month in which we celebrate his birth. Let us do our part toward carrying the glad tidings: "Peace on earth, good-will toward men," to the ends of the earth, and let us begin now.

IN accordance with our usual custom, the RECORDER staff will observe the Christmas holidays. Our next issue will be dated January 3d, 1894.

Before we begin the new year we wish to remind those whom we personally reminded some weeks ago that now is a good time to pay up. We dislike to begin the new year with so many expired subscriptions on our lists, and we hope that between now and January 1st those who are able will remit either a part or all they are due.

May a happy Christmas and prosperous new year gladden the hearts of every one of our readers.

ANOTHER Convention and another year is in the past, but the work is ever before us—in the present. God's workers have no time to delay; the whitening fields at home and abroad call us incessantly to the harvest. We have no cause to be discouraged; God has richly blessed the labors of his children in this State, and we have his unfailing promise that future blessings are awaiting us

PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS.

....We were glad to see Rev. R. A. Moore in Raleigh last week.

....We relinquish much of our space this week to the report of the Convention.

....Dr. T. P. Bell conducted services in the Baptist church at Newbern on the 10th inst.

....We were glad to see Prof. L. R. Mills of Wake Forest College in our office last week.

....Rev. D. M. Austin has resigned the pastorate of Olivet Baptist church, Mecklenburg county.

....Rev. A. E. Booth of Hightower Baptist College, Cummings, Ga., is in this State on a visit to friends.

....Revs. J. A. Norris and J. A. Hoyle will begin a series of meetings at Salem church near Gastonia on the 26th.

....Rev. R. A. Hedgpeth has been called to the pastorate at Rennert, Robeson county, for 1894. He will accept.

....It seems to be the general impression that Bro. R. T. Bryan's postoffice is Raleigh, N. C. Bro. Bryan lives at Durham.

....Our thanks are due sister J. H. Edwards for our report of the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society during the Convention.

....May the "Queen City" succeed in taking care of our Convention as well as did "Betsy Town," as Col. Creecy fondly calls Elizabeth City.

....A good brother writes that there is not one Baptist preacher in Greene county, and but one Baptist church. Here is a field for a good missionary.

....Rev. L. Johnson writes from Rockingham county that Bro. J. F. Tuttle has captured his people, and that he is rejoiced to have him as a co-worker.

....The Mt. Zion Union Meeting will be held with the First church in Durham, beginning on Friday before the fifth Sunday in December, 1893.—W. C. Tyree.

....We can sympathize with all those who couldn't attend the Convention. Before this we had not known for many years what it was to miss Convention.

....In a recent ordination notice it was stated that Rev. W. H. Riddick had been ordained. It should have read Rev. W. H. Reddish. We regret the mistake.

....We gratefully acknowledge receipt of an invitation to the marriage of Miss Sallie, daughter of Mrs. Mary Miles of Littleton, to Capt. Thos. M. Wiggins, on Dec. 20th.

....Rev. L. S. Foster, we are pleased to note, has become one of the editors of the Baptist Record, (Miss.) Bro. Foster will write occasional letters for our columns.

....The "Talks on Law" by Judge Winston, and "A Layman's Studies in the Life and Letters of Paul" by Prof. Poteat, on the first page, are specially interesting and valuable.

....The meeting recently held at Three Forks church near Horton, N. C., by Rev. J. J. L. Sherwood, assisted by Bro. Patton of Bristol, Tenn., resulted in sixteen additions to the church.

....We have on hand two articles, one from Dr. Pritchard on co-education, the other from Rev. M. P. Matheny, which we desired to publish in this issue. They will appear in our next.

....Says the Reidsville Review of the 15th: "Rev. Mr. Johnston of Lilesville has declined the call to the pastorate here. A meeting of the church will be held next week to decide on another pastor."

....Rev. J. F. Love of Suffolk, Va., has recently held a great meeting in his church at that place. He was aided partly by Rev. J. J. Hall, D. D. So far more than one hundred professions of religion have been announced.

....Howard Payne College, Texas, is badly in need of $3,000, so writes the President, Dr. Robnett, in an appeal to North Carolinians. The first president and two of the professors of Howard Payne were Wake Forest graduates.

....Rev. Chas. H. Durham, late traveling agent for the Western North Carolina Baptist, has accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church at Bryson City, Tenn. Brother Durham is a recent graduate of Wake Forest College, a young man of consecration, and an energetic worker.

....Let us see to it that when Bro. Bryan returns to China, he carries twenty recruits with him. If we do our part, if we give as we should, twenty new missionaries can be sent to China, and many others to other lands.

....Bishop Theodore Benedict Lyman, of the Episcopal church of North Carolina, died in Raleigh on the 13th inst. Bishop Lyman had been in the priesthood nearly forty years, and attained unusual distinction in his church.

....Bro. Wm B. Dowell and bride of Belle Sumpter, Ala., were in Raleigh last week. Bro. Dowell was a student of Wake Forest College a few years ago, and many of his fellow students will be glad to learn of his success.

....Miss Lonnie, youngest daughter of the late Col. L. L. Polk, died in this city on the morning of the 12th, after a lingering illness. Miss Polk led an exemplary Christian life, and died in the Lord. We warmly sympathize with the bereaved family.

....The Little River Union Meeting will be held with the church at Cumberland Union, beginning Friday, Dec. 29th, 1893. Ministers and delegates will please bear this in mind and give us a good attendance. Elder Gibbs will preach on Friday, and Elder J. A. Campbell on Sunday.—C. V. Brooks, Wake Forest, N. C., Dec. 15, 1893.

....Rev. G. M. Webb has resigned all his pastorates in Randolph county, he writes, because Pleasant Grove in Randleman, and Worthville, are now self sustaining, and the Board can do no good in Asheboro and Central Falls without houses of worship. There have been forty-one additions to the church in Bro. Webb's pastorate of this district. Bro. Webb's address will be Shelby hereafter, as he returns to his old field.

....It is always a pleasure to us to note the success of our brethren who are laboring in other States; and it is unnecessary to add that we are proud to announce that Rev. M. V. McDuffie of New Brunswick, N. J., has just received a call to supply the First church in that city. At the same time he continues to serve his own flock, but until their splendid new building is finished, he preaches to them only once on Sunday, occupying the First church pulpit twice a week. Brother McDuffie's new church edifice will be one of the finest in New Jersey when finished.

....We are pleased to clip the following from the Wilson Mirror: "Rev. Dr. J. A. Mundy, with his excellent wife and son, arrived in Wilson on Saturday, and on Sunday began his ministrations as pastor of the Baptist church. His sermons, morning and night, were of the high character which the known goodness of the man and his exalted reputation made all expect. He was greeted by a very large audience; in fact many had to turn away for want of room in the building. The Baptists must have a new church edifice."

....We have heard with sadness of the death of Prof. J. A. Delke, A. M., LL D., which occurred at Conway, S. C., on the 26th ult. Bro. Delke was a native Virginian, was educated at Wake Forest and the State University, receiving the Master's degree from the latter institution. His life was devoted to the school room, and was very useful. He occupied a professorship in Union University, Tenn., the Chair of Science and Belles Lettres at the Chowan Baptist Female Institute, and afterwards was instructor in High Point Female College. He lived to a ripe old age, honored and respected by all who knew him.

BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The time set apart for the discussion of the educational question had long been consumed ere the vote was taken. The interest with which the question is viewed all over the State, and the signal ability of the leaders of the discussion, made the hours anything but tedious. Preacher Vann's earnestness, Dr. Hufham's force, Dr. Hume's polished style and spirited manner, Dr. Taylor's powerful logic, with the interest added by Hon. J. C. Scarborough, brethren Cade, Simms and others, combined both to entertain and instruct their hearers. The resolutions printed below were passed almost unanimously. We shall speak of them editorially hereafter. The following are the resolutions:

Resolved, That we do earnestly deprecate this educational competition on the part of the State.

Resolved, That a committee of five brethren be appointed to memorialize the Legislature on this subject at the next session of that body, and that this committee be also instructed to secure, if possible, such arrangements as will leave the colleges and seminaries founded and conducted by citizens to do their work without being brought into unnecessary competition with State schools.

At three p. m. Dr. Pritchard read a touching letter from Col. J. M. Heck, well known, honored and beloved throughout the State, now very seriously sick. By request of the Convention, Dr. Carter offers a prayer in his behalf, and also for the recovery of Miss Fannie E. Heck—also very sick—who has done more for the cause than any other other young woman in North Carolina.

By invitation, Dr. James Nelson of Richmond Female College makes a short address.

By special order, at four o'clock, Dr. T. P. Bell speaks in behalf of the youngest and most vigorous Board in the Southern Baptist Convention—the Sunday-school Board. His plea for pure and worthy literature for our children should have been heard by every Baptist in the State. At the conclusion, Rev. T. J. Taylor offers a resolution, which is unanimously adopted, that our churches and Sunday-schools be urged to use the publications of the Southern Board.

The Female University was the next subject before the Convention, but on account of the near approach of night, Bro. Stringfield was compelled to defer his remarks until the night session. It is to be regretted that the press of business prevented that full discussion of this matter which its importance demands. Dr. Pritchard was clear, forcible and determined in his efforts in behalf of co-education, and deserves congratulation on putting so unfavored a matter in so favorable a light. The Doctor thinks his only trouble in this matter is that we are not "up to date."

The committee announce Charlotte as the place, Dec. 6—10, the time, and Rev. C. W. Scarboro the preacher, with Rev. T. J. Taylor, alternate, for the sixty fourth annual Convention. After a little opposition by Dr. Durham in behalf of Rutherfordton as the place, the report is adopted with general satisfaction.

SATURDAY NIGHT.

Rev. J. B. Boone reads an encouraging report on Home Missions, which is adopted after excellent speeches by Bro. Boone and Rev. C. F. McConnell. Brother McConnell seemed overflowing with divine unction, and made an address that has never been equalled on the subject in the history of the Convention. His advent in North Carolina as Secretary of the Home Board was indeed auspicious, and we are sure he carried the admiration, the love and the prayers of all who heard him away with him.

At the conclusion of Bro. McConnell's address, Rev. O. L. Stringfield tries to do justice to the

BAPTIST FEMALE UNIVERSITY,

in a half hour. His speech brought forth many interesting facts, showed encouraging progress and a hopeful outlook. Brother Stringfield is assured of the hearty co-operation of the Convention in the noble enterprise which he represents. The University must come if we are to be as true to our daughters as we are to our sons.

SUNDAY.

This was a Baptist day in and around the hospitable Convention City. Dr. Hume in the Presbyterian pulpit in the morning, Bro. Tyree at night; Dr. Pritchard before the Methodists in the morning, Dr. Carroll at night; and Bro. McConnell in the Baptist pulpit in the morning, and other noble leaders scattered over the surrounding country in smaller churches made all Pasquotank Baptist for once. We listened to Brother McConnell in the Baptist church, and though we have heard the other sermons highly praised, we congratulate ourselves on our selection. Bro. McConnell is young but powerful, and the grace and gospel which abounded in his sermon was an inspiration to us.

In the afternoon a large audience assembled to witness the eighth annual meeting of the North Carolina Baptist Historical Society. After a scholarly address by the President of the Society, Dr. Hume, and preliminary remarks by Dr. Carroll, Prof. Poteat and Dr. Hufham, the last named brother is requested to furnish a paper for the next meeting, on "Anti mission Baptists"; Prof. Poteat on such subject as he may select; Prof. L. R. Mills, on "Life and Labors of Dr. Wm. Wingate"; and Dr. Chas E. Taylor, on "Life and Labors of Rev. James S. Purefoy." Dr. Hume pays a high tribute to the memory of Bro. James A. Delke, whose death is announced.

Dr. Cobb, the speaker of the occasion, is announced. Subject—"Early Baptist History in North Carolina." Dr. Cobb's paper is a valuable contribution to our State history, and should be placed in the hands of every North Carolina Baptist. It showed great research, deep study, and great ability on the part of the writer, and will remain a lasting honor to him and the Society.

At the conclusion of the address, Dr. Cobb is unanimously elected a life member of the Society, and is thanked for his labor by Dr. Hume. Dr. Hume was elected President of Society, brethren Hilliard and Cobb, Vice-Presidents, and Bro. Caddell, Secretary.

SUNDAY NIGHT.

After devotional services conducted by Dr. Hume, Dr. R. J. Willingham, our new Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, makes his first appearance before North Carolina Baptists. He held the closest attention of the largest audience of the session for more than an hour. His address was not confined to missions, but embraced largely all benevolence. Bro. Willingham represents a great cause, and is full of the inspiration of his work. With him at the helm, we must go forward. He was followed by Bro. Bryan, whom the Chinese, speaking more wisely than they know, call "Ten Thousand Echoes from afar." Bro. Bryan's address, opening with feeling references to his first departure for China with Bro. Herring, he calls attention to the great field for work that China presents, relates many anecdotes and incidents of his recent labors, and shows the methods under which the work has gone forward. The last commission of Christ, 'Go, preach," was prominent through and through his address, which we think the best returned missionary speech we have heard.

Dr. G. W. Sanderlin read the report on Foreign Missions, which was adopted, the Doctor making appropriate remarks.

Ten minutes were allowed to hear the report of the Woman's Central Committee by Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards, which showed good work and great cause for encouragement. By special request, Rev. R. Van Deventer was allowed ten minutes to emphasize the value of, and to lend ardor to, Woman's Work. He made a stirring speech on a worthy topic. By vote, the Convention expressed its appreciation of the material aid of the sisters, and urged them to press the work. In his official capacity as Vice President of the Foreign Mission Board for North Carolina, Bro. Van Deventer introduced the speakers of the evening.

Withal, Sunday may be said to have been the field day of the Convention. Such sermons and such addresses have been seldom heard in any city in the South in one day.

MONDAY.

After devotional exercises, the Convention proceeds to business.

A vote of thanks for Rev. G. W. Greene's letter in the RECORDER is passed, and Bro. Gwaltney is requested to reply to it.

Speeches to-day, by vote, were limited to ten minutes.

It is moved and carried that the report on Obituaries be published in the minutes of the Convention without being read.

Special order: A report is read ordering that the Board of Missions and Sunday-schools consist of thirty five members appointed by Associations; that the present debt be raised by finding one hundred churches, individuals or Associations that will pay the entire amount due. Drs. Durham and Hufham make good speeches on the report, which is adopted.

The report on the Baptist Female University is next discussed by brethren R. T. Vann, J. S. Hardaway, J. W. Carter, B. Cade, T. H. Pritchard, and Thomas Hume. Resolutions highly commendatory of the object are passed.

Bro. W. T. Faircloth is elected a trustee of the Convention to succeed the lamented W. H. Pace.

AFTERNOON.

The salaries of the Secretaries of the Convention are increased from $12 50 to $25 00 each.

Rev. J. Hartwell Edwards, at the request of his church, introduces resolutions in regard to the game of foot ball, which are withdrawn at the request of Dr. Carroll, after a very timely question as to whether such things are the concern of the body. We think it a cause for general congratulation that the Convention is becoming more thorough in its work by leaving minor matters to other authorities. The Faculty of Wake Forest College are able to deal with foot-ball, and by no means should its consideration consume the time of the Convention.

By special order, the report of Ministers' Relief Board is heard. Receipts have fallen short of expectations, but the Board is encouraged in that it is apparent that interest in this most worthy object is becoming more widespread. Prof. Poteat makes a practical speech. Bro. Tyree follows with an earnest appeal in behalf of the Board, which he is requested by the body to convert into a series of articles for the RECORDER. Dr. Hufham also makes a good speech.

The committee to consider the expediency of separating the Sunday-school and Colportage work from the State Mission Board, reports favorably. Remarks are made by brethren Cade, Durham and Scarborough. The report, requiring a change of the constitution, is deferred until next year that it may receive thorough consideration. This report brought forth one of the most interesting debates of the Convention. After speeches by brethren Matheny, Carter, Hufham, Aydlett and Cade on the subject, the resolutions to separate the Boards were withdrawn.

Dr. Carroll reads the report of the Centennial Committee, showing that $5,188.80 have been received for that fund.

MONDAY NIGHT.

This was one of the most interesting sittings of the Convention. The devotional exercises are conducted by Rev. J. S Hardaway, after which the special order, Young Peoples' Societies, was announced as the subject for discussion. The committee reports in favor of a permanent State organization; but after much discussion, the question is disposed of by appointing a committee of five to write newspaper articles, letters, &c., with a view to organizing local societies. It is certain that if these local societies prove beneficial, a State organization will result. The Young Peoples' Leader, the new publication of the Southern Board, is highly endorsed. Brethren Van Deventer, Boone, Carter, Edwards, Hume, Scarborough, Cade, Hufham, Webb, Blackwell, and Pritchard took part in the discussion and contributed to the interest of the session.

The committee on State Missions make their second report through Bro. Fant, the former report having been disapproved. The second report makes no restrictions on the amount to be raised, and advises that our missionaries be paid quarterly, if the money has to be borrowed to do it. The hope is expressed that the year's work may be closed without debt. After remarks by brethren Carter, Durham, Scarborough, Fant and Vann, the report is unanimously adopted.

This being the last special order of the meeting, a few minutes were allowed for closing remarks and unfinished business.

Resolutions of thanks to the Seaboard Air Line Road are heartily passed. Never was a Convention better served by the railroads, and we do not hesitate to say that the S. A. L. will not soon be forgotten by those of the delegates who enjoyed its many courtesies.

Dr. Pritchard extends to the Convention a cordial invitation to the "Queen City." He recalled memories of forty-three years' service of this body, in none of which had it met in a more hospitable city, or had a more spiritual session. He promises that Charlotte will try to break Elizabeth City's great record.

Bro Bryan is called on to say "good-by," but rises to tell that he may not leave before another Convention.

Dr. Durham reads the names of those of the brethren who met with us last year, but are now gone to their reward. His remarks are very appropriate.

Farewells are said by brethren Hufham, Cade, Webb, and Pritchard. Bro. Broughton sings "Where He leads me I will follow." The choir sings "God be with you till we meet again," amid general handshaking, Dr. Marsh pronounces the benediction, and the Convention stands adjourned.

The following morning finds us on the way home with many happy memories of our stay in Elizabeth City, and especial gratitude to our hosts, Brother and Sister F. F. Cohoon, than whom we know none more capable of making a traveling man at home. We know we voice the sentiment of all visitors when we ask God's blessing on Elizabeth City,—"Aunt Betsy,"—and all her relatives.

CONVENTION NOTES.

The State Mission Board met during the session of the Convention.

The two speeches made by Bro. J. B. Boone were among the best made on their subjects.

It was not the purpose of the Convention to turn the hands backward, as was shown in the discussion of State Missions.

Bro. R. T. Bryan and Bro. Willingham made stirring talks to the Woman's Missionary Society during Convention.

Bro. T. T. Speight was anxious to speak on Periodicals. He says the RECORDER has never been so good as for the last year.

The purpose of the Convention seems to be to unload things, so as to give more thorough discussion to the original objects.

Bro. A. D. Hunter has lost none of his interest in the "Old North State." We hope to see him at home before a great while.

Dr. Marsh never presided as well as at the last Convention. His smiles and the sharp rap of his gavel were equally shared by all.

The Elizabeth City choir, lead by Sister Aydlett, furnished splendid singing for the Convention. The solos were splendidly executed and greatly enjoyed.

Dr. Overby was among the wise ones who kept silent during the Convention. Perhaps he thought to save his speeches for a convention farther away from home.

We were all sorry that brethren B S. Peterson and O. C. Horton were confined to their rooms by sickness, and were not able to share at all the meetings of the Convention.

There were hardly two brethren present who did more to make the meeting than did our secretaries. They not only deserve our thanks, but they ought to be better paid for their work.

Dr. Blackwell and his people deserve the highest praise for the ample accommodation which they provided for the Convention. They could have cared for six hundred delegates easily.

Dr. Pritchard enjoyed the Convention greatly. He is in the best of health and exhibited throughout the meeting the same kind and generous spirit which has made for him so many strong friends and admirers wherever he is known.

The failure to establish a separate Board for Sunday schools was not the fault of any one, but because there was not a quorum present when the report was brought in; otherwise this would have been done with little or no opposition.

Bro. Van Deventer is constantly growing in zeal for Foreign Missions. He is very much interested in the organization of the young people, about which he will let the readers of the RECORDER hear from time to time during the coming year.

On every hand we heard persons approaching the committee on hospitality and demanding that their company be sent to them at once. More than one hundred homes were left without company. This was the only complaint we heard about the Convention—more homes than delegates.

Those who attend the Convention hereafter will hope to see present Dr. J. W. Carter of the First church in Raleigh. His introductory sermon was a masterpiece and put the Convention off in a good gait. His speech on State Missions cheered the faint and strengthened the already strong.

The unfinished business of the Convention, as it impressed the writer, was the failure to answer the positions taken by Bro. Vann, Dr. Taylor, and Bro. Gwaltney in their speeches on Education. By the way, these are the sort of speeches to make. Nothing either in war or in peace is to be accomplished by weak leadership.

On the way to the Convention, we chanced to hear two preachers talking. One said, "I am going to prepare for publication a sermon on the subject of eternal punishment." Then he outlined the points to be developed, and the other brother remarked, "I hope you will write the very best sermon you can on this subject, and when you are through, burn it at once."

Dr. J. L. Carroll knows two things which are to be coveted—when to talk, and how to do it. His speech on the RECORDER will be remembered in the years to come. It came the nearest of anything to compensating for the absence of the editor which was so much deplored by the brethren who asked with so much interest, "How is Bro. Bailey?"

Much of the smooth running of the Convention came from the wise and judicious management of Bro. Hobgood, and the other members of the committee on "order of business." There were few changes made in the program they presented, and every one was especially pleased with the interesting services which this committee provided for Sunday.

Bro. C. A. G. Thomas, just as he had commenced to enjoy the Convention and a reunion with the members of his old flock at Elizabeth City, was summoned away by the serious sickness of his father.

Brethren Morton, Lamberth, Sproles, Tyree and Wilder occupied the batchelor corner at the Convention. Bro. John Mitchell, too, was with them and seemed to be more patient under suffering than any of the others.

Bro. C. W. Scarboro, in a very earnest speech, enquired how it was possible for a country pastor to organize the young people in his churches; and in spite of himself disclosed to the Convention that he had made a great success in this direction, having for seven years in one of his churches an interesting and successful weekly prayer-meeting. This was one of the few instances where a man's work has gone ahead of his speeches.

ECHOES OF CONVENTION SPEECHES.

Christian enthusiasm is God in us.—Hufham.

It is a great thing to be on the ground first.—Carter.

In all the years that I have been a pastor, not a young man has left my congregations for any other but Wake Forest College. If pastors do their duty, we need have no fears.—Hufham.

We are lowering the very standard that saved Wake Forest, by lowering the duty of the citizen to the State. As North Carolinians we owe a debt to the University that we should gladly pay.—Hume.

The present educational policy is wrong in principle; it is directly antagonistic to our Baptist ideas I am glad to know that the State believes in evangelical education, but it must not go so far as to drive out all other agencies.—Vann.

If one fourth of the amount that we Baptists are going to throw away in the next three weeks were given to Missions, every nickle of our debt will be paid, and many new missionaries will be crossing the water in two months.—Willingham.

The finest financiers on earth are the North Carolina preachers. They can live better on less money than any class on earth. If our national Ways and Means Committee at Washington had consisted of North Carolina Baptist preachers, we would have the most equitable tariff laws possible.—Hufham.

Third Annual Meeting of the Womans' Missionary Union, Auxiliary to the North Carolina Baptist State Convention.

Friday morning, Dec. 8th, was bright and beautiful in Elizabeth City, as the ladies assembled for their annual meeting in the newly completed annex of the Baptist church.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. J. H. Edwards, who also, as first Vice-President, called the meeting to order in the absence of Miss Heck, the President.

After enrollment of delegates, the following officers were elected for this meeting: President, Mrs. J. H. Edwards of Fayetteville; First Vice-President, Mrs. H. B. Duffy of Newbern; Second Vice President, Mrs. Trueblood of Elizabeth City; Secretary, Miss Grace Brown of Murfreesboro; Treasurer, Mrs. E. F. Aydlett of Elizabeth City.

Mrs. Trueblood extended the hospitalities of the city to the visiting ladies, Mrs. F. H. Martin of Lumberton responding in their behalf.

The annual report of the President of the Central Committee was read by Mrs. Edwards. It was a great grief to the ladies and, to our beloved President that she was unable to be with us, but was detained at home by serious illness, and many earnest prayers were offered for her speedy recovery. The following telegram was received from Miss Heck:—

"Greetings. See 2 Thess. 1: 11, 12."

The ladies requested the Secretary to send a telegram to Miss Heck expressing their sympathy and love for her. Rom. 5: 3-5.

The Secretary of the Central Committee being absent, Mrs. Martin read her report. This report was very gratifying. It showed a gain of more than a thousand dollars over last year. Total amount this year, $4,953 71. After the reports from Societies, the meeting adjourned until Saturday.

On Saturday morning, after devotional exercises, Dr. Willingham, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, talked to the ladies. His words were very encouraging. He impressed upon us the power of mites, and urged us to go forward. He said God honors us in calling us to do this work.

Dr. Bell next spoke to us about the importance of training children and getting them interested in church work, because so much depends upon them in the future. He emphasized the importance of the Christmas offering.

Our loved missionary, Bro. Bryan, next gave us an informal talk, answering questions, etc.

The meeting then adjourned till Monday morning.

On Monday the ladies met at 10 o'clock. After devotional exercises, conducted by Mrs. Martin, they talked about Home Missions and the importance of sending boxes to the home missionaries.

A paper on the week of prayer was read by Mrs. Edwards.

Dr. Durham then spoke about State Missions. He believes that State Missions underlie every other department of mission work. The hope of the heathen depends on the work of the churches at home. He showed the rapid development of the work in some sections.

On Monday afternoon Mr. Bryan talked to the ladies at the Methodist church. He had a crowded house, and thrilled all hearts as he sketched the life of a Chinese woman from infancy to old age.

The Holy Spirit was in all our meetings; we were drawn nearer to Him and to each other.

Resolutions of heartfelt thanks were tendered to the Baptist ladies and to the ladies of other churches for making our stay at Elizabeth City so pleasant. All who were present were thrilled with enthusiasm for the work of the coming year, and an earnest purpose to do more for the blessed Master.

The Making of Organs.

One of the most delicate of all mechanical operations is the construction of a pipe organ. To produce instruments that are architecturally beautiful, responsive to the lightest touch, and rich and mellow in their tone is a significant triumph.

Mr. M. P. Moller of Hagerstown, Md., has solved the problem wonderfully well. The products of his works include Concert, Church and Chamber Pipe and Cabinet Organs, all of which have stood the test of time.

Mr. Moller offers to furnish drawings and full particulars free, an offer worth accepting.

Consul General A. D. Jones of Wake county to Shanghai, China, becoming insane, was sent home, being placed on a steamer for that purpose. He became furious and had to be overpowered and manacled. He died while on the way on the 9th inst., and the remains will be brought to Raleigh for burial. He was very popular and in vigorous health when he left for Shanghai. His death is much deplored.

Wake Forest Letter.

A large and appreciative audience met in the chapel on the evening of the 15th inst. to hear declamations from students elected by the Societies. The Euzelian Society was represented by Messrs. Bruce Benton, R. T. Daniel, J. H. Kerr and I. M. Meekins, and the Philomathesian by Messrs. R. O. Fry, T. B. Hill, J. W. McNeill, and J. R. Stokeley. The declamations were all exceptionally good. There was a marked absence of any attempt to be dramatic in style or expression and every speaker showed an ease of manner and a naturalness of delivery, highly creditable in college students. It is the general opinion that better declamations were never delivered here. After the exercises in the chapel, everybody was invited to the "Hall," and a delightful hour was spent by the young folks, and older ones, too, strolling through the brilliantly lighted and beautifully furnished Halls and the Library. The speaking was continued, but on what subjects and with what measure of success, the writer cannot tell.

The Societies are making arrangements for similar entertainments in the future to be participated in by representatives chosen from certain classes. The zeal with which the students perform their society duties cannot fail to be highly gratifying to all friends of the College, and will surely bear rich fruit in the production of clear thinkers and forcible speakers.

The next issue of the Wake Forest Student, which will be out in a few days will contain an excellent article from Prof. Sledd on "Fairy Tales their Origin and History." It will also contain a letter written by Mr. J. C. Dockery, while a student here in 1885, to Mr. Sanders Ingraham of Richmond county who afterwards became a student and who still lives and feels a deep interest in his alma mater. The letter will be read with great interest because it throws much light on student life in those old days when all letters had to be mailed at Rolesville six miles from here.

At the last meeting of the Education Board, Rev. W. R. Gwaltney, the faithful and efficient Corresponding Secretary, resigned and Dr. John Mitchell was chosen as his successor. Bro. Gwaltney resigned the position because he found its labors in addition to his pastoral duties too burdensome. The Board has never had a more faithful or devoted representative. During the last few months when the outlook has been gloomy and the work of the Board impeded by the financial panic, he has succeeded in interesting a number of individuals in the work to the extent of supporting each a young minister here. The feature begun by him so successfully will, we hope, be more widely extended in the future. Dr. Mitchell is known and loved by every Baptist in the State. In his hands our work is safe.

In the absence of pastor Gwaltney on Sunday last, Prof. Lanneau conducted services. His theme was the "Pulpit and the Home" or the pastoral duties of the preacher.

Rev. R. A. Moore one of the faithful pastors of the Robeson Association spent a day or two at the College on his return from the Convention and conducted religious services in the chapel Wednesday morning. He reports that two or three new students expect to come from Robeson in January.

Mount Zion Union Meeting.

The Mount Zion Union Meeting will convene with the brethren of the First Baptist church, Durham, N. C., on Friday before the fifth Sunday in December, 1893. Bro. J. L. Carroll will preach the sermon at seven o'clock p. m. Organization at ten o'clock a. m.

1. The need of preaching more about the Holy Spirit. Bro. W. C. Tyree leading.

2. Does the introduction of societies for our young people into our churches add to its spiritual growth? Bro. Geo. J. Dowell leading.

3. Does indebtedness to men excuse a Christian from giving to the Lord? Bro. J. L. Carroll leading.

4. The outlook of our Associational Mission work. Bro. J. C. Hocutt leading.

It is earnestly desired by the Executive Committee that all the churches send up delegates, and don't forget, brethren, our indebtedness to the brethren who are laboring in destitute sections, and bring up contributions for them.

That Forty Thousand-Dollar Debt.

Dear Recorder:—After the live, earnest meeting of the Convention, there is much of interest that I could write to your paper, but my heart just now is filled with this great question, which you have so earnestly presented to the people, of raising the forty thousand dollar debt, which is upon our Board. I want to thank the editors of your paper for their ringing words so strongly put, and wish every pastor throughout the State would echo them from the pulpit. If so, much would be accomplished. Let not the brethren think that $40,000 is a big burden for 1,250,000 Southern white Baptists. One week's denial on useless luxuries will pay the debt and leave money in the Lord's treasury.

Brethren of North Carolina, God has honored you in calling out men and women from your borders, and now may you honor him in coming up nobly to his work. We want to begin 1894 out of debt and prepared to send back large reinforcements with Bro. R. T. Bryan when he returns to China next fall. Let every pastor and individual member come up and do what each one can. If only this is done, we need not ask for more.

Fraternally, R. J. WILLINGHAM.
Corresponding Secretary.

N. B. We want to pay the debt in December and ask the aid of every [illegible] North Carolina.

A Few Items.

Dear Recorder:—I have thought that I would write you some time, but press of duties has caused postponement from time to time. I find a few minutes this morning, and give you a few items.

THE ELKIN ASSOCIATION.

I attended this body at its recent session at Rocky Creek church. It was well attended. Elders Fields and Gwynn, the moderator and clerk, transacted the business with dispatch, yet with courtesy to all. The spirit of the body was excellent. The churches are not doing much for the various objects of the denomination, yet there has been improvement, and the hearty good will manifested, is a prophecy for better results in the near future. Wilkes county is a Baptist community, and if these Baptists were united and the churches developed it would be a power in our denomination. The territory occupied by the Elkin Association is occupied also by another Association, the Primitive, which has about as many churches, and whose Articles of Faith are identical. Some brethren of that body in accepting seats said they did not know what is keeping the two bodies apart. Personal difficulties seem to be the main obstacle to union. The Lord remove the troubles and unite the churches.

Brother Herndon, who has a fine military school at Moravian Falls, young Bro. Myers, the assistant teacher of Bro. H. when he was at Vashti, and the writer addressed the body on the important question of education. The writer took position against appropriation by the Legislature for education, except for the common schools.

Several expressed approval of the positions taken. It is the purpose of the writer to give his views through your columns soon.

There was not a representative of any of our denominational enterprises present. Bro. Peterson of the North Carolina Baptist was present, and the RECORDER was represented by Prof. Hendren of Moravian Falls.

The hospitality of the people was unbounded and advancement was made on all lines.

ABBOTT'S CREEK CHURCH.

My regular appointment at this dear old church was on Saturday before the third Sunday in November. On Sunday the writer preached to a vast assemblage. The meeting continued until the next Friday, when two were baptized. Bro. H. Sheets, dearly beloved by pastor and people, came on Monday, and did effectual work both in the pulpit and out of it. The church was greatly revived, and one other received for baptism. He and his wife will probably be baptized the next third Sunday. Many were interested and are seeking the Lord and will be saved and come into the church.

My pastorate closes with them on the third Sunday. I have never served a better people. They love me much more than I deserve, and many of them give me up with great reluctance. Bro. Hilliard, the pastor-elect, will find a noble band of brethren and sisters.

MOUNTAIN VIEW CHURCH.

I reached home the fourth Sunday morning in time to preach. The meeting still continues. There are a number of penitents, and we will receive some.

While we are in a community wholly Baptist, the Antimissionary sentiment is strong. It will take patient sowing before much reaping can be done. The meeting will continue some days.

BLUE RIDGE INSTITUTE.

This institution is in a prosperous condition. The prospects are good for large increase and for permanency.

Church Organized.

A presbytery consisting of Elders I. T. Newton, J. V. Deveny and C. J. F. Anderson, met at Sanford, N. C., Sunday night, December 3d, 1893, for the purpose of organising a Baptist church.

After devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. I. T. Newton, the presbytery organized by electing Bro. Newton, Chairman, and the writer, Secretary.

Letters containing the names of fifteen brethren and sisters from Cool Springs and Apex Baptist churches, were presented, read, and approved.

A church covenant was read and adopted by the members.

The presbytery then declared these brethren and sisters a New Testament church, and the hand of fellowship was extended.

Bro. Deveny addressed the members in regard to their obligations to one another, and to the unsaved.

Prayer was offered by Bro. Newton, congregation joined in singing the doxology, and the writer pronounced the benediction.

C. J. F. ANDERSON.

Sanford, Dec. 4, 1893.

Not the memory, but the man, must be fed. If this were not so, it would be appalling to think of the number of good sermons one has heard and forgotten. But many a text or a sermon has lost its identity to the memory to pass into the character of him who forgets it. It is often of value to remember words and phrases, but it is even better to assimilate their truth that it may live in character.—Sunday school Times.

Brown Mountain and Westfield Meetings.

Brown Mountain church, eight miles east of Pilot Mountain, in Pilot Mountain Association, is one of our most promising churches in Western North Carolina.

Within easy reach of the church, there are not less than five hundred lost souls, many of whom are citizens of good means.

Recently it was my joyous privilege to aid the faithful pastor of this church, Bro. R. M. Loftis, in a meeting which resulted in about forty-five bright conversions and thirty accessions to the church. Others will come into the church soon. And now, with exultant delight, do I report a glorious meeting of twelve days at Westfield, Pilot Mountain Association. The worthy pastor, Bro. Beamer, was not permitted to attend the meeting on account of the sad illness of his wife, but at the request of the church we continued the meeting from the third Sunday in November till yesterday. Bro. R. M. Loftis ably assisted us two days, preaching four sermons, earnest and very convincing. He completely captured the people. The church was unusually aroused, and there were about twenty happy professions. Yesterday, that lovely, sunny thanksgiving day, it was my happy task to bury sixteen with Christ in baptism. After administering this ordinance, a large crowd gathered at the church and engaged in a praise and thanksgiving service. Many of the new converts testified for Jesus and also prayed in public. One very intelligent boy, Johnny Marion, aged ten years, was saved in this meeting. He not only stood up and spoke bravely and well for Christ, but the following public prayer that he offered will never be forgotten: "O God, I thank thee that thou hast saved my soul. I thank thee for thy presence in the baptismal water. Blessed Saviour, I thank thee for saving so many other souls in this meeting. And now we pray thee to save every one who wants to be saved. All this I ask for Christ's sake Amen." His round, clear voice rang all over the church. The prayer was so pathetic that it moved the congregation to tears. Thank God for such soldiers of Christ. To Jesus be all the glory.

Sincerely, I. S. BOYLES.

Oxford Female Seminary.

Thanksgiving brought a rare treat to the people of Oxford as the Calliopian Society of the Oxford Female Seminary had an entertainment which gave the patrons and friends of the institution an exceptional and highly entertaining evening.

The program, which was rather unique, caused some little wonder, as an Art exhibit is not so usual an occurrence for Oxford as an entertainment with music and elocution. Not that this "hour with artists" was wholly devoted to the exhibition of classic paintings and statuary, for the departments of Music, Elocution and Physical Culture played equally prominent parts. Miss Poteat, who has charge of the department of Art, showed her skill in the selection and artistic arrangement of the various pictures and renowned pieces of statuary.

First on the program was the "Picture Gallery." An unmistakable murmur of surprise and delight was heard when the curtain folded back and disclosed the various pictures, artistically arranged on the stage. "Evangeline," "Daughter of the Sun," "A Study in Red," "Grandma's Portrait," "Charlotte Corday," and "Hebe" were all presented on their several easels, and it was almost impossible for any one to reconcile the beautiful and sad faces of these world-famed personages, with the familiar faces of the school-girls, so well did they assume the several personalities. The entire audience showed their appreciation of this evidence of artistic skill, and the girls themselves seemed surprised that they could possess such beauty and artistic grace.

Following this, in due time came the various pieces of statuary and the elaborate tableaux. The calcium lights brought out the marble beauty and artistic drapery of the groups of statuary, "Advantage and Despair," and "Music, Poetry and Art," which were highly appreciated, not only because of their uniqueness, but also because of their true merit as exceptional works of Art.

The tableaux, "Alexis and Cleopatra," "The Fates," "The Judgment of Paris" were classics in conception, and were well carried out. The modern school-girl figured well as the old Grecian characters of mythology, and in her ancient and queenly costumes brought vividly to the minds of the beholders, the old Egyptian and Grecian legends.

The Art department of this Seminary is perceptibly increasing in attractiveness, and is now one of the most fascinating features of the school.

The music pupils also excelled themselves, and reflected glory not only on their own diligence and talent, but also upon their instructor, Miss Marvin, whose reputation is already known, as she has been teaching among us for some time. The girls showed clearly with what care they had been taught, and the classic pieces which they played were duly appreciated. Miss Marvin herself favored us that evening with one instrumental, and one vocal selection. They were received with genuine pleasure, as only real musical talent and skill can awake in us, feelings of the sublime and beautiful.

Another attractive feature of the evening was the Delsarte Pantomime, "Voice of Spring." Eight girls figured in this graceful pantomime, and their long flowing robes, and easy, graceful movements excited the admiration of all who saw them. For the past year or two, Miss Rountree has had charge of this department, and the success of her work has been continually portrayed in the entertainments which in these pantomimes have here enjoyed.

The recitations more than met the high expectations of the audience. One of the pupils gave one, and Miss Dixon, the teacher of elocution, gave two, one in response to a very hearty encore. Her fine expression, her rich, flexible voice, her graceful movements, and true appreciation of the elocutionist's art combine greatly to please her audience.

The School of Elocution was never in so prosperous a condition as now.

After this interesting program, the usual Thanksgiving Reception was held, and through the reception rooms, there were many groups of bright, happy girls in their youthful strength, and enjoying the short season of social intercourse.

We should be grateful that this institution is opened for our daughters, where they can learn Christian culture and refinement, not only by precept, but by example. Here they can fit themselves for any station in life, and the parents can always feel sure that their daughters are receiving the kindest care, and also the benefits of the best instruction of any similar institution. The entertainment on Thanksgiving evening was the first outward evidence of the work and progress which has been going on during the year, and it was in every respect gratifying to the patrons and friends of the Seminary.

Plain Preaching.

The opinion has somehow got abroad in the land that the preaching from the orthodox pulpits of the country is not so positively and pointedly plain in these days as was the preaching of a generation ago. It may be difficult to determine how true this is, or to what extent it is true; but there is some reason to think that there is a good deal of truth in the assertion that the old-time preaching was sterner, more positively direct, and distinctly personal, as a general thing, than is the preaching of the present day. Perhaps the milder type of preaching which very largely prevails to-day is owing to the apparently increasing acceptance, on the part of the young ministry, of milder views of Divine justice and God's wrath against sin, and a disposition to make more of the love of God than the preachers of fifty years ago did. But however we may account for it, the question naturally arises, "Is not plain preaching—preaching which touches upon the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and the sinner's perilous attitude, and his really fearful responsibility—is not such just as necessary now as it ever was?' And is there not just as great a need of so preaching that every hearer, guilty of positive and repeated disobedience against God, shall feel that the indictment means, "Thou art the man," as was such need in the days of old?

What right has any preacher to think that the nature of sin, in any form, has changed, becoming less malignant and offensive to God, and less damaging to the soul since the days of Noah, Moses, David and Paul? None at all. Sin is the same, and God is the same as ever; and there is just as great a need of the plainest and most positive preaching now as there ever was; and it was always needed. This course of thought has been suggested by a fresh reading of the plain speaking of Moses to the Israelites in different places, and especially in the ninth chapter of Deuteronomy, where, among other things, he says: "Understand, therefore, that the Lord thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness; for thou art a stiff necked people. Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the Lord thy God to wrath in the wilderness: from the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the Lord."

One cannot fail to see in much that Moses at different times said that he used "great plainness of speech" while dealing with the Israelites. And yet we must not suppose that there was such an austerity in his tones as to make him appear like a fierce autocrat. Plain speaking does not necessarily imply that one should be full of frowns and belch forth torrents of wrath. On the contrary, a preacher may and should speak with evident tenderness and sorrow while declaring the plainest and most personal truths. There should be an air of regret that he is obliged, by the necessities of the situation, to say the disagreeable words which sin has occasioned. In this way the preacher makes it manifest that he is simply fulfilling a painful duty, which is laid upon him by virtue of his relation to God as a bounden servant, and also by reason of the fact that he feels under obligation to warn his fellowmen of the consequence of unrepented sin, and of their need of seeking refuge in the atoning blood of a crucified Redeemer. There is great need of plain preaching in the Spirit of Christ.—Christian Secretary.

The First Called.

The story of Andrew, the humble and inconspicuous youth, the first to hear the voice of the Son of God calling him to a higher and holier fellowship, contains a lesson for all Christian workers. It teaches us the importance of a personal preparation and equipment for our work. He sought this in the best light possible at the time. As a disciple of John, with eyes ever turned to the dawn, he could not fail to recognize the rising of the Sun of Righteousness. His relations with John and with Christ made an important part of his preparation. Like Andrew, the Christian worker must come into intimate relations with the Great Teacher. This personal and intimate communion with the Saviour will constitute his best preparation to enter the harvest field. With Andrew there was not only an adequate preparation: he actually began work as a part of his preparation. He was not a mere camp follower, subsisting on the rations of the soldiers without doing any fighting. Service was tke alpha of his religion; he first found his own brother Simon and brought him to Christ.

About his service two points are worthy of note: The first is that he labored to secure individuals. Without waiting to capture a multitude, he sought out and led to Christ his one man. Here he touched the secret of the most effective Christian service. There are expert marksmen, able to take the game on the wing and in flocks; there are others, less expert, who must have a rest and take careful aim at a single object. Andrew's brother Peter could fire into a flock and bring down three thousand at one shot. Though Andrew could perform no such feat, he could do a greater thing in reaching Simon himself. The devils do not always move in platoons; they must often be sought in detail and overcome by the single Christian soldier. If you would promote the work of God and secure a revival of genuine religion, imitate this first of the disciples of the Lord by individual effort to gain individuals. One a day for twenty days is better than twenty gained in one day. Every one can follow Andrew's method, even if unable to follow that of his brother.

But, second, the case of Andrew suggests the field in which we can best operate. You may be able to do nothing among strangers and out in the open world; there is always a narrower circle where you can operate to advantage. The home circle may be touched at once. There they know you and believe in you; there you may speak when every other door is closed. Possibly no one save Andrew could have reached Simon. Every one has his circle of friends or of persons with whom he has influence. There is his field. Let each believer exert his influence in these narrow circles, and the world will soon be reached.—Zion's Herald.

The Little Shoes.

"I am utterly discouraged," said a woman with a living to earn and two small children to support and clothe to the Philadelphia Times. "The item of shoes alone for those young hopefuls of mine is almost as much as I can stagger under, let alone frocks, caps, food and the hundred and one things two restless, active little bodies seem to demand every hour in the day. If they were only quiet I would be so happy, but they never stand still a minute. It is hop, jump, skip, until I am inclined to tie them down to keep those aggressive little toes from pushing their way forward through the leather."

"Don't say that," said a quiet woman in black. "I used to feel exactly the same way, and one day I did tie my little boy in his chair, though he pleaded so hard to be allowed to go out, but I felt that I could not bear to see his shoes being scuffed out when money came so hard to buy the new ones. You see I was too proud to let him run barefoot, so made the poor little man sit in the high chair by the window with tears in the baby eyes, a sorrowful droop to the tender mouth and an impatient kicking of the little feet deprived of shoes against the rounds. I can see that dejected little figure yet, for I have no baby now. That night he commenced to cough and in three days the little feet lay still, encased in the new shoes that looked so dark and shining against the lining of a small, white casket that stood in the same room where my boy had pleaded so hard to be allowed to run and play. I long for those tiny, faltering steps now, when all the house is still, when no bill for little shoes stares me in the face and all that is left me to tell of the past is a little pair of worn out boots, each one with a hole kicked through by the hurrying feet that have gone down the narrow path to the grave. Worry not about the wear and tear on the baby's boots. Let them run; let them kick out the toes, even though the drain is great on a purse not over strong; revel in the merry din their clatter produces, for the day will come when you listen in vain for the patter of little feet that will sound within your home never again."

There will come times when you are tempted to great sin which will appear to you absolutely safe from discovery, and not likely to inflict the slightest injury on your fortunes. In such circumstances nothing will sustain you if you do not respect your own nature and stand in awe of your own conscience. Nay, even this is not enough; the only effective defense is that of one who was sorely tempted in this very way, "How can I do this great wickedness and sin against God?" There are secret battles fought and victories won on this ground, never heard of on earth, but essentially more glorious than many victories which are trumpeted far and wide by the breath of fame. There is more of courage and manhood needed for them than for walking up to the cannon's mouth. Walking up to the cannon's mouth! Many a soldier could do that who could not say "No" to two or three companions pressing him to enter the canteen. Not long ago I was speaking to a soldier who told me that many a time in the barracks he was the only man to go down on his knees out of twenty or thirty; and he did it among showers of oaths and derision. Do you think walking up to the cannon's mouth would have been difficult to that man? Such victories have no record on earth; but be sure of this, they are widely heard of in heaven, and there is One there who will not forget them.—Rev. James Stalker, D. D.

Woman's Missionary Departmen

President Woman's Central Committee of North Carolina, MISS FANNIE E. HECK, Raleigh, N. C.; Secretary, MRS. J. A. BRIGGS, Raleigh, N. C.

The Southern Baptist Convention at its late session in Nashville, Tenn., extended the time of the Centennial of Missions until the close of this year. The Centennial Record Book will also be kept open until that time. It is hoped that renewed efforts will be made for this work, and the Woman's Central Committee of Missions will gladly supply Centennial Missionary Literature, Centennial Chapel Cards, Centennial Day Programs, and Centennial Certificates, free. All who are already entitled to Centennial Certificates can obtain them at once on application. If after application the Certificates are not received within a reasonable time, please renew your application, as some loss may have occurred in the mails. Address Miss Fannie E. Heck, Pres. Woman's Central Committee of Missions, Raleigh, N. C.

New Year's Day in China.

Although much has been written about the Chinese New Year, much remains unsaid, especially with reference to the religious character of the day and its philosophical significance. We all know that the first day of the New Year is one of universal rejoicing in the Chinese Empire, and that elaborate preparations are made for its fitting celebration. But how few are aware that it has a deep meaning for the people, and that it has uses far nobler than the exchange of presents, or even the settlement of debts.

The New Year's Day of the Chinese does not come on the American first day of January. The Chinese month is a lunar month of twenty-nine or thirty days each; and twelve lunar months make a lunar year. Now, every third year is a leap year, which has an extra month tacked on in order to make three lunar years of three hundred and fifty-five days each, equal to three solar years. Each year is numbered from the accession of the reigning emperor. Our next New Year's Day, accordingly, will come on the 16th of February. Why, then, write about that which is so far off? Simply because one cannot help taking a reminiscent turn at times, and the American New Year has recalled a whole train of recollections of my childhood. O days of innocence and sweetmeats, of firecrackers and joy unalloyed, of burnt fingers and stomach aches! You have gone, never to return. But Memory has photographed you, one by one, and with her magic lantern will project your images on the curtain of my mind's eye.

It is safe to say that no people makes more of New Years than the Chinese, for the reason that no Christmas comes a week before to surpass it in importance, or outshine it in sacredness. It is the most sacred day on our calendar, and ushers in a whole week of holy days, during which all labor is suspended, except what is absolutely necessary. This holiday season of the Chinese is, therefore, a sort of Sabbath; as they work the rest of the time without cessation and with unabated industry, the New Year holidays come to them as a welcome season of rest, relaxation and indulgence in social and convivial pleasures.

Their religious character is attested in various ways. For instance, the temples are thronged from dawn to midnight by faithful worshippers; people in general make a point of being pleasant to everybody. They allow their servants more liberty, give largely to charity, and propitiate the gods by fasting. The Chinese kind of fasting consists not in the eating of "cold victuals," but the eschewing of all animal food. A vegetable diet prevails throughout the country—for the first day. The second day witnesses the slaughter of innumerable hogs, geese, ducks and chickens. For, having satisfied their religious instincts, the people next give themselves up to gastronomic enjoyments.

But let me go back a little and tell you what preparations are made for the proper observance of the day. In the first place, housekeepers indulge themselves in a general house cleaning. The family altar is newly decorated with artificial flowers and scrolls of red paper inscribed with moral maxims. These scrolls are hung up or pasted all over the house with a lavish hand, and lend an appearance of gayety to palace or hut. Such sentiments as the following meet the eye everywhere: "May riches increase before me;" "May the new spring be immensely lucky and ten thousand things surpass our wishes;" "May prosperous friends be like the clouds (in number), and lofty associates fill up the seats."

Every person aims to wear new clothes, shoes, and cap, in honor of the day. People are exempted from this requirement only by poverty or death in the family. Much money is spent for dress and for sweetmeats, firecrackers and flowers, such as the chrysanthemum and the sacred lily. Food and drink also must be provided for, since stores are closed during the holidays, and merchants, as well as their clerks, are inclined to take it easy.

It is a point of honor with the Chinese to pay their debts before the dawning of another year if they can. If not, the debtor must crave time or come to some settlement with his creditor. Otherwise, he may expect the latter to go to his house, and, as the phrase goes, "cuss him out"—an act which is sure to bring him ill luck ever afterward. The spoken language of China is rich in profane words and words which vilify. In this element of civilization, at least, the Chinese do not allow themselves to be excelled by Anglo Saxons. I am not certain whether the creditor's storm of vituperation can overwhelm the debtor with bad luck or not; but this is sure, the debtor avoids it if possible. I know of many who used to hide themselves until the storm blows over; for it is bound to subside before New Year's Day. It is believed that if that day is spent pleasantly and without friction with our fellow creatures, so will the rest of the year be happy and prosperous. So even if a man on this day meets his greatest enemy, he will exchange a pleasant word with him.

The last hours of the old year are consumed in wrapping up money in pieces of red paper to be given to servants and children the next morning. These largesses are called "li se," or "good luck," and each paper contains from four cash, which are equivalent to about half a cent, up to as many dollars. The givers load their persons with these packages of coin, and deal out to each servant or child as the latter salute them with the kow tow, wishing them the "joys of the New Year." Children are given as much of sweetmeats—i. e., dried fruits, preserves, and nut candy as they can eat. They have, besides, an unstinted allowance of fire crackers.

A great many watch the old year out, and welcome the New Year in. Food of all kinds may be offered to the household gods and then eaten by the worshippers—an arrangement that is satisfactory to all concerned, since the gods only eat the essence of the tempting viands, while the substance remains for the good of their devotees.

An immense burst of firecrackers, accompanied by a terrific din, announces that the New Year has come. Greetings are exchanged, new clothes are donned, and children and servants are made full of glee by presents. You see red color predominating everywhere except in houses of mourning, for red is the color of joy and of good luck. While the noise of the fireworks (as the Chinese believe) has scared away evil spirits, we may sip our tea and munch melon seeds with comfort; and yet one would naturally suppose that evil spirits have got used to fireworks by this time.

As one walks through the streets all shades of red meet him on every hand—in the dresses of children, on the walls, and on beautiful lanterns hung up in front of every building. You see joy and good will reflected from every countenance. Even the beggar rejoices, for he knows that he will not be forgotten. On this festival day sorrow must wear a cheerful aspect, and carking care forsake the haunts of man.

There is no doubt that with the wholesome enjoyments come also hurtful practices, such as gambling and undue indulgence in meat and wine. But I should like to know what people is free from them. With the Chinese as with other nations, the New Year's day marks a new epoch in each individual's life. New resolutions are formed to do better—to leave off bad habits and to live virtuously thereafter. But, alas! how soon are such resolutions broken. The awakened conscience goes to sleep again ere long, and noble aspirations are buried, to be resurrected a year hence. So helpless is unhelped humanity!—Rev. Yan Phou Lee, B. A., in Nashville Advocate.

Letter from Brasil.

Dear Bro. Bailey:—Last night (Sunday) I preached my first sermon in Portuguse to the little church here in this city. Enclosed I send you the outline of it in English. Of course it is short and simple, but this is just what these people need. Last week we received and baptised two new members,—a young public school teacher and his wife. I just wish you could have heard him relate his Christian experience. He said that he had thoroughly tried the Catholic church and had found it to be false. He then tried to embrace the views of infidility and atheism, but soon saw that this would not do; he then came in contact with spiritualism (which, by the way, is taking a strong hold on these people) but it immediately proved to be a sham. But at last he heard the gospel from one of our missionaries, and he felt that this was exactly what he needed and was looking for. He soon realized that he was a lost sinner and at last found life and peace by trusting Jesus. He said that he wished to be baptized in order to show the world that he was not ashamed of the Savior. He says that he is not afraid to follow Jesus though several of his family connections are Catholic priests. After finishing this letter I go to visit him, and at his request will carry him a Bible, a copy of the New Testament and two hymn books—one for himself and one for his wife.

Senhor Jeronymo, the young native preacher, who has been preaching here, has gone to Barbacena a town of about 2,000 inhabitants about one hundred miles from here. He will preach there regularly, while I will carry on the work here.

The revolt in Rio still continues. The city of Nietheroy, just across the bay from Rio, has been almost ruined and depopulated. The church there has disbanded and some of the members have moved to Rio, while Bro. Ginsburg, the pastor, has gone to Campos to take charge of our work there. Bro. Taylor, pastor of the Rio church, has not missed a service on account of the revolution. He writes me that the congregations are good and he has recently received two new members.

I was in Rio two weeks ago and there were considerable signs of damage from the stray balls which came from the bay. Business there is now at a low ebb, and many of the laboring classes are clamoring for work and demanding bread. At first thought one naturally looks upon this revolution as a great calamity, but after all I think I can see the hand of God in it all. He has said that he will "overturn" until our Lord shall reign. And there is sufficient ground to believe that these political upheavals are only preparatory for the more effectual entrance of the gospel among these people. We are looking and praying for the best results.

Yours in him,

SAMUEL J. PORTER.

Juiz de Fora, Brazil, Nov. 6, 1893.

The demand for the new Senior Inductive Quarterly, published by the American Baptist Publication Society, has proved so great that the first edition is exhausted, and a second edition has been ordered.

The following testimonials from many received by the Society, we believe fairly express the prevailing sentiment in regard to their new Lesson Helps:

Rev. R B Montgomery of Brooklyn, N. Y, who so recently departed this life, in his last letter to the Society, wrote: "I have carefully examined the Quarterlies. I am delighted with them. I congratulate the Society in producing such Sunday-school Helps. They are thoroughly abreast of the times, and fully meet all present demands for advanced Bible instruction. 'Two Years with Jesus' for primary classes deserves the highest praise. This Quarterly illustrates the fact that the Society has men who have an 'understanding of the times, to know what Israel ought to do.' Our large school will, in the future as in the past, be loyal to a Society which so richly merits the patriotic support of every Bible Baptist."

Rev. Albert F. Pierce, pastor of First Congregational church, Danbury, Conn., writes: "I take pleasure in saying that you have made a positive advance, in my judgment, in this new field of prepared helps. No other series of Inductive studies have been satisfactory.... Your method of review pleases me. Here is the rock on which so many are shipwrecked. You make the work easy and profitable.... For the Primary Series I have only words of praise. The lessons are wisely selected and treated in a most excellent way."

F. M. Ellis, D. D, pastor of Eutaw Place Baptist church, Baltimore, says: "The inductive method is made practical, while at the same time the best of the old methods seem combined happily with it."

The Poison of Evil Thinking.

What if we look this question squarely in the face and speak plainly for once. Is it not true that evil thinking is poisonous to the brain? When a strong imagination once fills itself with the love of abominations, and begins to expend itself upon forbidden pleasures, is not the brain tissue subjected to injurious strain? We know very little as yet concerning the action of the brain-cells during thought production; but what we do know suggests that conscience in one form or other is the register of the effect which thought has upon what we may call the soul. The higher the nervous organization, the more effective will be this reflex register. Men of lofty genius may assume to eliminate conscience; but it is assumption and nothing more; the index will move with every thought. No enlightened imagination ever gave itself over to lechery and the filth of it without suffering from the recoil when it beheld the record on the dial of conscience.—Maurice Thompson, in Independent.

Mt. Zion Association Minutes.

I regret exceedingly the mistake in the figures of the Centennial report. The contributions of the churches, I think, are correct. They foot up $996 44 instead of $960.26 as printed. There was a hat collection to round up the $1,000 asked of us, and it amounted to about four dollars. As I had to leave the Association, I put the report into the hands of a good brother with a request to ascertain and insert the hat collection exactly, and foot up the entire Associational contribution to the Centennial fund for the minutes. For some reason this was not done, and it is now too late to correct the error. Well, we will try to do better next time.

Literary.

Mrs Marshall's Experiment. By Mrs. R. M. Wilbur. 12mo, 252 pp. Price, $1 00. Philadelphia: American Baptist Publication Society, 1420 Chestnut Street.

We have in this book what is really a sequel to "Turtleback Rock," although it is not so stated. We have the same characters and a similar record of activity and training in the Christian life. There is an advance, however, on the previous book. "Elsa" becomes a teacher in a mission Sunday-school, and ultimately—but we will not tell more of her, lest we tell too much. "Miss Margaret" becomes a missionary in foreign lands, and "Myrtle," a younger sister of Elsa, an inmate of the Marshall home.

A veritable family medicine box, Beecham's pills.

Homesick for Heaven.

The sainted Rutherford in one of his letters, says: "I am homesick for heaven." We fear this is an unusual experience even among our most pious and saintly people. With many professing Christians there is much homesickness for earth and the things of the earth, while not a few seem to have a kind of dread of heaven. How few have heavenly longings. How few realize that heaven is their home, and have such a desire for it as may be expressed in the language of the saintly Rutherford. Paul was not of this kind, for he wrote, "I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better." Was not this desire of the Apostle the longing of the soul for its home in heaven, such as Rutherford experienced?

In seasons of sickness or calamity, our hold on earth may be loosened, and we may sigh for deliverance. But the desire of the heart in such a case is more for exemption from present woe than for an entrance upon eternal bliss. It is a wish to escape the evil that now is, rather than the longing of the soul for the enjoyments and bliss of the heavenly world.

The truth is, we Christians do not think and speak enough of heaven. We are too much engrossed with the cares and affairs of this world. We have too few seasons for silent meditation and close communion with God. We are not as intimate as we ought to be with our Heavenly Father, and we think too seldom of our Father's house and the home delights of that blessed abode. Hence, there is but little soul longing for the joys of our Father's house. We go on plodding and toiling, consumed with a thousand worldly cares; and when our Father does send for us we are surprised, and, it may be, alarmed.

Let us think and read and talk more and more about our heavenly inheritance. This will kindle heavenly desires, and these will lead to a deeper consecration of heart and life, without which no man can see the Lord.—Southern Christian Advocate.

Pastoral Proprieties.

A first and indisputable propriety for a pastor is careful tidiness of dress and personal habits, and gentlemanly manners. Nothing about him should offend good taste, or grate on sensitive nerves with which in sick rooms, and elsewhere, too, he has often to deal. He must not be loud in speech; he must not monopolize talk, delivering monologues instead of taking part in conversation; he must not, in the effort to be entertaining, spice his talk with stories that border on coarseness or have any tinge of irreverence. He must use in society that self effacement which the soundest rules of etiquette and the precepts of the gospel alike enjoin; he must be prompt to render the small services and make the small sacrifices which are the very elements of true politeness. Let no young minister suppose that such details are too petty to deserve his notice. Lowell has finely said that

> Manners are not idle, but the fruit
> Of loyal nature and of noble mind.

And the Christian pastor should be, like any other gentleman, a living example of their best quality. The suggestion has been made more than once that a professorship of deportment would be a useful addition to the faculty of every theological seminary. It is not, of course, to be taken literally, but it has serious significance. The applause with which it has been greeted, shows that churches don't want slovenly or uncouth men for pastors.—The Examiner.

Ordination.

After a very satisfactory examination, Rev. R. A. Hedgpeth was ordained to the gospel ministry on Sunday, Nov. 19th, 1893, at Big Branch church, Robeson county, N. C., in the presence of a large and appreciative audience. The writer preached the sermon. Text—Luke 4: 18, 19. Prayer and charge by Rev. I P. Hedgpeth. The writer delivered the Bible as his rule of faith and practice. Benediction by Rev. R. A. Hedgpeth.

Beulah Union Meeting.

This Union will meet with the Ruffin church on Friday before the fifth Sunday in December, 1893. Introductory sermon by Rev. C. A. G. Thomas.

SUBJECTS FOR DISCUSSION.

1. The best means to secure systematic giving in every Baptist church. Opened by Geo. W. White.
2. The relation of the Sunday school to the church, and whose duty is it to attend Sunday school? Opened by R. W. Brooks.
3. The Scriptural authority for church discipline and for what offences it should be exercised. Opened by Rev. C. A. Thomas.
4. The Scriptural authority for restricted communion. Opened by Rev. J. R. Jones.
5. The best methods of securing the interest of the churches in the Union Meetings. General discussion.

It is important that the churches without pastors be represented in order to confer together. The country churches must come up to the help of the Union Meeting or face the responsibility of causing a dissolution of the Association at its next meeting.

COMMITTEE.

Better than a gold mine. Raise your own coffee at less than one cent a pound. Let the high tariff store coffee go. Most delicious and healthy. The poor man's friend and rich man's delight. Matures north or south in four months. Plant any time up to the 20th of June. Has produced over 60 bushels per acre. Some prefer it to store coffee. For the benefit of my fellow men I will send a starting package to all who will send stamps to cover trouble of packing and mailing, or enough to plant 200 hills 50 cents, or stamps, and will make 200 pots of most delicious coffee, good enough for a king. I have been working the soil nearly 50 years and never found anything beginning to compare in true merit with this wonderful and valuable coffee, which is superseding store coffee as fast as its merits become known. Order my free catalogue and see what my patrons say about it, who have tried it all over the country.

MONROE STATION M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH,
(REV. J. C. ROWE, PASTOR)
MONROE, N. C., Feb. 23, 1892

Mr. W. H. Witherspoon:

Dear Sir:—Five months ago I bought an Electropoise of you for the treatment of muscular rheumatism, pain in the right side and chest and the unpleasant results of grippe. The use of the Electropoise has relieved the pain and greatly benefited the rheumatism, besides improving my general health very much. I prize it very highly, and have used it in my family for colds and grippe, and obtained satisfactory results in every instance.

Yours truly, J. C. ROWE.

STATESVILLE, N. C., Dec. 9, 1893.

Dear Sir:—Yours received regarding my testimonial given February, 1892. I now re-affirm what I wrote then. We still use the Electropoise, and would not know how to get along without it. I look upon it as a reliable safeguard to the family against many malignant diseases such as fevers, diptheria, croup, &c. I have received many letters enquiring about the Electropoise, and in answer to them all, I can say it has been a great blessing to me.

Yours truly, J. C. ROWE.

Death of Rev. David James Ray.

David James Ray was born February 10th, 1817, and died June 5th, 1893, at the age of seventy-six years. He joined Mt. Zion church at the age of twenty-two, and was baptized by William Ayers. He shortly afterwards began his life work, that of preaching the gospel. On the 25th day of September, 1841, he was licensed to preach by the church that he joined, and was ordained to the full work of the ministry by Elders Haynes Lennon and G. W. Hill, December 30th, 1847. He married Nancy Dew, daughter of Alfred Dew of Columbus County, April 5th, 1838, to whom ten boys and four girls were born.

Bro. Ray was one of the old fashioned farmer preachers who would work hard all the week until Friday or Saturday, when he would start for his appointments, sometimes travelling as much as sixty miles to reach his churches. Often has the writer seen him on the road during the severe weather in winter, when a more robust person would have remained indoors. Yet he seldom missed an appointment.

He served churches in Robeson, Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus and New Hanover counties in North Carolina and Marian and Horry counties in South Carolina. He was pastor of New Hope church at the time of his death.

Although his education was limited he was thoroughly posted in Bible knowledge. His library consisted of such books as Pilgrim's Progress, Bible Looking Glass, &c. Many were added to the churches under his ministry. He sometimes baptized as many as sixty into the fellowship of one church.

He was one of the first to advocate a County Association and consequently helped to organize the Columbus county Association, a measure which in the future will do a great deal for the Baptists of this county. Although many churches of to day do not desire these old pioneers, yet their places are hard to fill and many pastors complain of their hardships.

Bro. Ray left his children in good circumstances which a great many of our ministers fail to do at this age of high education and rapid progress. He provided a small farm for each one of his children, although he began life very poor in this world's goods. He was a "Unionist" before the war and opposed slavery which rendered him unpopular with some of the larger planters. After the war he took no part in politics.

The Associations have come and gone but they have missed our dear brother who always attended and took an active part in them. Columbus county has only two of its pioneers left in the Baptist denomination—they are Elders Haynes Lennon and G. W. Hill.

May the Lord bless the widow of our deceased brother, and raise up many faithful leaders in his own good time to lead the Baptist hosts to battle for truth and against sin.

DIED.

WILSON—On the morning of Dec 7th, Bro. C. E. Wilson and wife felt the bereavement of their little son. After several days illness he folded his arms in death. God giveth and he taketh away. The little one has gone to rest. It is bad to give up their dearest ones, but God knows best. May God's blessing rest upon the bereaved ones. May their lives be such that they may meet him in heaven.

ALLEN—Sister Fannie F. Allen, wife of Bro. T. M. Allen, died at her home in Caswell county on Saturday the 9th inst. She was in her thirty-fourth year, and had been a member of the church about twenty years, and all these years she lived a most exemplary Christian life. In her death, a husband and six children are left to mourn the loss of an affectionate wife and fond mother. On Sunday the 10th, loving and sorrowing friends laid her body to rest in the cemetery at Shiloh Baptist church. A good woman has gone to her reward.

J. R. JONES.

WELLS—Departed this life at her home in Duplin county, Dec. 3d, 1893, sister Rachel C. Wells in the seventy-second year of her age. She was baptized into the fellowship of Corinth Baptist church about fifty-three years ago, but for convenience she moved her membership to Island Creek church, where she remained a consistent member to her death.

Sister Wells remembered her Creator in the days of her youth and when old age came on it did not bring with it the regrets that are peculiar to those that forget their God.

She leaves several children and a host of kindred to lament their loss. We commend the bereaved family to the God of all grace, and to the gospel of his Son, which dispels darkness from the grave and points to a blessed immortality beyond.

B.

GENTERY—At her father's home, Bro. A. Horne, in East Bend, Yadkin county, Sister Mollie Gentery, wife of Bro. Gentery, after an illness of painful suffering, lasting about twelve months, quietly passed away. She has gone to join her husband, who died a most triumphant death just twelve months previous to her death. How we shall miss her! Always at her church when our appointment came. Always at Sunday-school before her class when the hour came. A devoted and affectionate wife, a loving daughter, an exceptional friend and neighbor to all. But alas, she is gone. Her father and mother can see her no more on earth, but can meet her in the sweet by and by.

C. C. HAYMORE.

PERRY—Deacon John W. Perry was born April 11th, 1830, and died Oct 13th, 1893, aged sixty-three years six months and two days. He was baptized and joined Ross' church October, 1847, and continued a member of said church until 1857, when he was granted a letter and united with Mars Hill church in June, 1857. He was elected deacon September, 1866, which office he filled with honor and dignity until his death. He was a man slow to speak and thought well on all subjects. His advice was eagerly sought after by his brethren and always followed. He was gentle in his demeanor, never speaking ill of any one. He never fretted or grumbled, but took everything quiet and easy. He was a devoted husband, loving father, generous neighbor, and a grand and noble Christian. During the forty-six years he was a member of the church there never was the smallest charge against him. He died as he had lived, in the triumph of faith. While we bow in humble submission to the decree of our Heavenly Father, we feel our irreparable loss. He leaves a widow and eight children, to whom we tender our warmest sympathy.

On a vote of Mars Hill church in conference Nov. 25th, 1893, a copy of the above was ordered to be spread on the church record, and a copy sent to the BIBLICAL RECORDER for publication.

W. R. RAYNER.

Colerain N. C.

BOURDEN—Sister Clarissa Sloan Bourden, relict of the late Hallstead Bourden, departed this life at her home in Duplin county, Nov. 24th, 1893, in the seventy-sixth year of her age. For more than fifty years she was a consistent member of Kenansville Baptist church, having been baptized into the fellowship of that church about fifty-four years ago, though at the time of her death she was a beloved member of Johnson church, where, for convenience, she had moved her membership. Sister Bourden in many respects was a remarkable woman. No one could associate with her without being impressed with the gentle spirit that at all times characterized her Christian life. Many years of her life were spent in bodily afflictions—but she endured it all with patience, being resigned to the will of her Heavenly Father, knowing that her sufferings were but for a short time, and that an exceeding and eternal weight of glory would be her reward. She leaves four children, a host of grandchildren, and many other relatives, to mourn their loss. May all emulate the example that a mother in Israel has left behind.

"Asleep in Jesus! peaceful rest,
Whose waking is supremely blest."

Tributes of Respect.

TO THE MEMORY OF JOSEPH M. ELLIS, WHO DIED NOV. 26, 1893.

The sweet-toned bells had ceased to ring,
The sun had sunk to rest,
When God's bright angels bore our boy
To his home among the blest.

For him who meekly bears his cross
A golden crown awaits,
And loved ones who have gone before
Welcome him at heaven's gates.

Our poor hearts are nigh to breaking,
Our home is lonely since he left;
Each book and picture tells us
How sadly we're bereft.

He did not longer care to stay
In this world of sin and care,
But bade good-bye to friends, and said,
"I'll soon be 'over there.'"

Let these words cheer your fainting hearts,
Dear parents who loved your boy,
Our Father had need of him,
In the glory-land of joy.

What God does we know not now,
But shall hereafter know,
So let us to his blessed will Ever submissive bow.

M. M. E.

Died in Colerain, N. C., Sept. 26th, 1893, after a lingering illness of typhoid fever, Edgar Wilson, son of Col. Etherton and Amanda Wilson, aged twenty-four years, one month and twenty-four days. He had been for several years a consistent member of Colerain Baptist church, and was an active member of the Sunday-school and missionary society.

Beloved by all who knew him, there was universal sorrow when the spirit of our dear young brother winged its eternal flight to God who gave it. Edgar saw life on its bright side, and we shall greatly miss his good natured wit. His piety was unquestioned. Surely other young men, his companions in life, can afford to follow his example.

While we cannot help regretting his early death, we remember that our Saviour died young, yet it was said of him that his work was done. His funeral services were conducted by his pastor S. F. Bristow, in the presence of a large congregation of friends and relatives in the Colerain Baptist church.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father, in wisdom passed our understanding, has seen good to take from our Sunday-school and missionary society our young brother, Edgar Wilson, therefore Resolved 1. That in the death of our friend and brother we have sustained a loss greater than any words of ours can express.

2. While with deep sorrow we say that "Edgar is dead," with the eye of faith we see him "not dead, but only gone before."

3. That we extend our sympathy to the aged father and brothers who await the time when they shall be a family reunited around "the great white throne."

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and also to the BIBLICAL RECORDER.

La Grippe Again.

The United States has never suffered from any disease that has caused such fearful results as has La Grippe. Royal Germetuer has never failed to cure it quickly where used as directed.

Reliable Evidence.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 28, 1893.

In January last I had a violent attack of La Grippe. I was advised by a friend to use Royal Germetuer, which cured me in a couple of days. I was again attacked by the 'grip' this month, and profiting by my former experience, I commenced at once with Germetuer and did not have to go to bed. I consider it a specific for La Grippe.

The Golden Silence.

"O, speech is merely silver,
But silence is pure gold"—
This is the truest proverb
That ever has been told.
For the superficial glamor
Of thought through speaking flows,
But the soul of deep emotion
Sweet silence only knows.
O, far from the wild world's riot
My spirit longs to be
When the spell of the golden Silence
Is stealing over me.

O, great is the speaker's power
And grand his thoughts may be,
But the spell of the golden silence
Has sweeter charms for me,
O, dear is the golden silence
Unto the dreamer's soul
When thoughts no words may utter
Across his spirits roll,
O, far from the world's wild clamor
My spirit yearns to be
When the spell of the Golden Silence
Is falling over me.

—Michael Whelan.

How They Cheered Her.

"It is hard to be a shut-in at the season when everything invites out of doors," sighed Miss Wayne, reflecting upon the doctor's decision that her hurt ankle would not be of use for walking before autumn.

At the same hour, half a dozen girls came down the street. They were going to see little Lois Barry.

Lois, though not expecting the visit, was sitting on the steps of her home.

Like soldiers at the word of command they halted at seeing her spring down the steps to meet them. There they stood, rather stiffly, and evidently wondering what to do next, while the junior member of the class puzzled her head to comprehend what it all meant.

"You tell her, Clara," at length some one proposed to Clara Gilder. All at once the difficulty of explaining matters seemed doubled, owing to her fear lest Lois should feel that she had been slighted in not having been given an opportunity to join the others in buying a token of love for their shut-in teacher.

Lois was an orphan and poor; her uncle, in a distant city, paid her school and other expenses, and that was all, while her schoolmates had parents who would give them money for a purpose.

"All the same you will come with us to call on teacher to-morrow evening," said Clara, when she had managed to tell Lois what was being done. "It doesn't matter who bought the picture, seeing we have it."

They left Lois with a lump in her throat and deep in thought, although she had no fault to find with her companions beyond a little regret that the secret had been kept from her till the very last day. "Perhaps I could have done errands, or found some other way to earn a little money," she reflected.

Next morning she rose early and went down to the basement, where she hunted out, from a littered corner, an empty flower-pot. This she took to the kitchen and scrubbed with so much care that the servant Mary, who was making muffins, asked whether she intended eating her breakfast out of it.

At a later hour Lois got leave of absence for the forenoon, and slipped away in her oldest frock and hat, with a small parcel tucked slyly under her arm.

Toward noon Clara Gilder called, and not finding Lois at home, left word for her to be sure and meet them at Mrs. Wayne's gate at seven o'clock.

At the edge of some woods, a long walk from town, sat a small miss watching the road. Beside the mossy knoll, that served her for a seat, leaned a paper bag overflowing with tender green foliage that seemed light as the air in which it waved.

Lois Barry knew that the brother of the woman who had the care of her drove into town every day about that hour, and if he came along would gladly take her home. He came quite as soon as expected, and at sight of her waving hand drew the reins, exclaiming:

"Why, Lois, are you rusticating? You look like an old-times little grandmother going to mill—only you ought to have a horse to carry your grist."

"That is what I have been waiting for," laughed the girl. "My grist is maidenhair ferns—aren't they nice?"

She brushed the hair from her face, glanced at her soiled hands, and laughed again. The man reached down and drew her and her treasures into his carriage, then drove on and soon had her safely at her own door.

Mrs. Wayne and her daughter lived in the rear of a bit of park. On the side was a hedgerow with a spreading elm forming a covert, the appointed meeting place of the class. At five minutes to the hour Clara Gilder appeared, bearing the picture, and remarked a trifle anxiously,—

"All here except Lois."

"There comes Lois," said several voices, as the junior member came around a corner of the street, walking briskly, yet more than once looking back. They knew why when, a minute later, Mary followed smiling broadly above the flower pot whose honors she had not foreseen when it was brought out and washed from its dust in her presence. It contained as lovely a clump of maidenhair ferns as ever grew in a rocky nook behind a waterfall, and the pot itself had been made pretty with fringes of tissue paper.

"Oh, oh!" cried the admiring girls in chorus, "how came you to think of it, Lois?"

"Do you think teacher will like it?" inquired the owner timidly.

Whether she knew beyond a doubt, to the infatuation of one and all.

"What a delightful surprise!" said Miss [illegible] to the loving circle around her invalid chair. "With such reward of being a shut-in I will be patient. Only with the strong light of day upon it can I decide where my beautiful picture shall be hung for the best effect; but these ferns, that bring the sight and smell of the woods to me, shall have a place at the north window and be constantly before my eyes. Thank you all, once more; thank you, Lois, for the pains you have taken."

As they rustled out through the gate in the hedge, the girls with one accord praising Lois' ferns, the children felt to take courage for all her future, deciding that there is generally a way to get around poverty, if you try.—Lavinia S. Goodwin, in The Watchman.

The Holiday Season.

Old Scrooge is never so much out of fashion as in the beautiful processional weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas. This is the season of good feeling, of loosened purse strings, of unselfish planning, of conspiracies into which malice does not enter, of the holiest of mysteries. To and fro on the avenues and streets the children flit like fairies, pausing entranced before shop windows which recall the marvels of the Arabian Nights, and eagerly discussing the possibilities of the pence in their dimpled hands. Could their generosity measure out their gifts, papa, mamma, the governess, the nurse, and all the troops of cousins woulds be remembered at this happy time by every free-hearted child.

In the home a great many innocent surprises are in process of accomplishment. Mamma has kept a note-book for months, and in its pages has jotted down the unconscious speeches of this and that member of the household, wishes, which are great helps in the holiday season, when nobody's gift should be a misfit, but each should receive the very thing for which he or she most earnestly longed.

As the crisp airs of December deepen the color on the maiden's cheek, and the first snow flakes flying through the fields are precursors of sleigh bells and toboggans and all sturdy winter sports, the home lines are the more closely drawn. Our pleasures are more intimately associated with the fireside; old Boreas raging without, but heaven's own peace within. Summer disperses family groups, while winter unites them in a sweeter friendliness. And the holiday season, coming before the whirl of social engagements and of church activities has fairly begun, is the jewelled clasp upon the circlet of family life. For the next few days and weeks the thoughts of husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, parents and children, are set upon how best to please one another.

And ever there is in the midst the radiant figure of a child, the benignant face of a mother, and in the distance the ear that listens can hear the angels sing.

Whence, then, a note that jars, a discord in the harmony?

Is it not, dear friends, that in the holiday season we often attempt too much? Desiring to be liberal, are we not sometimes unjust? Do we not suffer that to become a tax which ought to be pure enjoyment? and are we not departing from the true spirit of Christmas giving when we allow the element of cost to obtrude itself arrogantly?

The real value of a gift is in the love that prompts it. A flower may mean more than a diamond, a tiny book or picture more than silver or gold, if it carry with it a sweet sincere thought.

The moment that the idea of reciprocity enters into the mind of giver or of receiver a gift is cheapened and vulgarized. To bestow a gift because one ought, or because it will be expected, or because it will pay off a score, or for any reason except for love's own sake, is to rob the holiday season of its richest opportunity, and defraud it of its most unique charm.—Harper's Bazar.

Loyal to the Truth.

If Baptist schools are ever to realize the intelligent design of their existence, if they are to strengthen, confirm and instruct our own membership and convince others that our distinctive denominational characteristics are intensely Scriptural, they must be supplied with a literature that is doctrinally clear and positive. Teachers and scholars must have "Helps" that strengthen a spirit of loyalty to the truth. Such helps are found in the issues of the American Baptist Publication Society. Is your school fully supplied with the Publication Society's literature? If not, secure at once what is needed and you will be convinced that they will greatly help you in your work and with the blessing of the Lord make good Baptists.

The ministers who claim that the pulpit is losing its power would do well to ask themselves if they are putting all the power they can command into their pulpits.—The Watchman

YOUR MONEY IS RETURNED
if you receive no benefit from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This fair and business-like offer is held out to all women who suffer from the diseases and derangements peculiar to their sex.

To weakly womanhood no prize could be more secure, nor the benefit more lasting, than that to be derived from the purchase of a bottle of this famous "Prescription." Its success in curing all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, warrants its makers in guaranteeing it. What this medicine has done for thousands of delicate women, it will do for you. At the two critical periods in woman's life, the change from girlhood to womanhood, and, later, the "change of life," it's an invaluable tonic and a soothing nervine, which can produce only good results. It cures cases of nervous prostration, insomnia, or inability to sleep, and many nervous disorders due to derangement of the functions.

HAGEY'S KING HEATER,
A WOOD STOVE,
CHAMPION OF THE WORLD.

The NEWEST of all Heating Stoves! The CHEAPEST of all Heating Stoves! The BEST of all Heating Stoves!
The MOST ECONOMICAL Heating Stove ever invented and placed on the world's market!
We call your attention to our patent HAGEY'S KING HEATING STOVE, made of the best American Russia iron and best wrought sheet steel and lined with charcoal iron, ornamented and suitable for bedroom or parlor. We do not hesitate to say it is the best, cheapest and safest quick heater ever offered.
It is KING HEATER because it devours the whole woodpile, burning knots, chunks, chips, trash and anything that will go into the 13-inch opening at the top.
It is KING HEATER because it will warm the whole room in five minutes.
It is KING HEATER because no fire can fall from it.
It is KING HEATER because the ashes do not need removing but once a month or six weeks.
It is KING HEATER because one or two knots or chunks will run it twelve hours in cool weather.
It is KING HEATER because the fire is everlasting.
Call and see the STOVE, or write for circular and testimonials.
